offer for financial aid

By GEORGE JAHN Associated Press Writer

BERLIN (AP) - East Germany's leaders today considered West Germany's offer of massive financial aid. but Mikhail S. Gorbachev cautioned that "exporting capitalism" could hurt the growing climate of cooperation in Europe.

Near the historic Brandenburg Gate, revelers staged an all-night vigil expecting a new hole today in the Berlin Wall that would reopen the city's most famous thoroughfare.

East Germany's new premier, Hans Modrow, agreed Tuesday to meet nominal opposition figures on prospects for forming a coalition government.

The country's Communist leaders also pondered West Germany's offer Tuesday of a massive financial aid program in the style of the postwar Marshall Plan – which would require them to fundamentally reform the to favor gradual economic change and oppose a swift centrally planned economy.

Gorbachev, believed to have encouraged the ouster of hard-line East German leader Erich Honecker and the dizzying reforms that led to the wall's opening, warned Westerners not to gloat over the demise of Communism in the East bloc.

'When accusations of 'exporting revolutions' are replaced with calls for 'exporting capitalism,' we have at hand a dangerous manifestation of old thinking," Tass paraphrased Gorbachev as saying Tuesday in Moscow.

Even leaders of New Forum, the East German opposition group leading massive protest marches for democratic change, have expressed concern that Western capitalists might exploit an unstable East Germany leading force in society.

without helping its people.

West Germany's economics minister, Helmut Haussmann, offered Thursday to rebuild East Germany's economy through broad-based investments and joint ventures and to overhaul it moribund communications and transport systems.

While not offering details, Haussmann likened his plan to the brainchild of U.S. Secretary of State George C. Marshall that revitalized postwar Western Europe with an infusion of $12 billion.

But he said such aid would occur only if East Germany carried out a "thorough change" of its centrally planned economy.

There was no immediate East German reaction, but authorities there have rejected completely discarding

He and other superintendents agreed that this was the first meeting of its kind in the Panhandle, in which schools with almost no high technology and other that have made full commitments, can join together to discuss the future of education.

'Technology won't work if we are stupid about its use," Griffith said. "We must free ourselves from bureaucratic constraints." During a noon question-andanswer session conducted by Griffith and John Curry, school board president, both men were asked by a teacher from another district how she and others could convince their administration computers are an educational necessity in preparation for the coming century. "Have them call me," Curry responded. "There are a lot of us who aren't computer oriented. But when you see what they do for the students and how they help learning, that can make all the difference."

Griffith said community support of technological advances in Pampa schools was evident by the lack of any organized protest of a recent tax increase. He told educators when the public is involved in bringing computers into schools, they are also supportive of bearing the associated cost.

Mike Zachary, an Apple computer specialist based in Dallas, said, "As schools reach into the future, other schools look to them and follow their lead," adding that Pampa fits into that leadership role.

He said school districts will often resist modernization in the

One of the newest things going on, which was revealed at the Pampa display, is a new IBM compatible 26-volume Compton Encyclopedia on a solitary 5-inch compact disk. Best part of Legislature: Sideshow with messages

By MICHAEL HOLMES Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - The Legislature's back in town. So are those who want to give lawmakers a message. Any message. Almost every message.

The special session called by Gov. Bill Clements, and limited to workers' compensation reform, seems unlikely to take up the issue that drew some 200 motorcycle helmet law protesters to the Capitol. Nor are lawmakers likely to consider repeal of the death penalty, as sought by a group Tuesday that chanted, "Hey hey, ho ho, Death

Walesa picks up AFL-CIO rights award

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) -Congress is readying a triumphant welcome for a 46-year-old electrician from the Lenin Shipyard in Gdansk, hailing Solidarity leader Lech Walesa as the living symbol of Poland's rebirth of freedom.

Walesa's scheduled address to a joint meeting of Congress today will make him only the second private citizen to speak to such an assembly - the first since the Marquis de Lafayette appeared in 1824.

The Polish trade union leader's speech coincides with the movement through Congress of bills to give Poland - and Hungary as well - an infusion of American cash to energize their move out of the grip of communism toward democratic institutions and free-market economies.

Walesa was sure to ask for more, painting his country's economic plight in stark terms and saying the world will follow America's lead once it moves decisively to help. "I think you are going to see an overwhelming response," said Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., who shepherded the Poland-Hungary aid package through the Senate.

"If you ask who are the two or symbolize freedom, one has to be Lech Walesa," he said.

Simon said Walesa would be given a copy of the official tally

He thanked the United States, its people, its labor movement and its government for being "our most steadfast allies" in Solidarity's long and bitter struggle with the commus nist regime it eventually replaced in free elections.

