Bush pledges U.S. cooperation with European allies

(AP Laserphoto)

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — President Bush today hailed the "peaceful revolution" sweeping Communist Eastern Europe and said the United States and its European allies would work together to see that "individual freedom everywhere replace coercion and tyranny."

At the same time, Bush told a news conference after meeting with NATO leaders that the United States would keep its troops in Europe as long as leaders there desire.

Bush made his comments one day after wrapping up a two-day summit with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev that both said heralded a new era in East-West relations.

Bush's meeting with NATO leaders were private, but Dutch Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek told reporters the superpower leaders had agreed to aim for an East-West summit in Vienna next summer to sign a landmark treaty reducing conventional forces in Europe.

Bush and the allied leaders met as Gorbachev was convening a meeting of a radically reformed Warsaw Pact in Moscow.

Bush said that while "all was not sweetness and light" at the Malta summit, he believes Gorbachev is sincere about nurturing reform in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union. The president renewed his longstanding support for Gorbachev's policy of perestroika.

Asked what had emerged at the summit, he said "I think he took my measure and I took his and I think we both feel more comfortable about our common objectives."

He said Gorbachev was "determined and unemotional" in their private talks. The Soviet leader "seemed very much in control" and "very confident in discussing without notes a wide array of subjects with me."

Bush was flying home after his news conference.

The 16 NATO and seven Warsaw Pact nations are negotiating in Vienna on cuts in conventional forces in Europe. Van den Broek quoted Bush as saying he hoped an accord could be reached about mid-1990.

"Let's get it done," the president said. He said he wanted the accord "in the bag" before moving on to more complicated matters.

The conventional arms talks are designed to reduce U.S. troops in Europe by 30,000 and Soviet troops by 325,000 to a level of about 275,000 on each side. The negotiations also are attempting to control tanks and other weapons.

"The importance of this is that it indicates both (Bush and Gorbachev) want to make an effort to reach such an agreement next year," Van den Broek said.

"In that context, the term mid-1990 was mentioned. Without a doubt, that should be regarded as positive," he said.

Conventional forces aside, the superpowers are negotiating a treaty to cut long-range nuclear weapons by up to 50 percent, and a separate agreement on banning chemical weapons.

Bush said his view of Gorbachev had changed significantly over the past year. He said the Soviet leader's response to turmoil in Eastern Europe "practically mandates" a fresh perspective of the Kremlin leader.

The president began his news conference with a statement that said a "peaceful revolution" was taking place in Eastern Europe, where five hardline communist regimes have fallen in recent weeks — and some countries have experienced more than one change in government.

He said the task for Western nations is to consolidate the fruits of this peaceful revolution and provide the architecture for the continued peaceful changes and end the division of Europe and Germany and create a "Europe whole and free."

At the same time, he said the Western alliance "must remain strong," and said the United States "will maintain significant military forces in Europe as long as our allies desire our presence."

Even as Bush was preparing to leave for home, Secretary of State James A. Baker III was making arrangements for a trip to West Berlin next week. His trip will take him to the most notable symbol of the Cold War — the Berlin Wall — which has effectively crumbled.

Aquino coup attempt goes on, despite claims of government

By EILEEN GUERRERO
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Government jet fighters and helicopter gunships blasted rebel positions Sunday after soldiers trying to overthrow President Corazon Aquino bombarded the armed forces headquarters with heavy artillery.

The fighting belied government claims that the latest coup attempt against Mrs. Aquino had failed. Officials say at least 42 people have been killed and 200 wounded since the rebels launched their attacks early Friday.

Witnesses said two jet fighters Sunday flew at least seven passes rocketing rebel strongholds near Camp Aguinaldo, the military headquarters in suburban Quezon City five miles east of Mrs. Aquino's offices.

A spokesman for the U.S.-run Clark Air Base said there were no American warplanes in the skies over Manila on Sunday. U.S. military planes began flying cover for government troops on Friday, hours after rebels launched their assaults, but American officials said the U.S. planes ended those flights at 6 a.m. Saturday.

A government spokesman said Mrs. Aquino and her family attended Mass at the Malacanang Palace and prayed for an end to the carnage.

In Manila's Makati financial district, mutineers continued to occupy the Intercontinental Hotel and other buildings. Witnesses said rebels atop the hotel fired bursts from a machine gun and snipers fired intermittently at motorists.

Police were preparing to move against the rebels late Saturday but drew back after the insurgents attacked, killing one policeman and wounding 14.

Rebels blasted Camp Aguinaldo with barrages from 105mm howitzers, setting fire to the Headquarters Service Company building and hundreds of military families fled the sprawling compound. Hospitals reported three people were killed and 25 wounded by the bombardment.

Brig. Gen. Rodolfo Biazon, chief of the Capital Defense Command, said some mutinous marines infiltrated the camp early Sunday, seizing the chapel, dispensary and other small buildings near the main gate.

He said the rebels smashed through the main gate with an armored vehicle that was immediately hit by ground fire from the defenders and the mutineers were unable to advance.

There was a fierce exchange of automatic weapons fire for about four hours until the rebel raiders agreed to negotiations, according to Biazon. He gave no details on any talks, however.

As fighting intensified Cardinal Jaime Sin, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Manila, appealed for the rebels to stop their attacks.

"Your crusade has resulted in the loss of so many innocent lives," he said in a radio address. "I am pleading with you to return to your senses and surrender."

Premier Modrow emerges as leader of East Germany's Communist party

By KEVIN COSTELLOE
Associated Press Writer

EAST BERLIN (AP) — New Premier Hans Modrow emerged today as the face of power in East Germany after the entire Communist Party leadership quit in disgrace and told a 25-member committee to salvage what it can.

The official ADN news agency reported that the 61-year-old reformer and former Dresden party chief was leading the country's delegation at the Warsaw Pact summit that began in Moscow today.

Also attending the summit were Foreign Minister Oskar Fischer and Egon Krenz, who resigned as party chief Sunday along with the party's 10-member ruling Politburo and its entire 163-member Central Committee.

Krenz was attending today's Moscow meeting in the largely ceremonial role of head of state. ADN mentioned no further role for Krenz.

Just two months ago, the party's hierarchy enforced iron-fisted rule. Now, the former ruling elite has its back against the wall as demands grow for punishment of those who lived in style while East Germany sunk into crisis.

Modrow, elected premier Nov. 13 by a Parliament casting off fidelity to the discredited Communists, now appears in charge of day-to-day affairs and official newspapers were predicting an imminent split in the Communist Party.

In Sunday's housecleaning, Erich Honecker, Krenz's predecessor as party leader, and 11 other members of the hard-line old guard were expelled from the party, three former Politburo members were arrested and the country's chief of trade with the West fled.

ADN reported that several regional party leaders called for Krenz and the 10-member Politburo to resign and that several thousand people also took part in opposition-organized rallies in Rostock and Magdeburg.

Late Saturday, 15,000 people rallied in the town of Plauen near the border with West Germany to press for quicker reform and call for a referendum on German reunification, ADN said.

The activists also expressed support for a two-hour "warning strike" set for Wednesday to press demands for more rapid change, ADN said.

Authorities are investigating allegations of massive official corruption.

A spokesman for the new party committee, Gregor Gysi, said its immediate task would be to investigate corruption among the discredited Communist elite.

"We want to form a modern socialist party guided by the rank and file. We want to save this country. We want to save socialism," said Gysi, a prominent East Berlin lawyer.

The committee will effectively rule as the party prepares for a special congress on Dec. 15, when it is expected to choose new leaders.

Krenz, who had taken over from Honecker on Oct. 18, was not named to the reform committee. His was the shortest reign of any East German leader.

Huge demonstrations continued despite the party leaders' resignation.

Several hundred thousand people joined hands to form "human chains" in sections across the country Sunday despite freezing temperatures. They held up signs calling for the removal of the "Central Committee mafia" and imprisonment for ex-party "criminals."

At a rally attended by an estimated 10,000 people in East Berlin, speaker after speaker grabbed the microphone to denounce the Communists.

Many questions remained unanswered Sunday night, not the least of which is how the Soviet Union will react if the country plunges further toward instability.

There are nearly 400,000 Soviet troops in East Germany, which still remains vital to Warsaw Pact military strategy despite improvements in East-West ties.

Prestidge files today for Precinct 2 JP

Margie N. Prestidge of Pampa filed this morning in the Gray County Clerk's Office for the position of Precinct 2 Justice of the Peace.

Prestidge, who has previously served as justice of the peace for 15 years, said she looks forward to the race.

She was Precinct 1 Justice of the Peace in Lefors from 1971 through 1985. She moved to Pampa about four years ago with plans on running for the justice of the peace, Precinct 2 position, she said.

Prestidge, who has more than 300 hours of justice of the peace schooling, is currently the manager of the Salvation Army thrift store on Cuyler Street.

She has raised two sons, one who owns his own business in Pampa, and the other who lives in Nebraska.

