Tip-Top Texan

DON CAIN
... a go-getter since way back.

He Was Always Head Of Class

By BILL KERR
Pampa News Staff Writer

The man behind the cigar in the county attorney's office has a natural inclination for leadership and politics.

Don Cain in his 33 years has always managed to be active in the affairs of any organization he joined. And happily so. Because he well understands that leadership means responsibility.

Wherever Cain arrived, whether in school or in the service these qualities managed to rise to the surface. A perennial holder of "public office" while in school, he usually was student body president. Unfortunately, he never crossed above attorney general of the student body while an undergraduate at the University of Texas.

His being only a "Spoke" rather than a "wheel" at UT is readily apparent, once the circumstances are known. He was on the campus just over a year, coming from Arlington State College. He had little time to garner votes. But at Arlington he was student body president.

Political Philosophy
Cain's philosophy about politics, makes him the type of man it is healthy to have on the political scene.

"Government is only as good as the men holding public office, and the interest of the public in elected offices makes for the caliber of the holder." Cain said with the thoughtfulness of a man who paid particular attention to the moral side of his political science courses while a student.

"Politics is hard work. Some people look on it as an evil. And even if it is so, it is a necessary evil, because there must be someone to administer government on all planes," Cain emphasized.

"Keen interest of the citizenry in sound government," Cain said thoughtfully, "always zealous of their prerogatives as free men, makes for high standards among elected officials."

Recent Arrival
Cain, who took office as county attorney on Jan. 1, though a native Texan, is a newcomer to the Panhandle, arriving here in the fall of 1951 after serving with the navy in Korea. But though short on years on the Pampa scene, he has taken an active part in the affairs of the community since his arrival.

Scouting which has interested him since his youthful days as a member of Troop 41, Dallas, now takes up a large part of his spare time. Recently, Cain, who is presently serving as Santa Fe district chairman, attended the Region 9 Scout convention in San Antonio.

Over the past three years he has given much of his time in the capacity of neighborhood commissioner and district vice chairman because he looks on the Scouting movement as giving a boy "the spiritual and moral training that qualifies youngsters in later life for leadership and participation in their communities."

Active In Rotary
Naturally the labors of office circumscribe much of his outside activities, but he does find the time to work with his fellow Rotarians, serving as chairman of club service, and on the board of directors.

An ardent churchman, the young lawyer is now program vice president of the Baptist Brotherhood of the First Baptist Church.

Born in San Marcos, southwest Texas, he moved to Dallas where he attended public school. While at Arlington he was student body president.

West OKs Security Program

Big 3 Plan Will Counter Red Move

VIENNA — UP — The western foreign ministers reached full agreement on a broad European security plan to counter Russia's bid to neutralize Germany, informed diplomatic sources said Monday.

The western ministers were on their way home after signing an Austrian state treaty with Soviet Russia that rolls back the Iron Curtain for the first time and promises the long-awaited break in the cold war.

Diplomatic sources said western experts will begin shortly preparing a joint allied plan for the unification of Germany within a broad European security system based on phased East-West disarmament.

Would Neutralize Germany
Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov made it clear Sunday that Russia wants the neutralization of Germany on the pattern of the Austrian settlement, and that that was the price the West would have to pay for a unified Germany.

A rearm West Germany is a keystone of western policy in Europe and the Allies believe it was this new strength that helped win the Austrian treaty.

A high American official said the Soviet withdrawal from Austria marked a trend "which is going to have a profound effect on the rest of Europe" and predicted it was a "general moderation" of Soviet policy toward the slave nations under its thumb.

Details Kept Secret
Details of the western concept for a German solution have so far remained secret. But informed sources said it included unification through free, supervised elections, phased disarmament between East and West in Europe and some system of non-aggression pacts.

In the meanwhile, the western ministers will go ahead with preparations for talks among the Big Four government heads and the subsequent conference of the foreign ministers to complete details.

Western diplomats were intrigued by unconfirmed reports circulating in Vienna that Molotov might be moved from the Kremlin's foreign office. They were struck by the conciliatory attitude of the Soviet foreign minister.

They noted he had no full powers to approve the details of the projected conference "at the summit," and that he had to refer back for instructions.

Chinese Jet Fuel Stock Big
Report Says Reds Set For Offensive

TAIPEI, Formosa — UP — The Tatro news agency of the ministry of interior said Monday the Chinese Communists had stockpiled enough jet fuel at coastal airfields for a major air effort against Formosa and its island outposts.

The agency said fuel sufficient for 5,000 missions had been stored at Luichiao airfield alone. The agency, which claims close Nationalist intelligence sources, said truckloads of jet fuel were sighted en route from Shanghai and Hangchow.

Luichiao is within easy fighter range of Matsau and Quemoy islands and Formosa itself. The Tatro agency said jet fuel for the fields originally came from the Romanian oilfields via tanker.

Publication of the oil report coincided with appearances of new-type MIG-17s in the Formosa Strait. These improved MIG-15 types, clad in a 10-minute dog-fight with Nationalist Thunderjet fighter-bombers this weekend, but neither side reported damage.

The agency, quoting intelligence sources in Peiping, reported Sunday the Communists were taking steps to release 11 American airmen imprisoned in the Red Chinese capital as "spies."

Police closed all traffic on U.S. Highway 82, a main artery running through the city, and also blocked off most of the downtown area.

There were two minor injuries reported. Fireman G. C. Bryant was given emergency treatment at Wichita General hospital for inflamed eyes, and an unidentified airman, who volunteered to help, was hit on the leg by a brick.

The Marchant hotel, one of the two best in the city, located at the end of the block on 10th Street, was filled with smoke. The hotel's power was shut off for some time.

Firemen said only an eight-inch firewall kept the flames from reaching to a two-story brick building housing the Sherwin-Williams Paint Co. and Huss' Hobby Center on Scott. Sherwin-Williams suffered heavy smoke damage, nevertheless, and firemen played water on the building to keep damage down.

Chief White said there was no fire in any part of the gutted 150-foot square building, the property of W.F. Carter of Wichita Falls.

Officers later found two bullet holes in the ceiling and a window sill.

She had a moving van carry all her furniture to Degarmo's home in Oklahoma City without notifying the brother it was arriving.

Wrist Watch Found
A man's partly burned wrist watch was found in the garbage can at the Werner home.

On May 8, Mrs. Werner mailed registered letters from St. Louis to Degarmo and to her mother, Mrs. Norma Thompson, of Kansas, Okla., saying she never expected to see them again and for them not to attempt to find her.

West Studying Red Peace Move

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON, — UP — The Soviet Union's peace offensive which leads now toward a Big Four conference is under careful analysis by the western powers. The study strongly supports the idea that the Kremlin's peace talk is for export only.

Communist radio, newspaper and periodical propaganda and consumption behind the Iron Curtain continues to be harshly critical of the West, notably of the United States. This is a factor in the international situation tending to increase the caution with which Mr. Eisenhower will approach his three day meeting with the British, French and Russian heads of state.

