Jars—

New Dealers have been following intently the recent mobilization of anti-Roosevelt forces into a common offensive unit. These influences were demoralized for long months following inauguration but the Roosevelt camp appreciates fully they are once more marshaled on the political, financial and economic battlefields.

Most interesting to the New Deal strategists at the moment is the under-geographic consolidation of the financial front against President Roosevelt's administration. They have heard the word being whispered around Wall Street that FDR isn't a fighter in the final analysis. They know about the predictions Mr. Roosevelt will fold up and compromise right and left once he begins to feel the squeeze. Also, they have felt the start of the squeeze.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has been advised that the intimates that the administration has a few blackjacks concealed that will jar the Wall Street boys if they continue playing so rough.

Those who know President Roosevelt best are betting their last dollar that the big bankers won't make him see ghosts. They recall what he said about the money-changers in his inaugural address and they report that his uncompromising opinion hasn't changed a whit in the intervening months.

While FDR was in Hyde Park recently a delegation of prominent eastern bankers called on him. They urged that he use his influence to call off the prosecution of the indicted Detroit banking interests.

It was explained carefully to the President that if there had been any violation of the banking laws it was purely "technical." Mr. Roosevelt listened with polite interest. After they were gone it became evident the use of that word "technical" interested him greatly. So far as the White House is concerned the Detroit prosecutions will be pressed.

Raps—

Former President Herbert Hoover sounded the clarion call of the opposition—although he was merely repeating what many others have said in recent weeks—when he charged the New Deal's policies were akin to socialism and communism.

This charge doesn't make half the dent in the administration that does the claim the New Deal is intent on eliminating profit from business.

Republicans and conservative Democrats contend that NRA has laid down hour and wage schedules which can not be accepted if a profit margin is to be retained. These opponents grant that many marginal concerns should be crowded out in the course of time but they insist, particularly in times like these, that the government has no right to hasten the process by so.

One of the city wells in the city park has been cleaned out and the pump set on the bottom at 280 feet in the red bed, insuring a sustained capacity production. Before, gravel created a problem by getting through a larger strainer and battering the propellers of the Pomona pump. The company has installed new propellers without cost to the city.

YOU NEED NOT GO FAR TO FIND ROMANCE

The word "romance" is a strange one. It usually conjures up visions of men who live lives of danger and action—soldiers, cowboys, explorers, sailors and so on; too often we forget that the greatest romance of all is sometimes to be found in a life which, to all outward seeming, is prosaic and uneventful.

One is reminded of this by news of the recent death of Dr. William Campbell Posey, noted Pennsylvania ophthalmologist.

Dr. Posey spent his life combating diseases of the eye, and a short time before his death he wrote a short article for "The Sight-Saving Review", telling of the romance he had found in the long fight to keep people from losing their eyesight.

He told of the German physician, 150 years ago, who first suspected that infection in a child's eyes at birth could be the cause of blindness and who vainly tried to persuade his colleagues of the truth of his theory. He had no success.

Physicians kept on explaining to harassed parents that their children had lost their sight because of peculiar atmospheric conditions, cold drafts, unbalanced conditions in the alimentary canal and the like—and new-born children kept on being stricken with blindness.

Then Dr. Posey went on to carry the story down through the years. He told how the old German doctor was vindicated, some 80 years later, when another German doctor showed the world how to save the sight of thousands of infants annually by dropping a 2 per cent solution of silver nitrate into the eyes of new-born babies.

He told how other specialists devised equipment to make happier and easier the lives of people born with weak or defective eyes; how special methods of care and training were drawn up to fit those who did lose their sight for useful, normal, existence; how hospitals and clinics were founded to prevent blindness; how means were found of preventing many injuries to the eyes; how a vast mass of knowledge of diseases of the eye was compiled, to make the task of saving eyesight progressively easier.

And in all of this Dr. Posey found an absorbingly romantic story—as the rest of us can do, also, if we get rid of our preconceived notions about what romance really is.

In the age-old struggle to make the hard lot of human beings a little brighter and happier there is romance enough to satisfy the most ardent. All we need is someone like Dr. Posey to make us see it.

Under The Dome At Austin

By GORDON K. SHEARER

AUSTIN, (UP)—Shipment of 40,000,000 barrels of East Texas oil to China, Japan, Germany and England would mean that each Texas oil well would be permitted to produce about two more barrels of oil daily, regardless of who got the contract.

Production is apportioned among wells according to market demand. If the 40,000,000 is added to the demand each well can produce more.

Notice that there are orders for that quantity has been given the railroad commission.

Attorney General James V. Allred has a new address. It is "Seclusion." Whether he has taken refuge from the hordes of office seekers, or is seeking an undisturbed chance to plan for his governorship, is unsettled. One report says he will be to Washington after the general election and talk relief direct with federal authorities.

Former Governor O. B. Colquitt, until recently a member of the federal labor mediation board, attributes the end of his services to not being a "brain trust." It is not necessary to remove him from the board upon which he had succeeded another former governor of Texas, Pat M. Neff. The law creating the board is so worded that more failure to reappoint him vacated the office at the end of his specified term. Most officials remain in office until successors are named.

Colquitt is now the oldest living ex-governor of Texas and that is his only office, as he points out. Except for whitened hair, he shows little sign of passing years. Cen-

TALK AVOIDS TROUBLE

The English seem to have thorough knowledge of the ways in which free speech serves as a valuable social safety valve.

British Fascists had a big mass meeting in London's Hyde Park the other day. Thousands of Fascists paraded; thousands of their sympathizers gathered to cheer them thousands upon thousands of bitter foes of Fascism gathered to heckle them—and, finally, five thousand bobbies were present to see that no blood was spilled.

There are civic authorities who would have been alarmed at such a demonstration and would have ordered all speeches called off and all mobs dispersed, to prevent trouble. But not the British. They let everybody talk. The bobbies had little or nothing to do. No heads were broken, no noses were punched, and everybody went home happy after it was over.

By letting the discontented talk their heads off, the British very frequently escape serious trouble.

FROM ONE SLUM TO ANOTHER

Rebuilding dilapidated dwellings in slum areas is an exceedingly important job. But if it is to have the effect it should have, rents in the new dwellings must be within the reach of the people who formerly occupied the slums.

A case in point is coming to light in a mid-western industrial city, where the government is about to spend millions putting up new homes in one of the worst slum areas. Approximately 400 families are being moved out of the buildings that are being torn down—and now it develops that most of them will continue to live in that neighborhood in other dilapidated buildings, or will move out of the neighborhood altogether. The new buildings will be too costly for them.

Spending millions on slum clearance will do little good if new slums are going to replace the old ones.

Colquitt says he is another example of the fact that holding public office does not pay in dollars and cents. He computed recently that he received $45,000 pay and spent $65,000. Former Governor Neff estimated that it cost him $90,000 to be governor of Texas, he included in the estimate fees that he might reasonably have expected to earn if he had continued law practice.

