C-C Seeks Contributions To July 4th Observance

Jerald D. Sims, president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, today issued an appeal to chamber members to help underwrite the $1,200 cost of Pampa's Fourth of July observance.

The annual Independence Day program is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 4, at Recreation Park.

The program, Sims stated, will include a patriotic prologue to be followed by a fireworks display to be staged by the Burnett Fireworks Co. of Enid, Okla.

Sims pointed out that financing of the event is not a budgeted item and it is necessary to call on the chamber membership for contributions to the Independence Day Fund. "Contributions in the past," Sims said, "have run from $5 to $100."

In a letter to chamber members today Sims wrote: "We hope you agree with us that such a program should be held and that you will be willing to help underwrite the cost, which will run to approximately $1,200."

"Now that the Vietnam conflict is over and our prisoners of war have returned to this country, Independence Day should take on a new meaning for all of us. We hope you will help us to keep a long Pampa tradition in proper observance of this historical occasion."

Televised Hearings Okayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Buoyed by a federal judge's decision clearing the way for televised testimony by key witnesses, Senate investigators today plunged into the crucial phase of public Watergate hearings — appearances by the men closest to Richard M. Nixon and his 1972 campaign.

Nixon Planning Telecast

The fourth week of hearings began half an hour after Chief Justice Warren's decision clearing the way for television testimony by key witnesses. Senate investigators today plunged into the crucial phase of public Watergate hearings — appearances by the men closest to Richard M. Nixon and his 1972 campaign.

The sources said Nixon is expected to turn to mandatory, selective controls rather than a sweeping across-the-board freeze on prices, wages, interest rates and dividends. However, the sources said the program the President is devising in the face of steadily increasing prices is expected to go beyond wage-price stabilization.

There had been some speculation that one of the devices Nixon might use to combat inflation — and at the same time to reduce the heavy drain on the nation's short gasoline supplies — was a 4-cent a gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax.

The sources said it is now doubtful the President will ask for the gasoline hike on grounds it would be "tremendously unpopular" with consumers and would be particularly unfair to low-income groups.

Pushed though he is, Nixon apparently is determined to sound out a variety of views on a wide range of possibilities to bring more stability to the economy. He was quoted as telling his Cabinet last week that he feels he has three options: To do nothing, to impose a freeze or to impose selective controls.

Nixon summoned congressional leaders of both parties to a 10 a.m. CDT meeting today ostensibly to discuss foreign policy, including new moves to salvage the Vietnam cease-fire agreement and the forthcoming state visit of Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

It appeared likely that he would take the opportunity to solicit the opinions of the legislative leaders on the economy. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield has urged quick Senate action on a 90-day wage-price freeze unless Nixon moves speedily.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica refused to order a television blackout — as urged by Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox — of potentially explosive testimony by John W. Dean III and Jeb Stuart Magruder.

Sirica said the court "lacks completely any power of intervention" in the Senate probe.

He then signed orders granting both Magruder, who was deputy Nixon campaign manager, and Dean, fired as White House counsel April 30, partial immunity from prosecution for their testimony before the special seven-member Senate Watergate panel.

The Senate Watergate committee Monday rejected Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's view that a continuation of the hearings would "muddy the waters of justice."

In his decision, Sirica said that to block out radio and television coverage of Dean and Magruder testimony "would be an assumption of power not possessed by the court."

Magruder, who reportedly will testify that he and other top Nixon campaign officials and White House aides were in on the Watergate plot to bug Democratic party headquarters, was expected to appear Thursday. Dean was to be called next week and sources believed he could corroborate Magruder's story and implicate top presidential aides in a coverup of the affair.

Expected to testify later today was the first high-level Nixon lieutenant to be called, former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, who already is under indictment in New York in connection with a suspect $200,000 Nixon campaign contribution.

Preceding him at the brown felt-draped witness table was Herbert L. Porter, the former campaign scheduling director who testified Thursday that he had perjured himself at Magruder's request both before the grand jury last summer and at the Watergate trial in January.

Today, he told how he had run into Magruder one day this spring in Lafayette Park across from the White House and that Magruder had told him glumly that he expected to be indicted for the Watergate plot along with several others.

"Did he mention the names of others he believed would be indicted?" asked Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla.

"Yes," Porter replied. "He mentioned Mr. Mitchell, Mr. LaRue, Mr. Mardian, Mr. Haldeman, Mr. Strachan, Mr. Dean and Mr. Colson."

Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell was Nixon's campaign manager until two weeks after the June 17, 1972, Watergate arrests; Frederick C. LaRue and Robert Mardian were two of Mitchell's principal deputies; H.R. Haldeman was White House chief of staff and Gordon Strachan his liaison man at the Committee for the Re-Election of the President (CRP); and Charles W. Colson was special counsel to Nixon.

Porter said he did not know why Magruder felt these men would be indicted — though all have been linked in published reports to either the Watergate plot or its subsequent coverup.

Porter, testifying in flat monotone, said Mitchell and a number of other top campaign officials were in California when news of the bugging broke and that these officials held a number of "private conversations" with Magruder, LaRue and Mardian.

Porter said he was asked to "stand guard" outside empty banquet rooms at the motel where all were staying while "three or four" meetings were held. He said he was not told of the details of the sessions, but was told they were triggered by the news that the campaign security chief, James W. McCord Jr., was one of the five men arrested at the Watergate.

Astronauts Gather Data On Pollution, Resources

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab's astronauts beamed back a television view of the north central and eastern states today, spotted pollution flowing into Lake Erie and surveyed the urban sprawl of Pittsburgh and the Washington-Baltimore area.

Capitalizing on the "big picture" vantage point of a platform in space, Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz began their 27-minute, 7,800-mile picture-taking sweep over South Dakota and ended it over the Atlantic Ocean.

Clouds and a morning haze interfered with the television view as seen in the mission control center, but the astronauts said their battery of cameras should have gathered good data for scientists trying to see how well earth's resources can be surveyed from space.

Comprehensive and repetitive surveys of specific areas by spacecraft are expected to help man cope with developing global problems such as mineral shortages, pollution, energy needs, food shortages and the expanding patterns of urban development and their effect on the environment.

The 272-mile-high astronauts, beginning their 19th day in space, saw the Great Lakes clearly and Weitz reported sighting pollution flowing into Lake Erie between Detroit and Cleveland.

As Skylab moved eastward at 17,100 miles an hour, the pilots said the view of Washington was obscured by haze and high clouds.

"I couldn't find Washington," said Weitz. "It was right under a cloud layer. It was very frustrating. I could see the Potomac river, but I just couldn't see Washington."

Their cameras, however, picked up Chesapeake Bay east of Washington and then Skylab moved out over the Atlantic and out of range of tracking stations.

Several investigators were interested in pictures of Pittsburgh and the Washington-Baltimore area to improve land use maps, monitor changes in growth since the 1970 census and survey the environmental

REACHED IN PARIS Saigon Reports New Agreement

PARIS (UPI) — Reports from Saigon said today Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho had reached a realistic new draft agreement that would bring a halt to fighting in Vietnam 24 hours after the new accord is signed.

Kissinger returned to Paris today from Washington for more talks with the while French officials readied the Kleber Avenue conference center for the possible signing of an agreement on the Vietnam truce.

The reports from Saigon said that the draft agreement provided for: —Rigorous application of a realistic cease-fire 24 hours after signature of the new accord.

—On-the-ground contacts between military commanders of the two sides (South Vietnamese and Viet Cong) in the contested zones starting 48 hours after the signing.

—Resumption of talks between Hanoi and Washington about U.S. economic aid to North Vietnam, four days after the signing.

French radio reports, meanwhile, said that the projected Kissinger-Tho agreement was disclosed in Saigon and contained a calendar for application of clauses of the Jan. 27 agreement.

Kissinger broke off the talks with Tho last week when snags arose in the new Tho agreement that is supposed to end the fighting once and for all in South Vietnam and bring peace to Laos and Cambodia.

To Fuel Or Not? NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Service station operator Charles Gugino summed up his thoughts on the fuel shortage by paraphrasing President Abraham Lincoln in a sign posted Monday at his filling station: "We can fuel some of the people some of the time, but we can't fuel all of the people all of the time."

Pampan Continues Tour Of Finland

Milton Saltzman of Pampa and four other young men from West Texas, members of a Rotary District 573 Group Study Exchange Team, are in the second week of a five-week visit to Rotary District 141 in southwestern Finland.

The Group Study Exchange is an educational activity of the Rotary Foundation which offers a person-to-person opportunity for promotion of better understanding and friendly relations among peoples of the world.

Other members of the team include John A. Anderson, Lubbock; Giles DeWitt Passmore, Jr., Sweetwater; Gary W. Rutz, Amarillo; and Charles W. Johnston, Childress. Dr. Harley D. Oberhelman, Lubbock, is the group leader and representative of the local Rotary district governor, Farris C. Oden of Amarillo.

