Board Passes New Program

By CLAY LIVERY

The Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees, meeting in regular session last night at Carver Center, passed by a 4-1 margin the proposal implementing Plan A, Comprehensive Educational Services.

Voting for passage were Ben Sturgeon, Bob Carmichael, Paul Simmons and Warren Hasse. Voting against the proposal was Curt Beck.

Plan A is a pilot program offered to the PISD for the coming year by the Texas Education Agency. The program will be mandatory state-wide in the 1976-77 school year.

The purpose of the program is to get children between the ages of 3-21 who suffer from learning disabilities of whatever nature, back into the mainstream of the educational system.

It is a program designed to help those of both high and low learning potential work up to their maximum potential.

Concerning questions from citizens present at the meeting about pre-school age children to be included in the program, board president Sturgeon explained on three different occasions that the only way a three, four or five-year-old would take part in the program was if his parents, recognizing that the child had a learning deficiency, got in contact with the school system and gave their permission for a counselor to work with the child.

All work with pre-school age children will be done in the child's home with the aid of the parent or parents except in the case of two classes of Head Start pupils at Baker School. Head Start has been a program at Baker School for several years.

Funding for the project, budgeted at $400,000 dollars for the 1973-74 school year, comes directly to the Pampa system from TEA.

The only monies that will come directly from the P.I.S.D. is the $500 per year salary increment above the state minimum teachers salary of $6000.

As many as 29 instructors, with five supplementary instructors, may be added to the program as the need arises.

Youth Center Elects Officers

Officers of the Pampa Youth and Community Center were re-elected at the annual election meeting last night at the Youth Center.

Those re-elected for one-year terms were:

Fred Neslage, president; Arthur Aftergut, vice president; Floyd Watson, treasurer; Benny Kirksey, assistant treasurer; and Al Bassett, secretary.

New directors elected at a recent meeting to serve three-year terms were C.E. Steel, Dr. Joe Donaldson, Arthur Aftergut, Mrs. Thelma Braz, and J.A. Martindale.

Milk Price Hike To Hit Markets By Early July

The 10 per cent increase announced Tuesday in the price of milk at the production level in an eight-state area probably will hit retail stores early in July, according to Pampa store managers.

The announcement by the Associated Milk Producers, Inc., said the cost of Class I milk will be increased on July 1 approximately 76 cents per hundredweight above the $7.88 per hundredweight Class I price of June 1.

The rapid rise in the price of feed grains was given as the principal reason for the milk price hike.

Class I milk was selling in Pampa stores today from 65 to 69 cents a half-gallon. That price reflected a two-cent per half-gallon increase posted about two weeks ago.

Officials of National Milk Producers Association pointed out the government index of grains has risen 20 per cent in the past two weeks.

It was also stated that the cost of feed accounts for 70 per cent of the cost of producing milk.

night, the board voted to continue Pampa's membership in Panhandle Educational Services Organization (PESO).

PESO is the sole source of visual aids for the entire school system. The cost of the program is $1 per year for each student in the system, which is matched by $1 from the state. The proposal was passed unanimously.

In other action taken concerning instructional programs, the board voted unanimously to submit a contract application to the Texas Education Agency for funding approval for an agreement between the school district and Pampa College of Hairdressing and Beauty Culture.

The new contract calls for an increase in per pupil cost from $235 last year to $300 for 1973-74. All funding comes through TEA.

In business items taken up the board voted unanimously to accept a bid of 18.7 cents per gallon (tax not included) from Exxon Corp. for 30,000 gallons of fuel for the next school year. That is up from the 11.25 cents per gallon the district paid last year. Of 10 bids solicited, Exxon's was the only one received.

The board also approved unanimously a short-term $60,000 loan to enable the school district to meet the final payroll this fiscal year. The loan, recommended by school business manager Homer Craig, will be at 4 per cent for 90 days.

Cameron Marsh, principal of Travis Elementary School, reported that assessment proceedings were almost completed on the proposed sidewalk to run south of Travis. The school district's cost is estimated at $1162.80, with the rest of the expense to be borne by St. Vincent's School, the Travis PTA and private landholders.

The board also voted unanimously to continue membership in the Texas Association of School Boards at a cost of $200 per year.

A request by a non-denominational group from Skellytown to use Harvester Stadium for a religious meeting in August also received unanimous approval from the board as did a search committee recommendation that the name of Robert E. Lee Junior High be changed to Pampa Junior High.

The search committee, composed of students from both Lee and the now closed "old" Pampa Junior High, faculty advisors and the principals of both schools also recommended and won approval of, nicknaming the school's athletic teams the Patriots and using red, white and blue as the school colors.

In the budget work session the board continued its study of the proposed 1973-74 budget with recommendations made for cutting some costs, particularly travel expenses.

According to O.J. McAdams of San Antonio, general manager of the western division of Associated Milk Producers, the cost of feed is the largest single category of expense involved in production.

According to UPI reports, the increase will hike the price of milk five to six cents per gallon by the end of summer in the southwestern states area.

Dairy farmers are now unable to make a fair return and are, in fact, producing milk below cost. AMPI Director S.R. Donaho Jr. said "By the time the price increase takes effect we may barely break even."

He said the price increase will not affect ice cream, cottage cheese and other dairy products.

"We have barely enough milk to last through the summer," said Frank Schekarski, a marketing economist for AMPI.

"We may have to import milk from as far away as Minnesota once school starts because we are so short of milk."

FROM PRESIDENT NIXON

Stans Says He Got 'Pep Talk'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans testified today that President Nixon told him in a "pep talk" last August not to worry about personal problems the Watergate bugging was causing because "it will all be over eventually."

Returning for a second day of questioning by the Senate Watergate Committee, Stans also said he never questioned and was not suspicious about large cash payments funneled to various Nixon campaign officials and White House aides in the months preceding the President's re-election.

Busy Agenda Set For County Meet

The Commissioners' Court of Gray County will meet in regular session tomorrow at 10 a.m. in the County Courtroom in the Court House.

Among the items to be considered at the meeting are payment of bills as approved by the county auditor, transfer of funds and time deposits, and treasurer's report and welfare report.

Under the last proposal, commissioners plan to spend $50,146 on operating and maintenance expenditures and $53,000 on capital expenditures based upon an estimated total of $103,146 revenue sharing funds for the entitlement period beginning Jan. 1, 1973 and ending June 30, 1973.

PIONEER PRESIDENT SAYS No Natural Gas Shortage Seen Soon For Area

By TEX DEWEES

Purpose for scheduling the programs, according to James McCoy, Pioneer's Pampa manager, is to give communities served by the utility an up-to-date report on energy problems facing the nation and Pioneer's position in the current energy situation.

Watson indicated West Texas and the Texas Panhandle are in far better position with relation to natural gas supplies than is much of the nation. Quoting from the company's 1972 annual report, Watson pointed out that, based on 1972 gas consumption, Pioneer's reserves are sufficient for approximately 14 years.

Stans, indicted with Mitchell last month by a federal grand jury in New York on campaign fraud charges in connection with a $200,000 contribution from financier Robert L. Vesco, testified that Nixon had called him one day in August.

He said he was aware of the fact that I was receiving considerable punishment in the press for not answering all their questions at that time," Stans said. "He said he appreciated the sacrifice I was making, and that it would all be over eventually. It was a pep talk, essentially."

PARIS (UPI) — The four original warring parties of South Vietnam signed today another agreement worked out by Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho to bring a "strict and scrupulous implementation" of the Jan. 27 cease-fire agreement that was supposed to have ended the fighting in Vietnam.

Representatives of the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong gathered once more in the Kleber Avenue conference hall — site of the long, drawn-out Paris peace talks — for the ceremony that bore a marked resemblance to the first signing four months ago.

It was a reluctant South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu has said no signing was necessary because Saigon had not violated the original agreement. But in the end he

Astros View Cape

Houston (UPI) — Skylab's astronauts got a clear look at their Cape Kennedy launch site today but heavy clouds obscured much of the nation on their next-to-last picture-taking sweep. "There's the Cape under the clouds there," cried Paul J. Weitz.

He beamed the view back to mission control using a television camera hooked up to a telescope. The clouds, however, spoiled the view of much of Florida, including the Disney World complex to the west.

The 32-minute picture-taking pass began over the state of Washington and ended east of Brazil. It was the tenth earth resources run for Weitz, Charles "Pete" Conrad and Joseph P. Kerwin.

Conrad said he planned to try to manufacture ball bearings later today in experiments that could lead the way to factories in orbit. He performed three space welding tests Tuesday and television pictures of the operation were beamed back today.

The experiments, carried out in a 16-inch vacuum chamber, are designed to take advantage of weightlessness and demonstrate that manufacturing processes in space can produce what can't be made on earth.

The astronauts were greeted by heavy clouds as soon as they turned on their cameras over the west coast. Cloudy conditions continued across much of the nation, spoiling the pilots' attempts to photograph many of their specific targets.

"It looks like the whole U.S. is clobbered today," said Conrad.

The long Florida coastal county of Brevard where the spaceport is situated was one of the prime targets for Skylab's cameras. County planner John W. Hannah wants to survey the growth resulting from nearby Disney World and study the area's fragile ecology.

bowed to U.S. economic pressure and decided to go along with the ceremony, diplomatic sources reported in Saigon.

Since the original Jan. 27 truce war has continued to ravage South Vietnam and each side blamed the other for the thousands of cease-fire violations which have claimed more thousands of lives when there was supposed to be peace after nearly three decades of war.

