

Sloan Testifies He Tried To Warn White House Of Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former campaign treasurer Hugh W. Sloan Jr. testified today he tried to warn the White House shortly after the Watergate burglary that the affair posed "a tremendous problem" for President Nixon's political organization, but got nowhere.

Sloan also testified before the Senate Watergate committee that he told government prosecutors and a federal grand jury last July that another Nixon campaign official had said he might have to perjure himself in the case.

He said Jeb Stuart Magruder, the deputy campaign director, had asked him several days after the Watergate break-in to conceal the actual sum of $199,000 cash that the committee had paid G. Gordon Liddy.

Sloan said Magruder first asked him to say the amount was perhaps $80,000, and later cut the amount back to $45,000. The money had been paid to Liddy in early 1972, apparently for political espionage. Liddy has been convicted in the Watergate break-in.

Sloan said when he raised Watergate concerns at the White House, one Nixon aide told him the President had to be protected, and another said he didn't want to know of any links between the campaign and the burglary.

On the witness stand, the slender, youthful Sloan etched in details of the account he provided in advance to the committee staff.

After the June 17, 1972, wiretapping raid at Democratic headquarters, Sloan said, he became increasingly concerned that money he was instructed to give Liddy might have been used in the Watergate operation.

Sloan told the televised hearings that after the break-in, he sought out three White House aides at a cocktail party, and expressed concern that "there was something very definitely wrong at the campaign committee."

Six days after the break-in, Sloan said, he met at the White House with Dwight

Chapin, then Nixon's appointments secretary, and later with John D. Ehrlichman, domestic affairs adviser to the President. Both have since resigned.

He said the tone of his conversation with Chapin was "that there is a tremendous problem there, something has to be done."

He said Chapin suggested Sloan was overwrought and should take a vacation. He said Chapin also "suggested that the important thing is that the President be protected."

Sloan said he had a similar talk with Ehrlichman. "I was just saying that somebody external to the campaign has to look at this," because he feared involvement, he said.

He said Ehrlichman indicated the White House would help personally but he quoted the former Nixon aide as saying, "Don't tell me any of the details. I don't want to know, my position would have to be until after the election that I would have to take executive privilege."

Sloan testified that when FBI agents sought to question him days after the Watergate raid, he went to former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, then campaign chairman, for guidance.

"He told me 'When the going gets tough, the tough get going,'" Sloan said.

Sloan also said that Mitchell was making decisions about campaign spending almost a year before he left the Justice Department.

That conflicts with a sworn statement Mitchell made last year.

And he said Nixon's finance chairman, Maurice Stans, once told him "I don't know, and you don't want to know" the purpose of cash payments to G. Gordon Liddy, later convicted in the wiretapping. Liddy spent the money to finance the bugging operation, reportedly with Mitchell's express approval.

Sloan said he heard from President Nixon's personal lawyer, Herbert W. Kalmbach, that Mitchell would take over decisions on campaign spending in the summer of 1971. Prior to that, Kalmbach had made these decisions.

Sloan said another re-election official, Harry Flemming, regularly sent budget memoranda to Mitchell at the Justice Department for his approval. Sloan said he followed Flemming's practice when he took over spending responsibilities later.

Sloan's testimony backed up what had been said earlier by another campaign official, Robert C. Odle, who testified last month that Mitchell regularly cleared "decision memoranda" as early as May 1971.

Mitchell didn't resign from the Justice Department until March 1, 1972. On March 15 he testified at Senate hearings concerning the International Telephone and Telegraph Co. that he had no campaign responsibilities before March 1.

Sloan said today that Jeb Stuart Magruder conferred regularly with Mitchell at the Justice Department about budget and other matters. Sloan said he checked Magruder's requests for funds back with Mitchell, but that eventually Mitchell tired of being "double-teamed" and instructed Magruder and Sloan to work out an approval process between themselves. Magruder then took over spending decisions in Mitchell's name, he said.

WITH DEAN

Counsel Wants Logs Of Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee counsel said today he will seek through negotiations, rather than subpoena, to obtain logs of conversations between President Nixon and the ousted John W. Dean III.

Dean was Nixon's White House counsel.

Samuel Dash, the committee counsel, said if the White House material is relevant evidence "we certainly will be seeking it." He denied that he said Tuesday a subpoena would be issued soon.

But newsmen who questioned him after the Tuesday committee session confirmed that he had made that comment.

At today's televised hearing, Dash maintained he had said nothing about a subpoena. He also said he had issued a correcting statement, saying that he would be discussing the question of access to the logs with Leonard Garment, now White House counsel.

The White House maintains that presidential papers are not subject to subpoena.

Dash said "we have received complete cooperation" from the White House in the effort to obtain the Dean logs.

A White House spokesman has said the question of access to the logs, or to information in them, is under review by Garment.

Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., the committee's vice chairman, told newsmen the committee will request the material from the White House.

Baker said the committee would issue a subpoena should that become necessary.

The White House said Monday that the logs would not be made available. But Tuesday, press spokesman Gerald Warren said he had erred in making that statement and that the question of access to the logs is under study.

Special Watergate prosecutor Archibald W. Cox had said Monday, "I shall insist on access to everything." Cox and the Senate committee are already at odds over whether the Senate panel should have continued its public televised hearings into the scandal.

They may now be in a further fight over the presidential logs.

FOR ADMINISTRATION

Agnew Rejects Paralysis Claim

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, conducting some low-key fence mending among the nation's governors, has rejected the contention of some that the Watergate scandal has paralyzed the Nixon administration.

"I don't believe from what I've seen in Washington and outside that there is any claim of paralysis that is worthy of any credibility," the vice president told reporters during a dinner at the National Governors Conference Tuesday night.

Agnew flew here earlier in the day in the wake of fears among many governors that governmental paralysis due to Watergate is preventing the federal government from giving them the financial assurances they seek.

In rejecting the paralysis theory, Agnew declared that President Nixon is very busy. He said that serious matters were taken up at a White House meeting Tuesday morning, "and none of them related to Watergate."

Seated with Agnew, conference host Gov. Mike O'Callaghan of Nevada said he has seen no sign of a deterioration in federal-state relations because of Watergate.

O'Callaghan, a Democrat, said the governors appreciated the opportunity to work again with Agnew.

While Agnew made his informal rounds, the governors prepared to adopt a series of policy statements today. Included are appeals for a halt in the administration's impoundment of federal highway funds and for restoration of threatened cuts in social services programs.

The annual conference winds up today at this Nevada-California border gambling resort.

About the time Agnew was arriving, the impact of Watergate here was underscored by the strongest statement on the scandal yet by the Republican governor about to assume the conference chairmanship.

Washington Gov. Daniel J. Evans, who will succeed Mandel in the post that rotates between the parties, said only a full disclosure by President Nixon could prevent the problems posed by the Watergate scandal.

EHRlichman TESTIFIES

Nixon Became Suspicious Of Dean

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was growing increasingly suspicious of John W. Dean III's role in the Watergate scandal, while seeking to prevent Dean from being questioned publicly about it, John D. Ehrlichman has testified.

The former presidential adviser said Dean hid the fact that he himself had participated in discussions of wiretapping plans months before the raid on Democratic headquarters last year.

And he said Dean, then the President's official lawyer, resisted repeated requests by presidential staff chief H.R. Haldeman to produce a written report of his investigation into the affair.

It was this investigation Nixon had cited during the presidential election campaign as clearing all administration employees in the case.

Ehrlichman, now under investigation himself, gave his version of the affair in pre-trial testimony May 22, 23 and 24 in lawsuits over the wiretapping. A transcript of his testimony was released Tuesday.

Ehrlichman said that during his own short-lived investigation into the Watergate affair, Job S. Magruder, once the second in command at the Nixon re-election campaign, told him former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell reluctantly approved the final plans to wiretap the Watergate.

