Girls Take Up Nixon's Offer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Eighteen years ago, a touring American held twin baby girls in his arms at a public health clinic in La Paz, Bolivia, and said he'd see to it they got a college education in the United States when they grew up.

His name was Richard Nixon. Ruth and Judith Leonardini arrived here Wednesday to take him up on the offer.

Nixon was vice president when he made the promise during a tour of Latin America. It was recalled by the girls' mother and a Bolivian newspaper when the girls turned 18 last March 28.

Twenty-seven schools offered full scholarships when the promise was recalled, including Whittier College, Nixon's Southern California alma mater.

The girls opted for Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, because it is operated by the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints (Mormons), and they are Mormons.

Their trip to the United States was sponsored by the Utah-Bolivia chapter of the Partners of the Americas.

The twins were scheduled to visit Disneyland today before going to Provo, where they start a crash course in English at Brigham Young Monday.

Cost Of Living Keeps Climbing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's worst inflation in 22 years eased slightly in May, but higher prices for food, clothing, gasoline, used cars and household services still pushed the cost of living up 0.6 per cent, the government said today.

Although the May increase was smaller than the price jumps in the three previous months — the highest three-month rise since 1951 — the Labor Department said its Consumer Price Index (CPI) now stood 5.5 per cent above a year ago — more than twice the government's 2.5 per cent price guideline.

Retail prices have risen at an annual rate of 7.2 per cent over the past six months and at a yearly rate of 8.7 per cent over the past three months. The May CPI did not reflect the 60-day price freeze ordered by President Nixon last week, but it did show the full impact of the meat price ceilings he ordered late in March. As a result, meat prices fell 0.1 per cent in May after rising 13.2 per cent during the previous four months.

Average Earnings Decline
While the cost of living continued to go up, the BLS said average weekly earnings of rank and file workers failed to keep up with the higher prices last month. The purchasing power of their average earnings declined 0.3 per cent last month.

The 0.6 per cent rise in prices in May was under the 0.7 per cent jumps in February and April and the 0.9 per cent advance in March. But it was still higher than for January of this year or any single month in 1972.

The CPI in May was 131.5. This meant that goods and services which cost $10 in the 1967 base period cost $13.15 last month.

Pageant Plans Prepared For Miss Top O' Texas

Pampa's 1973 Miss Top O' Texas Beauty Pageant has been set for 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 11, in the M.K. Brown Auditorium. The annual event will be open to any single girl between 16 and 21 years of age with good character and reputation and sponsored by a business firm or civic organization.

Neighboring towns will be eligible to sponsor one contestant in competition with Pampa contestants for the Miss Top O' Texas crown.

Pampa's highest ranking contestant will represent the city in the Wheatheart of the Nation contest at Perryton later in August.

Contestants will be judged in formal gowns and one-piece swim suits. Judges from out of town will grade contestants on

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) said food prices went up 1.0 per cent in May, the smallest increase this year. Commodities other than food went up 0.6 per cent while the prices of services increased 0.4 per cent.

Restaurant Prices Rise
The BLS said food prices in grocery stores went up 0.9 per cent instead of declining as they usually do in May. With the exception of meats and eggs, most foods showed price increases — with sharp jumps for dairy products, fish, coffee, cereal and bakery products and smaller increases for fresh vegetables, particularly potatoes, onions, cabbage and celery.

The price index for restaurant meals went up 1.4 per cent in May, the largest monthly increase since that index first was published more than 20 years ago. Price increases of 1.2 per cent for gasoline and motor oil, 2.8 per cent for used cars and 0.8 per cent for clothing accounted for most of the increase in the non-food commodities index.

The BLS said new car prices held steady, but they normally drop slightly in May. In the services category, charges for household services went up 0.4 per cent, primarily because of increases in rent, mortgage interest costs, and home maintenance and housekeeping services.

Nixon, Brezhnev Reach Nuclear Research Pact

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev have reached agreements to exchange nuclear research and speed the process of nuclear disarmament, and will fly back to Washington today to sign them, the White House announced.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the agreements were reached at talks at this mountain retreat Tuesday. They are considered the most important visible results of the eight-day summit. The pacts would provide for joint research and exchange of scientific and technological information in the peaceful uses of atomic energy and also would outline the basic principles for U.S. and Soviet negotiators trying to reach agreement on limitations on offensive nuclear weapons.

Ziegler said the agreements would be signed at 2:30 p.m. CDT in the East room of the White House. Nixon and Brezhnev will end their two days of talks here and helicopter to the White House to participate in the ceremony.

U.S. officials said decisions Nixon and Brezhnev reached will accelerate the enormously complicated task of negotiating mutual restraints in nuclear armaments. They predicted a comprehensive agreement will be reached in a year and a half — well before the limited, five-year agreement placed in force in 1972 expires.

Ceremony Planned
A late afternoon ceremony in the East Room of the White House was planned to formalize the pacts, which are extensions of agreements reached during the initial Nixon-Brezhnev summit in Moscow 13 months ago.

Nixon and Brezhnev negotiated for more than five hours Wednesday at this rustic mountaintop retreat, conferring for a time before a fire when the weather was chilly and wet and moving to the side of a swimming pool when it improved.

The atmosphere of cordiality continued to be evident when the President and the Soviet Communist party general secretary took breaks from their labors. In the afternoon, Brezhnev climbed behind the wheel of the shiny, new Lincoln Continental Nixon had given him and took the President for a 10-minute ride over Camp David's narrow mountain roads. They were accompanied by an interpreter.

They also took a walk beside a mountain stream near Aspen, the presidential lodge. The jovial Brezhnev was decked out in an American-style windbreaker. Nixon had given him with the presidential seal on one side and his name emblazoned on the other.

Brezhnev Talks to Reporters
Brezhnev asked reporters how they liked his jacket. "It's all the President's doing," he said. He pointed to his name on the jacket and said, "you see, there is ample proof it is mine."

Brezhnev acted like a super-salesman trying to arrange some business deals, which is exactly what he is doing. He sent his spokesman, Leonid Zamyatkin, out to tell newsmen that the possibilities of trade between the two nations are "far from exhausted" and to say his country was ready to conclude "large scale deals based on mutual advantage" with the United States.

"We have no intention of getting anything in the United States free of charge and neither do we intend the United States to get anything from us free of charge," Zamyatkin said.

Details of the nuclear agreements were not immediately disclosed.

Far More Important

The other is far more important in its long-range implications. According to an official who has seen it, it would outline a series of principles to guide U.S. and Soviet negotiators attempting to find satisfactory ways of limiting both the quality and quantity of nuclear arms.

These negotiations, called SALT II, are to reach accord which would supplant the SALT I agreements signed during the Moscow summit. SALT I froze offensive nuclear weapons at current levels for five years and limited defensive missiles to 200 at two sites in each country.

Gunbattles Mar Peron's Return

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Hundreds of special police today guarded former President Juan D. Peron whose return Wednesday from 18 years of exile was marred by bloody gunbattles between dissident Peronists near the airport where he was to have landed.

Sporadic fighting continued for three hours, claiming 14 dead and 225 injured, according to spokesmen at four hospitals. Buenos Aires newspapers said as many as 20 may have been killed in the battles involving right-wing Peronists and Marxist-oriented Trotskyite Peronists.

Actor-singer Leonardo Vaidi, official spokesman for the rally, accused Interior (Police) Minister Alberto Righi of responsibility for letting the masses get out of hand and said he showed "little intelligence" in handling the situation. He said the fight erupted after Righi said police would refuse to put down "popular demonstrations."

Peron said he would speak tonight and define what his role will be in the 27-day-old Peronist government headed by his handpicked president.

Free buses which had taken the crowds from government sponsored free trains from all over the country failed to return to the rally site Wednesday night and by 10 a.m. today about 100,000 persons were hitchhiking back to the capital.

Thousands of the nation's poor jammed railroad stations and bus terminals today for the sad trek back to their provincial homes, clutching the free round-trip tickets that the government provided so they could witness the return of the man who ruled the country for 10 years until his overthrow in 1955.

What was to have been a gala celebration degenerated into a bloodbath and the huge crowd that gathered outside town never caught a glimpse of the 77-year-old Peron. His plane carrying him back from Madrid was diverted to another airport because of the violence.

Thousands of bystanders hugged the ground in panic during the three-hour exchange of gunfire that forced Peron's Aerolineas Argentinas jetliner to land at a military airfield.

He later went on nationwide radio and television to beg "a thousand pardons for not having greeted personally" the throng that had turned out to greet him. He said he did not land at Ezeiza because he feared crowds would invade the runway and cause injury. He also said he did not fly to the rally site because he feared "new disorders."

Ski-Masked Man Frolics In The Buff

It was Summer's Eve — not Halloween — but there he was — the skinny man in the ski mask!

The startled observers who saw him across the street in the 1000 block of Mary Ellen knew he was skinny because they could count his ribs!

No, he wasn't entirely nude — he had that crazy ski mask on!

He came up the drive of a vacant house listed for sale, according to the account given police, paused under an awning, then moved forward about ten feet into the brightness of clear view.

Suddenly, he became aware he was being observed. He turned, ran toward the house, then changed his course and charged through the back gate and up the alley, according to footprints left behind.

He was described as about five feet, eight inches, slender build — oops! — skinny. — Forgot those ribs — and either with no hair at all or light blond locks. Oh, yes. He was very fast.

He went up that alley for a block in the buff without being seen.

If you see a man answering that description, count his ribs. If you can — call police.

SOLVE GARBAGE PROBLEM

Astros Cleaning House Before Heading 'Home'

HOUSTON (UPI) — A bag jammed in Skylab's vital airlock trash disposer on the astronauts' final day of flight today but they managed to free it and save the space station from what could have been a massive garbage problem.

"Boy, is that ever good news," said ground communicator Henry Hartsfield when Paul J. Weitz reported that "a judicious application of muscle" cleared the garbage dump.

"You ought to hear the sighs of relief down here," Hartsfield said from the mission control center.

"It weren't nothing compared to the sighs here, Babe," Weitz said.

The problem, and its quick solution, came as Weitz, Charles "Pete" Conrad and Joseph P. Kerwin cleaned house and finished packing for their return to Earth Friday after a record 28 days in orbit.

Filter Gets Stuck
The pilots plan to leave the space station at 3:45 a.m. CDT, fly their Apollo ferry ship around the lab for one last look and then gradually descend to a Pacific Ocean splashdown at 8:50 a.m.

Conrad reported the trash trouble at 8 a.m. as Skylab swept over the California coast.

"We've got some bad news for you, Houston," he said. He reported that a bag containing a charcoal air filter and four spacesuit gloves got stuck midway through the 14-inch diameter cylinder leading to a large tank that serves as the sole container for the pilots' garbage.

Before launch, Weitz said failure of the trash dump was one of his main worries. He said then, "If that thing breaks, we'd be in a heap of trouble." Failure to operate the airlock would have created tremendous garbage disposal problems for two more crews scheduled to spend a total of 16 weeks aboard Skylab.

Trouble Averted
Conrad said it would be "pure luck" if they could free the jammed bag. But 15 minutes later, they had managed once again to save the space station from potentially serious trouble.

"The trash airlock is operative one more time," reported Weitz.

High Court Rules On Racial Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, in its first decision on a school desegregation case from a northern city, ruled today that intentional racial discrimination in part of a school system leaves the entire system tainted and subject to court action.

In a long-awaited opinion concerning Denver public schools, the Court majority said that where intentional segregation has been shown with respect to a significant portion of the system, authorities must prove that their actions involving other segregated schools were not likewise motivated.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr. spoke for the court in an opinion in which four other justices joined. The others stated various concurring views. Justice Byron R. White, who comes from Colorado, did not participate in the decision.

Brennan said U.S. District Judge William E. Doyle of Denver, who already has written four opinions in the complex case, now must determine whether the Denver school board's deliberate segregation policy respecting northeast Denver schools renders the whole school system illegal.

Two-part Suit
Proof that authorities have pursued an intentional segregation policy in a substantial portion of the Denver system will support a finding by a trial judge of the existence of an unacceptable dual system unless authorities can show that the district is divided into clearly unrelated units, the opinion said.

The NAACP Legal Defense Fund (LDF), which initiated the Denver suit on behalf of black parents, divided its attack in two parts. The first challenged a school board action rescinding desegregation resolutions of an earlier board pertaining to the schools in the Park Hill section of the city.

