City reviewing policy on municipal warrants

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

If the city of Pampa continues with a long-standing policy of dismissing all municipal warrants over two years old, 90 city residents and another 47 people from around the state and region will get a Christmas present this year worth a collective $30,619.

They won't be thrown in jail and made to pay that many dollars in fines they owe the city, because the warrants weren't served in a two-year period the city has set for itself.

The warrants represent the period from 1985 to 1987 and are only a fraction of the actual number of warrants issued by Municipal Court during that time.

Reasons the warrants were not served are varied, according to city officials, and include the fact that some of the people wanted could be in prison on more serious offenses or have moved far enough away that it would cost more to have them arrested and brought back to Pampa than it would to simply drop the warrant.

"I've been working here for five years and this has been the policy since I've been here," said Municipal Court Judge Pat Lee. "We do this several times during the year so they don't stack up."

Lee said she will present the tickets to Assistant to the City Manager Glen Hackler, a lawyer who serves as city prosecutor, with the recommendation the tickets be dismissed.

Hackler noted that until recently he was unaware of the policy of dismissing tickets over two years old and is currently reviewing it.

"You will probably find if the warrants haven't been served, the person has moved out of state and the cost of running them down doesn't justify the amount you would get," Hackler said.

However, he added that, in the interest of justice, the city would be looking at ways of getting more of the warrants served.

One of those ways, Hackler said, was a recent decision by Act- See WARRANTS, Page 2

OPEC ministers reach new agreement on oil production

By COTTEN TIMBERLAKE
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA (AP) — OPEC ministers said today they reached a new production agreement that would raise the group's output ceiling to 22 million barrels a day and maintain a target price of $18 a barrel.

All 13 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would sign the agreement at its Vienna secretariat later in the day, ministers said, as they broke up a main bargaining session in a hotel.

How the increase would be allocated wasn't immediately known. The cartel likely would issue a communique after the agreement was signed.

OPEC's daily ceiling for the fourth quarter is 20.5 million barrels, but analysts say it is producing more than 23 million barrels, with Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates cheating on their quotas.

Iranian oil minister Gholamreza Aqazadeh confirmed a deal was reached and that the new ceiling would be 22 million barrels a day.

Venezuelan minister Celestino Armas confirmed that all the members agreed to the pact.

Hisham Nazer, Saudi Arabia's oil minister nodded yes when asked if the target price would be $18 dollars a barrel, its current level.

The ministers overcame their differences on the fourth day of their regular winter conference to reach an agreement for the first half of 1990.

They had struggled with demands from Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates for bigger portions of the production.

It was doubtful the United Arab Emirates would abide by any quota agreed to Tuesday.

The Emirates and Kuwait have been producing 2 million barrels a day each, or double their current quotas.

Earlier, sources, who demanded anonymity, said the tentative plan was for Indonesia and Venezuela to relinquish portions of their shares so that Kuwait could get the bigger percentage it wants.

The United Arab Emirates perhaps would be allowed to produce what it wants, sources said. The other members would get to pump more oil but their shares of the total would remain the same, they said.

Libya and Algeria, in particular, had balked at the plan sources said.

Speaking of the sources' outline, Steve Turner, an oil analyst with the London investment firm Smith New Court, said, "I think it's a very weak agreement."

Such a deal would result in OPEC allowing production of around 24 million barrels a day, more than it is producing in violation of its current ceiling.

Turner estimates demand of 21.5 million barrels a day in the first half of 1990.

"So it looks as though OPEC is going to be producing substantially in excess of the market's needs," Turner said. "In that scenario the oil price would be under continued downward pressure."

Recently, oil prices have been surprisingly strong in face of overproduction by OPEC, and are trading at levels 50 percent above a year ago.

North Sea Brent Blend, the most widely traded international crude oil, was trading at a spot price of $18.25 a barrel Tuesday, down 20 cents from late Monday.

Local efforts organized for Toy For Tots project

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Santa's helpers at the City Limits Club are again heading up local efforts in the annual Marine Corps Reserve Toys For Tots campaign.

Toys For Tots is a nationwide effort to get at least one Christmas toy to needy children. All of the toys donated in Pampa will go to local children.

Jeanie Ritchie, City Limits owner, said she has received offers of help from K mart, Alco, McDonald's, KGRO/KOMX Radio, Panhandle Community Services, National Bank of Commerce and the Central Fire Station, adding that each will serve as a drop-off point for toys.

"What we need now is new toys or cleaned up toys ready to be given," Ritchie said.

"If they want to give cash, they can. Make the checks payable to Toys For Tots and it will be tax deductible," she added.

Ritchie said last year's drive was made successful by employees of Fluor Daniels, in Pampa for the rebuild of Hoechst Celanese, who donated $2,500 to the cause.

"This year they are not in town and we need the help of Pampa," Ritchie said.

She commended Pampa merchants for donating enough wrapping paper during last year's drive to wrap this year's toys as well.

Parents in dire straits who need Toys For Tots to help them provide Christmas for their children can apply through the Texas Department of Health, Texas Department of Human Services, WIC Program, Good Samaritan Christian Services or Panhandle Community Services.

Referrals will be accepted through Monday, Dec. 4, Ritchie said.

A store front to distribute the toys from will be established next to Hair Handlers in Coronado Center from Dec. 11-16, Ritchie said.

Hours will be 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Dec. 11-15 and noon to 8 p.m. on Dec. 16.

"Toys will be distributed on a first come, first serve basis and parents must bring identification to pick up a toy," Ritchie said. "They can pick out a toy and wrap it there or one of our helpers will assist them in wrapping it."

Ritchie said Toys For Tots still needs volunteers to help man the store front.

But, most of all, they need local residents to help provide a toy for a child who otherwise would have no Christmas at all, she said.

For more information, call Sharon Green, 6-9 p.m. at 665-8236; Jeanie Ritchie, noon-5 p.m., 665-7510; Dina Davis, 7-10 p.m., 665-4201; Panhandle Community Services, 8 a.m.-noon, 665-0081; or call the Toys For Tots hotline at 665-7629 and leave a message.

Czech premier says he'll push for reforms

By ALISON SMALE
Associated Press Writer

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — The Communist premier met with opposition leaders today and promised to push for a coalition government and elimination of the Communists' 40-year monopoly on power, a federal minister said.

Ladislav Adamec met for two hours with members of the Civic Forum group, who were fortified by a nationwide demonstration Monday against authoritarian rule that saw millions of people pack city centers.

Today, after 11 straight days of huge pro-democracy rallies, cities were quiet as Civic Forum said it was time to take the fight off the streets and to the negotiating table.

Marian Calfa, a federal government minister who was at the meeting, told reporters Adamec agreed to ask President Gustav Husak to appoint a new government that will include "non-party representatives, representatives of other political parties, and Communists."

Calfa said the new Cabinet would be made up largely of "experts and professionals" and did not say if opposition leaders would have a place in it.

He also said the federal government would propose to Parliament constitutional changes that would eliminate provisions guaranteeing the Communist Party a leading role.

Requirements that education must be on Marxist-Leninist lines also must be dropped, Calfa said, and the government will ask that provisions binding allied political parties to the Communists be dropped from the constitution.

Until now, these parties have been docile allies of the Communists.

In recent weeks, however, they have played a much more independent role, with the Socialist Party playing the most prominent part.

Prague city authorities will be instructed to provide Civic Forum, which has been operating out of makeshift headquarters in striking theaters and art galleries around the capital, with premises for their activities, Calfa said.

"Some results have been achieved," said Civic Forum delegate Jan Carnogursky as he left the meeting, but he refused to give details.

Before the talks began, Civic Forum spokesman Vaclav Klaus said the opposition intended to offer Adamec the choice of creating a coalition government or facing opposition calls for his resignation.

Such calls already have led to the ouster of Communist Party chief Milos Jakes and several on the ruling Politburo who had resisted the East bloc reforms introduced by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

In further signs the Communist Party is moving to accommodate opposition demands, Jakes today resigned from his position as head of the national Defense Council, and the head of the federal Parliament, Alois Indra, also stepped down.

Jakes and Indra were among the hard-liners who lost their Politburo seats in a leadership shake-up Friday.

Monday's two-hour nationwide general strike — a festive affair of speeches, song and flag-waving — was the largest public display of opposition to the ruling Communists since they took power in 1948.

Opposition leaders held out the threat of further strikes if the popular will was not heeded.

Any doubt that workers backed the pro-democracy movement was erased on Monday as shop floors across the country were idled.

The opposition coalition Civic Forum said that after 11 straight days of mass rallies for democracy the time had come to pressure authorities into relinquishing power and allowing free elections.

But it also held out the threat of further strikes if the popular will is not heeded.

Any doubt that workers backed the pro-democracy movement was erased during Monday's strike as shop floors across the country were idled.

"We want to ask the premier if he is willing ... to create a new Cabinet with a new program," said Civic Forum spokesman Vaclav Klaus.

"If the answer is yes, the Civic Forum will begin to formulate demands. If his answer is no, we will demand the resignation of his government."

Civic Forum said the strike committees that put together Monday's well-orchestrated protest would be left on permanent alert if the need arises to organize another strike.

Speaking at an opposition rally in Prague on Monday night, Klaus called off further rallies and strikes pending the outcome of today's meeting.

"We want the situation to quiet down, and we don't want to over-extend people's energy," said another opposition leader, the Rev. Vaclav Malý.

The rally, attended by more than 200,000 people, capped massive anti-government protests that have forced two major reshuffles in the ruling Communist Politburo in three days.

Opposition spokesman Jiri Dienstbier said activists from around this country of 15.5 million people intend to convene for a meeting before the discredited Communists hold a party congress on Jan. 26.