There are legal kinks as well as stream twists that have to be straightened out in rectification of the United States-Mexico boundary as defined by the Rio Grande. El Paso representatives found that out and offered a bill in the Texas legislature that permits Texas to cede to the federal government the river and banks were necessary to effect the rectification.

Claude C. Westerfield, who comes to the state senate in January as successor to Sen. George Park, is a former law partner of District Judge W. F. Robertson of 126th district court, Austin. His first call on a visit to the capital city was upon the judge.

Texas legislators still are trying to decide if drought, dollar shakiness and cotton reduction caused the rise in cotton prices. Experts assigned all three reasons. Some named them singly, some in combination and some joined the three.

MIDWEST FARMERS BUILT PONDS FOR FUTURE DROUGHT

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—Farmers of the midwest have learned their lesson about drought and lack of stock water this summer and so countless farms now are being built simple, but adequate, ponds and dams.

Old ponds have been cleaned out and new ones built. Gullies, draining planted acreage, have been dammed. The usual dam is made of earth. After a year's time it becomes water tight and provides a storage place for water the year around.

This year, had more ponds and dams been provided on farms, much stock cattle could have been retained that had to be sold because of inadequate water supplies.

AMERICAN AIRLINES' EXPRESS POUNDAGE IS UP 26.9 PER CENT

CHICAGO—Air express poundage of American Airlines during the first eight months of 1934 showed an increase of 26.9 percent over the comparable period a year ago, Rogers M. Combs Jr., express traffic manager of the company, announced today.

During this period, he said, American handled a total of 224,020 pounds of express as compared with 176,470 pounds in the first eight months of 1933. Express carried during the month of August totaled 27,589 pounds as against 25,596 pounds in August, 1933.

In addition, Combs pointed out, American Airlines carried 52.9 percent of all express poundage handled by General Air Express, the Interline System, during the first half of 1934, as against 39.35 percent during the same period a year ago.

R. J. Kornfuehrer of Weesatche community still forges ahead along the land to greater and greater poultry profits.

Credit for getting "Richard" starter in the right way should go to his brother-in-law, Max Weise a poultry demonstrator.

The demonstration chain seems endless; Max Weise got his start from his brother, Willie Weise, the first poultry demonstrator in the neighborhood.

Anyway, Mr. Kornfuehrer started from scratch with a few mongrel buff leghorn hens from two to eight years old which roosted in trees, lived on a diet of corn and plenty of fresh air and succeeded in laying perhaps 70 eggs per year.

Mr. Kornfuehrer now is the proud possessor of 280 pullets of this year's raising and 150 yearling hens all of outstanding breeding.

He has consistently fed them in the proper manner since breaking away from the old regime, kept them free of body parasites and given them a dosing once or twice a year with gasoline for intestinal worms.

The federal government's blow against illegal liquor selling in Texas and other dry states, previously hinted, has fallen.

Every person who has sold, or is selling, liquor in violation of the state law, has been held liable for a $1000 federal excise tax, even though he has secured other required federal permits and paid other taxes; and may become liable also for an additional 25 per cent penalty for failing to make proper returns to the government.

Penalty for failing to pay this $1000 tax is a $1000 fine or a year's imprisonment, or both.

The order was announced by the liquor tax unit of the internal revenue bureau of the U. S. treasury department.

It was made under the provision of the repeal of the 18th amendment which pledged federal government cooperation to maintaining the laws of dry states.

It was obvious that but few of the numerous small hard-liquor dealers would be able to pay the $1000 excise tax levy. Since sales have been going on more or less openly for several months, it was not known how much evidence federal agents had gathered in preparation for its collection of these taxes.

The order even goes to the extent of levying the $1000 tax on the manufacturer of stills. The tax will be avoided only by showing that the sales have been confined to liquor under the beer and wine amendment, or those dispensed under the medicinal provision of the Dean law.

Tyler secured statewide recognition and praise for its rose festival, when roses were distributed upon the desks of every house and senate member and state official this week. The roses accompanied an invitation extended lawmakers and others to attend the festival.

The issue of a fourth called session of the legislature has not been settled. Depending on the final outcome of an attempt to investigate present oil conservation, and a bill to strengthen it, prospects appeared to delay the session for a month or 45 days, and then strongly revive the issue of its convening. Even though the senate voted, 21 to 2, against the need of any other session immediately, those sponsoring the investigation believed it, if ordered, will stir up enough agitation and set off enough charges, criticisms and attacks to put their demand for a new oil commission in full swing again.

Termites Raze Old Mission

SANTA MARIA, Cal., (UP)—Ancient Mission Santa Ines, until now one of the best preserved landmarks of the old Spanish days in California, is threatened after more than 130 years with destruction by termites.

Founded in 1804 by the Franciscan missionary, Father Estevan Tapia, the rambling tile and adobe structure has withstood the ravages of the years well. Despite insurrection, fire, quake, flood and neglect, which claimed portions of the original buildings, there remains standing today the crude chapel and a half of the living and executive quarters, of what was once a magnificent ecclesiastical domain on the sun-browned California hillside.

Within the last decade, however, billions of termites—tiny wood-eating insects scarcely as large as ants—have accomplished what wind and weather and earthquakes failed to do, and engineers are afraid the old buildings will not stand for more than a few more months.

IDAHANS BUILD HOMES LIKE THEIR FOREFATHERS

MOSCOW, Idaho, (UP)—Idaho homebuilders have revived an industry of their forefathers, according to Professor Hobart Baresford, head of the department of agricultural engineering at the University of Idaho.

They are building their habitations of logs again, he says and predicts the work of supplying the rough material will assume important proportions within the next year.

Baresford's announcement was based on the number of applications made in his department for blueprints for the new type building.

WELLOCK, Wash. (UP)—A new fossil bed, containing marine remains of the Oligocene period about 23,000,000 years ago, was discovered near here by Dr. Charles Weaver, University of Washington geologist. The bed included large clam and snail shells, such as are found now only in tropical waters.

Bovines Taper Off For Scrap With Panthers

Pass Attack To Be Tried

The lot of bunged-up football players on the Steer squad runs something like this: Cordill, Madison, Jones, Cault, Neel and Stiff. However, none of the injuries are of such a serious nature that the players' performance will be seriously affected. It's all the result of hard work in practice.

One Pete Halls, San Angelo wrestling promoter, was in town Wednesday trying to find a suitable location to start the bone-bending game to functioning here again. Halls, as far as we know, left without making much headway.

Spike Henninger and his Cosden Oil baseball team will wind-up activities at Cosham Sunday afternoon when they play the third and deciding game with the Sinclears for the championship of the US Eighty league.

Spike says he has a basketball team in mind this year that will be as tough as any in the country. He plans to start practice before long.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. (Prexy) Anderson, proud parents of a fine eight pound daughter born Wednesday. Prexy is Sports Editor of the Abilene Reporter-News.

Faxton H. Dent, sports writer for the El Paso Times, sends line-up of the Austin Panthers and encloses the following note: "Austin appears very weak. Bowie beat Austin 13 to 0 Saturday in the season opener for both teams. You should be able to knock the Austin crew over without lots of trouble."