Following arrival in Helsinki on May 26, the team traveled to the coastal city of Pori by bus. For the first three days of the visit they were accompanied by Marshall Formby, Plainview, who is the district governor nominee for 1973-74.

During the first two weeks of the program the team has visited a copper plant, a fiber board factory, a computerized saw mill, a paper mill and a ship yard. They have participated in a high school graduation ceremony and were honor guests at a Finnish baseball game.

After visiting the coastal cities of Pori and Rauma and the island city of Mariehamn in the Swedish-speaking region of southwestern Finland, the team will spend a weekend in Stockholm before continuing the official visit. A special trip to Lapland in the far north is also on the schedule.

The team will return to Texas in early July. This fall Rotary clubs in District 573 will serve as hosts for a similar Group Study Exchange team from Finland.

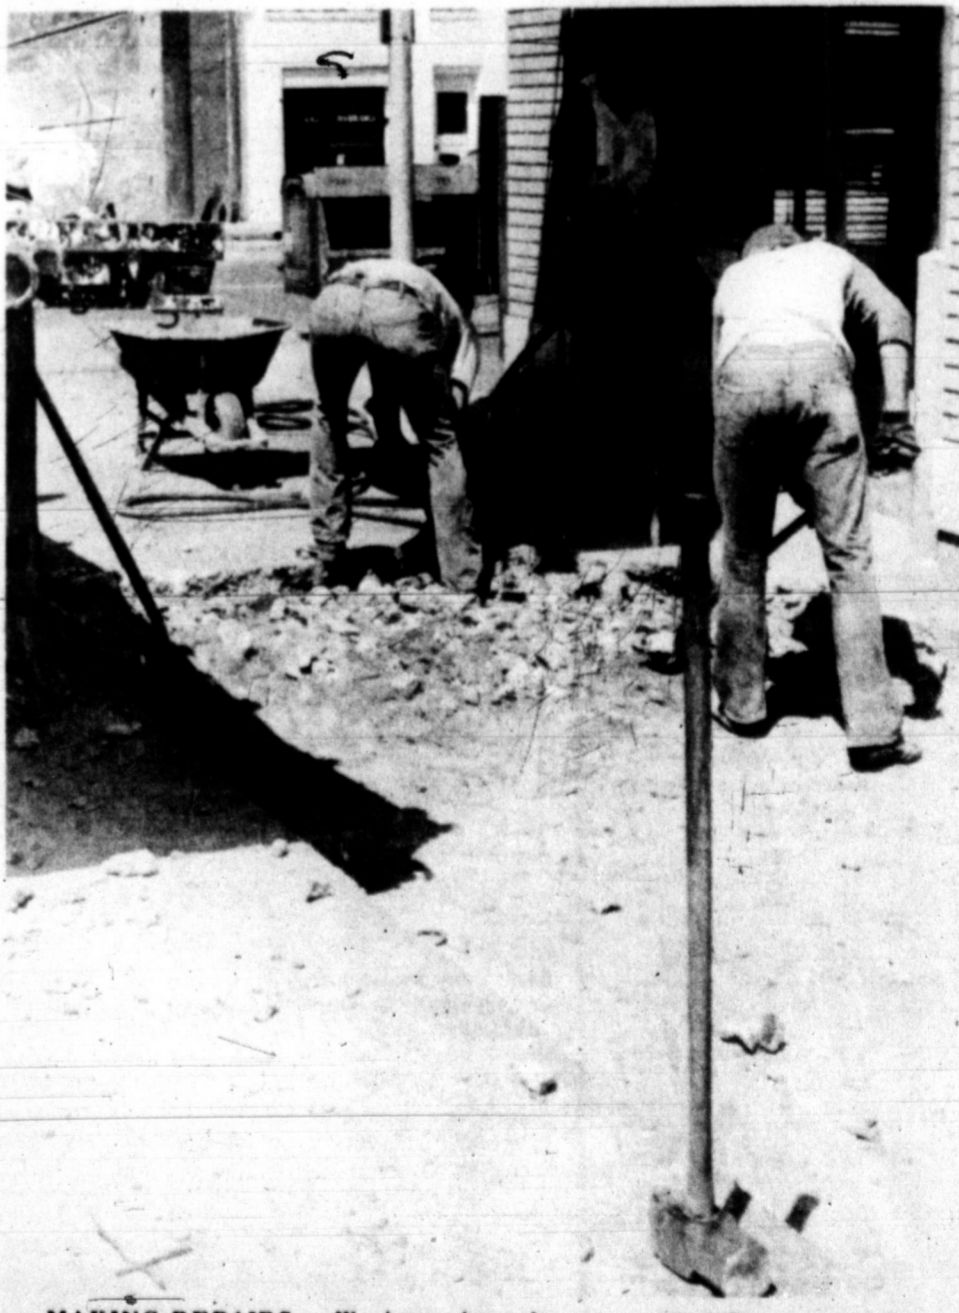

The team is due to begin its visit in the Amarillo region in mid-September and, after visiting some 20 Rotary clubs in the region, to conclude the exchange late in October in the Midland-Odessa area.

School Board Slates Meeting

The Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees meets tonight in regular session at 7:30 at Carver Center, 321 W. Albert.

A discussion of the proposed implementation of Comprehensive Educational Services is one of the first items on the agenda for the meeting. CES is an educational concept that would require re-structuring of the present school administration.

Other things to be discussed are a request by a non-denominational group from Skellytown to use Harvester Stadium for a religious meeting in August; a search committee report concerning the naming of the junior high school and the "middle" school, and consideration of the budget study for the 1973-74 school year.

MAKING REPAIRS — Workmen have begun construction on repairing and expanding the drive-up window for payment of water bills at City Hall. For the next 30 days until the window is completed, persons will have to pay their bills inside the office or by mail. Improvements are expected to cost $6,000.

Nixon Tries To Restore Power By Appointments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Weakened by Watergate, President Nixon appears to be trying to restore his power by giving some bits and pieces of power away.

He has given his new domestic affairs adviser, Melvin R. Laird, far more authority than Laird's predecessor, John D. Ehrlichman, had.

Moose Honor William Noblitt

MOOSEHEART, ILL. — William L. Noblitt of Pampa Lodge No. 1385 was awarded the highest and most coveted degree of the Loyol Order of Moose in a solemn ceremony at Mooseheart, the famed Moose City of Children.

Noblitt, a member of the local lodge for many years, was awarded the Pilgrim Degree of Merit for his outstanding service and continued devotion to the humanitarian programs of his fraternity.

Investiture of the Pilgrim Class sponsored by Director General Paul P. Schmitz was held in the House of God, unique Children's Cathedral on the Mooseheart campus, under the leadership of Pilgrim Governor Gordon Jeffery and a staff of Past Supreme Governors.

The local Moose Pilgrim honoree was one of more than 210 Moose members from all parts of the United States and Canada to receive the degree. Distinction of the award is noted by the fact that only one of about every 5,000 Moose members receive the degree each year.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

At our Crane family dinners there are as many as 21 of the immediate family (grandchildren included) so all sorts of debates arise, like those concerning women's mania for new recipes. But the booklet below offers the best recipe for preventing your mate from straying!

CASE X-532: Over a recent weekend, we had a family gathering at our Indiana summer home on the farm.

My wife and our two daughters-in-law prepared a delicious dinner.

"Who cooked these sweet potatoes?" one of our sons demanded.

"I did," gleefully replied his wife.

"It's a new recipe I just discovered!"

"Well, I don't like pineapple flavor on my sweet potatoes," her husband grumbled.

"When I take a helping of sweet potatoes, I want to taste sweet potatoes!"

"So why did you spoil them with all that pineapple?"

"Because I like to try new recipes," his wife pertainly answered.

At which another son grumbled:

"The trouble with you women is you always want to concoct NEW dishes!"

"But men are content with a few standard foods, so why don't you save yourself time and effort by ignoring all these fancy recipes?"

His wife then entered the debate and defended the cooks.

"We enjoy testing new recipes," she added, "so don't be so grumpy!"

GRUMPY DINERS

Last fall a cute cartoon of "Dennis the Menace" showed this same masculine desire for standard cuisine.

As his mother was carefully slicing off some turkey, Dennis looked on.

"If it's all the same with you," Dennis finally broke in, "I'd just as soon have a peanut butter and jelly sandwich."

Our dinner table debate suggests that women may be more scientific than men! Why? Because a true scientist is open-minded and willing to pick up new ideas.

Men, as a rule, soon get set in their standard food habits and resent being forced to change.

The typical wife, however, is always on the alert for new recipes.

Thus, women clip them from the newspaper or buy one or more books on cooking.