President Nixon ordered Kissinger back to Paris for more talks with Tho, suspended mine sweeping of the North Vietnamese harbors, broke off talks on postwar U.S. economic aid to Hanoi and mounted an intensive bombing campaign in peace to Cambodia too.

A Communist spokesman said the communists worked out in a last two-hour session today between Kissinger and Tho closely resembled the 14-point plan made public in Saigon Tuesday calling for an effective cease fire, the first step in making it binding. The four parties were called in for the 4 p.m. (10 a.m. CDT) signing ceremony and it was announced that South Vietnamese and North Vietnamese officials would sign the final documents at 7 p.m. (11 a.m. CDT).

The agreement was reached in a new round of talks with Le Duc Tho, a member of the Hanoi ruling Politburo, after the original South Vietnam cease-fire of Jan. 27 fell apart with massive truce violations by both sides.

President Thieu objected to the new agreement on the ground that one was not necessary—that South Vietnam had not violated the original cease-fire. Another objection was that again it did not call for the withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam.

Diplomatic sources in Saigon said at one point tonight Thieu was "unlikely" to sign the four-part agreement with the Viet Cong, North Vietnam and the United States but that he felt compelled to bow to U.S. pressure.

Gas Price Hike Hits Area Again

The gasoline price bugaboo has reared its ugly head again in the Pampa and Texas Panhandle area.

For the first time ever the price posters at some local gasoline stations yesterday showed 40.9 cents per gallon. That was for the high test brand Regular gasoline at the same station was 36.9 cents.

A station across the street posted prices of 35.9 and 39.9. But, gasoline could be bought for various prices ranging from 33 cents upward, depending on the brand of gasoline the purchaser wished to put in the gas tank.

At many stations no price signs were in evidence.

Retail dealers had no particular reason for the new price hike except to point to the growing scarcity of gasoline due to a lack of sufficient refinery output to meet increased consumption.

During his talk, Watson touched on some of the "near term" and "long term" problems facing all types of energy suppliers in the country. He discussed some potential "immediate term" and "long term" solutions.

Watson concluded his talk by saying "In this rapidly changing business we have stayed in a comparatively good gas supply position, and we can foresee a continuation of this position, although there are numerous pitfalls as the nation proceeds through the extreme energy problems of the near term."

Swedish Student Hopes To Fulfill New Dream

By CARLA COMBS
 Martin Luther King once said, "I have a dream." Everybody has a dream, including Helena Fagerberg, Swedish brunette visiting in Pampa.

Helena arrived in Pampa last Thursday from Gothenberg, Sweden. Helena will leave Thursday to visit Omaha, Neb., where she will attend the University of Nebraska there and take a course in psychology for two months. Helena has traveled through Europe and the United States, most recently, with her 18-year-old sister, Karin, visiting Greece and Italy. She describes Americans as being "lazy" because they drive their cars everywhere and never walk or exercise, as they do in Sweden. Her family goes skiing most weekends and she says her brother, Hakan, who is twelve, is "fantastic on skis." Helena's parents live in Ericisund, a town about 500 miles from Gothenberg, in the middle of Sweden. Helena grew up there and went to school. Her father works as an engineer, organizing and taking care of wood transport. He is a member of Lions Club in Sweden.

Since she has been here, she has decided what her "dream" is. She would love to work in the United States, preferably Texas, for two or three years. This dream is not impossible for her because she has the qualifications. She has a degree in psychology from the University of Gothenberg. She has experience working with other psychologists in Sweden. And most important, she has the ambition to succeed, wherever she works. Three years ago, Helena lived in Pampa for one summer as a Lions Club exchange student. She enjoyed it so much she came back this summer for a week to visit all the friends she Helena's American "parents" are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brown, 1606 Fir. Brown is a Lions Club member also.

When asked what her favorite things are in America, she replied smiling, "The people and T-bone steak." She described the people in Sweden as being somewhat "colder." A typical Swedish food is herring, with fish very common. Helena claims her favorite place in the world, besides her own country (of which she is very proud), is Texas. And when she gets to Nebraska, Helena said she is going to do everything possible to make her dream come true about working in the U.S. And you can be sure that whatever Helena attempts, she will do her best to achieve.

Woman Claims Lost Gold Mine

CLOVIS, N.M. (UPI)—Stories abound in the Southwest of lost Spanish treasure, but few people say they know where any is.

An exception is Mrs. Ova Noss of Clovis, who says her late husband discovered a lost Spanish gold mine and gold bullion 36 years ago. Now, says Mrs. Noss, the mine has been discovered by the federal government and she thinks gold which rightfully belongs to her is being stolen.

Mrs. Noss said the mine is located on the White Sands Missile Range in southern New Mexico, which was acquired by the Army during World War II.

Although she has never been to the lost mine, Mrs. Noss said she has seen gold from it. "We've seen the gold bars and all kinds of artifacts that came out of there," said Mrs. Noss' daughter, Leatha Guthrie of Clovis.

Both women say the Army has found the mine and is mining the gold and removing the bullion.

Mrs. Noss said her late husband, M.E. "Doc" Noss, found the mine while deer hunting in 1937 and explored the mine until an explosion sealed the chamber in 1939.

Medium Claims Contact With Late Tarzan Star

NEW YORK (UPI)—British medium Margaret Staves, a plump pigeon-like woman who was flown in from London for the event, sank into a labored trance, jerked and moaned. Then, she grabbed for the nearest hand, announced she had made contact, and said "he speaks and is alive in another world."

Tears rolled down the cheeks of Zan Barker, widow of the late Lex Barker, star of Hollywood's Tarzan movies. She who wore a white pants suit and fingered an old smoking jacket belonging to her husband to help Miss Staves in her efforts to reach him. "Is he happy?" she asked hesitantly. "He is happy," said Miss Staves, her face flushed. "He says 'I speak of love and a life beyond... there is forgiveness here... I speak of deep regret and heartache.'"

The bronzed muscular actor, 54, collapsed and died of a heart attack May 10. Zan and son Alexander gathered together their close friends in the Waldorf Astoria Monday for a television seance to call up his spirit.

Surrounding Miss Staves in the hotel suite, lined with velvet chairs and silk wallpaper, were Hollywood parapsychologists and several friends, including actress Joan Fontaine and New York socialite, Pat Uchitel, both of whom had expressed shock at Barker's sudden death. Miss Staves gave his widow personal messages purportedly from Barker and a set of instructions to his son Alexander, a restaurant owner. Her voice was so soft, it could hardly be heard among the audience of reporters and TV cameramen who strained to catch her words. At one point the clattering of a collapsing camera stand and a sneezing fit by a local reporter threatened to interrupt her trance.

Barker, who is remembered by cinema buffs for his daring rope-swings through the jungle, last January wrote a secret sealed message along with three other movie stars with spiritualist leanings — Rhonda Fleming, Arlene Dahl, and Robert Cummings—and had them deposited in a bank vault. The three then signed agreements whereby each would attempt to contact mediums at seances one month after their deaths to transmit the messages.

Texas Fiddler Obtains 'Grand Master' Honor

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Texas Dick Barrett, winner of the grand master fiddler contest over the weekend, says the competition here was the toughest he has ever faced.

"The fiddlers here have been invited because they've all proven themselves in other contests," Barrett said as he proudly clutched his $1,000 winner's check. "As far as I am concerned, they are the greatest in the world."

Sawing down on such tunes as "Grey Eagle" and "Durango's Hornpipe," the 54-year-old Barrett was chosen over 23 other contestants in competition Sunday at Opryland.

Barrett, of Pottsboro, Texas, had high praise for his daughter Christie and his son Brett, who accompanied him through the eliminations on guitar and bass. "I'm going to set part of my winnings aside for their college education," he said.

Disciplining method is dialing trouble

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-H. V. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle a misunderstanding among myself, my husband, and my mother concerning my 7-year-old son?

Dickie loves to talk to his grandmother [my mother] on the telephone, and occasionally, as a disciplining measure, we deny him that privilege.

When the phone rings, if I don't get it before Dickie and it's his grandmother, he tells her that he's not allowed to talk to her.

My mother gets upset because she feels she should be able to talk to her grandson when she calls. She even suggested that if she should die suddenly and Dickie hadn't been allowed to talk to her, he would hold it against my husband and me. She asked me how I would feel then?

My husband and I think we have a right to discipline our son as we see fit, but since my mother brought up this dying business we aren't so sure. Thanks for any help you can give us.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Surely you and your husband can discipline your son in some other way. By denying him the privilege of talking to his grandmother, you are punishing her, too. But he's your son so YOU make the rules. And don't let grandma blackmail you with talk of sudden death and ensuing guilt.

DEAR ABBY: All of a sudden my sister in law stopped speaking to me, and being a sensitive person I wanted to know why, so I asked her. She said: "I'll be honest with you. When you asked us for the plans of our house, we gave them to you, not dreaming you would make yours a carbon copy of ours, including the landscaping, the fence, and lawn furniture. Then you had to get a car like ours. And now you are planning to vacation the same place WE vacationed last year, and that is the last straw."

I was shocked. If they didn't want us to have the same kind of house, they should have said so. Instead, they acted honored. Our car is a different color, and lots of people go to the Virgin Islands for a vacation.

Should we change our vacation plans, Abby? I don't need a person like her for an enemy.

SISTER IN LAW

DEAR SIS: If you think it will improve your relationship, go somewhere else. And now that you know she resents being copied, try to be a little more original.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I read or hear about a woman who is overweight but says, "My husband likes me this way." I think of myself 30 years ago. I was 35 years old, 5 foot 3, and 260 pounds. My handsome husband told me he didn't care—he liked me just the way I was.