Word comes that Sweetwater football fans are to purchase a Grid-graph, a machine operated by telegraphic reports that gives a play-by-play account of games. Local high school officials will probably get their Grid-graph to operating within a week or so. El Paso school officials decided not to secure a play-by-play account of the game to be played here tomorrow because of lack of interest.

Most of the baseball fans around here are banking on the St. Louis Cards to edge out New York in the National race.

Bristow put up a strong argument when the department said the Lubbock Westerners weren't but about five pounds to the man heavier than the Steers. Obie went over his figures again with us very carefully and said he was convinced it was at least fourteen pounds, and probably more.

We slipped up in guessing the water boy's weight at 250. Obie said he tipped the scales at exactly 290 and we don't doubt that a bit.

Immediately after the game here tomorrow afternoon Obie will take his squad to San Angelo to view the Bobcat-Cisco clash.

Sweetwater grid fans seem to be all heated up over the approaching tilt with the Abilene Eagles Friday. It looks bad for the Ponies. The

Bristow's Crew To Use Aerial Offensive Again

Although the Steers showed some improvement in work-outs Wednesday, Coach Bristow and Mofett are none too sure of their team, which has been playing rather erratically.

The big Bristow indicated that fans would probably see more passing tomorrow against El Paso than in any game the Bovines have played heretofore.

He said he would work on the "pass three times and punt idea" at least during the first half no matter what the cost. "I have no idea how it will work," Obie said, "but I can't find out any other way." Every player that has showed even an inkling of ability to pass or slug 'em will be given an opportunity against the Panthers.

Tackling Improved Tackling, which has been worse than terrible, has improved to a marked degree, and playing in general has shown a smoother, more clock-like precision.

Obie said that his starting backfield would be: Cault, full; Hare, left half; and Cordill and Flowers alternating at quarter and right-half.

Shifting In Line There has been some shifting in the line because of loafing. Jack Darwin, who is big but has been just so-so has suddenly come to life with a bang and earned a starting berth against the Panthers at left-half. Richard Gibson is another player that has shown so much improvement he is slated to start at left-guard.

Calling wrong plays at critical moments cost the Steer the fringes against Lubbock, but Bristow thinks that trouble has been eliminated. "Still," he said, "we may be going hay-wire by pulling so much stuff, but I'm determined to see the result even if it costs us the game, but I don't believe it will."

Rob Back In Line-up Cordill and B. Flowers will alternate at calling the plays. The addition of Rob to the backfield, fully recovered from injuries, should and will mean a lot. His cool, level-headedness and bang-up playing has won for him the reputation of being a real scrapper against any outfit and at any time.

The Steer secondary right now is not what one would call a versatile backfield, but it has every indication of rounding-out into one. Coach Thad Steele and Ed Coleman expect to arrive here some time late this afternoon with a squad of about twenty or more.

The game will be called at 6:30.

Phillips Wins Ringer Tourney

Mrs. G. I. Phillips won the Municipal Ringer golf tournament with a 36, four under ladies' par. Mrs. Theron Hicks won the prize for the lowest single medal round with a 45.

In the lowered score division, Mrs. M. E. Tatum took honors by trimming twenty-four strokes off her first posted score. She defeated Mrs. George Gentry by one stroke.

In the special play Monday, putting-counting one-half stroke, Mrs. Hicks won low medal with 38 1/2. Mrs. Chas. Worley won net with a 40, and Mrs. Phillips won the prize for the lowest number of putts with seven, each putt counting one-half stroke.

Approximately one hundred and twenty rounds of golf was played in the ladies tournament, Chas. Akey, pro, said.

Sweetwater publicity department has been painting a very dark picture.

Sergeant John D. Chapman, army recruiting officer stationed here, is one of the vanishing tribe who played back in the days of the old "flying wedge." Sgt. Chapman was a center and center was a bad place to be stationed when the wedge power was turned loose. But with the cooperation of a couple of busky guards, he outwitted the opposition. The two guards would boost him over the heads of the wedges front, catapulting him up on the ball carrier. "It was the only way we could stop it," recalls the sergeant.

Cards Fail To Take 1st Place

ST. LOUIS—Waite Hoyt, a veteran of the baseball wars, who was a world series star when Paul Dean was a barefoot boy, prevented the St. Louis Cardinals from moving into first place in the National league pennant race Wednesday.

Hoyt, who is staging a remarkable come-back with the Pittsburgh Pirates, held the Cardinals to two hits, both singles by Johnny Rothrock and shut them out 3 to 0. Young Dean, his starting mound opponent, gave six hits in six innings and retired in favor of a pinch-hitter.

As Bill Terry's New York Giants suffered another defeat at the hands of Philadelphia, the Cardinals remained one game behind last year's world champions.

The standings show the Cardinals tied with New York on the losing side of the ledger and two victories behind on the won side. The Red Birds still can tie for the championship by winning their remaining four games, all with the Cincinnati Reds, even if the Giants win their two with the Brooklyn

Andersonites Only Undefeated Team In Semi-Final

By HANK HART

Tuesday night's play settled nothing in the way of title play when The Herald Type Lice softball team handed the Linckmen their first defeat and went into the quarter-final round with the Groceriesmen, the Cosden Oilers, the Anderson Bards, and the Kiwanis Club.

The Herald fought desperately with the Linckmen and, with the aid of a few breaks, managed to push the game into extra innings, and come out on top when Jeff Chapman smashed out a mighty home run to send the Newbies into the lead.

The lead changed several times during the melee and the result was in doubt until Chapman's deciding blow.

The right fielder also took hitting honors with three bingles in five attempts.

Homar Hart and E. P. Ketter took bat honors for the losers with two safe blows apiece.

The Anderson Melody Makers uncovered a real hickory attack in the second game, when they collected a total of 20 assorted blows off three Cosden twirlers to hand the Oilers their worst beating of the season when they came out on the long end of a 20-0 score.

Evidently affected by the cold, the Oilers offense failed to click at any time and only one man reached the far corner during the nine stanzas.

Chet Fowler, emerging from temporary retirement, pitched one of the best games of his softball career when he scattered seven Cosden hits through the nine innings.

The big pitcher also hit one of the pinches. The Buccaneers, who have bombarded their way past all Texas league opposition, were able to score in only one of the 12 innings.

The New Orleans right-hander was almost matched in effectiveness by Jim Bivin, one of Galveston's two best right-handers. Both hurlers showed signs of weakening in the extra innings but they stuck it out.

Local Dean Boy Pulls Hard For Dix And Paul

Jack Dean, who has played baseball in and around Big Spring with various teams for several years, is pulling hard for the St. Louis Cardinals to win the National championship.

Jack, a cousin to the great Dixie and Paul Dean, has been promised a trip by Paul to see the World series if the Cards figure in the play-off, hence Jack's pull for St. Louis.

The local Dean boy is built large and is athletically inclined, and should some day make a great pitcher like his cousins.