Battling to regain control as the remnants of power slip from their grasp, Communist authorities announced new concessions on Monday:

— Deputy premier Jaromir Zak said a new draft of the constitution would delete the article that declares the Communist Party the country's leading political force.

— The party's policy-making Central Committee approved an inquiry by a parliamentary commission into the brutal crackdown on a Nov. 17 rally in which riot police clubbed hundreds of peaceful pro-democracy demonstrators.

— The Czech and Slovak ministries of culture said they had partially lifted censorship.

— Vladimir Janku, head of the state's church affairs office, was quoted by the official CTK news agency as promising an end to the state's tight control of churches and saying the state would no longer issue licenses for priests.

But there were still more conditions to be met. Posters demanding free elections and an end to one-party rule were plastered over the windows of shops, hotels and restaurants that observed the strike.

During the protest, flag-waving, joyous workers filled the centers of Prague and other cities in an outpouring of national pride.

Warrants

ing City Manager Frank Smith to move John Goes, warrant officer, back into the police department and give the city's Patrol Division the responsibility of serving warrants.

Hackler said there is such a large number of warrants it was more than a one-man job.

He also pointed out that when Goes worked through Municipal Court, he had to divide his time between serving warrants and doing clerical duties.

Among those who may benefit if the city dismisses the warrants is one Pampa who racked up nine of them for unpaid traffic violations amounting to $943.

As Hackler noted, however, there is no evidence the person still lives in Pampa. And, if there is no record of where he lives now, there is no way to serve the warrants - if it were even economically feasible to do so.

Another man, who listed his address as Lefors, had a stack of nearly a dozen warrants equaling several hundred dollars that had not been served.

Crimes handled by Municipal Court include traffic offenses, failure to appear in court, simple assault, assault by threat, disorderly conduct, theft under $20 (first offense), public intoxication, criminal mischief under $20, minor in possession, possession of drug paraphernalia, issuance of a bad check, theft under $20 and theft of services under $20.

"It's not the law to pull (the warrants) after two years," Judge Lee said, "but it has been our policy. The fine is not set aside, but it could be, at the motion of the prosecutor."

Hackler said, "Much of the time, after two years, the person can't be located and it's not efficient or effective to keep searching for them."

"You always hear of backlogs in courts. This is one way Judge Lee has seen fit to correct a perpetual problem."

While stating that his first reaction is to pursue the warrants for the sake of justice, Hackler admitted he and other city officials must weigh the cost involved in time and personnel.

He said it was possible it could cost more than the $30,619 owed the city by the 137 people to find them and effect an arrest.

So what is to keep future traffic offenders or those prone to public intoxication from becoming more flagrant, in the hopes their warrant for unpaid fines won't be served within two years?

Chief of Police Jim Laramore noted that the vast majority of warrants are served.

He also said a new system is currently being developed by the city to increase the chances that virtually all warrants will be served.

Laramore said the city has not lost any money from the $30,916 not collected.

"It's not actual money until we collect it," he said. "The city hasn't lost the money. But there is more of a chance that those sought on warrants will be caught) when the whole (patrol) division is looking for them."

Bush: No surprise deals at summit

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush, trying to calm fears among allies, pledged today "there won't be a surprise" or any deal on arms control or troop cuts during his weekend summit with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

While acknowledging that he would talk with Gorbachev about troops levels and other subjects, Bush said:

"I am not going to go off and prematurely jump out there and try to grandstand by committing them (the NATO allies) to something. That's not the way you keep an alliance strong."

He commented in a brief question-and-answer session in the Oval Office.

Bush emphasized that he would press Gorbachev about the conduct of Moscow's allies in Latin America

- Cuba and Nicaragua - and the discovery of shipments of Soviet-made weapons in El Salvador.

The president said he had received a telephone call today from President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica, who has been leading a regional peace effort.

On the basis of that call, Bush said, "I will raise with him (Gorbachev) at Arias' request the fact that the Soviet Union should stop feeding (Cuban President) Fidel Castro, who Mr. Arias tells me is directly responsible for the export of revolution" by supporting leftist rebels in El Salvador.

Bush's comments came two days before he flies to Malta to meet with Gorbachev on ships in the Mediterranean.

White House officials said Monday that in preparation for his meeting, Bush was studying options for reductions in U.S. troop levels in Europe, as a result of the diminished threat of war in the wake of democratic reforms throughout the Soviet bloc.

Young student injured slightly in accident

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

A fourth grade student at Wilson Elementary is back in school today after being struck by a car late Monday morning as he crossed the street in front of the campus.

According to police reports, 10-year-old Logan Stinnett had exited his mother's car across the street from the school at 11:38 a.m. Monday after going to an appointment.

He then crossed the street in front of his mother's vehicle into the path of an oncoming 1978 Buick driven by Virgil Malone, 400 N. Warren.

Reports indicate Malone was not speeding and made every effort to stop before striking the child.

An accident report showed 34 feet of skid marks leading up to the point of impact.

The youngster was hit on the left hip and knocked six feet in the air before hitting the pavement.

Officer Ricky Hall and paramedics from Rural/Metro Ambulance treated the child at the scene before transporting him to Coronado Hospital.

Stinnett was treated and released for a bump on the head. His mother, Jan Stinnett, a teacher at St. Vincent's School, said this is the second time in his life Logan has been hit by a vehicle.

"He was hit in front of our house when he was three-years-old," Mrs. Stinnett said, "but he was only bruised up. I didn't think he could be so lucky this time."

She credited the fact that Malone was driving the speed limit and being careful near a school with being responsible for her son only being mildly injured.

Mrs. Stinnett also praised school personnel, mailman Jerry Hildenbrand and people living near the Wilson campus with responding immediately with calls to police and emergency personnel and attending to her son until help arrived.

"This is the season for counting blessings and we're sure doing that," Mrs. Stinnett said this morning of her son's scrape.

Police seeking leads in theft of stolen newspaper racks

Pampa police are still seeking leads in the theft of a newspaper rack taken from in front of the The Pampa News sometime late Sunday night or early Monday morning.

Lewis James, circulation manager, said the theft was discovered when Pampa News employees came to work Monday.

"I cannot understand why anyone would take a news rack for $10 or $15 of money in it and take the chance of a felony charge," James said.

Lt. Roy Denman noted that burglarizing a coin-operated machine is a felony under Texas law. He said the penalty for theft of a machine would depend on how much it was worth.

However, in a case where the machine was stolen and then burglarized, if a suspect was caught, it was likely they would be charged with both offenses or the more serious of the two.

James said the machine is valued at $550.

"If all the papers in the rack had sold, all they would have gotten out of it is $11.25," James noted. "But that's only if all the papers had sold."

Anyone with information regarding the theft can call Crime Stoppers at 669-2222.

Judge censured for remarks about gays

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD
and
MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writers

AUSTIN (AP) - A Dallas judge who said he gave a lighter sentence to a convicted killer because the victims were homosexuals was publicly censured today by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

The commission said state District Judge Jack Hampton's remarks in news media interviews violated the Code of Judicial Conduct, which prohibits public comment on a pending case and requires judges to promote public confidence in the judiciary.

"The commission finds that Judge Hampton's comments, per se, were destructive of public confidence in the integrity and impartiality of the judiciary," the commission's order for public censure said. "The hostility and distrust generated by this judge's irresponsible statements created an additional burden for the entire judiciary," the order said.

Hampton ignited a storm of controversy when he told a reporter that he sentenced Richard Lee Bednarski to 30 years in prison, instead of life in prison, for the murders of two men in a Dallas park because the victims were gay.

"Those two gays that got killed wouldn't have been killed if they hadn't been cruising the streets picking up teen-age boys," Hampton said.

Telephone calls to Hampton's Dallas office went unanswered.

In its ruling, the judicial conduct commission noted numerous remarks made by Hampton in interviews with both the Dallas Times

Herald and The Associated Press.

Among those comments, the commission cited:

"I don't much care for queers cruising the streets picking up teenage boys."

"Some murder victims are less innocent in their deaths than others. In those cases, a defendant is unlikely to deserve a maximum sentence."

"Just spell my name right ... if it makes anyone mad they'll forget it by 1990."

"The victims were homosexuals. They were out in the homosexual area picking up teen-age boys. Had they not been out there trying to spread AIDS around, they'd still be alive today."

The commission, which governs the conduct of state judges, said his remarks had placed a burden on all of the Texas judiciary.

Shuttle crew lands safely on return from secret mission

By LAURA TOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Discovery's astronauts returned home under cover of darkness today after ending their secret mission with a sunset landing Monday at a desert air base where gusts twice delayed the return to Earth.

A news blackout imposed by the military prevented the astronauts from talking about what they did during their five-day mission, but Commander Frederick Gregory did comment on one problem — a malfunctioning toilet.

"The crew performed, I think, flawlessly. Discovery's toilet didn't work, but we fixed it," said Gregory, who was wearing a slipper on one foot and shoe on the other. He suffered a foot infection while in orbit, NASA said.

Meanwhile, shuttle Columbia was moved to a launch pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla., today for a 10-day, Christmas-time flight during which it will put one satellite in orbit and retrieve another that is falling to Earth.

After staying in space an extra day and then an extra orbit because of high winds, Discovery landed at 4:30 p.m. PST (6:30 p.m. CST) Monday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

"With the sun glinting off the underside of the vehicle, it was really a pretty landing," NASA spokeswoman Nancy Lovato said.

The astronauts, who reportedly released a spy satellite, arrived at their home base here today before dawn, a fitting finale to their hush-hush flight. Despite showers, about 30 people greeted the astronauts at Ellington Field.

Gregory, the first black to command a shuttle flight, called the mission a success.

"We did what we were supposed to do. And we did it right and we even got a day yesterday to relax and take thousands of pictures, literally," he said.

"We had a near perfect vehicle," added mission specialist Story Musgrave.