Ehrlichman quoted Magruder as saying final approval came at a meeting in Key Biscayne, Fla., in late March 1972. Only Mitchell, Magruder and cam-

Nixon Rebuilds Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced three moves today in a major rebuilding of his Watergate-shaken White House staff.

Army Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., will retire from active duty and continue as chief of the White House staff, a post he has held on an interim basis.

Former Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird was appointed counselor to the President for domestic affairs and, in that Cabinet-rank post, will in effect succeed John D. Ehrlichman who resigned April 30 along with the former staff chief H. R. Haldeman.

Ronald L. Ziegler, while remaining as press secretary, will be given the added title of assistant to the President and given a role in White House policy making.

Haig's retirement from the Army will take effect Aug. 1, at which time he will be appointed assistant to the President. A former deputy to foreign policy expert Henry A. Kissinger, Haig had been recalled to the White House from his post as Army vice chief of staff following Haldeman's resignation.

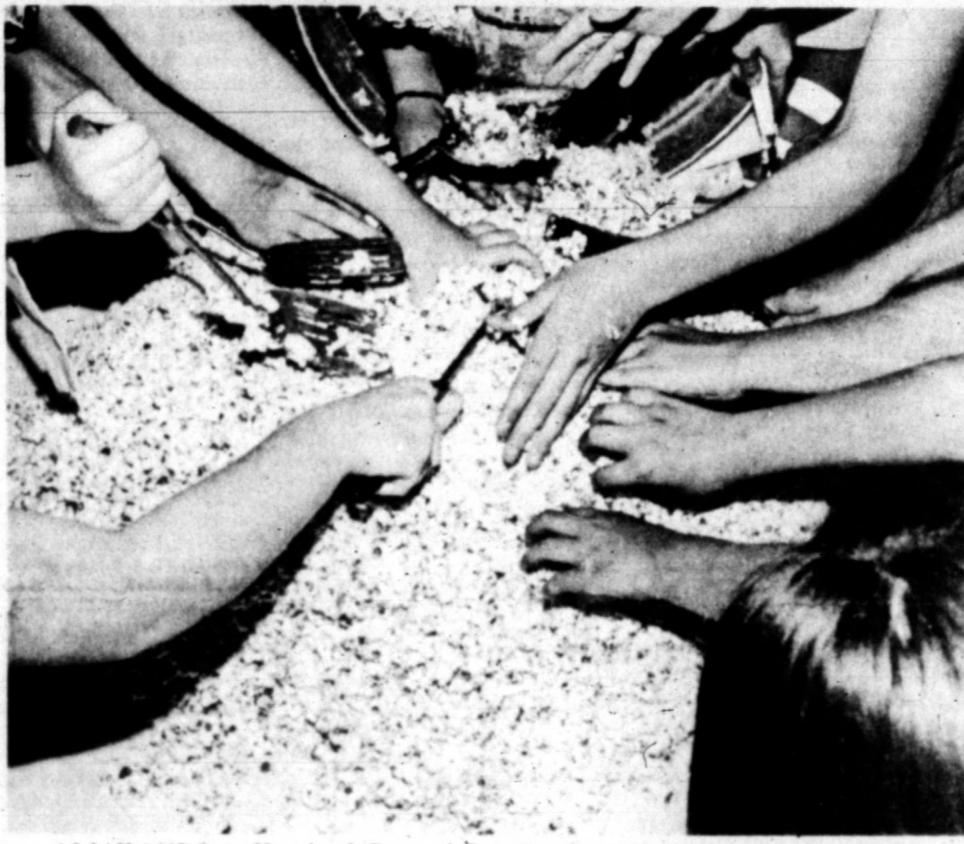

Today's announcement said Haig will be responsible for "coordination and supervision of the day-to-day operations and responsibilities of the White House staff."

Laird, a former U.S. House member from Wisconsin, "will be responsible for the overall formulation and coordination of domestic policy," said the White House.

He will be given a seat on the National Security Council.

The announcement said Ziegler, with the resignation of Herbert G. Klein as director of communications, will assume responsibility for the communications office as well as the press office.

"As assistant to the President, he will be involved in policy meetings both with the President and other senior staff members, and also will retain his briefing responsibilities and daily contact with members of the press."

ON SKYLAB STATION

Panel Repair Stressed By Weakening Battery

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The urgency of freeing a stuck Skylab solar panel during a two-man space walk Thursday was underscored today when another battery on the space station began losing power.

Working with ropes, leathers and tools, the astronauts set aside four hours today to rehearse for a walk during which commander Charles Conrad Jr. will try to pry or cut free the jammed panel.

Success would nearly double the electricity to their power-short laboratory.

Two of the 18 available batteries already have failed, and Flight Director Charles Lewis told newsmen that if the third went out, and the panel could not be freed, the astronauts would have to drastically curtail their research.

Lewis said they might have to abandon the huge workshop area of the station to save energy and retreat to two smaller rooms where they could conduct limited earth resources, solar observatory and medical experiments.

The flight director said the third battery began losing power Tuesday night, apparently because of a short circuit in a transistor, and was producing only about one-half to two-thirds of its potential.

The astronauts awakened for their 13th day in space, just one shy of the American record for a single flight.

In the large workshop area of the orbiting laboratory, they were to assemble and work with a battery of tools and tethers needed for the unprecedented salvage job.

It was their 13th day in space.

"If there are no problems, Commander Charles Conrad Jr. and Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin are to open an airlock hatch about 10:37 a.m. CDT Thursday. About half an hour later, Conrad is to scramble some 25 feet across the side of the barrel-shaped vehicle to the stuck panel.

With Kerwin waiting near the open hatch to assist, the commander will try to cut through or pry loose a one-inch wide aluminum strip which is holding the one-ton panel against the side of the station.

Once Conrad frees the panel, he'll have to provide the muscle to snap it into place.

Paris (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho resumed their secret talks today to tighten the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

They met in a villa owned by the French Communist party in suburban Gif-sur-Yvette. Tho was acting as host, and welcomed the American delegates on the lawn in front of the villa. He was smiling and shook their hands warmly.

"We shall certainly spare no effort to strengthen the peace in Indochina," Kissinger said on his arrival from Washington Tuesday night.

He said if he and Tho "continue the progress and cooperative spirit" that were shown when they recessed two weeks ago, "then the prospects are reasonably good that we might conclude this round."

Kissinger announced "significant progress" May 23 after conferring with Tho for six days on how to end violations of the truce they negotiated last winter. He said he and Tho had every intention of concluding our discussions" in the upcoming round.

This was interpreted as a warning to President Nguyen Van Thieu that neither Hanoi nor Washington would allow any basic objections to their proposals to make the cease-fire work.

South Vietnamese sources said Thieu accepted the proposals in principle, but objected to some of the details. These have been discussed in a series of preparatory meetings here since Sunday between U.S. and North Vietnamese officials.

But North Vietnamese sources said the main issue in the preparatory talks was over the interpretation of Article 20 of the cease-fire agreement.

The United States has justified its continued bombing in Cambodia on grounds that the North Vietnamese are supporting closely the antigovernment insurgents who are nominally led by the exiled Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Nixon To Form National Shares

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spurred by reported fuel shortages, the Senate has passed legislation requiring President Nixon to develop a mandatory national fuel-allocation formula.

By an 85-10 vote Tuesday, the Senate adopted Sen. Henry M. Jackson's proposal and rejected the administration's voluntary guidelines for oil and gas distributors.

The bill is the first major energy-crisis legislation to pass the Senate.

Jackson, D-Wash., said the vote "represents a new mood of urgency in the Congress that recognizes that there are critical shortages."

The bill was fought by the Nixon administration, but even many conservatives and consistent White House supporters deserted party ranks.

The measure is intended to ensure that all parts of the country and all groups of consumers receive fair shares of available fuel products. It also aims to prevent major oil companies from shutting off all fuel supplies to independent refiners and distributors.

The administration has issued guidelines following the same principles, but chose to leave them on a voluntary basis.

Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, said he doubts the effectiveness of even a mandatory allocation formula. Congress itself may "have to establish priorities," he said.

That could mean determining who gets fuel—the Air Force or private planeowners, commercial barge captains or pleasure boaters, farmers or commuters.

Meanwhile, Jackson said he hopes the House will act on the bill before the August recess.

Other energy measures pending before Congress would create a national fuel reserve, accelerate energy research, tax car horsepower, lower highway speed limits, and speed up pipeline construction.

In a related development Tuesday, the American Automobile Association said its survey of 1,439 gasoline stations showed that the Southeast and Northwest have the tightest fuel supplies. The AAA reported after the first of a series of weekly polls of stations along major U.S. travel routes.

Jackson said major fuel companies such as Sunoco, Exxon and Gulf are abandoning some regional markets in what appears to be a move to eliminate price-cutting competition. And major oil-company earnings were up some 37 per cent in the first quarter of this year, he said.

Committee Keeps Lid On Ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee has voted to keep a tight lid on the government's borrowing capacity by refusing to raise the federal debt ceiling.

The committee's decision to hold the debt ceiling at $465 billion through Nov. 30 is expected to make more difficult the Treasury Department's job of keeping the cash flowing for government operations.

"It is going to be tight," a committee spokesman quoted Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz as saying. The federal debt is now $458 billion.

The Nixon administration sought a $20-billion increase in the ceiling. That would have given the government room to borrow enough money to finance the federal deficit through June 30, 1974.

While keeping the government's borrowing ability restricted, the committee voted to give the Treasury power to pay interest on federal income tax refund checks.

The Treasury asked for that option, perhaps beginning next year, but has not committed itself to carrying it out. Presumably a decision would be made later if and when the proposal gets through Congress.

It would allow interest to be paid on refund checks held by taxpayers as long as six months from Feb. 15. The rate would be the same as that paid on Series "E" U.S. savings.

The panel's action on the debt ceiling was a surprise.

The Treasury wanted the limit pushed up so that it could have lots of borrowing room.

The committee's action means the government will have to come back to Congress with another request this year. Congress has always complained about the federal debt but has never refused to raise the ceiling when it appeared the government would exceed it and be forced not to pay its bills.

Fighting Raging In Delta Region

SAIGON (AP)—A rash of shelling and infantry attacks was reported along the central coast today, and both the government and Viet Cong blamed each other for bloody fighting in the Mekong Delta.

Government sources said field commanders have been alerted for possible Communist land-grabbing attacks before any appeal is issued from Paris for strict implementation of the cease-fire.

Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho resumed talks in the French capital, and informants said they expect at the conclusion of the talks that the United States, North and South Vietnam, and the Viet Cong will issue a joint appeal calling for close observation of the truce.

They added that according to captured documents, the Communists intend to launch large-scale attacks in the central coastal provinces of Quang Ngai and Binh Dinh, perhaps to mark the fourth anniversary of the founding of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government.

Bloody fighting raged for the third day Tuesday in the Mekong Delta, but the official South Vietnamese account of at least one of the engagements differed considerably from other reports reaching Saigon. The differences raised suspicions that the government forces may be trying to extend the area under their control in defiance of the cease-fire.

The South Vietnamese claim 161 Communist troops have been killed in three days of fighting in the delta while the government has lost 26 killed, eight missing and 56 wounded.

But the casualty reports met some skepticism, since the official version of Sunday's battle said 59 Communist soldiers were killed, although only two of their weapons were recovered.

The government claimed the Communists attacked about 40 miles from Saigon in order to put their soldiers in a position to threaten Highway 4 linking the capital with the fertile delta.

Canada's delegation to the International Commission of Control and Supervision is known to have received a report on the battle. But in contrast to its usual policy, it has refused to give newsmen any information.

Dollar Values Improve

LONDON (AP)—The U.S. dollar strengthened today after nearly a week's decline to record lows, and the price of gold eased on European bullion markets.

The volume of trading was low, however, as nervousness over future monetary trends persisted.

Dealers said reports from Washington that the Nixon administration was considering further tough measures to halt rising inflation apparently helped the dollar.

The dollar improved both in Tokyo and in Hong Kong as well as in Europe. It closed in Tokyo at 263.90 yen, up half a yen, and at 5.0650 Hong Kong dollars after opening at 5.06. The price of gold eased in Hong Kong to close at $120.19 an ounce.

The price of the metal dropped $3 an ounce to $123 at London's opening, and $2.50 to $123.50 in London in Zurich.

The British pound eased to $2.5705, a full cent down from Tuesday's close.

In Frankfurt, the dollar rose from Tuesday's 2.59 marks to 2.6140 in early trading. The American money jumped 5 1/2 centimes in Paris to 4.27 francs, and it was up 1 1/2 centimes in Zurich to 3.6550 Swiss francs.

Dollar trading was described as active in Paris but restricted and nervous in both London and Frankfurt.

As the dollar sank and gold prices climbed Tuesday, money experts said the new international system that was supposed to prevent another monetary crisis might be cracking from the pressure.

The governor of the Bank of France, Olivier Wormser, said the dollar was undervalued, and that its recent weakness reflected fears the Watergate scandal has undermined confidence in the Nixon administration's ability to solve economic problems.

Stolen Fishing Gear Reported

A Pampa man reported the loss of fishing gear from the back of his pickup while he was in local lounge last night.

Taken were rods and reels valued at approximately $185.

Police said it would be difficult to establish any clues due to the nature of the theft and the considerable traffic normal to the place of business at that hour.

BEFORE GRAND JURY Hunt Plans Testimony On Ellsberg Burglary

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt, confessed mastermind of plans to get Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatric records, testifies today before a county grand jury.

Hunt is a former CIA agent and former White House consultant who was a member of the "plumbers squad." He was to appear before the grand jury in the second day of its probe into the 1971 burglary of the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding, Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

A local prosecutor said Hunt and two fellow convicted Watergate conspirators, Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio Martinez, would be brought from the Los Angeles County Jail today to appear before the grand jury. A spokesman for Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch said the three men were flown to Los Angeles from a federal prison in Danbury, Conn., where they are serving prison terms for the Watergate burglary.

The three men and another scheduled witness, Felipe De- Diego, are expected to testify as to whether Ellsberg's records were actually copied or stolen. They are also expected to be asked about the extent of White House involvement in the burglary, a development which figured in the dismissal of charges against Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo in the Pentagon papers trial.

Hunt has told federal investigators that he and another convicted Watergate conspirator, Gordon Liddy, supervised the break-in. De- Diego and Barker have confirmed that they were among the persons conducting the break-in.

In another development, The Associated Press learned Tuesday that Ellsberg has given prosecutors records which show that FBI agents armed with search warrants gained access to some of his personal records the day before the break-in at Fielding's office.

Ellsberg, who was the first witness in the probe when it opened Tuesday, said he believes the grand jury is seeking information about the "high-ups" in government who planned to get the psychiatric records.

Former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman, who has said he found out about the break-in after it happened, will testify voluntarily on Friday, his attorney said. Other former White House officials expected to testify are Charles W. Colson and Egil Krogh Jr.

Krogh has accepted full responsibility for the break-in, which occurred when he was in charge of the "plumbers squad" that was entrusted by President Nixon with protecting national security by plugging information leaks. However, Marine Commandant Robert Cushman has said it was Ehrlichman who asked the CIA to help Hunt with disguises which were used in the break-in.

AWOL Soldiers Turned Over To Military Guard

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Six enlisted men who left their base in Germany last week after becoming disenchanted with Army treatment were in military custody today following their surrender.

The six held a news conference at Reese Air Force Base here before surrendering themselves Tuesday, charging that they left their base in Schweinfurt because of what they called command level "harassment."