'Today, when we are threatened by recession and inflation rather than police repressions, we need this international solidarity no less than in the past," he said.

Walesa accepted the AFL-CIO's George Meany Human Rights Award, which he won in 1981, two years before receiving the Nobel Peace Prize

The eight-year delay in collecting the award was caused by Walesa's fear he would be barred from returning to his country and forced into exile.

Walesa, who received the Presidential Medal of Freedom from President Bush on Monday, told a news conference: "Our country needs your experience, your knowledge, your modern technologies.

'Sometimes we feel as if we are swimming chained hand and foot, trying to summon all our energy just to make it safely to shore," Walesa said. "And on the shore there is a cheering crowd of people who offer us their admiration instead of simply throwing a life belt.

Bush lets Soviets outmaneuver him

On Nov. 1, peaceful protesters held a candlelight vigil outside KGB headquarters in Moscow for a "Day of the Political Prisoner." Chanting "Shame on the KGB" and "The KGB is the enemy of the people," they commemorated millions of the KGB's victims. Into the peaceful crowd charged riot police, who clubbed scores of the demonstrators to the ground and dragged them into police buses.

On Tuesday, President Bush annonced that on Dec.2 and 3 he and Soviet boss Mikhail Gorbachev will meet aboard U.S. and Soviet warships in the Mediterrean Sea. Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze called it an "intermediate summit."

Mr. Bush might at least have waited until the blood in the Moscow streets had clotted before announcing he would meet with the head of the regime that perpetrated the violence. Indeed, Mr. Bush might have expressed solidarity with the peaceful protesters by announcing that, though he had expected to hold a summit with Mr. Gorbachev, the brutality of Mr. Gorbachev's regime forced him to cancel his plans.

Such boldness would have put hope in the hearts of the bloodied and imprisoned protesters and might have emboldened others contemplating peaceful protests. At a minimum, Mr. bush might have waited a few days, perhaps telling Mr. Gorbachev that he would meet with him only on the condition that Moscow protesters were released and that Mr. Gorbachev himself gave public guarantees that no further brutalities would occur.

The summit is on. What can Mr. Bush hope to accomplish? No doubt he will question Mr. Gorbachev about the sincerity of glasnost and perestroika. Well and good. Mr. Bush should push any restructuring that leads away from the command economy and warn Mr. Gorbachev that any further repressions will be met by protests from the West.

But paramount in the discussion should be the unrelenting Soviet military buildup. Despite Mr. Gorbachev's peace cooings and his promises to cap troop levels in Europe, Soviet military spending since he took power in 1985 has increased at an average of 3 percent per year in constant rubles, according to a 1988 congressional report. During the same time, U.S. defense spending has decreased at a similar level.

Most harrowing is the enlargement of a Soviet naval base in Syria on the eastern shore of the Mediterranean. Mr. Bush likely will be briefed about this whild aboard U.S. naval vessels. And the Soviet naval ship he will board could well be based in Syria.

The Syrian base represents a significant expansion of soviet military capabilities in the Mediterranean, in which, only a few years ago, the Soviet Navy sailed hardly any ships. The Soviets won a sharp psychological victory when they got half the summit held on a Soviet ship. Mr. Bush was outmaneuvered again.

Let states decide speed limit

To judge from the raw figures in last month's report on highway deaths, Congress made a terrible mistake in authorizing a speed limit of 65 miles per hour on rural interstate highways. But raw figures almost always prove misleading, and these particular raw figures leave a great deal to be desired.

You will recall that in 1987 the law was changed. At their discretion, states were allowed to go from 55 mph to 65 mph on most segments of their interstates. Forty states accepted the invitation. Today 28,838 of 32,280 rural miles are posted

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, the results have been dismaying. The 40 states counted 1,958 fatalities on their rural interstates in 1986. They tallied 2,647 in 1988. During this period travel volume increased

Says the NHTSA: "The results after accounting for travel changes suggest that about one-third of the increase in fatalities resulted from more travel resulted from intoxication. after the speed limit was raised, and that about twothirds resulted from higher travel speeds."

Ah, so? Is it true that over the two-year period. high speed alone killed hundreds of persons who might otherwise have lived? The persisent reader who plows through the whole of this report is likely to remain in doubt. State highway officials have come to no such conclusion. On the contrary, nearly every reporting state has emphasized the uncertainty of the data. All kinds of factors enter into the picture.