The other crew members were pilot John Blaha and mission specialists Manley Carter Jr. and Kathryn Thornton.

Discovery originally was scheduled to land Sunday, but had to wait a day because of high winds that sent "dust devils" whipping across Edwards.

Mission Control rescheduled the return for Monday afternoon, but winds forced another delay. The winds were not as strong as the 30 mph gusts reported Sunday, but were high enough to make conditions unacceptable for the planned 2:52 p.m. PST landing.

Since conditions looked better for landing late in the afternoon, controllers directed the astronauts to stay aloft another 89 minutes for one more spin around the globe.

As predicted, the winds subsided and NASA gave the go-ahead to begin the fiery dash through the atmosphere.

Forty-five minutes before landing, Mission Control directed Gregory, an Air Force colonel, to shift to the concrete runway from a hard clay runway because of more favorable winds. The shuttle landed in light crosswinds of 4 mph and a headwind of about 19 mph.

About four hours after touchdown, the crew addressed about 60 friends and NASA workers at Edwards before boarding jets for Houston. Gregory did not explain why he came out wearing a salmon-colored slipper on his right foot and a brown shoe on the left.

"One of the things that you learn when you go in space is that you don't have to wear the same kind of shoes when you come out," he said.

Johnson Space Center spokesman Kyle Herring said Gregory got a foot infection while in orbit, but it had no effect on the mission. Herring said the infection was being evaluated, and he did not have any other details.

The astronauts have today off but they will report back to work Wednesday at the Johnson Space Center to begin briefings about their flight.

Sources close to the project have said the astronauts achieved their main goal Thursday, a day after liftoff, when they released a 2 1/2-ton, $300 million satellite designed to eavesdrop on communications in the Soviet Union, Europe, Africa and the Middle East.

The crew also reportedly conducted experiments related to the "Star Wars" missile defense system.

Conflict raised in utility task force decision

AUSTIN (AP) — The chairman of a utility task force performed work for the Lower Colorado River Authority before the study panel recommended that lawmakers study giving the LCRA a break in electric rate regulation.

H. Moak Rollins, head of the Task Force on Public Utility Regulation, voted for the proposal Nov. 13 without pointing out that his firm had just completed about $120,000 worth of work for the LCRA, the Austin American-Statesman reported Monday.

Rollins, a former PUC chairman, denied that his contract with the LCRA influenced his role on the task force.

"I've tried rather hard not to be judged as a utility advocate," he said, adding, "I tried to be as objective and as even-handed as I can be, both in the way I voted and in terms of the way I functioned as the presiding officer."

But Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, a task force member, said of Rollins' link with the LCRA, "It certainly doesn't look good."

The task force completed its work this month when it recommended ways to improve the Public Utility Commission, which regulates electric and telephone rates.

Rollins' firm, FINANCO, was hired July 19 by the LCRA board to conduct a study on alternative fuels for the river authority's Fayette Power Plant No. 3.

In the study, Rollins and his associates examined the fuel requirements of the LCRA's Fayette plant and the merits of burning Cummins Creek lignite or coal imported from Western states.

Based on the findings, the LCRA board voted Nov. 6 to scrap its long-planned Cummins Creek lignite mine because it is cheaper to burn imported Western coal at the plant.

Honored for slogan

Woman wants missing ex declared dead

ODESSA (AP) — A woman wants her ex-husband declared dead so she can have a profit-sharing plan he left her before he vanished in 1982.

District Judge Gene Ater is expected to make a ruling sometime in December on whether Lynn Ray Dement is legally dead or not.

According to court records, no one has reported seeing Dement since May 4, 1981 — the day his divorce from Janet Dement was settled. The divorce decree was issued 15 days later. Ms. Dement remained the beneficiary of Dement's profit-sharing plan.

Ms. Dement's attorney, Howard Hunt of Odessa, said the case is unusual in that it involves a disappeared man and an estate of unknown value. BJ Titan Services, the oil-service company with which Dement had a profit-sharing plan, won't reveal the worth of Dement's fund and has refused to award it to Ms. Dement because her husband hasn't been declared dead.

Dement, who would be 55, sent his former wife child-support payments for several months after the divorce, but abruptly stopped in February 1982. Ms. Dement has never heard from him since, Hunt said.

"It was not 'make a couple of payments, and then miss a couple,'" Hunt said. "The payments were consistent."

Efforts by officials of Ector County and the state to find Dement have failed, Hunt said. A tip that Dement had moved to Wichita Falls did not pan out, and his closest friends have not heard from him in more than seven years, Hunt said.

Speaker Gib Lewis says House won't accept Senate's workers' comp plan

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Speaker Gib Lewis, declaring the House won't accept the Senate version of workers' compensation reform, said he hopes senators will change their minds and agree instead to a business-backed overhaul measure.

The House is scheduled to take up the bill supported by Lewis Wednesday.

The House Business and Commerce Committee passed the bill Monday with a 7-0 vote.

The proposal for changing the way workers are compensated for on-the-job injuries was initially authored by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby in an attempt to break an 11-month stalemate on the issue.

However, it was heavily amended by senators before they sent it to the House.

"The bill that left the Senate was probably much, much worse than current law," Lewis said. "We will under no condition accept that bill, or any bill that would resemble that."

Minor, technical Senate amendments were retained by the House sponsor, Rep. Richard Smith, and some other changes were made.

But Smith, R-Bryan, said the bill sent to the full House is essentially that written by Hobby and supported by Gov. Bill Clements.

Lewis said the right plan could end lawmakers' third try this year to overhaul the workers' compensation system. The regular session and an earlier special session failed to end the impasse.

Although he said he has no reason to think votes will change in the Senate, Lewis said he hopes "wisdom will prevail."

Opponents have said portions of Hobby's plan are unfair to workers.

The Senate-approved plan sharply differed from Hobby's measure, and from earlier proposals by House members, on the questions of calculating benefits and resolving disputed workers' compensation claims.

Hobby's plan would restrict jury trials in compensation cases. It also would establish a specific schedule of monetary payments for permanent injuries.

Business lobbyists say large awards by juries and high injury benefits have caused increases in employer-paid premiums, which are up 148 percent since 1985 and scheduled to rise another 22 percent by Jan. 1.

The Senate-passed bill would restrict the admission in a trial any issues not raised at the state agency administrative hearing on a workers' compensation case.

But senators refused to go along with requiring all potential evidence on every dispute to be presented at the administration level.

The Senate bill also changed the so-called impairment schedule for permanent injuries, adding more flexibility to the plan so benefits could be linked with a person's ability to hold a job in his field.

One amendment added to the bill by the House committee would allow the Houston Oilers' football team owner to deduct contractual disability payments to players from workers' compensation payments, said Rep. Steve Wolens, D-Dallas.

Lewis said that if Smith's bill passes the House, he hopes the Senate will accept it and avert the need for a conference committee to work out differences.

"Hopefully, the wisdom of this bill will just kind of just overcome the entire East (Senate) side of the Capitol ... and we can go home," he said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Stopping mergers not always so good

Like watery oatmeal, some government officials often find their case against mergers of businesses is thin and runny. Take, for example, California Attorney General John Van de Kamp's effort against merger of two grocery store chains, Lucky and Alpha Beta. Surely nobody knows this better than Van de Kamp himself. We suspect that's why he called off part of the campaign under an arrangement that allows American Stores Co., the owner of both Lucky and Alpha Beta, to merge the two chains in northern California.

The agreement isn't a grand slam for the free market by any means, but it's a step the right way. Understandably, Van de Kamp didn't want to acknowledge that his crusade, which has put mountains of California tax dollars to the torch, has all the credibility of a Holy Land pilgrimage led by Jim Bakker. Apparently attempting to save face, the attorney general will require American Stores to sell 13 of its 36 Alpha Beta outlets in the northern part of the state. In return, the company at last gets the freedom to implement some common-sense economies, and its customers up north could enjoy some price relief.

Up to now, American's northern California management expenses have soared above what they should have been, thanks to Van de Kamp's meddling. That's because Alpha Beta has no warehouse in northern California and has had to truck goods from southern California to the stores up there — comparable to Texas Panhandle grocery stores having to depend on shipments from the Rio Grande Valley area without warehouses for storage. The result has been more hassles and more outlays than if American had been allowed earlier to merge Alpha Beta's northern facilities with Lucky. It should go without saying that fatter management costs mean a steeper tab at the checkout stand — the Van de Kamp food tax, you might call it.

The tax won't be repealed entirely as long as the attorney general continues battling the merger in southern California. His case down there is as porous as up north. It simply stands to reason that operating two separate grocery store chains costs more than merging them because of duplication of advertising and warehouse and administrative operations. Further, a combined operation could buy in greater bulk — while price hikes would be restrained by continued competition from other chains and many other markets throughout the region.

If Van de Kamp were guided by the consumer's interest rather than political ambition and hunger for publicity (something other states' attorney generals also often pursue), he'd call this food fight off.

Private market does it better

Had the Edsel been developed with federal money instead of private funds, you might be driving one today. If that sounds like a good idea, you'll have trouble understanding why the Bush administration reportedly plans to slash federal subsidies for commercial research and development.

The program, mysteriously placed in the Pentagon budget, operates on a premise at war with the entire American economic system: that government bureaucrats are better judges of the technologically feasible and the commercially attractive than private companies and investors. If that were true, West Germans would be pouring into East Germany in search of a better life.

The subsidies administered by the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) go to a range of high-tech ventures, from high-definition television to manufacturing robots.

According to news reports, the administration also plans to eliminate the $100 million a year being spent on Sematech, a government-industry consortium looking for better ways to make advanced semiconductors.

Among economic jingoists on Capitol Hill, there was an uproar. "The Bush administration appears to be on the brink of abandoning our best high technology in the name of budgetary expedience," cried Rep. Norman Mineta, a California Democrat.