Heavy Work Slated For Horned Frogs

FORT WORTH, (Sp.)—The heaviest workout of the week was taken Wednesday afternoon by the Texas Christian university Horned Frogs, in preparation for their game with the Denton Teachers here Saturday. Some of the Fort Worth fans may take the game lightly, but not Coaches Dutch Meyer and Bear Wolf and the players.

Indications are that the Frogs will not show any more of their offense that is absolutely necessary. They will depend upon straight football unless hard pushed. The presence of Arkansas scouts in the stands is the reason for these tactics, which were also followed last week at Brownwood, when Arkansas and Centenary both scouted the Frogs.

Noel Lawson returned from Dallas Wednesday evening, where he has been under treatment. He expects to return tonight to Dallas, where he will remain for several days.

El Paso Football Team To Arrive In City Late Thursday

The Panthers are also scheduled to work-out briefly on Steer turf Friday morning.

Alice Leeper Married To D. A. Tuttle

Simple Ceremony Performed At Home Of Mrs. F. Weeg

Miss Alice Leeper and Douglas A. Tuttle were married Wednesday evening at 9:30 at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Frank Weeg at 1204 Scurry street.

The ring ceremony was performed by Rev. C. A. Bickley, pastor of the First Methodist Church, in the presence of a few intimate friends. The couple stood before an attractive altar improvised of chrysanthemums and ferns. The bride was attended by her prospective sister-in-law, Mrs. Weeg, and the groom by his brother, Jack Tuttle.

A wedding supper honoring the contracting parties was served at the Weeg home immediately after the ceremony.

The bride is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fred Leeper of this city. She was born and reared in Big Spring, obtaining her high school education in the local schools. She attended Draughan's Business College in Fort Worth and has been employed for several years as assistant city secretary. She plans to continue with her position.

The groom has made his home in Big Spring for a year, coming here from Houston. He is a graduate of the Austin high school and of the University of Texas. He has been employed by the Humble Oil Company for the past 12 years and is with that company here.

Present for the ceremony were Mr. Frank Weeg, Mrs. Mabel Quinn, Marie Arnold, and Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Barnes of San Angelo.

Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle are now residing in their apartment at 1410 Johnson street. They have postponed their wedding trip until October when Mrs. Tuttle will obtain her annual vacation.

Woodward In FHA Address Before Lions

Says Housing Program Proven Means Of Relieving Unemployment

The federal housing program was pictured to Lions Wednesday as a sane and proven means of relieving unemployment in building and allied trades and at the same time making toward permanent stabilization through home ownership.

Garland A. Woodward, local chairman of the housing program, told Lions that the program would tend to create more "home owners of our people, and home owners are contented people."

He recalled the words of President Roosevelt on the occasion of his inauguration when he said "we need action and action now." Woodward hailed the chief executive as the "greatest humanitarian ever to occupy the presidency" and reviewed several acts to clinch his point. Among those he mentioned was the home loan corporation.

Back of the present housing program is the attempt to "put idle moneys to work," said Woodward.

He explained how the government had guaranteed financial institutions loaning money under the housing program scope against losses amounting to 20 per cent of the aggregate. Woodward quoted a local banker as saying that in reality the guarantee amounted to a 100 per cent guarantee.

Any improvement which becomes a permanent part of the property can be made under terms of the act, he declared. Loans are simple and do not require mechanics or materialmen's liens, he said. Persons desiring to make improvements should outline these improvements to their banker who will handle the loan, he continued.

A number of applications for loans have already been received by the two local banks, both of which have qualified to handle loans, as

Roosevelt Wears Straw Hat Despite Style Ultimatum

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Roosevelt defied another tradition Wednesday but expressed the hope that no one would notice it.

He arrived in the capital wearing a straw hat although the deadline for such apparel here is Sept. 15.

As cameramen began to photograph him he smiled and said he hoped no one would observe that his hat was out of season.

Taos, N. M. Swept By $25,000 Blaze

TAOS, N. M.,—Five business establishments burned to the ground here Wednesday in another of a series of disastrous fires that have hit this picturesque New Mexico town the last few months.

Damage was estimated at $25,000 to $25,000. The fire was on the northeast corner of the plaza, diagonally across from the Don Fernando hotel, which burned to the ground some months ago. A previous fire destroyed the courthouse and a number of buildings on another side of the plaza.

Hampered by lack of water, the volunteer fire department nevertheless waged a winning fight, saving a big garage from catching fire.

H. D. C. News

Many Howard county women are already making a splendid showing in home demonstration work and aiding the agent, Miss Mayme Lou Parr, in demonstration.

Among those particularly active just now are the following:

Mrs. L. J. Davidson of the Fairview club has one of the most complete 4-H pantries in Howard county visited to date by the agent. She has a fine built-in pantry that will hold 500 or more containers and permit systematic arrangement, which she has almost completed. She plans a pantry achievement day for her club members, friends and others interested to be held later in the fall.

Mrs. A. J. Stalling of Lomax has canned a number of tin containers for the winter's food supply as well as canned fruit, preserves, pickles in glass. She is planning to improve her storage place in the kitchen or by building a concrete-lined cellar.

Mrs. Hay Hancock is wardrobe demonstrator for the Fairview club. She has already started her system of budgeted buying of clothing and is keeping her account accurately. She is a former 4-H club girl and is interested in all types of clothing work.

Miss Verna Chapman is wardrobe demonstrator for the Lomax club. She has begun her work with improvement of her clothes closet. She took a picture of the closet as it was in the beginning and will take another after it is finished. She has started a clothing scrapbook in which she will keep samples of all seams, finishes, button-holes pockets and new stitches she learns in her wardrobe work.

Triangle Members Resume Sessions

Mrs. E. W. Lomax entertained members of the Triangle Bridge club with its first party of the season, since disbanding last spring for the summer months, Wednesday at the Settles hotel.

A brown and white autumn color scheme was cleverly used in all the accessories. Tallies carried these colors out, so did the prizes and wrappings as well as the refreshments.

Mrs. Fahrenkamp made club high and received a crystal bonbon dish. Miss Jordan made second high and was awarded a crystal cream and sugar set.

Refreshments of Boston cream pie iced in chocolate and hot coffee were served the two visitors, Mrs. Mae Battle and Mrs. Eddie Price and the following members: Meses. E. E. Fahrenkamp, Monroe Johnson, W. B. Hardy, Omar Pittman and Miss Jena Jordan.

Mrs. Pittman will be the next hostess.

Mrs. Elmo Wasson Hostess To Ely See

MASHPEE, Mass. (UP)—In the 250-year-old Indian Church here, perhaps the oldest Indian church in the country, Martin Middleton of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Doris Frye, a descendant of the Wampanoag Indians, were married. It was the first time in 45 years that a wedding had been performed.

W. Inkman, Harry Hurt and Shine Phillips.

Next hostess will be Mrs. Ellington.

All Members Attend Pioneer Session

All thirteen members of the Pioneer Bridge club were present for the session at Mrs. C. W. Cunningham's Wednesday afternoon—the first time this has happened in many moons.