One of the most detailed state reports came from Maine. There police carefully analyzed fatal accidents on a stretch of rural Interstate 95 between Clinton and Hampden. The segment witnessed two fatal accidents in 1986, only one in 1987. But in 1988, after the speed limit had been raised to 65 mph, 13 such accidents occured.

Viewed superficially, Maine's experience would provide a terrible indictment of the higher speed limit. On closer examination, the picture changes entirely. The two accidents in 1986 resulted when drivers fell asleep. The single accident in 1987

And what about the appalling 13 fatalities of 1988? Six occurred when drivers fell asleep. Two involved drunken drivers. One 69-year-old man ran off the road in swerving to avoid a porcupine. An 18-year-old girl tried to make a U-turn and cut in front of a truck. A 21-year-old male lost control of his Volvo when he reached down to the floor to pick up a can. In the 13th case, a 19-year-old male died when his car swerved onto the median, reentered the road and rolled over several times. It was raining, but "speed contributed."

The truth is that we do not know the safety consequences of the higher speed limit. Common sense, not to mention the physics of objects in motion, suggests that there will be more serious accidents at 65 mph than at 55 mph. At higher speeds a driver has greater difficulty in emergency braking and in negotiating poorly banked curves. Reaction times remain constant, but a car moves a greater distance while the driver reacts. The 40 states uniformly report slightly higher average speeds since the 65-mph limit became effective.

All the same, as Maine's report demonstrates, many factors other than speed affect fatal accidents - the age and experience of the driver, the condition of the highway, the mechanical condition of the car. To isolate the effect of speed, said North Carolina's Department of Transportation, "is an almost impossible task." South Dakota reported an increase in fatal accidents since 1986, "but it does not appear that the 65 mph speed limit is either directly or indirectly responsible for the increase."

The raw figures on interstate fatalities ought not to obscure the favorable side. These limited access highways are remarkably safe. They carry enormous volumes of traffic, but account for only 5 died when he was taken ill at the wheel. One driver percent of total traffic fatalities. In 1988 the fatality rate on rural interstates was only 1.6 per hundred million vehicle miles traveled. Consideration also has to be given to the significant savings in time that the interstates have provided. It may be difficult to quantify the time saved, but the economic value is clear.

Last month's report, with its uncritical correlation of death and speed, may encourage repeal efforts in Congress. These ought to be put down. The 40 states have adopted a conscious trade-off in this field. It's their decision to make.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Navy commanders around the world are under orders to "leave no stone unturned" during an unprecedented operations cutback and 48-hour safety check designed to stem the string of deadly accidents plaguing the service.

Adm. Carlisle A.H. Trost, the chief of naval operations, on Tuesday ordered that a "safety stand-down" be conducted at all Navy facilities within three days.

"Prudent leadership demands that we take a look at everything that might be a possible cause for this recent spate of accidents, regardless of their severity," Trost told reporters at a Pentagon news conference.

The order requires ships, flying squadrons and shore facilities to interrupt normal operations and review basic safety and operating procedures.

However, it will allow such operations as U.S. ship movements in the Persian Gulf and drug interdiction activities to continue, the four-star admiral said.

"A stand-down ... does not say, bring ships in from tions around the world must continue," Trost said.

In his statement, Trost told fleet commanders and other senior Navy leaders that they should "leave no stone unturned to ensure the safety of operations is foremost in the minds of all hands.'

The order also requires all commanders to report their findings after the 48-hour interruption in opera-

The action came as the Navy has suffered through a series of mishaps since Oct. 29 in which 10 people have been killed or lost at sea and at least 53 people injured.

Between Jan. 1 and Nov. 1, the Navy counted 101 'operation and training related" fatalities in the service, including 47 in the explosion aboard the USS Iowa on Overall, the Navy has 599,000 full-time personnel and some 566 ships - and usually a third of those are at sea for training operations at any one time.

The announcement came as three more incidents were added to the Navy's accident list:

 A Navy F-14 jet fighter crashed in the Gulf of Mexico 60 miles northwest of Key West, Fla., with the crew escaping serious injury.

 A fire broke out aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Inchon in Norfolk, Va., injuring 31 people, as the vessel was undergoing shipyard maintenance.

In addition to the other restrictions, the legislation would require doctors to inform a woman of the likely age of the fetus before performing an abortion and explain the risks and alternatives. It also would regulate the medical use of tissue from aborted fetuses.

Passage of the bill comes after a series of victories elsewhere by the abortion-rights side.

Two weeks ago, voters in New Jersey and Virginia elected governors with pro-choice positions.

A special session of Florida Legislature last month ended with lawmakers rejecting every proposal to restrict abortions.