Mrs. Crane does exactly this, though I have also told her repeatedly that I prefer steak, pie and coffee, with maybe invited to sit in from time to time on cabinet meetings.

By agreeing to such innovations, Nixon appears to be trying to better his contacts with Congress and get away from the Watergate image of a president isolated from the outside by a cordon of Ehrlichman-Haldeman types.

Bringing back Laird, a former congressman who has a considerable following on Capitol Hill, fits into the same pattern.

The Lighter Side

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It is reported that Dan Rather, CBS White House correspondent, wants police to reopen the investigation of a break-in at his home here last year.

At the time of the incident, Rather was a target of White House complaints about his coverage of the presidency. But he had no reason to suspect the persons who rifled his files were anything other than run-of-the-mill burglars.

Now, in view of disclosures that have emerged from the Watergate investigation, he is said to be having "second thoughts."

When I read about Rather's second thoughts I began to have some second thoughts about a break-in at my own home several months ago.

Since I wasn't receiving any criticism from the White House at the time, I didn't associate the matter with Watergate.

In fact, I have never received any complaints from the White House. The White House has been exceedingly restrained about criticizing my work or complimenting it either, for that matter.

The truth is, if you want me to be frank about this, the White House has never said anything about my work one way or the other. Leading me to suspect it may have singled me out for massive indifference.

If I had to choose one word to sum up the White House attitude toward my work, I would pick "oblivious."

Nevertheless, the more I learn about the Watergate burglary the more I feel there may be a connection.

Item: Whoever broke into my house expended a good bit of effort to jimmy open the back door when he could easily have gained entrance by breaking a small pane of glass, reaching through and turning the knob.

Item: Nothing was missing, although a metal box on my desk containing some old Harold Stassen campaign buttons had been pried open.

Item: The box wasn't locked in the first place.

In short, it looked very much like the work of the same group that broke into the Democratic National Committee headquarters last year.

But my break-in occurred before the Watergate investigation brought out details of that caper. So I didn't recognize the similarity I simply assumed I had been burglarized by the village idiot.

I don't suppose there is any point in reopening the investigation. The Watergate group was already in jail at the time of my break-in.

Alas, if they'd show 10 percent of that initiative regarding boudoir menus, they'd rarely need worry about an outside siren wooing their husband away!

Repeatedly, I have warned you wives that it is the siren's cheesecake in the boudoir, not roast beef or fancy food recipes in the dining room, that make good husbands stray.

In earlier days, before we had refrigeration, meat was difficult to keep from spoiling.

So it was customary to cover it with catsup, mustard or tabasco sauce, to disguise the tainted flavor. This habit has now persisted for generations.

All my children thus drown their hot dogs and hamburgers in catsup so they miss the real meat flavor. Thus, they were inconsistent in criticizing the pineappled sweet potatoes!

Personally, I don't like a dozen "herbs" to mask the delicious flavor of fried chicken, though others think the herbs make the chicken more delicious.

Wives, send for my booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents. It's an ideal recipe book for boudoir cheesecake.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins 2102, Method, Indiana 47908. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Television In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It was during the rerun season several years ago that CBS-TV's "All in the Family" began to have real ratings impact.

Its initial group of first-run episodes had done only so-so in the statistical rankings. But by the time the repeat broadcasts began, wide interest had been generated in this new series that had a big got for its central character.

The rest is show business history—a smashing success of a series that changed the tone of television and dragged the conservative home medium into a new era of blunt, topical humor in many shows.

With rerun season here again for most weekly video shows, "All in the Family" still gets ratings any network would be pleased with. But, at least in recent weeks, a glance at, say, the 70-market rankings indicates it is no longer as secure in its long-held No. 1 spot among regular series.

As "All in the Family" showed several years ago, ratings can be shaken up surprisingly in a rerun season, so big Archie Bunker might bounce back to the top again in a survey like the 70-market statistics. But for the last three ratings periods, here's how the 70-market rankings shaped up:

Networks Keep Active
For the week ending May 29, the Emmy Awards show was No. 1, the Miss U.S.A. contest second, Mary Tyler Moore's series third, Bob Newhart's show fourth and "All in the Family" fifth.

In the week ending May 27, the police series "The Streets of San Francisco" was first, "Marcus Welby, M.D." was second and "All in the Family" third.

For the week ending June 3, "Welby" was first, Newhart came in second, an ABC-TV anthology teleplay finished third, the police series "The Rookies" was fourth and "All in the Family" and the Dean Martin showed tied for fifth.

Despite the rerun season (during which selective televisioners can still see many worthwhile programs), the networks remain highly active and their announcements keep pouring forth, among them:

—NBC-TV says it has entered into an agreement with Russia to exchange television and radio programming.

Plan Personnel Swap
The network adds that the agreement also makes possible an exchange of personnel "whose background and experience will be of mutual value."

—NBC-TV also says its previously-announced "Tomorrow" series, a talk show that will immediately follow the Johnny Carson programs of Monday-through-Friday each week, will begin in the fall.

The host of "Tomorrow" will be Tom Snyder, whose informal but highly professional and expert anchoring of the evening news for NBC's Los Angeles video station has paid off in the ratings race.

"Tomorrow" will start its broadcasts at 1 A.M. in the East and Far West, and an hour earlier in the Midwest. Snyder will also continue as anchorman at the NBC Los Angeles station.

An NBC-TV executive says "Tomorrow" plans to "tackle topical, controversial subject matter in an adult fashion." The network says the Friday Carson show will continue to be followed by the pop music series "The Midnight Special."

Reynolds Career Soaring
Over at ABC-TV, meanwhile, the following upcoming programming has been announced for the network's late-night "Wide World of Entertainment" series:

—The Miss U.S.A. contest of the Miss World beauty pageant, to be telecast as a late night presentation for the first time on Sept. 25.

—"Take Me Home Again," described as a "concept that will feature well-known personalities returning to their hometowns for visits with family and old friends, to relive their youth."

ABC-TV says the personalities will include Bart Reynolds and a female star.

Mainly About Skellytown

The First Baptist Church of Skellytown is having its Vacation Bible School now thru June 15. Sessions are from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

The Ladies Sunday School classes are asked to bring the cookies and the Brotherhood is asked to bring Kool-Aid or juices and sugar. We hope to have a real good school this year and hope that each one that is asked to help will do so.

Mrs. Jack Cornwell and son, Terry Don, have returned home after spending a week in Houston with his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Eastman, and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Battarbee at Baytown. They spent two nights and days at Lake Livingston fishing.

The Skellytown Library held its first Story Hour Tuesday, June 5, from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m., with stories being told by Paulette Boissenet and Susie Fox. Films were shown by Dianne Gilbreath and Mary Wade of Panhandle. All children are invited to attend each Tuesday morning through the month of June.

Rodney Imel, Big Spring, and Marsh Gambin, Pampa, spent a few days last week with Rodney's grandmother, Mrs. Lillie Imel.

Mrs. Sadie Durning accompanied her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Morrison, and son Gary and their mother, Mrs. Lura McGraw, Berger, to Pueblo, Colo., where they attended the Frank Hobson and Becky Durning Show at the Alias Smith and Jones Club.

They also went to North Pole, Colo., to see Santa Claus's workshop and went up Pike's Peak.

Mrs. Royce Bruce and children, Lubbock, visited a few days with her mother, Mrs. Lillie Baker in Cabot Camp. They attended the Giesler and Garrett wedding June 1 in the First Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Pruett, Snyder, spent a weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Mathews.

Mr. and Mrs. C.D. McCloud, Schafer Camp, had visiting last week in their home their son Charles and family of Hooker, Okla.

Miss J. Hon Marlard, daughter of Mrs. Lois Marlard, visited her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Johnson, Houston.

Jane Easley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Easley, flew June 4 by plane from Amarillo to Santa Rosa, Calif., where she will spend the summer months with her aunt and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Holloway.

Mrs. Judy Wilemon and three children, Lefors, spent June 3 with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lane and enjoyed a birthday dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack DeVerse, Yuma, Arizona spent a weekend with his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Trask. Other visitors in the Trask home were their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Cotton Lamb, Sunray.

Mr. and Mrs. B.J. Richardson and family, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Ruby Richardson, Henneke, Okla., have returned from a vacation trip to Table Rock, Mo. They enjoyed fishing at Branson Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Coleman has as Saturday evening supper guests their son Charley Coleman and family of Spearman.

Mrs. D.C. McCarthy accompanied her brother and his family, Mr. and Mrs. W.O. Terry, to Orange last week. They visited Mr. and Mrs. Ronald McCarthy and family and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Terry and family.