"It's what I've studied for all of these years," Prestidge said of the justice of the peace job.

SPS to sponsor clean air conference

It is possible for the United States to have clean air without threatening jobs or drastically raising energy prices for consumers.

That's the opinion of Southwestern Public Service Company, which will be sponsoring a Regional Industry Clean Air Conference Friday, Dec. 8, in Amarillo.

The conference, to begin at 10 a.m. at the Kingston Hotel, is meant to bring together industry leaders, business people and experts in economic development for an area wide seminar on the issue.

SPS officials are predicting that 200 people will attend the conference, which will run until 2:30 p.m.

W.R. Esler, SPS chairman of the board and chief executive officer, recently noted that Congress is expected to amend the federal Clean Air Act in early 1990.

He said some proposals could threaten jobs, raise consumer prices and restrict industrial expansion, while doing little to protect the environment.

"It's unclear at this point what form the revisions will take," Esler said. "But it's important that, while protecting the environment, the amendments don't put a stranglehold on jobs and consumers."

"This conference will serve as a forum for constructive alternatives."

SPS is said to be studying the potential economic impact of the proposed changes in the Clean Air Act, which they say could affect a large number of area industries, and will reported findings at the conference.

Speakers for the event will include Theresa Pugh, director of environmental quality, National Association of Manufacturers, Washington, D.C.; Terry Echols, senior program manager, Radian Corp., Austin; Kenneth Ladd, vice president, SPS, Amarillo; William Fay, administrator, Clean Air Working Group, Washington, D.C.; and Larry Milner, president and chief executive officer, Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Officials from ASARCO, J.M. Huber Corp., Diamond Shamrock and Phillips Petroleum will also be on hand for a panel discussion during the event.

For more information on the event, call SPS at 1-378-2120 or a local SPS office, company officials said.

Houston linked to Columbian cocaine trafficking

HOUSTON (AP) — At least 100 "solid" members of the Medellín drug cartel and thousands of operatives from the Cali cartel make Houston a cocaine trafficking link from South America.

The Houston Post reported in a copyright story that cartel members are suspected in at least 10 local slayings, send million of dollars in cash through the city and operate a communication network that sends word of arrests back to South America.

"From day one, whenever big seizures of cocaine began happening in Houston, you can bet either the Medellín or Cali cartels were involved," said Jesse Rodriguez, an assistant U.S. attorney based in Houston and a member of the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force.

Charles Gutensohn, national head of cocaine investigations for the Drug Enforcement Administration, said the two cartels, which supply between 80 and 90 percent of the world's cocaine, were attracted to Houston because of its proximity to Mexico, its large minority population and its chemical production capabilities.

After the Medellín cocaine smugglers pioneered trafficking through Miami in the 1970s, Gutensohn said, "the cartels realized they had to vary their method of shipments and smuggling."

Gutensohn said the cartels' clout in Houston is equalled in the U.S. only in Miami, New York and Los Angeles. Evidence of the cartels' influence is noticeable throughout the city.

Banks of phone booths set up in Houston businesses allow operatives to communicate with Columbian drug chieftains without a record of calls, investigators say.

Inconspicuous financial institutions launder money and wire funds back to cartel hideouts. Smugglers even use armored cars to ferry funds through the city, the Post reported.

Authorities said the cartels are suspected in at least 10 murders, most recently the July slaying of Jorge Anibal Condono, whose bound and gagged body was found in the trunk of a car. Informants told authorities that Condono, 23, owed the Medellín cartel $650,000, said Houston homicide investigator Jaime Escalante.

Houston police estimate that at least 35 percent of the city's homicides this year are directly linked to narcotics, with the great majority involving cocaine and crack. Last year, Houston police estimated about 23 percent of all homicides closely involved narcotics.

A February 1987 double murder, believed to have been orchestrated by Cali cartel assassins, ended in a ritual meant to ward off evil spirits, said detective Frank Pratt with the Special Investigations Unit of the sheriff's department.

The victims' bodies were drained of blood in a bathtub, Pratt said. "Then they were laid out on the bedroom floor, and they (the killers) did a voodoo dance over their bodies and bit the tongues of the victims," he said.

But federal and local authorities say ranking cartel members drive modest cars to avoid an indication of prominence and live in upper-middle-class and high-income neighborhoods, void of high crime and street-corner drug peddlers.

They mingle with their neighbors, work in their yards, go to church, enroll their children in car pools and attend school functions, the investigators said.

Well-wishers root for poisoned tree; experts wait for spring

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — People no longer leave chicken soup beneath the branches of the historic Treaty Oak, but well-wishers still send support from as far as West Germany for its struggle to survive a poisoning attack.

Since the May 31 discovery that it was poisoned with a powerful herbicide, the centuries-old live oak has shed five sets of leaves. The sixth is sparse.

It will be spring, though, before experts know the fate of the tree where legend has it that Stephen F.

Austin, the father of Texas, signed a treaty with the Indians. The Handbook of Texas says there is little foundation for that tale, but that hasn't diminished the popularity of the landmark.

The oak is 50 feet tall and has a limb spread of about 120 feet.

Throughout the summer, well-wishers brought cans of chicken soup, flowers and cards, and rock crystals that some believed would transmit healing powers. Visitors still pin get-well messages, woven friendship bracelets, ribbons and beads on a line strung around a barrier surrounding the tree.

A West German company

recently shipped organic fertilizer for the tree, which has undergone myriad treatments. Contaminated soil was replaced, and some roots were severed in a move to keep the tree from absorbing more poison. Shade screens were mounted on telephone poles to protect it from the summer sun, and it was misted with water to ease heat stress. A saltwater solution was pumped in to try to counteract the poison, followed by energy-giving sugar water.

Recent tests show the level of the herbicide, Velpar, has been significantly reduced, said city forester John Giedraitis. If leaves that bud next spring stay on the tree, "We're in luck, and the tree will survive."

Treatment has cost about $80,000, plus $40,000 worth of services. Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot has pledged to cover the cash outlay.

The man charged with felony criminal mischief in the poisoning has been waging a battle of his own.

Paul Stedman Cullen, 45, of Elroy, has been in jail since his June 29 arrest, unable to make $20,000 bail or get it reduced. Because of a prior felony conviction, he could face life in prison if convicted in the poisoning, which authorities say may have been done in some sort of ritual.

If an effort to quash Cullen's indictment fails, defense attorney Terrence Kirk said he will try to get the case moved out of Travis County. Some people have suggested that the tree's poisoner should be hung from its branches.

"This city basically has been transformed into a city of druids, tree-worshippers. People that never heard of the Treaty Oak before — wouldn't know the Treaty Oak from a cactus — are now clamoring for blood," Kirk said.

Vengeance isn't the only emotion evident, however.

Gordon Israel, who lives across the street from the oak and picnicked under its branches as a child, is growing seedlings from its acorns. Israel said he hopes some seedlings could be planted in the Treaty Oak's place if it dies.

An enterprising entrepreneur sold T-shirts bearing a drawing of the oak superimposed on a red heart. The sales raised more than $15,000 for a special Treaty Oak fund to finance tree plantings citywide.

Well-wishers sent a post card addressed to "Treaty Oak, Austin, Texas" — and a postal worker delivered it to the tree.

An Austin foundry worker suggested bronzing the tree if it dies, at a cost of more than $1 million, and replanting the metal replica.

While the spring growth will be a milestone, Giedraitis said, it could be two years before the tree is "out of the woods." Even if it lives, it always will bear the effects, he said, like a tree that has been struck by lightning.

But no matter what it finally looks like, the Treaty Oak is special to visitors like Margaret Lounsbury of San Jose, Calif. "I'm a tree person. ... To me, this is how a tree is supposed to look," said Ms. Lounsbury. "Well, not with the dead leaves, but the shape."

"We come here to see this thing, how it's doing, every time we come to Austin," said Elmer Immell of Amarillo.

"We came to wish the tree well," added his wife, Margot.

Inventor makes life easier on those waiting for the bus

By ALAN NELSON
Waco Tribune-Herald

WACO (AP) — No one stands at the bus stop for fun.

Thirty years ago, Charles E. Brubaker did not have a car.

He was standing at Pittsburgh bus stop in the snow.

Brubaker decided he'd rather be waiting in a bar or store rather than outside in the snow. However, one would miss his bus if not at the bus stop.

That's when he had the inspiration for a device that would signal the rider when the bus was near. Brubaker, 65, received a patent earlier this year on a bus signaling system.

He never had time to develop his idea — until two years ago. That's when he met a Baylor graduate student, Donald Purdy, who showed him how it could be done. Purdy now lives in Phoenix.

He applied for the patent Jan. 11, 1988.

On Aug. 30 this year, he received it. The formal name is Route Indicating Signaling Systems For Transport Vehicles. The patent number is 4,857,925.

"I don't ride the bus any more, but a lot of people do," he said.

Bus riders would carry a device the size of a transistor radio or smaller. When their bus moved to within 1 1/2 blocks or so of the bus stop, a signal transmitted from the bus would alert the rider.