Abortion opponents in Illinois abandoned their attempts to get more restrictions passed until next vear after a bill stalled last month in the House Rules Committee.

The biggest anti-abortion victory since the Supreme Court's Missouri . ruling in a case known as "Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services" came last month in Michigan, where the Senate approved a bill requiring parental consent for a girl under the age of 18. That proposal is under House consideration.

Private citizens backed by civil law police jukeboxes

EDITOR'S NOTE - Music is mere vibration in the air, and difficult to get your hands on. But there are a lot of dollars in music, and a special kind of private cop is out there to make sure the artists and composers get their share.

By KELLY P. KISSEL Associated Press Writer

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) -No sirens. No flashing lights. No guns or billy clubs. Just a notebook and a pen and an ear for popular music. These are the jukebox police.

They are undercover spies, actually, private citizens backed by civil law. Their duty is to find people who make money from music without paying rights fees to the artists and composers. Some people don't take them seriously until they find themselves in court being sued for thousands of dollars.

"They think you're kidding," says Andy Kropelak, an exschoolteacher who patrols West Vir-Broadcast Music Inc.

BMI and the American Society of Composers, Artists and Publishers are the principal enforcers of music copyright laws. The organizations collect license fees from estabevery form — whether it be a bar, a bank or a brothel.

"They are not only the jukebox police, they are the licensers of music throughout an area," says Jonathan Zavin, a private lawyer for ing.

ASCAP, every bar and restaurant ing this machine had to be regiswould have to contact each songwriter individually to get permission to play his music," Kropelak says.

For jukeboxes, the U.S. Copyright Office collects $63 for registrations and splits the money among the composers and publishers' agencies. In addition to its field representatives, BMI uses a network of people who log the songs they hear played on the ubiquitous jukeboxes.

One logger hit Joey's Bar and Grill in Charleston, W.Va., last year after a Steppenwolf fan dropped a few quarters in the jukebox and played "Born To Be Wild" and 'Magic Carpet Ride." A countryand-western fan punched "D-I-V-O-R-C-E" and "Rocky Top" and a nostalgic soul played "Heartbreak Hotel" and "Wipeout."

Unknown to owner Joseph Minardi, the BMI logger made a playlist that became the basis for a federal court lawsuit. Minardi settled out of court for $12,000 in ginia and western Pennsylvania for damages and attorneys' fees even though he only leased the machine from a man who kept half the prof-

BMI files up to 200 suits a year against bars, restaurants and nightclubs, generally seeking between $500 and $1,000 for each song title

Like Minardi, most violators succumb quietly, agreeing to pay BMI a few thousand dollars for past violations and agreeing to purchase the $63 jukebox license.

Kropelak says he has often had trouble in West Virginia and his boss, BMI general licensing vice president Tom Annastas, says it's because many people resent being asked to pay for what they already consider their's.

For that reason, BMI loggers ask to remain anonymous for fear bar owners will retaliate.

The Joey's logger was a local musician who was upset that some people would use music for free. BMI officials say they look for other musicians to make the job as easy as possible.

As evidence, Russian restaurants sions. Cakes and tortes frequently are sprouting up in American cities. Chicago is one. Diners at Moscow At Night sample an assortment of Russian foods accompained by icy cold vodka and live entertainment. In the U.S.S.R., Astro Pizza, a joint venture between the city of Moscow and a New Jersey pizza manufacturer, was an instant success. And Moscovites will soon have Tren Mos, a restaurant featuring regional American foods the likes of barbecued spareribs, seafood cocktail and steak

In July, the first chefs from the Soviet Union's new cooperative movement- which allows citizens to own a business and keep the profits - traveled to the U.S. Here, they experienced a whirlwind shopping, cake cooking and eating spree. Eager to let Americans know that Russians are wonderful cooks, the chefs demonstrated native dishes that were a testimony to the great diversity of a country as vast and varied as the U.S.S.R.

One culinary institution that has survived centuries of political turmoil is the "zakuska table." The custom of serving zakuska is thought to have originated in the country homes that dotted the large estates during Czarist times. Because guests often came long distances and arrived hungry, a varietyof substantial snacks provided temporary sustenance while a larger meal could be prepared.

Today, zakuskas still encompass both cold and hot appetizers, although they may be fewer in number. American visitors to a Soviet home are apt to find a vegetable "caviar" similar to the mushroom caviar prepared centuries ago by soaking dried mushrooms in wine and combing them with plenty of butter, onion, parsley and garlic.