Included in the group were Spec. 5 Jerry Snook of Dumas, Tex.; Spec. 4 Gary E. Schutz of Smithville, Tex.; Pvt. Joseph D. Thomas of Lynwood, Calif.; Spec. 4 Richard J. Berscheid of Paynesville, Minn.; Spec. 4 Ronald A. Smith of Bend, Ore.; and Spec. 4 Glen E. Newman of Billings, Mont.

The group departed Germany by commercial airliner last Friday and ultimately wound up in Amarillo, Tex.

As spokesman for the six, Snook said at the news conference that soldiers on the U.S. Army base in Germany had undergone religious harassment, being forced into a drug rehabilitation program and had their mail tampered with.

The group agreed that they did not consider themselves deserters. "We wore our uniforms and kept our ID cards with us," Smith said.

Of the trip to Washington before the group stopped at Amarillo, Snook said: "We wanted to talk to our congressmen. But the offices were all closed Saturday."

"We didn't have enough money to stay in Washington, so we flew to Amarillo so we could stay with my parents in Dumas."

Snook, a Vietnam veteran, charged that he was forced into a drug program.

"An officer told me that I was using drugs and would be enrolled in the program. They are just using the drug program to harass people," he said.

Berscheid and Newman complained of religious harassment. Newman said he was threatened with an Article 15, a form of non-judicial punishment, "if I did not go to memorial services."

Schutz said, "On the 13th of May, I walked out of the barracks and saw my hometown newspaper in the trash can. I looked through the trash and found an unopened letter."

He said the only explanation he got was, "It would never happen again."

Officials at Reese said that a team from Ft. Sill, Okla., was to take the group into custody.

Sun To Pay More For Oil

DALLAS (AP)—Sun Oil Co., with its refineries running below capacity because of a shortage of crude-oil, said Tuesday it will pay 20 to 45 cents more per barrel for about 335,000 barrels it hopes to purchase in Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana.

The 45-cent increase applies to crude purchases in Oklahoma and Delhi, La. A 35-cent increase applies to Texas-Louisiana Gulf Coast Grade A oil, South Texas heavy crude and to buys in the East Texas, Conroe and Clay Creek fields.

South Texas light crude was boosted 30 cents and West Texas intermediate crude 20 cents.

The purchase prices now range from $4.16 to $4.35 per barrel. The increases were effective Friday.

J. Van Dyck Fear, Sun's raw materials manager in Philadelphia, said the crude shortage already had forced the company to place its gasoline customers on an allocation program.

Whiskey Reported Taken From Store

The owner of a South Oyster liquor store burglarized last night told police nothing appeared to be missing but, possibly, two bottles of whiskey.

Police said the burglar or burglars entered by kicking in the front door glass. A number of items were missed by the intruder, including $7 in bills lying on a back counter.

Officers are conducting the customary investigation.

Clayton Opens Campaign For Speaker Of House

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Rep. Bill Clayton of Springlake has announced formally as a candidate for House speaker, promising fairness and declaring himself the frontrunner.

He actually has been a candidate for some time and has been filing the required reports on his campaign contributions and expenses since March 1.

But the 44-year-old Democrat had held off making his formal statement until after the legislative session ended.

"I offer not only experience but honesty, integrity and fairness," Clayton, a veteran of 10 years in the House, told a news conference Tuesday.

"I'll make no promises in exchange for votes and everyone will have the same fair treatment under my leadership," he said.

Clayton said he already has received $11,000 in contributions toward a race that might cost $40,000 to $60,000, judging from the experience of previous speaker races.

Clayton said he was "convinced that I have more firm commitments than any other candidate" for speakership of the 1973 House. In answer to a question, he said that a Lubbock newspaper columnist's report that his pledges were approaching 40 was "a good figure." It takes 76 House votes to win election.

His biographical sketch lists his business interests as president of Springlake Enterprises, Inc., his farming corporation; director of Olton State Bank; and president of Texhold, Inc., he said. Texhold was a "corporate hull" adaptable to "whatever opportunity might come along," including a holding company operation.

Clayton said his net worth is about $500,000.

Until Jan. 1, Clayton was executive director of Water, Inc., a non-profit organization which pushed hard in 1969 for a constitutional amendment authorizing $3.5 billion in bonds for the state's share of the Texas Water Plan. Included in the plan was a conduit to bring Mississippi River water to West Texas farming areas.

If elected speaker, Clayton said, he would push no legislative program.

"The only type of program I am interested in is efficient operation of the House, smooth operation of the House and economical operation of the House. Personally, I don't think it is the speaker's prerogative to carry a program," he said.

Speaker Price Daniel Jr. is not seeking re-election.

Other candidates in the speaker race include Reps. Fred Head, D-Troup; Jim Nugent, D-Kerrville; Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur; and Dave Finney, D-Fort Worth.

Clayton was part of the speaker's "team" under former Speakers Ben Barnes and Gus Mutscher.

"I've just been lucky that I've been on the winning side more often than the losing side," Clayton said.

During the legislative session that ended May 28, Clayton sponsored a bill jacking up interest rates on $300-$1,000 loans from the present 8 per cent to a new level of 9 per cent.

The measure passed the House but died in the Senate.

Clayton said he saw no conflict between his sponsorship of the bill and the fact that he is a bank director—"It wouldn't have affected the kind of country bank I am with," he said.

He said in response to a question, Clayton said at one time he was involved with a group including railroad lobbyist Walter Caven in a land deal near here. Caven was a latecomer, he said.

Clayton said his only interest in the 3,150-acre ranch now is a "side contract" with Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, for a small share of Traeger's 10 per cent interest.

Radio & TV News

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Lewis smiled with exaggerated unease when asked if he'd like to do another regular television variety show. "No," he said slowly. "I really wouldn't like to do that."

After a moment's reflection, he partly overruled himself: "If I could go back my way, sure I would. But you can't go back your way."

"They (network executives) would never let me go my way. They say they will, but then they stop you."

"What would be the Lewis way?"

"Visual," the 46-year-old comedian said. "The medium to be used for what it is." He said there would have to be a minimum of spoken material. "You can get that on a recording," he said. "I call it visual hi-fi. You watch a variety show, and it's visual hi-fi."

Lewis was in town helping plan the national telethon he'll host next September to raise funds for muscular dystrophy research. He immediately proved that you shouldn't associate the man with his movie characters.

Unlike the rubber-faced clowns and well-meaning dimwits he portrays on film, Lewis in the flesh comes across as an articulate, well-read man with a surprising knowledge of both music and electronics.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Wilma blames a symptom instead of the basic cause of divorces. For when a wife serves adequate "cheese cake," her mate doesn't want to run away to outside sirens. Nor squander his pay checks at taverns or gambling halls. A man prefers to cuddle a seductive wife instead of a beer stein!

CASE X-527: Wilma G., aged 30, is an irate woman quoted Monday.

Dr. Crane says sex is the chief cause of divorce," she angrily protested. "That's NOT true at all! 'For money is the main stumbling block to happy marriage!'"

WHERE DIVORCE STARTS

Ask any experienced Divorce Court Judge or Marriage Counselor and you'll find them almost unanimous in saying: "Divorce usually starts in the bedroom."

Many euphemistic alibis may be cited, such as "mental cruelty" or "incompatibility" or even "unpaid bills."

But those are generally mere symptoms of a more basic maladjustment in the boudoir. Just visit a Divorce Court and hear the usual charges, such as:

- (1) He spends his money on other women.
 - (2) He squanders his pay checks at the tavern and thus fails to pay our bills.
 - (3) He runs away at night to gamble at poker.
 - (4) He is caustic and inflicts mental cruelty upon me.
- Then listen to the arguments of the men!
- Do they accuse their wives of being poor cooks?
- Or of failing to be fairly good mothers to their kiddies?
- And do they charge their wives with refusal to entertain guests or business clients?

Omission Of Flags Urged At Olympics

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The president of the International Olympic Committee, Lord Killanin, said he was against "chauvinism" in the games and suggested that flags and national anthems be eliminated from the competition.