The official trend of Washington thinking is of now that the somewhat softening attitude of Moscow and Peiping is more a short range change in tactics than a long range reversal of Communist strategy.

Key to Strategy
Communist strategy has been keyed to extension of communism to all the world, by force, by diplomacy or by economic pressures. It is expected that Mr. Eisenhower will enter the Big Four meeting with that in mind.

He will be aware of the appearance, at least, of a softening of the Communist attitude, notably in last week's signature of the Austrian peace treaty. The President has said that he would offer Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin every opportunity to demonstrate good will and good intentions.

In the simplest language, however, the Eisenhower administration substantially doubts that the Russians are on the level. That is the principle foundation for Mr. Eisenhower's evident determination to avoid decisions at the Big Four meeting on the numerous points at issue between the Communist world and the West. A well-informed individual put it this way:

"The President will be willing to talk about anything and everything, but he will decide nothing."

Emphasis On Point
That point is being made with some emphasis here lest the American people build false hopes. Much could come of the Big Four meeting, but it would come largely thereafter as lesser officials hammer out decisions in the areas of dispute which the top men merely discussed.

That change in Soviet Union tactics toward peace offensive strategy is attributed here to something like a stalemate in the cold war. Part of the Kremlin's cold war strategy, for example was based on conviction that there would be a great depression in the United States. It has not come nor is it in sight.

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. — UP — A spectacular fire that raged for two and a half hours destroyed 13 business establishments in downtown Wichita Falls Sunday night and caused damage conservatively estimated at $250,000.

It was at least the fifth major fire in the downtown area in the past three or four years, blazes that have caused millions of dollars worth of damage.

The fire gutted 13 businesses for a quarter of a block on 10th Street and around the corner on Scott Street. Fire Chief Eugene C. White, who estimated damage, said it started in the attic of one of the establishments but it was not determined which one, nor how it started.

The rolling black smoke quickly attracted thousands of spectators, who are getting used to major downtown fires. City police called on air police from nearby Sheppard AFB to control the crowd and traffic.

Police closed all traffic on U.S. Highway 82, a main artery running through the city, and also blocked off most of the downtown area.

There were two minor injuries reported. Fireman G. C. Bryant was given emergency treatment at Wichita General hospital for inflamed eyes, and an unidentified airman, who volunteered to help, was hit on the leg by a brick.

Sharp-Shooting Texan Kills Sheriff, Holds Off Posse

GROESBECK, Tex. — UP —

Dr. George A. Cox disclosed Monday that papers to commit a sharp-shooting farmer to a lunatic asylum had already been signed when he shot a sheriff between the eyes and stood off a posse for more than five hours with a .22 rifle.

Texas Rangers finally had to use an Army armored car Sunday to capture the farmer, N. J. Tynes, 45. They filled his home, in which he had barricaded himself, with tear gas, then wounded him with rifles and pistols when he dashed out a back door.

Two rangers grabbed the blood-covered Tynes and pulled him away, kicking and screaming, before he could get into another door. He was wanted for shooting an 18-year-old boy without provocation, when he killed the sheriff, Harry Dunlap, 40.

Doubt He Will Live
There was doubt that Tynes will live. Dr. Cox, who was trying to save his life, said he signed papers Saturday to commit Tynes, a bachelor, to a mental institution. He had been in insane asylums twice.

Dr. Cox said at Cox hospital at Groesbeck that Tynes was critically wounded and in deep shock. Cox said he talked rationally when aroused at the hospital, but that "there is no doubt" that he is mentally unbalanced. He killed the sheriff at Thornton, nine miles from Groesbeck.

Tynes barricaded himself in his home after shooting the sheriff and it took some 20 peace officers and an armored car to get him out. The body of the 40-year-old sheriff lay in the farm yard for more than five hours as Tynes kept officers away from his home with a .22-caliber rifle.

Drives Away by Shots
The sheriff and Deputy Ernest Tippin arrived at Tynes' home Saturday night to arrest him for shooting the teen-age boy, but were driven away by shots.

More Rain Seen For Whole State

By UNITED PRESS

A squall line loaded with thunderstorms moved across the top of Texas Monday as forecasters called for widely scattered rainfall over nearly the entire state.

The line extended north and south across all of Oklahoma, with the tail end of it dipping down into the top half of Texas as it moved eastward.

The widely scattered thunderstorms came on the heels of turbulent weather activity over North, East and Central Texas Sunday. Winds lashed some sections of the state as the Fort Worth weather bureau issued a tornado and severe thunderstorm warning for a large part of the Southwest.

The tornado warnings applied to Kansas, but the severe thunderstorm warnings applied to Texas. Winds whipped Tyler in the east part of the state with gusts up to 1.47 inches at McKinney.

McKinney and Guster in North Central Texas reported the heaviest official amounts of rainfall during the 24-hour reporting period ending at 6:30 a.m. Monday. McKinney reported 1.47 inches and Guster 1.45.

Other rainfall included Carrollton 1.04, Rockwall 1.12, Wichita Falls .55 of an inch, Dallas .51, Falls 65 of an inch, Dallas 31, 26, Amarillo .08 and Lubbock .06. Overnight temperatures in the state ranged from 33 degrees at Salt Flat up to 78 at Corpus Christi.

Final A-Test For Year Lights West
LAS VEGAS, Nev. — UP — The final shot of the current atomic test series flashed across the Nevada desert Sunday with a force more powerful than the bomb which shattered Hiroshima.

The Atomic Energy Commission said two F-100 Super Sabre jets made a "stimulated delivery" of the bomb, marking the first time that supersonic planes took part in such a test.

The force of the blast shook buildings more than 100 miles away in Pioche, Nev., and rattled windows in Las Vegas.

The 14th and final bomb was set off from the top of a 500-foot tower before dawn after numerous postponements from the original date of May 8. The shot was observed mainly by scientists and there were no military personnel in the trenches.

Ike OKs Plan For Vaccine

Distribution by Voluntary Method

WASHINGTON — UP — President Eisenhower Monday approved a voluntary plan designed to assure fair allocation of the Salk polio vaccine.

The plan would be effective following completion of the current program of immunization being conducted by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for first and second grade school children.

The report prepared by Welfare Secretary Ovelia Culp Hobby and experts of the Public Health Service recommended that "for the time being" the vaccine should be administered only to children of the most susceptible age group, five through nine years old.

Once the federal voluntary program goes into effect, Mrs. Hobby will direct division and allocation among states of the entire output of the vaccine on the basis of the five through nine population in each state.

Warns of Shortage
"There will be a shortage of the vaccine for several months," Mrs. Hobby said in her plan, announced at the White House.

She said only a voluntary plan of priorities and distribution could be mobilized "fast enough" to be effective during this temporary period of shortage.