The Mushroom Caviar created in the American Dairy Association test kitchens adds the tang of dairy sour cream to fresh mushrooms and seasonings. It makes an elegant first course to a festive Russian-style meal that is perfect for the holidays. For authenticity, accompany the caviar with squares of dark rye

At holiday time, an elaborate main dish of roast suckling pig follows the zakuska, although American cooks might opt for a whole ham instead. The vegetable accompaniment typically varies with the season, but in those parts of the U.S.S.R. where dairy products are plentiful, it's more apt than not to reflect the bounty.

Butter and dairy sour cream paired with convenient canned tomatoes give String Beans with Sour Cream and Tomatoes an appealing richness and mild tomato flavor. For best results, allow the sour cream to come to room tem-

Photography workshop scheduled for Saturday

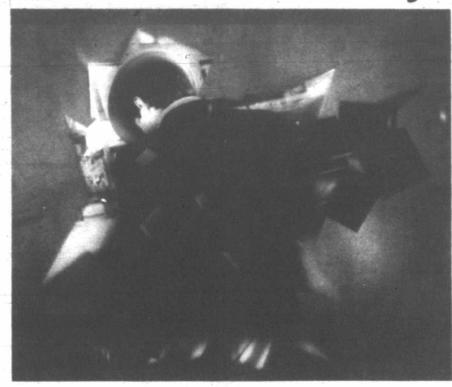

Beginners and experienced photographers will benefit from the photography workshop sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association featuring John Goes of Pampa and Robert Hirsch of Amarillo on Saturday, Nov. 18 from 9 a.m. to noon in the Commuity Building.

Goes, who specializes in black and white photography, and does processing for the White Deer Land Museum, will discuss from 9 to 10 a.m. "Toning Prints" for aesthetic enhancement and permanence.

Hirsch, photography instructor at Amarillo College, will discuss "Exploring Color Photography" from 10 a.m. to noon. Hirsch's lecture will contain an overview of different kinds of processing including hand coloring, polaroid tranforming, gum printing, kwik print processing, blue printing, platinum printing, applying color with an airbrush and darkroom processing.

The public is invited to attend this free workshop.

Coming in December PFAA will present a "Madrigal Dinner" at the First Methodist Church.

mark the 13th Annual Great American Smokeout, a one-day campaign to encourage smokers to quit smoking for 24 hours, just to prove they can do it. The idea, conceived by Lynn R. Smith, editor of the Monticello (Minn.) Times, has now spread to Canada, Great Britain, France, Ireland, Australia, South Africa, Norway, Finland and Sweden.

Last year, more than 18.4 million smokers tried to quit for the day. This represents more than 37 percent of the nation's 50 million smok-

Breast cancer used to be the biggest killer for women. But the No. 1 cause of death among women and men today is lung cancer. An estimated 93,000 men and 49,000 women will die of lung cancer in 1989.

And now, a word about smokingrelated diseases — emphysema, phronic bronchitis and heart disease: This year an estimated 390,000 will die from one of these. This total exceeds the number of U.S. battle deaths in World War II; it is eight times as many people who die in automobile accidents every year!

According to the U.S. surgeon general, there are more deaths from smoking in the United States each year than there are from AIDS, heroin, crack, cocaine, alcohol, fire, murders and car accidents combined.

. A congressional study has reported that health costs from the adverse effects of smoking have reached a new high of $100 billion a year in increased medical bills and lost productivity. The loss in death and disability cannot be measured. And how does one measure the amount of heartache, remorse and guilt suffered as a result of a preventable, self-induced tragedy?)

What about "secondhand" smoke? is it actually damaging to non-smokers to be in the presence of those who are smoking? Yes! Furthermore, studies reveal that the children of smokers are more prone to lung problems and allergies than are children of non-smokers.

For years I have begged my young readers, "If you smoke, quit now. If making ends meet.

estimated 3,000 to 5,000 kids light up for the first time every day. Why? Peer pressure, no doubt

Quitting "cold turkey" is the hardest way to quit, but my readers have told me it's the most effective, and in the long run, the easiest way. Cutting down is less traumatic, but the temptation to smoke is often too powerful to resist while smoking just one, two or three cigarettes a day.

Those who are heavily addicted may require help to break the habit. Call your local chapter of the American Cancer Society for information.

So if you're hooked on cigarettes and have been telling yourself, "One of these days I'm going to quit," why not start tomorrow? It won't be easy, but it will be the best Thanksgiving present you can give yourself - and those who love you.

P.S. A favor, please? If you quit tomorrow, even for 24 hours, I want to hear from you. Then write again and let me know how long you were able to stay clean. Good luck. Keep me posted.

