Sloan Says He Feared White House Retribution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Nixon campaign treasurer Hugh W. Sloan Jr. testified today he had feared administration retribution for telling the truth about the Watergate wiretapping, but was assured it wouldn't happen.

And he said he threw up his hands when the man he accused of asking him to lie, former campaign deputy Jeb S. Magruder, was given a $36,000-a-year government job.

Sloan testified at the Senate televised Watergate hearings that he visited White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman last January after testifying as a government witness at the trial of the Watergate burglars.

He said Haldeman assured him the administration wouldn't stand in the way of his finding a private job, but that no one regarded as a "Watergate figure" would be given a high government job until the case was cleared up.

Sloan said he felt very good about the meeting, but a few days later read that Magruder had been appointed to a policy post in the Commerce Department. "At that time I just threw up my hands," Sloan said.

Sloan said he told Haldeman: "I want you to know that I feel that I did not leave the team as far as I'm concerned, the team left me."

Sloan also told the Senate's televised Watergate hearings that he does not believe Maurice H. Stans, the Nixon campaign finance chairman, was involved in any illegal activities. Stans has been indicted by a federal grand jury in New York, and has pleaded innocent to conspiracy charges in a fund-raising case.

"I did not and do not believe that Secretary Stans was in any way involved in the criminal activities," Sloan said in discussing the Watergate case. "I thought he had been left holding the bag."

Sloan said he sought the White House meeting with Haldeman after the Watergate trial last January because he was seeking private employment. He said there seemed to be a lull in the case, that it seemed Watergate "had been gotten away with, that it had stopped with the seven men" who were convicted or pleaded guilty at the trial.

Sloan said people then involved in the Nixon political apparatus were opposed to his views and actions in testifying about campaign payments.

He said he therefore wanted to make clear to Haldeman "why I had done what I had done" and wanted also to be sure there would be no effort at retribution.

"The fear of retribution," Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. of Conn. asked Sloan.

"Retribution," Sloan replied.

In testimony prepared for delivery later in the day, Herbert L. Porter, who was director of scheduling during the campaign, said he was not involved in Watergate or the cover-up.

"I have been guilty of a deep sense of loyalty to the President of the United States," Porter said. "At no time did I knowingly engage in any cover-up of the Watergate burglary. I had no prior knowledge of the Watergate burglary."

Porter said the Watergate affair has had "a most devastating effect" on his personal life, has cost him a lucrative job in private industry and forced him to lose his house in California.

IN MEMBER CAMPAIGN Chamber's Drive Nears End Zone

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce annual membership drive was nearing an end today only $1,500 short of its $44,000 goal.

Actually, the campaign was concluded yesterday as far as team contests were concerned.

Gene Steel, chamber finance director, said the drive would continue until the goal is reached.

Top teams in the membership contest were Melvin Kunkel's Dolphins, Roy Sparkman's Packers, and Gary Stevens' Raiders finishing in first, second, and third place respectively.

Members of the top team with 1,228 points were Kunkel, Floyd Watson, Luther Robinson, Marvin Cooper, Don Lane and Dr. Royse Laycock.

Sparkman's second place team with 1,017 points included Kay Fancher, Gene Imel, E.E. Shelhamer, E.L. Henderson and Joe Fischer.

The third place team headed by Stevens scored 665 points. Members were Bill McElroy, David Tucker, Darville Orr, Benny Kirksey and James McCoy.

Other teams finished as follows:

Carlton Freeman's Cowboys in fourth place with 600 points, Gene Barrett's Browns, fifth, with 320. Newt Secrest's 49ers, sixth with 310. C.D. Zlomke's Redskins, seventh with 290 and Rex McAnelly's Steelers, eighth with 140 points.

The All Star team, consisting of highest point getters on each team, was named as follows:

Marvin Cooper of the Dolphins, Gene Imel of the Packers, Benny Kirksey of the Raiders, J.C. Roberts of the Cowboys, Dick Stowers of the Browns, Harris Brinson of the 49ers, Bill Monroe of the Redskins, and Art Aftergut of the Steelers.

Campaign chairman Steel said he was pleased with response to the membership drive and was complimentary to team workers. He also expressed thanks to chamber members for their continued support.

Astros Begin Repair Attempts For Skylab

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Rating their chances of success at 50-50, two Skylab astronauts today began a dramatic space walk to try to unjam a solar wing and restore nearly full power to their orbiting laboratory.

Commander Charles Conrad Jr. exited first through an airlock hatch and positioned himself in foot restraints on the side of the vehicle.

Before stepping out, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin passed out tube sections which Conrad assembled into a makeshift handrail which would ease his way to the stuck panel, 25 feet away.

The third crewman, Paul J. Weitz, remained behind in the station to monitor systems and relay Mission Control radio instructions to the spacewalkers.

The astronauts opened the hatch at 10:23 a.m. CDT just before passing out of radio contact. When an Australia station picked them up 20 minutes later, Conrad was outside. Kerwin followed minutes later.

Success of the 270-mile-high space stroll would provide the space station with additional badly needed electrical power and enable Conrad, Kerwin and

Paul J. Weitz to complete a full experiment load during the remaining 14 days of their four-week mission.

Conrad and Kerwin plan to slip outside the station hatch, attached to 60-foot lifelines that feed oxygen and air to their bulky spacesuits.

They plan to extend a 25-foot makeshift handrail, clamping it to the solar wing. Then Conrad is to crawl hand-over-hand and attempt to pry or cut loose an inch-wide aluminum strip that holds the wing firmly against the workshop.

If successful, the commander is to crouch under a rope that has been pulled taut over the same route as the handrail. With the rope on his shoulder, he is to stand up, hopefully raising the 30-foot solar wing beam in a scissors-like motion.

That would free solar cell panels to convert the sun's rays to energy to charge electrical batteries in the station.

They would provide more than 3,000 watts of power, nearly doubling the amount now available in the space station.

Skylab has been short of electricity since a launching mishap May 14 ripped away a protective shield, with a strip of it jamming the solar wing.

While outside, Conrad and Kerwin also were to repair a cover on one solar telescope, replace film in another, check a maneuvering thruster and inspect the sunshade they erected to cool the station. The third astronaut, Paul J. Weitz, was to remain in Skylab.

While mission control was confident, the space walkers expressed skepticism as they wrestled with the complex procedures in a practice session inside the workshop Wednesday.

"I'm not convinced it's all going to work," said Conrad, who will have the most difficult role. "I'm not as optimistic as you are, but we'll give it a go," he told mission control.

"Our feeling is we've got about a 50-50 chance to pull it off," said Kerwin.

Flight Director Milton Windler estimated the chance of releasing the wing at "about 75 per cent, maybe higher."

Asked the impact on the mission if the attempt failed, Windler replied: "It's not a do-or-die situation for Skylab."

Price Index Jumps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wholesale price index, a measure of inflation in the economy, took another enormous jump in May, rising 2.1 per cent over April, the Labor Department reported today.

The index showed wholesale prices increasing at an annual rate of 25.2 per cent.

The biggest increases were in farm products which were up 6.1 per cent over April. The general increase in farm prices followed a decline of 2 per cent in April.

The report was more bad economic news for the Nixon administration since it showed prices were not making the mid-year decline that economists had predicted.

Much of the increase in wholesale prices later shows up in retail prices to consumers. Inflation at the retail level already has been increasing at an annual rate of 8.4 per cent.

The seasonally adjusted increase in the wholesale price index in May was 2 per cent, which means wholesale prices were increasing at 24 per cent annual rate after seasonal changes had been taken into account.

Industrial commodities in the index increased 1.2 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis, showing that industrial costs also are continuing their unusually high rate of increase.

One government economist termed the increase in the May index "horrendous." The administration has been predicting since the first of the year that prices would begin to level off after the big increases of the first four months.

But the May increase in the wholesale index of 2.1 per cent on an unadjusted basis and 2 per cent on an adjusted basis was the biggest monthly increase in years except for an increase of 2.3 per cent in March this year.

The Labor Department said the May increase in price of farm products resulted largely from higher prices for oil seeds, grains, livestock, fresh and dried vegetables, cotton and milk.

Those increases more than offset decreased prices for eggs, live poultry and fresh fruits.

Wholesale prices for processed foods and feeds were up 3.7 per cent in May, almost entirely because of large increases for manufactured animal feeds. That compared with a decline of 6 per cent for processed foods and feeds in April.

Increased prices for fuels were blamed for much of the rise in the commodity index and refined petroleum products "accounted for a major part of the increase in fuels

KC POLICE CHIEF Nixon Appoints New FBI Head

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced today that Kansas City Police Chief Clarence M. Kelley is his choice for FBI director, selected from 27 top candidates.

Posing for photographs in his Oval Office with Kelley, a former FBI agent, and Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, Nixon said that in searching for a permanent replacement for the late J. Edgar Hoover, "we finally got down to 27 names."

After Richardson interjected that there had been a "very exhaustive search" for a new FBI chief, Nixon said of Kelley, "he was first on the list."

While permitting the silver-haired Kelley to appear briefly before newsmen at the White House, Nixon said his nominee would not be able to respond to questions because he faces Senate confirmation hearings.

Kelley, who served 21 years with the FBI before taking over as police chief in 1961, would become the second permanent director in the investigative agency's history.

J. Edgar Hoover died 13 months ago after running the FBI for 47 years.

Kelley, a 61-year-old attorney with a keen interest in computerized law enforcement, has spent three days consulting with administration aides here. Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson and a White House liaison officer were introducing him to congressional leaders Wednesday.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is expected to schedule confirmation hearings soon.

Kelley was in charge of the Memphis FBI office when he took over his hometown Kansas City police force after a shake-up in which the previous chief and other officers were indicted for corruption.

Robert F. Kennedy, then the attorney general, was one of those who recommended Kelley to the city's police board.