"The program meets the President's objective of getting all safe vaccine to American children as rapidly as possible and assures that no child will be denied vaccination because of inability to pay," she said.

The White House said that as a result of the report, plans are being made to ask congress for an additional $2 million for the Health, Education and Welfare Department to conduct the vaccine program, particularly for "vigorous enforcement" of laws prohibiting sales of the vaccine outside authorized channels of prescription drugs.

Asks for $28 Million
Legislation prepared by the department also will ask congress for about $28 million to help states purchase the vaccine for the program to go into effect following completion of the foundation's free immunization.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Public Health Service announced it had checked and cleared 2 million shots of vaccine prepared by the Eli Lilly Co., of Indianapolis. It said an

Farm, Ranch Jobs Plentiful Now

Ranch and farm jobs are beginning to become plentiful, according to Bill Ragsdale, manager of the Pampa office of the Texas Employment Commission.

Ragsdale reported that farm and ranch owners were starting to call his office frequently now and he expects the number of openings in agriculture to increase as the spring progresses, mainly as a result of the recent rains.

Jane Talk

By JANE KADINGO Pampa News Women's Editor

"WHAT IS NEW" is always interesting — to me, at least. It seems that everyone starts thinking of and about decorating and redecorating at this time of year. Don't know why but each year there seems to be special emphasis on decorating in the spring. Anyway, here are some of the latest fashions in dinnerware and in lamps.

DINNERWARE blends old and new style characteristics in simple, flowing forms. Reports the fashion analysts of Retailing Daily. Shapes sometimes achieve classic proportions — even "modern" ones flow rather than just "white" patterns are worked with unusual freedom of expression.

Not only does silhouette embody the personality of any given line, it indicates how effectively it is engineered for use in the home. Some shapes are planned to do the job of two, such as the soup bowl that doubles for salad or dessert.

The traditional border and center designs are supplemented by all varieties of the side spray, allways, geometrics and scenic. Style influences come from the Orient, Italy and Scandinavia as well as from our own provincial past and modern present. Color favorites are pink, turquoise, charcoal and the brown tones.

Many of the new offerings have an elegant aura about them, achieved through copious use of metallics, rich textures, striking patterns. The new dinnerware is not limited to formal occasions but adapts to many settings. Informal wares are equally versatile. They move from elegant to casual setting with ease, with many especially designed for today's flexible dining practice of setting the table on the terrace, in front of the TV set, or not at all while guests balance partitioned plates on their knees.

SELDOM HAS THERE BEEN such style variety in the lamp market as there is this season. All periods appear to have been tapped and there are models exhibiting characteristics of many countries.

The style leader of the current season is Provincial, notes the Retailing Daily fashion analysts. There is a good reason for its popularity; it is a style that blends readily with many interiors. The nouveau Provincial, as interpreted in lamps, is notable for its simplicity — sometimes almost elegant — design, for crisp decoration and appropriate use of a wide variety of materials.

Many lamps are influenced by designs from abroad. They appear in two forms: Reproductions of authentic period pieces or arbitrary shapes endowed with decorations that suggest the country itself. Favorite influences are French, Italian, Egyptian, Spanish, classical and, of course, Oriental.

The very elegant look both in traditional and modern lamps is interpreted in a number of ways: Rich, marble textures, antique gold and white finishes, decoupage decorations and sleek, bright forms. China and glass lamps are notable for their use of color — pink, turquoise and white bathe every form imaginable.

The functional metal lamp is still important. The goose-neck and tree lamp have staged revivals while several firms have introduced adjustable wall and ceiling fixtures. Interest is mounting in outdoor units modeled after their functional indoor counterparts.

Besides brass an accepted favorite several metallic finishes are represented, among them silver, copper and pewter.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE After fertilizing the eggs of the female salmon, the male, figuring that life is over for him, dies. Male insects also follow this morbid instinct.

Is there resemblance between these self-deprecating creatures and American father? An article in Cosmopolitan says there is. It thinks that our popular cartoon and TV portrayals of Dad as a well-meaning, but bumbling half-wit, are an accurate measure of our low esteem for him. It quotes this comment of a noted anthropologist: "In few societies is the role of father more vestigial than in the United States."

If the American father has relinquished his rights in his own home, don't wonder one bit. No other man in the world has been so harassed by talk of his family's rights. To begin with, he's been trained as an American to hate tyranny. So when the feminists called him tyrannical for refusing equal political rights to his wife, he got so nervous, he gave her any right she wanted to claim.

Then along came the child psychologists with their demands for the rights of his children. When everybody's rights were finally settled, Dad woke up to find he hadn't any.

He's been solving his problem the only way he could. He's made up hobbies, gone on fishing trips and joined men's clubs. He's made himself as scarce as possible from the home that regarded the good, old, self-assertive masculine roar as infringement on other people's rights.

Wiser people than I connect that banished roar to our statistics on divorce, juvenile delinquency and inefficiency. As there's nothing like that banished, baritone roar for clearing homes of the sticky, overconscientious female emotionalism that drives mothers to make big productions of nothing, it's badly missed.

Nor has it helped that Dad performs like a man away from home these days. Time was when his women and children saw him in conquering action. They saw him log logs into fences, gentle the mare, make the trade at the store and come back swinging when frost hit the crop. He was counting on.

No more. Though Dad may be expressing the same resourcefulness and courage every day of his life, the person who sees him in conquering action is his secretary. The respect which his work as a man should be building in his wife and children is built into a stranger who doesn't need it.

The other day a distinguished psychiatrist said to me: "Today it is hard to be a man."

Van Heflin Joins Hollywood Crowd, Leaving 'Easy Street'

By ALINE MOBBY HOLLYWOOD —UP— Van Heflin next fall will quit movies for a possible three years and toss away at least $125,000 in "the biggest gamble of my career" — to act in front of a live audience.

Heflin is following the crowd of film stars who have taken over Broadway as a "stage" with no noticeable scars. But while many movie personalities prefer to sail in and out of a play to get back to big movie money, Heflin has promised to stick with his venture — if it's a hit — for three years.

The actor even is investing in the play, making the venture a two-way risk.

In fact, the way he figures it, including moving the family home to New York, he may come out in the red from this stage try.

"From a career standpoint it's the logical course in development," he explained. "I'd rather be better on the stage than mediocre in pictures."

"Fortunately now I'm in a financial position where I can afford to go back to Broadway. And, of course, I can profit a great deal by going back to the theater in a hit."

The play Heflin has signed to do is "A View From the Bridge" by Arthur Miller of "Death of a Salesman" fame. Actually it consists of two one-act plays. In the first the actor will take a relatively small role.

"Most actors want to make a personal appearance and prove you're an actor," he reflected. "Unfortunately, this is a lousy time to do it, when things are going so well for me here. If the play is a hit I'll be off the screen for possibly three and a half years."

"I signed for the national tour of the play. I prefer touring. It's exciting to meet people in these various towns. You learn what they like about motion pictures—and you never learn by sitting on your fat behind in Hollywood or New York."