Spearman coach favors Canadian

Veteran football coach Don Mullins may have added a few more gray hairs to his head this year, but it wasn't because his Spearman Lynx finished with a 3-7 record. From the first game in September to the last one in November, Mullins knew what to expect from his team. "We were lucky to win three games," Mullins said.

'We had a very young team and a lot of depth problems.'

The Lynx had the misfortune of having to play both playoff-bound Canadian and Panhandle this season with predictable results. The Lynx lost to Canadian, 28-8, and Panhandle, 37-0.

Mullins was asked to compare the two clubs, who meet each other at 7:30 p.m. Friday night in Pampa in a Class 2A bi-district game

"Both teams have real good defenses, but I would have to give the edge to Canadian because of their offense, especially their passing. This time of year, injuries play a big role and you have to take that into consideration before picking a winner," Mullins said.

Canadian finished the regular season with a 9-1 record, tying Quanah for the District 2-1A title. Panhandle was 7-3 and finished second behind West Texas High in District 1-2A.

'A person who had never seen the two teams play would probably go with Canadian because they have the better record. But it's hard to believe Canadian lost to Shamrock, which indicates to me that they may be having some injury problems," Mullins said.

Mullins pointed out that the Wildcats were bothered by injuries when the two teams met Sept. 22.

"I felt like Canadian took it easy on us because they wanted to keep more players from being hurt. I think the final score was indicative of that. They were fully capable of scoring more," Mullins said.

Spearman had only three first downs and 91 yards total offense in the loss to Panhandle.

"Our offense was as cold as ice, but Panhandle is a hard team to move the ball on," Mullins said. "Panhandle doesn't have what you would call a tremendous offense. They lost one of their tailbacks to injuries and that could hurt them against Canadian."

Another coach whose team felt the heavy rush of playoff powerhouses was Dale Means of Lefors.

Lefors had back-to-back meetings with McLean and Bovina, who meet in a six-man bi-district clash Friday night at Valley High School.

Davis wins NL Cy Young Award as reliever

By DENNIS GEORGATOS AP Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO — Reliever Mark Davis is a pitcher without a team, and that's a darn good position for him to be in considering he's a free agent who just won the National League Cy Young

"I've been blessed," the left-handed reliever said Tuesday, hours after a panel of 24 baseball writers voted him the prize signifying the league's most valuable pitcher. "It's very much an honor. I will treasure it always.'

Houston's Mike Scott, a 20-game winner, was the runnerup in the balloting by the Baseball Writer's Association of America. The voting, done on a points system of five for first place, three for second and one for third, had Davis well in front ith 107 points to Scott's 65.

Davis enjoyed an extraordinary season in 1989, playing a role in more than half of the San Diego Padres' victories. His 44 saves led the major leagues and he had a 4-3 record with a 1.85 ERA as the Padres went 89-73, good for second place in the NL West, three games behind the San Francisco Giants.

"I think a lot of things had to go right and good things happened to me throughout the season," Davis said during a news conference hosted by the Padres at San Diego Jack Murphy Stadi-

"I had very good plays behind me, in the infield, in the outfield. I had a triple though he had 28 saves in 1988. San play made behind me. It's a team-wide Diego's offer of $2.2 million was rejecteffort and all I try to do is go out there ed as inadequate.

and be consistent."

Davis becomes only the seventh reliever in history to win the award, and the fourth in the NL. Steve Bedrosian of Philadelphia, in 1987, was the last previous relief winner.

"There's a stigma, I guess, about relievers not winning this award," Davis said. "Until the last few years it had only gone to starters.

"But I feel the emergence of the bullpen and the importance its had over the last 10 years gives relievers a little more notoriety. I think all pitchers now are looked upon the same. We all pitch from the same mound. On the award it says 'most valuable pitcher' and relievers and starters are both pitchers."

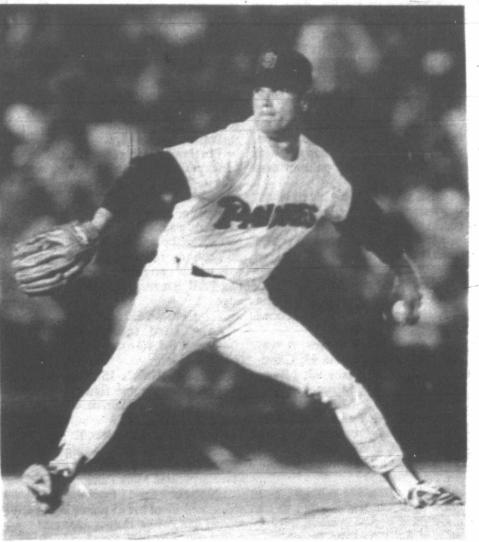

Just 24 hours before the Cy Young announcement, Davis had been honored by Rolaids as baseball's top reliever.