"We have a frightening situation in which the idealogues in this administration are trying to dismantle the most important programs within our government which focus on the key technologies of the future," declared Mel Levine, another California Democrat.

Sounds like any day we'll all be back wearing animal skins, living in caves and trying desperately to rediscover fire, doesn't it?

Stephen Chapman

To hear the talk from Congress, you'd think that America owes its technological advancement and economic prosperity to the government's wise subsidization of vital new products that private companies wouldn't or couldn't develop on their own.

In fact, we've gotten where we are by leaving these decisions largely to the private sector. If a consumer need isn't being met, a pot of gold awaits the person who figures out a way to meet it. That's why corporations spend large sums of money developing useful new products.

A great invention isn't a great invention, however, unless it provides something people want and are willing to pay for.

The videocassette player, which allowed people to play pre-recorded movies on their television sets, sounded like a great idea to some investors. Trouble was, it coincided with an even better idea — the videocassette recorder, which allowed people to not only play pre-recorded material, but to record programs received by their TV sets.

Luckily, both products were developed by private companies risking their own funds, and the better gadget won out with consumers. The only losers were those who had misjudged the market.

Had the videocassette player been developed with heavy government support — as in the case of the Pentagon's HDTV project — the taxpayers might have wasted a lot of money on an inferior and doomed invention. Worse still, consumers might have been overruled and left with a second-best technology. The videocassette might never have been developed at all.

It's easy to see now that the videocassette was fatally flawed. But it wasn't so easy at the time.

Likewise, synthetic oil sounded like a can't-miss proposition back when OPEC was cleaning out all our bank accounts. The federal government poured a few tankerloads of our cash down that hole before it finally realized that none of it was going to bubble back up.

Politicians and bureaucrats just aren't very good at judging the economic feasibility of commercial projects.

The main reason is that they, unlike private investors, lack the crucial incentive: If a federally-funded synfuels plant goes bust, the elected officials from Colorado who pushed it don't lose a dime. In fact, they're likely to profit at the polls anyway.

Advocates of central economic planning habitually invoke the example of Japan. But Claude Barfield, director of science and technology policy studies at Washington's American Enterprise Institute, notes that the Japanese spend less on these research and development subsidies than we do. Doesn't seem to have hurt them any, does it?

Politicians worried that lower subsidies will mean economic decline should stop fretting. The most important technological breakthroughs have come about without guidance from the federal government.

Advances in the economy, fortunately, are no more dependent on intervention from Washington than advances in literature are dependent on the memoirs of first ladies.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 28th, the 332nd day of 1989. There are 33 days left in the year.

On this date:

In 1520, Portuguese navigator Ferdinand Magellan reached the Pacific Ocean after passing through the South American strait that now bears his name.

In 1919, American-born Lady Astor was elected the first female member of the British Parliament.

In 1925, the Grand Ole Opry, in Nashville, Tenn., made its radio debut on station WSM.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Soviet leader Josef Stalin met in Tehran to map out strategy during World War II.

In 1958, the African nation of Chad became an autonomous republic within the French community.

Book overdue book criminals

If you haven't heard it by now, you should:

A woman in Gwinnett County, Ga., was hauled out of her house one recent night and jailed because of her overdue library books.

Some people just don't read as fast as others. And some law enforcement agencies go around locking up dope dealers, rapists and thieves while others go after the really big game — criminals with overdue library books.

At any rate, I was so intrigued by this story that I sought to know more.

What I really wanted to know was, What were the books that were overdue?

Victor Hugo's Les Miserables? Herman Wouk's War and Remembrance? Dan Jenkins' Semi-Tough?

Had I known there would be a play based on the first, a television monstrosity on the second and a bad movie on the third, I likely would have waited and saved myself the trouble, but I'm suddenly off track here.

The lady who didn't return books and spent 10 hours in the slammer as a result wasn't available for comment, but I did reach Detective Homer Jethro of the Gwinnett Special Tactical Library Force.

"What were the exact books Mrs. — didn't return?" I asked him.

Lewis Grizzard

"Funny you should ask," he replied. "The books were yours."

"Mine?" I said, somewhat startled. Yes, I've written several books, but I had no idea ...

"As a matter of fact," continued Det. Jethro, "this is a continuing problem in Gwinnett County. These fiends check out your books from the library and then won't turn them back in. Luckily, however, we do have our ways to punish these people."

I've a new book out, Chili Dawgs Always Bark at Night (Villard, $17.95), and I was wondering how it was doing on the overdue book list.

"At last count," said the detective, "all five copies of your latest book that were in our library are out and overdue."

That's great news.

"Are you aware of who has these books?" I asked. "And how are you dealing with these fugitives?"

"A Thurgood Niles of the Whispering Pines Trailer Park has one," said the detective.

"We went to his trailer and called out to him, 'You're surrounded, Niles. Come out with your hands up!'"

"And what did he reply?"

"He said, 'I've only got 11 pages to go.'"

"And what happened then?"

"We stormed the trailer, but the suspect escaped into the woods with your latest book, screaming, 'You'll never take me alive!'"

"What on earth do you think gets into these people?" I asked Det. Jethro.

"Quite frankly," he answered, "these people just get hooked on your brilliant writing. It's an addiction. One paragraph and you're over the edge for good."

I had no idea that my books, including my latest, Chili Dawgs Always Bark at Night (Villard, $17.95), would cause such a thing, but I do have a solution.

Instead of checking my books out of somebody's library for free, and risk a future behind bars, go out and buy one.

Crime doesn't pay. But books sales do.

Holiday chefs face a modern dilemma

By SARAH OVERSTREET

When my friend Nancy called me, she obviously was a woman on the edge. She's an attorney with a 2-year-old, and she was worried about having the family to her house this year for another holiday dinner.

"It's not fair," she said. "Remember when you and I were kids and our mothers didn't work, and they had several weeks to put together a Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner? And what did they put on the table on the big day?"

"They'd plop a can of cranberry sauce onto a plate; mix together a can of green beans, a can of mushroom soup and a can of French-fried onion rings for a green vegetable; mash some potatoes; open a can of Franco-American gravy; and spread some miniature marshmallows over a bowl of canned yams."

"For the final touch, they'd throw some brown-and-serve rolls into the oven and dump a can of pumpkin pie filling into a frozen pie shell and they were done; everyone was happy. (OK, so the kids left the yams and ate the marshmallows, but they were happy.)

"But now, when we all work 55-hour weeks and have kids hanging on our knees when we're not, they've gone and yanked all that out from under us!"

I asked her what she was talking about.

This was all foreign to me, who has no kids and fixes the same Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner for my two older brothers every year. No variations, or they refuse to come: Turkey the size of a small Winnebago, wash-tub full of mashed potatoes, large mixing bowl of gravy, seven boxes of Stovetop stuffing, pumpkin pie and store-bought vanilla ice cream. I've been doing it so long I'd have to slip and knock myself out to mess it up.

"Here's what I mean," she went on. "Every time you turn on the TV or open a magazine, they harp about cholesterol and fat and profile some man who came back from a near-fatal heart attack by eating oat bran and whole-grain rice.

"So I'm gonna lay out a bowl of mashed potatoes and gravy in front of my loved ones after that? And, of course, that means those little marshmallows are out. Then last month I read that anything that uses mushroom soup as a base is as passe as Jello molds ..."

"Wait a minute," I stopped her. "You don't mean Jello molds are ..."

"That's what I said. They're out, out, OUT! Have you any idea how that limits the decent things you can do with those awful cranberries?"

I did. Cranberries without Cool Whip and strawberry gelatin should be illegal.

"Oh, and don't think you're going to get by with some kind of Cool Whip dessert this year," she continued. "Stuff has partially hydrogenated vegetable oils in it. How can I put that in front of my family?"

I asked her what she was going to serve during the holidays instead.

"That's just it — I have no earthy idea. I've been reading the women's magazines for a month, and here are some of the recipes they think I ought to whip up in an afternoon while there are 63 people in my living room: 'Creamed Spinach in Pastry Shells,' 'Celeried Potato Puffs,' 'Sauteed Snap Peas and Pearl Onions,' 'Grand Marnier Souffle,' 'Mango Chutney Mold,' 'Cauliflower and Watercress Puree,' 'Poached Peas with Lingonberry Sauce.'"

"None of them have less than 12 ingredients, or take less than an hour to make. And listen to this — they want me to serve an artichoke heart-and-asparagus salad for a green vegetable!"

My heart goes out to her, but that's something I wouldn't know about: Thor and Hrothgar don't eat vegetables, except for potatoes, which they believe are a salty dessert. Poor thing — I guess everyone can't be as lucky as I am when it comes to family.

Kohl proposes a federation of West and East Germany in a speech to the Bonn Bundestag Tuesday.

Kohl proposes a plan for unity of Germans

By TERRENCE PETTY
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl today announced a plan to draw the two Germanys into an informal confederation that eventually would lead to reunification. West Germany's major opposition party also called for unity.

Kohl's 30-minute address to Parliament was the most thorough delineation of his vision of eliminating the partition imposed at the end of World War II.

In East Germany, hundreds of thousands of people took to the streets in five cities Monday night, pressuring the ruling Communists to keep their reform promises in what for many has become a weekly ritual.

One of the biggest cheers among the 200,000 demonstrators in Leipzig came when one speaker called for a referendum on German unity. East Germany's Communist leaders oppose a reunification.

In a 10-point plan, Kohl proposed steps be taken to "develop confederative structures between the two states in Germany in order to create a federation, a federal order."

He stressed, however, that such measures could only be undertaken if there are truly free elections in East Germany that include non-socialist parties.

East Germany's new Communist leaders have said free elections could be held as early as next fall.

Kohl also said steps toward German reunification must be linked to improved East-West relations and a new European order based on cooperation, economic integration and greater freedom of movement.