The buses have transmitters. Each bus has routes encoded into the transmitter, which is transmitted continuously. The driver punches the route number into the transmitter. Whenever the bus moves into the area of the bus stop, the bus rider's radio signals him. This allows the rider to wait in a store or restaurant in comfort instead of standing in the weather.

The invention uses digital circuit technology. It is designed to be expandable. In addition, display options are possible on the receiver, including a light that comes on when the bus arrives or a scrolling sign which can include the bus and bus route number.

Brubaker attended Pennsylvania State University two years, where he studied architecture. A disabled veteran, Brubaker was a parachute trooper during World War II, and saw action in the Battle of the Bulge. His job history includes a stint for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and a restaurant equipment business. He now is retired.

"I almost had a patent before," he said. "Someone beat me. It was a vacuum cleaning system that you just push into the wall."

But Brubaker hopes this system will catch on. Business operators would welcome this device to keep customers in their stores longer, Purdy said. Because people could wait inside instead of on the street, more people would ride the bus.

"It would be good for downtown districts," he said. "And it has applications for any commercial fleet you are trying to keep tabs on. It doesn't have to be just for buses."

Charles Brubaker holds a diagram of his signaling invention.

Companies seeking government contracts to use Gulf oil rig platforms in drug war

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A consortium of five companies is seeking government contracts to enlist two Gulf of Mexico oil rig platforms in the nationwide war on illicit drugs.

The companies are negotiating with the U.S. Navy to convert one rig into a radar station. They hope that will lead to a contract on the second rig.

The converted rigs would become waterborne bases for drug interception activities and serve as a huge buoy and support station for a blimp-like balloon called an Aerostat. The high-flying device will be equipped with radar to detect drug traffickers on the sea and in the air.

The consortium of companies includes the New Orleans-based Tidewater Marine Service, Blue Sea Corp. of Houston, Brown & Root of Houston, HAM Industries of Pascagoula, Miss., and TCOM Ltd. Partnership of Baltimore.

"The project has been blessed in concept," said Richard M. Currence, president of Tidewater Marine.

"They had a land-based system in mind. We've replaced that with an offshore system, at least partially," said R.D. Gaul, president of Blue Sea.

The sea-based radar systems were incorporated into the Department of Defense's program in the spring, Gaul said. In 1988, DOD was designated by former President Ronald Reagan as the lead federal agency in the anti-drug smuggling campaign.

If the business consortium's Gulf contract is approved, Brown & Root, Blue Sea and HAM Industries would design, engineer and convert at least the one rig into an observatory for illicit aircraft and small boats, officials said.

The work would begin at Sabine Pass, the location of the rig, and would be completed at HAM Industries.

The first offshore rig could be in operation as early as summer. The second system could be working six months later.

The federal government is in the process of ringing the southern edge of the United States with a string of overlapping radar stations. They are being spaced 200 to 300 miles apart from San Diego to Puerto Rico to detect drug smuggling from Mexico and Central and South America to the Caribbean.

Before the five companies stepped in with the idea for two sea-based stations, the government had been planning exclusively on land-based radar stations across the southern United States.

Based on his knowledge of previous work by TCOM and Tidewater, Gaul developed the idea of bridging the Gulf with two radar-equipped semi-submersible oil platforms.

"It's a major step forward in terms of being able to handle large Aerostats," Gaul said.

Going around the Gulf of Mexico would have required at least four land-based observation posts.

Estimates for installing land-based systems range from $60 million to $80 million, Gaul said. Costs of converting the two rigs into radar stations are not final but original estimated placed the price at $50 million, he said.

The two semi-submersible oil platforms, the Western Pacesetter II in Mobile, Ala., and Western Pacesetter III in Port Arthur, Texas, are being purchased by the Defense Department.

TENSION HEADACHES

If you're bothered by headache that seems to have its origin at the base of your skull, you may be suffering from tension headache.

Tension headaches can be caused by an irritation of the nerves in the area of the spine immediately under the skull. These are called the suboccipital nerves. They pass through small openings in the spinal column to muscles in the surrounding area. Any abnormal pressure of dysfunction of neck and muscles can irritate the nerves, causing tension.

The tension doesn't cause the headache. To treat this form of headache, attention should be paid to the bone and muscle structures. They should be returned to normal balance so they can function properly again.

Medication is not the answer to tension headaches. Aspirin and other painkillers may give you temporary relief-but they won't solve the problem. Once the source of the problem is found and treated, THEN you can get the relief you need.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

End forced abortion for retarded persons

The New York Times reported this week that Communist officials of Gansu, a province in northwest China, are "aggressively enforcing a new law requiring the sterilization of mentally retarded people."

"So far this year, officials here say, more than 1,000 people have been sterilized under the law, which requires people with significant mental retardation to be sterilized if they are married or intend to be married." If the couple violates the edict and the woman gets pregnant anyway, the government forces her to get an abortion.

This is reminiscent of the extensive eugenics scheme imposed by Adolf Hitler to biologically engineer, through mass sterilization and mass executions, his "master race." It also resembles a program imposed in India by Indira Gandhi during the mid-1970s. Her program, which mostly affected India's Moslem minority, led to the end of her dictatorship and the restoration of democracy.

Alas, even America is not unblemished. Our governments, mostly at the state level, forcibly sterilized mentally retarded people from the 1920s to 1972.

Communist Chinese officials are blunt about their atrocities. "The purpose of the law is to raise the quality of our population and our nation," said Miao Xia, deputy head of the Gansu Province Family Planning Association. "We want to solve the poverty problem in part by raising the quality of the population."

Yes, poverty is a problem. But the way out of poverty is freedom, both economic and personal, not tyranny over people's property and right to bear and raise a family. Relatively free Chinese have turned Taiwan and Hong Kong from impoverishment to prosperity.

When will all governments and intellectuals realize that human beings are not animals to be bred like pedigree dogs, but persons with free will? Persons, as our Declaration of Independence puts it, are "endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness."

Unfortunately, the Gansu program is being lauded by Communist apparatchiks throughout the country, and probably will be imposed in other provinces and by the central regime in Beijing.

To his credit, President Bush has refused to allow U.S. taxpayers' money to be used to support such horrors. This week, he vetoed a foreign aid bill that included $15 million for the United Nations Population Fund, which helps finance the Chinese program.

One of the things Chinese protesters demanded last spring, before they were massacred in Tiananmen Square, was an end to the eugenics and forced abortion programs. But these programs seem to be on the rise again, another bloody blot on the history of communism.

Things done, and left undone

WASHINGTON — In the old Book of Common Prayer, before barbarian editors laid their clumsy hands upon it, the Anglican communion had a great prayer of general confession. "We have left undone those things which we ought to have done, and we have done those things which we ought not to have done; and there is no health in us."

The U.S. Congress ought to be on its knees saying that one. It is a curious thing about congress. Many of the members, viewed individually, are first-rate people — conscientious, hard-working, responsible — all one might ask. Viewed collectively, the institution itself is disgraceful.

It will be many days, perhaps weeks, before the taxpayers discover exactly what was done to them in the final hours of the session that ended last week. When the Senate stays in session until 4 o'clock in the morning, watch out! We may be certain that the final reconciliation bill was adorned with darling little amendments to amendments, all designed to give special preference to someone, somewhere. These things take time to decipher.

We do know many of the things that were done, and we have a long list of things that were left undone. This session got off to a spectacular start with an aborted effort to sneak through a 51 percent pay raise. It ended with a more modest vote in the House to accept a 40 percent pay raise. The Senate, ever contemptuous of public opinion, voted to stay in debt to special interests through the device of lecture fees.

The first obligation of Congress, to which all else is subordinate, is spelled out in the Constitution. It is "to lay and collect taxes to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States." The Constitution rings with provisions related to public finance. An orderly procedure for the appropriation of public funds is the least that might be asked of our national legislature.

Order procedure? At the time of its adjournment, Congress had completed action on only five of 13 appropriations bills. This indolence led to successive absurdities: The government ran on emergency funding for three weeks, and when the three weeks ran out another bill had to be passed to keep the government going for five days. Some appropriations were "sequestered," which is to say, they were trimmed with the dull ax of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction act.

Yes, we have a budget for the fiscal year that began on Oct. 1, but the budget is a farce. It reeks of chicanery and fraud. A businessman who attempted such creative accounting would be a candidate for prison. The figures purporting to show income and outgo are phony figures, pure sham, having no substantive meaning whatever. In this area of primary responsibility, we have government by a wink, a nudge and a nod. Is it any wonder that the people thoroughly mistrust so dishonest a body?

What did this Congress do? It had one or two accomplishments of some merit: It repealed the misguided act to provide federal health insurance to cover catastrophic illness. It prohibited smoking on domestic airline travel. The Senate convicted two federal judges who had been impeached by the House. The bill raising the minimum wage was improved by the president's demand for a lower training wage.