"What better year could a guy have when you've got the Rolaids and Cy Young awards all in one basket," Padres manager Jack McKeon said. "It all came up right for him (and) he certainly

The Padres, though, must compete with other teams in their bid to retain the services of the bullpen ace.

"I'd have to be nuts not to be concerned," McKeon said.

The Padres had a chance to sign Davis to a two-year contract extension last spring. But they were unwilling to pay him the $2.8 million he sought, even Reliever Mark Davis collected 44 saves, a 4-3 record and a 1.85 ERA en route to earning the NL Cy Young Award.

Texas Tech gridders take weekly honors

By HOLDEN LEWIS Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK - Two Texas Tech Red 438, Page 506, Deed Records of Raiders — a freshman who was in high school Gray County, Texas (Acct. six months ago and a senior who looks forward to the NFL draft — are this week's Southwest Conference offensive and defensive football players of the week.

Running back James Gray rushed 19 times for 209 yards and scored three touchdowns Saturday in a 37-7 shellacking of Texas Christian in Gray's last game in Lubbock.

Safety Tracy Saul caught two interceptions and almost a third — and had 10 tackles, eight solo. He caught two interceptions the week before at Texas.

Saul, who graduated from Idalou High School just northeast of Lubbock this spring, wasn't expected to contribute so much so soon.

As the Tech media guide said: "Saul is coming off a sensational high school career in which he was selected the South Plains player of the year in football and basketball, but making the transition from Class 2A football to the major college level in a matter of weeks probably is expecting too much."

That was written before the six-foot, 180pound safety caught an interception in Tech's 3047000200500) (723 E. Locust) first game of the season and before he started in #1255 City of Pampa vs. Lidy, the fifth game, against Texas A&M.

"I did not think Tracy Saul would do this 25 Feet of Lot 18, Block 3, Seeds well," coach Spike Dykes said. "He's had an outstanding year as far as big, visible plays."

Defensive coordinator Carlos Mainord said: "It's unusual to have a freshman come in and adjust like Tracy did. He's a very intent player as far as watching and listening. He's going to unless otherwise indicated, being be a great one before he's through."

Similar things were said last year about All-Southwest Conference safety Donald Harris, who left Tech after being drafted by the Texas Rangers. Saul's job was to replace him.

I like to work hard every day and try to make a workout as much like a game as you can," Saul said.

Gray's work habits are just as hard, but there described above should be sold was heavy pressure at the beginning of the sea- thereof to satisfy said son for him to produce. Dykes called him the judgment(s), interest, penalties, only name player on a no-name team.

"It's hard to say which is the better team because they have completely contrasting styles," Means said. "McLean is big and strong, but they've got the speed to run with a lot of people. Bovina has quickness and finesse, but they can run over you too."

McLean rolled to a perfect 10-0 record to capture Pampa County, Texas, by the the District 2A crown. Boving posted an 8-2 record and Clerk of said Court on said date, was runnerup to Lazbuddie in District 1A.

Means' prediction? "McLean will win by six."

Bart Thomas, who quarterbacked White Deer to the 1A state championship in 1988, plans to play football next fall at Texas Tech in Lubbock.

Thomas was attending Air Force on a football scholarship, but he suffered a knee injury in pre-season said County, in the City of workouts and was unable to play. He was listed on the Pampa, Texas between the hours, Falcons' varsity roster when the injury occurred.

Thomas dropped out of Air Force and has been tak- p.m. on said day, beginning at ing correspondence courses through Clarendon College. "I didn't think I wanted to give nine years of my life to the military," Thomas said. "There would have been a five-year commitment after I had graduated and I