"The future structure of Germany must fit into the whole architecture of Europe as a whole," he said.

The West Germany leader suggested joint consultative committees with East Germany be created at some point, including a joint parliamentary panel.

"New forms of institutional cooperation could be created and further developed in stages. Such a coming together is in the interest of the continuation of German history," Kohl said.

Kohl said West Germany is prepared to offer "concrete assistance" to East Germany.

Earlier, Hans-Jochen Vogel, the leader of the opposition Social

Bus wreck kills ABC executives

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) — A train smashed into a bus that became stuck on the tracks because of a rush-hour traffic jam, killing two ABC-TV executives heading to a National Football League game.

The victims were not identified pending notification of family. One was a network sales executive based in Los Angeles and the other was an executive with ABC Sports in New York, according to Bob Wheeler, manager of sports information for ABC.

About two dozen other passengers on the chartered bus were injured in the collision Monday night, officials said, but many were treated at the scene. No injuries were reported among people on the commuter train.

The train was moving at 60 mph but did not derail, officials said.

Mother, daughter fine after implant surgery

By JAMES WEBB
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Mother and child were doing well today after 13 1/2 hours of surgery in which doctors implanted part of the woman's liver in her young daughter in the nation's first living-donor liver transplant.

As doctors were finishing the historic operation late Monday, the transplanted organ already began producing bile, the fluid that helps in digestion, said Dr. Christoph Broelsch, who led the surgical team at the University of Chicago Medical Center.

The woman's spleen was accidentally damaged and had to be removed, but doctors predicted she would fully recover.

The operation could provide a solution to a severe shortage of organs for children, transplant specialists said.

Teresa Smith and her 21-month-old daughter, Alyssa, of Texas, were in critical condition in intensive care, normal after transplants.

Doctors planned to monitor Alyssa closely, said Broelsch.

"She's in as good a shape as any child we see" immediately after a transplant, he told reporters.

In three to five days doctors will know if the surgical wounds are healing properly, and in a week they should see whether the body is rejecting the liver lobe.

"We're quite confident that this organ will work," Broelsch said.

Previously, the only regularly performed living-donor transplants have involved kidneys and pancreas segments.

John and Teri Smith play with their daughter Alyssa in Chicago over the weekend as they prepare for the historic liver transplant surgery.

donors have been performed three times — in Brazil, Australia and Japan. All three operations were carried out in emergency situations, and one child died.

Monday's operation was the first of 20 live-donor liver transplants authorized by the Chicago hospital to determine if the procedure is viable.

The operations will be done on patients who have other choices besides the living-donor transplant, said Dr. Peter Whittington, director of pediatric transplant services.

"We don't think this will be the treatment of choice for every patient," said Broelsch, noting the hospital had been transplanting portions of livers from cadavers into children since 1984 with better than 80 percent success.

In the United States, half the estimated 700 babies who need liver transplants each year die for lack of a donor.

"If this procedure works as well as we hope it will, it will be a significant breakthrough," said Dr. Walter Andrews, director of the pediatric transplant program at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas.

Within hours of Monday's operation, the Children's Liver Foundation in Sherman Oaks, Calif., was swamped with calls from parents about the procedure.

Alyssa suffers from an often-fatal liver disorder called biliary atresia — the leading cause for liver transplants involving children. She'd been waiting more than a year for a liver transplant.

Mrs. Smith went into surgery at 7:35 a.m. and doctors removed the left lobe of her liver — about one-third of the organ. About 3 1/2 hours into the mother's operation, doctors prepared Alyssa for the transplant.

The most tense moments came when Mrs. Smith's spleen was accidentally damaged, Broelsch said.

"We didn't expect that at all, but we had it under control in two or three minutes," Broelsch said. "In no way at any point was the mother's life in danger."

People can live without the spleen, an organ that modifies the structure of blood, but this may make them more susceptible to infection, hospital spokesman Ed Ernst said.

Mrs. Smith was out of surgery at 4 p.m.

Alyssa went through a critical period of about a half-hour without a liver before the segment was sutured into place shortly before 6 p.m., doctors said.

After doctors determined the liver was functioning, they connected blood vessels and bile ducts and completed the operation shortly after 9 p.m., Ernst said.

John L. Smith said he hoped his daughter and his wife, a 29-year-old school teacher, could be home in Schertz, Texas, for Christmas.

"I'm doing fine now that I know my wife is OK and my daughter, last I heard, is doing great," said Smith, an assistant shipping supervisor who was at the hospital with the couple's 3-year-old son, Richard.

Afghan rebel leader says Soviets bombing guerrillas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the U.S.-backed Afghan resistance says he wants America to supply high-altitude anti-aircraft weapons for use against Soviet bombers he says are flying against his forces from Soviet territory.

Sibghatullah Mojaddedi, who met with President Bush at the White House on Monday, also said he hopes Bush will tell Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev at their summit next weekend to drop his support for the "puppet regime and the communist government" in the Afghan capital of Kabul.

"Unfortunately, the free world thinks that the Russians have withdrawn completely from Afghanistan," Mojaddedi told The Associated Press in an interview.

"Still, the Russians are bombing our people, the mujahedeen (guerrillas), from their own territory," he said.

"I told President Bush that we must be strong in the military field or no political solution will come," said Mojaddedi, who is the president of the Afghan Interim Government. The government was formed in exile in Peshawar, Pakistan, as the Soviets withdrew the last of their 115,000 troops from Afghanistan last February.

Bush and Mojaddedi did not talk about the summit, the Afghan leader said, adding, "it is up to him whether he discusses it with Gorbachev or not. I think that President Bush probably will speak to Gorbachev about the Afghanistan issue because it is a very important international matter."

The Afghan leader said that during the White House meeting, Bush "promised us his support and assistance."

White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said in a statement that Bush "reaffirmed our support for the Afghan resistance's efforts to achieve self-determination and also expressed U.S. interest in a political settlement."

He said Bush "called upon the Afghan Interim Government to continue and increase its efforts to fashion a stable, broadly based government responsive to the needs of the Afghan people."

Mojaddedi said deliveries of U.S. weapons to the mujahedeen guerrillas of Afghanistan resumed two months ago, after a break of eight months.

"Two months ago, (deliveries) resumed. The commanders of the mujahedeen have been more effective these two months. They have achieved great progress in many areas, and have captured a number of strategic posts and many weapons, and even tanks from the enemy," said Mojaddedi.

"The biggest need of the mujahedeen now is weapons to use against the air force, which bombs from a very high altitude," he said.

Despite the Red Army withdrawal, the Soviets have greatly increased their military aid to Kabul, sending between $300 million and $400 million a month in arms, according to U.S. intelligence estimates.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III, at his meeting in September with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, complained of the high level of Soviet military aid.

The Soviets responded that the U.S., by sending the guerrillas a reported $500 million in arms annually via Pakistan, was violating the Geneva accord that secured the Red Army withdrawal from Afghanistan.

Study: Many public cholesterol screenings are often inaccurate

By DEBORAH MESCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cholesterol screenings in shopping malls and other public settings often can be inaccurate, pose hygiene risks and frequently fail to provide counseling or physician referral, a government report said Monday.

The report by the Department of Health and Human Services' inspector general recommends federal regulation of all cholesterol screenings that are not conducted by health care professionals.

An investigation by the inspector general found that basic rules of hygiene were often ignored, qualifications and training of testers varied widely and public screenings often lacked the optimal conditions needed to produce accurate results with portable analyzers.

"The public in general is not aware of these shortcomings, and does not know what to look for in safe, high-quality public screening programs," said the report.

The report was discussed at a hearing Monday by a House Small Business subcommittee on regulation and business opportunities, chaired by Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., who requested the study.

Cholesterol screenings are conducted at shopping malls, pharmacies, health clubs, village halls and a variety of other public settings.

"At a time when over 60 million adult Americans may currently have high blood cholesterol, placing them at risk of heart disease, it defies common sense to allow unregulated public screening to continue," Wyden said.

His subcommittee has been studying medical testing, and its finding that a quarter of all such testing was being done in unregulated settings led to a 1988 law that brings all clinical laboratories under federal regulation. The Health Care

Financing Administration is drafting regulations to implement the law.

The law provides that some medical testing may be exempt from its provisions, but the inspector general recommended public screenings be included in the regulations because "federal regulation ... is clearly called for in order to safeguard the public."

Sixteen states regulate public cholesterol screening, but regulations in four of them have not yet been implemented, the report said.

The report was based on a review of state and federal laws and regulations, research studies and reports as well as interviews with 250 experts and public officials. It also included a special field survey in which investigators participated in 71 public cholesterol screenings that were randomly selected in 10 states and the District of Columbia.

The investigators' test results were not analyzed for accuracy, but participants observed the conditions under which the tests were conducted and rated them against the guidelines issued by the National Cholesterol Education Program, a consortium of organizations coordinated by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute.

Investigators said that contrary to the guidelines, the atmosphere at many screenings was frenzied, with little or no privacy for those being tested, and that many times testers had no professional experience and minimal training.

Nearly 60 percent of the investigators whose blood was drawn with a finger prick had their fingers squeezed or "milked," which can dilute the sample with material from between the cells and give a lower than true result.

Also, the investigators reported that a third of the testers wore no gloves. Some who wore no gloves handled money and collected blood samples.

Hungary's ruling party says opposition wins referendum

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — The ruling party said Monday the opposition had won the first free vote in four decades, on a referendum postponing presidential elections to give the fledgling movement more time to organize and become better known.

Final results were not expected until later today, but the presidential candidate of the ruling Socialist Party, formerly the Communist Party, conceded that voters Sunday approved the referendum backed by opposition parties.

"We can be certain that the number of 'yes' votes was higher than the 'no' votes," said Imre Pozsgay, the popular Socialist candidate.