My mother kept telling me how unhealthy it was for me to carry around so much weight, but I kept saying, "I feel fine, why should I diet?" If a friend suggested that maybe I should lose some weight, I avoided that person.

Then it happened. High blood pressure, diabetes, and a heart attack. One thing after another, and all directly related to my obesity. Why didn't a doctor warn me? Because all those years I was too ashamed to go near a doctor because I knew he'd put me on a diet.

I know now that if I had reduced 30 years ago, I'd have been a lot healthier. As for my husband, he has paid some staggering doctor bills. Poor man. Sign me, Gemini [May 21-June 20]: You've somewhat neglected the esthetic side of life. Get rid of clutter and find yourself at advantage by doing so.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Review current projects, determine what could be added for more efficient operations, higher earnings.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: The easy path thru today's deceptive simplicity may not be best. Rouse yourself to action.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Home life becomes richer, livelier. Your responsibility is recast, redirected by normal developments.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Learning is the critical action—exceptional opportunity is hidden in commonplace situations.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Increase your earning potential by training for more exacting work. Add something to savings accounts.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Finances promise short-term activity. Your sense of direction is adjusted toward coming changes.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: A change in the character of your enterprise occurs when you put your heart into it. Faith transforms all.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Current developments promise progress. Overcome that inclination to loaf. Put in a complete day of normal work.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Volunteer for the common good—then put everything else into improving your own lot.

West didn't have any attractive lead against six no-trump but he managed to find the worst one. When it is clear that your opponents have based their bidding on point count, you want to make your safest lead, not one that is likely to cost you a trick.

Normally 34 high card points is more than enough for a small slam. This time, even after South had led the heart lead come around to his jack, he could only count to 11 tricks.

The twelfth would have to come from a 3-3 break in a red suit or a squeeze of some sort.

South planned for all contingencies. At trick two he led a heart to dummy. Then he led a diamond and stuck in the seven-spot. When you are after a squeeze for 12 tricks you try to concede a trick early since you aren't interested in all 13.

West won with the nine and led a third heart to set up his queen. It also forced East to make a discard. This was no problem. He let a club go.

The problem developed three tricks later after South had cashed the good clubs. This time East had to let a spade or diamond go. Either discard would be fatal but he tried the diamond as his best chance.

South, who was something of a show-off, proceeded to show his hand with the remark, "If East still has the diamonds stopped I will play the ace and king and squeeze West. If he doesn't have them stopped my eight of diamonds will be my 12th trick."

What do you do now?

A—Just bid four spades. Your partner does not seem to have the sort of cards of which slams are made.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three spades your partner has bid three hearts over your three diamonds. What do you do now?

Bagley-Trice Vows Exchanged In Kermit

Nuptial vows were read June 1 in a twilight ceremony in the home of the Rev. J.R. Manning, Kermit, Tex., who solemnized the double-ring ceremony for Sherry Kay Bagley and Teddy Max Trice.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.M. Bagley of Andrews, and Mr. and Mrs.

MR. AND MRS. TEDDY MAX TRICE
...nee Miss Sherry Kay Bagley

Weldon Trice of Canyon, are parents of the bridegroom.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, with the "her mother and I," avowal, wore a floor-length gown of white eyelet embroidery in empire style designed by Mrs. L.B. Churchwell of Plainview, an aunt of the bridegroom. The square neckline, leg-o-mutton sleeves, and tiered skirt were enhanced with rows of eyelet beading laced with navy ribbon. She carried a nosegay bouquet of white daisies, pink sweetheart roses, purple sinuata stas, and yellow French carnations accented with gypsophila, and the navy blue repeated in the nosegay streamers.

Both the bride and bridegroom are students at West Texas State University and are physical education majors.

Mrs. Trice, a sophomore student, holds membership in Delta Zeta sorority and the Women's PE Majors' Club. She has served as treasurer of the Panhellenic Council.

The bridegroom is a junior at WTSU and is presently secretary of the Men's PE Majors' Club and a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. He is employed by Cooper's Market.

Following a wedding trip to points of interest in New Mexico, the couple will be at home at 609 16th St., Canyon.

Mrs. Ledbetter Interested In 1000 Things

DESPITE DISCOUNT

Credit Cards Aid Oil Companies

Tampa, Texas Tampa Daily News Oct. 14, 1971

By CARLA COMBS

The age-old philosophy which says, "The whole secret of life is to be interested in one thousand things as well" can easily be applied to Elaine Ledbetter.

The one thing she is interested in profoundly is science and the thousand things as well include such things as writing, hiking, photography, and, of course, teaching.

Mrs. Ledbetter, 6111 Grape, is currently ending a year of serving as president of National Science Teachers Association. She is a well-known and admired science teacher at Pampa High School.

Mrs. Ledbetter is currently serving as chairman of the science department at PHS. During the past year she obtained a one-year leave of absence so she could fulfill her duties as president of NSTA.

Included during the year were visits to 2,000 classrooms in elementary, secondary and college levels in 22 states across the nation. She has flown over 63,000 miles since the first of October.

In preparing for her job as president, she sent letters to state superintendents for the NSTA, presidents of chapters and affiliated groups across the U.S.

She spoke at three area conventions in St. Louis, Mo.; San Diego, Calif. and Spokane, Wash., and at one national convention in Detroit.

This July she will attend the annual board meeting, where she will act as rotating president and serve on the board one more year in the fall. Mrs. Ledbetter will retire in 1973 to continue teaching chemistry.

Mrs. Ledbetter was previously served as president of Science Teachers Association of Texas, 1969; secretary of National Science Teachers Association, 1970.

Crude Oil Price

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Champion Petroleum Co. has announced it is increasing its price for Oklahoma sweet crude oil by 15 cents per barrel effective Oct. 15.

The increase reflects the price per barrel to $14.50, 50 degrees gravity and above with a 70 cents per degree discount for anything under 40 degree gravity. The increase will allow about 75,000 barrels of Oklahoma production daily.

British Columbia's forests take up to 50 per cent of all world's timber — second to that of the 14 westernmost United States states.

INTERESTED WOMAN — The one thing she is interested in profoundly is science and the thousand things as well include such things as writing, hiking, photography, and, of course, teaching.

Mrs. Ledbetter was previously served as president of Science Teachers Association of Texas, 1969; secretary of National Science Teachers Association, 1970.

She has also written two poetry books, "Triumph of Moment" and "Candles At Noon."

Because of the many places she visited and people she met, Mrs. Ledbetter has set a definite goal for the future.

When asked what this goal is, she replied, "I plan to give Pampa High School the full benefit of my experiences."

All her life, she has wanted to teach. Up until her freshman year at Northern Oklahoma Junior College, she wanted to teach social studies but, after a successful year in her science studies and an "impressive professor," she decided to teach science.

Mrs. Ledbetter was born in Tonkawa, Okla., and attended school in Blackwell, Okla. She attended NOJC for two years and later obtained a Bachelor of Science degree from University of Oklahoma in Norman.

She continued her education at North Texas State University, where she earned a Master of Education degree.

After college, she taught school in Blackwell for one year then moved to Shidler-Webb City, Okla., and taught all sciences there for nine years.

She married Bill Ledbetter, who was a football coach, math and physics teacher at Blackwell. He later worked for Skelly Oil Company, and, in 1951, they were transferred to Pampa.

Mrs. Ledbetter taught at Tampa Junior High (ninth grade science) and, in March of 1953, she went to Pampa High to teach biology and chemistry.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Your oil company credit card offers you a pocket calculator, cookware or maybe a 12-band radio. The price seems right. But what's in it for the oil company?

Very simply, if a consumer is encouraged to use a supposedly single purpose card for a variety of purchases, he'll use the card more often. He probably also will buy more of the product for which the card was originally intended. He may even think more kindly of the oil company for offering him a good radio at a discount price.

Last but not least, the oil company manages to turn a profit on mail order merchandising.

"Let's face it," said Robert M. Bleiweiss, corporate vice president of Cordura Corp. of Los Angeles, a firm dedicated to "activating" credit cards resting dormant in the consumer's wallet. "If the product is basically the same, as in different brands of gasoline, your only choice is to show the customer you're a hell of a nice guy."

Bleiweiss and William H. Shipley, president of Cordura Marketing, Inc., discussed the anatomy of a credit card bargain with UPI.

"We went to Japan for a client who wanted to offer its card carriers a portable radio," Shipley said. "We contracted with the manufacturer for X-thousand units and, of course, our way of doing business eliminates the middle men and most of the markup."

"In the case of pocket calculators, we were contracted for the entire production capabilities of a manufacturer for a certain specified period. We were thus able to specify the features we wanted on the calculators, and the manufacturer was assured of sustained production for the period we hired them. That brought the price down."

The business of generating more credit card use by means of mail order merchandising has several pitfalls. It relies heavily on the manufacturer, who may be halfway around the world, to make good on his promises of productivity, performance and quality. Samples of a product may pass muster in independent testing, but the production line product may fail, resulting in mass returns and complaints.

New opinion poll shows change

China and U.S.: Scrutability reigns

By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It seems like only a few years ago — it WAS only a few years ago — that Americans and the people of mainland China were not so buddy-buddy.

Little boys reading American comic books in the early 1950s grew up believing the Chinese were buck-toothed sadists who existed solely so G.I. Joe would have someone at whom he could yell, "Eat molten death, Commie rats."

An opinion survey in 1964 showed that 28 per cent of the American population did not know China had a Communist government but of those who did know, few thought it was a good idea.

