FLOYD F. WATSON
... success in a hurry

Newsboy To Bank VP In 11 Years

By T. D. ELLIS
Pampa News Staff Writer

This is not a "rags to riches" story, but it is a story of the phenomenal success of a young man who rose from newsboy to bank vice-president in 11 years.

That's the progress of Floyd F. Watson, handsome vice-president of the Citizens Bank and Trust Co., president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and director of active member in a half dozen other Pampa organizations.

Watson, who was 13 Saturday, began his business career as a newspaper carrier boy in Brownwood in 1938 and, 11 years later, in 1949, he was made vice-president of the Citizens Bank and Trust Co. here.

Although it was that fast, it wasn't exactly that easy. For in between there were years of holding down several jobs at the same time, activity in sports, and the general business of growing up, getting married and becoming a father.

Watson, who lives at 1606 Williston with his wife and two daughters, was born in Sherman on March 28, 1922.

His father was an oilfield worker, and Floyd spent most of his early childhood in and around oil fields.

His first schooling was at a country school near Coleman, and later his first job was as carrier boy for the Brownwood Bulletin.

"That was back in 1938," Watson recalled, "and I worked there with 'Buck' Francis, who is now sports editor of The Pampa Daily News."

Watson said he learned how to meet and deal with the public during that time, and he considers that training invaluable. He also worked at grocery stores on Saturdays and set pins in the bowling alley at nights.

Watson played softball and basketball during his freshman and sophomore years at Brownwood High School and was also elected yell leader as a freshman.

The Watsons moved to Denton where Floyd completed his schooling and where he also met his wife, the former Maxine Loader. Floyd worked one year as a soda jerk after his graduation from Denton High and then took a job with an insurance company as a bookkeeper.

He got his first banking job with the First State Bank, there in 1942 at the age of 19. For a short time he operated a posting machine then was promoted to teller, and then to bookkeeper.

He went to work for the Texas Banking Department in 1944 as an assistant examiner, with his headquarters in Lubbock. He spent two years with the department, all the time moving from one headquarters to another.

Watson and Miss Loader married in June, 1946, after an eight-year courtship. They moved to Pampa in October of that year where he took the job of cashier with the Citizens Bank and Trust Co. He was promoted to vice president in 1949, the position he now holds.

Watson has been active in civic organizations since moving to Pampa. He is currently the president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, a member and director of the Rotary Club, treasurer of both the Pampa Youth and Community Center Inc. and the Gray County Heart Association.

He said "It always seems to fall the bankers lot to be the treasurer of any organization he is connected with."

He is a teacher in the Young Peoples Department of the First Baptist Church. He is past president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and has been a member of the executive committee of the Pampa C. of C. for the last two years and finance director in 1953 and vice president in 1954.

He was a director of the Pampa Boys Club Inc. before the Pampa Optimist Club took it over last year.

As a member of the C. of C. he worked on the Canadian River Bridge project and is now working on the Hobart Street underpass and the youth center.

Watson has always been interested in sports and manages to find time to play golf and enter the Pampa Men's City Golf Tournament each year. "I had rather play golf than any game I ever played," he said.

The Watsons' daughters were both born in Pampa. Linda Mae, their first child, was born Oct. 30, 1948 and Mary Beth on Sept. 7, 1951.

Big Four Parley Nearing

French Move Puts Reds 'On The Spot'

LONDON — UP — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said Monday that the United States, Britain and France have opened consultations on "methods by which we can go ahead" with a four-power conference with Russia.

Eden told the House of Commons that in view of France's ratification of German rearmament "we shall now be able to follow" the promised procedure of settling up talks with the Soviet Union.

"We are already in consultation with our allies as to the methods by which we can now go ahead," Eden said.

Start With Low Level Sessions
He said the procedure perhaps would be to start out with low level meetings of officials to chart plans, and then move on to a meeting "at foreign ministers' level" and "other levels if all goes well."

Earlier, informed diplomatic sources had predicted that the western Big Three foreign ministers would meet early next month to begin preparations for a target date for top-level talks with Russia.

Officials said consultations among United States, British and French foreign ministers on a date and place for a Big Three meeting were about to start.

Logjam Lifted
French ratification of the pact to rearm West Germany lifted the logjam that has blocked the West's diplomatic initiative, Russian intimates said, in a willingness to come to a foreign ministers meeting.

Some western diplomats were convinced that Russia must show now whether it is really ready to ease world tension or to intensify the world's enormous arms build-up.

French ratification of the Paris accords to rearm West Germany strengthened the western position immeasurably despite Soviet plans to build a satellite "NATO" and Communist East Germany's plans to build an army of its own.

Western officials were startled by the Soviet's abrupt change in policy favoring a Big Four meeting, but were leary of Russian attempts to stall German rearmament with another "soft" policy toward Europe.

Full Switch on Attitude
Before French ratification, Moscow said approval of the arms pact would make another Big Four conference impossible. Then, with ratification assured, Moscow pulled a switch and Premier Niko-lai Bulganin announced he took a "positive attitude" toward President Eisenhower's idea of an exploratory Big Four conference.

Moscow radio blasted ratification again Monday but remained silent on its pre-ratification threats to denounce its treaties of friendship with France and Britain.

Roosevelt Heads Probe Of Oil Firms

launched an investigation Monday into complaints that gasoline station operators are being coerced by certain lines of oil, grease, tires, batteries and accessories.

The inquiry, opening with public hearings late Monday, was unusual in that it was under the direction of a freshman member of congress — Rep. James Roosevelt (D-Calif.), son of the late President.

Freshmen rarely are given the opportunity of managing a full-scale congressional inquiry with the publicity potentialities of this one.

Roosevelt, chairman of a three-man small business subcommittee with jurisdiction over distribution problems, will hold a week of hearings here and then travel to his home state of California for public hearings next week at Los Angeles.

A spokesman said the subcommittee has heard complaints from many sections of the country that gasoline station operators are being coerced by major oil companies into adopting a discriminatory distribution policy. The spokesman said the hearings are likely to run for a total of many weeks in Washington — and possibly other cities besides Los Angeles.

Scheduled to testify at Monday's hearing (2 p.m. est) were gasoline station operators from 11 states and the District of Columbia.

Texas Solons Hunting $6 Million In Taxes

Annual Pay Fight Started By UAW

CLEVELAND — UP — The CIO United Auto Workers Union opened the business sessions of its 15th constitutional convention Monday prepared to approve a $25 million strike fund to support demands of the auto industry for a guaranteed annual wage.

Secretary - Treasurer Emil Mazey, in a report prepared for delivery to the 3,000 delegates, said the fund was necessary "in order to minimize possible sacrifice on the part of members who may be engaged in economic struggles."

He recommended a dues increase from the present $2.50 per month to $7.50 per month, with the extra $5 going directly to the strike fund until it reaches the $25 million figure. At that point, he said, the assessment would be dropped.

"In the event the strike fund is reduced below $15 million the $5 monthly strike contribution would automatically be put into effect until the fund again reaches $25 million," he said.

The convention got underway Sunday with a report from President Walter Reuther, also head of the CIO. He reiterated UAW demands for the annual wage program, but said the union would be willing to discuss alternate plans with management when current auto contracts expire.

He made clear, however, that any counter-proposals would have to include provisions for some form of guaranteed income for auto workers.