Heflin has turned down Broadway roles for years, including "The Shrike," because "of the many sacrifices involved." In fact, listening to him to get up the losses involved I can see why stage actors must be devoted folk who don't mind doing without swimming pools, sunshine, fat paychecks and easy film emotes to face those opening night critics on Broadway.

Evangelist Jams London Stadium

LONDON, May 14—UP—An estimated 80,000 persons jammed huge Wembley stadium Saturday to hear Billy Graham call on them to join "the greatest war of all time" against sin and suffering.

They sat through sporadic showers as the American evangelist launched the opening meeting of a week-long "Crusade for Christ" in London.

"I want you by my side in the greatest war of all time—the war of the spiritual world, the war against evil, against disease and suffering," he said.

"This is the greatest opening night audience we have ever experienced anywhere in the world," Graham told them.

"We stand on the verge of a historic moment... in a world confused, perplexed and frustrated... we have seen an easing of world tension in the last week... it is the beginning of a great spiritual revival," he said.

In Edinburgh, it was disclosed that Graham will be the guest of the Duke of Hamilton, lord high commissioner for Scotland, when he returns there after his continental tour.

Graham will spend two days at Holyrood Castle, Queen Elizabeth's official Scottish residence, as the Duke's guest.

Air Force Shows Off Its 'Academy'

By JACK WILKINSON COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., May 16—UP—The Air Force proudly displayed models of its $126-million academy for the first time Saturday and, like the jet airplane, it outdates all past architectural conceptions.

The models were shown to congressmen, newsmen and others during an elaborate ceremony conducted by high Air Force officials at the Fine Arts Building.

Air Secretary Harold Talbot opened the exhibition of the general layout and motif as approved by himself and his staff in conjunction with consultants Pietro Balluschi of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Eero Saarinen of Detroit, and Welton Becket of Los Angeles.

The concept was designed to take advantage of approximately 17,500 acres of mesas and valleys, dominated by the west by the Rocky Mountains.

The architect declined to either label or classify his concept. They said the academy buildings, through their simplicity of design, are timeless in their architecture.

Material shown in the models and artists' conceptions were aluminum, stainless steel and glass, marble, travertine, and granite.

Two basic considerations underlie the whole conception: 1. To provide efficient, comfortable and simple facilities for the cadet and academy.

2. To provide adequate facilities for families and guests and other visitors.

Shivers Test Of Strength Shapes Up On Gasoline Tax

AUSTIN, May 16—UP—A full-scale test of administration strength took shape Saturday as Gov. Allan Shivers' controversial call for a two-cent hike in the state gasoline tax threatened to cleave both House and Senate.

Sen. J. P. Fuller of Port Arthur predicted majority support of the proposal in the upper chamber. However, he declined to say whether the House would reverse previous action which saw the lower chamber reluctantly accept a one-cent gasoline tax increase but roundly reject the governor's bid for a two-cent boost.

A Senate State Affairs subcommittee, working over the week-end on a bulky bill proposing an estimated $60 million in new taxes, was expected to complete its labors by Monday, opening the way for possible floor debate later next week.

Meantime, floor action, possibly by Wednesday, was scheduled on a conference committee report proposing a record-large $1.5 billion appropriation to finance the state government over the next two fiscal years.

Fuller, administration ball carrier in the upper chamber on the gasoline tax proposal, said the measure has been endorsed by the Texas Good Roads Association, the Texas Association of County Judges and Commissioners and the Texas League of Municipalities.

In an effort to soften opposition and gain city and county backing, administration leaders were expected to propose that one-fourth of one cent of the two-cent increase be allocated to aid cities in the purchase of highway right-of-way.

Meantime, payless lawmakers move Monday into the first full week of their overtime session.

No end was in sight. Some observers predicted the session may continue for another three weeks, continuing the legislative labors into the first week of June.

Pay of $25-a-day for the lawmakers stopped last Tuesday when the regular session hit a deadline of 120 days. After that, the legislators receive nothing.

In addition to the fight-fanning topics of spending and taxes, the House had before it controversial labor legislation still awaiting final action.

One proposal, authored by Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas and approved by the upper chamber, was given tentative approval last week by the House after spanning bitter debate prior to a vote.

The measure, almost certainly to breed further friction in the lower chamber when proponents push for final approval, would bar labor unions from picketing an establishment until they can prove representation of a majority of the employees.

Sure 'n' Begorra, It Isn't An Irish Bridge He Wants At All

OKLAHOMA CITY —UP— An Oklahoma City school teacher Saturday disavowed a letter asking for an Irish bride for himself, not "pampered, petted and spoiled as most American girls are."

The school teacher, Irvin L. Shaw, 30, said a letter bearing his name sent to the mayor of Belfast, Ireland, was evidently a "dirty trick" played on him by an old Navy buddy.

The letter sent to Lord Mayor Sir Percival Brown said the chosen colleen must not be "pampered, petted and spoiled as most American girls are."

Shaw said he didn't write it and wasn't in the market for a mail order bride, Irish or any other kind.

"I think it's a dirty trick myself," Shaw said. "I have a friend in the Navy over there who has apparently given my name and address in the hope he could play a trick on me."

Shaw identified his former buddy as Whitey Williams of Clarksville, Ark. He said Williams told him in a letter he "would try to find me a bride over there."

Shaw said "I can't very well thank him for this. He just gave me a low blow. I'm not exactly embarrassed because I'm innocent—but it's not funny to me."

Shaw, a native of Chickasha, Okla., said he had "made some gesture about wanting correspondence with someone overseas" but had not written any letters.

If any colleen writes to him, he said, he will put a quick halt to the correspondence.

Shaw said he was in the Naval air corps with Williams from 1942 to 1946, but that he had never been in Ireland.

Of Williams, he said: "When the time comes, he is going to get the axe."

Shaw was not looking forward to hearing his East Side grammar school students singing Irish love songs when he is around, but he brightened up as he remembered "School will be out in two weeks."

"Most actors want to make a personal appearance and prove you're an actor," he reflected. "Unfortunately, this is a lousy time to do it, when things are going so well for me here. If the play is a hit I'll be off the screen for possibly three and a half years."

Butler To Speak At Houston Meet

HOUSTON, May 16—UP—Democratic national committee Chairman Paul Butler will speak at the third annual convention of the Young Democratic club, to be held in Houston June 17-19 at the Shamrock hotel, it was announced Saturday.

Recent statements by Butler have caused much speculation as to the relationship of Texas Democrats to the national party. This relationship almost certainly will be high on the list of topics to be discussed at the Young Democrats meeting.

Butler's appearance at the convention was announced by Dean Johnston, state president of the Young Democrats. Johnston also said that Neal Smith, president of the Young Democrats Clubs of America, has accepted an invitation to attend the meeting.