Doyle ordered the original resolutions carried out and was upheld by the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judge Overruled
Doyle held the allegation was not true but ordered desegregation action at 12 schools on the ground that they were not offering minorities an education "equal" to that of whites. He rejected the black parents' attack on the "neighborhood" school policy.

Price Offers Legislation For Alaska Oil Pipeline

Congressman Bob Price of Pampa announced today he has introduced legislation, H.B. 8774, authorizing the construction of the trans-Alaskan pipeline.

The Congressman said he took the action in the belief that development of Alaska's tremendous fuel reserves is of vital importance in allowing the nation to successfully meet future energy needs.

"Further delay in construction of this pipeline can only compound our present critical shortage of petroleum products and result in our further reliance on imported energy supplies," Price stated.

As introduced, the Price legislation addresses itself to the two problems which have thus far resulted in delaying construction of the trans-Alaskan pipeline — the environmental issue and the fact that the width of the right of way required exceeds the width permitted under the Federal Mineral Leasing Act of 1920.

The Price bill declares that the statement prepared by the Secretary of the Interior with respect to the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 meets the requirements and amends the Federal Mineral Leasing Act of 1920 to permit construction of the pipeline.

Commenting on the controversy surrounding whether a trans-Alaskan or trans-Canadian pipeline be built, the Congressman indicated that all available evidence points to the fact that, despite other problems, the trans-Canadian pipeline would not bring an oil flow to the lower United States for another ten years, whereas should a trans-Alaskan line be constructed, the oil would be flowing to our lower 48 states within three years.

"With the United States currently experiencing a critical shortage of petroleum supply which has caused the closure of schools and factories, and has created unemployment in many regions of the country, disrupted truck, rail and air transportation, and prevented farmers from harvesting their crops," Congressman Price said, "we cannot continue to delay construction of a pipeline which will enable our nation to utilize the over 10 billion barrels of oil discovered on the Alaskan North Slope."

Price also added that the country needs to close the growing gap between domestic supply and increasing demands.

"It is not in the best interest of the United States to become dependent on imported oil to fill domestic needs," Price said.

"We cannot continue to procrastinate when it comes to the energy issue. We are facing a crisis and we must take positive action. Again, I ask the proper committees and the Congress to act quickly on my legislation."

Tom Dunn, Adobe Walls Area Council Camp promotion chairman, is director of the Cub-O-Ree. The camp staff will assist the Cubs, Webelos and their leaders in having a program of fun and adventure at the Council Camp.

FDA Poses Strong Warning On Female Deodorant Spray

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two major manufacturers of female deodorant sprays indicated today they are willing to start warning consumers that their products could cause rashes and other harmful reactions.

But there was little industry comment on the Food and Drug Administration's claim that such products are medically and hygienically worthless, and no indication the drug firms will reformulate the sprays to ease the problem.

The FDA Wednesday proposed a strongly worded warning for the labels of female deodorant sprays, $55 million of which were sold last year.

In addition, the FDA said it "knows of no medical or hygienic benefits derived from these sprays." Under the proposed regulation, the agency will consider misbranded any feminine deodorant spray which uses the words 'hygiene,' 'hygienic' or 'similar words implying medical usefulness.'

Alberto Culver Co., Melrose Park, Ill., whose "FDS" is a leading product in the field, said "We are prepared to conform with any regulations and to make the changes on the label. We've known this was coming for some time."

But the company denied it had been making medical or hygienic claims for the product, saying it had been promoted primarily as a "grooming aid."

And a spokesman said Alberto-Culver saw "no necessity" to reformulate the spray to lessen the chance for adverse reactions.

The superintendent of the impoverished Asherton School District, which includes Briscoe's Caterina Ranch, said Briscoe's land was valued for tax purposes at $7.11 per acre when it should have been much higher and as a result Briscoe has not paid all the property taxes he should have.

The school depends on large part on these property taxes for its revenue.

Briscoe's tax attorney, Phil Creelcius, said Wednesday Briscoe's valuation was actually $10 per acre, the same as well all the other ranchers in the area.

"This was the value placed on the property by the county and is the same value as taxes were paid on by all other ranchers in the county," Creelcius said.

Briscoe said he and other landowners always paid what the taxing authorities assessed them. He said the Asherton School District could solve some of its financial problems by consolidating with the wealthier Carrizzo Springs School District.

"I represented that district in the legislature some years back and we made great improvements," Briscoe said.

Mitchell Seeking Delay Of Watergate Testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell has asked the Senate Watergate committee not to force him to testify because he expects to be indicted in the bugging case.

Mitchell's attorney, William G. Hundley, wrote committee chairman Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., that a Senate appearance would force Mitchell to spell out his "entire defense" before the government has proved a case against him and would violate his right to "stand mute" until the government's case has been presented.

Hundley's letter, sent Monday and later disclosed to UPI, said the "cold fact of the matter" is that government prosecutors "are going to recommend that the grand jury indict Mr. Mitchell and in the present climate the grand jury is going to follow their recommendation."

The initial reaction among committee sources was that the plea would be rejected and that Mitchell will be called to testify sometime next month.

Meanwhile, a summary prepared by the White House of 36 conversations between President Nixon and his counsel, John W. Dean, between February, 1973, and late April came to light. The summary, obtained by NBC, portrayed the President as repeatedly seeking the facts about the bugging and portrayed Dean as repeatedly assuring Nixon there was no high-level White House involvement. It said Dean stuck to this position until the latter part of March, nine months after the bugging. Another summary—this one prepared by the Senate Watergate committee staff after Dean talked with them in secret session Saturday—contained allegations against Nixon's former top aides, John D. Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman, but did not give details of Dean's talks with the President.

The Washington Post said this omission was apparent because Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., committee vice chairman, ruled in the Saturday session that Dean's talks with the President might be covered by attorney-client privilege or national security constraints and that this question should be determined in a second interview with Dean, scheduled for Monday. Dean declined to appear for that interview, saying there were so many press leaks he would say no more until his public testimony next week.

Both Senate leaders spoke out today against the leaking of secret testimony before the Watergate committee.

Republican Leader Hugh Scott said he thought the leaks were "organized and manipulated" but came from "all sides in the controversy."

"It's obvious that Dean is leaking like a sieve with considerable bravado and that inspires counter-leaks," Scott said.

He said he believed that Dean's credibility as a witness had been "considerably shaken."

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he was "sorry the committee's executive meetings are being breached."

Mansfield said he hoped the committee "would adopt stricter procedures" to prevent further leaks to the news media.

Meanwhile, there were these related developments: —The American Civil Liberties Union asked in federal court that the convictions of the original Watergate Seven defendants be set aside and that they be granted a new trial, contending that "impartial and honest justice ... has been abused" in the case.

—The Finance Committee to Re-elect the President, the financial arm of the 1972 Nixon campaign, was found guilty in federal court of three counts of violating last year's campaign finance disclosure law for not reporting a $200,000 cash contribution from financier Robert L. Vesco—the case in which Maurice Stans and Mitchell have been indicted. The committee was fined a maximum $1,000 on each count, bringing to $11,000 the total fines assessed against it for violating the campaign act.

Dollar Loses Most Of Its Small Gains

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar inched lower on international currency markets today, losing most of the small gains it chalked up Wednesday.

Dealers said the American currency might be stabilizing in value after two weeks of declines, but the dollar opened fractionally lower today in London, Zurich, Amsterdam, Hong Kong and Singapore.

In Kuala Lumpur, the foreign exchange market was suspended while government officials debated whether to follow Singapore's lead and float the Malaysian dollar.

The Singapore dollar, floated Wednesday, moved sharply upward today against the U.S. currency, meaning the American dollar lost value. The price today was 2.41 Singapore dollars, compared with 2.53 at the time of the Wednesday announcement.

In Europe the dollar dropped .23 per cent in Amsterdam, buying 2.714 guilders today compared with 2.7213 at Wednesday's close.

The Frankfurt market was closed for a national holiday. The dollar also dropped in Zurich, buying 3.049 Swiss francs compared with 3.062 Wednesday night.

In London the British pound opened at $2.575, fractionally more expensive than Wednesday's $2.57375 closing price.

The plane, bound for Santo Domingo, crashed and burned in an uninhabited area of the Everglades about five miles north of the Tamiami Trail just west of Miami.

The Coast Guard said the plane took off at 4:20 a.m. and four minutes later dropped from the radar screen at Miami International Airport.

A Coast Guard search helicopter spotted the wreckage at 4:50 a.m. and the pilot described the crash as "non survivable."

The island of Hong Kong, meaning "fragrant harbor," was ceded to Britain in 1841.

All Feared Dead In Jetliner Crash PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (UPI) — A DC9 jetliner carrying 27 persons on a flight from Houston, Tex., slammed into a hilltop about 40 miles south of Puerto Vallarta today. Police said they feared there were no survivors.

The Aero-Mexico airliner, Flight No. 229, left Houston at 10:30 p.m. EDT en route to Puerto Vallarta on Mexico's Pacific coast. It was not heard from after making contact with the control tower there at 12:30 a.m. today.

Police Lodge DWI Charge

Estell Clowers Frier, 64, 329 N. Perry, was booked on a charge of driving while intoxicated following a hit and run accident yesterday.

Three witnesses described the vehicle that struck a parked car in the 700 block of N. Nelson. Officers stopped the car at Davis and Lincoln Sts. They described the driver as unsteady and uncooperative. The car bore fresh damage with a piece of chrome strip sticking to it.

The three, two empty cans and chrome full cans of beer were tagged as evidence, the police report noted.

Two Candidates Get Early Start

AUSTIN (UPI) — Dr. James Granberry, a former Republican mayor of Lubbock who believes he needs a head start in the race, planned to announce today he is running for governor.

Within an hour of Granberry's announcement, former Secretary of State Bob Bullock indicated he would announce his plans to run for comptroller.

Granberry will be seeking the Republican nomination for governor. He decided to enter the race early to make some headway against Houston Republican Henry C. Grover, the GOP nominee last year.

Granberry is an orthodontist who will be 41 Saturday. He won the Lubbock mayor's election in 1970 against three other candidates without a runoff. He has made many friends within the Republican hierarchy as a state committeeman.

Granberry could receive the support of the man in charge of the Republican party in Texas who never rallied behind Grover last year. Grover fought the party's establishment last year but still won the GOP nomination for governor. He took 45 per cent of the vote in losing to Democrat Dolph Briscoe in the general election.

Since the election Grover has kept campaigning on the theme he came within 97,000 votes of being first Republican governor in Texas in 100 years.

But Granberry is expected to attempt to prove Grover's showing was overrated. Republicans Paul Eggers in 1970 and Jack Cox in 1962 each received a better percentage of votes than Grover did in 1972.

Granberry is an excellent campaigner who likes to debate the issues. He expected to spend much of his time in the next couple of months attempting to unify Republican party leaders behind his campaign before seeking the votes of the people.

Smith Appointee Bullock, who will be 44 next month, was one of Gov. Preston Smith's most controversial appointees. He served as Smith's secretary of state but when the governor tried to put him in charge of the State Insurance Board, the Senate rejected the nomination.

If incumbent Robert S. Calvert decides to seek re-election, Bullock will be running in the primary against a man who has held the comptroller's job for 18 years.

The comptroller's office claims the state can only collect about 90 per cent of the state sales tax because of a 10 per cent "inefficiency factor." Bullock's primary campaign issue, assuming Calvert runs again, will be to remove this factor and thus generate $160 million in additional revenue for the state annually.

Poetry Volume Published

"Enfold the Splendor," the third book of Mrs. Elaine Ledbetter, Pampa High School science teacher, has just been published.

Issued by the Naylor Company of San Antonio, the volume of verse reveals both the author's innate love of nature and her scientific knowledge and appreciation for it.

Mrs. Ledbetter writes from sheer inspiration unhampered by conventional verse forms, publishers said. Her work apparently has struck a responsive chord among many lovers of poetry if the success of two previous volumes is any indication.

They are "Triumphant Moment" and "Candles at Noon," also published by the Texas firm.

Holding degrees from the University of Oklahoma and North Texas State University, Mrs. Ledbetter has enjoyed recognition in all three fields of endeavor—education, science and writing.

She has held positions of leadership in national associations of each field with attendant honors and awards. Other writings include articles for national journals and collaboration on textbooks.