Mrs. Clarke scored highest of them all.

The hostess served a delicious two-course refreshment to the following: Meses. Albert Fisher, Bernard Fisher, Joyce Fisher, E. O. Ellington, Des Hilliard, C. W. Cunningham, E. Benson McNew, J. D. Biloc, H. C. Strain, John Clarke, W.

TIGER ISLAND

By Gouverneur Morris

Chapter 26 ALMOST RESCUED

"The island looks just as much like a dog or a bear," said Ivy.

"That's true too," said Bowers, "but the important thing is that the island isn't all volcano. Were you ever in Tahiti?"

"As far as I can make out on this tiny scale, the arrangement is something like a dog's snout. A certain mountain mass with sharp descending ridges like spokes in a wheel, these divide the foreshore and all the fertile land into valleys. Tiger Island even has lagoons and a barrier-reef. Do you notice anything peculiar about the reef?"

"Except that there are breaks in it," said Ivy.

"Well," he said, "each break seems to be exactly opposite one of the valleys. In Tahiti that would mean rivers. Rivers mean brackish water and where the water is brackish, coral won't grow."

"Why," he exclaimed, "it's a magnificent island! I don't believe there is a better island anywhere in the world. It's near two main seaports, and we'll be able to signal a passing ship and they'll send in for us and take us away."

"If I weren't such an imprudent fool," he went on, "I would have provided a suit home kind of a sail. Maybe one of the deck planks would do for a mast and we could make some kind of a sail out of a sheet."

With the aid of the fireman's ax and the rope which he had brought, Bowers succeeded in stepping a whippy mast and setting a kind of sail. But it was long past noon when he had accomplished these things, and already thirst amounted to suffering.

Helen was all for drinking seawater, but Ivy would not let her. For an hour after stepping the mast and setting the sail no calm could have been flatter. The sea was of that turquoise blue peculiar to the tropics, but presently to the westward, in the direction of Borneo, the color darkened and this darkening spread rapidly and came toward them.

Helen was all for drinking seawater, but Ivy would not let her. For an hour after stepping the mast and setting the sail no calm could have been flatter. The sea was of that turquoise blue peculiar to the tropics, but presently to the westward, in the direction of Borneo, the color darkened and this darkening spread rapidly and came toward them.

"Looks like a real breeze," said Bowers, and as he spoke he was careful to touch wood.

His guess was justified and the raft was presently moving forward at such a rate that there were detectable sounds of chucking and slapping water. The breeze held. The sun was now at their backs, and the entire profile of Tiger Island could be seen.

Streaks of white where the ocean encountered the barrier-reef and beyond, a low spreading mountain of classic shape which appeared to rest on a level plain. An hour later they could see that the level plain was forest and jungle, and that three parts of the volcano's graceful slopes were covered with verdure.

An hour later Bowers sprang to his feet with a cheer. His sharp eyes had distinguished among the tree-tops the unmistakable fronds of coconut trees.

The breeze blew more strongly, and they had reason to bless it. Bowers had managed to shape the raft's course for one of the breaks in the barrier-reef. But with no stronger motive power than one broken oar, the raft could never have made head against the current which flowed from the lagoon into the ocean and in sight of plenty they must have perished.

Even with the sail drawing strongly in the freshened breeze, and with Bowers steering and at the same time sculling furiously, it was a battle. But inch by inch the raft triumphed over the current, entered the lagoon and was soon wholly beyond its influence.

The lagoon was the usual conglomeration of deeps and shallows. In landing-places there was an infinite choice. The foreshore was a succession of points and bays. Some of the points were wooded. Some were of raw coral. There were white beaches of sea sand, and black beaches of volcanic sand.

Some of the ridges which swept down from the volcano and divided the island into so many valleys were knife-narrow and in parts precipitous. There were coconut palms in all stages of growth. Here and there the torn, emphatic fronds of banana trees could be seen.

Among all the landing-places they chose the nearest, a bare point of old dead black waveworn coral upon which there was a great gathering of driftwood. Their great need at the moment was water, so they made the raft secure and scrambled over broken coral and trugged along beaches and came before long to a sizable stream of cold and sweet water.

They drank and they bathed and Helen drank and bathed and then they hurried back to the raft for the sun was going down and there was much to be done to prepare for the first night ashore.

While Bowers unloaded the raft and carried their gear beyond the reach of any sudden change in the weather, Ivy gathered driftwood and built a fire—a fire, that is to say, which would be a fire when it was lighted.

If ever they saw a passing ship they would light this fire and when it was burning fiercely, they would throw green stuff on it to make a great dark smoke and this they would gather under a wet blanket and let go in periodic dark bursts which could not be noticed.

The sun went down in glory, but they had their back to it. They had agreed to camp where night found them and not to worry about

JAFSIE'S DESCRIPTION OF SUSPECT

Months ago an artist retained by the department of justice made these sketches of the man who received the $20,000 ransom from Dr. F. Conroy—"Jafsie" in the Lindbergh kidnaping case—using Dr. Conroy's description as a "model." Investigators were amazed, after Bruno Richard Hauptmann was arrested for the crime, to see how closely the artist's portraits resembled the suspect. (Associated Press Photo)

a permanent habitation until the next day. They would make a little fire and heat some of the canned things.

They had had nothing in which to fetch a supply of water from the streams but having finished the unloading, Bowers had gone after near at hand to be had for the trouble of chopping a step or two in the sloping trunk of a young tree.

Engrossed upon this business, he heard Ivy calling to him at the top of her lungs. She had turned seaward, having finished her business with the driftwood and there a mile beyond the barrier-reef, suddenly arrived as it seemed out of nowhere, slowly steamed a spruce gray gunboat.

Bowers had no sooner emerged from the coconut grove than he too perceived the gunboat. He could have laughed aloud. What a piece of luck! A rescuing ship to be signaled, a bonfire already laid and a blanket.

Not far from where Ivy had laid the fire, he had piled all the gear from the raft. He dug about with his hands for matches. They had been packed that morning, together with the canned things, salt and sugar and so forth, into blankets wet from the heavy rain of the previous night.

They were damp through and through. He was not able to strike a light.

Meanwhile the gunboat was not standing still. In a general direction she was standing along the barrier-reef and moving further and further away. There was just a chance. That damned elephant-rifle which he had never fired! It would make a noise like a young cannon.

With fingers which now shook from excitement, he unstrapped the elephant-rifle's case and jerked back the lid, but instead of the ominous brown barrels and the well-oiled walnut stock, spoils of copper wire met the eye, lead sinkers, and pieces of broken metal. His heart almost stood still.

He opened the remaining gun cases with the same distressing results. Except for an ax and his pocket-knife, he was without weapons.

Kneeling beside the last of the ravished gun-cases, "The damned swine stole my guns," he said. And presently he added: "And that's a pretty kettle of fish . . ."