Among the programs Kelley is credited with introducing are Sky Alert, a 24-hour-a-day helicopter patrol, Metro Squad, a joint city-suburban investigation team, Operation Barrier, designed to prevent criminal suspects from escaping across the Missouri-Kansas border, and the use of computers to speed police response.

The Dick Tracy comparison was a product of a police department press release which boasted "Even with two-way wrist radios and space cars, Dick Tracy doesn't have much over the technology-wise Kansas City police department and its chief."

His supporters credit him with reducing crime in Kansas City by 25 per cent since 1969.

BULLETIN

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Radio Damascus said Israeli jets attempted to penetrate Syrian airspace twice along the Mediterranean coast today but were driven off by jet interceptors and anti-aircraft fire.

The broadcast quoting a Syrian military spokesman said the Israeli planes approached the cities of Latakia and Tartous at 9:15 a.m. but flew westward when they encountered the Syrian defenses.

The enemy planes returned an hour and a half later but were intercepted by jet and anti-aircraft defenses and were forced to retreat," the broadcast said.

Saigon Rejects Truce

SAIGON (AP) — The Saigon government, apparently trying to forestall any concessions by Henry A. Kissinger to the Communists, announced today it would not sign any new truce agreement worked out in Paris.

The announcement suggested that Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho may be working on additional amendments to the original Vietnam cease-fire, signed in Paris Jan. 27.

Kissinger announced in the French capital that he put off a scheduled morning meeting with Tho until this afternoon but said, "There was no particular reason. We just needed more time to prepare something."

He did not indicate what was being prepared, but it was presumed to be a supplementary document to tighten the Vietnam cease-fire.

Kissinger and Tho are believed to be working on ways to implement the original agreement rather than renegotiate it. The Saigon government reportedly has agreed in principle on 11 points under consideration but has offered some counter-proposals on how to put them into effect.

The announcement was marked by a flurry of diplomatic activity in Saigon. Acting U.S. Ambassador Charles Whitehouse met twice with Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam. After the second meeting, the two went to confer with President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Thieu met with his National Security Council earlier in the day.

Government sources said a new dispute has developed between the Saigon government and the United States over the cease-fire, but they did not say what it was about. However, it seemed that it might involve additional recognition of the Viet Cong.

Group Urges Enthusiasm For Industrial Prospects

Enthusiasm for growth of Pampa's economy and future industrial expansion reached a new high this forenoon at a meeting of directors of the Pampa Industrial Foundation and Chamber of Commerce.

Members of the chamber's Industrial Committee and city and county officials in Coronado Inn.

The group heard Fred Neslage, PIF president, relate in detail the work that had gone into efforts to bring the Iowa Beef Processors plant to Pampa.

They heard Rex McAnelly, operator of Moody Farms, tell them Pampa did not lose the IBP.

"You can't lose something you never had," McAnelly said as he pointed up the Pampa area's enormous future growth potential agriculturally.

Theme of the meeting remained in the category that Pampa will renew even more extensive effort to bring new business and industry to the area.

Discussions and suggestions of various members of the group resulted in a decision by Neslage to call a meeting of the Industrial Foundation directors for 10 a.m. tomorrow in the chamber offices to discuss the possibility of employing an assistant to Chamber Manager E.O. Wedgeworth, who would spend his time seeking industrial prospects.

Chamber President Jerry Sims then called a meeting of chamber directors for 3 p.m. tomorrow to discuss the same subject along with Industrial Foundation representatives.

County Judge Explains Revenue Sharing Figures

By RAY BAXTER

Many of the figures and procedures attendant to government aid are difficult for local administering people to grasp and, usually next to impossible for the laymen.

Such is an "ad" concerning revenue sharing fund usage appearing in today's Pampa News, Page 18, as required by law.

Gray County Judge Don Cain has lived with these figures since revenue sharing was just a gleam in the federal eye. He was asked to put the figures in the language of the man in the street.

Monies labeled 1972 revenue sharing totaled $103,146. Judge Cain said, "Of this amount, he noted that $28,450 was used for public safety.

This means revenue sharing funds paid 11.12 of the cost of operating the sheriff's department. Too ambulance service and fire protection for areas surrounding Pampa, Lefors and McLean were paid out of this figure.

The judge also pointed out Lovett Memorial Library, the library at McLean and the Gray County Law Library have received aid to the tune of $5,650.

Aged and the poor who come under the ministrations of social agencies operating within the county received $16,046 in revenue sharing funds to aid them.

All the foregoing are lumped into the printed report as operating maintenance expenditures. They total $50,146.

The remainder of the 1972 funds are earmarked for capital expenditures, with $3,000 of it designated for various purposes in the course of general government. Another $6,000 has been earmarked for health projects.

Judge Cain said the administration of Highland General Hospital had requested a radio communications system to keep them in constant touch with ambulance services and law enforcement agencies.

The largest figure in the capital outlay column is $40,000 for transportation. This has been earmarked for a new building at Lefors, for Precinct One vehicles and rolling equipment, surfacing of the parking area at the court house annex and the purchase of a new pickup for Precinct Four.

Judge Cain added this item of transportation was the only expenditure that has been approved thus far by the commissioners court. He said he anticipated no problems with the other items. Action had been pending receipt of all the funds forthcoming for 1972.

"Gray County is not counting on any of this money until it is in the bank," the judge said.

In the realm of public safety, a capital outlay of $4,000 will be recommended to pay for the newest model radar units now being used by the Department of Public Safety.

Payment for these units is being made on a monthly basis. Judge Cain said considerable interest money could be saved by paying for these items in a lump sum.

He pointed out that simply by caring for the needs at hand, money for each of the two columns was fairly evenly divided.

Judge Cain explained revenue sharing funds were being used for such items as law enforcement and public safety for a specific reason.

There are many areas of county operation and financial need where revenue sharing funds may NOT be spent. The commissioners court has charted a course of using these funds in areas where they CAN be spent until the county budget is balanced once again.

You will remember that the county faced a deficit in the budget not too long ago with only the grim reality of a tax increase as our only hope of coming out. The judge reminded.

Now, by using revenue sharing funds as the commissioners have outlined, Gray County can be operating in the black by the end of this year."

Methodists Honor Retiring Minister

ABILENE — A Pampa minister, Rev. J.W. Rosenberg, was one of six retiring from the active Methodist ministry honored last night here.

The service was a part of the 64th annual session of the Northwest Texas Conference meeting for the first time in history on the campus of McMurtry College.

Rev. Rosenberg, a veteran of 43 years in the ministry, has been serving as pastor of St. Paul United Methodist Church, Pampa, and of the congregation at Lefors. His successor will be among the appointments announced during tonight's session of the conference.

Also scheduled for tonight is the ordination of eight deacons and two elders.

Yesterday, Dr. Thomas K. Kim, president of McMurtry College, announced a name had been selected for the $1.2-million physical education building on the campus of the Methodist school. It will be called the J.W. Hunt Health and Physical Education Center.

Dr. Hunt was the first president of the college, serving from 1923 until his death in 1934. Tears were elicited from many attending last night when a multi-media play recalled many of the outstanding occasions of years gone by.

A more sobering note was sounded with the announcement that membership among the churches of the conference was down 1.5 per cent.

However, it was noted that of the 1,519 persons represented in this percentage figure, 1,468 of them were dropped by a special committee set up to eliminate from the rolls those persons who had been unaccounted for over a great number of years.

German Chancellor Pays Emotional Visit To Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt arrived today for an emotional and symbolic visit as the first German government chief to set foot in the Jewish state.

About 40 youths demonstrated against Germany's Nazi past outside the heavily guarded Lod Airport as Brandt's air force jet landed. Premier Golda Meir met the plane, visibly moved.

As armed police and troops guarded against attempted disruptions, Brandt began his stay with an immediate reference to the wartime Nazi persecution of Jews.

He declared that "the sum of the suffering and the horror cannot be removed from the consciousness of our peoples."

But Brandt, said he was confident his presence would improve the special relations between Israel and Germany and he hoped it "will serve the cause of peace in the Middle East."

Mrs. Meir praised Brandt's anti-Nazi remarks and said his visit "undoubtedly will be of major importance."

The first event on his four-day schedule was aimed at further healing of the wounds of World War II: a stop at the Yad Vashem memorial to the six million Jews liquidated under the Nazis.

Rugged frontier police units were pulled into Jerusalem to guard Brandt's hotel from possible attacks by Jews who have never forgiven the Germans for the Nazi holocaust.

An estimated 300,000 survivors of the Hitler era live in Israel—nearly one out of every 10 citizens. Half of them spent time in Nazi concentration camps.

Many Israelis thought they would never see the day when Jewish Jerusalem would be bedecked with the black, red and gold German flag or hear the German national anthem played here.

Brandt is to meet twice with Premier Golda Meir and with Foreign Minister Abba Eban, Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir and Deputy Premier Yigal Alon. In addition to the Middle East question, they were likely to take up Israeli relations with the Common Market.

Brandt climaxes his visit at a meeting Sunday with 86-year-old elder statesman David Ben-Gurion, who broke the ice between Israel and West Germany more than two decades ago.

Reconciliation began in the 1950s, when Ben-Gurion encouraged contacts with the late West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer on reparations for Nazi crimes.

In 1960, after a famous meeting with Adenauer in a New York hotel, Ben-Gurion stunned Israelis by saying "The Germany of today is not the Germany of yesterday."

Brandt recently criticized Communist-East Germany's position that it has no legal obligation to pay reparations to Israeli victims of Nazism. But reports from Bonn said West Germany has no desire to intervene in this issue. The Bonn government has paid $16.6 billion to Jews since World War II, about one-third of it to Israel and Jews living in Israel.

There will be a brief called meeting of the Gray County commissioners court Friday at 10 a.m. to consider the airport management contract renewal.

Judge Don Cain said it was decided to take up the matter in this manner so airport management could make some planned repairs and other work.

He said he anticipated no problem because local aviation enthusiasts have been prompt in praise for the current management of Perry Lefors Field and that management wishes to continue for another contract period.