Nebraska Gal Mrs. America

By CLAIRE COX ELLINOR VILLAGE, Fla., May 16—UP—Blonde and blue-eyed Mrs. Ramona Dietemeyer of Lincoln, Neb., a mother of five, donned the crown of "Mrs. America" Saturday when she was judged the best home-maker among contestants from 48 states.

The 35-year-old wife of the managing editor of the Nebraska Farmer won $15,000 worth of prizes to add to truckload of kitchen ware won in previous contests and a trip to Europe.

Mrs. Dietemeyer, who also won two of the preliminaries in the contest at this newly sprung-up tourist resort near Daytona Beach, took the jackpot when she was chosen by the seven judges as best overall home-maker.

Second place in the 17th annual Mrs. America contest went to Mrs. Billie Dorris, 27, Nashville, Tenn., mother of two children.

"Mrs. California," Mrs. Kathleen M. Girvan of Chino, mother of four children, placed third.

Mrs. Dietemeyer won trophies for house cleaning and for preparing the best dinner earlier in the six-day contest. The final victory came as a complete surprise to the five-foot, five-inch housewife.

Her husband had already planned to take her on her first trip to Washington and New York on their way home as a "consolation prize."

The new Mrs. America weighs 125 pounds, has a 34-inch bust, 26 inch waist and 35-inch hips. She has been married 14 years.

She and the other contestants appeared for the final judging in cocktail dresses. This marked the first time in the history of the contest that entrants did not model bathing suits.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Hall were shopping in Amarillo the last of the week.

Daring Offer To Introduce New Customers To The One Combination of Premium Gasoline and Motor Oil That Can Give You The Most Miles Per Gallon:

Only Skelly Guarantees You Either 10% More Miles Per Gallon - Or 10 Gallons of Gasoline FREE! When You Switch To The Skelly Supreme "Power Pair":

Advertisement for Skelly Supreme Motor Oil. Includes a can of Skelly Supreme Motor Oil, a diagram of an engine, and a table of viscosity data.

The famous Skelly Supreme "Power Pair". Skelly Supreme Gasoline, just stepped-up to the highest octane rating in Skelly history, and Skelly Supreme Motor Oil, with the world's highest tested viscosity index. These two superior products, each tops in its own field, are the result of years of Skelly research and development.

YOUR SKELLYMAN IS A GOOD MAN TO KNOW

Switch to the Skelly Supreme "Power Pair" from any other brand of gasoline and motor oil. Then...if you don't get at least 10% more miles per gallon in the next 30 days than you got in the last 30 days, Skelly will give you 10 gallons of Skelly Supreme Gasoline absolutely FREE!

"What does Skelly have," you may ask, "that Skelly can actually guarantee more mileage when others are merely claiming it?"

First, Skelly has just boosted the octane rating of Skelly Supreme Gasoline to the highest level in Skelly history! And, Skelly Supreme Motor Oil has the world's highest viscosity index. Team these two up together and you get power (and mileage) per dollar that no other combination of premium gasoline and motor oil can equal. The industry's own tests prove it.

"But," you may say, "how can switching to Skelly Supreme Motor Oil increase my gasoline mileage?"

It can help these 3 ways: 1. Because Skelly Supreme Motor Oil has the world's highest tested viscosity index, it flows more freely during starting and warm-up—yet maintains a tougher protective film at high engine heats—giving you better lubrication, less mileage-stealing "friction-drag."

2. Minimizes combustion deposits, the main cause of mileage-wasting "pre-ignition."

3. Keeps hydraulic valve lifters, piston rings and cylinder walls free of sticky lacquer and gum, so these parts can function properly at all speeds and temperatures.

Result: a cleaner, properly lubricated engine that squeezes the most miles per gallon from every drop of gasoline.

Look at it this way. You buy gasoline and motor oil anyway. By switching to the Skelly Supreme Power Pair, and giving it a fair test for at least 30 days, you're bound to win—one way or the other: You'll get 10% more mileage by switching to the Skelly Supreme Power Pair—or you get 10 gallons of Skelly Supreme Gasoline FREE!

So what can you lose? Drive into a Skelly station today and start your 30-day test of the Skelly Supreme Power Pair!

Here's all you do to take advantage of Skelly's Sensational Offer:

- 1. Drive into any Skelly station, have your crankcase drained and refilled with Skelly Supreme Motor Oil.
2. Fill up with Skelly Supreme Gasoline.
3. Register for the "10% More Miles" Test.
4. Use only the Skelly Supreme Power Pair for at least 30 days. Record each purchase and the mileage on the form provided.
5. After 30 days, if you have not averaged at least 10% more mileage, Skelly will give you a check for 10 gallons of Skelly Supreme Gasoline absolutely FREE!

World Government

David Sarnoff recently finished a very brilliant article entitled "A Preview of the next 25 Years" with a contradictory statement to the effect that world government is inevitable and that our supreme commitment is to win a genuine peace rooted in liberty.

"We cannot know what form the coming 'one world' will take," he says, "but world law enforced by world peace seems inherent in the age of science and technology."

We can tell him what form world government will take, when and if it comes—terrorism. We certainly cannot have world government and "genuine peace rooted in liberty." The two are incompatible.

The bigger the government the greater the power needed to support it and the liberties of its citizens decrease in exact proportion to the increase in the powers of a government.

The form of world government has already been drawn by the artful architects of UN and there can be little doubt that if we surrender our sovereignty to become a part of a world state it will fit the pattern they have devised.

The plans call for an army of "policemen" to be drawn from each member nation to be used in other countries to enforce the dictates of the superstate. In other words, we will have foreigners policing us and our sons will be drafted to police other nations. This certainly doesn't sound to us like "genuine peace rooted in liberty."

Whatever form the world government takes it can mean nothing to us but tyranny under foreigners. If it should be run on a "democratic" basis, we will be continually outvoted 100 to 1 and forever ruled by foreign dictators.

Who is in a better position to judge the ill effects of big government than we Americans who have watched our own federal government grow from merely a token government with scarcely no power against the individual citizens to the dreadful juggernaut we all stand in awe of today?

The path to "peace rooted in liberty" lies not in more government but in less government. Some day men will awaken to the fact that all governments are harmful to peace and liberty—then we will be getting back to the truths our forefathers knew when they founded this republic—and the idea of world government will go out the window.

The Reds' Game

Adlai Stevenson, the funny man who failed to win the presidency in 1952, recently addressed the nation about Formosa and Chiang Kai-Shek's outpost islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

The would-be humorist's advice to Eisenhower, who still has asked for it, was to let Quemoy and Matsu go down the drain to the Chinese Reds and persuade our allies "to stand with us in the defense of Formosa against any aggression, pending some final settlement of its status—by independence, neutralization, trusteeship, plebiscite or whatever is wisest."