He got to his feet and slid an arm around her. Together they watched the receding gunboat. She was turning in a great sweep to starboard and when at last the darkness closed down upon her and she vanished from view, she was headed for Borneo.

"Never mind, darling," said Bowers. "I've got you and tomorrow is another day."

From somewhere in the jungle not far off there sounded the full-throated angry roar of a tiger. They had forgotten all about the tigers. The hair on Bowers' scalp tingled.

"Must have missed his kill," was all that he said. Ivy did not speak.

biological reforms. The New Deal is devoting most of its energies to denying and refuting his general ideas. Roosevelt men, of course, say it isn't true. Their chief argument is that it is the old problem of the chicken and the egg. The administration claims more money must be spent in wages before purchasing power can be restored sufficiently to really start the wheels going again. Its spokesmen admit one side or the other has to take a preliminary rap. They think they're rapping in the direction to do the most ultimate good.

Income

Two suits now pending involving the personal fortunes and affairs of Andrew W. Mellon contain stipulations and allegations that are quite a coincidence. One is the brief of the Bureau of International Revenue claiming that the former Secretary of the Treasury evaded $2,050,069 in tax payments in 1931 and thus owes, with penalty, $3,075,103. The other is the Aluminum Trust's appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court from an appellate verdict of heavy damages in favor of the Essex Machine Tool company. The "Coalesced company" figures prominently in both. This company is a straightout family corporation, organized by Andrew Mellon on December 9, 1929, at which time 94,000 shares (the total issue) were placed in his name.

On December 31, 1931 the astute Andy reorganized "Coalesced", giving himself 200,000 shares; his son Paul 100,000 shares, and his daughter Alissa Mellon Bruce 100,000 shares—each valued at $100 par for a total of $40,000,000. Such "corporations" were used in boom years by many of the wealthy to avoid income payments. Disclosures to this effect before the Senate banking committee investigation resulted in a provision in the last revenue act that makes them quite unprofitable.

In the Baugh suit against the Aluminum company it was stipulated by both sides in the lower courts—Attorney General Cummings incidentally then being attorney for the plaintiff—that the "Coalesced company" held 150,000 shares of Aluminum company preferred stock as of December 21, 1931, and 106,120 shares of Aluminum, Limited, common as of December 31, 1931. The Supreme Court is expected to rule on this case October 8. Lawyers are betting the trust's appeal will be denied, thus forcing a retrial in the lower courts.

Uncle Sam, in the tax claim brief, alleges to the Board of Tax Appeals, that Mellon indulged in three fake stock transactions which enabled him to write off a loss of $6,525,283 on his 1931 income.

One of the transactions involved a transfer by Mellon of 125,522 shares of Pittsburgh Coal company common to a Pittsburgh bank on December 30, 1931. This stock in turn was transferred to the "Coalesced company" on April 25, 1932—after the income return had been made.

Safety-Valve

It is known that FDR believes that some recognition should be given to young front-rank marchers in AFL in order to prevent extreme radicals from capturing the organization. On this theory certain politicians believe that FDR is giving radicalism some rope so that it will hang itself in its own schemes. They think FDR keenly realizes that disaffection and desperation must have a vent if it is not to blow the lid off. They say that he can't express himself in these words but must rely upon the intuition of his countrymen to grasp the reason why he jollies the radicals along.

NEW YORK By JAMES McMULLIN

Cuts—The next major labor crisis will develop in the steel industry. The steel heads—having slashed white collar salaries last month—have now decided that a further cut in wage costs is essential to keep their afloat.

They realize that this will precipitate a hot labor dispute and probably lead to an extremely bitter strike. If such a strike develops it's rubies to rains it will make the textile walkout look like a Sunday school picnic so far as violence and ill feelings are concerned. The steel men's argument is that they can't help it—that the shrinkage of their business makes it impossible for them to maintain their present wage scales and survive. Some of the harder-boiled members of the industry even express themselves in private as hoping that a strike does come. From their viewpoint it would serve two useful ends. It would force a showdown with the unions at a time when capital thinks it has the best chance to win and would close down the mills when to keep them open means running at a loss.

There are others in the industry—called "softies" by their sterner associates—who would like to offer a quid pro quo of union recognition as an inducement to labor to accept the cuts peacefully. But they are in a minority and those who run the steel show will have none of such a weak-kneed proposition.

It's definite that the wage cuts are coming. Oct. 1 is set tentatively. Some of the industry's big shots favor immediate action. Others prefer to wait until November elections are over. The latter school thought holds that to start a fuss with labor now would contribute to the election of radical congressmen. The first group retorts that congress is going to be radical anyhow, so what's the use of pussy-footing. No overt action will be taken until this little argument is settled.

There are rumors of reducing wages in the automobile industry also. But the auto makers have far less excuse in the form of poor business and inside sentiment among motor magnates as by no means unanimous. Two large units in the industry would probably refuse to participate in such a move.

Menace

The committee for the nation is understood to be preparing to enter the fight for a government-controlled central bank in a big way. This is the most alarming news the bankers have heard yet. Most of them don't think much of the committee's monetary principles but they have a healthy respect for it as an effective instrument of propaganda.

A few weeks ago most New York bankers thought the wisest course would be to ignore the issue in the hope that the public wouldn't get really interested. Now they're convinced that they're confronted by a serious menace and that ostrich tactics will only assure defeat.

So they're beginning to mobilize for the battle of their lives. The early skirmishes will appear to be quite beside the point. For instance the report of the Federal Reserve Advisory Board recommending a stabilized dollar seems irrelevant. Actually it was the first item in an "educational campaign" for the sound-money-conservative banking idea. At the moment the bankers aren't so terribly concerned about sound money but any progress they make in that direction with public opinion presumably discredits the committee for the nation and weakens its influence for the more important central banking group.

Other banking shock troops will soon swing into action. The Association of Reserve City Bankers—a wire group—is designated to formulate and push an alternative bank reform program which would leave control of credit in private hands. Some of the reforms to be suggested will sound radical—coming from bankers—but the situation calls for desperate measures. Whatever proposals the Reserve City bankers make will be supported also by the heavy artillery of the American Bankers' Association.

Every weapon the bankers can dig up will be pressed into service. You'll see them cultivating public relations—as well as political—in the next few months as they have never done before. The very heart of their system is at stake.

Carols

There's an unusual aura of sweetness and light in stock market circles the last few days. Exchange officials haven't been so chipper in ages. For one thing they'll soon be able to pass the buck to the SEC for regulations which annoy members and customers. For another they are privately very relieved at the high percentage of listed corporations which fulfilled SEC registration requirements. Up to the last minute they were fearful that some big company would put them in a nasty hole by refusing to register. The few securities to be delisted are unimportant. Mostly they're closely held and inactive stocks, bonds about to mature or bank securities which shouldn't have been listed in the first place.