The meeting will be conducted in the county court room.

Lovett Library Begins Youth Reading Club

The annual summer reading program at Lovett Memorial Library began June 1 and will be held through July 31 for first through sixth grades.

The theme of the program this year is "Be a Readosaurus." Purpose of the reading club is to help boys and girls become aware of the joy of reading and also become familiar with the uses of the library.

The program will be on a non-competitive basis, and "just-for-fun" reading.

A record of books read will be kept and a diploma awarded to those who have read ten or more books during the time of the program.

A list of recommended books will be available to help guide selections.

Spirit of 1976 doesn't stir Americans

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON CROSSING, N.J.—(NEA)—When the United States celebrated its 100th birthday, in 1876, a Boston newspaperman wrote: "The Centennial closed in November, not too soon for the many who had found much of it so faddish and tiresome that the word Centennial was repulsive. How had it started at us from every oyster cellar, tripe stall, coffee booth, grand hotel, haberdashery, candy shop and fish store . . . oh, give us a rest for a hundred years!"

The people of Washington Crossing never read that comment. But they might have. Here it is, now 100 months before America is to commemorate its second hundred years, its Bicentennial, and the citizens of this historic spot couldn't care less. For many, it seems, the hundred years rest hasn't been long enough.

"Bicentennial?" says a man in the Tally Ho bar, hard by the Delaware River. "What's that? Oh, yeah, I know. Baloney, that's what it is, baloney. Now, I don't care anything about it. Gimme another beer, huh."

The opinion, minus barley breath, is echoed throughout this tiny settlement. An official in the township (Hope-well) municipal building says he hasn't "heard word one about 1976." A man driving a road repair truck says he has "other things to worry about than that stuff." Several people queried, actually, respond that they do not even know what Bicentennial means.

IT'S NOT THE REAL THING, but the annual re-enactment at Washington Crossing, N.J., of a local historical event is a reminder of the nation's heritage which Americans are ignoring.

The apathy is both odd and at the same time understandable. Odd because of the knee-jerk interest in history here (this is where, on Christmas night, 1776, George Washington led his military across the Delaware to fight the critical Battle of Trenton); understandable because to this date the long planned, long troubled, long ignored U.S. Bicentennial commemoration has not caught a twit of the public fancy.

Public fancy? The Bicentennial in some quarters is a public joke. Some citizens grump that the celebration should be moved up a year or two, "before the Indians take the country back." Others complain that all the money spent is in vain because "people won't have enough gas to go to see it." Still more wonder, morosely, what with Watergate and corruption, "if there'll be a nation left by then to honor."

The cynicism should be expected. In the seven years since Congress first mandated the observation of the nation's 200th anniversary, not only has there been malfunctions in the nation but in the anniversary planning as well.

Superpatriots first tried to capture planning power, then superpoliticians (intercepted secret messages suggest the Republican administration once saw 1976 as an opportunity to strengthen the party). A world's fair was planned, and rejected. Leaders of major participating cities argued ideas to death.

Even now, most states have only rudimentary plans for the Bicentennial. Congress has rejected the top priority Bicentennial proposal (national parks in all 50 states); and politicians are debating whether to change the 50-member federal planning board (The American Revolutionary Bicentennial Commission) to one-man rule.

Small wonder the average citizen is yawning. In New Jersey, as example, the state has not even named its commemoration commission.

Anybody interested in 1976 cannot find a Bicentennial number in the phone book. One guy connected with the ho-hum task of organizing some action here says, "We think we're going to build a Liberty Park on the New Jersey side of the Statue of Liberty, but . . ."

But, indeed, Time is running out. Says one state newsman: "What I'm going to do in 1976 is take my kids to Union City and let them smell what has happened in two centuries."

To some extent, of course, the official confusion and public inertia is a natural byproduct of an activity so immense and, until recently, so far away. Says an ARBC official in Washington: "How can you get 210 million people interested, much less in agreement, on something like this?"

You can't. Students, for example, according to Chip Burle of the College Press Service, "think the whole thing is ludicrous." Other segments of the society agree. Indians, because the land to be commemorated is land stolen from them; Blacks because at the time of the revolution many of their ancestors were slaves. Even entire states of people feel no overwhelming pride

Dollar's Values Unstable

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Incongruous as it may seem, the devaluation of the dollar appears to be viewed by some currency traders as evidence that it could be devalued again.

This, at any rate, is one of the explanations offered by puzzled monetary authorities, who feel the dollar is now realistically priced but who find their views contradicted by a falling market.

While most Americans might have only a vague feeling of insecurity because of the dollar's decline, those who travel to Europe this summer will encounter the specific consequences in the form of higher bills everywhere.

The oddity of why the value of American currency should continue to slide, relative to the currency of most of its trading partners, is reasoned this way by some bankers:

Unique among world currencies, the dollar held to its official value throughout the post-World War II period, and thus was widely desired for its stability.

This view continued to be held even when the United States developed a chronic imbalance in its international payments, traditionally viewed as evidence of an overpriced currency. The imbalance, it was hoped, would be corrected.

But then the dollar met the fate of other important currencies: it devalued, and it did so twice. This removed the assurance. No longer could you be certain of the dollar's value either.

Most international bankers now believe the devalued dollar is priced right or perhaps even less than its worth. But that is no longer a promise, the dollar is afloat, drifting with the currents.

In a strictly banking sense, the dollar isn't nearly so suspect as it is in the market place, where psychology—which involves fears and rumors as well as facts—holds sway.

Add to the fears held by many European and American businessmen, and bankers too, the feeling that the U.S. economy itself is adrift, despite continued assurances from Washington that things are getting better all the time.

And then, in addition to those worries, pile on the burden of Watergate, which is viewed by some Americans and Europeans as lessening the President's ability to negotiate trade agreements, work toward international monetary stability and control domestic inflation.

And while the dollar falls, the price of gold soars. Are the two prices like weights on an apothecary's balance? To an extent. When people fear paper currencies they traditionally seek gold or diamonds or some such.

Dory Previn Starts Giving Concerts

By MARY CAMPBELL AP Newsfeatures Writer

Dory Previn, who has made four record albums of her own songs over the past three years, has conquered her fear of performing and started, slowly, to give concerts.

She now has given five, the fifth in April at Carnegie Hall in New York. That was the first one for an audience of more than 750 and it required conquering her fear of traveling from her home in California. It went well and she was asked to do a concert in London. "In a few months I think I'll take a boat and go and see how it goes over there." She traveled to New York by train; she still doesn't fly.

The New York Times review of the concert said, "Dory Previn has carved out a special area as a dealer in hangups. She built a program that, despite its concentration on loneliness, rejection and, lack of communication, achieved a surprisingly varied and almost joyful effect."

She says, "I've always thought that my songs are funny. People look at me very strangely when I say that. When I started performing, the audience laughing made me so happy. It just proved what I had always felt. Since, for whatever reason, most of what I write has to do with noncheerful stuff, I do try to find the humor in things."

Miss Previn's first LP, "Oh My Way to Where," was much about her separation and divorce from Andrew Previn and her anguish. Two new songs written for Carnegie Hall are about a loser and the moon with the astronauts walking on it, still not cheery.

"I guess essentially I'm a negative person. I have a negative point of view. I think exploring my negativity is a positive act in itself, so I think I'm a positive person."

"I've been in analysis for many years, all of my adult life. More recently I've been in gestalt therapy, private and group. I think that helped me. Maybe if I hadn't been in analysis—all those years, I wouldn't have been prepared for it. It threw me over that ridge where now I have been able to travel recently. I get thrown, but I can do it. Group work helped me with that."

Miss Previn says that writing the songs was a catharsis for her. "When I write the words to the angry ones, the ones that are filled with fear or rage as opposed to the ones with a sense of beauty or love, it is very traumatic for me. I can feel a lot of the initial primal pain that caused the idea to rise."

"What I do later is, I put a very simple, consciously light, straightforward melody to them. If I put a heavy melody—two negatives cancel each other out.

"I think most creativity is a seam that splits. I think creation erupts and consequently I think it is the result of pressure. People say, 'a burst of creativity creativity.' I think letting it out is a relief. Therefore, I would say probably rage and violence are forms of negative creativity. They are release of the pressure that is built up—and it comes out in another form."

Miss Previn thinks that her songs are a catharsis for the listener, too. "A child says, 'Scare me again,' to the father who jumps out at him. Nursery rhymes have violence in them. 'She cut off their tails with a carving knife.'"

"If you go back to essentials, we are all grown-up children and we carry with us all those roots. When something is frightening and we're older, we don't have those releases."

"My songs are like nursery rhymes. Songs about madness, masturbation, incest, cracking up, dying. People laugh and say, 'Oh, scare me again.' One critic said I write songs about things most people think should be left unsaid. I don't think anything needs to be left unsaid about the human condition."

"Later on, people say, 'Well, I do that too and if somebody sings about it openly on a record, then I'm not alone. I think part of the reason I wrote these songs was to say, 'You're not alone.'"

"You know the song, 'Screaming in the Car'—I used to do that and never tell anyone. I felt if I did, I would be put away. I have been put away—locked in—or had myself locked in, several times."

"I was weighed down with the burden of the terror of shutting the windows and driving and screaming in the car and I decided to lighten the load by getting it out in a humorous way. Since that song, not only have I had letters from strangers, saying, 'I do that too,' but I've had responses from people I've known for years, and it's made us closer. One friend took private flying lessons so he could scream in the air. One girl told me she'd turn on the water faucets in the bathroom to drown out the noise and yell at herself. 'You're fat.'"

Miss Previn says that people ask her if she'll marry again. "I can't say 'never' to anything. I'm aware of surprises; each day is an amazement and wonder to me. But I feel now I would never want to marry again. It's a ritual I've had. I'm not that interested in it."

Usually, she says, she distills songs in her mind a long time before she writes them.