In 1966, a Harris poll showed Americans most often described the Chinese with such adjectives as "sly," "treacherous," "war-like" and "ignorant."

It was by no means a case of unrequited hate. In 1951 a Chinese magazine said of the United States: "This is the Eden of a pinch of millionaires, the hell of countless millions of poor people. This is the paradise of gangsters, swindlers, rascals, special agents, fascist germs, speculators, debauchers and all the dregs of mankind. This is a living hell 10 times, 100 times, 1,000 times worse than any hell that can possibly be depicted by the most sanguinary of writers."

That set the tenor for 20 years during which the nicest thing Peking ever called the United States was "paper tiger" and the United States pretended that mainland China was just a delinquent suburb of Formosa.

But that was when the Chinese were still part of the yellow peril and the United States was still full of capitalist war-mongers. Now American journalists and government officials are streaming off to China as if it were Tahiti. Chinese Mao jackets, acrobats and gymnasts are tumbling across American borders in the more or less hallowed tradition of coolies, mah jongg and chop suey.

A recent opinion survey of American attitudes toward China is illustrative. It was conducted by Norton Simon, Inc., a nice wholesome American conglomerate formed in 1968 by the consolidation of McCall Corporation.

Hunt Foods and Industries and Canada Dry Corporation. Only time will tell whether the Chinese are ready for American women's magazines, tomato paste and ginger ale but Norton Simon president David J. Mahony visited China last October and his corporation seems not disinterested in turning an honest yuan or two.

The most surprising part of the Norton Simon survey, in fact, is the high percentage of people favoring increased trade with the Chinese.

(This raises questions about the poll being self-serving but its results on other questions are close to those obtained by other national surveys following President Nixon's trip to China last year.)

The survey, based on interviews conducted this March and said to be representative of national opinion, showed 84 per cent of those questioned favored increased diplomatic contact with the Chinese government and 82 per cent favored more cultural relations. These results, however, are not substantially different from those obtained in a Council on Foreign Relations survey made by the University of Michigan in 1964. Even then, when China was still "Red," 73 per cent of those polled said they favored an exchange of visitors with the Chinese and 71 per cent approved of increased diplomatic contact.

So we have always been friendly in theory. In 1964, however, only 31 per cent of the people contacted were in favor of China's admission to the United Nations, while the Norton Simon survey indicated a 73 per cent approval of Peking's admission after the fact.

And, more importantly for purveyors of tomato paste, 72 per cent of the subjects in the Norton Simon poll supported increased trade with China, a big jump over the 43 per cent who were in favor of "selling things like wheat to Communist China" in the 1964 Council on Foreign Relations poll.

How meaningful all this is in the short run is a question, of course. There are still a lot of people who would not enter into trade with the Chinese for all the tea in Sri Lanka.

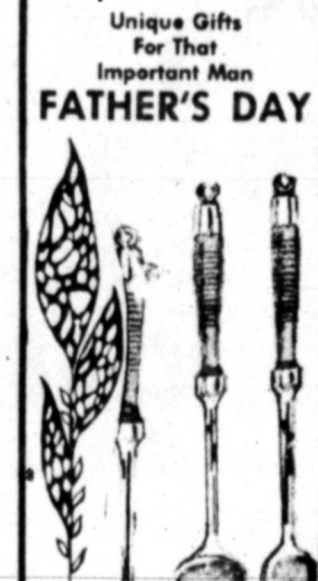

And even Mahony had some cautious words in a recent speech. "Even if we do business with China it will be fairly modest. Our trade with China has gone from $3 million in 1971 to $92 million in 1972 and may get past the $350 million mark this year."

"But that isn't a lot and China's total external trade last year was only $2.5 billion, which is small for a major country."

Mahony added that China "doesn't seem to be much of a market for cosmetics, fashions or luxury items like cars and jewelry" but predicted increasing demand there for American equipment and technology.

"We cannot afford," said Mahony, 49 and a top business executive since 1951, "to concede to our competitors a market that represents almost a quarter of the world's population."

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The new Chicago Board Options Exchange continues to intrigue the investing public with a track record of more than 1,500 contracts daily since trading began April 26, 1973, says Reynolds Securities Inc. "Aggressive speculators should be attracted to these options as they have price visibility, volatility, a secondary market, and a fixed predetermined limit on risk for buyers," it adds.

"The stock market's performance in the near future may well be determined by the kind of action that is taken now in Washington on inflation policy," according to Standard & Poor's The Outlook. The appointment of Melvin Laird as domestic affairs counselor and other staff realignments should restore investor confidence and relieve the pressure on stocks, the letter says.

Although the investor is ignoring record earnings and low multiples' prices have been depressed to levels which are likely to inspire an awesome rebound," says Indicator Digest. The letter advises the cautious investor to concentrate on defensive and contra-trend situations, particularly the gold stocks, and to hold some liquid assets in anticipation of "the stupendous new bull move which lies somewhere ahead of us."

"A believable counter-inflationary program would put the super bond bears into retreat once again," says Blyth Eastman Dillon A multi-policy attack on inflation from budgetary restraint to direct controls would reduce long-term interest rates, the letter says, and ease the aggregate demand for funds in the money and capital markets.

Politics Corrupt Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The high prices consumers pay for everything from food to fabric have been blamed on almost everything but corrupt politics. Now comes Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., a politician himself, who's willing to add the political system to the list of villains. Specifically, he wants to indict campaign contributions which, in his view, are often little more than legalized bribes.

Or, as he told UPI: "The archaic, inefficient food marketing system and its legislative underpinnings are the villain, but what supports that villain is the other villain of the nefarious political contribution opportunities that exist here in the United States."

Prices Affected
For example, all of this is developing in the Watergate scandal, in the Senate hearings and whatever flows residually from the Watergate incident, but large contributions were made to the Nixon campaign that affected the price consumers pay for things.

For example, the McDonald's hamburger chain, at least the president of McDonald's, gave $255,000 to the Nixon campaign. That affected, I think, a Price Commission decision that increased by 4 cents their quarter pound hamburger — that frankly isn't a quarter of a pound when it's delivered.

Rosenthal also claimed the milk industry gave $320,000 to the Nixon re-election effort and won a 2-cent per quart hike in the price of milk; and that $94,000 in contributions from carpet manufacturers "delayed for years the flammability regulations that the Department of Commerce was supposed to implement in support of a law that we passed five years ago."

"These kind of nefarious contributions certainly don't help the farmer or the producer, and certainly hurt the consumer. The political system where government decisions are for sale to the highest bidder is one of the contributing factors to the whole inefficiency — and that's a soft word — to the whole inefficiency of our marketing system," he added.

Added Impetus
The result, Rosenthal said, is that the time may have arrived for a congressional push for public financing of political campaigns.

"All these years people like myself have been suggesting that we have to eliminate the private financing of campaigns so that people who aren't rich or of considerable financial means can get into the scene," said Rosenthal. "That never made much of an impression of the American people."

"But now we have this added impetus that they see governmental decisions and governmental policy was affected by campaign contributions and I think the public is now right and ready — certainly as I suspect a substantial number of congressmen are — to have public financing and public funding of presidential and hopefully national congressional campaigns," he said.

MORE ARE DYING
WIESBADEN, Germany (AP) — Deaths surpassed births in West Germany in 1972 for the first time since the Federal Republic was founded in 1949.

The Federal Statistics Office registered 730,000 deaths last year compared with 701,000 births. West Germany's population is 63 million.

Television In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - The principal characters in ABC-TV's new, weekly, half-hour situation comedy "Thicker Than Water," which bows tonight and is based on a British series, are:

-A proper, middle-aged spinster (Julie Harris) who has kept house for years for her wealthy, likable, earthy old father, now an ailing octogenarian, and who, though she undoubtedly loves him, can hardly wait for him to kick off so she can finally cash in.

-Her middle-aged playboy brother (Richard Long), who hasn't been home in eight years but dashes there the instant he hears the old man apparently is going fast so that he, too, can grab his share of the inheritance.

-The old man himself (Malcolm Atterbury), not a brilliant gent perhaps, but a wily geezer, unswervingly proud of the achievements of his pickle factory, undaunted by the prospect of death, swigging a bottle of booze on the sly in bed, fond of his children and employes (he wills his false teeth to an old worker), and probably certain to outlive almost everyone around him (his doctor predeceases him).

Some Place to Go
Ladies and gentleman, I am here to tell you that there will probably always be a British empire, and so long as there is, American television will have some place to go to get ideas for programs.

This wild series, "Thicker Than Water," is based on the British show "Nearest and Dearest," and is one of the funniest debuts of a U.S. video series in memory. If it can sustain the level of the premiere in future episodes (it is scheduled only for the summer), ABC-TV would be mad not to find a place for it in its regular season lineup.

On the basis of a preview showing, I can assure you that this whole plot prospect is blasted through with an uproarious, raucous and thoroughly irreverent approach that is completely delightful.

The makers of a show like this have to be very careful: One major slip in the direction of sentimentality and they are out of business, because the theme would then become depressing and the farcical basis a shambling. I don't know whether future episodes escape this trap, but the joy of the premiere is its total lack of sentimentality; that's what makes it work for everyone in it, and for the audience.

Roles Played with Gusto
Miss Harris and Long play their roles with fine gusto, never letting the mood of farce dissipate. Long's attitude is summed up when the lawyer handling the family estate greets him with "how do?" and he replies, "How much?"

But though Miss Harris and Long are splendid, and Jerry Paris' direction and Rick Mittleman's script contribute beautifully to the frantic, nutty proceedings, it is Atterbury as the old man who very nearly steals the show.