The delegates, representing 1.3 million members in 1,203 locals, heard Mazey report that the international union paid out $4,381,743 in strike benefits in 1954.

"Our greatest strike expenditures during the past calendar year were to aid the Kohler (Wis.) workers who have been on strike for more than 11 months; Ford workers of Canada who had a strike of 115 days, and the Massey-Harris workers of Canada who had a strike which lasted 78 days," Mazey said.

Weather Warmer In Texas
Worst March Cold In History Routed

By UNITED PRESS

A resurgence of spring routed the most destructive March freeze in Texas history Monday but a warm sun could do nothing for the wreckage of most of the state's fruit and vegetable crop.

Along the Texas - Louisiana coast, the Coast Guard resumed searches for two men lost when week end winds up to 35 miles an hour whipped the Gulf of Mexico into vicious waves.

One of the men fell from the Humble Oil Co. rig about 20 miles off Timbalier Bay, in Louisiana, Saturday. Galveston Bay was being dragged for the body of a man reported to have fallen from the tug Lou Ann.

The temperature was expected to get into the 60s over West Texas and in the 50s or higher over the rest of the state Monday. It was expected to climb even higher Tuesday and forecasters said there was no more cold on the horizon.

The more seasonal weather followed the state's worst late cold spell in history. New low temperature records for this time of year were set early Monday as the Arctic air passed out of the state.

The new lows included 27 at Del Rio, 35 at Laredo, 29 at San Antonio, 28 at Austin, and 27 at Waco. Dalkhart was the coldest spot in the state early Monday with a 15 degree temperature and Brownsville the warmest with 45.

The weather bureau said that only extreme West Texas and the northern Panhandle face possible freezing weather Monday night.

The forecasters said a general warming trend would continue through Tuesday.

Burglars Hit Groom Stores

Three portable radios and some small change were taken from two Groom stores, sometime Sunday night or early today.

Several highway patrol units late this morning were patrolling the roads leading out of Groom for a late-model car that was seen early this morning loitering in Groom, Carson County Deputy Sheriff Ray McCaskey reported. But McCaskey said officers were not sure whether the occupants of the car were burglars — they just wanted to "check it out."

The radios were taken from a Groom electrical appliance store and the change, from Homen's Locker Plant, a Groom grocery store, McCaskey continued.

Entrance, in each case, was gained by prying open the rear door of the concern. Evidently, McCaskey said, the burglars took their time, because they went through a lot of the frozen food lockers in the locker plant. Nothing, however, was taken from them, it was thought.

Troops Quell Rebels In Indo China

SAIGON, Indo-China — UP — Paratroopers loyal to pro-American Premier Ngo Dinh Diem seized Saigon's police prefecture from policemen of a rebellious religious sect in a bloodless blitz Monday.

Ousted police belonging to the Binh Xuyen sect of former river pirates withdrew without resistance when Diem's troops rolled up to the building with tanks in another phase of the premier's crackdown on rebels.

The Binh Xuyen members barricaded themselves in adjoining buildings and leveled heavy bazookas on the massive prefecture building awaiting orders from their own bickering leaders, but they held their fire.

The so-far bloodless operation was carried out by a company of tank-led South Viet Namee paratroopers brought to Saigon by Diem to reinforce the capital garrison against a threatened uprising by the Binh Xuyen, Cao Dai and Hoa Hao religious sects.

Damage To Crops Mounts
Coastal Bend Loss Over $5 Million

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said Monday the record-cracking week end cold wave will go down in history as a "multi-million dollar killer freeze."

Losses mounted, apparently by ten of thousands of dollars, as farmers tallied damage to peaches, plums, corn, cotton, and truck garden vegetables.

White, on a trip to the Agriculture Department's regional office at Houston, released a summary of crop damage through his Austin headquarters.

He quoted agriculturalists in the Houston area as saying damage along the coastal bend would reach $5 million.

Young cotton south and west of Houston was ruined. The same was true of corn and other tender crops. However, preliminary surveys indicated the severe weather may have come early enough that damage to the rice crop was relatively limited.

Regional reports from other offices were equally bleak.

From south of San Antonio to Lubbock and into East Texas, the word was: "What the first freeze missed the last freeze got."

Solon Brands VA Proposals Unsound

WASHINGTON — UP — Chairman Olin E. Teague (D-Tex.) of the House Veterans committee said Sunday that all but two of the Hoover Commission's proposed changes in veterans medical care and benefits are "unsound, unworkable, or unfair" to ex-servicemen.

The Hoover Commission submitted 11 recommendations in a report Feb. 28 on government medical services.

Among other things, the commission proposed that the Veterans Administration stop building hospitals and close 19 of those it now operates. It also called for tighter controls on free veterans' hospitalization.

Teague took exception to both recommendations. But he approved the commission's suggestion that the government do more to rehabilitate bed-ridden veterans and veterans' aids.

Criticism Tended Significant
Teague's criticism of the other proposals was especially significant because he has not been identified with the ardent "pro-veteran" group in congress. On occasion he has been attacked as "anti-veteran." Only recently he proposed a new and more conservative approach to future veteran benefits.

Teague's views on recommendations of the commission, headed by former President Herbert Hoover, were given in a report prepared by staff members. The report is assured of general support by other members of the House committee.

The commission's recommendations previously had been assailed by big veterans groups. Teague's report greatly lessened whatever prospects may have existed for favorable action by congress on the Hoover group's findings.

Teague said that most of the 19 hospitals which the commission wanted to close were almost new. If they are not needed for general medical care as the commission claimed, they could be used to care for chronic mental cases, he said.

Would Mean Long Travel
Some of the recommended closings, Teague said, would mean veterans in the area would have to travel hundreds of miles to the next nearest hospital.

Teague also criticized the commission's proposal to rescind outstanding appropriations to build new hospitals. He said this would preclude scheduled replacement of 16 hospitals operating in temporary wartime buildings, converted hotels and schools, and other obsolete structures.

Teague said "it is not clear" whether the recommendations also would preclude necessary major repairs to 55 hospitals, including some which the House committee earlier had listed as fire traps.

HONEYMOON OVER, TROUBLE STARTS

If that isn't a fine way to treat a guy who's just been married a week and has just gotten back from his honeymoon!

Jim Terrell, program director and acting KPAT station manager, got back from a honeymoon in New Orleans, La., this morning and found that his station was off the air.

First it was a busted power switch, Terrell said. Then it was a bum tube.

But Terrell, glowing with the exuberance and optimism of a young man just married, said trustingly, "We'll be on the air in 15 minutes."

Final Approval Nearing On Record Spending Bill

AUSTIN — UP — A record one and one-half billion dollar state spending program, a small phase of which generated the longest filibuster in U. S. history in the Texas Legislature, headed for conference committee and final enactment Monday.

The $1,553,000,000 appropriation bill for the coming two fiscal years spurred lawmakers to find a new source for some $6 million in tax money.

The House, in a formality, should vote this week not to concur in Senate changes in the spending bill. This will send the measure to conference committee where the differences will be resolved.

The appropriation bill passed by the House specified spending of $1,512,000,000.

The Legislature, entering its 12th week Monday, so far has failed to enact any new taxes.

One measure introduced as a means of raising new tax money by taxing telephone poles 50 cents each was scheduled for public hearing at 2:30 p. m. Monday, Rep. T. W. (Buckshot) Lane of Wharton is its author.