The results would mean that a new democrati-

Parliament, to be chosen by June, will elect the president of the new Hungarian republic.

If voters had rejected the referendum, they would have elected a president directly on Jan. 7.

Opposition groups favored postponing the vote until after parliamentary elections, saying that otherwise they could not sufficiently organize a serious challenge to Pozsgay. They hope to win strong representation in the new Parliament, giving their candidate a better chance at the presidency.

With 91.3 percent of the ballots tallied, 50.2 percent favored a direct election before the parliamentary elections and 49.8 percent were for postponement until afterward, said Pal Kara, secretary of the referendum committee in parliament told journalists.

The turnout represents 58.2 percent of Hungary's 7.8 million eligible voters, Kara said — above the 50 percent needed to make to vote binding.

The plebiscite is the first free vote in Hungary since Communists came to power more than four decades ago.

It comes just a month after a new republic was declared in a symbolic rejection of Communist rule and Parliament adopted legislation opening the way for the free multiparty elections.

SHOOTING PAINS

If you're a victim of sciatica, you know what "shooting pains" are all about. The sometimes excruciating pain of sciatica frequently affects the hip, thigh and back of the leg. The ankle and foot are sometimes affected, too. But that's not where the problem is.

The sciatic nerve, the largest nerve in the body, extends from the lower spine to the back of the thigh and knee. Then it divides. One nerve goes down the front of the lower leg, and other goes down the back of the leg.

It's the inflammation of the sciatic nerve that causes the pain. This can be triggered by an irritated disc root. What causes the irritation? The cause may be traced to a misalignment of the spinal column that's putting abnormal pressure on the roots of the sciatic nerves as they pass between the vertebrae.

Through x-rays and other procedures the doctor of chiropractic can locate the misaligned vertebrae. Using a gentle adjustment, he can align it properly again to help eliminate the cause and the pain.

Teenage suicide - help can be a phone call away

Editor's Note: Margaret Chambers is a student at Pampa High School. This article concludes a series of articles compiled by Chambers on teenage suicide.
By MARGARET CHAMBERS
Guest Writer

What teachers can do when confronted with the possibility of teen suicide:

1. Know the warning signs for troubled teens.
2. Involve parents as soon as possible even if it means breaking a confidence.
3. Provide information to parents on where to go for help.
4. If a number of students seem to be going through a crisis, consider teaching a unit on suicide.
5. Resist the urge to offer simple solutions.
6. Resist the urge to take sides with the adolescent against the parents.
7. Help students to identify the problems that have led to the suicidal state.
8. Encourage the student to talk to his parents and express his feelings openly.
9. If you think that a student is a high risk for suicide, do not leave him alone.

- What friends can do to help:
1. Don't act as if nothing is wrong.
  2. Ask your friend if he is contemplating suicide.
  3. Act immediately to get help.
  4. Do not think that you have to provide all the answers.
  5. Encourage your friend to talk about his feelings and then be willing to listen.
  6. Help your friend find out where to go for help.
- Having lost a loved one by means of suicide, my family and I understand all too well the heart-break associated with suicide. As "friends of life" we need to work together to combat this problem. As President Reagan once said, "If not us, who? If not now, when?"

Here is a list of Texas centers that specifically deal with suicide crisis. They may be called anytime from any part of the country.

Woman feels trapped in tangled web of gifts

DEAR ABBY: I am a 52-year-old working woman and thought I knew what was going on in the world, but I guess I must have missed something.

I had always assumed that bridal showers were given for brides who were just starting out. This year, I was expected to attend several bridal showers and give a wedding gift to a niece who had married three years ago — and was divorced last year. I had already attended three bridal showers and had given her an expensive wedding gift for her first marriage. She wore a white gown again (a different one) and had a big fancy church wedding that topped her first one.

A friend invited me to a baby shower for her daughter who is pregnant with her second child. This mother-to-be has a 2-year-old daughter. The sonogram showed that she was carrying another girl. In my day, we saved our baby's clothes for the next child, so why a shower to get more little girl's clothes? Also, I thought showers were given by friends — not relatives. And certainly not by a mother for her own daughter.

A girl at work is finally marrying the man she's been living with for eight years, and I am invited to a shower for her. Abby, after eight years together, what can they need to get started?

Wait, there's more: My nephew was married four years ago and was divorced 14 months ago. Last week, his ex-wife had a baby boy out of wedlock by someone unknown to us. This baby has our family's last name, but he's not related to anyone in our family.

Either the mother doesn't know who the baby's father is, or the father wants nothing to do with them. She sent me a birth announcement with a list of items the baby could use. How could I refuse?

Is all this commonplace, Abby, or is it just the people I know?

CONFUSED IN SAN DIEGO
DEAR CONFUSED: I regret to say it's not very unusual. When a bride permits shower after shower to be given for her with the same guests invited, one must assume she doesn't mind soaking her friends and family.

As for the baby whose birth announcement you acknowledged with a gift, you showed genuine generosity and sensitivity, for which I commend you.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter works very hard as a part-time waitress. She's putting herself through college, and we are very proud of her. We were very upset to learn that she bought her boyfriend a matched set of golf clubs for his birthday. She used most of her savings on this expensive gift and now she's practically broke.

How can we get through to this stupid girl?

HER PARENTS IN NEBRASKA
DEAR PARENTS: It's her money and her choice, and if she goes broke, it will be her problem. I know you mean well, but back off, folks.

DEAR ABBY: The story about the 53-year-old man driver applying mascara, missing a turn, hitting a curb and turning over, killing herself, breaking her son's arm and leaving four young children without their mother, reminded me of two incidents I witnessed on a trip to San Francisco.

Sausalito, a woman in the car ahead of me was combing her hair, applying lipstick and eye shadow while driving 60 miles an hour!

The next day, on Rodeo Avenue in Sausalito, I came upon a woman in a car parked in the traffic lane of the street. I stopped behind her and saw her take off her bra without removing her blouse, put the car in gear and move down the street!

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter you printed from the reader who objected to receiving heavily perfumed bills from department stores, here's how my wife and I handled that situation:

We cut up that store's credit card in several pieces and mailed it back with a note stating we objected to the store stinking up our mailbox to advertise a perfume that it was promoting. It worked like a charm!

Within days, we received a telephone call from the store's credit manager wanting to restore our credit card and assuring us that it would be no problem to flag our account and send us regular bills that wouldn't stink up our mailbox.

thinking aloud

By Kayla Pursley
Lifestyles Editor

I recently flew to Wisconsin to attend the memorial service for a friend's mother and to drive her car back to Pampa (over 1100 mile trip).

At the airport there was a woman in a wheel chair in front of me and she was made to get up and walk through the metal detector. What do they do with people who can't walk through? What happens to people who have metal leg braces or how about people who have metal plates in their head?

I was assigned seat 29D in the back of the plane and I loved it. I'm going to request that seat from now on whenever I have to fly anywhere. It is the seat right next to the back exit. I was served first, didn't have to hassle with someone laying back in my lap in the seat ahead of me and couldn't have been any closer to the restrooms. On the hour and 45 minute flight to Chicago from Dallas, I got to see my fellow travelers as they came back to use the bathroom. One very young traveler got to the back and hollered up to his mom "which one is the boys?" I was happy to tell him he had his choice.

I know some of you are thinking that statistically the back of the plane is not the safest place to be in case of an emergency. But, hey, I don't get on the plane if I think it is going to crash.

On the drive home I was told I'd get to see lots of interesting country side. True, I did, up until 5 p.m. Wisconsin is on the eastern end of the central time zone and it gets dark early there. I also saw a sign that read "Drive carefully for the next 6 miles." I thought to myself "I planned on driving carefully for the next 600, thank you very much. How were you suppose to drive after the six miles, like you were in a demolition derby?"

I traveled across six states coming home. Can anyone tell me who owns the strip of land between the "You are now leaving (state)" sign and the "Welcome to (state)" sign?

In the year ahead you may make a concerted effort to upgrade your relationships. People who do not match or meet your standards could be weeded out.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll function best today if you feel you have freedom of action and mobility. Don't get involved in situations that can tie you down or slow you up. Sagittarius, treat your self to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Not what you do for yourself, but what you do for others will be the things that give you the greatest gratification today. Let your compassionate inclinations establish your priorities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Close, personal relationships should prove to be extremely significant today. Friends could do constructive things for you and you could be rather helpful to them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Continue to elevate your sights a bit where your goals and objectives are concerned. What was hard for you to achieve previously could be easier for you now.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your intuition pertaining to the eventual outcome of events might be more on target than usual today. If you sense something strongly, abide by your insights.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If there is a special type of favor you require today that can be granted by a person you've helped recently, don't be afraid to state your needs. This individual wants to reciprocate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) That which you cannot accomplish on your own today looks like it can be achieved through an effective partnership arrangement. Seek allies in areas where you feel weak.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Work you have been neglecting lately can be brought under control today if you have the mind to do so. Being industrious and productive will prove to be gratifying.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try to break away from your normal mundane routines today and do something lighter that is a bit challenging but fun. A change of pace will be helpful now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Strive to be positive today regarding the outcome of events, because this will have a strong effect upon end results. If you think you can get something done, you can.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Several people who can be helpful to your present interests may confide in you today and give you inside information not revealed to others. Be an attentive listener.

49ers sack New York

By STEVE WILSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — The tale of this game could be read in the welts on the ribs of Joe Montana and Phil Simms, the swelling in Lawrence Taylor's right leg, the fatigue on everyone's face.

It could be heard in the anger in the voices of the San Francisco 49ers and the New York Giants on the field and in their weary, sometimes bitter words afterward.

For 3 1/2 hours Monday night, the teams with the best records in the NFC played a brutal game of football. In perhaps a preview of the conference championship matchup, the 49ers came away a 34-24 winner.