It's not so much the plot, in which he holds the ace this son and daughter will get their inheritances only if they run his factory together for five years.

There is one wonderfully funny scene in which the father, son and daughter sit around seriously discussing plans for the old man's wake, and what kind of headstone he ought to have. It's a tribute to the taste of all those involved in the show that you feel like bursting out with laughter as the scene unfolds. There is more genuine humor in the discussion of the wake than in an entire season of "Brady Bunch" shows.

Picasso Drawing Stolen From UT

AUSTIN (UPI) - University of Texas officials Tuesday reported the theft of a 1907 charcoal drawing by Pablo Picasso from a visiting exhibit of art works owned by the De Menil family of Houston.

Officials said the drawing, entitled "Torso of a Man," was taken from its frame in the second floor Michener gallery at the New Humanities Research Center on campus sometime Friday afternoon.

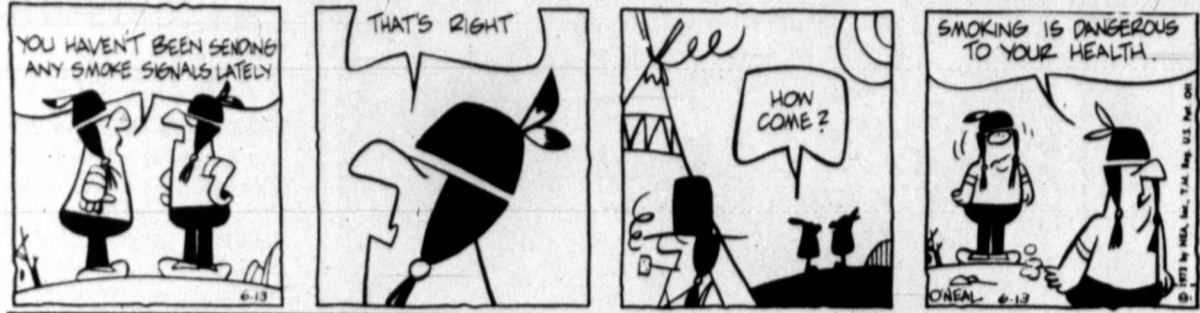

The drawing was one of 19 Picasso works on loan for an exhibit called "Look Back: Cubist paintings and sculpture from the Menil family collection."

The exhibit ended Sunday. The paintings had been on display since March 4. University Police Chief Donald R. Cannon urged anyone who visited the gallery Friday afternoon to contact school officials.

WORRY CLINIC

George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Mae argues that it is better to give her teen-age daughter the "Pill" than to have her come home pregnant from a dance. But that's the "Either-Or" fallacy in logic. Smart girls use a secret tattoo to hold men, without sexual affairs!

CASE X-533: Mae D., aged 38, defends her giving the "Pill" to her 16-year-old daughter.

"Dr. Crane," she protested, "I'd much rather my daughter used the 'Pill' than that she come home from a dance as a pregnant teen-ager."

EITHER-OR FALLACY

Mae illustrates one of the "10 Fallacies in Logic," as explained in the booklet below.

For she seems to think her daughter's behavior must be of the "Either-Or" type.

Either she will get pregnant. Or she must use the "Pill."

But this "Either-Or" fallacy precludes a third course of action.

Modern girls don't need to submit to sexual exploration by their callow high school or college escorts.

They can remain popular, win fraternity pins or engagement rings, and gain an adoring husband without indulging in sex with any or every boy in school.

It thus makes him feel that he is not being respected.

It is impossible to teach to a child that he has no personal responsibility in his conduct.

Harry escort.

For girls who submit to illicit sexual affairs are "chicker."

They are afraid of losing their temporary leg, unless they give in to him 100 percent.

Girls are notoriously poor gamblers.

If a boy introduces to them a girl who is not to be trusted, they will be disappointed when she is not.

X 533

Like Biblical Esau, they don't look ahead to future implications.

Indeed, many of them soon lose the very escorts they tried to "bribe" via sex, for the latter run away if the girl gets pregnant.

Or such boys discard the girls who are "easy marks" to pursue those who hold them at arms length, but still inflame their desire to feel important by means of verbal praise.

Despite Women's Libbers to the contrary, women are poorer gamblers than are men!

So they "give in" to their escorts, using sex as "bait" or a "bribe" in their frantic fear they will be deserted.

But experienced males don't get hooked thereby, for they know that if they pour on their fervid protests of "true love," the girl will easily submit, even without a wedding ceremony.

You parents are derelict in failing to teach your daughters the pros and cons of masculine psychology, so have them read this column daily!

Send for my booklet "Common Fallacies in Logic," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Doris Day Could Write Interesting Autobiography

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Doris Day will be at liberty from her canceled television show this fall allowing her sufficient time to begin her autobiography.

But what can a movie star write about that hasn't been poured into a book a hundred times before?

A great deal, if Doris chooses to write the truth.

For more than a decade she was among the top 10 boxoffice attractions in the country. From 1960-64 she was No. 1 in popularity, surpassing the likes of Cary Grant, Elizabeth Taylor, John Wayne and Elvis Presley.

At one time she sold more records than any other singer. She was also nominated for an Academy award in "Pillow Talk."

Perennial Virgin

"I don't think those things are very important," she said. "I'm happy that people enjoyed my work and that I was a success. But I also developed an image that I didn't want."

"I became the perennial virgin in all my movies. People began to think of me in the same terms off-screen."

"At one time, that may have been a desirable image. I don't know. But I never did anything to encourage that reputation. It still persists today, and I've got a grown son."

Doris could write about her only child, Terry, 29. How she tried to shield him from the limelight. How the Manson family had originally intended Terry and his friends to be murder victims.

Received Bad Press—She could also describe the tragedy of husband Marty Metcher's death in 1960 and the subsequent financial and legal problems which assailed her.

Doubtless she could provide good reading about her "costars" who included Clark Gable, Ronald Reagan, Rock Hudson, Frank Sinatra, Jimmy Cagney, James Stewart and Richard Widmark.

And the vicious press she received and the murderous reviews once the pinnacle of her career had been reached. The whispering campaigns and gossip make for interesting reading.

Doris may or may not write about those chapters in her life. But you can count on at least one chapter dealing with Actors And Others For Animals, an organization she helped establish.

The freckle-faced star devotes most of her waking hours trying to improve animal regulation laws in Los Angeles, helping find homes for stray dogs and cats, raising money for humane treatment of pets.

Enough Land Set To Support Meat

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States has enough forest and range grazing land to support steadily expanding meat production through at least the year 2000, an Agriculture Department report said Tuesday.

The report from the Forest Service added, however, that some changes including "more intensive management" of top-quality grazing lands may be needed, according to Assistant Agriculture Secretary Robert W. Long.

The report said some lands are being overused, but Long said the Forest Service study indicated that the twin goals of expanding meat production and protecting the environment can be met at management cost—comparable to today's costs.

Long said the information and research technology developed in the study will permit adoption of national policies aimed at providing ample forage on both publicly and privately owned lands. He said grazing practice changes may be needed, particularly on privately owned lands in western areas.

THE NEW BLACK STARS Roundtree counts 'nuts-to-you' money

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—There was a movie called "Shaft's Big Score," but let's consider Roundtree's big score.

Roundtree and Shaft are virtually inseparable. Richard Roundtree has made all three of the Shaft movies and now he's ready for his big score—television. This coming fall, assuming the writer's strike is settled, there will be a Shaft series on CBS. It will be a 90-minute show every third week.

Roundtree and Billy Dee Williams are the two top candidates for First Black Actor To Be A Genuine Matinee Idol. Williams won't do TV. Roundtree is doing it Why?

"Billy Dee is older than I am," says the 30-year-old Roundtree. "He has to make it in movies now if he ever will. I can wait a while."

"For me, the best thing about becoming a star through the Shaft thing is that it gives me what my mentor, Gordon Parks, calls, 'nuts-to-you money.' I hope this TV series lets me accumulate enough money in the next few years so after that I can do what I want to do."

Until now, Roundtree has been scrounging for work, like most actors. Now he's making his big score. It's been a long time coming.

He grew up in New Rochelle, N.Y., where his father was a deacon in a Baptist church. In his early life, he wanted to be a pro football player and he was an outside linebacker at Southern Illinois University. But he realized he couldn't make it in the pros.

After graduation, he went back home and sold clothes in one of those cheap chain stores in New York. From that job, he got a push into the steady job of a clothing salesman in a store in New York City.

It was a big upheaval at home, that step of giving up the steady job of a clothing salesman to become a actor. Roundtree says, "so I decided to study acting. I enrolled with the Negro Ensemble Theater."

RICHARD ROUNDTREE challenges Billy Dee Williams for "first black actor to be a genuine matinee idol."

enough to watch to safety. After graduation, he went back home and sold clothes in one of those cheap chain stores in New York. From that job, he got a push into the steady job of a clothing salesman in a store in New York City.

words to say," Roundtree says, "so I decided to study acting. I enrolled with the Negro Ensemble Theater."

This will be the first "Shaft" movie that he won't let his children—eight and six—see. He says "Shaft is black" and his other movies are "white ones."

may have been a contributing factor to their ultimate divorce.

The "Shaft" films, of course, were the big things in his life. They made him an immediate star and made his decision look like the smartest career change anybody had ever made. They also have enabled him to indulge in a few minor luxuries.

He plays a lot of tennis now. And he's a big horseback riding enthusiast. It's curious, at first, to think of him as a horseman, but he says there was a riding stable near where he grew up in New Rochelle and he's been riding for years.