There was speculation, meanwhile, that Gov. Allan Shivers had changed his strategy and will push for passage of an increase in the Texas omnibus tax as a means of raising money, rather than the new taxes on cigarettes and gasoline provided by separate bills.

The omnibus tax is a catch-all measure providing for levies on all kinds of items ranging from oil and gas to beer and corporation franchises.

The Shivers supported bills proposing increased cigarette and gasoline taxes are still in the House Revenue and Taxation committee.

A bill revising the Texas Securities Act was high on the House calendar as business got underway this week. This would bring certain trust companies under state regulation. It has been approved in the Senate and passed on second reading in the House.

Warning from Ramsey
Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey, presiding officer of the Senate, has warned in a sharply worded statement, meanwhile, that "scoundrels" are "winning jackals of the insurance trade" are inviting federal control of the insurance industry. He said 362 "so-called trust companies" springboards to life insurance formation, "have been formed in Texas in the past 18 months."

He charged that "jackals of the trade, knowing sound regulation will have immediate adverse effect on fly-by-night operations, have used every trick known to keep their playhouse intact."

Prisoners Rioting In Nebraska Pen

LINCOLN, Neb. — UP — Rioting prisoners at the Nebraska penitentiary expelled three fellow convicts from their isolated fortress as "dead weight" Monday, but still held two guards captive.

The nine remaining rebels stayed locked inside the three-story maximum security building. They were armed with home-made knives and warned that the hostages would be hurt if the prison guards try to attack.

Gov. Victor E. Anderson hurried from his bed to talk to the three released convicts.

He emerged to tell newsmen that the rioters had given up the three men because they were "dead weight." Two of the men were described by the rioters as "psychos" and the third didn't want to join the uprising, Anderson said.

The three convicts who emerged from the floodlit security building were Ronald Larkin, 28, Greeley, Neb., serving a one-year term for escape; Paul Barnes, 35, Sioux Falls, S.D., serving a two-year larceny term; and Elwood Glenn Robinson, 29, Scottsbluff, Neb., serving a one-year term for breaking and entering.

Anderson talked first with Larkin, who was believed to be the convict who didn't want to riot. He said Larkin told him the guards had not yet been harmed and "the men are not planning on escaping."

The holdout convicts were busy "working on demands they will make of prison officials," Anderson said.

Anderson said he would call a "strategy meeting" when the demands are received.

Anti-Ike GOPers Arising
Conservative Wing Seeks Party Helm

WASHINGTON — UP — Anti - Eisenhower Republicans served notice Monday that they will attempt "to return control of the GOP to the conservatives."

At the same time, Leonard W. Hall, GOP national chairman, who said he assumes Mr. Eisenhower will be the 1956 Republican presidential candidate, released the names of key "We Like Ike" convention in committee appointments Sunday night.

The drive to capture control of the 1956 convention by the Republican right wing was announced from the headquarters of the Abraham Lincoln Club in Chicago.

Edgar C. Bundy, president of the club, said he is counting on the support of Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.), Sens. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.), Styles Bridges (R-N.H.), John W. Bricker (R-Ohio), William E. Jenner (R-Ind.), and Herman Welker (R-Ia.).

Knowland said on a television program (CBS' "Face the Nation") that the Republicans could win in 1956 without President Eisenhower. Bridges on another program (NBC's "Meet the Press") said he thinks Mr. Eisenhower will seek re-election but also agreed the Republicans could win without him.

Knowland, considered a possible "dark horse" contender for the presidential nomination, dodged an answer on that subject. He said that was what the late President Roosevelt used to call "a very iffy" question.

As the President himself has pointed out," Knowland said, "what Republicans maintained during 20 years of the Roosevelt administration, there is no indispensable man, and I don't believe in the doctrine of the indispensable man."

VA Granted Funds For Hospitals

WASHINGTON, March 28 (UP)—The House Appropriations committee voted the Veterans Administration an extra $16,885,000 Saturday to modernize its old hospitals, some described as firetraps.

The funds were in addition to $13.5 million requested by the VA and more than a dozen other independent government agencies in fiscal 1956. Of the total, about 80 percent, or $4,453,128,000 went to the Veterans Administration.

The committee approved the money in recommending $5,845,280,375 to operate the VA and more than a dozen other independent government agencies in fiscal 1956. Of the total, about 80 percent, or $4,453,128,000 went to the Veterans Administration.

The total represents an increase of $205,808,375 from the estimate in President Eisenhower's budget for the independent agencies and an increase of $732,655,112 from the appropriation for the current fiscal year.

Jennifer Jones Says Hubby Doesn't Interfere With Career

By ALINE MORBY
HOLLYWOOD — UP — A determined Jennifer Jones said she wants to sweep away the rumors that her husband is a Svengali who "interferes" with her career.

The mysterious Miss Jones, one of movietown's finest actresses, long has been a subject of speculation in the film colony.

She appears aloof to some co-workers, shy and insecure to others. She is rarely interviewed by the press, and the stories long have sizzled the gossip columns that her husband, eminent producer David O. Selznick, who discovered her and then married her, still wields control over her career.

While she was starring in Italy in "Beat the Devil," her co-workers say, Selznick allegedly dispatched 10-page memos daily to director John Huston as to how his wife should be directed.

But the actress, in her first interview here in three years, declared heatedly "he has never interfered in any way."

"This is a subject I usually avoid," she said, her big, brown eyes flashing. "But perhaps it's time I spoke up."

"He has at times been asked for advice. As a matter of friendship, he has given his advice. It very often happened they turned back on him and people said he interfered."

"After all," she said, "my husband is David O. Selznick and he's not a man to ignore."

"He is much too busy, much too occupied with his own interests to become involved in anyone else's production."

"He was interested in the careers of Ingrid Bergman, Vivien Leigh and other stars he had under contract. A certain amount of protection is implied. But as far as interference is concerned, that is really quite ridiculous!"

"I get quite hot under the collar when people say and print these things. He wants me to be happy. When I say I want to do a role, he says all right."

Jennifer's personal story has been a dramatic one. As a Phyllis Iley she rode that away in 1938 westerns. The Tulsa girl finally returned discouraged to New York.

There she walked into Selznick's office to try for the film role of "Claudia," and the famed producer signed her. Her then husband, Robert Walker, became a film star, too.

Selznick changed her name and made her a star in her first film, "The Song of Bernadette." Shortly after she won an Oscar for that film, she divorced Walker. The beautiful brunette married her producer-boss four years later, in 1949. In 1951 Walker, a tragic figure, died after a doctor gave him a sedative to calm his emotional state.

The former Miss Iley continued to reign as a top actress and also as the sedate, lovely wife of a Hollywood producer. But in recent years her once meteoric career suffered some setbacks.

Farmer Charged With Killing 4

McMINNVILLE, Tenn. — UP — A 22-year-old farmer charged with the quadruple slaying of a middle-aged farm couple and two young children was held in an undisclosed jail Monday.

Sheriff Eldridge Youngblood said Billy Gibbs of McMinnville was arrested Saturday and charged with the slayings of Henry Bratcher, 30, his wife, Verna, 29, Bratcher, 43, a 10-year-old daughter, Lily May, and their 26-month-old granddaughter, Charlotte Ann Bratcher.

All four victims had been dead two to three days, Bratcher and his wife were shot with a .22 caliber rifle, while the skull of Lily May was crushed and the baby was reported to have drowned or frozen to death.