Killanin, who is on an unofficial visit to Mexico, said that "of course there will be anthems and flags" in the 1976 Montreal Olympics, but said the IOC will discuss their use in future games.

The Olympic competition is between individuals, not nations," Killanin said.

Speaking in a news conference, Killanin said an IOC commission was studying the possibility of reducing the number of olympic sports or the number of participants in the games to solve the problem of the huge size of the Olympics.

No; it is usually not the kitchen or the dining room, nor the nursery or the parlor where wives fail.

Instead, it is the bedroom! When such feuding couples see us Marriage Counselors, they may get down to the nitty-gritty and speak frankly.

For, even in the courtroom, many men hesitate to verbalize the fact that their wife was evasive regarding marital relations or stodgy fat and an unperfumed boudoir partner.

Now analyze those 4 accusations by the wives.

Every one of them is merely a symptom of maladjustment in the bedroom.

For an alluring wife is not going to find her mate running around with outside sirens and squandering his pay checks thereon.

Nor does he prefer to cuddle a beer stein instead of his wife, if she remains seductive sexually.

Gambling, as well as unduly caustic criticisms are used as a ruse to cover up a husband's growing platonic behavior with his wife.

And such wives have generally produced the boudoir impotence of their husbands by the wife's chronically negative or evasive action in the boudoir.

Outside, paramours may make the usual platonic husband function, so it really isn't organic impotence but a "Maggie & Jiggs" domestic problem.

Jiggs (of the comic strip) constantly tries to run away from Maggie to join his cronies at the tavern or at corned beef parties. Why?

Because Maggie, and many other wives, rate a "D" grade in the boudoir, even though they may deserve an "A" in the kitchen, dining room, nursery and parlor!

Wives, get hep! Men will gladly work hard and hand over their pay checks if you serve them proper cheese cake in the boudoir!

Wives, send for my booklet "How to Prevent Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkin Ridge, Wehlers, Indiana 47398. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you order for one of his booklets.)

New Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Tuesday proposed creation of a new international committee to administer conventions against pollution of the oceans.

The proposal was made by Russell E. Train, chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality, in a speech prepared for delivery in London to the Council of the International Maritime Consultative Organization (IMCO).

The speech was released here and Train briefed newsmen on it before leaving for London.

Train proposed that IMCO create a new committee called the "Marine Environment Protection Committee," open to all nations participating in IMCO itself.

He said the new committee would administer the 1954 Convention for the Prevention of Pollution of the Sea by Oil; the 1972 Convention on Ocean Dumping; and a new Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships, to be developed at a conference next October.

The proposed new convention is expected to broaden international control over discharges from vessels at sea to include all types of harmful substances as well as oil. "The marine environment is increasingly threatened with grave damage from seaborne commerce in polluting substances," Train warned.

Tanker transport of oil has tripled since 1960, he pointed out.

Car Insurance Is A Price Jungle

By CARLTON SMITH

It's hard to believe that you could be saving as much as $735 a year on your car insurance, just by spending some time on comparison shopping. But that's the way it turned out in a recent investigation of how much premiums vary in one state.

Quotations were obtained from 20 companies by the Illinois Department of Insurance. The figures they came up with, the department reports, "are actual premium quotations based on the actual driving characteristics of a 37-year-old married man who used his car for pleasure and had two chargeable accidents."

When they gave their hypothetical driver an address in a metropolitan area, the companies surveyed quoted premiums on identical policies ranging from $257 to $992—a difference of $735.

When the same hypothetical driver was located in a nonmetropolitan area, the premiums quoted ranged from $143 to $429—exactly three times as much for the highest priced policy.

The problem most car owners have in making a similar survey of premium costs for themselves is fighting their way through the jungle of insurance jargon.

What do you make of it when one company tells you its premium is based on "20/40/5," and another tells you that a certain coverage is "ACV?"

"Auto insurance buyers can save money and get more effective insurance coverage by understanding what auto insurance is and the way it works," says James Baylor, the state's Director of Insurance, in a foreword to the shopper's guide now being distributed by the department.

Its aim is to make the car owner a sort of instant expert on auto insurance—at least to the extent that he understands what the various kinds of coverage are, how rates are set and why they vary, and how to break down quotations on a worksheet to make point-by-point and over-all cost comparisons.

Unlike the shopper's guide being distributed by insurance departments in other states—most notably Pennsylvania—the Illinois guide does not list companies by name and show actual premium figures. "Our experience has been that all the variations confuse rather than help," says the Illinois department.

"Its approach is to try to make each reader an informed shopper, and one section of the guide 'walks him through' a selection of companies of various types, and the procedure to follow in getting quotations.

Lowest cost, by itself, may not represent the car owner's best buy, the guide warns. "You might be better off paying a few more premium dollars for better service," it advises—adequate claims service in your own community, being ready with easily understandable advice on insurance problems, efficient billing—and correspondent services.

On the other hand, the astonishing variations in premium costs revealed by the 20-company survey can't be explained away by better companies, better coverage or better service.

"What is the explanation? Some companies spend more on agents' commissions, employee salaries, and other operating costs," says the Illinois department.

"Some write insurance only in a limited geographical area with high or low accident rates, so their premium levels are correspondingly high or low."

In short, it's not true here that "you get what you pay for." You get what you shop for.

No Chance Devaluation

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The president of the National Bankers Association, Agustin Legorreta, said Tuesday there was no chance of a devaluation of the Mexican peso against the American dollar.

There has been a growing rumor since last week about a possible devaluation of the peso, which prompted speculation that forced banks to partially suspend dollar purchases.

"There is definitely no possibility of a peso devaluation," because technically the conditions do not warrant such a measure," said Legorreta, the principal shareholder in one of Mexico's largest banks.

The devaluation rumor was fueled by the sudden resignation last week of Hugo B. Margain, then finance minister.

Banks at the local international airport ran out of dollars over the weekend, Legorreta said that this was purely accidental, due to an abnormally large volume of tourists.

"The country has ample reserves of dollars, and the shortage at the airport was due to a mechanical problem," he said.

Dear Abby

This dating game version more like wrestling match

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 20 and I'm dating this guy who is 28. I like him as a date, but I don't like the battles I have with him to get him to keep his hands to himself.

Ten minutes after I'm in his car he's all over me. He is really just like a high school sophomore—only stronger. The day after I've been out with him I ache all over from fighting him off. I'm not kidding. I've even left some scratches on his hands and face in addition to ripping his shirt and breaking his wristwatch.

I am not against a little affection, but this guy acts like a sex maniac. I am no big turnon, I'm a plain-looking girl and I don't invite his advances, so I can't understand it.

How can I cool him down without losing him completely?

ARIES

DEAR ARIES: If you continue to date this guy you must be hard up. Quit while you're ahead and tell the octopus to get lost.

DEAR ABBY: Our fine, handsome grandson is graduating from college soon, after which he is marrying a nice girl he met at college. [I'll call her Mary.] Mary is one of 12 children so there wasn't much money for extras in her family. To get to the point, Mary is desperately in need of dental work. It would improve her appearance 100 percent.

I can well afford to pay for any dental work Mary needs done, but I don't know how to make the offer to our grandson without offending him. It is a wonder to us how this girl could have let her teeth get into such bad shape. And a greater wonder that our grandson wouldn't have noticed it. [Or perhaps he has, but didn't know what to do about it.]

How can we let our grandson know we will foot the bill if Mary will see a dentist?

GRANDPA

DEAR GRANDPA: Tell him [privately] what you've told me. [P. S. And since when is dental care an "extra"? It's vital to general good health.]

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl with a big problem. My favorite cousin is getting married in two months and my parents won't let me go to the wedding unless I take off 10 pounds! That is an awful lot to lose in two months, but my mother said she talked to the doctor and he said I could do it if I tried. Abby, I would have to live on practically nothing to lose all that weight in two months. I'm afraid I would get so weak I couldn't do as well in school, etc.