"It's only been in the last five or six years," he says, "that I consider myself a good rider. I like show riding and I hope to do some of that. Somebody gave me a show horse in Atlanta, but I haven't had much time to ride him."

The latest "Shaft" film—"Shaft In Africa"—was shot in Ethiopia. Roundtree didn't particularly like Addis Ababa—"It could have been Minneapolis"—but he liked the Ethiopian countryside. But the trip was disappointing.

"I figured," he says, "that it would be a time for brotherhood with the African blacks. But it wasn't. There are still divisions. It was sad to see it but there were divisions between the African and American blacks."

This will be the first "Shaft" movie that he won't let his children—eight and six—see. He says "Shaft is black" and his other movies are "white ones."

Roundtree says, "so I decided to study acting. I enrolled with the Negro Ensemble Theater."

David Clyde Signs Lucrative Contract

David Clyde, the Texas Rangers' star pitcher, has signed a major league contract with the team, sources here said today. The contract, which is expected to be worth about $1.5 million, is the largest ever for a pitcher in any major league.

Clyde, 27, is the Rangers' ace pitcher and has won the National League Cy Young Award twice. He has a record of 20-10 with a 2.25 ERA in 1973. He is expected to lead the Rangers in strikeouts and ERA this season.

The Rangers' front office has been aggressive in signing free agents to very substantial salaries and a number of incentive clauses. Clyde's contract is expected to include a $500,000 signing bonus and a $1.5 million base salary.

Proemming Expects Arguments; Doesn't Worry About Fighting

Houston Sports writers and broadcasters Association Tuesday said they expect arguments but not fights with the new media.

Proemming, 27, in his third year as a sportswriter, said he expects to be "disrupted" in his work.

Proemming said he did not mind the baseless charges that he had fought. He said he was ejected from the game.

Proemming said he was ejected from the game because of the call and the fact that he had been ejected from the game.

U.S. Open Is Set To Start Without Dave Hill's Presence

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor
OAKMONT, Pa. (UPI) — Dave Hill is gone, but that's okay, they're going right ahead with the 73rd U.S. Open Thursday anyway—Jack Nicklaus is still here.

You've heard of guys who march to different drummers, haven't you? Sure you have. But how about some skinny dude who only listens to his own kazoo?

Such an individual is intense, completely unpredictable Dave Hill, who may be headstrong at times, but certainly never dull.

He was sitting there on a wooden bench in the ancient 70-year-old Oakmont Country Club locker room packing up his belongings Tuesday, quiet and composed and not blowing his top at all, when someone came in, sidled up alongside him, and said:

"Is it true you've pulled out?"
"Why yes," said Dave Hill, almost astounded that anybody would ask. "No law says I can't quit is there?"

"But why?"
"Not Mentally Prepared." "I'm not mentally prepared to shoot 80. It takes me three weeks to recover from a round like that. I've been working two months, hitting 600-700 balls some days, simply to get ready for this, and now I don't see any sense at all in staying here."

"Something did it, didn't it?"
"Yeah, something did it. Four holes did it. That was how many I played before I quit."

"You still haven't said why though?"
"Well I could see where I conceivably make two good shots at the first hole and easily make six."

"Any chance you'll change your mind? This thing doesn't get under way until Thursday." Dave Hill looked as if he had been wounded. Mortally.

"No," he said. "I'm not changing my mind. I've got a 7.45 flight in the morning."
"You've withdrawn from tournaments before, haven't you?"

"I have withdrawn many times before I even put the peg in the ground. Hell, I've departed before I even showed up. Look, it's nothing against this golf course. I think it's a fine golf course."

Second Visit
"This your first visit here?"
"My second. I played here in 1962, and three-putted six-seventeen times a day."

"Did you have some idea you might pull out before you came here today?"
"I had an idea, but I'm not mad at nobody. It's just that I've been making too many mental errors lately, so what's the use? I wouldn't play in this tournament if they gave me a free throw a hole. Like I said, no law says I can't quit. I got $94,000 in the bank. I don't have to play for $500. Who am I gonna beat?"

For all the talk, Dave Hill still

Longhorns Will Have To Wait

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—Texas Longhorn baseball coach Cliff Gustafson will have to wait until next year for another shot at the national championship. Top-ranked Arizona State scored a run with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday to best the Horns, 6-5, and eliminate UT from the College World Series. Errors leading to two unearned runs early in the game and a bit of strategy that misfired ended the season for Gustafson's young team, which loses only three seniors.

"If we keep coming up here," he said, "I guess we'll figure out all the ways to lose out. But someday, someday..."

It was the second consecutive year UT was eliminated in the bottom of the last inning. Last year, UT lost 4-3 to Southern California in the 10th.

With two outs and a runner on second base in the bottom of the ninth Tuesday, Gustafson told reliever Jim Gideon to walk Gary Atwell and pitch to Dick Harris.

But Harris worked a walk to load the bases. Then Clint Myers singled through the middle to drive in the winning run. "Despite Atwell not having a hit against us," Gustafson said, "he's been their clutch hitter all year. And then I thought we had Harris struck out, but Gideon just missed a couple of times and he walked. And then Myers hit one just right, and that was it."

Golf Tips from the Old Masters

By The Editors of Golf Digest
BOLT'S GRIP CHANGE CAN HELP YOUR GOLF GAME

The most comfortable grip for most golfers is when the left hand is on top of the shaft with three or four knuckles showing. This "strong" grip gives the feeling of power. Tommy Bolt used to grip the club this way, but changed because he found he was actually losing distance with it. "I never dared to fully release my hands with this grip because the clubface would close and I'd hook the shot. That made me 'block' the shot, robbing me of distance. By turning my hands more to the left, so that my left hand showed only two knuckles, I was able to release the club freely because the clubface returned squarely at impact.

"All you have to do is be sure that you hold the club with the back of your left hand looking more toward the target than toward the sky. It will feel strange at first, but it will help you swing better," Bolt advises. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Canadian Amateur Hockey A Victim?

MONTREAL (UPI)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, the chief source of young hockey talent, stands to become a victim of the battle between the two major professional leagues. National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell told newsmen at the annual NHL meetings Tuesday that the league's pro-amateur agreement with the CAHA may not be renewed at the end of the month.

The pro-amateur agreement with the CAHA expires on June 30th and the owners are not interested in carrying on unless we get the same right as our competitors," Campbell said. He did not mention the "competitors" by name, but it was obvious he was referring to the World Hockey Association.

The long-standing arrangement between the NHL and the CAHA prevents a junior player from being drafted by the NHL before his 20th birthday. The WHA has no such agreement with the CAHA and two weeks ago the Houston Aeros drafted the underage sons of former NHL great Gordie Howe, Mark and Marty, to the chagrin of the National League. Campbell said the league's Board of Governors had discussed the 1974-75 season when the new Kansas City and Washington clubs will make their debut. The NHL will number 18 clubs in 1974 and "we'll be in the same boat as the National Football League was when they went to 26 teams," he said. He added, however, "We'll have to have everything resolved before the All-Star game in January, 1974."

Frightening Spy Plan

If the Watergate scandal does nothing else for the American people, it has at least provided us with an opportunity to recognize the willingness of powerful politicians to violate the nation's laws and to violate individual rights to serve their own political purpose.

Like most big issues which are kicked around by partisan politicians, Watergate has required the principals to make statements designed to justify whatever involvement they may have had.

Such a statement was made by President Nixon citing national security as the reason for his involvement in the probe of Watergate.

This has created a new tangent in the muddled affair and it is one which shows a greater threat to American freedom than the basic issue, that of one set of politicians spying on another set.

Sen. Sam Ervin is quoted as saying about what he called Nixon's intelligence plan, "It would be a great shock to the people if it were released."

Sen. Ervin claims Nixon proposed to spy on any Americans who did not agree with the administration. If this is what the plan called for, it is the most damaging of all charges against the President. It should have the people enraged and there should be wholesale demand for fast release of information. Sen. Ervin seems to believe will substantiate his charge.

It is possible that Sen. Ervin has read more into the documents he so far chooses not to make public than he should. But this is all the more reason for a public demand for full disclosure.

For here we are dealing with

Redress For Grievance

Columnist Bill Anderson, titled Secretary of Interior Rogers Morton about Morton's gas-gulping Cadillac. (Actually, we have seen some finely tuned Cadillacs that do as well on gasoline consumption as the average family station wagon, but that is beside the point.) At any rate, Morton responded by obtaining a tax-funded Plymouth.

Later, the Secretary announced he would also retain the Cad for the mission hauling distinguished visitors. So the grand consequence of Anderson's plea for supposed thrift was that the government official involved moved down from one car to two.

"Mr. Secretary, I didn't mean for you to go out and buy a new car," the newsmen exclaimed.

That anecdote is a fairly accurate sample of what you can expect from pleas to political figures. Robert LeFevre, former president of Rampart College, often regales audiences about an event that happened prior to his enlightenment as to the bureaucratic character. It seems that he launched a massive write-in campaign to Congress in order to obtain a tax cut. The campaign was highly successful in that it produced a vast quantity of letters. The net result, however, was that Congress hired more secretaries to answer the mail.

The lesson is, every time you ask your friendly politician for anything, you increase his power.

Question Box

QUESTION: A syndicated columnist recently wrote as follows: "During the Great Depression, the country went from bad to worse for more than three years as a bewildered and panicky pilot (former President Herbert Hoover) let the ship of state sink almost to the bottom. When Hoover left office, anarchy and revolution were in the air. It is doubtful the United States could have survived another two years under the hapless Hoover." — Is there any truth in that statement?