She is currently chairman of the science department at PHS and teaches chemistry.

Briscoe Says His Record Okay on Tax

AUSTIN (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Wednesday he has always paid exactly the amount of property taxes he was supposed to pay on his vast South Texas ranch holdings.

"I have never sought any preferential treatment on ad valorem tax matters," Briscoe said. "I never will and I have never received any preferential treatment."

The superintendent of the impoverished Asherton School District, which includes Briscoe's Caterina Ranch, said Briscoe's land was valued for tax purposes at $7.11 per acre when it should have been much higher and as a result Briscoe has not paid all the property taxes he should have.

The school depends on large part on these property taxes for its revenue.

Briscoe's tax attorney, Phil Creelcius, said Wednesday Briscoe's valuation was actually $10 per acre, the same as well all the other ranchers in the area.

The 'Mollenhoff cocktail' exploded

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Senior Editor

(Fourth in a Five-Part Series.)

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Massive Clark Mollenhoff, Des Moines Register Washington bureau chief and Pulitzer-prize-winning columnist, is a 64, 230-pound abominable investigator who has been stalking administrations as far back as Truman's, has been bronchocoeured by every president since, has been spat at by Jimmy Hoffa whom he helped send up the river, and most recently has belittled in a national news conference that Ron Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary, was a liar.

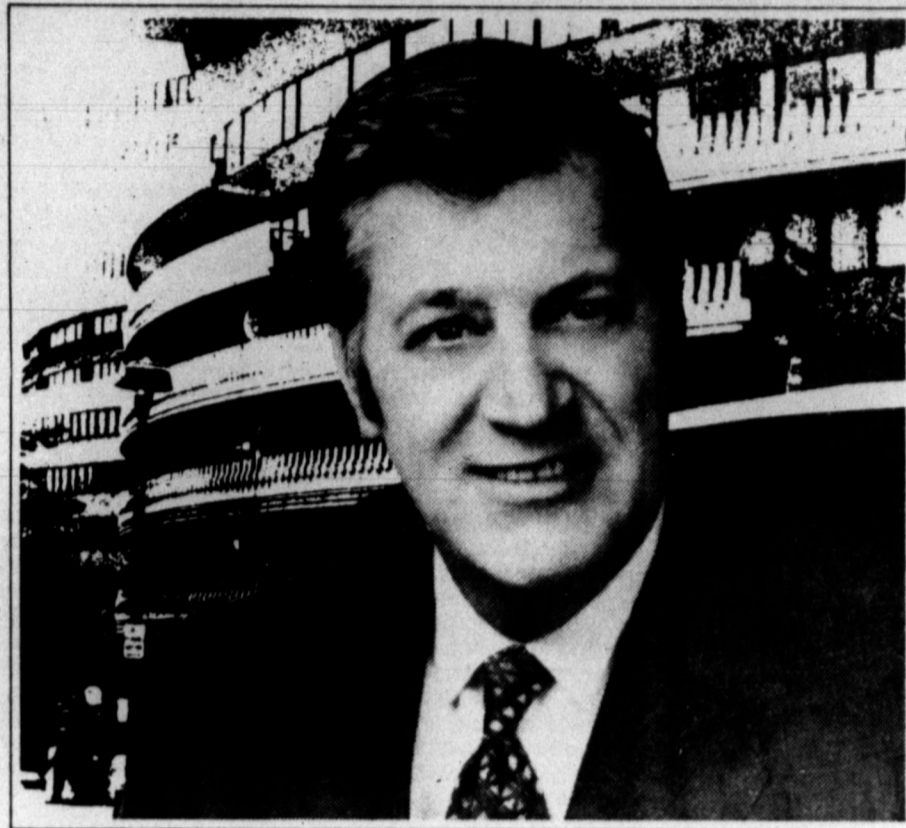

He is called the "Mollenhoff cocktail" and he may also have had an enormous impact on Watergate.

Mollenhoff, who is also a lawyer, told his friend Judge John J. Sirica, "the Watergate judge," about a recent court precedent in which a Los Angeles judge named Ferguson delayed sentencing to give the defendants time to decide whether they would cooperate more fully with the court. If they would, the sentence would be lighter.

Sirica had not known of the Los Angeles case until Mollenhoff told him. "Clark knows me about as well as anyone, and I respect him as much as I do anyone," says Sirica. Sirica then called Judge Ferguson.

Sirica used this unusual and controversial delayed sentencing method to flush out testimony from Watergate burglar James McCord which was virtually the first substantial information on the enormity of the political espionage network.

According to the Los Angeles Times, "a number of insiders, Mollenhoff unabashedly among them, feel that he was the catalyst who impelled former White House and campaign aide Jeb Stuart Magruder to come clean on his knowledge of the roles of high administration officials — H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, Charles Colson and former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell — in the Watergate plotting and financing.

Mollenhoff had written an article predicting an indictment against Magruder. He showed the piece to Magruder, who, disturbed, shortly after went to a federal prosecutor and said the Los Angeles Times "began unloading what he knew, setting in motion the current cascade of disclosures, admissions and resignations."

Mollenhoff was possibly the first to throw off President Nixon's cloak of executive privilege. He had for one year early in Nixon's first term, to the surprise and then dismay of some newspaper colleagues, accepted an offer to be a presidential counsel. He left the post in the summer of 1970. He left, he said, because he had been promised direct access to the President, and did not get it.

Out of office and back at newspapering, he was called to testify before the Civil Service Commission, and despite the pervasive White House protestations that "matters of national security" could be jeopardized.

"Some people have said that Nixon hired me to get rid of me," said Mollenhoff, in his National Press Building office, which is strewn with awards from the right and the left and which has auto-graphed photographs of JFK and LBJ, as well as Nixon.

The job was presidential mudsucker. He was to be a muckraker for internal White House problems, using the techniques he used as a journalist to help uncover such national scandals as the TPX, Billie Sol Estes and Hoffa.

Mollenhoff believed this a great opportunity to give first-hand assistance to good government. It turned out to be heavy-handed, at least as far as the White House staff was concerned.

SOURCES SAY

Dean Urged To Pressure CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III told Senate investigators that John D. Ehrlichman urged him to pressure the CIA into providing assistance—apparently for a cover-up—nine days after the Watergate break-in, it was learned Wednesday.

According to sources close to the case, Dean told investigators Saturday that Ehrlichman, one of President Nixon's top two advisers until his recent resignation, asked him to pressure Deputy CIA Director Vernon Walters because Walters "owes allegiance to the White House."

Sources told UPI that Dean's preliminary testimony to the committee staff also included these points:

—Dean said that in early 1972 he told H. R. Haldeman, then White House chief of staff, that he had attended two meetings in the office of then Attorney General John N. Mitchell at which political espionage and wiretapping were discussed. Dean said the meetings were Jan. 27 and Feb. 4, 1972.

—Haldeman replied, according to Dean, that Dean should stay "out of it"—apparently meaning that Dean should not become involved in such plans.

He Thought Plans Rejected
—Dean said he thought all the plans discussed at the two meetings were rejected and he knew no more about wiretapping the Democrats until June 17 when five men were arrested inside Democratic headquarters.

—NBC News said a seven-page summary of Dean's testimony quoted Dean as saying Ehrlichman informed him that President Nixon agreed to grant executive clemency to Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

—NBC also said the summary showed Nixon was aware that Hunt had demanded to be paid $122,000.

In another development relating to Dean, Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox gave the government's evidence so far gathered against Dean to U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, to be kept under seal for use in any possible trial against him. The purpose was to make clear that evidence was not based on testimony Dean is to give the Senate committee next week. He will testify under an agreement that his Senate testimony cannot be used against him.

Action Follows Testimony
The New York Times reported Tuesday that the Watergate committee is investigating the personal finances of those involved in the bugging and cover-up to see if any 1972 Republican campaign funds went into individual pockets. The action followed testimony by Dean to the committee that he "borrowed" Republican funds to finance his honeymoon. Dean said Ehrlichman first urged him to pressure the CIA on June 26, nine days after the Watergate arrests and three days after a White House meeting at which CIA officials rejected suggestions by Haldeman and Ehrlichman that the CIA might have been involved in Watergate, the sources said.

According to the sources, Dean said he called Walters that day but Walters rebuffed the suggestion he might provide some "assistance." When Dean reported this June 27, Ehrlichman told him to pressure Walters.

Walters, an Army lieutenant general, had been close to Nixon while he was vice president and had served as an aide and translator for Nixon.

According to the NBC story, Dean testified that Ehrlichman told him after checking with Nixon that word should be passed to Hunt's lawyer that there would be clemency for him.

Colson Reported as Go-Between
The go-between with Hunt, Dean reportedly testified, was former White House special counsel Charles W. Colson.

According to NBC, the summary also stated that "Hunt's asking for the money had come to the attention of the President." It said the summary did not elaborate.

NBC said the summary also showed Dean testified:

—That Nixon told White House congressional liaison official William E. Timmons last September to stall a Watergate investigation by Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking Committee.

—That Nixon requested that Internal Revenue Service audits involving certain unidentified friends of the President be dropped.

—That Nixon said FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover told him Nixon's campaign was bugged in 1968 and that Nixon remarked to aides, "sometime in the future they would have to use it to their advantage."

Brundage Weds German Princess

GARMISCH PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany (UPI) — Chuckling all through the ceremony, Avery Brundage, 85, married Princess Mariann Reuss, 37, in Alpine Bavaria today.

The former president of the International Olympic Committee and the descendant of a German royal line exchanged plain gold bands in a civil ceremony in a pine-paneled room of Brundage's private suite in the Hotel Post.

"I'd like to have twins," Brundage volunteered after the ceremony.

"Yes," the bride said, "and the first will get a name starting with A and the second a name beginning with B, as in Avery Brundage."

The couple told newsmen they would spend the first week or so of their honeymoon in the hotel. The bride wore a white woolen suit with a pearl necklace and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bridegroom wore a dark single-breasted suit with a sprig of myrtle at the lapel.

Burglary Insurance Problem? See Uncle

By CARLTON SMITH

Burglary insurance, if you can't get it, is something you need pretty badly. Because, of course, it's exactly in the high-risk areas, where you're most likely to be hit, that the insurance companies decline to insure you.

So if your insurance agent tells you "we don't sell theft insurance in your area," better put stout locks on doors and windows. It's also time to find an insurance broker who knows about the insurance available under a federal program, for those who can't buy insurance from private companies. No one is turned down by the government, and policies are issued for both residential and business premises.

The government policy costs somewhat more, but in several respects it outperforms most private policies:

- It covers theft from a locked car trunk, many private policies don't.
- There's no dollar limit on loss of jewelry or furs; private policies typically have a $250 limit.

Pampa Man Graduates At Fire School

A Pampa fireman was the only Pampan to attend and graduate from the first class of the Amarillo Regional Fire Fighter School recently.

W. D. Thomas, 1300 E. Browning, was graduated from the eight-week training course, last week during ceremonies in Amarillo.

Completing 328 hours of training, the 12 men in the course received certification from the State of Texas. The other 11 men were all from Amarillo.

The class is required by the state for firemen employed after Sept. 1, 1972. The regional school is the fireman's equivalent of the police academy.

Classes were taught by fire department supervisory personnel and instructors from West Texas State University in Canyon and Amarillo College and specialists from various municipal departments.

The program included rescue operations, arson detection, civil disorder, first aid and other related topics.

Instructors for the classes in Amarillo are certified by the Texas Commission on Fire Protection Personnel Education and Standards, with funding from the Texas Education Agency.

On all claims, including those for the losses mentioned above, there is a deductible of $75, or 5 percent of the gross loss, whichever is greater.

The government policy does have a couple of drawbacks. One is a requirement of solid locks on all doors and easily accessible windows. You won't be inspected before a policy is issued—but if you make a claim, you'd better have the locks, or no pay. (Earlier, a special type of "baffle lock" was required, that's now eliminated.)

There must be visible signs of forced entry. If you go away leaving a door or window unlocked, and your burglar can walk in without having to break in—that one's on you. Unfortunately, a slick job of picking your lock, with no sign of forcible entry, may leave you similarly embarrassed. (So buy pick-resistant locks.)

The federal program, under the Department of Housing and Urban Development, is administered by private insurance companies in each of the 11 states, and District of Columbia, in which the insurance is available. But any private broker or agent can sell the insurance—though many seem to be not well informed about it, or even unaware of it.