What was left undone? Congress failed to act upon a clean air bill, though such legislation clearly is a federal responsibility. It did nothing about election reform; it could not even put significant restraints upon the mass mailings undertaken by politicians at public expense.

This is not to suggest that Congress loafed. It labored industriously to congratulate Malta upon the 25th anniversary of its independence, to honor the centennial of the birth of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, to support the aspirations of the people of Soviet Armenia, and to commend the government of Hong Kong for its commitment to halt the piracy of software.

In other notable achievements, Congress provided for an International Year of Bible Reading, a National Adoption Week, a National Family Caregivers Week and an Interstitial Cystitis Awareness Day. By appropriate resolution, Congress designated April 22, 1990, as Earth Day. It also named the courthouse in East St. Louis for former Rep. Melvin Price. Such legislative production makes an observer quietly proud.

The Congress is now in recess, rebuilding its energies for the second session that begins in January. Meanwhile the liberties of the people are secure. But not for long.

Texas teacher gives her side

Sometimes you say it better than I can: today is one of those times.

Dear Paul Harvey News...

I am a teacher in Richardson, Tex. Today I heard your remark that public education in our nation is flunking its finals.

Mr. Harvey, after 20 years of teaching I do not believe it is our educators who are failing. Would you please consider the following:

The issue seems to me not to be what we are doing wrong in our schools but what we are doing wrong in our American culture and in our homes.

Parents are expecting schools to discipline and structure their sons and daughters in four years when the parents have been unable to accomplish that in 15 years.

In 40 states, garbage collectors make a higher annual income than schoolteachers. Most male teachers are required either to have a second job or a working wife.

Further, a teacher with a master's degree and 10 years' experience makes less than the beginning industrial wage for a college graduate with a bachelor's degree and no experience.

So it's no wonder there are more new cars in the student parking lot than in the faculty parking lot.

Yet, parents expect us teachers to inspire their children with stimulation, motivation and ambition.

A cynical student looks at his teacher and says to himself, "You mean like you?"

Mr. Harvey, you must be aware that thousands of our teachers are required to teach students who cannot read or write English.

Thousands of teachers are required to teach students who have been intellectually damaged by drugs — who have little memory and a limited concentration span.

Many or most of our students these days openly defy their parents at home and get away with it.

And if we teachers dare to assert authority, we are likely to face a reprimand and may face a lawsuit.

So, is it teachers who are failing, Mr. Harvey, or is it parents who spend 14.5 minutes each day talking to the children who spend six hours of each day watching TV?

That more than half of our students are from one-parent homes is an established cause of emotional stress. Is that our fault?

Signed: Mrs. Dean Pratt, Richardson, Tex.

Thank you, Mrs. Pratt. In everybody's recollection is a very special teacher; maybe two. I suspect you are one of those and I appreciate your letter.

You may have overlooked one significant component of our problem. The United States is one of the few nations in the world that tries to educate everybody. Many don't even try.

Maybe we shouldn't, but we do.

While other nations seek to educate their elite scholars, we tend to insist on the concept of "all equal."

Maybe we shouldn't, but we do.

Will end of Cold War help the left?

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER

It was hardly to be expected that the events presently unfolding in Eastern Europe could occur without having a major impact on American politics. And it was equally predictable that our liberal media would see in those beloved Democratic Party. What is surprising is that the media may be (partly) right.

Since the outbreak of the Cold War between the United States and the Soviet Union in 1946, the Republicans have been the more resolute of the two parties in waging it. Originally, the Democrats were split on the issue; the left wing of the party even seceded in 1948 and ran FDR's former vice president, Henry Wallace, against Truman and Thomas Dewey on a platform that amounted to wholesale appeasement of Stalin. But most Democrats were made of sterner stuff, and — under the influence of Hubert Humphrey and others, who organized Americans for Democratic Action — they stayed fairly dependable on the subject most of the time.

Not always, though. Time and again important segments of the Democratic Party fell for the latest hint that Moscow was seriously interested in "peaceful coexistence," or "detente," or what have you. This in turn liberated them (as they mistakenly saw it) to call for sharp reductions in military expenditures — and, of course, corresponding increases in the money available for their pet domestic projects. To the Republican Party's great credit, it repeatedly managed to stiffen the spines of enough Democrats to keep America from losing the Cold War by default.

But now that the Cold War is grinding to a halt (thanks precisely to America's steadfastness), the "defense issue" is inevitably going to be worth less to the GOP. The really important question, therefore, is how much that is likely to matter?

Traditionally, Americans are more concerned with domestic issues than defense or foreign policy problems when it comes to casting their votes.

The latter become dominant only in particularly dangerous times — the exact opposite of today's "piping times of peace."

Republicans, then, had better get ready to do battle with the Democrats on domestic issues. Fortunately, there is no reason to panic on that account. The Democrats still hold the short end of the stick on most issues in the domestic field. The Republicans, for one thing, are rightly identified with the period of economic prosperity now in its eighth consecutive year. And despite the Democrats' loud protests over the deficit, most voters still regard the GOP as fiscally the more responsible of the two parties. Finally, over the whole range of social issues summed up in the expression "the family values," the Democrats are widely identified with unpopular forms of permissiveness.

Here and there, Democrats may be able to capture a domestic issue and benefit by it. They clearly think that the "pro-choice" position on abortions is one such — though recent unpublished polls by GOP sources suggest otherwise. Rep. Richard Gephardt's Japan-bashing may be another. Even here, however, the Republicans might manage to score by warning that protectionism, a la Smoot-Hawley, could precipitate another worldwide depression.

In fact, the principal damage to conservatism from the end of the Cold War may occur, not in the United States at all, but in other major industrial countries where foreign and defense issues traditionally loom larger.

The British, for example, no longer fearful of the Labor Party's wimpishness on nuclear defense, may be readier to let Neil Kinnock show what he can do on the domestic front. And Japanese voters, once convinced that the American alliance is no longer paramount, may be willing to vote for the Liberal Democratic Party's Socialist opposition.

Not even the end of the Cold War, however, can revive the Democrats all by itself.

House panel may probe S&L case linked to Bush's son

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Banking Committee Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez, having aired the collapse of Lincoln Savings and Loan Association, is considering probing an even more politically touchy case linked to President Bush's family.

Among the institutions that could be spotlighted next by the committee are Silverado Savings and Loan Association of Denver, declared insolvent by regulators in December 1988.

Neil Bush, the president's son, served on Silverado's board of directors, resigning just after his father won the Republican nomination in 1988 and only four months before the S&L's seizure.

In a drive to oust top thrift regulator M. Danny Wall, Gonzalez conducted six public hearings this fall focusing on regulators' delay in acting against the Irvine, Calif.-based Lincoln, which is expected to become the nation's largest S&L failure at a cost to taxpayers of $2 billion.

At the last hearing just before

Congress recessed for Thanksgiving, Gonzalez, D-Texas, vowed to continue the probe when legislators return in January, expanding it to include other notorious examples of abuse.

In response to a question from a reporter, Gonzalez said Silverado could be among the failures highlighted at a future hearing. Committee aides have been gathering material on the case.

Silverado was declared insolvent by thrift regulators on Dec. 9, 1988, and taxpayer costs could run as high as $500 million.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., now part of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., attributed the failure to "substantial dissipation of assets due to alleged violations of laws, rules and regulations."

According to government sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, regulators are investigating to determine whether to file a civil suit against Silverado's former officers and directors, which would include Neil Bush.

A new investigative book on the S&L crisis, "Inside Job" by Stephen Pizzo, Mary Fricker and Paul Muolo, cites links between Neil Bush, a director from 1985 until August 1988, and a major customer of Silverado.

Bush's oil and gas company, JNB Exploration, had a $1 million line of credit at Cherry Creek National Bank, which was owned by Bill Walters, who received more than $40 million in loans from Silverado, according to the book.

Silverado also had business ties to Larry Mizel, a prominent Republican who raised $1 million for Ronald Reagan's 1984 campaign.

James Moroney, a former analyst for the Federal Home Loan Bank of Topeka, alleges that regulators held off action against Silverado because of its political connections, the book says.

Aides to Gonzalez said no decision has been made about whether to air the Silverado case in public hearings. The Lincoln sessions — even though they targeted Wall, a Republican — proved more embarrassing for Democrats because they highlighted the efforts of five senators, four of them senior Democrats, to intervene with regulators on Lincoln's behalf.

TAIPEI, Taiwan — Chen Shui-pien, right, a key member of the opposition Democratic Progressive Party, is cheered by supporters in Taipei Sunday after he was elected to the Legislative Yuan Saturday.

Nationalist Party sees defeat in Taiwan

By JOHN POMFRET
Associated Press Writer

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — The opposition made strong gains in the island's first multiparty elections and handed the ruling Nationalist Party an embarrassing defeat in the hometown of Taiwan's president, according to election results Sunday.

Ballot-rigging and noisy protests marred Saturday's election, the first national vote since the Nationalist Party lifted martial law in 1987. The Nationalists have been in power since they fled to Taiwan following their 1949 defeat by the Communists in China's civil war.