ANSWER: The only truth in the statement is that "anarchy and revolution were in the air" when Hoover took office. The rest of the statement is sheer political demagoguery by an individual who obviously believes socialism under the Democrats is good, but that the same thing under the Republicans is bad.

As a matter of fact, nearly every socialistic scheme which was adopted by the Franklin D. Roosevelt regime, starting in 1933, was proposed first by Hoover. The difference was that the Democrats were in power in Congress, and the Democrats rejected the socialistic proposals advanced by Hoover. If Hoover was bewildered and panicky, it was because he was helpless in the face of almost unanimous opposition from the party controlling Congress.

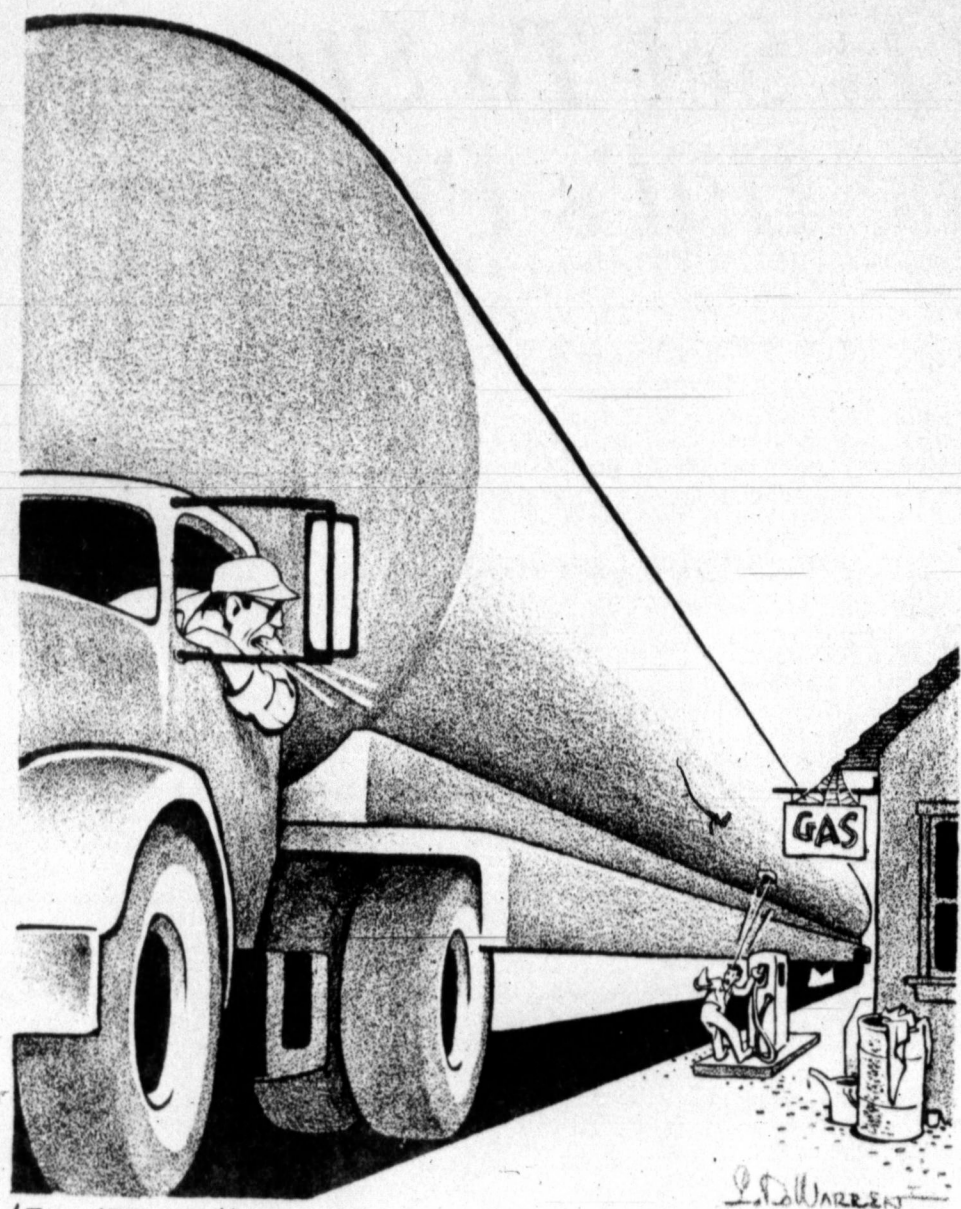

The so-called "liberals" seem to believe that only the Democrats had anything to do with the socialism (which they approve), and they forget that the Republicans were equally guilty in embarking the nation on the programs which have so torn down the old American ideas of self-reliance and self-responsibility.

It was under the Republicans that the Federal Reserve was established, and the FED was one of the principal causes of the Great Depression. And when the "big bust" came, Hoover sought to take steps to get the national government more involved in various "relief" measures. But the Democrats then were the "conservatives," and they rejected the proposals by the President who belonged to the opposition party.

After the 1932 election, in which Hoover was accused of crimes he did not commit as well as those he attempted to commit, the Democrats and Roosevelt adopted all of Hoover's schemes as well as a few refinements advanced by the "brains trust" professors. FDR brought into the government in great numbers.

The libs who claim that FDR ended the depression conveniently forget that most of Roosevelt's schemes were little if any different from the ones that were proposed by his predecessor and were rejected by the rival party in control of the legislative branch.

They also conveniently overlook that the nation did not get out of the depression with all of those socialistic programs until the United States embarked on its war program. Not a few people of those days are convinced that the Roosevelt administration had to have a war in order to save itself.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Kennedy a question Democrat outlook is bleak for '76

LAKE TAHOE (NEA)—It is astonishing news that even as Watergate keeps busting out all over, the Democrats do not seem enormously advantaged and may have real difficulties on both candidates and issues in 1976.

The bluntest way to put the candidate problem is to ask one of the many Democratic governors here for the national conference. "If not Ted Kennedy in 1976, then who?" The answer is harshly simple.

H. L. Hunt Writes

PRIMARY OBJECTIVE
The daily headlines relate the growing scandal in Washington. They are headlines that bode no good for the nation and the body politic, but they shall pass. In the meantime we, the people of the Republic USA, must get on with the job of making our nation the best in the world. Perhaps it would be better to say "keeping it the best." We have the incentive and the natural resources to improve our lot and the lot of all mankind. Let us work together to produce and defend.

Our main enemy is still the communist conspiracy. It exists to a degree within our own ranks at home and it is still a potent force in other nations. Be it at home or abroad, communism has but one aim, and that is to destroy us as a nation and as individuals. We are still on top as a free, constitutional Republic. The profit-motive system of doing business is the envy of the world, even the communist world. Despite the evil of inflation and government control, we have prospered and we have set the pace in most fields of endeavor. We are strong in the fields of science and the arts and above all in the practice of hard work. Our goals, if set in the right direction, can all be attained if we dedicate ourselves to the proposition of improvement.

No, the nation is not going to collapse, despite the gloomy headlines. It is a time when our enemies should not underestimate us nor should we underestimate ourselves. Let us defend ourselves at home and abroad against communism and the internal forces of corruption. The constitution has not let us down. We must not let it down.

Diabetic Wants Lower Blood Sugar

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I have a hard time in bringing my blood sugar down. I have sugar diabetes, and even when I stick to my diet I have a hard time keeping it down. I take two shots of insulin for a total of 60 units a day. I test my urine every day. I am overweight and 52 years old. What do you recommend I do to get my blood sugar down? Even when it is high, I don't feel too bad, but sometimes I do feel sluggish.

Dear Reader—If a person has sufficiently severe diabetes to require insulin therapy, the amount of insulin has to be regulated in relationship to the diet that's eaten. If you don't stay on your diet, the insulin dosage may either be too little or too much.

People with untreated diabetes often feel sluggish because they don't have enough energy in the cells to carry out normal cell function. This happens because the glucose sugar used for cell energy requires insulin to be metabolized, that is, converted to carbon dioxide and oxygen to release energy. When the insulin is not effective or when there is not enough insulin in the body, the glucose sugar in the blood can't be utilized and its level increases to large amounts.

The high blood sugar isn't what makes you tired. It's the inability to provide energy to the cells. Because sugar can't be utilized in severe untreated diabetes, these individuals use fat and proteins for metabolism. The end products, particularly of the fat, are ketone bodies or acetone bodies which are strong acids. The excess accumulation of these leads to diabetes acidosis and even coma.

Blood sugar is also formed from the proteins in the body, if you don't have any carbohydrates in your diet. An animal with no pancreas that's fed only fat and protein will maintain a high blood sugar level. This is done by converting the proteins to glucose sugar. Even the body proteins from muscles can be converted to glucose sugar in this way. Of course, the glucose sugar can't be used by the cells if there is no insulin, and as the blood sugar goes up this causes sugar in the urine. One of the functions of your insulin then is to enable the cells to use normally produced glucose sugar and give you energy. This in turn combats the "sluggish feeling" or fatigue that diabetics experience.

Diabetic specialists have different opinions on how well controlled the blood sugar level should be. Certainly the diabetes should be controlled well enough that the body doesn't have to depend on fat and protein for energy alone and cause acidosis or other problems.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on low blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Low Blood Sugar" booklet.

Senate's Watergate Sauce Is House Legal Services Goose
By Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON—As happens on occasion, the two branches of Congress are currently displaying strikingly differing standards of morality.