Cost of coverage is determined by the classification of your own particular locality as a high, average or low crime area.

The cost of a $10,000 policy, the maximum coverage, is $80, $70, and $60 a year in, respectively, a high, average or low-crime area.

For a $5,000 policy, the respective premiums are $60, $50 and $40 a year.

You can buy as little as $1,000 worth of coverage, but the premiums are proportionately higher for the smaller amounts. An example of the "cheaper by the dozen" rates is the premium for $3,000 of coverage. In any of the areas—high, low or average crime rate—an extra $10 a year buys $5,000 worth of coverage.

Churn Method Strawberry Ice Cream

- 2 pints fresh California strawberries
- 2 cups sugar
- 6 egg yolks
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 3 cups scalded milk
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
- 3 cups heavy cream
- 12 drops red food color (optional)

Wash and hull strawberries. Puree strawberries by whirling in electric blender until liquified or by pressing through sieve. Mix with 1 cup sugar and let stand in refrigerator at least 1 hour.

To prepare custard-base for ice cream, beat together egg yolks, remaining 1 cup sugar and salt. Slowly stir in scalded milk. Pour into medium saucepan and stir over medium heat until mixture coats a metal spoon. Remove from heat, add vanilla and cool. Stir in cream and food color, then chill. Combine chilled custard base with pureed strawberries.

Freeze ice cream in 4-quart electric or hand-churn ice cream freezer according to manufacturer's instructions or by directions given below. Makes 4 quarts.

TO CHURN ICE CREAM
Fit dasher into freezer canister; pour strawberry ice cream mixture into canister (canister should be no more than two-thirds full to allow for expansion). Cover canister with lid and place in freezer tub.

Set freezer tub in pan or sink to catch ice water as it drains off through holes. Clamp gear frame to dasher. Pack freezer tub with altern-nate layers of crushed ice and rock-salt, using 1 quart crushed ice per one-third cup rock-salt. Do not let ice or rock-salt reach top of canister. If using hand-churn, turn crank slowly 5 minutes. Increase speed and continue to crank until handle is difficult to turn. If using electric churn, allow motor to churn ice cream for about 30 minutes or until motor starts to labor. As ice melts and water drains off during churning, add more layers of ice and rock-salt. When churning is completed, drain off water from freezer tub. Let ice cream ripen for improved flavor and texture.

TO RIPEN
Do not remove canister. Wipe canister lid and remove carefully so no brine gets into ice cream. Remove dasher, scrape off ice cream and pack down in canister. Cover canister with double thickness waxed paper and replace lid, plug hole in lid. Repack freezer tub with alternate layers of ice and rock-salt (4 parts ice to 1 part rock-salt). Cover ice cream freezer with newspaper or heavy cloth. Be sure drainage holes in freezer tub are open. Let ice cream stand at least 1 hour to ripen.

Note: If any ice cream is left over, pack in plastic freezer containers and place in home freezer. Do not freeze ice cream which has melted.

As a topping for a very sweet dessert, beat together cream cheese, sour cream and heavy cream. Add just enough of the creams to give a good consistency.

The coffee pot is always "perk-ing" for friends resting in the home of Mrs. Tony Smith, 332 N. Paulkner, who was selected by the Bluebonnet Home Demonstration Club to share her favorite recipes with our readers.

Mrs. Smith, a retired receptionist and bookkeeper, is a collector for the Indian Missions in Oklahoma and enjoyed handwork as a hobby. She also likes camping and fishing with her husband who has been employed by the Cabot Corp. for 26 years.

They were very active in scouting while their three children, Tony Jr., Tucson, Ariz., Kay, Albuquerque, N.M., and Mike, Tulsa, Okla., were attending Pampa schools. They are also the grandparents of four.

Mrs. Smith, a Pampa resident since moving here from Perryton in 1926, attended schools in Pampa and graduated from Amarillo College.

Besides being a member of the Bluebonnet HD Club, Mrs. Smith is a member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church, the W.V.W. Auxiliary, and the American Business Women's Association.

People With Roots In Pampa Performing In 'Texas' Production

CANYON — Eight young people with roots in Pampa will help to produce "Texas" this summer, the musical drama of Panhandle history which plays in the Palo Duro Canyon State Park.

They Are:
Tom Francis, who is a graduate student at Texas Technological University who plays Norris Harper, attended Pampa High School. Francis has appeared in many productions at Tech and at the Lubbock Theatre Center and also played in the orchestra for many musicals.

He is a member of the Tech singers, the Tech choir and of the honorary associations Kappa Kappa Psi and Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia. His mother is Dorothy Francis of Pampa.

David Groves (not pictured) is related to Delbert Groves of Pampa. He will be in charge of the sound at the theatre this summer, having responsibilities in the light and sound booth for the third season.

Groves has won many honors as a trumpet player and it is his trumpet which is heard each evening at the beginning of the show.

In addition to his musical activities, Groves has served as lighting technician for many of the major theatrical productions at the University. He is a member of the honorary musical fraternity, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia and is in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

Sara Ann Hard (not pictured) is the niece of Mrs. Gene Brown. Miss Hard will serve on the hospitality staff and will also be in charge of make-up for the production.

She has had wide experience in performing and directing during her university career at West Texas State University, where she received the William A. Moore award just before her graduation.

She has served in various offices including the presidency of the honorary speech fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega.

Kathy McNeil is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. H.E. McNeil of Pampa. Kathy is a singer and has appeared in many Panhandle productions, including several at West Texas State University. She is a member of the women's honorary musical sorority, Mu Phi Epsilon.

Viola Parsley of Pampa is one of the dancers in the show. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.C. Parsley, 621 S. Tignor, and attended Pampa High School.

She attends Texas Technological University and is majoring in dance, having received her start in the studio of Jeanne Willingham of Pampa.

Miss Parsley has appeared in 14 dance recitals. She has had a Ford Foundation Scholarship for four years and danced in the spring concert at Tech and in the Lubbock Civic Ballet.

Dianna Phillips also comes from Pampa, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Phillips. During the past year she has been a graduate assistant at West Texas State University working toward a master's degree in Music.

She attended Baylor University and taught elementary school music for two years. She performed the role of Susanna in the "Marriage of Figaro" and Echo in "Ariadne" at the Summer Vocal Institute in Freiburg, Germany, and Graz, Austria, in previous years and brings a wide experience in performance to the "Texas" show.

Miss Phillips will play the part of Sarah Potter.

Linda Rockwell is related to Mrs. Tommie Grant of Pampa. She will play Sadie Cline and is returning to the Pioneer Amphitheatre for her fourth season.

She played the role of Antigone in "Antigone" and of Mary in "Mary of Scotland" as well as other important roles during her years at West Texas State University.

She is an officer in Buffalo Masquers and the honorary speech fraternity Alpha Psi Omega. In addition to her acting talents, Miss Rockwell has won honors as a singer.

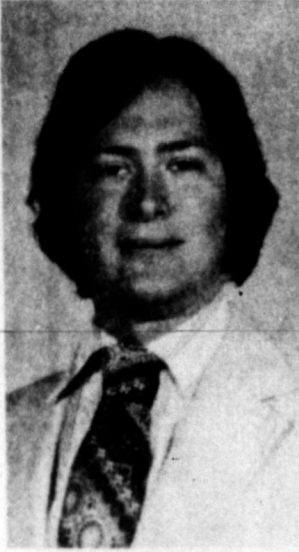

Dan Steele will play the part of Lonnie Cheek. Steel is the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Ray W. Stewart, 942 E. Gordon.

Although a major in finance, Steele is also a singer. At Texas A&M, he was a member of the singing cadets. At West Texas State he played the part of Luther in the opera "Tales of Hoffman" and is the treasurer of Phi Mu Alpha, national honorary musical society.

He is a member of the Mary E. Hudspeth Honor Society and of Alpha Chi National Honor Scholarship Society.

These eight people and a hundred others will combine their efforts to make the eighth season of "Texas" a memorable one. The season will open tonight and close Aug. 25, playing nightly except Sundays. There will be one Sunday performance on July 1.

For tickets and information write "Texas," Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015 or call 806-655-2182.

Dear Abby

New pool owners are flooded with friends

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are installing a swimming pool, and already everyone we know is asking if they can come over and use it when it's finished. We are not rich. We both work and are paying for this pool with our hard-earned money.

If we wanted to swim with a bunch of people, we'd go to a public pool. We are putting in our own because we want our privacy.

How do we tell these people that we aren't looking for company after our pool is completed? Or worse yet, what do we say to the neighbors when they come knocking at our door in their swimsuits? HIS AND HERS

DEAR H AND H: People with pools must have rules, but there's no point in alienating everyone before your pool is finished. Wait until it's ready for use, and alienate them one by one.

DEAR ABBY: Women are getting so nervy now with the Women's Lib thing, they are asking men to dance.

I had a harrowing experience the other night when my wife and I were at a public dance hall. She left me to go to the powder room, and you wouldn't believe the number of klutzes who moved in on me, asking me to dance with them. I am 68, bald and no bargain, but that didn't seem to make any difference.

Next time I'll go to the powder room with my wife. Phooey on equal rights! BALDY

DEAR BALDY: Don't "phooey" so fast. Why shouldn't women be able to ask men to dance? Some men would be delighted. And those who aren't can always say no.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are legally separated, and I am expecting next month. The doctor says it will be twins. [I already have one child.]

I want to send out birth announcements. Is this proper under the circumstances? If it is, should I write in my name only where it says, "Parents" on the announcement? Or should I include his too?

I hadn't even thought it might not be proper until my family raised the question. They all have different opinions. EXPECTING TWINS

DEAR EXPECTING: Under the circumstances, forego the printed announcements. Write a personal note to your close friends to inform them of the double-header.

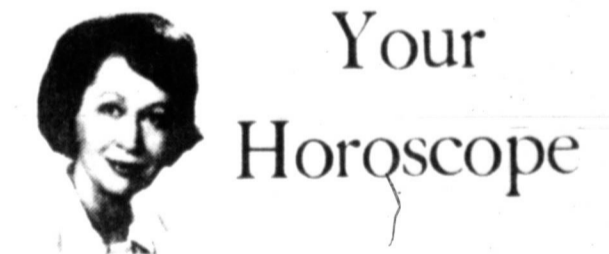

DEAR ABBY: I am still chafing over the doctor who wrote that he resents his parents for allowing him to be circumcised as an infant.

Point one: What mature person would harbor such resentment for a temporary discomfort that he can't even remember? And point two: If he knew his business, he would know that cervical cancer among women whose husbands are circumcised is far less frequent than among the others. SIGN ME GLAD

MRS. RANDY EARL LAYCOCK
...nee Miss Heidi Jo Kolb

Kolb-Laycock Vows Said In First Baptist Parlor

The parlor of the First Baptist Church of Pampa was the setting Saturday, June 9, for the evening wedding of Miss Heidi Jo Kolb and Randy Earl Laycock.

The bride is the daughter of Henry Kolb, 321 N. Purviance, and the late Mary Ellen Harris of Pampa, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Laycock, 2206 N. Wells.

THE CEREMONY
The Rev. M. B. Smith, Pampa, officiated for the double-ring ceremony. Pianist, Louann Wise, played traditional wedding music, and vocalist, Steve Skogg, sang, "The Long and Winding Road," and "The Wedding Song."

The background of two, seven-branched candelabra and two basket arrangements of blue and white gladioli, formed the setting for the wedding.

THE BRIDE
Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white eyelet embroidery styled with empire waistline, leg o' mutton sleeves, and a square neckline. The gown fell in three tiers from the waistline. Blooms of stephanotis and baby's breath were scattered throughout the bride's hair, and she carried a cascade of white split carnations and stephanotis.

For "something old," the bride wore her mother's engagement ring; "something new," an opal necklace, a gift of the bridegroom; "something borrowed," was perfume, belonging to the maid of honor; a "blue" garter and a penny in her shoe.

ATTENDANTS
Dixie Joyce Bond of Pampa was maid of honor. She was attired in a formal length dress of blue and white floral organza over blue satin accented by white ribbon at the empire waistline and a ruffle at the hemline. She carried a nosegay of blue and white carnations.

Terry Phillips of Pampa was best man, and ushers were Roy Hendricks and Bobby Ebenkamp, both of Pampa.