Thousands of angry opposition supporters surrounded government office buildings in several cities Saturday, calling for recounts or demanding results. Protesters broke windows in one city.

The opposition Democratic Progressive Party claimed "a great victory." With nearly all districts reporting, the Nationalists were garnering 55 percent of the popular vote, while the opposition won about 35 percent. The rest went to independents.

"This is a setback for the Nationalists," said Ting Tin-yu, a professor of sociology. "They should have won 70 percent of the vote."

In 1986 elections, the opposition won 22 percent of the vote campaigning as independents.

In the Legislature, the opposition won 21 seats; it previously held 12. The Nationalists won 72 seats.

In county and mayoral races, the opposition won six posts, up from two before the vote. The Nationalists won 14. One seat went to an independent allied with the opposition.

An opposition faction that ran on an illegal campaign platform calling for an end to Taiwan's claim on the Communist mainland also polled well.

In a slap in the face to the Nationalists, opposition candidate You Ching, a 47-year-old legislator, won the executive post in Taipei county, President Lee Teng-hui's hometown. The president is a symbol of Nationalist power.

"One of the first things I will do is demolish the Nationalist Party headquarters," You told a screaming crowd early Sunday. "Then you will be able to walk your dogs on the property."

Police search for clues in slayings of mother and teen-age daughters

HOUSTON (AP) — Neighbors heard nothing unusual the night a woman and her twin teen-age daughters were stabbed to death, say investigators who continue to probe the crime.

The bodies of Bonita Edwards, 38, and her 16-year-old daughter, Annette, were found near the door of their northeast Houston apartment after a maintenance man opened the locked door Saturday.

The body of Burnette Edwards, also 16, was found in a back bedroom. She had been gagged and sexually assaulted, authorities said.

Both girls had their throats slashed in addition to several stab wounds. Ms. Edwards had been stabbed repeatedly in the chest near her heart, officers said.

"The two in the front were killed very rapidly," said homicide Lt. Greg Neely. "It was the poor girl in the back that suffered the most."

Neely said authorities believe all three were slain late Wednesday night — a day after the twins celebrated their 16th birthday.

Neighbors told police they heard nothing unusual on the evening of the attack.

"That's what's so strange," said an upstairs neighbor who asked not to be identified. "We didn't hear anything."

Police said the apartment showed no signs of forced entry and all of the windows were protected by burglar bars leading authorities to believe the women knew their assailant.

The bodies were found after Ms. Edwards' boyfriend grew concerned about not being able to reach the family. When no one answered his knock at the door, he summoned the maintenance man, police said.

"Whoever it was took them completely by surprise," Neely said. All three were dressed in pajamas and apparently had gone to bed just before the attack, investigators said.

"It is not inconceivable that this was done by one person," Neely said. "At this point, we just don't know."

Lubbock paper names Sanders managing editor

LUBBOCK (AP) — The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal has named Randy Sanders as its new managing editor, Executive Editor Burle Pettit announced.

Sanders has been with the Lubbock newspaper 20 years. He has served as the newspaper's assistant managing editor for editing, evening city editor, evening news editor, and the Sunday and special projects editor. He also worked on the sports staff and news copy desks.

While serving as city editor, he supervised a team effort that won the newspaper an Associated Press Managing Editors Award for a story about a Lubbock kidnapping and bank robbery.

Sanders is a graduate of Texas Tech University.

He replaces Pettit, who formerly served as the newspaper's managing editor.

Woman drowns rescuing toddler

DALLAS (AP) — A 43-year-old woman jumped fully clothed into an apartment swimming pool and rescued a 4-year-old girl, but she then slipped back into the water herself and drowned, authorities said.

The victim was identified as Carol Yeager of Dallas, fire officials said.

Authorities said two girls had been playing beside the pool at an apartment complex Saturday afternoon when Cynthia Lewis, 4, was pushed into the pool. The other girl ran to get help and Ms. Yeager jumped in.

Authorities say Ms. Yeager apparently swam with the girl to the edge of the pool and lifted her onto the pool deck. But she must have then sank and drowned.

When Mrs. Lewis arrived at the pool, she found her daughter lying beside the water.

Dallas Fire Department paramedics arrived on the scene shortly afterward and found Ms. Yeager on the bottom of the deep end of the pool.

Collector: lawn sculpture can be "so bad, it's good!"

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS
Associated Press Writer

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — It isn't any noisy, late-night parties at bachelor John Shumate's home that have his neighbors whispering. It's what he keeps in his front yard.

Like the life-size Elvis Presley bust with purple pompadour, bolted atop a tall pedestal guarded by a grinning, red-bearded gnome holding a sign reading "Long Live the King."

Or that plastic palm tree festooned with blinking blue lights that decorated Shumate's front porch last Christmas, opposite a plastic Santa Claus whose fat belly was illuminated with a flashing light bulb.

And the little concrete toddler, shyly clutching a teddy bear and sucking on its fingers while its diapers fall down. It's one of Shumate's favorites.

"It's the most horrifying thing I've ever seen," he says with a chuckle. "It's just awful."

Shumate, a 42-year-old architect and avid collector of lawn ornaments, delights in adorning the yard of his modest bungalow in this Washington suburb with the sort of truly tasteless schlock that makes urban sophisticates wince.

"I saw this stuff when I was a kid growing up in the Philadelphia suburbs," he said. "It was humorous to me even then. What's interesting about the 50s was the junky stuff — the cars, the lawn sculptures, the furniture. It's so bad it's good."

Shumate had only a few pink flamingos when he bought his Arlington house three years ago. Perhaps it was the house, with its original pink aluminum siding from the 1950s, that inspired Shumate to begin collecting in earnest.

His favorite haunt is Harper's Lawn Ornaments, a two-acre mecca for kitsch hunters in rural Harrisonburg, Va. It was there that he found his $32 Elvis bust among the tons of concrete birdbaths, Jesus figures, antlered stags and naked ladies.

"Things were relatively quiet around here until I put up Elvis," Shumate said. "It became a landmark overnight. At first my neighbors didn't know what to think, but they finally figured out my sense of humor and now they enjoy it."

Down in his basement, Shumate keeps the trashy stuff he hasn't decided where to display in the proper mock-serious style, including a concrete cherub with a large fish draped over its shoulder and "your generic babe with a bunch of grapes" sprayed with gilt paint.

On a shelf are air-brushed wall squirrels, a pink coffee mug with pelican-shaped handle, a blue plastic shark that Shumate once hung from the rear-view mirror of his old powder-blue Caddy.

"This is what yuppies put in their kitchen window as a joke," he said disdainfully. "They have no real commitment to lawn ornaments. If everyone thinks it's a joke, it doesn't count. It's not really fun."

Parents seek daughter's right to die

By CARL MANNING
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — During frequent visits to Nancy Cruzan's hospital bedside, her father patiently recites the brain-damaged woman's legal situation. She can't reply, but Joe Cruzan says he knows her wishes.

He says the Nancy he knew — lover of laughter and life — would rather die than linger in her persistent vegetative state, incapable of interacting with her environment and possessing no thoughts, no emotions.

"I don't think this is a decision for every family, but it is the right decision for us because we feel that is what Nancy would want," said the 55-year-old sheet metal worker.

Nancy Cruzan, 32, a former employee of a cheese factory, has been in this condition since a 1983 car wreck, kept alive with a feeding tube surgically implanted in her stomach. She stays, at taxpayer expense, at the Missouri Rehabilitation Center, a state institution in Mount Vernon.

On Wednesday, her parents will be in the U.S. Supreme Court, listening again to the legal questions father shares with daughter in the quiet of her hospital room.

"I've told her what the legal process is," Cruzan said. "I've said, 'Nancy, I know this is scary,' because I think everyone to a certain extent fears death. It's an unknown thing."

The case marks the first time the court has considered when it is appropriate to stop medical treatment — to pull the plug on a life.

Cruzan and his wife, Joyce, acting as Nancy's court-appointed guardians, want to remove her feeding tube. A Missouri judge ruled they could, but the state Supreme Court overturned that ruling in November 1988.

Missouri law allows people under certain circumstances to refuse medical treatment but not food and water. Among the issues in the Cruzan case is whether family members can make such a refusal on behalf of an incompetent relative, and whether food and water provided through a surgically implanted tube constitutes medical treatment.

The parents say they should have the final word about whether their daughter lives or dies. They also say the state has no right to force unwanted treatment on Nancy, and that she has not lost her constitutional rights — including the right to privacy — because of her condition.

Missouri Attorney General William Webster counters that the state Supreme Court was correct in saying the parents cannot terminate the use of the feeding tube.

"It's a question of whether the court will articulate a new constitutional right for the family," he said. "We don't think the remedy the family is seeking is found in the United States Constitution."

As the Cruzan case goes to Washington, Nancy lies in a bed, her body stiff and her hands so bent they resemble claws, the fingernails digging into her wrists if they go untrimmed.