I have enough money in the bank to fly to the wedding which is across the country, but my parents say I can't go at all unless I lose 10 pounds, and if I do, they will buy my ticket.

Why are people so prejudiced against overweight people? It's as if we weren't even human.

Are my parents being unfair to me, Abby? I just have to go to that wedding. I pray a lot and it makes me feel better but it doesn't get me there. Please help me.

HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Five pounds a month is not too much to lose, and if the doctor says you can do it, you should try. Quit looking for excuses why you CAN'T, and start on a diet right now and you'll make it. Good luck.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FEELING FOOLISH IN MINNEAPOLIS": No need to. More than 1,000 women wrote to ask where they could purchase false fannies.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90089. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90089.

Ace David Clyde Thinks He'll Play

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston schoolboy pitching whiz David Clyde, the No. 1 pick in the major leagues' baseball free agent draft, concedes he can throw harder than some current major leaguers.

"I don't want to sound conceited," said Clyde, who most certainly is not, "but I think I can win. A pitcher has to have more confidence than some players and I think I can do it." Clyde, chosen by the Texas Rangers of the American League to open the draft Tuesday, also has been watching some of the major league pitchers who perform against the Houston Astros in the Astrodome.

"I believe I can throw the ball harder than some major league pitchers," said Clyde, who has struck out 830 batters in 468 innings during his career and tossed nine no-hitters.

Nastase Triumphs

PARIS (AP) — Ilie Nastase, newly crowned French Open champion, thinks some of his main rivals played too much tennis during the winter.

"Most of them came straight from the indoor circuit," the 26-year-old Romanian star said. "I played seven or eight tournaments on clay first, and I think it was the right preparation."

Nastase demolished Nikki Pilić of Yugoslavia 6-3, 6-3, 6-0 in the final Tuesday and won the world's most coveted clay court title for the first time—without losing a set in the entire tournament.

Nastase was one of the few top stars who did not play on the big money indoor circuit run by World Championship Tennis during the first four months of the year. Instead, he played in some tournaments on the United States Lawn Tennis Association indoor circuit, and didn't do very well.

"I throw out the Derby and the Preakeness," said Martin. "Sham had trouble both times. Only if Secretariat beats him in the 1½-mile Belmont will I say yes. Secretariat is the best and maybe great."

California At Irvine Wins College Division

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The University of California-Irvine Anteaters are the NCAA college division baseball World Series champs.

"It's like I have been saying," said winning Coach Gary Adams, "we are a great come-from-behind ball club. But if we have the lead, the other team always seems to get some runs to make it a close game."

Even though it may be difficult to tease a worn-out baseball team with a hint of victory when a win only means that they would have to play a fourth nine-inning game in one day, California-Irvine did it Tuesday.

Ithaca College, playing its third game of the day, was clearly outplayed in the series title game. They lost 9-6. But the outcome was not as simple as that.

Sparked by shortstop Rich Molina, who drove in two runs and scored three times with four singles and a walk, the Anteaters built an 8-3 lead after five innings.

"It was just a matter of us doing the job right away," Molina said.

"We beat them earlier today and that gave us the confidence that we could do it again," he said.

He was referring to a 5-0 victory highlighted by the fourth and eight-strikeout pitching of Jerry Maras in semifinal action.

Due to rain which washed out the entire slate of games set for Saturday and for Monday, games were bunched up Tuesday and an Ithaca loss in the first contest meant that to win the double-elimination tournament, Ithaca would have had to play four games and win three of them in one day.

After the loss, Ithaca defeated Eastern Illinois, the tournament dark horse, 3-2 and eliminated them from the tournament.

PARIS (AP) — Ilie Nastase, newly crowned French Open champion, thinks some of his main rivals played too much tennis during the winter.

"Most of them came straight from the indoor circuit," the 26-year-old Romanian star said. "I played seven or eight tournaments on clay first, and I think it was the right preparation."

Nastase demolished Nikki Pilić of Yugoslavia 6-3, 6-3, 6-0 in the final Tuesday and won the world's most coveted clay court title for the first time—without losing a set in the entire tournament.

Nastase was one of the few top stars who did not play on the big money indoor circuit run by World Championship Tennis during the first four months of the year. Instead, he played in some tournaments on the United States Lawn Tennis Association indoor circuit, and didn't do very well.

The question in the American League suddenly is not whether Wilbur Wood will win 30 games or even 40 but rather when will he win No. 14?

Wilbur Wonderful's knuckleball failed him again Tuesday night as the Baltimore Orioles rallied for four runs in the eighth inning to defeat the Chicago White Sox 7-4 and hand Wood his second loss in a row since he notched both his 12th and 13th victories on May 28.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Detroit Tigers downed the California Angels 5-2, the New York Yankees outslugged the Texas Rangers 8-6, the Boston Red Sox trounced the Kansas City Royals 9-2 and the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Oakland A's 5-4. Minnesota and Cleveland were rained out with the Twins leading 4-0 in the third inning, washing out home runs by Harmon Killebrew and Rod Carew.

National League scores: San Francisco 3, Pittsburgh 2; Los Angeles 10, Chicago 1; Cincinnati 6, New York 5 in 10 innings; Montreal 7, Atlanta 6 in 11; Philadelphia 4, Houston 0; St. Louis 5, San Diego 3.

Wood's pitching actually was more impressive than the seven runs he surrendered. He yielded a ground single to Bobby Grich in the first inning and then retired the Orioles in order until Brooks Robinson and Paul Blair hit ground singles with two out in the fifth.

Boog Powell followed with a towering fly right at the right field foul pole for his second home run of the season and first since April 27, wiping out a 2-0 Chicago lead on Dick Allen's 13th homer.

Eddie Brinkman drove in two runs with a homer and double and reliever John Hiller posted his 11th save of the season in the Tigers' victory over the Angels.

Hiller bailed winner Jim Perry out of a bases-loaded, two-out situation in the sixth when he fanned pinch hitter Winston Llenas on three pitches. He then stopped the Angels on an hit the rest of the way as the Tigers maintained their 1½-game lead over New York in the AL East.

In British Amateur American Advances With Aid Of A Lucky Bounce

PORHCRAWL, Wales (AP) — "That's golf," said John Beutler, the luckiest American in Wales.

Beutler, a 19-year-old student who invaded the British Amateur Golf Championship on the strength of a bank loan, moved into today's third round by virtue of a fortunate bounce.

The American, whose style—knees bent and ramrod-straight back—looks deceptively wooden, was 3-up after 12 holes over Royal Porthcawl's 6,605-yard layout alongside the Bristol Channel. He appeared an easy winner.

Then the youngster from Washington State University three-putted at the par 3, 152-yard 14th—and Milne was back in contention.

Beutler snatched a half out of a bunker at the next, but Milne clawed back with 45 at the 434-yard, par 4 16th and the 508-yard, par 5 17th.

On the final hole—a 413-yard, par 5—both golfers hit excellent tee shots. Then Beutler flubbed his second with his five iron.

But the ball bumped and bumbled down the slope over mounds and hollows, skirted a bunker and stopped a mere two feet from the hole. While the disbelief Milne looked on, Beutler sank the easy putt.

"I guess I got lucky at the right time," he said afterward. Beutler worked as a $5 an hour laborer on construction of the Snake River Dam to buy his air ticket to Wales. The accountant major bolstered his savings with a loan from his bank.

Today, after moving out of his hotel into a rooming house in an attempt to conserve his funds, he meets 17-year-old Steve Martin, another Scot. Martin beat Frank Draper of Seattle, Wash., to reach the third round.

Twenty Americans were left as the tournament began the third round today.

Injured Mets Draft Ambidextrous Player

NEW YORK (AP) — The injury-troubled New York Mets have come up with a solution for their health problems. They have drafted an ambidextrous outfielder.