Her other LPs are "Mythical Kings and Iguanas" on Mediasarts and "Reflections in a Mud Puddle" and "Mary C. Brown and the Hollywood Sign" on United Artists.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Do they or don't they? Local motorcycle policemen apparently will never tell if the rumors are true that they wear pantyhose in the winter to keep them warm. The suspicion began after one policeman resisted nurses who tried to remove his trousers in a hospital to treat a leg injury.

Air Conditioners Now Noise Rated

By CARLTON SMITH

It's hard on the family nerves, as well as the family finances, to spend several hundred dollars on air conditioning the house only to find that the noise is driving everybody crazy.

Maybe only you—sometimes you, and the neighbors as well, when outside units used for central air-conditioning are noisy.

It's cheaper to prevent this than to correct it, and homeowners can save both dollars and annoyance by learning how to make use of the new "sound rating number" (SRN) system recently adopted by the air conditioning industry.

Sound rating numbers are now found on outdoor condenser units of "split" cooling systems, and on "single package" systems, which bear the blue and white ARI Sound Certificate Seal of the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute.

As the engineers of this industry have discovered, measuring noise is not as simple as one might think. The number of decibels, by itself, doesn't tell you everything you want to know about noise.

"Some sounds, such as a vibration or a screech, may be low in volume but still be very annoying, while others may be loud but relatively pleasant," the ARI explains. The SRN rating is a measure of both the volume and the quality of the sound produced by the unit.

Your installer (if he knows his business) can crank the SRN figure into a formula developed by the institute. It takes into account the distance of the unit from walls and other sound barriers, and tells the installer how many decibels of sound will be produced in, say, the patio area where you grill hamburgers, or at your lot line.

Fences, or enclosures using various materials, and even plants in some types of installations, can be used to control noise, or make it turn corners.

When existing systems are noisy, the ARI offers these suggestions:

If the cooled air entering the room has a whistling sound, it's probably a sign that either the ducts are too small, or the fan too large.

If the annoyance consists of vibrations, or you hear equipment sounds, the ducts may have been installed without the full 90-degree turn that's needed to serve as a sound trap.

You may also get equipment noise and vibrations if

Phillips To Face Non-Royal Court

LONDON (AP)—Lt. Mark Phillips, engaged to Princess Anne, is being invited to appear at a court of law for an alleged traffic offense, police said.

He will be summoned to go before a court of law for an alleged traffic offense, police said.

They said the 24-year-old lieutenant will be prosecuted before a Salisbury County court on a later date. They said the alleged offense involved a traffic accident on April 7, a week before Phillips was secretly engaged to the 22-year-old daughter of Queen Elizabeth II.

She is an active member of the Pampa Retired Teachers Association, Ladies Auxiliary of Veterans of World War I, and is a past state president of that organization. She is a member of the Pampa VFW Auxiliary and the Worthwhile Home Demonstration.

Mrs. Beard's hobbies are knitting and crocheting, especially for her granddaughters, and cooking and reading.

Her husband Jesse E. Beard, a retired Cabot employee, served with the First Division in World War I and three years ago was awarded a Purple Heart with two clusters for services rendered in combat in major battles of that war.

They have two sons, Charles Beard, a scout executive living in Beaumont and Ronald Beard, an employe for Cabot Machinery Division, now living in Miami, Tex., and four granddaughters, Charlotte Ann and Donna Ruth of Beaumont and Vicki Lynn and Elizabeth Anne of Miami. "Our pride and joy," stated Mrs. Beard.

Give the same recipe to two cooks and one may produce a superb flavorful dish and the other a disaster. That is the difference between a good cook and one not so good. Experience helps. The first attempt at a new recipe is not always as successful as later efforts. The same applies to cooking with limited amounts of fat. There are some tricks to it. The experienced cook will have no trouble converting to low-fat cooking, but the less experienced, who depends on frozen food packages and prepared foods and who compensates for a lack of skill with copious amounts of butter, will need some help in order to achieve satisfactory results. None of the principles involved is difficult; it is just a matter of knowing a few secrets and then applying them.

The basic elements of good cooking apply equally well to low-fat cooking. Rules of measuring, timing, and temperature should be observed carefully, and all ingredients should be of good quality if you want to be sure of achieving good results. Tastes vary, of course, especially in the use of herbs and spices, but I suggest that you follow the exact measurements given in recipes the first time you try them. The second time, you can adjust the measurements or ingredients to suit yourself. Timing is also a matter of exact measurement, and it often makes the difference between a perfect dish and a disaster.

I recommend the use of a kitchen timer, but I also suggest that you learn how to adjust the timing and temperature of the recipes to the particular behavior of your stove. The wise cook will use a variety of thermometers to tell the actual temperature inside the oven (which is often much different from the gauge outside the door and a frequent cause of improper roasting or baking) and to tell the temperature inside the meat, fish, or poultry.

In addition to these common-sense rules, which apply to all kinds of cookery, there are a number of special low-fat cooking techniques that you can adapt to your own methods. There are also certain ingredients that can be substituted for the fat-rich foods commonly used in thickening sauces and gravies or in flavoring bland dishes.

You will find that nonfat milk powder, for instance, is an essential part of low-fat cooking and an invaluable aid to almost every kind of dish you will want to make. The powder can be used to thicken sauce or gravy, although in adding milk to a hot liquid, it is often better to mix the powder first in a little cold water and to add the milk to the hot liquid slowly, stirring constantly. Even so, it may be necessary for you to use a rotary beater to eliminate the lumps.

Gelatin is often neglected as an aid in cooking. Not only can it be used in making desserts and salads, it can also be employed as a thickener because of its ability to cause jelling. It is an excellent fat-free source of protein coming from the tendons and bones of animals. It can be used in making nonfat mayonnaise and in making ice cream and other frozen desserts, as well as foods that are served at room temperature.

In many standard recipes, egg white can be substituted for whole eggs. It improves the texture of baked products and has many other uses in nonfat cooking. As a general rule, use two egg whites for every whole egg listed in a recipe. If stiffly beaten whites are called for, the other ingredients must be folded gently into the egg whites without further beating if the light texture is to be maintained.

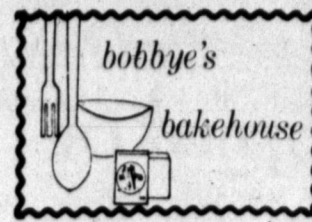

calories, and fat calories especially, are the sauces and gravies used to dress up meats, vegetables, and salad. It is therefore a good idea to study your methods of preparing sauces and to adjust them to the techniques for low-fat cooking. It is important to know, for instance, that excellent sauces can be made without any fat at all, and that it is care and skill that guarantee the success of a sauce rather than the use of butter or other fats. Natural starch, such as that found in cereals and vegetables, or in flour and cornstarch, is not easily digested and has an unappetizing flavor when raw. Starch cooked with moisture softens, as the inside of a potato softens. When cooked in dry heat, starch will break down into dextrine, which has a sweeter flavor. The crust of bread, for instance, tastes different from the inner loaf because the moisture on the outside has evaporated and the starch there has been converted to dextrine. Inadequately cooked starches—in sauces, vegetables, or breads—are usually what causes failure, either in texture or in flavor.

The use of fat is an aid in cooking starches, since the fat helps to separate the small starch granules to make a smoother sauce. But there is a way of obtaining the same results without the fat, simply add about a fourth of the water called for in the recipe to the starch, stirring constantly. Be sure you add the water, which should be cold, very gradually so that lumps do not form. Then add the cold solution to the rest of the ingredients in the recipe, a little at a time. If lumps do result, just strain the sauce. In cooking sauces, it is a good idea to use a double boiler, because the temperature will remain constant, just below boiling, and there is much less chance of burning or lumping. Allow about 10 minutes for cooking flour sauces, and longer for cornstarch sauces. An additional five minutes will be necessary if a glass double boiler is used.

When starch is converted to dextrine, it loses its thickening power. For this reason, a larger quantity of browned flour is needed for thickening than white flour. Acid mixtures such as fruit juice or vinegar, which tend to convert starch to dextrine, decrease its thickening ability. Gelatin is a good thickener when acid liquids are used (with the exception of raw pineapple). Pectin is another useful thickening agent, and egg whites can also be used for this purpose.

The key to flavorful dishes in low-fat cooking is often the skillful use of flavorings, herbs, and spices. It is no accident that the spice world has fewer problems with atherosclerosis, heart attacks, and other ill characteristics of the fat-eating world. Since many of these flavorful agents common in Asia, South America, and the Mediterranean region were not natural products of northern Europe, people in these countries learned to depend upon butter and meat fats for seasoning. But vegetables need not be flavored by butter to be tasty, and the flavor of meat can be perked up with spices rather than thick gravies. A basic white sauce is an excellent vehicle for flavoring agents, be they spices, herbs, vegetable flavorings, seafood, or sweet syrups. If the sauce is flat, don't blame it on the absence of fat. The more he learns about spices, herbs, and flavoring agents the greater the cook's versatility.

If you wish to avoid fat in foods it is self-defeating to cook foods in pans that have been greased or oiled. There are a number of ways this can be avoided. There is a whole line of utensils that have been coated with Teflon or similar substances. With care, you can use these to fry foods successfully without grease or oil.

LEMON SHERBET
5 Lemons
2 Cups Water
2 Cups Sugar
2 Cups Pineapple Juice
4 Cups Cream
Green Food Coloring

Cut lemons in quarters and boil in water with sugar for about 20 minutes. Pour off liquid; allow to cool. Squeeze lemons to extract all of the juice. Add pineapple juice and chill. Whip cream and add a few drops of food coloring to obtain desired shade. Fold into juice mixture. Place in freezing unit and stir twice before sherbet freezes to serving consistency. Twelve servings. Perfect with summer salads, too.

One of the first things one notices in a "backward country" is that children are still obeying their parents!

Chopped fresh dill makes a wonderful addition to a sour cream dressing that is to be served over cucumber and lettuce salad.