Doctors say Nancy could live 40 more years if she is given food and water.

Despite buys, New York isn't "Little Japan"

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent Japanese purchases in Manhattan have made some people nervous, despite a foreign-buyer tradition that started when Dutch settlers snapped up the island for $24 worth of knives, fabric and trinkets.

Officials say a majority of Manhattan's buildings still are owned by Americans, and Japanese are not even the largest foreign landlords. Some find the alarm over Japanese purchases puzzling.

"I don't know what's behind this xenophobia," said Rosemary Scanlon, an economist for the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey. "Everyone seems to have been jolted awake to find we're not the only large economy in the world."

Several organizations have tried to estimate foreign holdings in Manhattan commercial real estate, but no one really knows the figure, said Edward S. Gordon, head of the real estate firm that bears his name.

"When a foreigner buys a piece of property, he doesn't declare, 'I'm a foreigner,'" said Marie Hill, a researcher for the Real Estate Board of New York. "The owner's name may be Piccadilly Properties, but there's no legislation requiring them to sign in as British."

Foreign investments often are made through part ownerships, joint ventures and convertible mortgages, which can further cloud an owner's identity. "On a mortgage the address might simply say, 'Return to Curacao'" said Ms. Hill.

When Mitsubishi Estate Co. announced in October it was spending $846 million for a controlling interest in the company that owns Rockefeller Center, local wits said sumo wrestlers would soon take over the center's ice skating rink.

But, noted Ms. Hill, "the British and the Dutch have been buying in this country for a long, long time," and it seems safe to say that worries about foreigners buying up Manhattan are exaggerated.

According to the Port Authority, during the past 15 years foreigners have acquired about 64 million of Manhattan's 335 million square feet of prime office space, or 19 percent. This includes Canadians (7.3 percent), Japanese (5.4 percent), British (2.7 percent) and Dutch (1.4 percent). Other foreigners have bought more than 2 percent.

The city's largest single foreign landowner is Olympia & York of Toronto, which shrewdly began buying in the depressed market of the mid-1970s and now owns about 25 million square feet of office space worth billion of dollars.

Since 1986, Japanese investors have jumped into commercial real estate, snapping up the Exxon, Citicorp, Mobil, ABC and Paine Webber buildings. They also bought hotels, including the Algonquin, the Stanhope, the Inter-Continental and the Essex House.

Foreign investment in Manhattan office space will surely increase — Swedes and Koreans are said to be next in line for some prime buildings — but business executives, at least, aren't worried.

In a survey released earlier this year, 55 percent of corporate executives said foreign investment helped the U.S. economy.

Pampa 1892-1902

On September 18, 1892, George Tyng wrote to Foster's assistant, Russell Benedict: "You tickle me to death with your suggestions so exactly in accord with my own views and judgement...town site Pampa, free lots to builders, schoolhouse, hotel and flour mills.

"The town is already laid off and staked sufficiently for prompt delivery of lots without being staked ostentatiously enough to excite jealousies. ...

"We have the 'hotel' (boarding house of White Deer Lands) already here... quite good enough for the present. Children are still too scattered, though enough for a school if living closer together... they are coming... and so is wheat enough to run a mill. As I wrote Kingsmill (Andrew Kingsmill, London banker), 'Big thing, big expense,' preparing his mind for possible needs. This 40 acres and outfit at Pampa are 'stunning' advertisements. Everything grows well here, and we are surrounded by a profusion of agricultural comforts and luxuries."

On March 11, 1893, Harland Loren Case, son of Sam and Emily Case, was born at the boarding house of White Deer Lands. Harlands was the first Anglo baby born at Pampa. A dress which he wore as a small boy is in the White Deer Land Museum. Emily made the dress from an old red and white pin stripe shirt belonging to George Tyng whose name is embroidered on the front of the dress at the bottom.

Harland Loren Case first Anglo baby born at Pampa, March 11, 1893.

Tyng's optimism in 1892 turned to pessimism in 1893. In addition to the confusion brought about by the national election of 1892, followed by the financial panic of 1893, the weather was extremely dry over all the Southwest, and drought conditions extended even into England. The problem of water supply became critical.

Part of White Deer Lands was leased to the Matador Land and Cattle Company... 348,000 acres, not including the railroad right-of-way or 960 acres at Pampa which were fenced or about to be fenced. The lease was to extend for two years from July 1, 1893, with option to renew for another year. Tyng wrote that Survey 25 in Block 7 (area of White Deer) would be occupied by the Matadors until June, 1895, and that there was no prospect of selling land for a year or so.

Due to the stagnation in all business affairs, Tyng was often absent without pay from White Deer Lands during the years from 1894 to 1896.

He arranged with J.C. Paul of the Panhandle Bank to disburse all funds connected with the protection and maintenance of White Deer Lands property. He left A.A. Holland in charge of the White Deer farm, and Henry Taylor was hired to live at the Pampa railroad station to protect the property there and to show the lands to any prospective buyer who might appear.

On September 20, 1894, Tyng reported to Foster: "At Pampa in Gray County you have a modest improvement near the railway and near the wagon road through that part of the country. It attracts much attention from all passers and is an ideal advertisement.

"Viewers of the land can get board and lodging at Pampa from the Case family. You have Tyng. (Photos courtesy White Deer Land Museum) and camping outfit with which (Henry) Taylor can convey people over the property. "A number of families have settled on state land in Block B2 (area of Lefors), which, however, is out of sight of the main line of travel. "The railroad company is now supplying its locomotives with wells,

Boy's dress made from a shirt of George Tyng. (Photos courtesy White Deer Land Museum)

Museum Mementoes by Eloise Lane White Deer Land Museum

after having hauled water in cars several years across White Deer Lands.

On November 28, 1896, Tyng wrote: "J.L. Lewis (the wolf hunter) is allowed to pasture his 50 head in the east part of Block 2 (Roberts County) for policing the east fence and that part of the block.

"The buildings are in good order. Those at Pampa and the fenced section around them should not be leased until all the land is leased and for a period long enough to not require your maintaining a base or employees down there.

The house is occupied by the family of S.C. Case, a section foreman of the railroad, who keep house as rent and furnish six meals at $1.00 to me or your employees, and meals and lodging to business visitors at 25 cents each.

"They also look out for the traveling public, which is a burden where houses are so far apart. The owners of White Deer Lands can not keep tavern without great waste and loss, and open house will not do.

"The Case family owns a small house on the railroad section grounds and can and will move out of yours at a day's notice.

"At Pampa Thomas Lane has built a small neat home (221 East Atchison) upon your land close to the railroad. He would like to buy the lot but will move on notice, either drawing his house over on to the railroad land or selling it to you for $150.00."

In May 1897, newlyweds Charles T. and Sophia McCarty came from Vernon in a covered wagon... a journey of three weeks. The McCarty's were the third family to live at Pampa.

At the time of their arrival, Pampa was only the headquarters for shipping cattle, and there were no stores. The McCarty's first home was one room over a dugout (123 East Atchison). Sophia told that on some days she could see droves of antelope go past their home.

McCarty, a pumper for the railroad, installed Pampa's first bathtub in the pump house. The tub was tin with a wooden rim around it. On Saturday night cowboys and ranch hands would line up in front of the pump house for the distance of a block. The price of a bath was 10 cents of 15 cents if the McCarty's provided soap and towels.

First McCarty, born in 1898, was the second Anglo baby born at Pampa. The other McCarty children were Charles and Amanda (Bobbie).

In 1902, McCarty installed the first telephone at Pampa. When a mail order company mistakenly sent two telephones instead of the one he had ordered, he put one telephone in his house and the other in the pump house near the railroad. He installed the telephone himself; the wires were piped underground. Part II continued in Tuesday's Pampa News.

Celibate and happy, woman regains her peace of mind

DEAR ABBY: This morning I read the letters from your readers concerning the adolescent girl who was being pressured for sex by her boyfriend. "Sorry I Didn't" regretted that she didn't resist when she found herself in a similar situation. She said it was too easy to continue having sex, "and not always with the same partner."

While there is something to be said for being a virgin bride, those who give in for whatever reasons need not feel that all is lost. I "gave in" when I was 17, more out of curiosity than anything else. I went through a period of guilt and soul-searching, and finally concluded that I wasn't ready for the physical and emotional responsibilities. I needed time to gain some distance on the tangle of issues I was grappling with, so I took a six-month vow of abstinence.

This month I begin my 10th year of celibacy. I've worked through my ambivalence and have no regrets. If someday I meet a man with whom I want to spend the rest of my life, I can hold my head high and wear white to the altar. And if I never marry, so be it! In my heart, I have regained that intangible quality we happen to call "virginity." And I can appreciate it all the more because I earned it this time.

I support any woman who has decided to be responsibly sexually active, and I wish her every happiness. But for those women who bear the burden of guilt or regret, I say, learn to forgive yourself for being human, and start again! It is never too late to change. Never!