"I think we'll see them again somewhere down the line," said Giants defensive end Leonard Marshall, still upset by the play that knocked Taylor out of the game in the second quarter with knee and ankle sprains.

"Lawrence Taylor was cut down on a cheap shot," Marshall said. "He was cut (down) from behind."

San Francisco tackle Steve Wallace, who was involved in the play, said that after Taylor went down "there was bad blood. They were saying we shouldn't have cut him ... but it wasn't intentional."

Five turnovers by the Giants — including two interceptions and a fumble on their final four possessions — kept the 49ers from giving away their second straight game.

Mike Cofer, given a reprieve by a penalty, kicked a 45-yard field goal with 4:12 remaining to put the 49ers ahead for good. Cofer had missed badly from 50 yards, but got a second chance because New York's Reyna Thompson had lined up the neutral zone.

"We made a good comeback, but we made a couple of mistakes at the end of the game and that lost it for us right there," Giants coach Bill Parcells said.

Joe Montana completed 18 of his first 19 passes, including three for first-half touchdowns, to give San Francisco a 24-7 lead. Then, after being knocked out of the game briefly with sore ribs, he returned to conduct a familiar game-winning drive in the final minutes.

San Francisco linebacker Bill Romanowski (53) celebrates after sacking Giants quarterback Phil Simms Monday night.

"I like to think we're going to win them all, but then there's a game like this where you work and you work and you're still hanging by your fingernails at the end," said Jerry Rice, who caught his 15th touchdown pass. "Nobody likes to play like that, but when it's close we know we can come through every time."

The Giants, boasting the stingiest defense in the conference — 16 points per game — permitted Montana to improve his league-leading 70 percent completion rate, hitting 27 of 33 passes for 292 yards.

But Simms brought the Giants back, engineering two second-half touchdown drives and New York eventually tied the score at 24 midway through the final period.

After Cofer's field goal, however, Simms was intercepted for the third time, this one by Eric Wright, setting up Tom Rathman's 1-yard insurance touchdown with 1:08 remaining.

Simms completed 25 of 48 passes for 326 yards. Rookie David Meggett took a swing pass from Simms, raced through the secondary and slipped a tackle by Chet Brooks at the 15 as he completed a 53-yard scoring play to cut the lead to 24-17.

When Carl Banks slapped the ball out of Montana's hands and defensive end John Washington recovered at the New York 13, the Giants had a chance to tie it.

But Jim Burt, a recent 49ers pickup to shore up the nose tackle position in Michael Carter's absence, forced a fumble by Meggett to kill one threat, and Brooks' interception of a Simms pass at the 49ers' 1-yard line with 11:40 left in the game wiped out another.

The Giants finally drew even with 7:06 left after Banks hammered Mike Wilson and Mark Collins recovered at the San Francisco 30. Disdaining a field goal on fourth-and-goal from the 7, Simms lofted the tying pass to Odessa Turner in the left corner of the end zone.

It was a gamble that paid off for the Giants, but their luck ran out when Cofer got his second chance for a field goal and Simms threw the ball straight to Wright.

Colorado makes first appearance at No. 1

By The Associated Press

Colorado is No. 1 in college football for the first time in school history. While members of the team said it will be fun to have some "bragging rights," they won't consider their work done until Jan. 1.

That's when the Buffaloes, previously No. 2 behind top-ranked Notre Dame, meet the Fighting Irish in the Orange Bowl for what could be the national championship.

Colorado moved up in The Associated Press poll on Monday after Miami beat Notre Dame 27-10 Saturday. The Fighting Irish, who had been No. 1 since the first week of the season, fell to No. 5, while Miami rose three places to No. 4.

Alabama, the only other major undefeated team, moved up two places to No. 2 while once-beaten Michigan remained third after beating Ohio State 28-18. Alabama, which had the week off, finishes its regular season Saturday at Auburn.

The top five teams all figure to have a shot at the national championship. Colorado can win it by beating Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl, but if the Buffaloes lose it would open the door for the other four teams.

"It is going to be our ultimate challenge," Colorado coach Bill McCartney said. "Anyone who knows anything about Notre Dame and its great traditions knows that they will bounce back from the Miami loss. You can count on that."

Colorado players expressed reserved pleasure on Monday.

"It's really not a big deal, because we've still got one more to play," defensive co-captain Michael Jones said. "If we lose, it all goes out the window."

"It's a great feeling," guard Darrin Muilenburg said, "but we know we have to prove it and finish it off with one last game."

"I feel the same as I did when we were No. 9," linebacker Alfred Williams said. "It feels good, but there's no golden light shining on me. The way everything has fallen, I think we should be in the top two. It's funny how the rankings go, but it'll be fun to have some bragging rights."

University president Gordon Gee was a little more enthused.

"We now have a football team our chemistry department can be proud of," he said, referring to the Nobel Prize for chemistry recently awarded to CU chemist Thomas Coch.

"To remain (No. 1)," McCartney said, "we know that we have to defeat Notre Dame. If we do that, we can lay claim to be the national champions. It is going to be our ultimate challenge."

Colorado, which completed an 11-0 regular season on Nov. 18, received 53 first-place votes and 1,468 of a possible 1,500 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Miami got three first-place votes, with two going to Alabama and one to Michigan.

Alabama received 1,351 points, while Michigan got 1,332 and Miami 1,319. Notre Dame, whose 23-game winning streak was snapped by Miami, received 1,231 points.

Florida State and Nebraska, who will meet in the Fiesta Bowl, are No. 6 and No. 7. Although both teams were idle, each dropped one spot because of Miami's move.

Rounding out the Top 10 are Tennessee, Arkansas and Illinois. Tennessee beat Kentucky 31-10, Arkansas downed Texas A&M 23-22 and Illinois routed Northwestern 63-14.

Auburn is 11th, followed by Southern California, Houston, Clemson, Virginia, Texas A&M, West Virginia, Penn State, Brigham Young, Duke, Ohio State, Michigan State, Hawaii, Pittsburgh and Texas Tech.

No teams moved into the Top 25 and none dropped out, although there were several shifts in the order.

Texas Tech and Pittsburgh dropped the most, the former falling seven spots after losing to Houston 40-24, the latter plunging five places after losing to Penn State 16-13.

The victory propelled Penn State from No. 22 to No. 18, the biggest jump of any team.

NFL investigating Cowboys charge that Ryan offered players bounties

IRVING (AP) — Luis Zendejas told the NFL the names of "four or five" Eagles who he said told him that Philadelphia coach Buddy Ryan had placed bounties on certain players before Thursday's game.

Two National Football League representatives talked to the Dallas Cowboys on Monday about Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson's charge that Ryan offered cash to players to take out Zendejas and quarterback Troy Aikman, a charge Ryan has called ridiculous.

Johnson made the accusation after the Cowboys' Thanksgiving Day 27-0 loss to the Eagles.

Zendejas, the Cowboys placekicker who was cut by the Eagles earlier this month, said he told Warren Welch of NFL security Monday that the Philadelphia players either warned him before the game or admitted to him after the game that players were to be rewarded for knocking certain Cowboys out of the contest.

"I gave him the information," said Zendejas. "I told him all the things about the whole thing. He says he's going to question them."

Dallas running back Junior Taulatlatasi said he also spoke to NFL security about allegations that the Eagles had placed bounties on other players during his years with the team, from 1986 to 1988. In addition, league officials spoke with Johnson and punter Mike Saxon.

Zendejas, who says Aikman and Saxon also were targeted with bounties, would not disclose the names of the Eagles given to the NFL.

Zendejas said he hoped the Eagles who talked to him would go public, but said the players had expressed to him a fear of reprisals from Ryan.

"I just pretty much have to go on the hope that (an Eagles player) will stand up and say what he believes," Zendejas said. "Buddy's job is on the line, and he didn't do a very good job of keeping this quiet because he trusted it to a rookie (linebacker Jessie Small). Someone will spill their guts. They all said after the game they wouldn't come after me and that they were my friends, somebody will stand up and say the truth."

Small has denied that he carried out a bounty on Zendejas.

And Eagles reserve tight end David Little said Zendejas' claim that he had passed on a warning was a fabrication.

"Luis seemed to be using me as a scapegoat to get Buddy for maybe Buddy cutting him," Little said. "I really don't understand it."

NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue met with Eagles players Monday as part of a series of trips to discuss views of the league with the players.

Tagliabue told reporters an investigation is under way, but added he had few facts available to him at the moment.

Tagliabue said he couldn't guess what possible penalties could be pressed against the Eagles if the allegations proved true.

Tagliabue also said the case might be difficult to prove, a point Johnson has conceded.

Junior Sheila Reed looks for an open teammate during the Lady Harvesters' victory over Perryton last Tuesday. Reed is averaging six points per game for Pampa.

Lady Harvesters open district tonight

By SONNY BOHANAN
Sports Editor

After a full week off, the Pampa Lady Harvesters spring back into action with a vengeance tonight, taking on the Borger Lady Bulldogs in the District 1-4A basketball opener for both teams.

Pampa enters the contest with a 1-1 record after a 60-51 victory over Perryton and a 61-55 loss to Dalhart.

Borger, which competed in the Wichita Falls tourney last weekend, stands at 5-1. The Lady Bulldogs opened the tournament with a victory over Fort Worth Dunbar, then suffered their first loss of the season to Abilene Cooper before defeating Andrews in the loser's bracket on Saturday.

The Lady Bulldogs, who have played four more games than Pampa, would seem to have an edge in early-season experience, although Lady Harvester coach Albert Nichols hopes the week of rest pays off for his team.

"Borger's not that deep," Nichols said. "They only have seven girls on the varsity, and they might be tired after that tournament, so it could work to our advantage."