Urban Woman Describes Life In Middle Of 'German America'

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

Starting as a trickle in 1834 and breaking into a rush by 1844, immigrants from Germany poured into Texas until they became the single largest European group in the state.

The 1900 census lists 157,272 natives of Germany or persons of German stock in Texas.

They quickly gained the reputation in most circles of being so practical and so wrapped up in work that they were sober-sided, humorless persons. Fine citizens but not very fun-loving.

That's not the way Vera Flach found them. They shook up her mind.

She was shocked about a lot of things when she arrived in Texas Hill Country.

The background of her disquiet is understandable. She grew up in Chicago as a thoroughly urban woman.

She later was a young teacher in Texas Woman's University—then the College of Industrial Arts—a thoroughly feminine place.

Suddenly she was plunged into what she describes as a purely man's world.

This came with her marriage to Ernst Kapp Flach, great-grandson of a scholarly German immigrant.

The Flachs moved to his ranch near Comfort, Tex., in the middle of German country. Surprises came fast to this young woman from the city.

Mrs. Flach is the author of a book just published, "A Yankee in German America" (Naylor, San Antonio, $5.95).

It is one of the funniest books—not the big laugh, but the chuckle kind—to come out of Texas in a long time.

She was thrust into a world where the man was dominant, but where there was love.

It was a world of guns, hunting, crops, animals and weather.

And above everything else, it was a world of eating. For example, her experience with thresher crews:

"In those days there were 18 to 20 men and seven wagons. We fed them three meals and two lunches every day. They were supposed to set up at our ranch for two and a half days to finish the 175 acres in cultivation. If it rained, they slept or played cards and A.T.E." The capitalization is Mrs. Flach's.

She had to learn about women's work.

Take this description: "There was a gadget—a crockery affair two feet tall and eight inches in diameter that had a lid with a hole in it. A wooden plunger with a disk full of holes on the end of it could be inserted in the hole."

Know what she was describing? A churn.

She never did learn to make it work.

Mrs. Flach was amazed that her husband and neighbors could eat so much.

"Now I was to cope with meat in the raw, not in a neat package from the butcher shop," she wrote in introducing a chapter on hog slaughtering.

The essence of it was that she was swamped with fresh meat. "It makes me weary even to write about it," she says.

Germans are great sausage makers. Yet, "I have never eaten a bit of sausage after I saw it made," she says.

She adds: "Like the Chicago packinghouses, my German-American family did not permit any waste. All the grease which accumulated, including rancid lard, was used to make soap. All the women made soap. I knew one who, a few years later, was listed in Dun and Bradstreet. She made soap too. It's thrifty to make your own soap," Papa said.

Yet reading Mrs. Flach's book, you sometimes feel that this was nothing but party country—except for preparing food.

The men had their shooting clubs, their hunts, singing clubs, and just plain clubs. They never lacked for close friends who dropped in anytime and who turned out always to be related although sometimes distantly.

The women had their clubs, too—so many that some persons grew weary of the round of social events.

And the beer flowed.

Germans from the very start were described by others in Texas by such terms as industrious, orderly, patient, untiring, skilled, energetic, persevering, thrifty.

An 1834 Galveston newspaper chided Anglos for being inferior to the German immigrants in these traits.

Mrs. Flach, certainly in a position to know, found all these laudatory terms were true.

The big rush of Germans to Texas was started by a group of promoters, largely German noblemen who never saw the state or the republic.

The organization was known as Adels-Verein and is credited with bringing 7,380 Germans to Texas between 1844 and 1846.

The company went broke in 1847. It didn't have enough money to meet its promises to the colonizers. Its land titles were of questionable authenticity also.

And strung out between seacoast and inland northwest to Mason were these thousands of

Committee Guests At Luncheon Meet

Members of the Gray County Historical Survey Committee were guests at a luncheon meeting in McLean recently. The meeting was in the Hospitality Room of the American National Bank with 25 members and guests attending.

After the business session guests were taken on a tour of the Alanreed - McLean Museum.

County survey members of McLean and Alanreed were hosts for the affair.

The following members and guests were present: County Judge Don Cain, Commissioners Joe Clarke, Don Hinton, Mary Dwyer, and Jim McCracken, County Chairman Mrs. Fred Thompson.

Mrs. Alice Short, Mrs. J.C. Pattillo, Mrs. Jerry Bond, Mrs. George Ingram, Mrs. L.B. Haggard, Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Davis, Mrs. Clinton Henry, Mrs. J.B. White, John C. Haynes, Mrs. Clyde Fatheree, Mrs. Clifton E. Vincent, Joe W. Shelton, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Thut, Mrs. Vera F. Back, Mrs. Mona Blanton, Mrs. Linda Haynes and Mr. and Mrs. Luther Wellborn.

Named because the residents were so well educated in the university tradition. It lasted 20 years.

Finally the very high degree of education became eroded—it wasn't necessary or even useful on the frontier.

Still there was a great deal of culture, much of it the do-it-yourself type. It was unsettling, Mrs. Flach says, to find the local theater group doing an English drawing room comedy in German accents.

Mrs. Flach has been a part of the Texas German community for 50 years.

For she wrote this charming book although now blind.

1040 U.S. Individual Income Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

- Q. I have just sold my house at a profit. What are the tax consequences?
- A. The tax on any profit from selling your old home is postponed if, within one year before or one year after the sale, you buy and occupy a new residence costing as much or more than the "adjusted sales price" of your old residence.
- If you are 65 or older before the date of the sale and have owned and occupied the property as your principal residence for at least five of the eight years before the sale, you may choose to treat any profit as tax free if the adjusted sales price is $20,000 or less. You may treat a proportionate part of the profit as tax free if the adjusted sales price is more than $20,000. This choice to exclude profit on the sale of a residence from gross income, can be made only once in a lifetime.
- For more details, see IRS Publication 523, "Tax Information on Selling Your Home." It's available free by dropping a postcard to your Internal Revenue district office.
- Q. I am a state government employee. Are contributions to my retirement fund taxable when they are withheld or after retirement when paid out to me?
- A. It is the IRS position that the portion of a government employee's compensation that is withheld and contributed to a government retirement fund is taxable in the year withheld just as if it were paid to the employee directly in that year.
- Q. Are proceeds of a life insurance policy taxable?
- A. Life insurance proceeds paid to you because of the death of the insured are not taxable income, unless the policy was transferred to you for something of value. This is true, even if the proceeds were paid under an accident or health insurance policy or an endowment contract.
- Q. My dependent son wants to borrow some money to pay for his college tuition. Would I get a greater tax benefit if I borrowed the money and paid his tuition?
- A. Possibly. To continue to claim your son as a dependent, you must furnish more than one-half of his total support for the year. Amounts borrowed or spent on a dependent's education must be included in total support. Thus, if your son makes the loan, this amount will count towards the sum he furnishes for his own support; if you make the loan, it will count toward the amount you furnish for his support.
- Incidentally, if you make the loan, you can deduct the interest payments.

FOR MONDAY

Train Committee Slates Gun Talk

The federal government's program for control and confiscation of privately owned firearms will be the subject of a speech by Charles Smith, nationally known lecturer from Watts, Calif., at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Cornado Inn.

CHARLES SMITH
...to speak on guns

Smith charges, "The current wave of anti-gun hysteria is being deliberately promoted to deceive the American people into accepting the idea that gun registration will end, or greatly reduce, crime, violence, and Communist terrorism."

The Nixon administration is being less than truthful with Americans, when it promotes legislation which would require registration and subsequent confiscation of all rifles, pistols and shotguns as the answer to our problems," Smith says.

"Repeat a lie often enough and it will soon find acceptance." A native of Pittsburgh, Penn., Smith moved to Los Angeles in 1960 and was soon recruited into several groups which claimed to be promoting freedom and civil rights. He points out that many Americans, both black and white, have been deceived by revolutionary groups behind a facade of high-sounding principles and slogans.

Smith adds Americans are being deceived in much the same way into accepting federal laws requiring registration of all handguns, to be followed by another law banning them.

Under the second law, he says, all citizens would be required to surrender their pistols to the government — or possibly a federal agent would knock on their door some night and demand that they surrender their weapons or go to jail.

In this fashion, Smith warns, the dreaded "knock on the door" in the middle of the night could become reality.

The complete disarmament of the American people is the objective of the federal government, Smith claims. And this goal will become reality unless there is sufficient public opposition.

Under these conditions, only government agents and those favored by the federal bureaucrats would have guns, he says. Smith insists Americans should realize gun confiscation is always a necessary step in the creation of a totalitarian state.

Because of Smith's concern for the future of America and its free institutions, he is touring the country with this message.

Tickets for this engagement, open to the public, are $2 for adults and $1 for students. They can be obtained at B & B Pharmacy or Hi-Land Pharmacy, or at the door the night of the speech.

On this date: In 1654, Louis XIV was crowned king of France at Reims.

In 1769, Daniel Boone began his exploration of the Kentucky wilderness.

In 1776, Richard Henry Lee of Virginia introduced the first resolution for American independence at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia.

In 1862, the United States and Britain signed a treaty for suppression of the slave trade.

In 1940, in World War II, organized resistance against German invaders ended in Norway after 62 days of bitter fighting.

It was Chagall's first visit to his native Russia in more than 50 years and the show in his honor broke with government policy against deviations from Soviet realism in art.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Watching, Reporting

The history of American journalism suggests that any newspaper which is not most of the time being threatened, harassed and at least verbally assaulted by government simply isn't doing its job. — Rep. Edward Mezvinsky, D-Iowa

Thanks Representative Mezvinsky we needed that. The press in this country has taken more abuse than has been inflicted with more accusation has been held up to ridicule more in the past few years than probably at any other period in history. So when a man in high office comes along and says that the press isn't doing its job unless it is being verbally assaulted, then we thank the Lord for small blessings.

This is not to say that much of the criticism that has come to newspapers and other members of the media hasn't landed where it should have. Some of those things which were said in times past by Vice President Agnew found quick and accurate target. The arrows still quiver and the effect will be long lasting.