The Ronald McCarthy family accompanied them back to Manison Camp at Friendswood for persons with diabetes, where the McCarthy's six-year-old daughter, Cherry, and the Terry's 14-year-old daughter will spend two weeks. The Ronald McCarthy's two other children accompanied their grandmother, Mrs. McCarthy, home for an extended visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Spain have returned home from a trip to Mount Oak, Kan., where they visited his two daughters and their families, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Abby and children, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Weavie and family, and attended the high school graduation exercises of their granddaughter, Miss Kim Abbey.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lane were in Dimmitt June 2, where they attended the funeral services of Mr. Andy Nelson.

Rita Kramer, Dennis Cook, Sherry Tice and Terry and Teresa Huckins accompanied Rev. and Mrs. Carl Savage, pastor of the Assembly of God Church, Skellytown, to Youth Camp at Roaring Springs Monday morning.

They also went to North Pole, Colo., to see Santa Claus's workshop and went up Pike's Peak.

Mrs. Royce Bruce and children, Lubbock, visited a few days with her mother, Mrs. Lillie Baker in Cabot Camp. They attended the Giesler and Garrett wedding June 1 in the First Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Pruett, Snyder, spent a weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Mathews.

Mr. and Mrs. C.D. McCloud, Schafer Camp, had visiting last week in their home their son Charles and family of Hooker, Okla.

Miss J. Hon Marlard, daughter of Mrs. Lois Marlard, visited her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Johnson, Houston.

Instruments Aid Crisis

HOUSTON (UPI) — With the energy crisis plaguing the country, an independent oilman says instruments scanning Earth from space could be the best means of locating new sources of power.

Cameras and special sensing devices mounted on unmanned satellites and aboard Skylab space station collect data on geologic formations, heat sources and water bodies useful to energy-producing firms.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "On the basis of historical precedent, the market's bottom is much closer than its earlier top," says Walston & Co.'s Technical Market Letter. Investors should heed this "strong warning signal" and keep an eye peeled for signs of a definite turnaround, it says. Once a strong upswing is assured, the letter recommends committing cash reserves to the high quality, dividend paying issues now billed as bargains.

Michel T. Halbouty, a Houston geologist and petroleum engineer, said that using space instruments to view large and sometimes inaccessible areas of the world in a short time is the biggest advantage of using space exploration as a means for earth surveys.

Halbouty said aerial photography helped pave the way for good space photography. "Space Imagery Advocated" "Geologic structures that had not been previously identified became obvious and the science of geology along with the search for petroleum advanced almost simultaneously with advances in photo interpretation and other supporting technologies," said Halbouty, president of Halbouty Alaska Oil Co.

Despite the rapid expansion of the economy and inflationary pressures, the Federal Reserve is not likely to promote another credit crunch and greater reliance will be placed on wage and price controls, according to Legg Mason. The firm says the Fed's reluctance to tighten the screws on money may stem from the 1969 to 1970 credit crunch when "monetary policy, while successful in slowing the economy, was not successful in slowing inflation."

"Many billions of dollars will be spent by the United States petroleum companies in the search for new domestic oil and gas reserves. There is no question in my mind that space imagery can help pinpoint areas of maximum petroleum potential."

"It would be a grave mistake if the petroleum industry did not spend a large amount of the exploration budget in space imagery."

PERSONAL FINANCE

A Sweet Way to Cut Food Bills

By CARLTON SMITH

As the cost of groceries heads toward the stratosphere, an important part of managing the family finances becomes finding ways to shave pennies here and pennies there on the food bills.

One steady trickle of wasted pennies, says a study coming out of Minneapolis, has to do with the currently widespread belief in the nutritional advantages of "natural sweeteners." Though they're more expensive than regular table sugar, many families are convinced they provide needed nutrients not found in refined sugar.

After vitamin pills, the use of natural sweeteners in place of sugar has become "the most popular self-prescription for inadequate nutrition," says the study by the Family Economics Bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance Company.

But "every penny a family spends on these sugar substitutes for added nutrients is a penny wasted," says a leading nutritionist, Dr. O. Lee Kline, executive officer of the American Institute of Nutrition, Bethesda, Md.

The current popularity of eating and cooking with such natural sweeteners as honey, raw sugar, maple sugar and molasses begins with the undisputed fact that refined white sugar is almost pure sucrose—that is, pure carbohydrate—contains no other nutrients. The common only used natural sweeteners contain, variously, small amounts of potassium, phosphorus, sodium, calcium, ascorbic acid and traces of iron, niacin, riboflavin and thiamine. The body needs all of these—so shouldn't we all be using the natural sweeteners?

It doesn't follow, says Dr. Kline. "It is nonsense to put much importance on the small amount of nutrients in these sweeteners."

B And B Pharmacy Offering Full Line Of Patient Aids

Always ready to serve their customers, B and B Pharmacy has now provided sales and a rental service for Futuro Patient-Aids.

These quality products meet the needs of the home convalescent, the handicapped and the elderly. Fully researched and tested, Patient-Aids carry the Futuro name, quality and reliability.

Those who know the Futuro name know it stands for excellence in design, engineering and manufacturing.

Among the items B and B offers for patients and convalescents are canes, crutches, walkers, wheelchairs, adjustable commodes, bedpans, urinals and many other items often essential for those needing special care.

In addition to this new section of goods, B and B Pharmacy continues to provide all the other goods and services for which it has been known through the years.

B and B also offers many gift items for the shopper.

The firm has received a new shipment of costume jewelry for shoppers.

And if something else is desired, B and B has a fine selection of candies, including Russell Stover chocolate candies, Pangburn's and Ann Raskas hard candies.

Featuring a fine selection of other small gift items, B and B offers various women's fragrances, including Nina Ricci, Lanvin, Crepe De Chine, Coty, Faberge and Vitabath. And for those wanting good cosmetics, the store has Frances Denney, Dorothy Gray, Bonne Belle and now for a limited time, B and B will offer you Revlon's Eterna 27 Cream.

Other items include glassware, billfolds and goods for men's shaving needs. In men's fragrances B and B carries English Leather in the regular or lemon-lime scent. "That Man" by Revlon, Old Spice, and Robert Denney, Black Ball and Signorini.

And in case of illness, B and B features well-trained pharmacists to fill prescriptions. The highly competent pharmacists at B and B have been filling the prescription needs for area residents to the best of their ability and to their customers' satisfaction since 1953.

Pharmacist R.B. Ragsdale and his assistants have filled well over half a million prescriptions from their stock of 10,000 medicines since the store opened for business.

Two pharmacists are on hand at all times at B and B and are on call Sunday.

The firm also carries "over-the-counter" medicines and are equipped to meet all drug and first aid needs, including Dr. Schol's remedies.

And for a break in the routine of shopping or working, B and B has a short order restaurant to aid when hunger strikes.

The business is directed by F.L. Stone and Lucille Foster, with other employees ready to serve the customer.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

You, Too, Can Hang Pictures

By MR. FIX

Some people put off hanging pictures and mirrors for years, just out of trepidation. The thought of pounding a nail into a perfectly good wall frightens them. Either the wall will crumble or the picture will fall—or both.

Manufacturers have devised a number of fasteners that make the chore of putting things on walls fairly simple and reliable. What you want is something that will go on with a minimum of trouble, will hold the object and will do the least damage to the wall.

What you use should be determined by what you are hanging and the surface you are hanging it on. Obviously pictures require less support than shelf brackets and working on a plaster wall differs from working on one of concrete.

The picture hook with a nail that goes in at an angle is still around. The angled nail is less likely to break the plaster or to pull loose. These are rated by weight and are used for pictures and mirrors.

There are metal hooks that are mounted in a cloth with adhesive on the back. Soak the cloth in water, apply to the wall and let dry. They are also rated by weight. Do not use for mirrors, however.

USE EXPANSION BOLT IN DRY WALL	FOR SOLID PLASTER USE PLASTIC PLUGS

To remove, soak the cloth and peel off. They do not damage the wall. Other fasteners are mounted by running a screw into the wall. The screw actually goes into an anchor that keeps it from pulling out of the wall.

Anchors are made of a variety of materials—plastic, lead, nylon, jute, various alloys. They are designed for two types of wall—hollow and solid, as in plaster board (below) or plaster (solid), hollow concrete blocks or solid masonry.

They also vary in length, which is determined by the thickness of the wall as well as the length of the screw being used.

A popular type is an expansion bolt, which is a bolt in a threaded metal sleeve. The sleeve is partially split so that as you tighten the bolt the sleeve flattens out. These are used in dry wall construction. So is the toggle bolt, a bolt with a nut in the form of folding wings. Push them through the hole while folded and they open up behind the wall.

For solid plaster, use plastic anchors or plugs and use wood or sheet metal screws in them. Make a hole just big enough for the anchor. Set the anchor in flush with the wall surface. The screw expands the anchor as it is tightened.