Some notice was taken of the speech in the press—particularly the Communist press organ the Daily Worker in New York City. The Worker just loved the speech and squealed with joy over Stevenson's call to abandon Quemoy and Matsu and was most happy over the fact that Stevenson had joined with Senators Wayne Morse and Herbert Lehman, a fine pair of New Dealers, in an effort to split the Democratic party on foreign policy. The Daily Worker even swallowed its pride sufficiently to say that it went along with his recommendation that we flatly refuse for the time being to get off Formosa. On this point, the Worker said that Stevenson was "slightly more flexible" than Eisenhower.

We are not attempting to say that Stevenson was consciously playing the Red's game for them in the United States. Unconsciously, however, that is exactly what he did in this speech. It is exactly what appears of the Morse-Lehman tribe are doing—and we don't know whether they are doing it consciously or unconsciously.

This whole gang ought to be given full consideration by the voters any time they run for office or reelection, as the case may be. And the consideration ought to be a flat repudiation of their viewpoints.

THE CRACKER BARREL

And yet we claim to be an educated—even a somewhat educated—people!

William Lyon Phelps, for over 30 years professor of English at Yale University, said, "I believe a knowledge of the Bible without a college course is more valuable than a college course without a knowledge of the Bible."

John Quincy Adams Sixth President of the United States, asserted, "The Bible is the book of all others, to be read at all ages, and in all conditions of human life; not to be read once or twice or three through, and then laid aside, but to be read in small portions, of one or two chapters every day, and never to be intermitted, unless by some overruling necessity."

And John Wansmaker declared,

Washington has been making a great effort to hush up the recommendations made by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee (under the chairmanship of Senator William E. Jenner) even though they are vital to the welfare of the country. One of the recommendations states: "The State and Treasury Departments should immediately determine the extent of the policy making activities of Alger Hiss, Harry Dexter White and other officials who have been exposed as members of the Communist underground. The results of these studies should be made public."

Jonathan Yank

"I cannot too greatly emphasize the importance and value of Bible study—more important than ever before in these days of uncertainties, when men and women are apt to decide questions from the standpoint of expediency rather than on the eternal principles laid down by God, Himself."

Truth Seeker's Academic Freedom

Since a better understanding of who is entitled to academic freedom is much needed and since it is of the utmost importance that more and more individuals come to know the difference between education and training, I want to quote and comment further on Russell Kirk's book "Academic Freedom."

Professor Kirk admits that there are some teachers and professors who are not entitled to academic freedom. He believes that colleges supported on a voluntary basis are superior to those supported by taxation. He quotes a friend of John Dewey by the name of Dr. Melklejohn as saying:

"Faith in the divine author and authority in which Western civilization confided, inherited ideas of the soul and its destiny, of fixed revelation . . . have been made impossible for the cultivated mind of the Western world."

Then Professor Kirk continues: "If it were true that Pragmatism had indeed made such beliefs impossible, then we might do very well to forget the example of Socrates, and abandon our foolish talk about human dignity and freedom and the high ordination of the teacher, and go over to the cult of Demos and the adulation of mediocrity and creature-comforts."

"I think we need no longer be afraid to say, with Calhoun, Democracy, as I understand and accept it, requires me to sacrifice myself for the masses, not to them. Who knows not that if you would save the people, you must often oppose them?"

He explains that the real seeker-after-truth is not subject to any man-made authority. He is not its agent. He observes that the best way to explain what academic freedom really means is to quote the statement made by Socrates when he was on trial for his life. Those who have read Socrates' Apology will recognize it, but it is worth repeating:

"Men of Athens, I honor and love you; but I shall obey God rather than you and while I have life and strength I shall never cease from the practice and teaching of philosophy, exhorting anyone whom I meet after my manner, and convincing him, saying: O my friends, why do you care for the opinion of men, and do not care for the opinion of God, as I would have you do? I interrogate and examine and cross-examine him, and if I think he has no virtue, and if I think he has no virtue, and if I reproach him with undervaluing the greater and overvaluing the less. And this I should say to everyone whom I meet, young and old, citizen and alien, and especially to the citizens, inasmuch as they are my brethren. For this is the command of God, as I would have you know, and I believe that to this day no greater good has ever happened in the State than my service to the God. For I do nothing but go about persuading you all, old and young alike, not to take thought for your persons and your properties, but first and chiefly to take care about the greatest improvement of the soul."

Then Professor Kirk states: "For Socrates did not adhere to the opinion that he was simply commissioned as an agent of the people to serve them by 'forms of intellectual activity which belong to them. It was not the people's purposes he was serving, or even his own, but the purposes of Truth, which generally is unpopular, and which never comes out of the masses taken collectively. In the long run, the people not let him go at all, and young alike, not to take thought for your persons and your properties, but first and chiefly to take care about the greatest improvement of the soul."

The publicity theme for the Harriman promotion is that he is a "dedicated man." In order to offset any prejudice against his multimillionaire status, it is pointed out that he deserted the Party of wealth and conservatism to support the late Alfred E. Smith. It is also noted that his acceptance of low-paid Federal posts under Roosevelt New Dealers or Truman Fair Dealers, Harriman had adopted an extremely liberal line. He has chided Capitol Hill Democrats, albeit mildly, for not pressing a more intelligent attack on the White House. He thinks that Administration blunders should be laid directly at Ike's door. The Harriman-De Sapo strategy calls for a chorus of demands that Stevenson divulge his 1954 intentions. Then, if the reaction to his declaration to seek the nomination again is not favorable, Harriman will strut his stuff more actively than he is doing now.

Stevenson's own friends think that he should not delay in notifying the Party whether he will be available. For one thing, it might stave off rivals and prevent better primary-fights next why, then, what is to replace these traditional concepts of the ends of education and the duties of the academy? A "scholarship" concerned only with the miscellaneous accumulation of facts, or with the kind of criticism which ignores values, or with mere utilitarian endeavors to extend man's mastery over nature, will repel and dismay the best minds of any era; the true scholars will sink into apathy or else turn their talents to action, rather than thought. And no society will long support and protect "scholars" of this ignoble pattern; having proved derelict in their duty of guiding the minds and hearts of mankind, the inhabitants of such an academy will be deprived of their "academic freedom."

Tammany Hall Boss Spurring Harriman To Oppose Adlai

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Carmine G. De Sapo, ambitious Tammany Hall boss, is the man who is spurring Averell Harriman's political desires to the point where the Governor of New York is openly challenging his old friend, Adlai E. Stevenson, for the 1956 Presidential nomination. Having wrested New York City Hall and Albany from the GOP, De Sapo yearns to become a maker of Presidents.

The build-up for Harriman has assumed unexpected proportions within the last month. He was given a tryout before a distinguished audience when he was invited to speak for the Democratic opposition before the recent Grid-iron dinner, with Governor Goodwin J. Knight of California as his opponent. The New York man never misses a chance to air his views, and always discusses national rather than state issues.

Whereas he was known at Washington as a modest, unassuming and taciturn individual, he has become a political extrovert. He has followed F.D.R.'s policy of surrounding himself with able advisers who once wrote the late President's flowery and fiery speeches. The labor in his political vineyard is beginning to bear fruit at Washington and elsewhere.