A Boulder balanced on a hill takes only a small shove to create countless tons of momentum as it cascades down into the valley. The press is not nearly so precariously perched but the shove that Agnew gave it seemed to be a signal for many others who didn't like what they heard or read. So they turned their wrath on the medium instead of the message.

The Nixon Administration has been a prime mover of the press ever since Mr. Nixon ran for president the first time and lost. He seems to have harbored a germ of distaste for a press that was inclined toward criticism of him. Perhaps that is a natural and understandable reaction.

Take Another Look

Before bankrupting ourselves to buy Utopia from the federal government, it might be a good idea to do a little research into the matter of whether we would really be happy in a restricted and controlled environment.

Sweden is one of the testing places of advanced social theory. The people should not have any great anxiety over their material security. Social security is total. Slums are nonexistent. The system may take a major part of your income for taxes, but it will not let you starve, and it will see that you have a suitable roof over your head. There is no real deprivation. Education is available to all. Yet, with all this, people are not happy. Sweden's Department of Social Affairs has reported 25 per cent of the population in need of psychiatric treatment, and the cost of such treatment, it is stated, accounts for 30 per cent of all medical expenses in Sweden. Alcoholism and suicide rates are sharply up.

Although the problem of mental illness in Sweden has been identified, no one seems to know how to go about curing it. The only thing sure is that state-provided Utopian security apparently doesn't satisfy all human needs — at least, not in Sweden.

There is a principle which is a bar against all information, which is proof against argument, and which cannot fail to keep a man in everlasting ignorance. That principle is, "Condemnation before investigation."

New Era Ahead? Watch Out!

By MARILYN MANION

Even if you're a male chauvinist and a non-supporter of women's lib, you've got to admit that the ladies have a few legitimate beefs. One of them is that they do not, on the average, get equal pay for equal work.

But that reason enough to support the Equal Rights Amendment? No, indeed, says a member of the Illinois House of Representatives, Mr. Henry J. Hyde. Speaking over the Manion Forum Radio Program, Hyde warned American women that ERA would take away more rights than it would bestow. To wit:

"Everything that women want now — such as equal pay for equal work, equal opportunity for promotion, equal access to colleges and that sort of thing — these things are available under the law now.

"Having the law and enforcing the law are different matters, but they are enforceable. They are in the law now and I cannot conceive of one single benefit that women would get if the so-called Equal Rights Amendment is adopted or is ratified. I can think of a lot of things they will lose, but there is nothing they will get that doesn't already accrue to them under existing laws.

"As far as equal pay for equal work is concerned, we have a Federal statute — the Equal Pay Statute of 1963 — Title 7 of that act. There are many laws that require equal pay for equal work.

"The American Telephone and Telegraph Company recently reached a settlement that will amount to 15 million dollars in back pay to women who were not being treated fairly. Some statistics indicate that about 45 million dollars has been awarded in back pay to women — over a hundred thousand women — in the last five or six years.

"What would happen to women if the Equal Rights Amendment were ratified? Take Social Security. The benefits now accrue to women, if they are widowed, at 62. This, of course, will be a distinction that will be eliminated. In addition, insurance premiums are cheaper for women because of their greater longevity and because their driving records indicate they are better drivers. But this will have to be eliminated insofar as governmental regulation is concerned because it will be an unfair distinction.

"What this means is that women will have to pay higher insurance premiums than they do now.

"In another area: Right now, almost every State in the Union provides, either through the common law or statutory law, that the husband has the primary right of support of the family. This will no longer exist and the women would be equally responsible with their husbands to support the family.

"This may seem innocuous, but once day care centers become available for all people on an equal basis, which is certainly one of the co-aims of the militant women's organizations, then a woman really can be forced to put her children in a day care center and go out and earn half of the money to support a family. Many women are not trained to go to work. Many of them married as young girls; they raise two or three children and then if the husband decides to trade her in on a newer model, the poor woman is left to try and support herself on the job market without any training and experience. This is a chaotic situation."

So who needs ERA?

Which side is the CIA on? That, I think, is a fair question. The Soviets and the Red Chinese know. But the American people don't. The only secrets our cloak and dagger bureaucrats have are the secrets withheld from the American people. Suddenly everything is short. And getting shorter. Lettuce, gasoline, plywood, onions, beef, artichokes, milk, wheat, paper. Why? The answer is simple: It was planned that way. The answer? Treason. Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of these short-supply goods have been given to our Communist enemies. New Move to Block Import
Of South Rhodesia Chrome

By Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — A well-financed, internationally-supported pressure drive is aggressively underway in Congress to reimpose in the U.S. the United Nations embargo on Rhodesian metallurgical chrome.

Fronting this high-powered operation are three leading liberal activists:

—Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-F.L., Minn., former Vice President, voluble champion of a wide-ranging variety of causes, from busing to achieve racial equality to promoting low-cost, high-protein products, and chairman of the Foreign Relations subcommittee on African affairs.

—Rep. Donald Fraser, D-F.L., Minn., ardent McGovernite, militant reformer, recently elected head of the New Left Americans for Democratic Action, and chairman of the Foreign Affairs subcommittee on international organizations and movements.

—Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., unannounced 1976 presidential candidate, canny crusader for various voter-oriented programs, and chairman of the Judiciary subcommittee on administrative practice and procedure.

Humphrey and Fraser are sponsoring the bill to repeal the measure passed by Congress in 1971 junking UN sanctions against Rhodesian chrome.

Kennedy, who fired the opening gun in this scuttling drive with a long, obviously ghostwritten speech, and a score of other liberal Senators and Congressmen are listed as co-sponsors. Significant among them are:

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., who has refused to join Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and 75 other Senators in advocating a proposal barring most favorite-nation treatment to countries that deny their citizens the right or opportunity to emigrate by imposing the payment of more than nominal taxes, fees or other charges; Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., lone black member of that chamber, and frankly black-minded on all issues; and Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., discarded by McGovern last year as running mate after disclosure of mental treatment, who faces an uncertain reelection campaign next year and is already furiously electioneering.

Who's Behind It? Forcefully backing the congressional drive is a large, well-heeled lobby comprised of a variety of domestic and foreign organizations, interests and forces — foremost among them black African states and black activist leaders and elements in the U.S.

Significantly indicative of the key importance of that background factor is the weighty stress placed in the repeal drive on the racial aspect of the controversy. It figures prominently in the press releases and other propaganda sent to members of Congress and newsmen, in a 96-page so-called "research report" titled "Rhodesian Chrome," widely distributed by the Student & Young Adult Division of the United Nations Association of the U.S.A., and in Sen. Kennedy's ground-laying address.

Following is an illustrative paragraph:

"Black workers in Southern Rhodesia are under the total control of the white ruling minority. These workers are forbidden to bargain for decent wages, or adequate working conditions. Wages, therefore, are maintained at starvation levels. The Southern Rhodesian regime not only subsidizes ferrochrome production with this low-cost labor force, but ferrochrome producers get special freight rates on the government-owned railways. As a result, labor costs at every stage of the delivery process reflect the oppressively engineered laws which intimidate and exploit black workers."

Sen. Harry Byrd, Ind.-Va., author of the measure that repealed the United Nations embargo on Rhodesian chrome, flatly denies race is involved in the issue.

He "forcefully notes" it played no role in the two-year fight to enact his legislation. Throughout that long struggle against the stiffest kind of opposition, including the State Department, two factors determined the outcome:

(1) The UN sanctions against Rhodesia had compelled the U.S. to become dependent on Russia for metallurgical chrome essential for key weapons production; (2) at least nine nations with delegations on the Security Council, which imposed the embargo, were violating it by secretly importing Rhodesian chrome.

Irrefutable evidence is that Rhodesia has steadily increased its exports of chrome and other strategic materials since the UN crackdown.

Russia, foremost beneficiary of the embargo, played a leading role in voting it.

How richly this paid off for the Soviet Union is graphically shown by the following:

Prior to the UN sanctions, Rhodesia was the largest U.S. source of metallurgical chrome — essential in the manufacture of jet aircraft, missiles and nuclear submarines. The U.S. has no production of this indispensable ore.

Following the embargo, Russia became the principal U.S. supplier, with exports soaring to 60 per cent of this country's chrome requirements.

Simultaneously, the price soared from $30 to $72 a ton. In 1971, Russian shipments amounted to more than 400,000 tons at $72 a ton. This huge increase cost U.S. taxpayers more than $15 million.

Since Congress enacted Sen. Byrd's measure voiding the UN sanctions on chrome, Rhodesia has again become this country's main provider of this strategically essential ore. Upwards of 500,000 tons have been imported.

Reimposing the UN embargo is blasted by Sen. Byrd as senseless and self-destructive.

To undo this sound and justified action of Congress just doesn't "make sense," says the Virginian. "By observing the UN embargo, the U.S. was forced to import Russian chrome — a perfectly absurd situation in view of the fact that the Soviet Union is our major military threat."

Dear Abby

Victim would rather not testify in court

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago, while my husband was in the service, a man broke into my apartment and attacked me sexually. He had a knife and I was terrified so I made no effort to stop him.

Now my husband is home. Two weeks ago I received word that they caught the man, and I am subpoenaed to testify. It was dark and the man wore a mask, so I wouldn't recognize him if I saw him. This man assaulted several other women, so I am not the only witness available.

I can't see what possible good my testimony would do. I am a very nervous person and this whole thing has upset me terribly.

My husband knew that a man had broken in, but I didn't tell him any of the details as I didn't want to upset him.

Abby, I don't want my husband in the courtroom, but he insists upon being there. Is there some way I can get out of testifying? It's not just having my husband there, it's having to talk about what happened in front of other people in a courtroom. I'm sorry now I called the police.