The Lady Bulldogs pulled off one-point victories over Palo Duro and Tascosa to open the season, then clinched their third straight win with a 52-20 whipping of Gruver.

"PD and Tascosa are both really good teams, and we were happy to be able to beat them by one point," said Borger coach Jill Schneider. "Three out of our six games have been decided by one point and another game was decided by two, so we're getting a taste of close games early in the season."

Post player Muriel Brown, who was a first team all-district selection last season, has led Borger in scoring during the first six games. At Wichita Falls, the 6-0 senior averaged 15-17 points per game, and she poured in 28 points against Pampa in 1988.

"They like to let her handle the ball and shoot it, and we've got to keep her from having a good game," Nichols said. "We've got to shut her down."

Nichols hopes to use Pampa's greater numbers to overpower the Lady Bulldogs. Of Borger's seven varsity players, junior point-guard Tiffany Robinson is already out with an Achilles heel injury, leaving only six actual varsity players.

"We're gonna have to run 'em to death and wear 'em out with our 10 girls," Nichols said. "They're bigger than us, but that's nothing new. We're just gonna have to keep them off the boards."

Pampa's tallest player, Nikki Ryan, stands 2-1/2 inches shorter than Brown, but Ryan has averaged 20 points in Pampa's first two games. The PHS sophomore poured in 28 points against Perryton, including 21 in the second half, before fouling out with 4-1/2 minutes to play.

Bridgett Mathis, also a sophomore, is averaging 12.5 points per game, followed by juniors Crystal Cook with nine and Sheila Reed with six.

On the flipside, the Lady Harvesters have been plagued by foul trouble with at least three players fouling out in each game.

"We've got to cut out our fouling," Nichols said. "Borger's a good free throw shooting team, and we can't afford to put them on the line."

Following Tuesday's showdown with Borger, Pampa travels to Hays, Kan., for the Hays City Shootout Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 30 through Dec. 2. The Lady Harvesters currently own the Hays traveling trophy after capturing the tournament championship there last season.

Opponents and game times for the tournament will be published later this week.

Tonight's varsity game against Borger tips off at 6:30 p.m. at McNeely Fieldhouse, while the junior varsity plays at 8 p.m. in the adjacent gym.

Caprock downs Pampa wrestlers

Only one week after their first foray into varsity wrestling, the Harvesters showed marked improvement in Monday's dual meet against Caprock at McNeely Fieldhouse. Pampa won three out of 13 matches to pick up 10 points in the team standings. Although the Longhorns won, 59-10, the Harvesters managed two more victories than they had in last Tuesday's 78-3 loss to Boys Ranch. Chad Chairez got Pampa's first victory Tuesday with a 4-2 decision over Omar Arreola in the 112-pound weight class. After seven consecutive pins by Caprock, Pampa's 160-pounder Dale Larkin got the Harvesters back into the win column with a 23-9 victory over Sabian Lopez. Chris Archibald knocked off Brian Reyes, 8-5, in the 171-pound division to notch Pampa's final win of the night. Jimmy Corley, a 103-pounder, lost a 16-0 major decision to Caprock's John Bjork. Corley is the only Pampa wrestler that lost by a decision rather than by a pin in both of the first two meets. "I think we showed a lot of improvement," said Pampa assistant coach Steve Kuhn. "We're looking forward to going against Palo Duro and Amarillo High." Head coach Dennis Cavalier agreed. "We looked a lot better technically. I saw us grabbing an ankle where before we weren't." Pampa travels to Palo Duro next Monday, Dec. 4, for another dual meet. The matches are scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m.

Penalties Houston's biggest enemy

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — The harder the Houston Oilers try to curb their penalties the more they seem to veer off track.

"I've never been anywhere where we tried harder to curb the penalties," Coach Jerry Glanville said Monday. "I make a training reel of every player and he watches himself (on penalties committed)."

The training reels will be much longer this week after Sunday's 34-0 loss to Kansas City in which the Oilers committed a team record 16 penalties for 115 yards in losses.

The Oilers are the most penalized team in the NFL with 118 penalties for 921 yards.

"That's discouraging and disappointing," Glanville said. "I've never been anywhere a team worked harder on those things. In our team meeting Saturday night, that's all we talked about."

The Oilers drilled all week against the uneven count cadence of Chiefs quarterback Steve DeBerg, designed to pull defenses offside.

"(Chuck) Hartlieb did a great job giving us the three-count and we still had people offside," Glanville said.

The Oilers had four defensive offside penalties, one helping to set up a field goal and another nullifying an interception by Richard Johnson.

Houston has won nine of its last 33 road games but Glanville won't concede the Oilers are a bad road team.

"I don't think it's playing on the road and it certainly wasn't the weather," Glanville said. "I believe we just didn't execute and got whipped. We miss our fans but so do all the other teams."

The Oilers now must fall back on another favorite Glanville statistic: the Oilers have not lost two games in a row since the 1986 season, a string that will be tested at Pittsburgh Sunday.

"We've played some great games on the road in bad weather," Glanville said. "We've taken fans out of the game on the road before and we'll have to do it again at Pittsburgh."

The Oilers' injuries have mounted almost as frequently as their penalties.

They had five starters and a key backup on the sidelines before Sunday's game, wide receivers Drew Hill and Ernest Givins, linebacker Robert Lyles, nose guard Richard Byrd and center Jay Pennison.

George Yarno, Pennison's backup, also missed the game, forcing starting guard Bruce Matthews to play at center and Don Maggs replaced Matthews.

The shuffled offensive line didn't allow quarterback Warren Moon enough time to operate the offense.

"We struggled in the offense line," Glanville said. "The errors we made there you can understand. We didn't block as well in the backfield where we should have."

Byrd went down in pregame warmups with a back strain. "It went downhill from there," Glanville said.

They finished the game with 13 players suffering some kind of injury.

The Oilers, 7-5, missed a chance to take control of the AFC Central Division and fell instead into second place, one-half game behind the Cleveland Browns, 7-4-1.

"But the good news is we haven't slipped any as far as winning the division," Glanville said. "We'll start our stretch run and as we said at the end of last season, it will come down to the last four games."

After playing at Pittsburgh Sunday, the Oilers have home games against Tampa Bay and Cleveland and a road game at Cincinnati to close out the regular season.

Rice only victor among SWC teams Monday

By The Associated Press

Sharp shooting guard Dana Hardy led a Rice attack that crushed Tulane 91-64 to keep the Green Wave winless since returning to college basketball for the first time in four years.

Other Southwest Conference teams didn't fare as well Monday night.

Hardy hit three 3-pointers in a row midway through the second half as the Owls put the game away with a 19-8 run. Hardy finished with 20 points and teammate Kenneth Rourke added 18 for the Owls in the non-conference game in Houston.

Michael Christian scored a game-high 26 points for Tulane, which fell to 0-2.

Rice was the only victor among SWC teams in action Monday night. At the Great Alaska Shootout in Anchorage, Texas A&M fell to Hawaii 75-71. Southern Methodist lost a home game to Vanderbilt, 65-60, and the University of Texas-San Antonio knocked off Texas Christian University 74-64 in Fort Worth.

TCU coach Moe Iba had a simple explanation for his team's defeat.

"We are an awful ballclub right now," Iba said.

The difference was at the free throw line, he said.

The Horned Frogs (1-1) were 7-of-22, while the Roadrunners (2-0) sealed the victory by hitting eight straight free throws in the final 28 seconds.

Darryl Eaton hit five straight 3-pointers and was 4-of-4 at the free throw line for 19 points to lead UTSA.

Bruce Wheatley added 18 points and 13 rebounds for UTSA, which led 36-34 at the half.

Texas A&M was victimized at the free throw line, too. Hawaii's Chris Gaines hit 19 of 22 free throws to pace Hawaii's 75-71 victory. Gaines had 24 points as Hawaii improved to 2-1. David Harris led the Aggies (1-2) with 18 points, followed by Freddy Ricks with 16 and Tony Milton with 13.

SMU lost its home opener for the first time in 13 years when sophomore center Todd Milholland sparked Vanderbilt (1-0) with 15 points.

Milholland hit four free throws in the final 19 seconds to drop SMU to 1-1.

Senior forward John Colborne led the Mustangs with 17 points. Guards Rod Hampton and Troy Valentino each scored a career-high 12 points.

SMU coach John Shumate said the Mustangs "played scared."

"That's where inexperience comes in, especially at the point position. I thought we played very poorly," Shumate said. "We cannot have 14 turnovers against a good team."

Mavericks initiate trade talks involving Tarpley

FORT WORTH (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks are seeking to trade suspended forward Roy Tarpley to another National Basketball Association team, a Fort Worth newspaper reported today.

One team owner told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram Monday that the Mavericks had had trade talks with the Golden State Warriors and Los Angeles Clippers about Tarpley, who was suspended indefinitely by his substance-abuse counselors following his arrest Nov. 15 on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

"I think (Mavericks owner) Donald Carter will take whatever steps are necessary to make things work," the owner, who was not named, said. "A lot of people would be interested in Roy."

"The Mavs aren't a team that's going to sit on its hands," the owner said. "They are making a lot of calls and engaging in a lot of communication."

Mavericks vice president Rick Sund, who could not be reached by the newspaper for comment, said recently that he does not expect Tarpley back "for a long time."

Mavericks General Manager Norm Sonju said Monday he has been in contact with Dr. David Lewis, director of the ASAP Family Treatment Center concerning Tarpley, but still does not know when Tarpley will be allowed to return to the team.

"It's totally Dr. Lewis' call," Sonju told the Dallas Times Herald Monday. "They may ask for our opinion. But so far, there is no telling when Dr. Lewis will be satisfied that Roy is ready to return."

Sonju said he has talked to Lewis and Gary Betman, the NBA's general counsel, within the past few days about Tarpley and reports that Tarpley seems to be making progress.