RECEPTION
Following the wedding, a reception was held in the parlor of the church. The serving table was covered with a white sheer cloth with gathers at the edges, and was centered with a four-branched candelabra holding blue tapers, surrounded by white daisies.

The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with blue hearts and flowers. Annette DiCosimo served the wedding cake and Nancy Dingus served punch. Registering guests was Sherry Laycock, sister of the bridegroom.

For the wedding trip to Amarillo and Cuhara Pass, Colo., the bride wore a formal-length, baby blue knit halter gown, accented with blue ruffles at the neckline, and lifted the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will make their home in Pampa.

AFFILIATIONS
The bride is a 1973 graduate of Pampa High School and was a member of JCL and the National Honor Society. The bridegroom is a 1972 graduate of PHS. He was a member of the National Honor Society and is presently employed by First National Bank.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS
The bride was honored with an informal party in the home of Mrs. Ruby Crocker, co-hosted by Mrs. Helen Sprinkle.

A miscellaneous shower was held in the home of Knoxine Russell co-hosted by Mmes. Ruby Crocker, Helen Sprinkle, Walt West, Ray Wilson, W.G. Cunningham, and Howard Patton.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS
Attending the wedding from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Cary of Brownfield, Tex.; Mrs. Ludy Johnson, Ray Cary, and Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Clemens, all of Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Greg Harris of Houston; Mr. and Mrs. A.B. Johnson, Kermit; Mr. and Mrs. C.K. Laycock, Mrs. Barrett, Donald Reeves and Melinda Reeves, all of Wheeler; and Mr. and Mrs. Randy Barrett of Turpin, Okla.

Sir Kay was the one cowardly knight of the Round Table. He was also a coward at the bridge table. He thought his jump to four clubs was a tremendous overbid and might keep Lancelot from getting to the right contract.

A more enterprising and valiant knight would have jumped to six clubs and probably kept Lancelot out of the grand slam. All the four-club bid did was tell the peerless knight and bridge player how to go about the business of making the grand slam.

Lancelot ruffed the club lead and drew trumps. He noticed that Kay followed to three leads. He also knew that Kay held a lot of clubs for his preempt. Hence, if anyone held all four diamonds it would be the unfortunate Sir Palamides sitting East.

Just to make sure Lancelot cashed his ace of spades. Kay followed to that also and now Lancelot was ready for the diamonds. He led a diamond to dummy's ace. Kay showed out and it was a simple matter to lead the 10 of diamonds, overtake East's jack, go back to dummy with the queen of spades and finesse against East's nine to make the grand slam.

Lancelot might have played diamonds that same way if Kay had not bid at all. After the four-club bid the play was just about a cinch.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding three no-trump your partner has jumped to four spades over your three diamonds. What do you do now?

Attending were Mmes. Cecile Grange, Juanita McCarthy, Margaret Fox, Odell Hassler, Fannié Coleman, Pauline White, Laura Jo Skaggs, Margaret Simmons, Naomi Fox and Barbara Easley.

"Turn Concern into Action."

It was announced that the evening meeting of July 23 will be a covered dish dinner honoring all professional and executive women of Pampa.

The following was released for publication by Kay Anderson, M.D., publicity chairman for District Nine of Altrusa.

To act on community problems in these changing times, the Altrusa Club of this city has just received a practical guide in the new 1973-75 biennium program of Altrusa International, Inc., which has as its theme, "Be A Channel For Change."

Published in the current edition of the "International Altrusan" magazine, the new program analyzes the changing scene for youth, the elderly, education, safety, quality of life, relationships with those of other cultures, and proposes practical ways to effect improvements in these many directions.

For the first time in a biennium program, Altrusa International (world's first service club organization for executive and professional women, founded 1917), is asking all its 550 clubs and 18,000 members in 13 nations to take special action on a major emphasis subject, which is nutrition. Guidelines for Altrusa's nutrition program are set forth by Dr. Miriam E. Lowenberg, an outstanding authority on nutrition, whose entire life has been devoted to the study of food habits and their psychological and sociological importance.

The Altrusa Club is directed to be a community channel to disseminate correct, authoritative information about the truth of nutrition to the public. This might be in the form of meetings addressed by professionals in nutrition.

Dr. Lowenberg points out that people need a lot of guidance in learning better nutrition habits, and Altrusans can have a major role in getting this from professionals to the community.

Other "Be a Channel for Change" directives: tours for high school and college youth of business and industry, combined with career conferences. Extra-curricular activities in cooperation with schools, such as field trips, that are innovative and give students a new sense of awareness of the scope of their city.

To enable the elderly to live independently, it is proposed that home-delivered meals, day-care services, and reassurance calls be developed. More significant volunteer opportunities for the elderly should be opened, with new opportunities for self-development and community-serving tasks.

The Altrusa Club of this city, Katherine Sullins, president, will be guided by the "Be a Channel for Change" program in planning the 1973-74 club year. Altrusa International purposely releases the new program in advance for this purpose. It actually becomes official at the Montreal convention, July 22-26, when out-going Altrusa International president, Mrs. Ehtel J. Boyle, Springfield, Ill., launches it by introducing the president-elect, Miss Muriel Mauer, who with her incoming program committee planned it, and who will assume the presidency on July 26, in Montreal.

Add finely chopped dill pickle to a mixture of mayonnaise and sour cream. Serve with fish.

Will anyone win the Watergate Bowl?

By IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK — (NEA) — There is a saying in sports — or there ought to be — that the Devil can cite the Rulebook for his purpose.

The truth of this fired-up cliché is borne out in recent testimony during the Senate Watergate hearings.

The depth of the involvement between sports and politics was apparent on the first day of the hearings. James McCord, convicted Watergate burglar, was testifying about some clandestine huddles he had had with White House aide John Caulfield.

McCord said that Caulfield had promised him executive clemency if he would plead guilty to Watergate charges and not talk about White House connections. Then all McCord would have to do was take a short junket to the clink and be sprung in no time — like a year.

Caulfield went on to say, according to McCord: "The President's ability to govern is at stake, Jim. Another Teapot Dome scandal is possible, and the government may fall. Everybody else is on the track, but you. You are not following the game plan."

The game plan.

Sis boom bah. Rah rah rah.

What fouler deeds could be done by man or quarterback than not to follow the game plan?

McCord decided to "tough it out" alone. That is another phrase liberally employed by some members of the administration.

Herbert L. Porter, former scheduling director of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, provided the nation with another insight into the administration's sweat-and-muscle vocabulary.

Porter was asked by Sen. Howard Baker, vice-chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, whether he ever had any qualms about his hiring of people to perform "dirty tricks" against campaign opponents.

Porter: "I think the thought crossed my mind."

Baker: "What did you do about it?"

Porter: "I did nothing."

Baker: "Why?"

Porter: "In all honesty, probably because of the fear of group pressure that would ensue, of not being a team player."

A team player.

"I was not supposed to think, only to follow orders," testified Bernard Barker, another convicted Watergate burglar and unswervable team player.

Sis boom bah.

The current administration has used more sports terms, spent more of the taxpayers' dollar for long-distance congratulatory phone calls to coaches than any administration in history.

When President Nixon, ordered the bombing of Cambodia he instructed that his code name be "The Quarterback." The code name for the mining of North Vietnamese ports was "Operation Linebacker." He referred to his economic policy as "my game plan." There seems to have been an attempt to exploit games, particularly football, as symbols of patriotism. And if something is patriotic, shouldn't it go unchallenged?

However, we find during the Watergate testimony how sports clichés were used as subterfuge, as mindless exits out of otherwise embarrassing spots. This of course is the primary use of clichés. Speaking without thinking. Sportspeak, as former New York Times columnist Bob Lipsyte termed it.

An example was provided by Hugh Sloan Jr., former treasurer of the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President.

When Sloan asked former Attorney General John Mitchell for guidance when he, Sloan, discovered foul play, Mitchell advised, "When the going gets tough, the tough get going."

An inspirational slogan familiar in American locker rooms.

Translated from Sportspeak, this means: When in doubt, cheer.

Sis boom bah. Rah rah rah.

Such a sportive term was most recently invoked by President Nixon, team captain, in a conversation with George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO. They were discussing Peter J. Brennan, Secretary of Labor, and Brennan's role in fighting the administration's minimum wage legislation.

President Nixon said he admired Brennan's good fight for labor's side, even though he lost.

"Peter Brennan is a team player and he knows you can't win them all," said Mr. Nixon.

"If Pete is a team player and he knows you can't win them all," said Meany, "he will have to admit he can't be on two competing teams."

The problem with several of those who have either admitted implication in the Watergate scandal or who have been convicted is just that kind of confusion. Which side are we on? In the end, they chose team loyalty over the law. What they did was to make up their own rules in order to win in a game strictly defined by the Constitutional Rulebook.

But that's a whole different ballgame. The concern here is with clichés, and how they have been blitzed for political purposes.

The cliché syndrome was recently discussed by Jim Bouton, baseball player-turned-author-turned television news commentator, on his TV sports segment here. Bouton was outraged. He felt that if politicians snuck into the backyard of sports and made off with the clichés, they should pay for them, and the money sent to a fund for retarded (or did he say "retired") coaches.

Bouton included such phrases for Watergate rental as "Nice guys finish last," "The best defense is a good offense," and "What you see here, what you say here, what you hear, let it stay here."

A final cliché was added by Bouton: "The game is never over until the last man is out."

Sis ... boom ... bah.

The Lighter Side

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Now unfolding in the state of Maryland is an investigation that may even transcend the Watergate inquiry in its political ramifications.

From the evidence thus far it appears that someone has been tampering with the very linchpin of the American political system.

I refer to honesty in testimonial dinners.

Credence has been taking a beating on a number of fronts lately. Ancient faiths have shattered and crumbled. Trust in the government and other national institutions has become shot through with dubiety.

But there remained one thing we could all still believe in—the testimonial dinner. From these affairs flowed the great truths upon which we based our political decisions.

It May Have Happened

To impugn the testimonial dinner is to shake the foundations of our form of self-government. Unthinkable. Yet it may have happened.

According to a General Accounting Office report, Maryland Republicans manipulated $50,000 in campaign funds to inflate the proceeds from a testimonial dinner for Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in Baltimore last year.

In other words the public was given a misleading picture of the sum of money the event raised.

From a bookkeeping standpoint

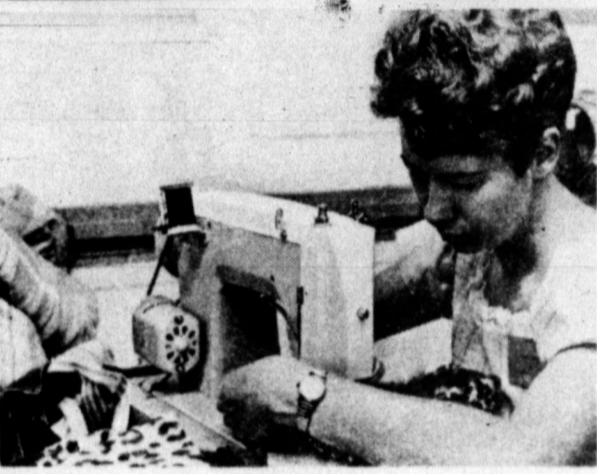

Manpower Shortage

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Army career counselor for the 71st Airborne Brigade of the Texas National Guard says his outfit has a manpower shortage more than five times that of the guard's national deficit. The reason, he says, is men just don't like to jump out of airplanes.