I'm 21, and should probably have a more mature attitude, but I can't help how I feel. Please help me.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: You must appear in court when subpoenaed or you could be cited for contempt of court. You can, however, ask the prosecutor to ask the judge to clear the courtroom while you are testifying. Unless the defendant's attorney objects to this procedure [and he is not likely to object in a sex case] the court will be cleared of everyone except the judge, the lawyers, the witnesses, and the defendant. That should take care of your problem.

DEAR ABBY: When traveling by plane, I invariably get the seat directly in front of a child who repeatedly kicks the seat in front of him. His mother can be sitting right beside him, but she seems unconcerned. Dirty looks don't help.

Should I ask the mother to please tell her child to stop kicking me, or ask the child to please stop it?

IRKED IN VIRGINIA

DEAR IRKED: Ask the stewardess to handle it and you'll have no kick coming.

DEAR ABBY: You told a mother whose daughters needed to wear bras but refused to "drop the whole thing." Well, if they don't wear bras, that's exactly what will happen. The "whole thing" will drop.

For proof, one need only look at pictures of the women in African tribes who never wear brassieres. The American Medical Society even came out with a statement saying that the ligaments which hold the breasts firm and erect will stretch unless properly supported, and once the breasts sag, the damage is permanent.

I have put that message into verse:
"I think it is scandalous
That things should be so pendulous.
If a woman's rag, a hank of hair, and a bone
Let the 'rag' be a bra—for better muscle tone."

Double-Ring Service Unites Miss Macartney-Danny Harrison

Lamar Full Gospel Assembly was the setting May 25, at 6 p.m. for the exchange of nuptial vows by Miss Susan Anne Macartney and Danny D. Harrison.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin S. Macartney, 456 Hughes, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Harrison, 1035 Duncan St., both of Pampa.

THE CEREMONY

The Rev. Gene Allen, pastor, officiated for the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Gene Allen, organist, accompanied Kip Watkins and Mrs. Barbara Cox, sister of the bridegroom, as they sang, "For All We Know," and "The Wedding Prayer," as the couple approached the kneeling bench.

The church was decorated with two basket arrangements of white gladioli with blue and silver ribbon. Three gold candelabra holding blue tapers entwined with greenery completed the setting.

THE BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father with the "her mother and I" avowal, the bride wore a formal Juliet-styled gown of white brocade with an overlay of chiffon, designed and created by her grandmother, Mrs. H. E. Kennedy. Her mantilla of bridal illusion, edged in lace, was attached to a lace Dutch boy headpiece and she carried a bouquet of white and blue baby carnations.

She carried out the tradition of something old, a brooch, a gift of the bridegroom, which had been worn in weddings of his family, a new wedding gown, a borrowed ring belonging to the matron of honor, and a blue garter and a sixpence in her shoe.

ATTENDANTS

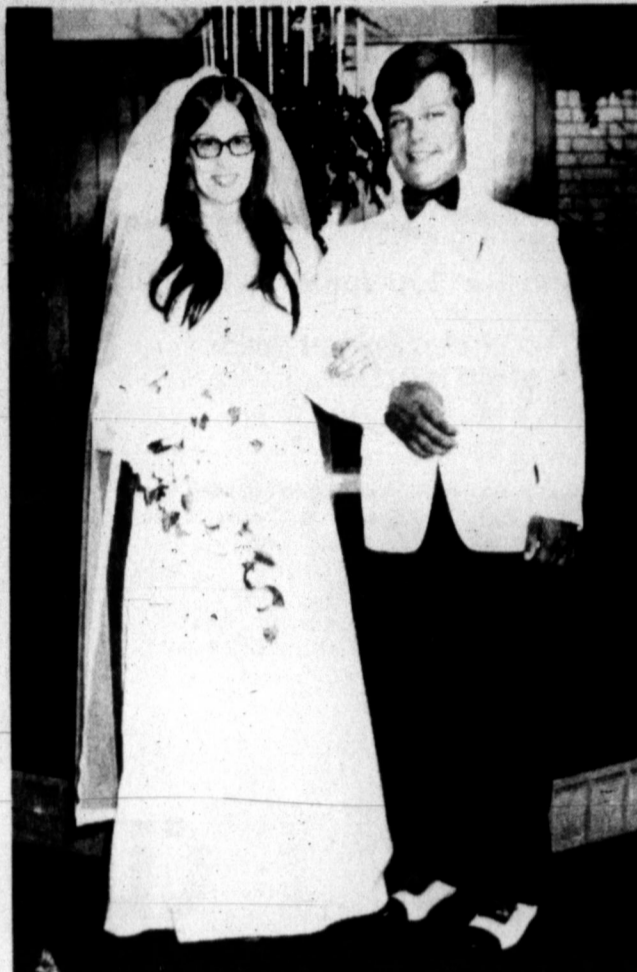

Mrs. Barbara Belflower of Amarillo was matron of honor. She was attired in a floor-length blue dress of whipped cream trimmed with white lace, fashioned with an empire waistline. Her flowers were white and blue gladioli.

Ringbearer was Scott Thompson, nephew of the bride, and Misty Dawn Hurt, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Lighting the candles were Tommy Bruce and Steve Thurman, both of Pampa.

Jody Daniels of Pampa was best man and ushers were Michael Macartney, brother of the bride, and O. C. Cox, Jr., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, both of Pampa.

MOTHERS

The bride's mother wore a formal length light blue double-knit gown trimmed with lace.

MR. AND MRS. DANNY D. HARRISON
...nee Miss Susan Anne Macartney

The bridegroom's mother wore a formal-length royal blue double-knit gown with lace sleeves. Both wore pink baby rose corsages.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the chapel. The serving table was covered with a white lace cloth over blue, and the bride's bouquet was used for the centerpiece. Crystal and white milk glass appointments were used.

The three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with blue roses and silver bells, was topped with cherubs. The cake was served by Shirley Dawes of Amarillo and punch by Sandra Hill of Canadian, Pamela and Paula Harrison, sisters of the bridegroom of Pampa, registered guests.

For the wedding trip to Amarillo, the bride wore a two-piece dress of royal blue styled with long sleeves, ruffled collar and sleeveless light blue overvest. She lifted the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple plan to reside in Lawton, Okla.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Pampa High School and previously was employed by Marie Foundations. The bridegroom attended Pampa schools and is presently serving with the US Army and stationed at Fort Sill, Lawton, Okla.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS

The bride was honored with a bridal shower at Lamar Full Gospel Church hosted by Mmes. Mildred Cunningham, June Thurman, Doreene Bruce, Kay Macartney, Pam Whitney and Fannie Kennedy.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS

Attending from out-of-town were Mrs. Clifford Hill and Sandra, Canadian, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Belflower, Amarillo, Mr. and Mrs. John Maise, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Maise, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Maise and Shawn, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hurt and Misty Dawn, Oklahoma City, and Mr. and Mrs. V. I. Cunningham, Berger, grandparents of the bridegroom.

Fair to Foul

The quick switch from fair to foul weather is an easy one with today's rain-shine gear. One of the prettiest styles is smock rain shirt and matching hat in blue looking pastels.

Rebels Open Year With 7-6 Victory

The Pampa Rebels American Legion baseball team opened its season on the road last night, taking a 7-6 victory from the Perryton Legion team.

Perryton scored two unearned runs in the bottom of the first inning and held on to that lead until the Rebels tied the game 2-2 in the top of the fourth.

Pampa's runs in that inning came after right fielder Tony Frogge got on by a walk, was moved to third on a single by Terry Moore and scored on a wild pitch by Perryton hurler Dan Coulter.

Pampa third baseman Kim Snell, who also walked, scored on a ground ball by pinch hitter Keith Samples.

The Rebels scored three more runs in the third to go ahead 5-2. Rick Bigham led off the inning and flied out to centerfield.

Rick Musgrave then tripled and was singled home by winning pitcher Gary Davis. Moore came to bat and singled Davis in.

After Moore got to second on a wild pitch, Snell went to the plate and singled him home for the third run.

Pampa got one run in both the sixth and seventh innings to go out front in the game 7-2.

In the sixth, shortstop Toddy Black got on by error and was singled home by Musgrave on a line shot to right field. In the seventh Davis singled, moved to second on a wild pitch, got to third on an error and went home on yet another wild pitch by the Perryton pitcher.

In the bottom of the seventh Perryton fought back to score four runs to close the gap to 7-6 before Pampa's Davis was able to get the side out.

Musgrave led Pampa batters with three hits in three times at bat, including a double and a triple. Davis aided his cause with two hits in four times at bat and Moore went 2 for 3 at the plate.

In going the distance for Pampa, Davis struck out eleven Perryton batters, walked six (one hit by pitch) and gave up six hits.

Pampa got eight hits for its seven runs, committed four errors and left seven men on base.

The Rebels next play Saturday night in a practice game with Canadian at 7:30 p.m. at Optimist Park.

Baseball Roundup

Associated Press Sports Writer

That's quite a leadoff hitter the San Francisco Giants have—14 home runs, 60 runs scored and a .320 batting average.

You'd think that Bobby Bonds would bat third or fifth in the order with that kind of power. So does Bobby Bonds.

"I don't want to lead off, but I will if that's what everyone wants," said Bonds after pacing the Giants to a 9-7 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday night.

Bonds drilled four hits, including a leadoff homer in the first inning, drove in two runs and scored four times, to lead the Giants to their seventh straight National League victory.

In the other National League games, the Chicago Cubs defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4; the Atlanta Braves beat the Montreal Expos 5-3; the Houston Astros nipped the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 and the St. Louis Cardinals scored a 6-3 decision over the San Diego Padres.

In the American League, the Minnesota Twins took a doubleheader from the Cleveland Indians, 7-3 and 13-9; the Boston Red Sox took the Kansas City Royals 5-4; the Baltimore Orioles walloped the Chicago White Sox 14-4; the New York Yankees turned back the Texas Rangers 5-2; the Oakland A's routed the Milwaukee Brewers 11-1 and the California Angels turned back the Detroit Tigers 7-4.

from Jack Aker after giving up a homer to Willie Davis in a three-run Dodger ninth. The save was Aker's 10th of the season.