Robert Hutchins, former president of Chicago University and a confirmed New Dealer, recently read a "riot act" to editors for their alleged partiality. If our Majority Leader John W. McCormack inserted the Hutchins critique in the Congressional Record, it may be ironic and significant, but many of Ike's Cabinet members think that the press aggregates Administration mistakes!

A Judge Decides Woman, 44, Needs To Be Put In Asylum

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Mrs. Manuel Miller, of Bethel, Vt., has been seized and transported to a lunatic asylum 800 miles away. Mrs. Miller is 44 years old and the mother of 10-year-old twin girls and a boy of 11. Her first-born, a little boy, died in 1933 of burns suffered when he tried to put out a fire in the small wood-working shop by which his parents supported the family. He saved his little brother but died after ten weeks of suffering. His conduct was regarded by the neighbors as true heroism.

By order of Judge Ernest Gibson of the U. S. Court for Vermont, Mrs. Miller is officially a dangerous lunatic although her conduct in her neighborhood never had caused the slightest complaint. She was ordered confined in St. Elizabeth's hospital in the district of Columbia, a ramshackle, red brick, bughouse. Ezra Pound, probably the greatest living American poet, has hidden in the St. Elizabeth's for ten years for something he is suspected of having said in Italy where he had lived a long time, while the United States was at war.

Mrs. Miller decided that the Selective Service Act violated the 13th amendment against involuntary servitude. She told neighborhood draftees of her belief and was indicted. She advocates defense by a strong army of well-paid volunteers. Instead of facing the issue, the U. S. Attorney questioned whether she was sane enough to understand the gravity of the charge. Accordingly, Judge Gibson sent her to a lunatic asylum in his own home town where she was detained three weeks under trying conditions. During her imprisonment there she wrote a powerful description of the place and the conduct of the attendants and patients, not complimentary to the institution and shapely hostile to psychiatrists.

Then, in another court hearing, two psychiatrists from the same bughouse testified that Lucille Miller was insane while neighbors testified to her good character and behavior. Her husband, Manuel, a loyal ally in a fight which she has been waging against Communists in Vermont, rejected counsel for her. Both demanded a speedy trial, according to the sixth article of the Constitution. They spoke with emphasis that Mrs. Miller had attacked Judge Gibson in a mimeograph anti-Communist publication which she had been mailing to a select list. They said that some other judge should try the case but they may not have done this in proper legal form.

Mrs. Miller had charged that Harry Truman appointed Gibson shortly before the second Alger Hiss trial in hope that a change of venue would be granted from New York to Gibson's bench in Vermont. Truman had belittled the Hiss case as a "Red Herring." Mrs. Miller's suspicion may have been baseless, but the facts remain that she had attacked Judge Gibson and that he knew it.

Mrs. Miller drove from cover near Bethel and into public notice. Lucille Miller first exposed the association at Bethel of Owen Lattimore with Ordway Southard and his wife, who bought from him a half-interest in a house with no down payment. Southard had been the Communist candidate for governor and his wife a Communist candidate for the state senate in Alabama. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, was Lattimore's partner in the house. Stefansson allowed Southard to study secret data on Arctic lands and waters near Alaska of interest to Soviet Russia. Dartmouth College, under the Rockefeller administration now in force, has been ostentatiously cordial to Stefansson, or Southard, as a "savant."

Manuel Miller is afraid his wife will be forcibly subjected to brain surgery in St. Elizabeth's. He knows of no way to prevent it and they are friendly. Persons accused of the most horrible crimes may rely on the civil liberties union for elaborate defense.

Neither Lucille nor Manuel Miller ever threw a rock at any Communist, any judge or anyone else.

New Flavored Jacket Sign Of New Fashions For Men

By HENRY McLEMORE

I couldn't have been more surprised if I had found an 18-year-old foundling on my doorstep than I was this morning when I unwrapped a package a postman had left on my stoop.

At first glance the contents appeared to be an emergency life raft, but on closer inspection it turned out to be, of all things, a banana-colored dinner jacket, a compliment of the After-Six Company.

An accompanying card expressed the hope that I would enjoy many pleasant evenings in the jacket and explained that if banana wasn't my favorite color I was privileged to exchange it for the jacket for some other shade, such as Black Walnut, Grape, Strawberry, Mint or Blueberry.

Just what is this After-Six Company? A friendly, neighborhood druggist? And is his head designer a dejected soda jerk? The After-Six people can expect stiff competition if Howard Johnson goes into the clothing business and offer 28 different flavored dinner jackets, including Flat-topped, Tutti-Frutti, Chocolate Chip, Butter Pecan, Peppermint, Coconut and Peanut Brittle.

Naturally I tried on my new banana jacket at once, and the effect was good. As I prepared before the mirror I saw a man who looked ready for a mambo, a samba, a high dive into a bowl of gelatin, or a place on the menu as a banana split in a kids' after-school hang-out.

I read in a fashion column for men somewhere that these ice cream shades have caught on pretty well, and it isn't hard to figure out why. They help to solve the closet space problem for a man when a woman gets through hanging up her clothes there never is any room for the man's things, but with these coats a man won't read any. The deep-rear is the logical place for them. You wouldn't want to wear a Black Walnut coat that was beginning to drip at the sleeves or a runny Blueberry one.

And think how refreshing it will be on warm summer nights to slip on an evening jacket that has been kept at around freezing temperature all week. Just like putting on a well-cut air-conditioning unit. A fellow wearing such a jacket will be real "cool," not getting away from it, and a lady-killer from way back.

The flavored coats are another forward step toward releasing the male from the drab garb that has been his for years and years. Since the first Elizabeth's time man has largely dressed as if he was appointed to a mortician, and his somber apparel could not have done more to help dampen his natural spirits. The bluebird is much gayer than the raven, so I've heard.

I know that I felt even gayer and more foolish than usual the moment I put on my new banana jacket. And why I took a strawberry out of the refrigerator and stuck it in my lapel as a bottom-piece I felt as frivolous as a fruit cocktail.

For a moment I was tempted to top myself off with a dash of grenadine and a marshmallow, fly to Las Vegas before I melted, and try to follow Liberace's act. But I haven't got a brother's name's George.

SYD COHEN, MANAGER OF THE El Paso Texans who completed a three-game series with the Oilers Saturday night, rates the West Texas-New Mexico League as much sounder than the Arizona-Texas League of which the Texans have been a member in the past years.

"I believe this league has better pitching and hitting than the A-T League," Cohen says. "I think now it seems that every club is going to be in the thick of the pennant race right down the wire," Cohen adds.

"Look at us," Cohen continues. "We're hovering around the cellar now but we're only five games back of the league leaders."

"We've been losing a lot of close games and I believe some of these close ones will start turning in our favor in time," the ex-Major Leaguer says.