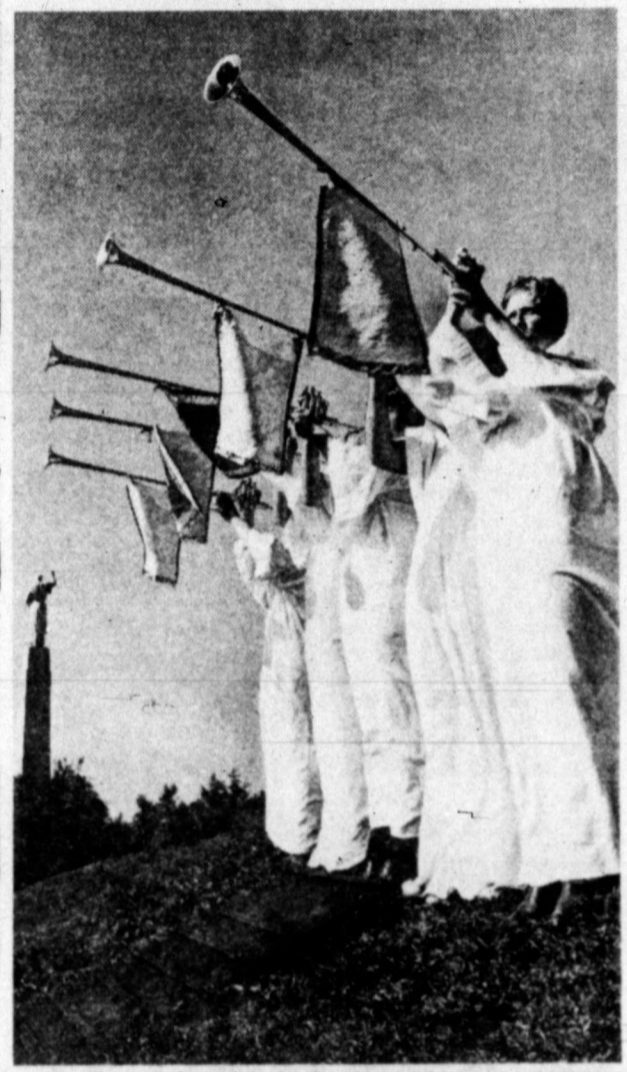

"Soldiers dislike heights as much as anyone," Sgt. Victor Macha said. "When we switched to an airborne brigade, a lot of men transferred and left for ground-based units."

Goodby is a corruption of "God be with you."

A CAST OF THOUSANDS

Nixon Group Found Guilty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Finance Committee for the Re-election of President Nixon was found guilty Wednesday on three counts of violating the campaign disclosure law because it did not report a $200,000 cash contribution from financier Robert L. Vesco.

U.S. District Judge George Hart L. Jr. imposed the maximum fine of $1,000 on each of the three counts after delivering the guilty verdict in the nonjury trial.

Hart said that the Vesco contribution was not reported and that no records were kept of it by the Finance Committee for the Re-election of the President as required by the Federal Campaign Act of 1971.

"This clearly was a contribution under the new act," Hart said, disagreeing with the Nixon re-election committee that because the money was pledged before the act went into effect on April 7, 1972, it did not have to be reported.

Hart said the contribution did have to be reported because the money was delivered three days after the new law went into effect on April 7, 1972.

The committee's attorney, Kenneth W. Parkinson, said no decision had been made on whether to appeal the case. Hart gave the committee 10 days to appeal.

Happiness Is No Freeways, No Smog

By DICK KLEINER
(Last of Three Parts.)

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — (NEA) — If you're thinking of going to New Zealand, there are two words you better learn in a hurry.

One is "haerenai." The other is "double."

The first is the old Maori word for "welcome," and nobody says it, but it's printed everywhere. The other is the old English word for an extra large shot of whiskey and you'd be well advised to order a double on all occasions, because the ordinary single shot is measured out by a teaspoon. Or so it seems.

Other than that New Zealand is a hospitable country. It has a lot to offer and American tourists are discovering that in increasing numbers. At the moment, nearly half of New Zealand's tourist visitors — somewhere around 180,000 last year — come from Australia. They pop over mostly because it's convenient and inexpensive.

Of the other half, more than 50 per cent now come from North America, and that percentage is increasing with a rush. What U.S. and Canadian visitors apparently like is that New Zealand is still relatively unspoiled — but there is no language barrier.

This is a country where people move slowly but steadily. Even the cities seem unhurried. And there are still millions of acres of beautiful countryside where not a human soul lives. Pioneering exists today in New Zealand.

Even old settlers are pioneers. Outside of Queens-town, on the South Island, you can tour a working sheep ranch — Cecil Peak Station — that has 34,000 acres and 8,000 sheep. The guide is a pleasant, joke-cracking old man, and he turns out to be Frederick J. Popeye Lucas, who owns the place. He serves tea and cakes and shows you how a sheep ranch runs.

Sheep are big in New Zealand. Drive anywhere and you see them grazing on the hillsides. Go to Rotorua on the North Island, and you can visit the Agrodome where they have performing sheep. They don't actually perform, but they do march on stage and stand there while a man gives a demonstration in sheep-shearing. When they brag about performing sheep, they're just pulling the wool over your eyes.

But as it is with oranges in California, it's hard to find good roast lamb on New Zealand menus. Most lamb and mutton is frozen and shipped to Great Britain.

The Kiwis, as they call themselves, eat well, however. Food prices are low, compared to today's U.S. prices. They complain about low salaries, and that's probably true, but there is a semi-socialist state and they get many services free from the government.

They are like most people, proud of their homeland. The big joke here is that Australia is "the out-island." And there is tremendous, light-hearted competition between the two.

Laird Accused In Stock Fraud

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, who has been named by President Nixon to help rebuild the White House staff, has been accused of trying to intervene in an SEC stock fraud investigation of Florida railroad tycoon Edward Ball. The Daily News reported Wednesday.

In a Washington datelined story, the News said it has learned that Securities and Exchange Commission investigators "want to talk to Laird about his alleged activities on behalf of Ball, a wealthy and powerful magnate accused of trying to engineer an insiders' scheme involving the sale of stock in the Florida East Coast Railway."

Ball, 84, is chairman of the board of the Florida East Coast Railway.

The News said court papers made available to the newspaper disclosed Laird's alleged involvement in the case during a closed hearing last Friday in U.S. District Court before Judge William B. Jones.

The paper said that during the proceeding, SEC lawyers Ralph C. Ferrara and Theodore A. Levine, said the alleged interference occurred in 1972 while Laird was secretary of Defense.

THE PASTORAL BLISS of the New Zealand countryside is one of the country's main lures for potential immigrants.

islands, North and South, which make up New Zealand.

"You know how South Island got its name," a South Islander says. "It's an acronym, and the letters stand for Superb Outstanding Unique Tourist Haven."

There's some truth to the boast, too. South Island is incredibly beautiful. On the southwest coast, there are a series of fiords which rival Norway's, notably a 12-mile gash called Milford Sound, lined with mountains and waterfalls.

Then there's 12,349-foot tall Mount Cook, a majestic peak, and you can take a small sightseeing plane and land on a nearby glacier.

Mostly, though, what appeals to North Americans about New Zealand is the uncluttered, unrushed atmosphere. There are no freeways — they don't need them yet. But they worry that eventually they'll catch up to the rest of the world. "New Zealand," says an American now living here, "is five to seven years behind the United States. By 1980, we'll catch up and then we'll have your problems — drugs, crime and traffic."

At the moment, though, things are beautiful. There isn't even any smog.

Who gets in on pension plans

By GERARD M. BRANNON
(Third of Four Parts.)

(Dr. Brannon is director of tax research for Tax Analysts and Advocates, a Washington, D.C., organization which provides research services for the news media and engages in a public interest tax law practice. He also is research professor at Georgetown University and formerly was director of the Office of Tax Analysis in the Treasury Department.)

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — We have seen that pension plans are not the safest things in the world, but probably nearly 60 per cent of workers will in the future retire with some kind of employer pension plan to bolster up their social security.

WHY WILL ONLY SOME WORKERS GET PENSION BENEFITS?

Apart from the problems of vesting that we have talked about, the big problem is that at any one time only a little over 50 per cent of the workers are covered by pension plans. If a fellow loses his job before he gets a vested claim to a pension, there is a pretty good chance that there won't be a pension plan in his next job.

A lot of the lack of coverage occurs in small firms with an uncertain future. As we saw, the big companies don't pay up (fund) their pension costs immediately but the promise of a big company to put up the money later is pretty good (not perfect, but pretty good). For most small companies, the promise to put up funds later probably doesn't cut much ice with the workers and full funding is too expensive. Another circumstance is that in industries with a lot of low-income workers, their workers are not so interested in savings (and pensions are really savings). They want their wages pretty much in cash to meet current expenses and to educate kids. Retirement will have to wait.

WHAT ABOUT SELF-EMPLOYED PEOPLE?

In the 1960s there was some extension of the pension benefit under a law that lets a self-employed person set up a pension plan which covered himself. The Congress put a few extra limits on these plans because it was expected that they would be used mostly by professional people who didn't have many employees. In lots of these cases, it is practically a matter of a fellow setting up a retirement plan only for himself. He might try to get a deduction for as much as he wanted to save.

Since then, the professionals have outfoxed the Congress by devising ways to form "professional corporations," so they can have pension plans without the special limits. They are "employees" of their own corporations.

WHAT ABOUT WORKERS NOT UNDER A PLAN?

The administration is willing to throw in the towel. Now they say that the way out is to relax the limits on plans that self-employed people can set up for themselves and to create a new deduction for employees whose employer doesn't have a plan. They could get a deduction by paying into a pension plan of their own. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (R-Texas) has sponsored a bill to permit a deduction.

DIDN'T CANADA TRY THIS?

Canada provides this deduction for employees who set up their own plan. The Canadian experience shows that not many low-income employees use it. This tells us something about the whole arrangement.

By and large, tax benefits for pensions are not of much value to low-income employees. At low incomes, people don't save much anyway. Also, the interest that could be earned by postponing a 19 per cent tax is a lot less than the interest possible from postponing a 50 per cent tax.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The initial reaction of the government securities market to the new Phase IV price freeze has been unexpectedly subdued, says Chase Manhattan Bank's Government Bond Division. Chase says since the new program lacks any fiscal measures, the dominant influence on the short-term sector of the market will continue to be the Federal Reserve Board's restrictive stance with the discount rate now up to 6.5 per cent.

response to the administration's new economic proposals "has to be viewed with some apprehension," says E. F. Hutton. The firm says the Dow Jones Industrial Average, nearing both its late May and early June reaction lows, probably will be put to a severe test. It adds, however, "the overall market is not as weak as the Dow at this juncture," and does not look for the present as if it is about to suffer an extensive decline.

Under the President's 60-day freeze, corporate dividends can still be increased "although it would be far better to de-control dividends entirely," according to Walton & Co.'s Market Letter. The letter says removing the 4 per cent restriction on corporate dividends would give most stocks a better competitive edge compared with higher yielding bonds and savings.

International Statistical Bureau, Inc. says "the domestic economy has passed the overheated state and is cooling off." Although the summer seasonal letdown in the economy may dip only slightly below normal, the upturn in the economy from the seasonal lethargy will not be very marked," it adds. The bureau also predicts inflation will be better contained in the last six months of the year because of increasingly restrictive monetary and fiscal policies beginning in the fall.

Grocery Prices Show Large Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new Agriculture Department survey predicts grocery prices this year will average about 12.5 per cent above 1972—the largest one-year increase in 26 years.

One department expert said the gain would have been as much as 14 per cent if President Nixon had not put the current 60-day price freeze into effect.

It was the third time

Agriculture Department economists have raised their estimate of this year's increase in food prices.

Last fall, economists predicted 1973 retail food prices would be up only 3.5 per cent from 1972. Early this year they raised the estimate to 6.5 per cent, and in May they hiked it again to 10 per cent.

The soaring prices, economists said, "reflected unprecedented domestic and foreign demand for commodities in the face of diminished stocks and uncertainty over the extent of increases in 1973 crop production."

The report said that if present demand and supply forecasts prove accurate, "little if any further price increases will be forthcoming after the 60-day ceiling period."

If weather conditions permit, the report said, farmers will harvest record crops this year with marketings up 5 per cent from 1972.

But department economists said the boom in livestock feed prices apparently has forced many livestock, dairy and poultry producers to cool off expansion plans and is "preventing much easing in prices in these markets."

The report said red meat production is running below last year but gains in the second half of the year would about balance out the first-half losses. It said high feed costs are limiting milk, chicken and egg production and that broiler chicken prices will remain near ceiling levels at least through summer.

The survey predicted beef prices in the next few months would not change much from recent levels. By fall, however, the report said, "beef prices may weaken" if production gains as expected. It said pork prices probably will decline this fall from their summer seasonal peak but will remain above last year.

Television In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — An earthy lot, the British—and if you don't think so, just consider the themes of some weekly American television programs adapted from series that originated in England.

The most famous American variation on a British video series is, of course, CBS-TV's "All In The Family," and it is a comedy with a bigoted working-class husband-father as its central character. This show is based on the English "Till Death Us Do Part."