Suspect Snatched From Cops

WACO — UP — A suspect in a drive-in altercation was snatched, apparently by a confederate, right out of the custody of a Waco policeman Sunday night.

The embarrassed officer recovered from his surprise to fire a volley of shots at a fleeing car into which the suspect was dragged, knocking off a hub cap. But the automobile sped away safely in a cloud of dust.

Patrolmen H. E. Nelson and Joe Rodriguez had followed an ambulance to Cohen's Drive-in on the new Dallas highway about 10 p. m. There they found Robert Lee Woodson Jr., Dallas, who reportedly had been hit in the head with a pair of brass knuckles.

While Rodriguez was questioning Woodson inside the drive-in, Nelson remained outside for questioning a man who allegedly attacked Woodson.

As they talked, a maroon sedan skidded to a stop alongside the officer and the suspect. A man wearing blue jeans jumped out of the car, grabbed around the waist the man Nelson was questioning and said "Come on, let's go."

They jumped into the car, ignoring Nelson's command to halt, and roared away in the direction of Martin.

The surprised and embarrassed Nelson failed to get the automobile's license number.

Wild Colors For Autos Not Popular

DETROIT — UP — If you don't like those purple and orange and mustard-yellow cars that are coming out this year, don't feel bad about it. You've got plenty of company.

The public has gone for colored automobiles in a big way. But in the newly-colored car market of 1955, the more conventional shades still are making the biggest impact.

Manufacturers report that green is the favorite color for automobiles. West of the Mississippi light green is the best seller. East of the Mississippi, medium green is No. 1 choice.

The loud oranges, reds, purples and yellows don't show up among the five top choices in any part of the country.

Taste in auto colors seems to follow regional tradition. In New England, where people supposedly are more conventional, the more conventional colors are the most popular. In the Far West where flashy sport clothes are the rage, flashier colors are seen on the road.

Sales of 1955 automobiles so far show that in the Far West the color choices are light green, light blue, ivory, medium green and beige, in that order. In Texas, the Southwest and the Midwest (west of the Mississippi) the preference is light green, medium green, light blue, ivory and beige.

East of the Mississippi, black jumps into the list. Preference begins with medium green and runs through black, gray, light blue and medium blue.

Black is not quite so popular in Midwestern states east of the Mississippi, where the selection is medium green, light blue, light green, dark blue and black. In the South, the order is medium green, light green, light blue, black and ivory.

Texas Dems Move To Build Party

WACO — UP — The Texas Democratic Advisory Council, in a Waco meeting, re-elected Judge James Sewell of Corsicana its chairman, and formed a 16-member steering committee "to strengthen and organize the Democratic party in Texas."

The council serves as a Texas liaison with the national Democratic party.

It was formed under leadership of Speaker Sam Rayburn after the Democratic party in Texas, as regularly organized and led by Gov. Allan Shivers, gave its support to the Republican candidacy of President Eisenhower in the 1952 general election.

The council, in its meeting here Sunday, also made final plans for two dinners, one to be held May 6 at San Antonio, the other May 6 at Houston. Sen. Estes C. Taylor (D-Tenn.) will be speaker at both.

The San Antonio dinner at La Villita will cost $10 per plate. The Houston dinner is a $20-per-plate affair.

Other officers elected were Mrs. R. D. Randolph of Houston, vice chairman; Byron Skelton of Temple, chairman of the 62-member executive committee; Mrs. A. L. Voigt of San Antonio, executive secretary; Mrs. Jud Collier of Mumfords, director of women's activity, and Truett Smith of Wiley, treasurer.

The council also accepted a challenge from Oklahoma, which said it would sell 500 tickets to the $100-per-plate national dinner April 16 in Washington when the Democratic party will honor Rayburn. The council pledged to sell 750 tickets in Texas.

Sewell said a special train originating in San Antonio would pick up Democrats throughout Central and North Texas en route to Washington for the dinner.

New Disease Scare Hits Valley Area

EDINBURG, Tex., March 28 — UP — The Hidalgo and Cameron county health officer warned today there may be a new outbreak of encephalitis or sleeping sickness, such as sickened thousands and killed two persons last fall, unless something is done about mosquitoes.

A mosquito control program will begin in Hidalgo county on Monday, he said.

Dr. David M. Cowgill, director of the two-county health unit, said the sleeping sickness virus had been found in mosquitoes collected in Hidalgo county as recently as January.

"The culex quinquefasciatus mosquitoes, which we found to be naturally infected during the encephalitis outbreak last fall," he said, "still have the virus and could easily start another outbreak of encephalitis."

Cowgill said two crews would start larviciding mosquito breeding places in Hidalgo county Monday and said "a more extensive play by all cities in the county is in the planning stage."

Three public health experts from the state health department have been making a continuous study of Valley mosquitoes since last fall, he disclosed.

Cat Finds New Home For Owner

TEXARKANA, Tex., March 26 — UP — A cat who thinks it is a dog came home Saturday, even though it had never been in Texas before.

Mrs. Juliana Covington said her cat jumped in after a four-month absence. She said it must have walked 294 miles from Lafayette, La., where the Covingtons lived when the cat disappeared.

Mrs. Covington said she knows it is her cat because it answers her whistle. It was nursed by a collie dog and grew up thinking it was a dog, she declared. She said the cat also looks exactly like the one lost in Louisiana, even to a scar under its eye.

Officials Fear Red Attack On Formosa 'At Any Time'

EDITORS NOTE — United Press Correspondent Rutherford Foats first reported on March 9 fears of an "invasion season" opens the period extending into August when the waters in the Formosa Strait are calm enough to see what will happen.

Many of them feel that war may come at any moment. All of them are watching to see whether they may safely count on the United States for help if the Communists attack them.

Any sign of American weakness might well cost the United States some of its prestige in free Asia.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said in a speech in New York Monday that the Chinese Reds are an "acute and imminent" threat to peace. He said the Red leaders seemed "dizzy with success," and were showing an "aggressive fanaticism" reminiscent of Hitler.

Diplomatic observers in Djakarta, Indonesia, predict that the Chinese Communists will not start any attack before May.

They point out that Red China is one of the 28 Asian and African countries due to attend a conference at Bandung, Indonesia, starting April 19.

"Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai simply can not afford to come to the Africa-Asia conference with blood on his hands," an official in Djakarta said.

By RUTHERFORD FOATS
TOKYO, March 28 — UP — United States officials both here and in Washington are pessimistic about the chances for a cease-fire in the Formosa Strait. They believed a Red attack on Chinese Nationalist offshore islands could come "almost any time" and that U. S. prestige in the Far East will be placed squarely on the spot.

Their grave views paralleled those first reported by this correspondent in a United Press dispatch on March 9.

That dispatch said United States military leaders in the Far East believed that a major war in Asia might be only weeks away. A reconnaissance of those sources Saturday indicated no change in this view.

Around April 15

It was disclosed in Washington Friday that some high American military officials there now believe the Reds will attack Matsui Island at the top of the Formosa Strait around April 15.

Survivors Tell How Three Passengers Died In Crash

SEATTLE — UP — Nineteen survivors of the crash-landing of a Pan-American Stratocruiser in the Pacific told Monday of watching three heads bobbing up and down just out of reach and being unable to help.