He's Lee Mazzilli of Brooklyn, and he was the 14th player chosen Tuesday in baseball's summer free agent draft.

Joe McDonald, director of minor league operations for the Mets, announced the selection.

reporting that Mazzilli, "Bats right-left. Throws right-left." If he hurts one hand, a regular Met hazard these days, he can use the other.

Mazzilli, like most of the other high school hot shots drafted Tuesday, will have to decide between professional baseball and college. He has a four-year scholarship offer from Arizona State, which has produced a large share of major leaguers.

The No. 1 choice in the draft went to the Texas Rangers, and they took Houston schoolboy pitcher David Clyde, who, unlike Mazzilli, throws with only one hand—his left.

Clyde, with nine career no-hitters to his credit, has averaged two strikeouts per inning for Westchester High School. He has won 17 games without a loss this season and owns a career earned run average of 0.66.

For the first time, the draft was completed in one day. A total of 785 players were selected, including 48 in the secondary phase for players previously drafted but not signed.

San Diego's first round selection, Dave Winfield of the University of Minnesota, was listed as a pitcher, outfielder and first baseman, making him the most versatile player chosen, at least in terms of positions played.

Golf Tips from the Old Masters

By The Editors of Golf Digest

LEFT FOOT MAJOR DIFFERENCE BETWEEN YOU AND THE PROS

Weekend golfers might be surprised at the notion that their left foot is important in the golf swing. The fact is, the way the left foot moves is a major difference between the pros and everyone else. No one exemplifies this better than Tommy Bolt, the classic swinger whose superb tempo has so much to do with his shotmaking.

On the downswing, Bolt does not set his left foot flat on the ground—he rolls on the ball of it. This rolling allows his lower body to move freely through the shot with no stiffening.

"It can be a terrible strain on the foot and ankle," Bolt says, "but it's essential to a free, flowing motion. I always tape my left ankle under my sock to protect it."

Arthur Ashe: A loser but a rich one

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — (NEA) — Five years ago, Arthur Ashe won the first U.S. Open tennis tournament at Forest Hills and it was going to take the sport out of the drawing rooms of Newport once and for all and into the latter part of the 20th century.

He was black and bright and hit the ball with shattering velocity that hadn't been seen since Pancho Gonzalez was a young man.

Well, as expected, tennis has come along splendidly. But Arthur Ashe as a tennis player is still back there in '68.

Oh, he's a lot richer. He wasn't a pro at Forest Hills and so couldn't collect the prize money, but three years ago Arthur decided he had to make a living, too, and since then he estimates he has earned more than half a million dollars from playing tennis. Not bad for a guy creeping up on his 30th birthday.

But Arthur really hasn't won anything else, including prestige and acclaim. Ashe, you should pardon the expression, lacks color. He doesn't excite anybody, including himself.

The fact is, for all his obvious assets—ethnic minority appeal, smashing big game, clean-cut appearance—Arthur is dull. He seldom shows emotion on the court. He has no killer instinct which warms a crowd. He's Mr. Poker Face.

"He hasn't got it here," said one of the Hall-of-Fame tennis old-timers who flocked to Caesar's Palace for the recent Allen King Invitation Tournament (richest in the world). The guy was pointing to his heart. Pancho Gonzalez also criticized Ashe's forehead.

Arthur lost in the finals on national television to a kid nobody ever heard of, Brian Gottfried. It seems Arthur is always losing in the finals of a tennis tournament. It has happened this year in Washington and Charlotte, Denver and Dallas—and now in Las Vegas.

"I'm getting Stolle's tag," admitted Ashe.

Fred Stolle is the Australian veteran, just now retiring from competition, who for years was the also-ran in important tournaments, until he finally broke through one year at Forest Hills.

There are guys who appear destined to be the Avis of loss to Ilie Nastase at Forest Hills in the U.S. Open last year, with the rabid Romanian waving the winning check across his forehead, and his defeat by Stan Smith for the WCT title, at Dallas last month, enscorning Stan firmly as the top player in the world.

It's making Arthur very introspective.

"I don't like losing these titles," said Arthur reflectively after counting up his last five losses. "I do have a fair amount of confidence in myself. I'm not doing too badly, am I? Am I happy? Relatively, yes. Why not? After 17 weeks in a row, I'm ecstatic."

This was a reference to the rigorous grind of the tennis tour and Arthur's way of being acidulous. It was suggested by someone he might emulate Stan Smith and get into something like yoga—"it might keep you cool inside."

"I don't think I need any more of that," said Arthur with a quick smile. His expression generally is as flat as a flapjack.

So faced with the enigma that at a time tennis is burgeoning as a major sports attraction, Arthur Ashe isn't. "Money doesn't bring happiness," he said, tidily pulling a wrinkle out of his powder blue shorts, "—but it's a helluva lot better than being poor."

More Than Meets Eye In Gas Crisis

Suppose they cried "Wolf" and nobody came? It happened in the fable and it could happen for real if environmentalists and others whose business it is to alert us to the future don't learn to temper their alarms with common sense.

For instance, says Stewart L. Udall, the current shortage of gasoline is a national nightmare.

Rationing has already begun, says the former secretary of the Interior, who now runs his own environmental consulting firm in Bethesda, Md. The whole curate segment of the gasoline industry is being forced out of business. It may become a thing of the past before this year is out.

While there have been and are gasoline and other fuel pinches in parts of the country and may be worse ones to come, the latter statement will be news to thousands of independent stations who have been pumping the same volume throughout the 'crisis' and at the same prices, despite irresponsible predictions by some people that gasoline will soon cost a dollar a gallon.

August is the month when the real gasoline crunch will be felt, says Udall, who then proceeds to give the very kind of advice that could precipitate that crunch and other kinds as well.

A Ghost On The Go?

From Port Elizabeth, South Africa, comes a report that a ghost is haunting the New Law Courts Building in that city.

According to the newspaper Die Oostersig, the apparition is that of a uniformed policeman and one of the places it has been sighted in is a public restroom.

Well, as they say in ectoplasm biz, when you gotta ghost, you gotta ghost.

Meanwhile, U.S. Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, has proposed legislation which would put a graduated federal excise tax on "gas guzzling" automobiles that provide less than 20 miles to the gallon.

A study of the urban parking situation by the National League of Cities found that parking meters are profitable. Average annual revenue from a meter is $63, far above collection and maintenance costs of $14.

For it is truth which the experience of ages has attested, that the people are always most in danger when the means of improving their rights are in possession of those of whom they entertain the least suspicion.

Eagleton: Democrat Who Won

By PAUL HARVEY
Sen. Tom Eagleton, since he was rescued from the path of the landslide in 1972, has not been able to do anything wrong.

Tom Eagleton is the Democrat who won. Have you been paying attention to the public utterances and the personal tending-to-business of Missouri's Sen. Eagleton? The man Sen. George McGovern dumped because his emotional stability was in question has demonstrated every symptom of superb mental health: poise under stress, serene forgiveness and a gentle, natural sense of humor.

An insecure person in his position might be expected to divert criticism to others, on the contrary, Eagleton shows no such inclination.

At Akron University, asked about high food prices, he said, "It's been a dreadful crop season for our farmers; prices will moderate when the weather gets better."

Asked about Watergate, he replied, "All political parties spy on one another; the Republicans got caught at it."

Asked about President Nixon's resumption of bombing in Indochina, Eagleton called it "disappointing."

And asked about his own personal political prospects, he laughingly replies that whenever any party official telephones from now on he, Eagleton, will begin the conversation with "First, have you heard about my mental health?"

The fact is that his mental health is now such a lifeless issue that nobody in either party shows any inclination to run against him for senator in 1974.

The man who was propelled from obscurity to fame by a kick in the britches less than one year ago now received 10 times more requests for personal appearances than he can fill.

More significant than today's applause is the fact that Tom Eagleton was hospitalized three times in the 1960s for "nervous exhaustion and fatigue" — what we used to call a "nervous breakdown" — and has overcome.