BETTER FOR IT ALL IN BOSTON

DEAR BETTER: Bravo for a mature and admirable attitude. Should you meet a man one day with whom you want to spend the rest of your life, he will be getting a prize.

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to your response to the inquiry as to how to address a widow. Abby, what gives you the right to dictate what a person should be called? This should be a matter of personal preference.

I am a widow, and I strongly object to being called "Mrs. John Doe." I am no longer married to John Doe, as he is dead. So how can I be married to a dead man?

I have told all my friends to simply address me as "Mary Doe"—no title necessary.

Please be fair, Abby, and leave it to each individual as to what she prefers to be called.

MARY DOE

DEAR MARY DOE: I agree with you—a woman should be addressed according to her own personal preference. But a reader asked, "What is the 'correct' way?" So I deferred to the etiquette authorities: Letitia Baldrige, the late Amy Vanderbilt, the late Emily Post, and the very-much alive Miss Manners. All four agree that a widow is "Mrs. John Doe" (socially—but not on legal documents) as long as she lives, unless she remarries.

DEAR ABBY: Far worse than the pain of being hugged too tightly is the pain of having no one to hug you. No wonder Americans have so many pets. I have a cat I love dearly,

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

but she's just a substitute for my need to touch and be touched by a warm human.

I've seen bumper stickers that read: HUGS ARE BETTER THAN DRUGS. They certainly are—but drugs are a lot easier to find.

HUNGRY FOR A HUG
DEAR HUNGRY: The surest way I know of to get "positive strokes" (hugs) is to give them. Volunteer some time to the Big Brothers or Big Sisters of America, a food program for the poor and homeless, an AIDS hospice, a senior citizens' assistance program or a local hospital.

If you've been looking for hugs in the places where drugs are being traded, perhaps you're lucky to have come up empty.

DEAR ABBY: Last week my brand-new car was stolen from a nightclub parking lot and vandalized. Although my car was subsequently recovered and can be repaired, my coat and purse (inconveniences in a nightclub and, therefore, stashed under the seat) are gone forever. At first I thought I was a victim of circumstances. In retrospect, there were precautions I might have taken to have prevented the theft. Perhaps if I list them, they'll save others from this very unpleasant experience.

Never park beside a van or any large vehicle that obstructs a view of your car from the street or the entrance to the building. While I parked in a lighted parking lot by the nightclub, I parked beside a large van, which probably contained the person or persons who stole my car.

Be sure no one is loitering in the vehicles parked near you. If you have credit cards, keep them with you at all times. Leave coats, purses and wallets at home, unless they are on your person. Putting purses or wallets under the seat "out of sight" is unsafe—it's the first place a thief will look after he has broken into your car. Also, don't put them in the trunk. Someone may be watching.

Be sure to remove all unnecessary items from the car unless they are to be used that night—this means workout clothes, briefcase and cassettes for the car stereo.

Investigate exactly what coverage your insurance company provides in the event that your car is stolen and vandalized. You may be in for a rude awakening as to what is and what is not covered. I will lose more than $300 in deductibles and non-reimbursable items because someone stole my car!

SADDER BUT WISER IN PENNSYLVANIA
DEAR SADDER: It's generous of you to take the time and trouble to warn others. Some people need to be reminded of what they already know.

Anglican clergyman William Archibald Spooner was born in London in 1844. Spooner, who became Warden of New College, Oxford, gained a reputation for transposing words or parts of words—errors that became known as "spoonerisms." Spooner died in 1930, but spoonerisms—such as the one Harry von Zell committed on radio when he introduced the 31st president of the United States as "Hoobert Heever"—live on.

Eagles take control of NFC East Division

By The Associated Press
There's no room at the top of the NFC's East and Central Divisions but the race in the NFC West is all but over.

The Philadelphia Eagles, buoyed by quarterback Randall Cunningham's

91-yard punt and five New York turnovers, took control of the NFC East with a 24-17 victory over the Giants on Sunday. Each is 9-4 but the Eagles won both head-to-head meetings, the first playoff tie-breaker should New York and Philadelphia end the season with identical records.

In the Central Division, Green Bay and Minnesota remained tied with 8-5 records but the Vikings hold a tie-breaker edge based on a better division record.

Chris Jacke's 47-yard field goal with no time remaining gave the Packers a 17-16 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, and Wade Wilson threw two scoring passes as Minnesota beat Chicago 27-16, severely damaging the Bears' hopes for a sixth straight division crown.

And the San Francisco 49ers moved to the brink of their seventh NFC West title in nine years with a 23-10 victory over the Atlanta Falcons. Steve Young took over for injured Joe Montana and threw for one second-half touchdown and ran for another. The 49ers can clinch the title with a victory over the Los Angeles Rams next week.

Elsewhere, it was Houston 23, Pittsburgh 16; Cincinnati 21, Cleveland 0; Los Angeles Raiders 16, Denver 13 in overtime; Kansas City 26, Miami 21; the Rams 35, Dallas 31; New England 22, Indianapolis 16; Washington 29, Phoenix 10; Detroit 21, New Orleans 14 and the New York Jets 20, San Diego 17.

Tonight, Buffalo, which leads Miami by 11/2 games in the AFC East, visits Seattle.

All of Philadelphia's points came as the result of New York turnovers. The last one was Phil Simms' fumble at his 6-yard line after Cunningham's punt, aided by 40 mph wind gusts, became the longest in Eagles history. It got Philadelphia out a hole at its own 1. Cunningham had punted only twice this season.

Two plays later, Simms was sacked by Bob Golic and Mike Pitts recovered the fumble, setting up a 2-yard touchdown run by Keith Byars with 10:50 left in the game.

Vikings 27, Bears 16

Minnesota had its first long touchdown drives in three weeks while Chicago (6-7) fell below .500 for the first time since 1983, the last season it missed the playoffs.

On their second possession, the Vikings went 66 yards in seven plays, including passes of 13 and 33 yards from Wilson to Hassan Jones, setting up Herschel Walker's 1-yard run for a 7-3 lead.

In the second quarter, Wilson's scrambles of 17 and 13 yards preceded his 46-yard touchdown pass to Jones for a 14-3 lead. After Mike

NFL ROUNDUP

Tomczak's 3-yard scoring pass, Cap Boso made it 17-10 early in the third quarter, the Vikings went 73 yards in three plays, including Wilson's 24-yard scoring pass to Anthony Carter.

Packers 17, Buccaneers 16

Jacke's game-winning kick came on the 12th play of a 52-yard drive that was kept alive at the Packers' 40 by a Tampa Bay penalty, a hands-to-the-face call against Shawn Lee that nullified a fourth-down incompletion. Don Majkowski, who threw touchdown passes of 21 and 55 yards to Sterling Sharpe, set up the score with a 17-yard completion to Carl Bland at the Bucs' 30.

The triumph was the fifth in the last six games for Green Bay, which intercepted Vinny Testaverde five times. Tampa Bay had taken a 16-14 lead with 1:35 left on Donald Igwebuik's 36-yard field goal. But Majkowski, who was 25-of-53 for 331 yards, stopped the clock with one second remaining by throwing the ball into the ground, setting up Jacke's kick.

49ers 23, Falcons 10

Young came on after Montana aggravated a rib injury in the final two minutes of the first half and sat out the rest of the game. Young completed his first 10 passes for 168 yards in the third quarter, connecting with John Taylor on a 38-yard scoring pass over rookie Deion Sanders to erase a 10-6 halftime deficit midway through the period.

Young stretched the lead to 20-10 on a 1-yard sneak 12 seconds into the final quarter. He finished 11-of-12 for 175 yards.

Oilers 23, Steelers 16

Lorenzo White rushed for 115 yards and the game-winning 1-yard touchdown with 21 seconds left. Warren Moon threw two late first-half touchdown passes during a driving snowstorm as Houston took over first place in the AFC Central at 8-5 to Cleveland's 7-5-1.

After Pittsburgh's Gary Anderson kicked his third field goal to make it 16-16 with 5:43 to play, Moon hit Hayward Jeffries for 37 yards to the Steelers' 27 and White gained 26 yards on two carries prior to his winning touchdown.

Bengals 21, Browns 0

Boomer Esiason threw two touchdown passes, including a 38-yarder to Tim McGee on a trick play, as Cincinnati revived its playoff hopes with its first shutout since 1980.

The Bengals led 7-0 after James Brooks ran a yard for a second-quarter touchdown. They made it 14-0 on McGee's diving catch in the third quarter on a flea-flicker, with Brooks taking a pitchout and tossing it back to Esiason for the pass. Esiason threw a 9-yard touchdown to Rodney Holman in the third quarter.

Raiders 16, Broncos 13

Jeff Jaeger kicked a 26-yard field goal at 7:02 of overtime as the Raiders kept their wild-card playoff hopes alive. The Raiders moved from their 29 to the Denver 9 and Jaeger kicked his third field goal of the game after a 16-yard run by Steve Smith.