"We're hurting for a good hitting third baseman and another pitcher," Cohen points out. "If we can come up with this needed strength we're going to give somebody some trouble."

Cohen, in explaining about his close decision that he had been going against him, said that the Texans have lost five games in the ninth inning and one or two others in the eighth.

At the time the Texans were in Pampa, the El Pasoans had played every team in the league with exception of Clovis and the Texans opened a series against the Oilers yesterday.

When asked what team he thought was the toughest he'd met, Cohen replied, "I believe Pampa possibly is the best we've met. I doubt if you'll be making any change during the season."

"The Oilers pitching doesn't seem to be too strong but all of the league's batsmen seem to be a little ahead of the pitchers now," Cohen said.

Cohen is high on the Oiler shortstop, Rach Slider. "Slider, I believe, is definitely a prospect," Cohen said.

"He has speed and a good arm. If he falls to go up it will be in his hitting," Cohen added. "We pointed out to Cohen that although Slider's average isn't too high, he nearly always gets good wood on the ball but that the balls haven't been falling in the right spots."

At the time of our conversation with Cohen, Slider had been at the plate 100 times and had struck out on only seven occasions. And then, too, Slider owned a .364 batting average at the time of our conversation with the Texan skipper who is good for a youngster like Slider coming up the ranks.

Slider, who bats 'em left handed, got only three hits in his first 18 times at bat in the Oiler games against El Paso, but most of these at bats were against the Texans fine lefthander, Mike Conovan.

It's long been proven in baseball that lefthand pitchers have the edge over players batting from the wrong side.

Cohen, like most of the other managers in the WT-NM, is complaining about the schedule. "After we played our first home series, two games against Albuquerque, we took off on a ten-day road trip," Cohen said.

El Paso, of course, is at a disadvantage so far as location is concerned. There may not be much else you can do about the Texan schedule although it does look like it could have been arranged for the Texans to be home more than two days before embarking on a long road jaunt.

Albuquerque is the closest city in the league to El Paso and the Duke city isn't exactly around the corner from the Border town—275 miles.

By comparison, only two cities in the league are farther than 275 miles from Pampa, Albuquerque and El Paso.

Cohen's time in the majors was spent with the Washington Senators in the American League. Cohen had to face such fellows as Lou Gehrig, Bill Dickey, Babe Ruth, Charley Gehring to name only a few during his big league career (1934-1937).

Cohen was strictly a relief pitcher for the Sens. In 1937, Cohen appeared in 33 games for the Senators and compiled a 2-4 record, showing that he was pretty much of a workhorse although his won-lost record doesn't show it.

Well, it's nice to have Cohen and the Texans in the WT-NM League. El Paso, whether she finishes in the first division or not, is definitely an asset to the WT-NM.

DON COCKELL... challenger

Rock Favored By 10-1 Tonight

By JACK CUDDY SAN FRANCISCO —UP— Rocky Marciano, a terrific slugger with a tender nose, will defend his world heavyweight crown Monday night against England's Don Cockell, the awkwardly plump but fast-punching champion of the British Empire.

This first Anglo-American battle for the heavy title in 18 years is expected to attract about 28,000 to Kezar Stadium, an oval football bowl on the south fringe of Golden Gate Park.

From the weather man came an encouraging forecast of "fair, cool and slightly windy." He said temperatures would be in the low 50's when the rocky "Brockton block-fuster" and the poly-poly "Battersea blimp" square off at 7 p.m. (est).

No Home Telecast Since the international "classic" will not be televised to homes, the promoters expect the richest gate ever drawn by a fight west of the Mississippi, approximately $350,000.

Tommy Farr of Wales, the last British challenger, failed to take the crown from Joe Louis in 1937, but he lasted the distance.

Marciano, the ring's first perfect-record heavyweight champion, is favored at the lopsided odds of 10 to 1 to register his 48th straight professional victory as he makes his fifth title defense.

But should underdog Don provide an upset—possibly by reopening the split in Rocky's nose—he would be the first native-born English citizen to win the heavy crown, Bob Fitzsimmons, though born in England, was a naturalized United States citizen when he took the title from James J. Corbett in 1897.

In case of a Cockell victory they are contracted for a return title bout, somewhere in the United States within 90 days.

This clash between Swarthy Marciano, son of a former Brockton (Mass.) shoemaker, and brown-haired Cockell, a pig-and-poultry farmer of Horam, England, has the additional significance of indicating whether San Francisco now can be classed as a "big-fight city."

This scheduled 15-rounder is the first fight for the undisputed heavy crown staged in Golden Gate metropolis, since 1909, when Jack Johnson fought Al Kaufman here.

Challenger Unimpressive Thirty-year-old Marciano, a plodding bob-weaver, slugger is heavily favored over the upright, 26-year-old boxer because of his punch, ruggedness and stamina. Also because the challenger was unimpressive in training.

Rocky, who wrestled the crown from Jersey Joe Walcott in 1952, has knocked out 41 of his 47 opponents. Cockell, an "in-and-out" during most of his career, stopped only 28 of 72, or one-half of his opponents. His 61-to-1 record discloses he was stopped five times.

However, the English farmer—who formerly was a blacksmith in London's teeming Battersea section—was selected as challenger for Marciano because he is the Empire champ, because he won his last 10 fights, and because he has fought six Americans.

Marciano will receive 40 per cent of all net proceeds, Cockell 20. One referee and two judges will score by dividing 11 points for each round between the two fighters.

Receipts from theater TV—Expected more than $200,000. Receipts from radio—$35,000 from NBC, others not announced. Receipts from movies—Depends on demand.

Fighters' purses—Marciano receives 40 per cent of all net receipts; Cockell, 20 per cent. Return bout—If Cockell wins, must give Marciano return title shot in the United States in 90 days.

Time of title fight—9 p.m. (est). Television—Only on closed-circuit theater-TV to 83 theaters in 59 cities. No home TV.

Radio—by NBC in United States and Canada; by BBC in British Isles; also broadcast to Latin America. Movies—Wink Films via United Artists.

Beating Victim Is 'Satisfactory'

TEKARKANA, May 16 --UP-- Mrs. Fred Edwards, a 34-year-old mother for Cass county, Tex., who was beaten nearly to death by a burly cripple, was reported Saturday night to be in satisfactory condition and recovering.

The cripple is Melvin Maddox, 33, who confessed in Dallas under a lie detector, that he hit Mrs. Edwards last Monday with a flat iron and threw her six-year-old daughter, Geraldine, from a bridge into a creek.

Maddox, said, however, that he didn't remember raping Mrs. Edwards. He said he threw Geraldine from the bridge--she was able to crawl out of the creek--and fled because he got scared.

He denied knowing anything about the murder of Mrs. Irene Pate Walker, 32, of Houston, whose mutilated body was found in a lover's lane near Marshall on May 2.

Maddox, under a charge of assault with intent to murder, is still being held in Dallas county jail.