In masonry, use a lead anchor—with wood, sheet metal or lag screws. If the masonry is solid, get the kind of anchor that is split lengthwise so that it expands all around. In hollow masonry, get one with a flared collar so that it doesn't fall through.

A lag screw expansion shield has corrugations for extra holding power. It is in two halves which expand as the bolt or screw is tightened. Use these in mortar joints. Small screws can be set in masonry using a fiber plug made of braided jute and lined with lead.

MOWER NEED FIXING? — With that time of the year upon us once again, you may find or may have already found that the grass cutter in your garage or storage shed is just not up to the job. If your lawn mower needs repairing, take it to Radcliff Electric Co., 519 S. Cuyler. If the engine needs parts or needs to be replaced, everything needed is available at Radcliff Electric.

Lawn Mower Need Repairs? Go To Radcliff Electric Co.

Summertime is here. With it comes the task — enjoyable to some, just plain hard work to others — of caring for the lawn and yard.

If you've gone to the garage to get out the lawn mower (and chances are that if you haven't you may not be able to find it for the high grass) and discovered that it isn't performing properly, the place to take it for needed repairs is Radcliff Electric Co., 519 S. Cuyler.

All makes of lawn mower engines can be serviced at Radcliff Electric, including Briggs and Stratton, Lawson, Tecumseh and Wisconsin.

Should the engine need to be replaced, the place to obtain that new engine is right there at Radcliff. A complete stock of new engines is on hand. Should the problem be only a part that needs to be replaced, a complete parts stock is also available.

If your old mower has finally given up the ghost, a complete line of Cooper lawn mowers is on hand.

The business is not limited to lawn mower repair either. It offers factory authorized service for Roger Pumps, American Bosch, Wico, Fairbanks-Morse, Bendix-Scintilla and Eisemann and Case magnetos.

Repairing and installing electronic ignition systems is another service offered.

Complete diesel injection service is offered at Radcliff's where they specialize in Rossmaster and American Bosch diesel units.

Pumps on John Deere, International, Case, Minneapolis Moline, Oliver and Ford tractors can also be serviced at the shop. With the wheat harvest just weeks away that is another obviously valuable service to be found at Radcliff Electric.

Small engine repair service extends to centrifugal water pumps and chain saws. If you have some brush or undergrowth that needs to be cleared, a complete line of Homelite chain saws is in stock.

For the repair of just about anything you have come by Radcliff Electric Co., at 519 S. Cuyler or call 669-3395.

Motorists Look For Clean Gas

DETROIT (UPI) — Nearly 800 California motorists are spending part of each driving day looking for a service station selling unleaded gasoline for their pollution-controlled automobiles.

The General Motors and Ford cars are part of a test fleet which must have the unleaded gasoline or face destruction of catalytic converters—the costly muffler-like devices Detroit hopes will meet the federal government's demand to clean up the air.

California became the nation's testing ground by virtue of an April decision by William D. Ruckelshaus, the former administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency. In granting the automakers a one-year delay in meeting emission standards for 1975, he set up interim standards—one set for California and the other for the 49 remaining states.

Detroit's only answer to reducing emissions of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide by 90 per cent from pre-1968 vehicles is the catalytic converters. Exhaust gases pass over the platinum or palladium catalyst and the unburnt hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide are changed to harmless carbon dioxide and water.

Fleets Being Tested
 It all sounds simple. But Ford has a 450-car test fleet and GM is putting more than 250 cars on the road to find out if the smog-control devices work. One thing that will ruin them is leaded gasoline.

It "poisons" the catalyst, making it useless in controlling emissions. A "poisoned" catalyst won't hurt the operation of the car. In fact, the driver probably wouldn't know the difference. But unseen pollutants—supposed to be eliminated by the $300 device—will escape into the air.

Ford's 1973 Galaxie 500 sedans are being driven by the federal General Services Administration, the state of California and McDonnell Douglas Corp. All have standard 400 cubic-inch V-8 engines and automatic transmissions.

The only outward appearance that they are different is the label on the instrument panel and on the gas-tank filler door warning against the use of leaded fuel.

The adhesive postage stamp was invented by James Chalmers, a Scottish bookseller.

Dear Abby
A pack of lies about her bundle of joy

By Abigail Van Buren
 © 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Today is my 22d birthday, and I just became the mother of a beautiful, healthy baby girl. I should be the happiest woman in the world because I have a wonderful husband, a really great marriage, and just about everything a person could want—but something is bothering me.

When I was 17 I became an unwed mother. I trusted my parents' judgment and let them talk me into giving up my beautiful baby boy for adoption. My parents and their lawyer informed me that six weeks after I gave up my son the adoption was final.

Exactly seven months later I met the wonderful young man who asked me to marry him. We were married three months later. I recently learned that the court allows an unwed mother one year to decide whether she wants to finalize the adoption. Abby, had I known it then my husband and I would have kept my baby. Now it is too late.

My problem is the bitterness I feel toward my parents for having lied to me. I've tried to forgive them but I can't. The resentment I feel for them is eating away at my insides. It seems to grow worse, and now I can hardly bear to look at them. Please tell me how I can get rid of these hateful feelings that are ruining my life. CAN'T FORGIVE

DEAR CAN'T: Even though your parents probably thought they were doing what was best for you at the time, they should not have lied to you. Harboring hate and resentment is self-destructive, and you may need professional help to rid yourself of these negative thoughts. Ask your doctor to guide you in getting the help you need.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for six years, and we have one big difference of opinion which keeps our marriage from being practically perfect. I love to read in bed and he hates for me to. I have always read in bed before retiring. It relaxes me. I have a small beam-type light which doesn't disturb him, but he just doesn't like the idea of my being up reading while he is trying to go to sleep.

LOVES TO READ IN REDONDO

DEAR LOVES: Do your reading in another room, in a comfortable chair or on the sofa. When it's time to retire, crawl into bed with him. I think he resents the competition.

DEAR ABBY: My grandson is a nice-looking, likable fellow, but he exaggerates so much people are beginning to wonder about him.

Junior was overseas with the Army and from some of the stories he tells, you would think he won the war alone. He's in good shape but he claims he has won 11 purple hearts! Everybody knows he saw some action, but he brags so much folks nudge each other and wink behind his back when he tells some of those outlandish tales.

How can I tell him to quit blowing everything up so much without hurting his feelings? I love this kid a lot.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Maybe he's not exaggerating as much as you think. But when you get him alone, tell him that because you love him a lot you think some of his tales are a little far out.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90089. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Lucas-Holm Vows Said In Arlington Ceremony

The wedding of Miss Nancy Howard Lucas to Arthur Carl Holm was solemnized Saturday, May 19 at 3 p.m. in Trinity United Methodist Church in Arlington.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Lucas of Arlington and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Holm of Pampa are parents of the bridegroom.

THE CEREMONY

The Rev. John Ogden, pastor, officiated for the double-ring ceremony. Wedding selection were "Marriage At Cana," "How Great Thou Art," "We've Only Just Begun," "Wedding Song," "E. Major Coeral," "Trumpet Voluntaries," and the "Lord's Prayer."

The church was decorated with arrangements of maize and apricot colored flowers. Garlands surrounded the altar.

THE BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight pure silk organza with re-embroidered Margot lace appliques. The bodice of the gown was fashioned with a high neckline and long fitted sleeves. The controlled waistline was enhanced by satin ribbon, and the wind-swept skirt, edged in Margot lace, extended to a wide chapel-length train. Her veil of candlelight illusion fell from a Juliet cap of matching lace and tiny seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, white gladioli, tiny white stephanotis with yellow and white streamers.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Prudence Lucas of Arlington, maid of honor, wore an apricot crepe gown of ecru lace. Bridesmaids were Miss Debbie Altman of Arlington and Miss Carla Holm of Pampa. They wore identical gowns of maize creme ecru lace and all attendants carried apricot carnations and yellow rose bouquets.

Ralph Holm of Pampa was best man and groomsmen were Gary Moore, of Munday and Jim Bryant of Houston.

RECEPTION

For the reception in the bride's home, the serving table was covered with a yellow cloth with white overlay and centered with an arrangement of maize and apricot flowers.

The white wedding cake was decorated with yellow flowers and fresh yellow daisies topped the cake.

Following a wedding trip to East Texas, the couple will continue their education at Texas Tech University in Lubbock, where the bride is a history and English major, and the bridegroom is studying mechanical engineering.

Elegant Graffiti

The word game is back. It all started with the tiny sweaters printed with numbers, names and places. This summer the words are graffiti'd on long, elegant-looking day dresses.

What Next?