The plane was ditched in the ocean Saturday. Before rescue came two hours later, the three men who could not reach the life rafts were dead. A fourth man died on a life raft cradled in his wife's arms.

John B. Peterson, 81, Seattle, was pulled aboard the life raft by his aged wife and cradled against her shoulder. "Is that you, Emma?" he asked, and those were his last words. He was dead before the Bayfield plucked the living and the dead, from the 43-degree Pacific waters.

The 13 passengers and eight crewmen had scrambled from the downed Stratocruiser within 10 minutes after it pancaked into the water with an impact which split it open at the top and cracked off the tail.

CAUTION!

YOU MAY BE THE VICTIM OF A FAST-TALKING ARTIST
AND, SO, WE OFFER YOU THESE SUGGESTIONS

Be on your guard when approached by certain out-of-town roofing and siding salesmen. It's always wise to consult your local lumber dealer and compare notes and figures. You'll save if you take local, friendly advice. You'll have few, if any, regrets later. You'll avoid buying inferior materials and poor workmanship. Home owners throughout the country have learned the hard way and now they take caution . . . they consult the man in their home town with whom they live and see every day. Don't be pressured or kidded into buying a roof or a siding job at prices which in the end cost you more than your local dealer asks. Your local, reliable lumber dealer will give you estimates without cost. Be sure to consult him!

Jane Talk

By JANE KADINGO Pampa News Women's Editor

WITH SPRING comes ideas of housecleaning, which sometimes leads to thoughts of redecorating a room here and there or just redecorating the whole house.

AS GAY AND COLORFUL as spring itself are the new wallpapers being shown by (wallpaper) dealers and home furnishing stores the country over.

If you're new at doing your own decorating, you might wish to study the wallpaper you select. Take a large sample home with you and pin it on to the walls for several days, to see how well you like it in daylight and in night light.

The living room was decorated with cut-out rabbits, following an Easter motif. The individual tables were centered with nests of Easter eggs.

Refreshments of angel food cake, homemade ice cream and punch were served. Guests were Gary and Gladys Chandler, Linda Beatty, Clairette and Riette Smith, Clifford Gutch, Frances and Mary Ann Bradstreet, Linda Hall, Giner and Johnny Ruff, Linda Rog-

MRS. BOBBY FEATHERSTON

Frances Bechtol And Bobby Featherston Marry In Double-Ring Rite In Shamrock

SHAMROCK — (Special) — The sanctuary of the First Baptist Church in Shamrock was the scene of the wedding of Miss Frances Bechtol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Bechtol of Shamrock, and Bobby Gene Featherston, son of Rev. and Mrs. J. Clayton Featherston of Tyler, March 18.

Rev. Taylor, father of the bridegroom, who is pastor of one of the Baptist Churches of Tyler, officiated in the double-ring ceremony.

A white arch, entwined with plumose fern tied with bows of white satin ribbon, formed the altar. Tall white baskets of white stock and candytuff, plumose and jade leaves flanked the arch.

White cathedral tapers burned in floor candleabra. White satin bows marked the bridal aisle.

Mrs. Cabot Brannon, organist played a pre-nuptial prelude which included "Believe Me If All Those Loving Young Chords," an Irish melody, "Traumeri," "I Love You Truly," "O Promise Me," "Ave Maria," and "I Love Thee."

Mrs. Brannon accompanied Miss Mary Setzler as she sang "Always" by Berlin; "Because" by d'Harcourt; and "The Lord's Prayer," by Malotte. She played the traditional wedding marches.

Candles were lighted by Miss Fredericks Abbott, wearing white net over taffeta, and Miss Linda Horne, who wore pale pink net over taffeta. Their floor-length dresses were made with fitted bodices and full skirts encircled with double ruffles of net. Their flowers were wristlets of white fringed-carnations of blue maline.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE The attitude of parents toward alcoholic beverages becomes the attitude of their teen-age child.

If we drink excessively or frequently so will our adolescent son and daughter. If we do not drink at all, our child, if he drinks at all will drink most sparingly of any member of his age group.

This is the finding of research into the drinking habits of New York's Nassau County high school students. Made by Helstra College's Bureau of Social Research, the study is first of others planned by Dr. Bureau's director, Dr. Matthew Chappell.

What delimits me about the finding is its assurance that parental example is still the most potent influence upon the adolescent child. It is revolutionary news.

For years now, the news has been that Johnny's "group" weeds the most potent influence upon him. We have been asked to feel sympathy for the poor boy's confusion when his "group's" influence conflicts with ours. We've been told to "understand" that to retain his status in it, he may have to permit it to control him.

We've been warned of the psychological damage he suffers if we deny him the late hours, driving speeds, sloppy clothing and other oddments that command the teen's worship of his age class. Now, this finding contradicts it all. It tells us that it is our behavior, not his "crowd's," that really controls Johnny.

I am grateful for it. For the talk about Johnny's preference for his "crowd's" example has given American parents the loveliest kind of alibi to evade giving him a good example of their own.

We have unconsciously figured, "All right, if Johnny's self-confidence depends on imitation of his friends' behavior, I'm relieved from the chore of checking on mine."

Thus, this talk has abetted lax conduct in parents — and encouraged us to relinquish the moral instruction and control of our adolescent child to his equally inexperienced friends.

COOK'S NOOK

Flavorful And Different Soup Mates Are Liked By Children

By GAYNOR MADDOX Home Food and Markets Editor We spent a just-better-spring weekend near Westport, Conn., recently. It was still cold. But our hostess served soup mates, two or three kinds of cream soups blended together for differing flavors. Hot, broiled and different, they were delicious.

She served this combination in bread — chicken orzo and chicken with ziti, with the chunking mixed with hot dogs, hamburger, potato and onion. The soup-agree protocol called down this fare. So did we.

We learned other soup in a 60-minute time are some excellent combinations — green pea and tomato, vegetable vegetable and onion, or celery, clam chowder and green pea; tomato and cream of celery.

At one luncheon we had clam chowder mixed with cream of celery, served with mixed green salad and assorted hot breads. Chicken Ours Chowder (Serves 6)

One large onion, chopped; 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 can (1 1/2 cups) condensed cream of celery soup, 1 soup can milk, 2 cans (2 cups) cream-styled corn (No. 2 can), 1 can (1 1/2 cups) condensed chicken noodle soup, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, dash black pepper.

Cook onion in butter or margarine until soft. Blend in cream of celery soup and milk. Stir until smooth. Add remaining ingredients. Heat but do not boil. Top this chicken chowder with hard-boiled eggs and serve for luncheon night supper with salad, hot rolls, fruit and cheese.

SETTLING DOWN—Two wistful little spotted tiger-cats appear to be looking for a familiar face as they make their debut in the West Berlin Zoo. They had just arrived from Venezuela, a gift to Berliners, and obviously hadn't decided whether or not they were going to like their new home.

EASY DID IT!—Hal White's neighbors turned up their noses when he raised these Tamworth barrows in the basement of his home in Chicago, but judges at the International Livestock Show awarded them blue ribbons. Two years ago, White had to move his porkers to the country because of complaints, but the 32-year-old hogman smuggled them back to victory.