Then there is NBC-TV's "Sanford and Son," also a highly successful comedy, and it concerns the touchy relationship between an aging junk dealer who will use almost any device to keep his grown bachelors off his back, and despite the young man's periodic urges to go off and lead a life of his own. This show was based on the British creation "Steptoe and Son."

Inspiration Was British

There was ABC-TV's "A Touch of Grace," now canceled, which dealt in comedy terms with an elderly but lively widow, her droll gravedigger beau (he worked at the cemetery where her late husband was buried), and her conservative daughter and son-in-law, with whom she lived. The inspiration for this program was the British series "For The Love of Ada."

There is ABC-TV's "Thicker Than Water," yet another comedy, this one concerning a prim middle-aged spinster, her wastrel brother and their general disagreement on everything except a mutual hunger for the estate of their ailing octogenarian father. He, in turn, keeps them on a leash by making them run his factory to qualify for their impending inheritances. "Thicker Than Water" is based on the British series "Nearest and Dearest."

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Tony (and Dr. Rafferty) have probed a sore spot in American education: Our best English prof at Northwestern was refused promotion (polite way of firing teachers) just because his classes far outpolled those of the head of the department!

CASE X-540: Tony B., aged 38, is a school principal. "Dr. Crane," he asked, "our teachers seem to resent the idea of being rated on their success in the classroom."

"Is this just a natural fear by inferior teachers that they will be 'shown up' by the more efficient educators?"

"For example, Dr. Max Rafferty says that when a mediocre teacher is locked into his job by tenure, it requires a superior court judge to dislodge him."

"Dr. Rafferty recently stated in print that 'the educational Establishment in this country has fought tooth and nail over the years, any attempts to reward superior teachers by paying them more money for better work.'"

"Dr. Crane, in all other professions, the better men get higher incomes, so why not teachers, too?"

LOCKSTEP TEACHERS

While I was teaching psychology at Northwestern University, I was the Chicago representative of our famous Psychological Corporation. It conducted nationwide surveys, with key psychologists in some 80 to 100 regions of the U.S.A.

My Chicago quota of interviews was 250, scattered proportionately between 4 economic strata of society.

But I also developed several special Rating Scales, such as the "Tests for Husbands and Wives" as well as the "Test for Good Teachers."

Oddly enough, the professors refused to be rated by their own pupils.

"Students," they protested, "are incapable of evaluating good teachers!"

That's malarky!

For college students now can vote for U.S. Senators, Governors, Congressmen and even the President, when they are only 18.

FUND INQUIRY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., says the Justice Department has begun an investigation of an alleged Navy effort to cover up the misspending of $109.7 million.

If the Justice Department finds that Navy employees have violated the criminal statute which prohibits falsification of entries in federal records, "then appropriate action must be taken," Aspin said in a weekend statement.

Aspin said the General Accounting Office (GAO) has reported the Navy made errors in spending for personnel between 1969 and 1972.

Former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird in one of his last reports to Congress in January said the misspending was not "willful," but Aspin said he was disturbed by apparent illegal attempts "to adjust the books to hide this overspending."

RIGHT UPHELD

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The Nevada Supreme Court upheld the right of a woman to sue her husband for an auto-accident injury which occurred before their marriage.

The court affirmed a $38,000 insurance claim granted by a Washoe County jury to Debra K. Pearce against her husband, Stephen D. Pearce.

The injury occurred in April 1969 while the two were en route from California to Idaho to be married and the vehicle driven by Pearce overturned near Winnemucca, Nev.

The couple was married two days later, and initiated court action thereafter.

Women Threaten To Join Boycott

LONDON (UPI) — The world's top women tennis stars threatened to join the men in a boycott of the Wimbledon championships today unless they receive equal prize money.

Mrs. Billie Jean King, a four-time Wimbledon champion, said about 100 of the women would meet tonight to form a players union and vote on a possible boycott.

"We want more loot," she said. "If I can get the backing of the top 12 women players I am all for pulling out like the men."

The men voted to boycott Wimbledon early Wednesday to protest against Yugoslavia's Nikki Pilic being king of the tournament by the International Lawn Tennis Federation (ILTF).

British Sports Minister Eldon Griffiths intervened in the dispute Wednesday night, without resolving the crisis, in meetings with the chiefs of the players Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP) and the ILTF.

The move came as about 40 of the top men players, including several former Wimbledon champions, withdrew from the tournament.

ATP President Cliff Drysdale called the boycott "an all-or-nothing fight" and predicted up to 75 tennis stars would participate.

The ILTF suspended Pilic from playing in Wimbledon or any other tournament until June 30 after he failed to show up to play for his native Yugoslavia in a Davis Cup match against New Zealand.

Mrs. King said the women players were angry because their 19,400 pounds ($31,000) in prize money in the tournament totaled 40 per cent less than the men, who share 31,400 pounds ($79,000) in prizes.

Unofficial sources said today 35 men players had signed withdrawal forms pulling out of the tournament.

The sources said they included top seeded Stan Smith, the reigning champion from Sea Pines, S.C.; Arthur Ashe of Miami, Fla.; Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash.; John Newcombe of Australia; Tom Okker of The Netherlands; Cliff Richey of Sarasota, Fla.; Martin Riessen, Evanston, Ill.; and Ken Rosewall, Australia.

But Wimbledon Referee Capt. Mike Gibson said he had received no withdrawal forms by mid-morning.

"I know these forms have been signed, but they have not been handed over to me yet," Gibson said.

Rangers Win Second Series

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Versatile Texas Rangers sophomore Vic Harris has felt he has more power hitting right-handed, but after Wednesday night's performance in a 3-0 Texas victory over Minnesota, he isn't so sure.

Harris boomed a pair of triples into right center off righthander Dick Woodson to figure in all three Texas runs that enabled the Rangers to win only their second road series of the season, two games to one.

The switch-hitting Harris' first portside triple came in the second inning after Jim Spencer had walked and Jeff Burroughs had singled. His second came in the ninth with one away just ahead of Ken Suarez' punch single over a pulled-in Twins infield.

Harris' power with a bat he had obtained only last week from friend George Hendricks of the Cleveland Indians was more than enough to get Texas home in front with Sonny Siebert hurling only the second Texas shutout of the year.

Siebert set the Twins down with six hits, struck out seven and issued only one walk in going the distance for the first time since being obtained from Boston. He had been a victim of shoddy fielding in losing three straight.

The Rangers had an off day today before opening a series in Kansas City Friday night.

Duffy Daugherty: From Sidelines To Press Box

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Unless something totally unexpected happens, the nation is in for a treat this fall. Duffy Daugherty will join the team of Chris Schenkel and Bud Wilkinson in telecasting the college football games.

Daugherty is a man who views dullness as a cardinal sin, and considers taking oneself too seriously as another mortal transgression. Hopefully, he will say what is on his droll mind on television. The Cyclops, though, has a way of ferreting out the blandness in people, especially telecasters doing football.

Schenkel, for example, is a marvelous reporter if you only tune in to hear the good news. Wilkinson is one of this country's most revered sportscasters.

There is hope that change can occur. The American Broadcasting Company did alter for the better the football viewing habits of America. Whether or not you like the patter and laughter on Monday night pro football, one must admit that it is not your usual football inanities. (Critics say, then, that it's your unusual football inanities).

Daugherty, former Michigan State football coach, says frankly that he is an admirer of both Howard Cosell and Don Meredith, the stars of the Monday night telecasting.

"Cosell humanizes the players," said Daugherty at breakfast recently in Manhattan. "He tells personal things about their backgrounds—this fellow is one of seven children in his family—that kind of thing."

Meredith, says Daugherty, is also entertaining. As the world so sourfully knows, Meredith will sometimes break into a down-home Texas song on the air. Daugherty, too, has been known to spin a tune.

One is from his high school days in Barnesboro, Pa., in the age where people were still doing most of their artwork on cave walls:

"Barnesboro, Barnesboro
B-A-R-N-E-S-B-O-R-O
Where the girls are the fairest
And the boys are the squares"

His Irish tenor, admits Daugherty, is not necessarily his strong suit. Football and story-telling are. Both of which he hopes to impart on the telecasts. For example, he feels it will add something colorful to perhaps tell what coaches might be saying in the locker rooms at halftime.

He tells of when his Michigan State team played Notre Dame in 1956. The State players were in a trance, said Daugherty. They were under the spell of the famed Notre Dame Golden Dome. Former Notre Dame All-Americans, including the Four Horsemen, were at the game. The legend was undulating. State couldn't do a thing right in the first half, and was lucky to be losing only 7-0.

Daugherty didn't know what to do. He was silent, as all were, in the halftime locker room. Finally, he asked the center, "What happened on that snap?" which had resulted in a fumble. "I don't know; it was like a hand reached down and deflected the ball," said the center.

"Don't bring religion into this," said Daugherty. "The Good Lord has more important things to do."

"Well, coach, then maybe the hand reached up."

The team broke up, the strange mood was reversed and State went out and won 47-17.

Daugherty's wit should add necessary fuel to the telecasts. After the awful 1967 season, for example, the team's record was 3-7. Daugherty explained: "We won three games, lost none and were upset in seven."

At the start of one season, a reporter asked whom Daugherty was happiest to see returning this year. "Me," he replied.

Daugherty, 58 years old, will not return this season. The Michigan State team had only mediocre records the previous six seasons, after being tops in the na-

Baseball Roundup

UPI Sports Writer

Relief pitcher Sparky Lyle picked up his 18th save Wednesday night and the New York Yankees vaulted into first place by half a game in the Eastern Division with a 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

The Yankees have won 11 games in June and Lyle has saved all 11.

This kind of record naturally brings up the question of whether manager Ralph Houk is overworking Lyle and challenging the law of averages.

"I don't recognize the law of averages," the optimistic major insists. "I just bring him in when we're ahead and he does the job."

Lyle got the help of a diving stop by Graig Nettles to get his latest save. Houk called on him with the Yanks leading, 2-0, after Paul Blair worked starter Mel Stottlemyre for a walk. Bobby Grich singled and Brooks Robinson sacrificed the runners along.

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver sent Don Baylor up to face Lyle and Nettles, the Yankees' third baseman, made a diving stop on Baylor's grounder and threw him out at Blair scored. But that was it for the Orioles.

In other AL games, Milwaukee sneaked by Boston, 3-2. Chicago moved into first place by a half game in the Western Division with an 8-3 victory over California. Minnesota was blanked by Texas, 3-0, and dropped into a second-place tie with Kansas City, which beat Oakland, 5-4, in 12 innings. Cleveland downed Detroit, 7-6.

In the National League, Cincinnati beat San Francisco, 7-5. Philadelphia edged New York, 4-3. Chicago downed Pittsburgh, 5-3. Montreal drubbed St. Louis, 5-1. San Diego trimmed Houston, 6-2, and Los Angeles nipped Atlanta, 6-5, in 11 innings.

Pat Kelly's first homer of the season—a three-run blast—highlighted a six-run seventh inning and paced the White Sox past California. Cy Acosta pitched 2 1/3 innings for the win and became the first American League pitcher to bat this season. He struck out Nolan Ryan, 8-8, took the loss.

Sonny Siebert pitched a six-hitter and Vic Harris smashed two triples, including a two-run triple in the second inning, to give Texas the victory over Minnesota. Dick Woodson took the loss.

Kurt Bevacqua's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the 12th inning scored Fran Healy from third base and lifted Kansas City over Oakland. The A's tied the games with two runs in the ninth on a run-scoring double by Gene Tenace and Joe Rudi's sacrifice fly.

Rick Miller and Reggie Smith opened the game with back-to-back homers and Carlton Fisk drove in the winning run with a fourth inning single to pace Boston over Milwaukee. Bill Lee pitched a nine-hitter to boost his record to 8-2.

George Hendrick singled in Buddy Bell in the ninth inning to give Cleveland the victory over Detroit. It was the second straight game in which Hendrick drove in the winning run and he hit his 14th homer of the season in the seventh inning. Willie Horton hit a pair of homers for the Tigers.

Schlee Preferring 'Professional Win'

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — John Schlee isn't knocking the U.S. Open or Oakmont Country Club, but he says winning the American Golf Classic which opened today on the Firestone Country Club course "professional-wise would be more rewarding."