Personalized bathing suits are the height of chic. Why not whip up a little something out of a favorite table cloth or an old pair of drapes? The more you think about it, the better it sounds.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13

Your birthday today: Comes in the midst of a build-up toward stable success. Relationships burgeon from intriguing first contact to full commitment, can be spectacularly enjoyable. Today's natives are inventive, usually alert for exacting details.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: A lively imagination brings information which needs verification before you apply it. Get advice and instruction.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Being too casual with money comes as first nature today. Home improvements are favored.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: The enthusiasm of others inspires you to livelier efforts. Home and work areas need reorganizing.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Sidelines turn up interesting potentials. Cater to the whims and needs of children, younger people.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: The closer the relationship, the more stress experienced. Social encounter produces more distraction and disagreement than usual.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Getting important people to examine your work is desirable; if only one person looks, you're still ahead.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Destiny calls you from planned routine today — an apparently trivial incident has extensive consequences.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: There's a moment to take in extra earnings, retrieve losses at yourself.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Long-standing hopes approach fulfillment, making discretion both necessary and difficult.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: An early start sets you on the way to success. Being willing to respond quickly adds to your chances.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Now is a good time for bringing out old conflicts for a general airing. Bring people together, but stay out of the middle.

Long Lake?

When a Minnesotan says he is going to Long Lake for the weekend, try and find him. There are 156 different "Long Lakes" in the state, and some of them aren't even long. Minnesota also has 122 Rice Lakes, 83 Bass Lakes, 72 Twin Lakes, 70 Round Lakes and 91 whose names are Mud.

"Greed is a terrible thing," said South.

The game was rubber bridge. South had reached six hearts after opening with an artificial two-club bid.

A club lead would have worried him, but after the diamond opening his contract was secure.

He won, drew trumps with two leads and tried a spade finesse. It worked so he returned to his hand with dummy's last trump and repeated the spade finesse.

West had followed to the first spade with the deuce. He played the six this time. The finesse worked again.

South returned to his hand with the second high diamond, looked at the score, carefully and saw that he would win an extra hundred points if he made an over-trick.

That is when he made his remark which he followed up by taking a third and last spade finesse.

"Yes, isn't it?" said East as he produced the king. South's game, slam and rubber had vanished in a puff of smoke.

East deserves a lot of credit for his play, but don't forget West. East knew that West would have played high-low with an even number of spades and therefore was able to set his trap.

Josephine Baker Recalls Old And New Performing Careers

By MARY CAMPBELL
 AP Newsfeatures Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — What she wore to startle Paris in the 1920s, says Josephine Baker, "wasn't a costume. It was almost one."

"It was a few bananas here and there. It took all these years to become accepted. No clothes on is a nice way of being. You don't have to think about anything."

Miss Baker went to Paris in 1924 and could be seen, dancing and singing, at the Folies Bergere or the Casino. Once she did Jacques Offenbach's "Creole."

These days, at 67, she still performs with many changes of glamorous costumes, sings, doesn't dance, and doesn't sing "Two Loves Have I" unless long-time fans request it. She prefers newer songs.

In New York for 27 hours to attend Bricktop's opening night at Huntington Hartford's Show Club, she gave a little reception for the press and looked so slim and chic in a navy pants suit, navy and white scarf, fur hat, giant shades and platform shoes, that someone asked who designed her suit. She bought it, she said, just in a little shop off the rack.

Last time Miss Baker was in the United States, which she seldom visits, it was to bring four of her sons for one day, to attend Robert Kennedy's funeral. This time she has brought the oldest son, Akia, 20. They are guests of Jack Jordan, producer of black films.

Jordan would like to make a film of Miss Baker's life, he says. She asks if anyone thinks that would be a good idea, is assured yes, and replies, "Well, I'm a black cat with nine lives and every one of them interesting."

Miss Baker lives in Monaco with her four youngest children, the youngest 3. She has only the one residence, she says, because it is all she can afford and because she only needs one place to live. She works, she says, to pay for college educations.

Her children, 10 boys and two girls, are all adopted and from a number of different countries.

Asked whether all the children turned out magnificently, Miss Baker says, "They have turned out to be human beings and that is all I ask them to be."

Asked how many husbands she has had, Miss Baker smiled broadly and said, "I'm like the old woman who had so many children she didn't know what to do. I had the same with husbands."

Wilbon To Play

Freddy Wilbon, leading scorer for the Pampa High basketball team this past season, has signed a scholarship agreement to attend York Junior College in York, Neb.

Wilbon averaged 16.9 points per game the last year while hitting on 61.2 per cent of his field goals and 71.5 per cent of his shots from the foul line.

He was 202 of 330 from the floor and 103 of 144 from the charity line. Wilbon nabbed 235 total rebounds for an average of 7.8 per game and had 60 assists.

Among the honors he received during the year were unanimous selection to the coaches' District 3-AAAA all-district team and selection as Player of the Year in the district by the coaches.

Wilbon was also named to the all-tournament teams at the Top O' Texas Tournament in Pampa (also Most Valuable Player in the tourney), Midwestern University tourney in Wichita Falls and the Hardin Simmons University tourney in Abilene.

He was named AAAA Player of the Week by the Amarillo Globe-News on two different occasions the past season, the only large school classification player to be so honored. Wilbon was chosen Harvester of the Week five times the past year by the Noon Lions Club.

He was also named to the Amarillo Globe-News Panhandle Super Basketball team and the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal All-South Plains team.

At the Harvester basketball banquet he received the free throw award and the Harvester team rebounding award.

Hank Aaron is doing more than closing in on Babe Ruth's all-time career home run record with unexpected speed.

He's also showing—and this is more important to his Atlanta Braves teammates and their rivals, than catching the Babe—that he's still a game-winning hitter.

The 39-year old Aaron, now 25 homers behind Ruth's career mark of 714 after hitting No. 16 of the season and No. 689 of his career in a 9-7 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Monday night, had been accused earlier this season of trying for the mark at the expense of his value to the team.

It's a rugged charge to throw at a true pro but Aaron has answered it in the last three days with three homers—all of which contributed to Atlanta victories. He hit two Saturday night leading the Braves to a 5-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and his three-run homer Monday night was the big blow of a six-run fourth-inning outburst which carried Atlanta over the Pirates.

The Cardinals defeated Cincinnati, 12-4. San Francisco beat New York, 2-1, and Los Angeles downed Philadelphia, 5-3, in the only other National League games. Milwaukee topped Minnesota, 10-6, in the only scheduled American League game.

Dave Johnson hit his 11th homer. John Oates singled in a run and Aaron climaxed the six-run fourth to give the Braves an 8-0 lead. That rally stood up for the decisive margin as the Pirates, paced by three hits by

Golf Tips from the Old Masters

By The Editors of Golf Digest
BOLT TELLS HOW TO MAKE UPSLOPE PITCH SHOT

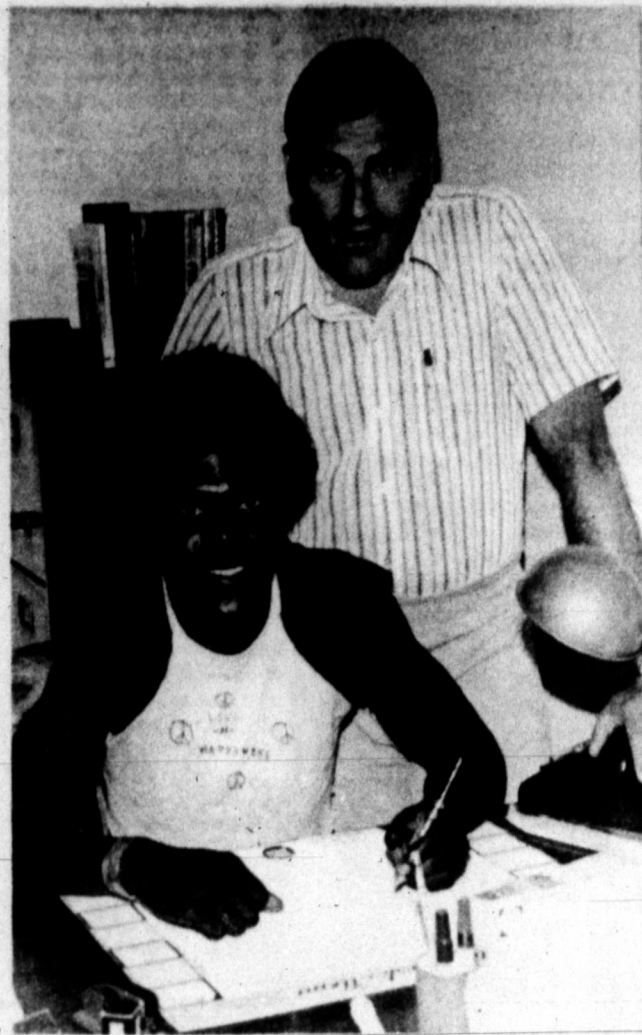

Here's a tip on playing the upslope pitch shot from master golfer Tommy Bolt.