PICTURE NEWS

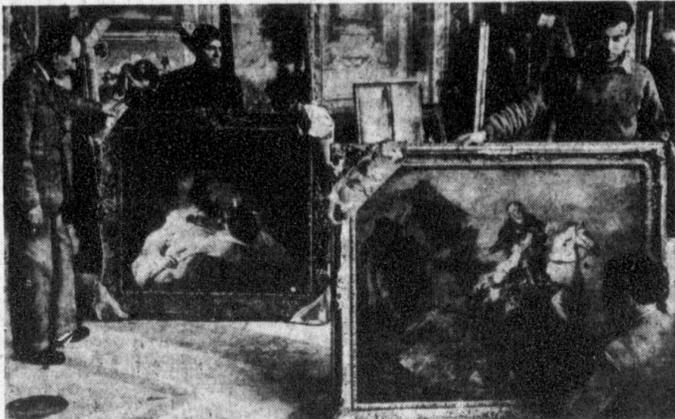

AROUND THE WORLD

A HINT OF THE FUTURE—Ice floes are shown around the partially completed causeway linking Cape Breton Island with the Nova Scotia mainland. Tracks of the Canadian National Railway are expected to be ready for traffic over this causeway before next spring.

FREEDOM TORCH—A young Maccabee honor guard is preparing to run a lighted torch from Mt. Zion in Jerusalem to Modin, site of the Maccabee rebellion, in celebration of Chanukah, the Jewish festival of freedom. The torch was later flown to the U. S. for use in a Chanukah Festival in New York.

BACK WHERE THEY BELONG—Rodolfo Siviero, left, chief of Italy's commission for recovery of artistic works, is shown examining a painting in Rome. It is one of 36 returned from Germany where they were taken during the retreat of German occupation troops. It is estimated that about 600 of Italy's works of value are still in Germany.

SMALL ARRIVAL—When three-year-old Michael O'Donnell arrived in New York with his parents aboard the liner Constitution, he struck this pose for the camera. Mike's home is Rutland, Mass., and his dad had just been returned from naval duty in Italy.

FOOTBALL BALLETT—Sport and fine art met in this football ballet performed on the stage of the Royal Opera House in Stockholm, Sweden. The ballet was specially composed and performed to mark the 50th anniversary of the Swedish Football Association, and it was good exercise—as well as art.

TOUGH TIME—With his twisted left leg pinned between platform and subway car in New York, Francis Collins, a longshoreman, calmly puffs on a cigaret as rescuers seek to release him. Collins had slipped on the wet platform of a subway station and was later removed to a hospital where his condition was reported as "fair."

WORKING OUT—You wouldn't think lissome Caral Blaké would have to go through all that exercise to stay in trim—and she doesn't. She's just working up a good appetite on the sands of Miami Beach by doing her daily dozen.

A REAL DEER—This brown-eyed baby deer couldn't be cuter. He was born on the grounds of the Lodge in Jasper Park, Alberta, Canada, and was just four weeks old when he posed for this photo. The tiny animal seems camera-wise already; it's certainly looking its best.

What Surprise?

The Eisenhower Republicans who haven't the guts or aptitude for a real fight, have released John Foster Dulles' version of how the Squire of Hyde Park and the fifty-rich socialist, Averell Harriman, got themselves ravished by an old gangster from the Kremlin. The State Department's announcement consists mostly of a "personal and top secret" memo from Harriman to FDR, but it includes a few sundry items such as notes from Alger Hiss, the ex-con, and quotes from the than U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff.

With typical Republican shuffle-footing, the administration first tried to release the report "privately" to some influential Democratic congressional leaders who said, no thanks, we'll wait until you're ready to share it with our dear constituents.

So, what could the State Department do but release the whole thing? Even in defeat, the New Dealers are going to manage to be the heroes. Pretty soon they'll be able to take credit for having made the report available to the public, as indeed they were!

The news stories all say the State Department "revelation" of the Yalta agreement is going to raise sand in every nook and cranny of the world; but we can't imagine why.

It was pretty common knowledge that Stalin hood-winked the old man we sent over to represent us; and the legion of zombies who accompanied him — Harriman, Hiss (and was the phantom president Harry Hopkins along?) — certainly weren't any match for the Russian first team.

The sum and substance of the State Department's white paper is that FDR gave Stalin certain concessions, such as part of China. This was very liberal of FDR, but he never made any bones about being a Liberal, so why surprise — surprise? He darned near gave away the United States, so why lift an eyebrow if he gave away a little bit of China to an old friend from the Soviet?

If you will recall, Russia entered the Japanese war just about the time Japan was trying desperately to get out. A week after Russia declared war on Nippon, the Bomb dropped — and, you know the rest. Finis!

The Harriman-Roosevelt memo and the whole idiotic situation in which we found ourselves after Yalta must be taken against the background of the European war when Stalin whined and complained about a second front until it was almost more than a political general named Eisenhower could bear.

And after demanding, and getting, a second front — this same Stalin then dallies around about entering the war against a fading Japan and even wins "concessions" for being in on the kill.

The Republicans are rather more interested in fighting McCarthy, the few conservatives within the GOP and each other than they are in making hay of the Harriman-Roosevelt notes. . . . it must be remembered that John Foster Dulles was in the State Department for some years during the New Deal — Acheson era.

There is no telling where a stone will find a glass house to shatter, and it is no wonder politicians everywhere hold their breaths when anybody cocks an arm.

THE NATION'S PRESS

ONE LESSON TO BE LEARNED

(Wall Street Journal)
In the course of his testimony before the Senate committee studying the stock market, Chairman Martin of the Federal Reserve Board made this observation:

"In my judgment a properly functioning stock market is important to the attainment of a high standard of living and a steady growth of employment opportunities for all people. We could not have our system of mass production and distribution if it were not possible for corporations to cooperate to assemble through the securities markets varying amounts of individual savings into large aggregates of capital."

Of all the things that have been said at this hearing, this statement is particularly deserving of the Senator's thought. For it is directed not at such peripheral problems as whether margin requirements are too high or the flow or whether there are too many or too few trading regulations. It is at the central, but unspoken, question which is at the bottom of the story.

"There is in this country a legend, but not a fact, that the market may behave at a particular time but against the ultimate of the stock market. It is a legend with complex, as a faintly obvious luxury.

Founding Fathers' Idea Of Liberty

Since I believe a great deal of our trouble comes from lack of proper understanding of the meaning of fundamental words, such as liberty, I wrote an article on the subject and submitted it to the Christian Economics magazine for publication. The publishers bought the article. Since the magazine states in each issue "Permission is granted, with credit to author and this publication" and want their article reproduced, I am here reproducing my article that appeared in Christian Economics on March 21.

The words "Liberty" and "Freedom" have various meanings. The dictionary gives 13 definitions for the former, including license. A libertarian author of a recent book opposing socialism wrote that "freedom is the absence of restraint." That degree or kind of freedom would permit aggression or anarchy.

One must believe that the authors of the Declaration of Independence had aggression, license or anarchy in mind when they used the word "Liberty." The Declaration said: "to secure these rights (life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness) governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed." The "just powers" are secured from the consent of the governed and not by aggression, license, anarchy or violence.

A Definite Meaning Liberty had a concise definite meaning to the Founding Fathers for they mutually pledged to each other their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to support these rights — life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Citizens were to be treated as equals. The Founding Fathers emphasized that liberty or freedom did not give any individual the right to do anything under the pretense of liberty and freedom that would in any way injure others or trespass upon their liberty or freedom.