The senator has to know that the one-in-ten Americans now in mental hospitals are the beneficiaries of his triumph.

It takes purposeful remembering to realize that just 15 years ago we did not even speak on radio such words as "retarded" or "breast surgery" or "even cancer."

Courts of law associated "insanity" with "criminals" and any mental sickness was a family shame.

During 15 days in July of 1972 the attic windows were flung open.

And in the months since, the important public attitude toward humankind's most common malady has been so altered that the new issue of the AMA's Archives of General Psychiatry reports: "Most former mental hospital patients now find their jobs waiting, their family relationships improved—the old stigma is no more."

RAY CROMLEY Soviet Modernizes Offensive Tactics Put at a Premium

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The major Soviet threat to American security in the next decade is not the growing number of ballistic missiles, nuclear submarines and the mammoth size of the Kremlin's ground armies.

Threatening as these may be, a greater danger lies in recent extensive but scarcely noticed shifts in the Soviet high command.

Veteran ranking Soviet marshals and generals lacking in education and technology have been replaced by men skilled in advanced scientific and engineering fields.

To an appreciable degree, the newcomers emphasize offensive warfare. The older marshals and generals were overwhelmingly committed to Russia's traditional defensive doctrine.

Artillery and armored officers — with their strong preference for the massive production of large, simple weapons — no longer control the high command. The new men from other services presumably have a predilection for selective procurement of more sophisticated weapons.

Provocative studies in this area of Soviet staff and field changes have recently been completed by Alexander O. Ghebbardt and William

Your Health

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Many Adult Deaths Aren't Explained

Dear Dr. Lamb — A few days ago in our local newspaper you had an article on unexplained deaths in infants. Can you tell me anything about unexplained deaths in adults?

About six months ago our daughter age 29, married, with two small children, 1½ and 3½ died with no explanation. About three weeks before her death she had a convulsion and was rushed to the hospital where many tests were given. She was unconscious nearly seven hours. They ran the brain wave tests — heart tests and after four days she was dismissed with no explanation.

Then about three weeks later she just fell over while having breakfast with her two children. She was in excellent health and except for the ordinary childhood diseases she was never sick. She had no anxieties nor complained of any physical illness. About three weeks before her convulsion she had had a severe sore throat and received penicillin and was apparently cured.

An autopsy was performed but nothing was found wrong with any of her organs. The death certificate was listed as cardiac arrhythmia (clinical).

The doctors who attended her suggested she must have had rheumatic fever as a child. I checked with the doctor she had when she was a child and he said, no way could she have had rheumatic fever. We would like to know for our own peace of mind as well as wondering if there might be something the children could inherit. We would appreciate any comment you could make.

Dear Reader — There are probably a lot of adult deaths that are not explained. An examination may show liver disease, heart disease, or a variety of abnormal conditions which can develop in the course of life but their presence alone does not mean that they are the cause of death. These findings may be coincidental.

There is no way to be certain what caused your daughter's death from the information at hand. Certainly an irregularity of the heart which interferes with the heart's inability to pump blood to the brain can result in a convulsion. If the pumping action of the heart isn't restored, brain damage and death can ensue.

I assume from your remarks that adequate studies were done to prove that there was no hemorrhage in the brain, which can sometimes occur suddenly in young people, and that there were no other important anatomical findings, which is the reason for your doctor stating that the death was caused by a heart irregularity. The cause even for serious irregularities of the heart is not always apparent. It's possible that there was a birth defect in the complex electrical mechanism of the heart. This, however, doesn't mean that it would be passed on to the children.

Inside Washington

Congress Not in Mood to Hear Brezhnev

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — There is one thing Soviet Communist boss Leonid Brezhnev is NOT likely to do during his Washington visit later this month: He will NOT address a joint session of Congress.

The White House is getting a strongly negative reaction on that from congressional leaders.

They are being soured out on it and are decidedly unfavorable.

It is being pointedly recalled that a similar proposal was firmly rejected in 1959.

The Eisenhower Administration wanted an invitation extended to the late Premier Khrushchev, but the bipartisan leaders of Congress balked. They made it emphatically clear they wanted no part of it.

As a substitute, it was arranged for Khrushchev to address a luncheon at the National Press Club.

In keeping with the Club's traditional practice, the Kremlin ruler agreed to answer questions. In a brisk half hour give-and-take, he gave as good as he got—at times verging on the pugnacious.

The following year, Khrushchev attended the opening of the 15th session of the UN General Assembly in September—after the shooting down of the U-2 "spy" plane. President Eisenhower also was present, but the two leaders did not meet. While Eisenhower's address was conciliatory, he did not mention Khrushchev.

Similarly, the Russian did not refer to the President, but he did furiously denounce the U.S., as well as then-Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld, and advocated the removal of the United Nations to Geneva, Vienna or Moscow.

During this UN visit, Khrushchev staged his famous tantrum of pounding on a desk with one of his shoes.

As in the case of Khrushchev, the White House is being advised that Brezhnev be invited to address the National Press Club instead of a joint session of Congress. There will be no problem in arranging the former, as the Club has long been a forum for world leaders.

Whether Brezhnev would accept this substitute is still to be determined.

Also still undecided is whether he will visit the UN and speak there.

Threatening Shadow Looming ominously over Brezhnev's forthcoming Washington visit is Sen. Henry Jackson's proposal to bar most-favored nation treatment to countries that "deny their citizens the right or opportunity to emigrate by imposing the payment of more than nominal taxes, fees or other charges."

Target of Jackson's measure (in the form of an amendment to the administration's trade bill) is the U.S.S.R.—which drastically restricts emigration by exacting excessive exit payments.

Because of the powerful bipartisan congressional support behind Jackson's bill, it is a menacing stumbling block to the President's plan to grant Russia most-favored nation status and other trade concessions. Jackson's measure is co-sponsored by 76 senators and 278 House members—a decisive majority of both chambers.

Unless the administration can somehow surmount this obstacle, Jackson's amendment is certain to be written into the trade bill.

In an effort to avert that, the President has had a series of private meetings with congressional leaders and influential Jews—in which he has stressed the Kremlin's recent suspension of confiscatory taxes on Jews desiring to go to Israel.

As a result of this new policy, the President told a group of congressional leaders, he had "assurances from Soviet authorities" that 95.5 per cent of the Jews in Russia are now free to leave. He gave no hint as to the identity of the "authorities."

Sen. Jackson promptly challenged this claim.

Rising, the powerful Washington state Democrat said bluntly, "Mr. President, if you believe that, you have been hoodwinked."

Obviously startled, the President made no reply.

Neither did Dr. Kissinger, also at the meeting.

At a subsequent session with Jewish leaders, the President made a significant change regarding this statement. While he repeated it, he immediately added, "I know that isn't so; it's not true."

The administration is also making a strenuous effort to line up labor backing for the trade bill—with mixed results.

AFL-CIO president George Meany, hard-nosed foe of Communist Russia, is flatly against granting trade concessions. Other union chiefs are more conciliatory, and they are being assiduously wooed.

Administration strategists are discussing inviting some of them to meet with Brezhnev during his Washington stay. Whether anything comes of that remains to be seen.

Also being deliberated is a plan for him to meet Jewish leaders.

Significantly, author of this intriguing idea is a prominent American Jew.

Not known is whether Brezhnev would be willing to do that.

Addendum: During Brezhnev's recent visit to West Germany, he offered to supply the latter with enriched uranium for nuclear power stations. The Soviet has already agreed to do that for the French—and similar proposals are being made to Sweden and Switzerland.

The move is a direct effort to break U.S. monopoly over nuclear fuel supplies—a multi-billion dollar market.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, which now supplies virtually all non-Communist countries with nuclear fuel, will have to decide what to do about meeting this foreboding competition and retaining this immensely valuable market.

You can't escape the responsibility of tomorrow by evading it today—Abraham Lincoln.