"Use a wedge because its loft will help put backspin on the ball. For better feel and control, I shorten my grip. My feet are placed close together with the knees almost touching.

"I position my hands ahead of the ball at address so they will be encouraged to be that way at impact. To avoid scooping, a common fault, I make sure my wrists remain firm throughout the shot. There shouldn't be much body action or pivot; keeping the left heel on the ground as you take your backswing will help insure that.

"Above all, don't rush the swing. Try to feel that the hands are leading the club-head all the way." Bolt advises.

Ilie Nastase Wins Italian Tennis Title

ROME (UPI)—This is Ilie Nastase year. First it was the French tennis title. Then it was the Italian Title and a commanding lead in the Commercial Union Grand Prix race.

The second-seeded Romanian won the $16,000 men's singles title in the Italian championship Monday, humiliating defending champion Manuel Orantes of Spain.

The first set went 6-1. The second went 6-1. The third went 6-1.

Nastase, who came onto the court to the jeers of local fans, demolished Orantes with a fine mixture of volleys and charges on the net.

The Spaniard won the first set's opening serve at love. Then the Romanian won 11 straight games, completely breaking Orantes' will.

By the third set, play had become so poor that the public at the Foro Italico began to whistle and catcall.

Nastase, who won his first major tournament at Rome in 1970, fired the coup de grace on his first championship point when Orantes hit a backhand wide.

Earlier on the championship's closing day, Tom Okker of the Netherlands and John Newcombe of Australia won the men's doubles title, defeating two new young Aussies, Ross Case and Geoff Masters, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

On Sunday, Evonne Goolagong of Australia, who did not lose a single set in the entire tournament, demolished Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 7-6, 6-0 to take the women's singles title.

Steve Sloan Leads Coaches

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (UPI)—Vanderbilt Coach Steve Sloan, playing for the first time in the National Football Coaches Invitational Golf Tournament, leads the championship flight going into today's final round.

Sloan shot a 2-under par 70 Monday to take the lead in the first round of the ninth annual tournament, being held this year at Hot Springs Village.

Longhorns Will Meet Arizona State Tonight

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson learned a very important lesson from the Longhorns' 10-2 shellacking of Oklahoma in the College World Series — Don't go with the ace of the pitching staff even if the next game is with the top rated team in the nation.

Texas plays Arizona State, the nation's No. 1 ranked team, tonight in the double elimination baseball tournament. The loser is out of contention.

Gustafson could go with his pitching star, Ron Rozovsky, but believes Rozovsky needs more than two days rest between games.

But this Texas team is supposed to have pitching depth that no other Longhorn squad has ever brought to a College World Series and Gustafson apparently wants to take advantage of it.

Oklahoma went, with its ace, Jackson Todd, in Monday's contest and the Longhorns patted him and eliminated the Sooners from the tournament.

"We could come back with Rozovsky with two days rest, but that's not the way I'm learning right now," Gustafson said. "After what happened to Todd, I am thinking more in terms of somebody else. Todd was obviously tired and he had two days rest. In this heat, a tough ball game takes a lot out of a pitcher."

The Longhorns picked up 10 hits in the victory. Terry Pyka, the left fielder who injured his wrist Saturday in the Georgia Southern game and did not play in the loss to Southern California Sunday, was two for three. He drove in two runs in the three-run second inning that gave Texas a 4-0 lead. Winning Pitcher Dick Wortham, a freshman southpaw, tripled in three runs.

"I was real happy with the victory, obviously," Gustafson said. "I was particularly pleased with the way we hit the ball against a guy like Todd because I consider him one of the really fine college pitchers in the country."

Terry Pyka is still a question mark because of his injury and is just on a day to day basis. He felt he could play against Oklahoma so we let him try."

We'll Emerge Strong From Watergate, et al

The American nose has always been highly sensitive to the slightest whiff of tyranny. But especially since the rise of communism and fascism in this century, the country has seemed, at least to some people, to be perpetually hovering on the brink of slipping into one of the other forms of totalitarianism. All it needed was a push — or a plot.

For those who saw Reds under every bed, there was the witch hunt that followed World War I. Sacco and Vanzetti, the Rosenbergs and the theft of atom bomb secrets after World War II.

To left leaners, of course, these and other episodes merely showed that America was Fascist at heart.

For them, Sinclair Lewis' best selling novel of the 1930s, "It Can't Happen Here," was a blueprint of how it could happen here. They could point to Huey Long of Louisiana as the prototype of a homegrown American dictator. And with the rise of McCarthyism in the early 1950s, they were sure it was happening here.

Only it never has happened here. It has never even been a close thing. After each of these periods, the commitment of Americans to freedom and their faith in their system has emerged stronger than ever.

The Watergate affair, with all its ugly ramifications, will be no exception. Compared with the Hitler gang or the Stalin gang, the plotters who tried to sabotage the American electoral process look like vomiting amateurs. Though not yet totally exposed, they have been thoroughly discredited.

The outcome of the celebrated

Pentagon Papers trial is another proof of the basic health of freedom in the United States.

Whatever one's feelings about the stealing and publication of classified government documents, from whatever angle the Pentagon Papers are looked at, the administration comes up with egg on its face. Hotten egg.

It was, to begin with, an unsuccessful attempt to hide from America the truth about the decisions that led the nation into a war that cost the lives of 56,000 of our sons.

For the first time in history, the government went to court to prevent the press from printing a story and failed.

There was the extremely inopportune if not improper offer made to Judge W. Matthew Byrne Jr. during the course of the trial of the post of FBI director.

Then the case against the defendants, Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo — a case that never rested on any clear cut law — was eventually fatally compromised when it was revealed that the government, or those acting in the name of the government, had employed some of the methods of common burglars.

Americans had been free too long to be able to tolerate repression more than briefly. Our institutions have been proof-tested too many times to allow those who would subvert them or who would use trickery or intrigue to gain their ends to have more than very limited success.

America is simply poor ground for tyranny to take root in. In these negative times, that is something positive to be proud of.

'Federal Spending Clock'

For the first time in history, the rate the government spends money is being clocked. Literally, by a "Federal Spending Clock" located in the national headquarters of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Every 12 seconds a dial indicates the expenditure of another $10,000, the average annual income of an American family. Every 12 seconds a light flashes, indicating the spending of another $100,000. And every two minutes and six seconds a "beep" is heard, signaling that the federal government has just dropped another million smackers.

The "beep," incidentally, goes off about 700 times a day. By the end of the current fiscal year, the rapidly changing digital figures on top of the clock will have registered a total of some $250 billion.

Meanwhile, over at the Census Bureau, there's another clock that records the arrival every few seconds of one more citizen who will spend most of his lifetime making the other clock run.

Democrats Make Good Republicans

By PAUL HARVEY
Democrats becoming Republicans and Republicans becoming Democrats is a comparatively recent innovation in American politics. Let's see what history says about John Connally's future. Political party switchers gamble.

Most who have switched from Republican to Democrat have not done so well.

Most Democrats make good as Republicans.

Party switching in the big leagues began as recently as Strom Thurmond's about-face in 1964 — less than 10 years ago.

Therefore a major party candidate, disenchanted and dumped, was more likely to create his own splinter party and run independently as a "Bull Moose" or something.

But Sen. Strom Thurmond demonstrated that a Democrat — even a Southern Democrat — could ride an elephant to victory.

California's Ronald Reagan switched from Democrat to Republican in the early Sixties; was elected governor as a Republican and remains a contender for President on that ticket.

Georgia's Bo Callaway switched from Democrat to Republican and subsequently got the most votes for governor in 1966 — but lost the election in the Democrat-controlled Georgia Legislature. Callaway nonetheless served in Congress as a Republican and is now secretary of the Army in the GOP administration.

On the other hand, most Republicans who tried to ride the donkey got bucked off. Notably Wayne Morse of Oregon. John Lindsay of New York.

John Connally says he did not leave the Democratic Party, the party "left him"; says the party turned so far left he was left out.

Connally, 56, has another dozen years in which to try for politics' grand prize, but he is not a patient man.

Politically astute, he realizes that it'll take some doing for a recent convert to win party approval by '76, but he was impressed by the April Gallup Poll which showed him, while still a Democrat, to be among the top three presidential choices among GOP voters.

If he can win that much public endorsement without even trying he is, as Gov. Reagan concedes, "a formidable potential candidate in '76."

It will impress party regulars that he threw his support to the GOP when the party and its President most needed support.

They, the party pros, will recognize and respect the strategic timing — not as hypocrisy but as a demonstration of prudent, pragmatic partisan politics.

Much is made of John Connally's handsome, charismatic presence and his track record as a vote-getter. More to his credit is his record as a state administrator and as a White House trouble shooter.

The only "if" in his outlook is that Mister Clean has made of himself an immense target, and if there is a shank in his armor those opposed have three years to find and expose it.