St. Paul must have had the same concept of liberty when he said: "where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty." The spirit of the Lord reveals a man to at least live in harmony with the Golden Rule and the Commandment, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." There could be no license or aggression under these commandments.

In Francis Bellamy's Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag the phrase, "with liberty and justice for all," certainly precludes the practice of aggression by some.

When the word "liberty" was used in these historic documents it had a definite meaning that did not include license or aggression. With this limitation every person wanted liberty and freedom for himself. There was regard for the rights of others. There were no exceptions. We cannot have too much of the liberty that these authors meant when they used the word.

Behind Liberty Much of our trouble comes from confusion in the meaning of words. Let's try to define what was meant when the word "liberty" was used in the above instances.

In the thinking of our Founding Fathers, liberty was a natural right that came from God and permitted each person to gain or lose health, knowledge, understanding, influence, friends, happiness and wealth without individually or collectively using fraud or aggression or insisting force or the threat of force.

Liberty might be defined as respect for the right of the individual to initiate and achieve in his own way physical, intellectual, spiritual and financial improvement. In other words, liberty means so much more to us than the right to do as we please. It is the right to do with respect to others so one hopes others will do to him. In this sense liberty means the right to attempt to supply one's desire without the use of coercion, and in ways that are not harmful to others.

Liberty or freedom can exist only in the absence of aggression or the threat of aggression or coercion or compulsion. Under liberty, as understood by the Founding Fathers, a man will accept only that to which all have access on the same terms. As used by the Founding Fathers and by the libertarians, freedom and liberty permit force or the threat of force to be used collectively or individually only to restrain fraud or predation and to require the aggressor to indemnify his victim.

Liberty gives every person an equal right to help establish values. It gives every man a monopoly on his own life and property no more, no less.

Meaning To Nonbelievers If any of these definitions contradict each other, or if there are any exceptions to them, their value is correspondingly lessened. If liberty or freedom as herein defined is not a blessing to mankind, then these definitions are not in agreement with the thought of the Founding Fathers. If they are not understandable or acceptable, who can give us better ones?

Freedom's Benefit are the blessings of liberty clearly when he says: "I believe that any theory is unworthy if it does not provide the practical means by which it can be put into effect, whether it be religious, philosophical, political, or economical; whether it affects well-being, morality, right, justice, progress, respectability, property, power, energy, capital, wages, taxes, population credit or government; at whatever point of the scientific horizon I start speak, I invariably

The Better Life It is often contended that we should give up some of our liberties. We disagree. Liberty as herein defined and as the term was used by our Founding Fathers, injures no one and the more of it we enjoy, the better life is for all of us. Can anyone point out how these definitions interfere with anyone's natural rights? Progress comes from liberty. Civilization is the process of achieving more liberty and the lowering of human culture that develops thereafter. Our task is to get more people to see the benefits and blessings resulting from the liberty our Founding Fathers pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to support.

Why Yalta? Why A-Bomb? Important New Questions

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Why did F.D.R. grant so many tragic concessions in the Far East to Stalin at Yalta, when his most expert military advisers felt that Russian reinforcements were not needed to defeat an already shattered Japan? Why did Harry S. Truman order atomic bombing of Japan, when the American government had already intercepted Tokyo's frantic pleas for peace on any terms except unconditional surrender? These are the most important questions raised by publication of the Yalta Papers, as well as by collateral studies of the changing acts of the World War II drama. It is probable that they may never be answered satisfactorily, although there have been Capitol Hill suggestions that they require detailed investigation.

Several explanations may be offered. Franklin D. Roosevelt may never have seen the reports that Japan could have been conquered by sea and air attacks alone, without actual invasion of the islands. Or he may have placed greater faith in General George C. Marshall's judgment than in that of his other top advisers, who were closer to the scenes of battle. Marshall, and Dean Acheson then Undersecretary of State, were the very high-level aides who insisted that Russia's entry into the Japanese War was necessary. Otherwise, they envisaged another 18 months of fighting, with American casualties estimated at a million men.

The group which thought that Naval and aerial bombardment and strangulation were sufficient for final victory, included Admiral William D. Leahy, then White House Chief of Staff; Admiral Ernest J. King, then Chief of Naval Operations; General Douglas MacArthur, Army Commander in the Far East; and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Commander of the Pacific Fleet.

In postwar books and public statements, they have testified that Japan could have been crushed without Russian intervention, and without causing the eventual loss of China, North Korea and part of Indo-China to the Communists. As for Truman's inauguration of atomic warfare at a time when we knew that Tokyo was asking for surrender terms, the details are revealed for the first time in a book entitled, "Japan's Decision to Surrender," by the late Dr. Robert A. Dahl.

We cannot have perfect liberty, but we shall approach the solution to these problems proportionally to the degree of liberty we achieve. The Doctor Says

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

Nearly every mother with her first-born child worries for fear that the infant's eyes will be crossed. This is because for the first three months of life or so a baby's eyes will float or wander so that they do not appear to be looking in the same direction. It is only when the eyes fail to move together after several months that one has to worry about the condition which is known as cross-eyes.

When the eyes are truly crossed the earlier treatment is started the better the results, even though often much can be done later on. A child palt the first few months of life who shows a tendency to close one eye, to tilt the head or rub one of the eyes, should be examined for crossed eyes since a child does not outgrow this condition by himself.

STRICTLY SPEAKING, cross-eyes in when one eye turns inward, but in some cases the eye may turn outward (walleye) or sometimes upward. Any one of several factors may cause crossed eyes: a blow on the head, heredity, a disease, near or far-sightedness, faulty muscles and nervous coordination.

There are several kinds of treatment for crossed eyes and some of them can be started as early as a year old. Which of the various methods to use is a matter which must be decided by the physician. It may be that glasses will be recommended and this alone can do the job.

SOMETIMES A patch is placed over the good eye which forces the youngster to use the weaker eye, and therefore aids the muscles and the vision. Eye muscle exercises are sometimes prescribed and this may be in addition to the glasses. In some cases one or more operations are necessary and this is not considered a dangerous procedure when done by a competent specialist.

American Union Movement Well On Way To Fascism

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

TUCSON, Ariz. — The American union movement is now well on its way to Fascism by direction of individual demagogues who fiercely proclaim their hatred of Fascism. The teamsters, the garment workers, the mine workers and certain big job-trusts of the CIO have been "investing" their treasury moneys in common stocks. In many such cases, these unions are buying into great corporations which are the employers of their subject members. In all these cases, the very fact that the investor unions have idle millions for investment is plain proof that they have been collecting too much money, often by more or less legal extortion. Their only legitimate purpose in life is to represent the minute individual toiler in dealings with massive employers. They exist to insist upon wages appropriate to their members' contribution to the employer's product and to the national economic well-being, including hours per day and week and other gains. For 20 years, however, they have been meddling into government and management.

"Job security" was one of the illegitimate aspirations of unionism. By this concept a job became property and a lien on the employer. The question soon arose: whether the job, as property, belonged to the worker or the union. It was settled by force. The union was stronger than all its members, so the job became the property of the union. In New Jersey and Chicago, the Browne-Bloof racket under the patronage of William Green, president of the AF of L, and its general counsel, Joe Padway, a rapacious scoundrel from Milwaukee, leased to individual workers jobs which were the property of local unions. The work was done by the union. They did the work. The crushed bones of some of the local unions, who were Padway's clients in his law practice, collected the wages. On pay night, the workers got as much as these men were generous enough to give them. This only made Padway's union clients greedier. Therefore, they ordered that two men should be hired to do the work of one in jobs which would not overtax the intelligence and mechanical genius of an apprentice. Their graft was doubled.