Brokers also are feeling happier. Hereafter if customers don't like margin requirements they can simply blame it on higher authority instead of having to stand the gaff themselves. Likewise they have the feeling that competition will be fairer and no house will be able to offer special inducements. And on top of that they get word that Washington would like to see a stronger market for its psychological effect on recovery and will put no sand in the gears. Despite continued inactivity some brokers are bold enough to forecast a healthier long-range outlook than ever before. The boys have substituted carols for the dirge they sang when regulation was being debated.

Treed

The consensus of wise New York opinion holds that the Winant Board of Inquiry did a heartily job—so far that it left both sides in the textile controversy on the spot. Neither employers nor unions were overly pleased with the truce proposition but neither can afford to say so openly for fear of offending public opinion. Those words of praise from George Sloan and Francis Gorman were uttered with tongue in cheek. The industry's leaders hate to give in for three reasons. They don't like to commit themselves to take back the "troublemakers". They dislike the plan-to-plant settlement suggested by the board because they're afraid some companies will gain too big a competitive edge with that system. Northern mills especially believe it would perpetuate the southern advantage. Most important of all they're terribly suspicious of the projected Textile Labor Relations Board and its probable susceptibility to the Perkins influence. But none of these would sound well as grounds for refusal to arbitrate so they're sort of up a tree.

National labor politics are a factor from the union angle. Gorman is one of the younger labor generation which aims to dethrone Bill Green and his henchmen in October and was prepared to keep the strike going as a means to that end. The Winant report distinctly jeopardizes this plan so you can see why his inner reactions don't match up with his outward enthusiasm.

Aggressive

Insiders understand that Cabinet circles regard the present leadership in the Federation of Labor as doomed because of its steadfast refusal to yield an inch to the younger element. The rebels have laid their plans carefully and one observer predicts that "the old fogies" will be gullitoned as smoothly as San Francisco they'll never know what hit them." The new leadership will probably try to avoid the charge of radicalism but you can write it in the book that it will be far more aggressive.

Changes

One phase of the Winant report—which the informed regard as the most significant of all—has so far hardly been noticed. If its recommendations are carried out they mean the virtual abolition of the NRA setup as applied to the textile industry and a probable distribution of its functions between the Federal Trade Commission and the new Textile Labor Board. Such a precedent would be bound to apply to other industries also and in a little while the Blue Eagle would be nothing but tail feathers.

The President's endorsement of the Winant Board's proposals is interpreted by insiders as a subtle forecast of sweeping changes to come. Donald Richberg's sharp attack on the steel code is seen as another move to prepare the public mind for a broad-scale retreat from the NRA front. Well-posted sources predict that by the time the Industrial Recovery Act expires in 1935 all that's left of it will be a few basic wage, hour, child labor and collective bargaining provisions.

For several months the government has been stalling for time on test cases aimed at NRA and AAA. New York used to attribute these delays to the administration's fear of having its policies repudiated by the courts. Now they are ascribed instead to forthcoming alterations in the New Deal structure which will make most of the tests now on the fire as stale as a radio gag.

Attack

Meanwhile the Blue Eagle's palsy has emboldened business to thumb its nose at NRA features it doesn't like. The Houde company's order to surrender its Eagle was a symbol of the prevailing industrial attitude of "to hell with it."

And don't think business will stop with flouting NRA commands. Leaders are determined to exterminate this menace of government interference in business once and for all. The Industrial Advisory Board is working out a vigorous program to that end. It will be more diplomatically phrased than the recent frontal assault on the New Deal by the heavy industries group but its objective—to restore full freedom of action for business enterprise—will be identical.

AAA

Conservatives are especially delighted by signs that AAA is headed for the ashcan. Denials to the contrary, they believe they've seen the last of brainstruter Tugwell in an official capacity. Suspension of the Bankhead Act was also a cause for cheers. You can get an even money bet in well-posted circles that the President will find occasions to proclaim—within six months—the abolition of the AAA on the ground that the emergency it was created to meet is ended. Its growing political unpopularity is seen as a more potent factor in its fate than what New York calls its economic absurdities.

Explaining

Wall Street is intrigued by two angles of the Hauptmann arrest for the Lindbergh kidnaping which haven't yet been developed. Hauptmann's 25,000 brokerage account must have been opened with some of the gold certificates from the ransom. Gold certificates were perfectly legal at that time but they have never been turned in to a bank since the President's order to exchange them—otherwise they would have been spotted long ago. Where did they go? It looks like a red face for some hoarder or hoarders totally unconnected with the Lindbergh case. It also looks as if the brokerage house may have to do some tall explaining to the government.

The other angle concerns the Post Office. It appears that Hauptmann has recently sent money orders to Germany. Some of the boys think it would be fun if Mr. Farley's department is shown to have accepted gold certificates without noticing them.

O'Ryan

General O'Ryan's resignation as New York Police Commissioner was predicted here on August 16th. The Hauptmann break gave him the blazon of glory he wanted for his exit. Insiders believe the police should function more smoothly under Valentine—who knows the ropes. The straw that broke O'Ryan's back was Mayor LaGuardia's order to the police—during O'Ryan's absence because of illness—to permit mass picketing. This was a flat reversal of O'Ryan's own instructions which had caused the city administration no end of grief in its relations with labor.

Jesuit Mine May Be Reopened

RUBY, Ariz. (UP)—Reportedly worked by Jesuit missionaries of the Tumacacori mission more than a century ago, the old Austerlitz mine near here may be reopened. Tests to determine extent and richness of the ore bodies are being made by the Eagle-Picher Lead Company.

Students Study Colleges

CLEVELAND (UP)—A group of 300 Italian students will arrive in Cleveland, Sept. 26, to inspect the four colleges and universities here. They will represent 25 universities and will be coming to the United States to observe the academic, cultural and athletic activities of American colleges. The group will be followed by a second party of 50 prominent Italian college athletes, arriving early in October.

All Records Shattered in the 1934 Pike's Peak Race

These scenes tell the story of the most thrilling of mountain races, the recent annual Pike's Peak Climb. Upper left, Louis Unser, who shattered the A.A.A. open event record driving Glen Shultz's car. Seated on the running board are: left, B. D. Hammond, who smashed the stock car record; right, Cimino, second place; and center, Shultz, third place. All drove stock Fords with original Firestone tires. At the right is the famous silver Penrose Trophy for the stock event—standing five feet high. The 12 mile Pike's Peak course has 203 dangerous hairpin turns, and leads to a height of 14,000 feet above sea level. The roadbed, of crushed granite, is acknowledged as the supreme test of non-skid safety. During the eight consecutive years that Firestone Tires have been on the winning cars, engineers have gathered data that enables them to build better tires each year, with more non-skid safety than ever before.