The Raiders tied the score 13-13 on a 67-yard touchdown pass from Steve Beuerlein to Daryl

'Pokes drop squeaker

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams are playing great football in the closing seconds. It's the first 57 minutes that distresses coach John Robinson.

Jim Everett again provided the last-minute heroics, turning almost certain defeat into a 35-31 victory Sunday over the Dallas Cowboys, the NFL's worst team. Dallas had held a 10-point lead with less than four minutes left.

"I guess we're the Cardiac Kids or something," Everett said. "We hung in there again. That was the best part of the game."

A week ago, Everett brought his team back with little time left at New Orleans, where the Rams won 20-17 in overtime.

"I'm worried and concerned," Robinson said. "We're lucky to get out of here with our fannies. I do want to make a point that in the last two minutes we did execute and score when we needed to."

Everett and Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman had four touchdown passes each in a dazzling aerial duel at Texas Stadium but time and timeouts ran out on rookie Aikman.

Everett's 23-yard scoring pass to Aaron Cox with 1:50 left was the game winner. At 3:58, Everett hit Ron Brown with a 39-yard touchdown pass to bring the Rams within striking distance.

"It was scary out there," Brown said. "Dallas proved it can complete."

"I'll give Dallas some credit," said Everett. "We got two easy touchdowns but they wouldn't die. It surprised us but we did what we had to do when we had to do it."

Everett hit 27 of 37 passes for 341 yards. He also had scoring passes of one yard to Damone Johnson and 18 yards to Cox.

"We can't continue to screw up for 57 minutes then start playing great football," Robinson said. "We can't expect to win against San Francisco next week doing that."

Aikman, who hit 19 of 34 passes for 179 yards, lost a time out late in the game when referee Johnny Greer thought he was signaling one. However, Aikman was trying to signal to his receivers.

Southwest Conference football race exciting right to the end

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

The Arkansas Razorbacks successfully defended their championship, three teams are in bowl games and Andre Ware won the Heisman Trophy.

While the Southwest Conference won't produce a national football champion this year, it had one of the most exciting races in recent times.

Arkansas claimed the title outright on Saturday with a hard-earned 38-24 victory over lowly Southern Methodist. The Hogs had one loss on their record.

Texas, the team that beat Arkansas early in the season, fell 21-10 to Texas A&M and, in the process, suffered their second consecutive losing season. It was the first time the Longhorns had back-to-back losing since 1937-38.

The Aggies claimed second place and a berth in the John Hancock (Sun Bowl) in El Paso on Dec. 30 against the Pittsburgh Panthers.

Arkansas, of course, will meet Tennessee on New Year's Day in the Cotton Bowl. The Hogs lost 17-3 to UCLA in the Cotton Bowl last year.

Texas Tech is the other SWC bowl representative. The Red Raiders play the Duke Blue Devils in the All-American Bowl in Birmingham, Ala., on Dec. 28.

Although Houston couldn't go to a bowl because of probation, Ware collected the ultimate prize, the Heisman Trophy. He won it by only 70 points in close balloting over Indiana running back Anthony Thompson.

The junior said he will return for his final year at Houston in 1990 instead of opting for the big bucks in professional football.

Houston ripped Rice 64-0 to finish its season with only two losses, to Arkansas and Texas A&M.

The Aggies beat Texas for the sixth consecutive time as they finished the season 8-3. Coach R.C. Slocum gave them time off until Dec. 16 when they will begin work for the Panthers.

SMU led Arkansas 24-23 with 10:21 left before the Hogs finally subdued coach Forrest Gregg's 40-point underdogs.

"When they scored that touchdown, I was thinking the same thing everyone else was thinking, what's going on?" said Arkansas' quarterback Quinn Grovey. "We were just shocked we were in that position."

Grovey came right back to score the game-winning touchdown for the Hogs, who go to the Cotton Bowl with a 10-1 record.

SMU, playing its first season since it returned from the NCAA's "death penalty," had two victories and led, Texas, Arkansas, and A&M before losing.

Rangers selected as Organization of the Year by Baseball America magazine

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Rangers have been named Organization of the Year by Baseball America magazine.

The publication will present its annual award Monday in Nashville, Tenn., during baseball's winter meetings.

The award was announced at a news conference in Nashville Sunday, where the Rangers were lauded for efforts in player scouting and development, not to mention the on-paper results that included turning around a minor-league losing streak.

The Rangers' farm teams have rebounded from a major-league-low .372 composite record in 1986. This past season, Rangers minor-league teams ranked fourth in baseball with a combined .541 winning percentage. Only the Chicago White Sox, New York Yankees and Los Angeles Dodgers organizations had better records.

"It's really something to win this award now because most of our talent is still young and at the double-A Tulsa level," said Marty Scott, Rangers' director of player development.

"I think we're a year to a year and a half away from being fully stocked with talent from triple-A Oklahoma City on down."

Among the Rangers prospects expected to lead the team in the 1990s are center fielder Juan Gonzalez and third baseman Scott Coolbaugh, both of whom finished the year with the Rangers.

Others are last year's No. 1 draft choice Donald Harris, an outfielder who played rookie ball in Bute, Mont., last season and the 1987 No. 1 pick, Monty Fariss, a shortstop at Tulsa.

first-place votes, moved from 11th to No. 10 with 1,031 points.

Arizona was the only team to drop from the Top Ten. The Wildcats fell to a 1-2 record after a disastrous three days in the state of Oregon.

Syracuse remained atop the Associated Press college basketball poll today with Kansas making the jump from fourth to second.

The Orangemen got 48 of the 63 first-place votes and 1,535 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters after winning four games in its first-ever week as a regular-season No. 1.

Syracuse beat Rutgers and Cornell and won the Carrier Classic with wins over Virginia Commonwealth and Temple and is now 4-0.

Kansas (6-0) had 17 first-place votes and 1,443 points, 18 more than Georgetown (3-0), which remained No. 3 and had five first-place votes.

Missouri (4-0) and UNLV (3-1) rounded out the top five and were followed by Duke, Illinois, Michigan, Louisiana State and Arkansas.

The Tigers had a first-place vote and 1,325 points, 60 more than the Runnin' Rebels as both teams improved one place from last week. Duke (3-0), which has broken the 100-point mark every time out this year, had 1,246, while the Fighting Illini (2-0) had 1,139. Both also moved up one place.

Michigan (3-1) moved from 10th to eighth with 1,080, 29 more than LSU (2-1), which stayed ninth. Arkansas (3-0), which had two

Vols in Cotton Bowl

DALLAS (AP) — Officials from the Cotton Bowl got a little help from Auburn Saturday to guarantee that two conference champions would collide in Dallas on New Year's Day.

After Auburn defeated Alabama 27-10, Tennessee became a tri-champion of the Southeast Conference and accepted an invitation to play Southwest Conference champion Arkansas in the 54th Cotton Bowl Classic.

Tennessee, Auburn and Alabama all finished the season with a record of 6-1 in the SEC. Tennessee and Alabama finished 10-1 overall and Auburn finished 9-2.

The Sugar Bowl, which traditionally is host to the SEC champion, selected Alabama to play Miami in New Orleans on Jan. 1.

The Cotton Bowl "is a great bowl game and Dallas is a great city," said Tennessee coach Johnny Majors shortly after receiving the invitation Saturday evening. "We are extremely pleased to be going as one of the champions of the Southeastern Conference.

"We have a lot of ties with Arkansas having coached there in the 1960s. So, it should be a natural rivalry and one that will excite the fans from both Tennessee and Arkansas."

The Razorbacks were extended their bid to the Cotton Bowl this past Tuesday in Fayetteville, Ark., by Jim Williams, president of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association Team Selection Committee.

Adubato expected to be offered Mavs' job

DALLAS (AP) — Interim Dallas Mavericks coach Richie Adubato, who is expected today to be offered the job of head coach, has already gone to work trying to quell the turmoil surrounding the NBA team.

"It's important that there's an understanding between me and the players. We're going to talk about their roles and what my plans are for them," Adubato said.

He met Sunday with Sam Perkins and James Donaldson and said player relations top his coaching agenda.

Adubato took over the 7-7 team last week after John MacLeod was fired. The team is 2-1 since the transition and players have confidence in Adubato.

"I think it's going to be a good situation because Richie can coach, and everyone has a great respect for him," said team captain Rolando Blackman. "I hope we can do the job for him and also for ourselves. I'm confident we can."

Adubato is expected to be offered the permanent coaching position today in a meeting with Mavs' vice president Rick Sund, owner Donald Carter and general manager Norm Sonju. Adubato said he hopes for assurances that the front office will support him in case rebuilding is needed.

Adubato said he hopes there will be a parallel to a situation several years ago involving former New York Knicks coach Hubie Brown.

While Adubato was an assistant to Brown, the Knicks won nearly 50 games one season and then took Boston to seven games in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

Then, the Knicks lost Bill Cartwright and Bernard King to injuries, and the team fell apart.