This was a unique but not an extreme situation. The union boss is unshackled by the moral and conscientious verities that restrain most of us. The shocking enormity of the AF of L. blocking and excavating unions during Roosevelt's "war effort" would have stunned a nation not already numbed from a whole program of entrenchment. They got away with so many millions of our taxes paid in the form of cost-plus deals that no calculation ever can be made. Ed McGrady, himself an AF of L man and a card-holding printer serving as assistant secretary of labor under Madam Perkins, insisted that my rough estimate of one thousand million a year of union revenues from government contracts was at least one billion short.

All those who now belittle a revival of the closed shop and proposal of the laws of 17 states enacted to end this predatory monopoly, insist on ignoring the plain Fascism of their program. Many of them are Mountebanks who would willingly sell the welfare of a nation for a cynical personal profit of bettering himself. Some insist on undefined "moral" laws applicable to the Constitution of the United States. They find socialism in the political and social fabric of Mussolini and Hitler, who insisted that the worker must submit to authority who bought his own poor comprehension. But one way or another, the American worker has achieved a vague and angry understanding that this document is the best friend he has on earth. I get hundreds of letters from Americans of every band and aspect who reveal a horrifying comprehension of the justice of total unions. They are suspicious of those who exhort him to submit blindly for his own eventual good.

The injustices cited in these specimens were not mere accidents bound to happen in a great turmoil. These are fine examples of the goal and philosophy of all our unions. The AF of L. has never repudiated them. The CIO has never retreated from the proposition that an American citizen who accepts work at a job abandoned by a striker is stealing a property right, but whether of the worker or the union we need not ask because we will not get a straight answer.

With massive unions levying billions in the common stocks of industry, the similarity of our unionism to Nazi-Fascism is obvious. The union is then the employer of the worker whom it represents. The union has become that hideous monster which the genes of the CIO paraded in their jaggedly 17 years ago — the company union. This was a private union of the people in the company union. This was a private union of the people in the company's "labor." The employer thought they had a protecting thing there, but it was so good for property and labor, both, that the CIO struck it down. The CIO's reasons were sordid, but the result was good because this would have led into a phase which Dukenly's political agents have now fostered on property in Germany. It starts with a "co-management" of "management" and "labor." Union agents sit at the managerial board. But the scheme is so liquidated ever can be made. Ed McGrady, himself an AF of L man and a card-holding printer serving as assistant secretary of labor under Madam Perkins, insisted that my rough estimate of one thousand million a year of union revenues from government contracts was at least one billion short.

Radial Speed Catchers Not In Keeping With West Code

By HENRY McLEMORE

The code of the Old West, as I remember my Zeke Gray, called for no shooting in the back, even though the man whose back was turned was a varmint and a slunk. The code called for giving a fellow a chance, no matter what the circumstances.

Well, podner, times have changed out in our rough land, as I am finding out as I drive my trolley, power steering, automatic up - and - down, back - and - forward - middle 8 - cylinder power through Arizona, New Mexico, and Colorado. The speed cops out here are using radar devices to catch speeding motorists, and if that ain't shooting a driver in the back, then I'm a homogenized milk head. The speeders — that the pack of 'em, — use their palm cars off the road, preferably behind a clump of mesquite or a little of cottonwood tree, and start that newfangled thing called radar and busting.

Millar up the road, happy as a cowboy on Saturday night, a motorist took along. Ahead of him are pavement, with many a curve in sight. Each of him, as far as he can see, nothing remotely warning a patrol car is to be seen. So with the radio playing a hot music, or some pop song, he's going blind or being distracted by a creek, the motorist gradually comes down on the accelerator and sets up the miller. He is all smiles as he slips along a few miles faster than the legal limit.

BOWIE, Md. —UP—William G. Hells Jr.'s Helioscope, making his first start of the year, ruled a heavy favorite Saturday in the $15,000 added Southern Maryland handicap at Bowie.

But the Kremlin has problems of its own. Its food situation is becoming increasingly serious. Some experts believe it could reach the crisis stage next winter. The shuffles in the Soviet government which started with the ousting of Georgi Malenkov as premier continues. The position of Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov may be shaky.

Now the Kremlin is faced with the prospect of imminent West German armament.

Finally, it must be remembered that Russia is closely allied by treaty with Communist China.

What would happen if, in the event of an armed clash between the Red Chinese and the United States, the Reds called on Soviet Russia for military aid?

A Decisive Time
It looks as if the next few weeks might be decisive.

Final re-drafting of the German armament treaties is in sight. Then negotiations could be started for a Big Four conference—a conference of foreign ministers which would be followed, if things went well, by a conference of heads of state.

Carlsbad Socialite Out Of Jail

CARLSBAD, March 26 —UP—Mrs. Francis T. Supina, prominent Carlsbad matron, was freed from Eddy county jail after 20 months Saturday because she had refused to pay a $1,000 fine.

Authorities said an "anonymous" person paid the fine Saturday. It had been levied against Mrs. Supina after she rented servants quarters in the rear of her fashionable home in violation of a restrictive clause in the deed.

Mrs. Supina, who had been long confined in the jail and down to less than 100 pounds in weight, went immediately to the home of her daughter upon her release. She refused to make any statement.

The socially prominent woman was jailed on July 6, 1953 after District Judge George T. Harris found her in contempt for failing to pay the $1,000 fine.

Mrs. Supina maintained the fine was not justified, because she had stopped renting the property at the rear of her home on Riverside Drive in Carlsbad when ordered to do so. After she was jailed she vowed to stay there "until justice is done."

Since then two grand juries have investigated the case. Neither recommended her freedom. A petition signed by a large number of Carlsbad residents asked that she be released on health grounds was also turned down.

In recent months, Mrs. Supina lost weight noticeably. But as late as last December she vowed to stay in jail until the $1,000 fine was withdrawn.

She did not say that she had a change of heart Saturday. District court records showed only that an "anonymous" person had put up the $1,000.

Big Four Talks Of Some Kind Likely On Europe

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst

Things seem moving toward Big Four talks of some kind on European problems and toward a showdown between the United States and Red China on Formosa.

The question is whether the talks or the showdown will come first. There would hardly be much use of holding any big four negotiations if the Chinese Communists forced a far eastern crisis by attacking the Matsui or Quemoy Islands.

But if the United States, Great Britain and France could arrange what President Eisenhower called "explatory talks" with Soviet Russia, the Kremlin might ask the Chinese Reds not to risk a war with the United States.

In Allied countries in Europe, pressure is growing for talks with Russia. Talks on easing tension, high level talks on disarmament—any kind of talks that would give hope of removing the H-bomb threat.

It might seem that Russia would welcome a Far Eastern crisis, on the theory that Communists always welcome anything that causes a free country trouble.

People Over 65 Make Up 9 Per Cent Of Population

CHICAGO —UP—Businessmen are overlooking a bet because they don't cater to their aged customers, the figures show.

People over 65 make up about 9 per cent of the population, and their number is growing as medical science lengthens the life span. There now are about 14 million people over 65 in the U.S., compared with nine million in 1940.

But most businessmen ignore this growing market because they don't think oldsters have much money to spend, a study shows.