Gail Borden Jr. Originator of 'Prairie Schooner'

DALLAS—While Texans think Centennial for 1936, in connection with the celebration of that event to be staged at San Antonio, Houston, Gollad, Brenham, Nacogdoches, Huntsville, Dallas and other cities of the State, they will be glad to tell that the origin of the expression, "Prairie Schooner" is credited to the activities of Gail Borden, Jr., noted in modern commercial history as the first person to discover a process for evaporating milk and for whom both a county and a county seat town in Texas have been named. Of any invention—turn of mind, Borden was one of the owners of the first Texas newspaper to achieve a continued success in publication—"The Telegraph and Texas Register", started October 10, 1835, at San Felipe de Austin. Gail Borden's vision included the development of more rapid modes of transportation than those available one hundred years ago. By rigging sails on a wagon he succeeded in achieving faster speed with this type of vehicle, but once securing wind in the sails, he could not discover any means of controlling the rate of speed. The sight of Borden's sail-rigged wagon skimming across the horizon of Galveston Bay's flat and expansive shores is said to have been responsible for the term, "Prairie Schooner", which came to be used by pioneers of the old west for referring to wagons traversing the trackless prairies.

IOWA PIONEER CLAIMS LINCOLN RELATIONSHIP

PRINCETON, Iowa, (UP)—William H. Hanks, 84, pioneer resident of this community, is one of the few persons alive who can claim a direct kinship with Abraham Lincoln. Thomas Hanks, grandfather of the Princeton man, was the brother of Nancy Hanks, the martyred president's mother. Hanks is quite active, despite his advanced age, and delights in relating anecdotes about his famous relative.

WINTER RANGE CONDITIONS IN UTAH WORRY FARMERS

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UP)—Farmers in Utah, one of the hardest-hit drought states, face winter with range conditions the worst on record. The United States Department of Agriculture reports there will be an acute shortage of feed this winter and predicted extremely high prices for hay and feed will have to be paid by growers who wish to carry their stock until spring.

Ohio Parents Strike ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio (UP)—Parents in Gosport Township, near here, defied an order of the Ohio Department of Education to close the Chestnut Level School, when fall classes opened. They refused to allow their children to ride a school bus to Belmont, where the Chestnut Level classes had been transferred. Parents claimed the state law requires operation of a school where more than 15 pupils reside. There are 19 in Gosport Township.

FALL IS HERE

THE weather may say no, but the calendar says yes. Fall is officially here. That means housecleaning and a host of necessary new things.

So we suggest you take stock today. Does the house need painting, shingles, storm windows? What about the furnace? It's not too late to put it in first-class order even if you have already started the fire. Look well at the dining-room rug, the living-room furniture, the paper on the walls. Are they full worthy of you—especially when visitors call? And the car! Soon it will need anti-freeze and a general tuning up after a Summer of hard use. The lawn may need seeding (Fall is the ideal time) and the flower beds their winter covering. And you yourself need clothes.

All these things are so easy to choose. Just read the advertisements in this paper. They are safe guides to goods and services. Study them carefully, and you will be well repaid in quality and price.

Card Chances Hurt By Loss

Red Birds Must Win Twice As Many As Giants To Gain Tie

NEW YORK (UP)—Chances of the St. Louis Cardinals in winning the National League pennant from the New York Giants were lessened considerably Wednesday when both clubs suffered setbacks in the hot-raising stretch battle of the third hottest flag race the circuit ever knew.

These twin reversals left the pennant-hungry Cardinals in the unhappy position of being forced to win twice as many games as the Giants in order to tie New York for the flag. The Cards must sweep their four remaining games with Cincinnati in order to deadlock the Giants in the final standing. If New York takes its two remaining games from Brooklyn.

In that case the final standing would be:

Duce Forces Girls To Quit Their Jobs

ROME (AP)—Premier Mussolini Wednesday began his campaign to escort women from the mill back to the kitchen.

The gradual exodus of female workers from the ranks of industry and commerce is designed by the Fascist state to solve the male unemployment question and at the same time increase the population.

The Fascist Textile Federation ordered that "to meet the demand of male employment," men shall form a minimum of 30 per cent in the weaving branch of the industry. Women now form as much as 90 per cent of the total employed in the textile trade.

Simultaneously with the textile order the export institute ordered all women clerks out.

Glasscock Co. Rancher Builds Feed Pens Here

Samuel Greer, well known Glasscock county rancher, is going to feed out much of his stock here this winter.

He is now having constructed pens capable of accommodating a thousand head of stuff although he does not anticipate placing that much stuff on feed.

For the present he is having built six pens along a 80 foot front. Each of the pens will have a width of 32 feet. Later two smaller pens will be constructed at the east ends of the two tiers of three pens each. The pens are being built adjacent to the stock yards east of Big Spring.

In connection with his pens, Mr. Greer is having a 100x100 foot barn in which he will store his feed. The barn will be located at the north-west end of the pens and is only about 50 yards from a siding.

Troughs are being built in under sheds on the north sides of the pens. On the south side of the pens there will be a drive way permitting feed to be dumped into the feed bins easily. Also it will make possible the easy weighing of the cattle from time to time. Scales will be placed at the east end of the pens.

Greer is so arranging his lay out that four water troughs will serve eight pens.

At the present time he has about 150 calves ready to come off grass. Together with other stuff from time to time, they will be brought to his pens here and fed. When the market warrants it, stuff will be shipped.

His operations make Mr. Greer the first rancher to experiment in breeder-feeder movements on a major scale in this area. Others have worked more modest schemes on their ranches, but none has undertaken feeding out cattle as Mr. Greer will do this winter.

Baugh Called A Sensation

Sweetwater Youth Cited As One Of Greatest Passers

FORT WORTH (UP)—Nothing is certain in football, but it appears the name of Sammy Baugh is to become a tall-man on Southwest Conference gridirons.

Being injured or a dozen other things that can blight a football career, this 170-pound, 21-year-old Sweetwater youth gives promise of becoming a sensation.

He is unquestionably the most promising backfield product seen at Texas Christian university in many years, not excluding the famous Cy Leland, former backfield ace and nationally known track star.

Baugh, a sophomore, is a powerful triple-threat, is well-built, stands six feet and has a "football" brain.

His accuracy at passing is almost uncanny. He is a good punter and is no weakling at carrying the ball. Sharp eyes last year singled out Baugh from the freshman squad and slated him for stardom. In his first college game this year, against Daniel Baker, he flipped three passes for touchdowns, galloped 24 yards for another, and kept Daniel Baker's back to the wall with his punts.

When Baugh is passing he is a difficult target for opposing ends. He weaves around in the backfield, similar to Bo McMillan of Center College fame, until a receiver gets clear and then cuts loose straight at his mark, sometimes 50 yards away. Frequently he backs up 20 yards to let his receivers get in the clear.

He not only has natural physical ability but seems equipped with a

Tigers Sweep Both Ends Of Twin Bill

DETROIT—The Detroit champions of the American League cranked out 26 hits off three Chicago pitchers here Wednesday afternoon to sweep both ends of a twin bill with the White Sox. Detroit took the first game 12 to 10 and the nightcap 10-3.

Playing anything but championship ball for the entertainment of a slim gallery, the Tigers belted Red Lyons for seven runs in the first two innings of the opener, only to lose the lead in the third when 12 Chicagoans came to bat and nicked Tommy Bridges for nine runs. Detroit won out with a carried into the state by high velocity winds during the early summer dust storms.