Darrell Evans and Daye Johnson each slugged two-run homers and Phil Niekro and Danny Frisella combined on a four-hitter to lead Atlanta past Montreal.

Johnson's two-run shot in the eighth snapped a 3-3 tie for the winning runs.

Bob Watson's infield single in the 10th inning gave Houston its victory over Philadelphia. Pinch-hitter Jimmy Stewart triggered the Astros' winning rally with a walk off relief pitcher Barry Lersch. After Jimmy Wynn struck out, Roger Metzger singled Stewart to third.

Jesus Alou walked to load the bases before Watson singled home Stewart with the game-winning run.

Ted Simmons' third hit, a three-run homer, climaxed a five-run outburst in the fifth inning and red-hot St. Louis went on to beat San Diego behind Bob Gibson's five-hitter.

The Cardinals won their fifth straight game and 16th in the last 18. Gibson won his fourth game against six losses while loser Clay Kirby's record dropped to 2-6.

Jose Cardenal drove in three runs with a two-run homer and sacrifice fly in Chicago's victory over Los Angeles. Dodger ace Don Sutton lost to the Cubs for the 15th time in 18 career decisions.

Sutton departed after four straight singles during a four-run Chicago sixth. The winner was Burt Hooton, 6-3, who needed ninth-inning relief help

For IVB Golf Title Nicklaus And Crampton Are Tourney Favorites

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Defending champion J.C. Snead opened defense of the $150,000 IVB Golf Classic today over what he describes as his kind of course, the small but tricky Whitemarsh Valley Country Club layout.

Belmont Stakes Field Goes After Secretariat

NEW YORK (AP) — Knightly Dawn and Pvt. Smiles, two newcomers to the Triple Crown wars, will join in the battle Saturday to stop Secretariat from sweeping the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

This trio and Sham, runnerup in the Derby and Preakness, My Gallant, ninth in the Derby, and Twice a Prince, 12th in the Derby, were expected to be entered today for the 105th running of the 1 1/2-mile Belmont on Saturday at Belmont Park.

Entries were to be made today by 10 a.m. EDT.

If six go to the post at 5:38 p.m. Saturday, the 105th Belmont will be worth $151,200, with $97,720 to the winner. Each starter will carry 126 pounds for the race.

It will be televised nationally by CBS from 5-6 p.m.

Shortly before trainer Frank "Pancho" Martin announced Wednesday he planned to run

The 32-year-old Snead won the $30,000 first prize here last year with a 72-hole score of 282, six under par and the highest winning total in the 10-year history of the tournament. He sought to repeat in a field of 147, including eight of the top ten money winners on the pro golf tour.

Snead decried the popular theory that a course has to be long to be good. "It seems nowadays," he said, "like it's rear back and fire as hard as you can, then go get it, then knock it on a half-acre green, and whoever puts best wins."

Whitemarsh is a 6,708-yard par 36-36-72 course with a number of out-of-bound stakes, plenty of sand, and small greens that require a keen putting touch.

J.C. finished tied for 19th place in last week's Kemper Open. He hasn't won this year, with his best finish a second in the Masters. His last victory was at Whitemarsh.

The IVB—that's for Industrial Valley Bank, the sponsor—tournament drew most of the big money players as a warmup for next week's U.S. Open at Oakland, near Pittsburgh. Even Jack Nicklaus, who always practices the week before a major event, decided to play at Whitemarsh.

"I don't like to play the week before a major championship," said Nicklaus. "But this a little unusual. I haven't played on northern turf all year. I think I need it, and this is the only chance I had."

Bruce Crampton, a three-time winner on this year's tour and runnerup to Nicklaus on the money list with $167,938; Lee Trevino, third in earnings with $146,178; and Tom Weiskopf, fourth with $131,822, all were here seeking the top money as well as warming up for the Open. Actually, 18 of the 22 major tournament winners this year were in the field, including Bob Dickson, Jim Colbert, Chi Chi Rodriguez, John Schlee, Homero Blancas, Hubert Green and Dave Hill.

Merzario Fastest

LE MANS, France (AP) — Italian Arturo Merzario raced to the fastest time in the first practice session for Saturday's 24 hours of Le Mans sports car classic.

Merzario drove the three-litler Ferrari he will share with Brazil's Carlos Pace over the 8.4-mile course in 3 minutes, 37.5 seconds for an average speed of 140.28 miles per hour.

ASK DICK KLEINER

De-Bugging Rock Hudson
By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: I saw a picture of Rock Hudson recently and he looked a lot younger. Is it possible he had a face lift?—FLORENCE SZYMANSKI, Nashville, Tenn.

DEAR MS. SZYMANSKI: Not an entire face-lift, no. He did have an upper-lip-lift—he shaved off his mustache—and he did have some cosmetic surgery, as they call it, around his eyes. The bags were de-bagged.

DEAR DICK: Will that wonderful book, "The Exorcist," be made into a movie? I don't see how it's possible, but I'd sure like to see it.—MARTIN FRANK, New Brunswick, N.J.

DEAR MR. FRANK: It's practically done, although they've been having problems with it. William Friedkin, who made "The French Connection," is directing and because of the problems inherent in the story, the film has been in front of the cameras longer than any picture in recent years—as this is being written, they've been shooting for eight-and-a-half months. It will almost certainly be X-rated, incidentally.

DEAR DICK: I used to love The Monkees, especially David Jones. What's happened to him?—MARILYN RYAN, Fort Worth, Tex.

DEAR MS. RYAN: He's around. He sings at clubs and in concerts, sometimes. But he really would rather act. At the moment, he's appearing with the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera Association in "Oliver!" at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion in LA's Music Center. He's playing The Artful Dodger—and he's good at it, too.

DEAR DICK: I keep hearing reports that my favorite TV show of all time—Star Trek—will be coming back. Is that true?—R. L. MICHAELS, San Francisco

DEAR MR. MICHAELS: It'll be back this coming fall, but not like you and I want it to come back. This new version is animated and it will be on Saturday mornings for the kiddies. It will, however, be produced by Gene Roddenberry, who invented the original, and he tells me the stories will be the same quality as the original series. And he has the voices of all the original cast members he wanted. It's his hope—and mine, and probably yours—that this will spark a real revival of the series.

DEAR DICK: I see CBS will have a "Shaft" series next fall. Will it be as violent and sexy as the "Shaft" movies?—LLOYD FRANCIS, Denver, Colo.

DEAR MR. FRANCIS: No, for two reasons. First, obviously, you can't have that much sex and violence on home screens. Second, it costs money to make violent and sexy movies, and TV's budgets aren't that high. Richard Roundtree says that the series will be different, that he'll play a more humanized Shaft on TV. The head of CBS, Perry Lafferty, says that Shaft will be "a black Mannix." You can rest easy—it'll be just another TV private eye show, no more, no less.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Hal wants a boss to "give" him a good job! But, what can Hal produce that will be salable on the market and "net" enough to furnish his lush salary, meet the heavy overhead and taxes of his employer; then set the boss have enough "net" left over to support his family?

CASE X-528 Hal B., aged 21, is just out of college. "But, Dr. Crane," his irate father protested, "Hal turned down 2 jobs recently. "For he said there was no future in either of them. "So he is stalling around, mooching cigarettes from his older sister, who works as a secretary. "All Hal seems interested in, is dating every night, using his sister's car. "Dr. Crane, what's wrong with Hal?"

ACCESSORIES TO CRIME

Bluntly stated, Hal's dad and sister are accessories to his crime of idleness. First of all, there is no future in ANY job! Memorize that adage. For the future is ALWAYS in the worker who holds that job. Jobs are like rungs on a ladder. They don't move. But a smart worker, with his eyes open and by use of plenty of elbow grease, can take ANY job and move upward. Far too many modern youth are addicts of the false notion that if they just were given a week's expensive exposure to a battery of various aptitude tests, then they'd find the "one and only job" for which they are best fitted. There is no such position! Everybody is able to succeed in many jobs, IF. And that big "IF" means, if he is willing to work hard, keep his output high enough to merit his own pay checks, plus a reasonable profit for his employer. But he should also keep his eyes open for better jobs up ahead, meanwhile preparing for them by night classes or other study. Alas, students and most employees seem to think that "A" grades and big wages or salaries are "given" at the whim of teachers and employers. That's malarky! You must EARN those "A" grades, for teachers rate you on the basis of your own output. Same goes in the labor market. If your output doesn't bring in enough $$$$, when ultimately sold on the competitive market, to warrant your own high wages, plus your share of all the other hidden overhead costs, and then leave a modest profit for the employer, you don't deserve your wages. This concept is, alas, foreign to most Americans, for about 90 percent of all our population have never operated even a popcorn stand at a profit, nor run a farm, professional office, retail store or any other private business. Instead, 90 percent of all voters get a pay check regularly and then take it home, with no concept of "gross" vs. "net." But employers and operators of farms, businesses and other private ventures, are not guaranteed ANY pay checks! Instead, they sweat and worry, trying to meet taxes, plus the red tape government strangulation of small businesses, hoping they'll be able to pay their stockholders maybe 3 percent to 5 percent and then have enough "net" left over to support their own family modestly. The usual wage earners think a grocer pockets ALL the money in the cash register each night, to take home and squander on his family! You high-school teachers should stress "net" vs. "gross" till more voters begin to realize their jobs depend on employers who get no guaranteed pay checks or even unemployment insurance!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Box 114, Walnut, Indiana 47388. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 40 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Blame It On Candy
BRISTOL, England (AP)—If British children want to go out beer drinking with their parents, it can be blamed on the local candy stores, the Bristol Council of Alcoholism reported. The candy stores sell the children shandy, a so-called "near beer" consisting of lemonade and 2 per cent beer that leaves some children thirsting for something with more kick, the council said.

The first vessels produced entirely of glass were manufactured in Egypt and Mesopotamia about 1500 B.C.