H. L. Hunt Writes

SOCIALISM IS STILL WRONG

Strange shifts have occurred in our land. Until a very few years ago it was conceded that socialism and communism were wrong for the U.S. and could never gain acceptance here under their own name. It was libel to name someone a communist without iron-clad proof, and proof was extremely difficult to obtain, since the Red party is and always has been a secret, subversive organization. People tried to hide their allegiance to Marxism in most forms.

The Soviet Union's dictators call their system socialism. Propaganda favorable to Marx and the Soviets has been drummed into the people of the world for years. Socialism has always been more or less acceptable in Europe and Asia, especially when it was called "democratic" socialism. Seasoned pro-Freedomists always pointed out that "democratic" socialism was simply a stop-over on the way to economic chaos, followed by a dictatorship.

Now we see the strange phenomenon of socialists, even violent revolutionaries, being acceptable in "polite society." Pronouncements on all kinds of subjects by these people are glorified and publicized by the national TV networks and publications. Senators, Congressmen, Cabinet officers and even the White House can hire avowed Marxists for various jobs of prestige and influence and no one turns a hair.

Prominent and favorable publicity for proponents of Marxism does not make socialism correct or sensible. Socialism simply cannot feed people nor allow them personal and political freedom, no matter what its declarations or intentions may be. Socialism is still wrong and should be recognized as such by the opinion leaders of this nation who do a great disservice to Truth and Freedom by ignoring the sorry history of Marxism.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The Atlantic Charter was issued by President Franklin Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill aboard the battleship Prince of Wales, Aug. 14, 1941. The Charter's principles renounced territorial aggrandizement and opposed territorial changes made against the wishes of the people concerned, sought relaxed trade restrictions and access to raw materials for all nations, and advocated freedom from fear and want. Mental Stress and the Heart

By Lawrence E. Lamb M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—After an examination and chest X-ray, my doctor says I have "psychophysiological cardiovascular reaction with thoracic pain." Now just what is this? What nature of heart problem could this be?

Dear Reader—It wouldn't be possible for me to verify your doctor's diagnosis, and since the diagnosis is a general term, I can't be too specific. However, the term implies that he doesn't think you have any structural changes in your heart, such as hardening of the arteries or coronary artery disease or changes in the heart valve or other problems due to changes in the heart itself. Rather, he thinks whatever problems you have are related to psychological stresses. Commonly this means emotional stress and tension which, in your case, apparently causes chest pains since that's what thoracic pain means.

Not every chest pain is heart pain, and even certain irregularities of the heart can be caused by psychological stress. The medicines that you mentioned your physician has prescribed are those which are commonly used to help individuals with these types of problems, as opposed to structural changes in the heart. You should also realize that your doctor doesn't think that you have the kind of heart disease that would ordinarily cause a heart attack, heart failure, or other such problems.

Your question is an important one, and I'm personally convinced one of the aspects of treating a person with chest pain or disturbed function of the heart and circulatory system related to psychological stress is to reassure him that nothing is wrong with his heart. This helps him focus on the true problem, and helps to eliminate undue concern about the possibilities or other disastrous events which are most unlikely to occur in this setting.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Can you please define the word costochondritis and explain what it is?

Dear Reader—Costo refers to the ribs. The spaces between the ribs are the intercostal spaces. The arteries along each rib are called the intercostal arteries. Chondro refers to cartilage, whether it's located in the knee or in the chest. The connections between the bony ribs and sternum are made of cartilage. The area where they join is called costochondral junctions. Whenever "itis" is used in medicine, it means inflammation.

So, simply expressed, costochondritis means inflammation where the bony ribs join the cartilage at the front of the chest along the rib cage. It can cause localized tenderness and pain. The cause for the inflammation is usually not understood and probably occurs for a variety of reasons.

Nature does nothing in vain.

Inside Washington

McGovernites Still Pulling Charter Commission Wires?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — The Democratic Charter Commission has come up with a puzzler.

It's who is really running the 167-member body created by last year's national convention to draft a new charter for the party.

Are McGovernite activists and leftists secretly pulling the wires, or is control in the hands of party regulars and moderates — who presumably cleaned house after the 1972 electoral debacle?

Reason for the mystery is a suspicious incident that occurred at the unnoticed meeting of the Commission's 27-member executive committee.

As related by insiders, following is what happened:

Prior to the session, former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, chairman of both the committee and the commission, met with Rick Stearns, a top McGovern lieutenant throughout the South Dakota radical's primary and election campaigns and now a member of his senatorial staff (that is, he is a congressional employee drawing government pay).

Reportedly, Stearns gave Sanford some resolutions for submission to the executive committee — which Sanford subsequently presented as his own.

Stearns has long been a controversial figure in the inner McGovern entourage. During last year's crucial California primary, when McGovern sent him there to direct operations, local leaders protested so vehemently Stearns had to be recalled.

One of the irate complaints was that he was "pro-Arab."

Reports of backstage ties between Sanford and Stearns have been circulating for some time.

At the executive committee's April meeting, it was charged Stearns was masterminding a Sanford plan to gain control of the executive committee as a power base to further the ambitious North Carolinian's 1976 presidential aspirations.

That was flatly denied by Sanford — although significantly saying nothing about whether he is or isn't a presidential hopeful.

Unfinished Business
Next meeting of the Charter Commission will be a three-day session at Ft. Collins, Colo., late in July.

Presumably, these deliberations will produce the new charter to be submitted to a "mini-convention" which the Democratic National Committee will call for next year — time and place still to be decided.

The Ft. Collins gathering should be very revealing — particularly about who is really wielding the power in the commission.

It should also tell a lot about Sanford's status in the party hierarchy, whom he is really aligned with, left, center or what — have you, and his presidential prospects — if any.

The Ft. Collins meeting is certain to witness a stormy power struggle between the leftist elements battling for control and bitterly resisting regulars and moderates.

The outcome is a tossup. Addendum: Mrs. Jean Westwood, McGovernite national chairman who was dumped after his overwhelming defeat, quit the Charter Commission's executive committee — only to be put back on when Sanford named the gravel-voiced Utah chairwoman of the commission's finance committee.

Why Mrs. Westwood was tagged for that job is a mystery, as she is not known as a fund-raiser.

The commission, an autonomous body, has to raise its own money. Apparently, that's not going so well. Inside word is that appeals for financial help are being made to national chairman Robert Strauss — who has plenty of problems of his own trying to pay off some $3 million in debts from the 1968 campaign.

Still More Gravy
The public till is in the process of being tapped for another $7.5 million for the glamor-studded Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

That will bring the taxpayers' stake close to $60 million. The $7.5 million contribution is for "maintenance" of the huge marble edifice on the Potomac for the next three years — $2.4 million for the fiscal year starting July 1, $2.5 million for the next fiscal year, and $2.6 million for the third.

Last year, Congress voted $1.5 million for this purpose.

House approval of the hefty new grant (260 to 100) was ignored by the media — although there was quite a torrid debate. Why it went virtually unreported is unknown.

Speareading the opposition, Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, gadfly economy champion, pointed out that of the center's $70 million cost, taxpayers have put up around $50 million despite explicit assurances private funds would finance the structure. As evidence, he cited a June 4, 1969, report stating:

"The House Public Works Committee, in reporting a bill by a vote of 22 to 6 to authorize the government's portion of the additional spending, put the center on notice that 'this is it' for the federal government's financial participation."

"Yet here we go again," said Gross sardonically, "another $7.5 million in the next three years to provide for plasterers, plumbers, electricians, painters, guards, gardeners, for this edifice to culture which has been erected in Foggy Bottom. And the Lord only knows how much we will be asked for when this money runs out."

Also sharply noted by Gross was that of the four presidential memorials in Washington, upkeep of the Kennedy Center is the most costly, as follows: Washington Monument $460,000, Jefferson Memorial $58,500, Lincoln Memorial $126,700.

"That is quite a substantial difference from the $7.5 million we are being asked to vote for the Kennedy Center," snapped Gross.

Other Side
Warmly defending the proposal, Rep. Kenneth Gray, D-Ill., Public Works subcommittee chairman, cited the fact that the center is the second most popular tourist attraction in Washington — after the U.S. Capitol — with more than 24,000 visitors a day. In April the total was 254,652. Also last year, some 75,000 school children attended daytime concerts there.

"This figure will rise to upwards of two and a half million visitors a year," argued Gray.

It is a part of the cure to wish to be cured

It's not a "Watergate" — it's more like the whole dam has collapsed.

They're now referring to the incredibility gap in certain quarters.

We've heard mention of the edifice being called the Whitewashed House, recently.

We see little difference in the area of human rights between denying a person employment because of color, religion, race or sex and denying a person employment because he will not join a union.