SWC Previews

TCU (4-6, 2-5 SWC) at TEXAS (4-4, 3-2 SWC), 12 noon (CST), Raycom Sports Tele-cast — In one of the SWC's oldest rivalries, the Horned Frogs and Longhorns meet for the 75th time since 1897. Texas has a 54-19-1 series lead, including a current, 21-game win-ning streak since 1968. The Horned Frogs fought UT down to the wire before falling 30-21 at Fort Worth last season. TCU's Wacker is 132-80-3 (19th year) as a college head coach (15th-most wins by an active NCAA Division I-A head coach), 28-47-2 (seventh season) at TCU, 14-38-1 in SWC games, and 0-6 against Texas. Longhorns' coach David McWilliams is 22-20 (fourth year) in the college ranks, 15-12 in SWC contests and 3-0 against the Horned Frogs. Both teams like to use a good balance of the run and pass from multiple formations. Frogs' freshman RB Curtis Modkins has a pair of 100-yard rushing games to his credit and is 11th in the SWC with 111 carries for 470 yards. Senior RB Tommy Palmer (who started the year at TE) is 10th in the SWC with 98 rushes for 534 yards. Texas yearling QB Peter Gardere has started five straight games for UT with full-season totals of 96-of-162 passing for with full-season totals of 96-01-162 passing for 1,386 yards, 59.3 percent completion rate and five TDs. Defensively, Texas yields just 148 yards per game rushing behind the play of LB Brian Jones (86 tackles) while the Horned Frogs rely on DE Darrell Davis (84 stops) and SS Levoil Crump (83 hits). PK Wayne Clements of UT is sed for sixth in SWC career field goals with 44 while TCU's Kevin Cordesman had an eight-FG streak snapped last

RICE (1-7-1, 1-5 SWC) at BAYLOR (4-5, 3-3 SWC), 1:00 p.m. (CST) - Rice, coming off an open date, seeks to recover from the loss of OB Donald Hollas (broken leg) against the physical and homestanding Bears. Baylor ralied in the second half to edge Rice 20-10 last year in Houston, and the Owls have been close to some major upsets this fall. The Bears have a 40-27-2 command of the series. Rice last won 17-14 at Waco in 1981. Rice's Rice last won 17-14 at Waco in 1981. Hice's coach Fred Goldsmith is 3-14-1 (second season) overall, 1-7-1 with the Owls and 1-5 in SWC action. Beylor's Grant Teeff is 148-137-7 (27th season, 10th-highest win total among active Division 1-A mentors) overall, 106-91-5 (18th year) with Baylor, 68-65-3 (third-most wins In history) in SWC contests, and 14-3 vs. the Owls. The Owls have tried to take advantage of the extra work week to prepare freshtage of the extra work week to prepare freshman QB Greg Willig for his first start. He is 38-of-74 passing for 480 yards and three TDs in ds rushing) on offense and All-America candidate James Francis (98 tackles, six blocked kicks) defensively. Rice relies on the hard hit-ting of junior LB O.J. Brigance (85 tackles) and the receiving of multi-purpose back Eric Henley (74 catches, 838 yards, third nationally). The Bears, somewhat bruised from a physical match against Arkansas last week look for more point production via the pass catching of RB Jeffery Murray (36 catches, 311 yards, ninth in the SWC). Rice DB David Griffin, whose four interceptions in 1989 top the 1988 full-squad total of three pilfers. hopes to impede those plans. Baylor plays its final home tilt of the 1989 season while Rice still has one game at Rice Stadium against

TEXAS TECH (7-2, 4-2 SWC) at SMU (2-7, 0-6 SWC), 2:00 p.m. (CST) — Tech and the Mustangs renew a 57-year-old rivalry, which the Red Raiders lead 18-16 in all games and 15-12 in SWC activity, at Ownby Stadium. Tech played in the last football game prior to the 1989 season in SMU's oncampus facility in 1948 (SMU downed the Red Raiders 41-6 in Dallas). Expect more scoring in this game than in several recent SMU-Tech battles. The Red Raiders have been held to 21 points composite in their last four games with the Mustangs, including a 9-7 loss at Texas Stadium in 1985. The Raiders average 26.6 points per game in 1989 to stand fourth in the SWC. Head coaches Spike Dykes of T-Tech and Forrest Gregg of SMU face one another for the first time Saturday. In fact, it's Dykes' first head-coaching assignment against a SMU squad. The Tech chieftan is 18-13-1 (fourth year) overall and 11-8 in SWC games. SMU's Gregg is 2-7 overall and 0-6 in the SWC as he prepares the team for Tech. On all levels the two coaches have com bined for 188 victories in their 28 campaigns as head coaches. Tech rides the churning legs of IB James Gray, who is bidding to become the SWC's all-time leading TD producer and scorer in his final two college games. Gray has 46 TDs (third on the list behind Arkansas' Bill Burnett with 49 and SMU's Eric Dickerson with 48) and is also 18 points away from Burnett's SWC scoring record of 294 points. SMU counters with freshman LB Bill Kiely (77 tackles, two interceptions). The Mustangs have four seniors, including National Scholar-Athlete Award winner Mitch Glieber (41 catches, 460 yards), playing their final home game. Tech looks to LBs Charles Rowe (100 tackles) and Matt Wingo (94 stops) to apply defensive