In the Senate, a special investigating committee is self-righteously garnering headlines raking over the tawdry details of the reeking Watergate miasma. At the same time, virtually ignored by the media and hence unknown to the public at large, House leaders are set to ram through legislation continuing the scandal-racked Legal Services program—of the even more malodorous Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), due to be junked at the end of this month.

There is no question Watergate stinks. Similarly, there is equally no question the same is overwhelmingly true of Legal Services.

But the Senate's sensational morality show is a sellout production. While unheralded in the House, the parliamentary skids are greased to give the widely discredited Legal Services another lease on life—at a cost of $70 million to taxpayers.

To paraphrase an old saying—what is sauce for the Senate is goose for the House.

In other words, among politicians, morality is as morality does.

The legislative record on the Legal Services bill is shocking—even for the Democratic-bossed House.

A liberal-packed Education and Labor subcommittee, wholly without public hearings, rushed through in three days a measure setting up a so-called "independent" National Legal Services Corporation to provide "legal services to the poor."

Stripped from the measure were most of the safeguards demanded by President Nixon to end the abuses and political outrages which brought Legal Services to such extensive and scathing disrepute. Rep. Earl Landgrebe, R-Ind., member of the panel, blisteringly denounced this watered-down bill as "leftist activism."

The primary goal of this legislation, he charged bluntly, "is to promote leftist causes and not to serve the poor."

Backing the Tide

If the measure's handlers can pull it off, their back-stage aim is to blitz it through the House this week—with the understanding it will get equally speedy action in the Senate.

Inside word is that Senate Democratic leaders have agreed to seek immediate approval of the House bill without sending it to the committee; that is, to short-circuit the normal legislative process and without deliberation, other than floor discussion, enact the House measure into law.

Rep. Landgrebe and other opponents are warning such high-handed legislating is certain to incur a presidential veto.

But that doesn't seem to deter the Democratic leaders—particularly Reps. Carl Perkins, Ky., chairman of the Education and Labor Committee, and Augustus Hawkins, Calif., head of the Equal Opportunities subcommittee that concocted the liberal-diluted bill. They seem bent on highballing it through—regardless of consequences.

Wit And Whimsy

At our local watering spot, it's not only the fish that are fried on Friday evenings.

How come the bills arrive on time, whatever else the Postal Service delivers late?

Just witnessed a technological miracle. The ice, syrup, fizzes and cup arrived in the delivery chute all at the same time.

Most companies don't recognize it, but they should call the fellow the office "buoy." He's the one the whole outfit steers its course on.

The first thing to do in buying a steak these days is to try and recall what a steak is.

Pretty soon, the summer booty contest will be starting.

At current prices for goodies for the lawn, we're going to mulch ours with a handful of dollar bills thrown into the ol' rotary.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

A treaty between the U.S. and Colombia to have the U.S. dig the Panama Canal was signed Jan. 22, 1903. When Colombia rejected the treaty, Panama declared its independence on November 3, and was recognized by President Theodore Roosevelt on November 6, The World Almanac says. Roosevelt's recognition indirectly aided the revolutionists, causing critics to accuse him of practicing the "big stick" policy against Colombia.

When Princeton and Rutgers played the first American football game in 1869, some Princetonians roared "Siss, boom, ah." The shout derived from the racket yell of New York's Seventh Regiment which had passed through the Princeton campus during the Civil War and left a lasting impression.

FOREIGN COMMENTARY

US Reinforces Arms Positions

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The United States is moving to reinforce its position as leading arms salesman to the world. In some cases the reasons are purely commercial based on the twin arguments that the American arms industry needs new outlets now that the United States is out of the war in Vietnam, and that if the United States refuses to sell weapons to the smaller or underdeveloped nations, someone else will. Within the last several days it has been disclosed that negotiations for sale of some $2.5 billion in military hardware are underway with Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, much to the perturbation of Israel since jet aircraft are included.

The United States also is playing a major role in Iran's $2.5 billion modernization program which includes purchase of F4 Phantom jets.

Eyebrows Raised
On June 5, the State Department disclosed a major policy switch in an announcement that said President Nixon has approved the sale of supersonic F5E jets to five South American countries, including Chile. The others were Argentina, Colombia, Brazil and Venezuela.

The disclosure that Chile was included in the list raised congressional eyebrows, since U.S. relations with Chile have been cool at best ever since the Marxist government of President Salvador Allende took over in 1970.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers explained it by saying the United States simply was abandoning a previous policy of "paternalism" which recipient countries resented as a limitation on their means of annihilating one another.

In Latin America the United States was moving back into a field which in recent years largely had been abandoned to France and Britain.

Influence Needed
France, for example, had sold 80 of her Mirage jet fighters to South America, and Britain half as many Hunters.

In the Mideast, arms sales to Saudi Arabia and Kuwait represented an extension of the possible area of conflict to the Persian gulf with the emphasis on oil rather than the Arab-Israeli war.

To Israeli fears that the sales would alter the military balance of the Middle East, Washington's reply has been that it is better that Kuwait and Saudi Arabia be armed with American jets than with French Mirages.

In this way, it is argued, the United States retains at least a degree of influence over their use in the event of a new outbreak in the Israeli-Arab conflict rather than no influence at all if the two Arab nations bought the French Mirage, as in the case of Libya.

Egypt is said to have been urging the two to buy the Mirage.

Soviets Involved
The new U.S. interest in the sale of arms to the Persian Gulf states takes into account both the huge U.S. stake in the oil wealth of the area and the increasing interest being shown by the Soviet Union in the same area.

The Lighter Side

WASHINGTON (UPI) — According to a recent dispatch from England, a British inventor has developed a device that enables a car to run on methane gas distilled from barnyard manure.

Such news is hardly surprising. All over the world, automakers are vying with each other to produce the car best adapted to changing environment and fuel conditions.

Plans and blueprints are highly secret, of course, but here are some of the experiments rumored to be on the drawing boards of various auto companies:

Japan — Taking inspiration from the first big Japanese industrial breakthrough — the imitation Zippo lighter — Datsun is said to be working on a new auto engine that is even more revolutionary than the Wankel.

Fueled by Soy Sauce
Instead of having a conventional combustion chamber, with spark plugs, cylinders, pistons, etc., this engine achieves ignition by means of a rimmed metal disc striking a piece of flint. It is fueled by a wick dipped in soy sauce.

Italy — Fiat engineers, trying to increase gas mileage by reducing the weight of cars, have been experimenting with new types of body materials. The latest tests involve an auto body made out of pizza dough.

Although the present recipe tends to produce a flaky crust, it is understood that Fiat already has added a huge oven to its main assembly plant.

Meanwhile, Ferrari has placed a big order for anchovies, but that may be a different project.

Sweden — Volvo is believed testing a car that gets its power from the radiator rather than the engine.

It's Highly Technical
The process is highly technical but basically involves the principle that water expands as it freezes and that expansion releases energy.

Putting freezer coils in the radiator thus provides power for propulsion.

West Germany — As cabbage ferments, as in the process of making sauerkraut, it releases certain gases that have energy potential.

This may explain reports that Volkswagen has been quietly buying up land in major cabbage producing regions.

It also may explain reports that the familiar "beetle" design is undergoing changes that give in a barrel shape in the rear where the engine presently is located.

France — Observers who have access to the Renault proving ground report seeing test cars with large glass tanks under the hoods.

French coastal waters abound with electric eels. An electric eel can generate a charge of 650 volts.

Draw your own conclusions.

Caviar is a salty relish made of roe of sturgeon.

EXPRESSING ONESELF is the idea in dance, but ballet student Twila Dawn Fowler of Portales, N.M., would appear to be letting more of herself out than was really called for. Twila, 4, was checking the effect in a mirror—the star on her forehead is for achievement—when some sort of spirit suddenly moved her.

Missionaries To Give Talk

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Griggs and family will be reporting the progress of their work in Hawaii to the Pampa Baptist Temple June 17.

The Griggs family has been in missionary work to Hawaii for 10 years. They are now serving a third term under the sponsorship of the Baptist Bible Fellowship International, Springfield, Mo.

Rev. Griggs is the son of Rev. and Mrs. M.M. Griggs of San Angelo.

Hawaii is said to be the crossroads of world religions and races. The Griggs report they minister to Japanese, Hawaiian, Korean, Chinese, Puerto Rican, Filipino, Samoan and Portuguese.

They will be showing slides of the field, with the family presenting specials in music and dress of the islands.

The public is invited to both services. Worship is at 10 a.m. and again at 6:30 p.m. Rev. Griggs will be speaking at both services.

Plant cover is a combination of all plant life—mosses, trees, grasses, shrubs — on any soil surface.

NOW!

closing out our entire stock of bedding

SAVE 20% TO 35%

A once in a lifetime opportunity for everyone who is not careless about smoking in bed . . .

HERE'S THE STORY:

Shortly, all bedding manufacturers must start turning out only fire retardant bedding, by order of the government. We have the new fire retardant bedding on order and it is scheduled to arrive soon. In the meantime, we must clear our warehouse of the entire current, name brand, bedding stock to make room!

To accomplish this we are offering our present inventory at special savings.

Non-fire retardant bedding will soon be a thing of the past . . . for safety's sake. But if you don't smoke in bed, your time to buy that new mattress and box spring is now! Once these are gone there won't be any more . . . and the cost of adding fire retardancy to the new bedding won't help future bedding prices.

Our current inventory includes medium firm, firm, extra firm and super firm mattresses and box springs in all sizes. We have twin size, full size, queen size and king sizes. But, our stocks are limited! Don't delay . . . come in and order your new bedding now!