"Don't get me wrong," said the 34-year-old Schlee, who finished second to Johnny Miller in last week's Open at Oakmont. "I'm not knocking

Aarons Share Brotherly Love

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The day he breaks the record, I think I'll feel just as happy as he will. Probably happier. Look, he's my brother. I love him."

Tommie Aaron was talking from his hotel room in Columbus, Ga., where he was awaiting for the rain to stop so his Savannah Braves could go out and whip the Columbus Astros in a Southern League contest.

He was talking about his older brother, Hank, whom he managed to see a week ago when the Atlanta Braves came to Savannah to play the Southern League All-Stars.

"We talked about a lot of different things, you know, life in general and about the family back home, but nothing about the record," said Tommie Aaron. "Hank told me he was feeling great. He said he had a little trouble with his back there for a while, but it was all right now."

Tommie Receives Call
The Aaron brothers had their little talk last Thursday, and a day later, Tommie Aaron, who was then a player-coach with Savannah, received a telephone call from the parent Atlanta Braves. Eddie Robinson, the Braves' vice president in charge of baseball operations, and Bill Lucas, his minor league administrator, both were on the line during the call, and the conversation went something like this:

"We've moved (Clint) Courtney up to Richmond, you know, and we need a manager at Savannah, can you handle it?" "I think so."

"It's a big responsibility." "I know that, but I still feel I can do the job. I'll certainly give it all I've got."

"Okay, then, we'll make the announcement."

And so it was that one day after he had spoken with his brother Hank, Tommie Aaron was named manager of the Braves' double-A Savannah club.

In Mobile, Ala., the announcement made Mrs. Estella Aaron extraordinarily happy.

Two Doing Great
One of her four sons now was a manager of a professional baseball club, and another, the one everybody is watching every time he plays, is on his way to smashing what has grown to be perhaps the most celebrated record in all sports — Babe Ruth's lifetime total of 714 home runs. Hank Aaron, with 691 going into Wednesday night's game with the Dodgers, is only 24 shy of cracking the record.

"I think he's going to break it," says Tommie. "He's relaxed now, he's over that back trouble and he's in a good frame of mind. I'm sure he'd like his (.224) average to be higher, but with the home runs and all that, you know how it is. I keep watching the papers every day. Any time he hits a home run, I feel great. Yeah, I read about some of the abuse he took, but I didn't think too much about it. This is a funny world. You're going to get abuse sometimes no matter what you do."

Tommie Aaron, 33 and six years younger than Hank, has 15 years experience in professional baseball, six in the majors with the Braves. He started with Eau Claire, Wis., of the Northern League, the same club Hank did, but in all his time with the Braves he managed only 13 home runs.

No Comparison
"You couldn't possibly compare Hank and me," says Tommie Aaron. "We're two different style ballplayers. He is the complete ballplayer, he can do just about anything. I had to scuffle to do it."

LEARNS NEW POINT
BYU Star Set For All-America

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Ball-carrying is nothing new for Pete Vanvalkenburg of Brigham Young. But he is learning a new starting point.

The 6-2, 195-pound tailback rushed for 1,386 yards over 232 carries during the 1972 season and a six-yard average to finish first in the NCAA rushing statistics.

Preparing for the 13th annual Coaches All-America football game Saturday night, Vanvalkenburg isn't too sure about his rushing in this year's all star game.

"They've moved me from tailback to fullback, and the last time I played that position was back in high school," he said today. "However, they have me running both fullback and tailback plays, and I might get to play a little tailback too."

During his final season at Brigham Young, Vanvalkenburg averaged 138.6 yards rushing per game, including his best game against Long Beach State in which he gained 247 yards. He finished with 2,392 yards for his career, caught 25 passes for 280 additional yards and completed eight of 17 aerials.

He also returned 19 kickoffs 474 yards during three years of varsity football.

"It took a little time to get down the offense we'll be using against the East Saturday

Tough a job as he has ahead of him now. Hank Aaron may not have the roughest one in the family.

His brother Tommie didn't exactly fall into a bed of feathers with Savannah even though Courtney did turn over a club to him that was in first place. Tommie Aaron, you have to remember is the first black manager ever to take over a team in organized baseball in the South. The club has won three of the five games it has played under him.

"So far, it's been great," he says. "We're still in first place. We were five games up when I took over, and we still are."

Either way, Tommie Aaron is in good shape. He still can say he and his brother have produced more home runs than any other brothers in major league history. Yup, almost 200 more than the three Di Maggio's put together.

Vanvalkenburg said "We are using Coach John McKay's University of Southern California's offense, and while we are using the basic plays everyone knows he still has his own way of running them."

Vanvalkenburg said he expected the fullback to be used more Saturday, at least a lot more than McKay used his own fullback at USC.

"I don't think I'll be used as much as I would at tailback, but I still expect to carry the ball a lot," he said.

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. (CDT) before 45,000 fans and a national television audience.

Vanvalkenburg was drafted in the third round by New Orleans, and he is looking past Saturday night to next month and getting into action with the Saints.

"I think this game will help me get ready and be in shape when I report to New Orleans," he said. "I'll be playing with the best in the nation in this game, and that should help me be ready for drills with the Saints."

"I'm anxious to get down there and play for them," he said. "I think New Orleans will be using me as a halfback, and I expect to carry the ball a lot. Of course you just don't know until you get there, and maybe that's another reason I'm so anxious."

Oklahoma Leading NCAA Golf Meet

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) — Henry Delozier of Oklahoma State, a first round co-leader in the 76th annual NCAA golf championships, admits that keeping his feet on the ground is a problem.

Delozier is tied at three under par 67 with teammate Danny Edwards and Florida's Gary Koch.

"It's hard to stay normal, to keep from getting higher than a kite," he said. "Being a hometown boy, when I go to Sandy's (drive-in restaurant) or the post office people say 'Are you ready?' I've been psyched up for this since I was about 11 years old."

Delozier, grandson of a former Oklahoma State University president, grew up in Stillwater and won the state amateur last year on the same Stillwater Country Club Course where the championships are being played.

His 67, coupled with that of Edwards, left Oklahoma State one shot shy of the blistering five under par team pace set by Koch and his Florida cohorts.

No other teams managed to break par, although Houston equaled it at 280.

Texas, winner the last two years, was four over, Georgia Southern and New Mexico five over and Southern California six over.

Just one stroke back of the three leaders at two under par 68 were Andy Bean of Florida, Jimmy Ellis of Georgia Southern and Bill Rogers of Houston.

Pre-tournament favorite Ben Crenshaw of Texas, shooting for a third straight individual NCAA title, was one of 11 players at one under par 69, and said, "I thought I played better than that."

Delozier said he was not worried because Oklahoma State was unable to grab the team lead despite a pair of three under par rounds.

"Not at all, we're playing in Oklahoma," he said. "I have some teammates that don't have the star spangled credentials some of the other players have, but they are real hard players."

St. Patrick is credited with the origin of leap year.

Duffy Daugherty

tion the two years before.

Pasture, unfortunately, is where old coaches with non-descript records are herded.

Daugherty was given a job as a kind of glorified fund raiser. His interests, however, remain with football, and he gives clinics with Bud Wilkinson in the spring. He is enthusiastic about the telecasting job.

His daughter, Dree, a Stanford freshman, hopes for something else. When she heard he would not return as football coach, she wrote him a letter. "There is so much more to life than just being a football coach," she wrote. "I know you now have the time—and the soul—to find it out."

PETERBOROUGH, England (UPI) — Teacher Kim Joyce is quitting to become a bricklayer.

Over-65s Impact Grows

We, the people of the United States, are growing older. According to a recent Census Bureau report...

—Today about 20.6 million Americans are 65 years of age and up, and the number is increasing by 300,000 to 400,000 a year.

—The number of people over 65 will rise sharply between the years 2010 and 2020 when the World War II "baby boom" becomes an "elderly boom."

—The proportion of people 65 to 69 is declining, while the proportion of those 75 and older is growing.

—The time is coming, says one gerontologist, when more than half our population will be over 65, a fact which is going to have a major impact on many of our institutions and customs.

Now the premium is on being young, notes Dr. Mary M. Sequin of Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, who is a gerontology doctorate in the field of gerontology, the study of aging.

But when the population shifts begin to occur — caused by a combination of medical advances and a declining birth rate — the premium will be on being older, she predicts. The focus of power and values will shift.

She foresees one major problem area in the economy, especially the job market, as technology eliminates jobs and we are forced to keep lowering the age of retirement to make room for new entrants.

One possible solution might be for people to work in five-year cycles. They would take a year or more off after each cycle, giving opportunities for more people to be employed.

Americans over 65 are the new "pioneers," says Dr. Sequin. Before, not many people lived to a ripe old age, and those few older people were incorporated in the general population without anything special needing to be done about their special needs or problems.

"Today we have a large number of people in this group for the first time. They are pioneering new roles — being retirees, being great-grandparents."

Going...Going...Sold!

Who would bid $1,000 for Mark Spitz' swim trunks (minus the swimmer)? Or $7,500 sight unseen for 100 shares of unspecified stock?

Fortunately, a lot of people would. These items, and others equally unusual, were offered and snapped up by bidders in the fifth annual auction conducted by station KCET in Los Angeles.

All told a record $471,000 was raised by the prominent public television channel in a recent nine-day marathon. (Incidentally, the fellow who bought the stock, donated by an investment firm, lost $3,325 on the deal.)

KCET, like many other nonprofit, noncommercial public or educational television stations around the country, annually conducts such auctions to help offset operating deficits. Since 1969, this one station has raised more than $1.4 million.

It says something about the plight of public TV that it is forced to resort to such gimmicks in order to stay in business. But it also says something about public regard for this branch of the medium, at least from a loyal core of supporters, in that the auctions have been so successful that they have become a regular institution.

Roadside 'Booby Traps'

At least 75 per cent of the fatal accidents on the 34,500-mile Interstate Highway System involve roadside "booby traps" — unsledding signposts, steep embankments, rigid light poles and poorly designed guardrails.

The U.S. Department of Transportation reports that more than half the fatal accidents on the Interstate system between 1968 and 1971 were single-vehicle, run-off-the-road crashes and estimates that fixed objects take a toll of more than 4,500 lives annually.

In a related study by the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation during the first half of 1972, investigators attributed 357 deaths to fixed roadside objects struck by cars. By comparison, only 290 people died in crashes with other cars. "The most deplorable aspect of the situation is that roadside death traps have been put there by man," comments Thomas C. Morrill, vice-president of State Farm Mutual, the nation's largest automobile insurer.

"They can be eliminated simply and economically. The technology to do it has been available. The General Accounting Office, the watchdog on spending for Congress, reports that dollars spent to remove highway hazards have five times the lifesaving value of dollars spent on new roads."

A speed trap is what a fast-talking woman possesses.

Watergate Isn't That Important

By PAUL HARVEY

When you listen to Mr. Kissinger's obtuse explanations for our continuing involvement in Indochina; when you hear some misstepping member of Congress temporize; when you hear our President trying to rationalize — do you ever wish our leaders might be strong enough to confess weakness? Or wise enough, when they do something unwise, to admit: "We goofed!"

We're going to un-complicate Watergate.

Any time a lawyer tries to explain anything, inevitably he falls back on classroom-learned words and phrases which have been courtroom-tested for either their definition or their indefiniteness.

No President of the United States has dared employ potentially incriminating shirt-sleeve English since Harry Truman and, before him, Andy Jackson.

Reread the way those men responded to challenges to themselves and/or their administrations with "yeses" and "nos" and unmistakably meaningful salty phrases and it's shocking — but refreshing.

If they were sometimes mistaken they were never misunderstood.

Compare Truman's "The buck stops here!" to the 2,000 words it took Mr. Nixon to say the same thing last April 30 and it's no wonder the new surveys show most Americans remain unconvinced they've been told the whole truth.

If you leave the lawyer language out when you retell the Watergate spy story, it's not really worthy of all the attention it's getting. It's an impressive cast but a thin plot you'd have to stretch like everything to fill a half-hour on TV.

It's the story of some guys in a political campaign who decided their opponents were mostly a bunch of kooks, so to find out what the kooks were up to, the spy guys did a very kooky thing themselves. The listened in on the opposition's headquarters. They got caught at it.

To make it more exciting for TV — or for a news-reader — you have to imagine some clandestine, cloak-and-dagger type meetings by plotters in dark glasses in the back rooms of dim-lit bistros.

But actually, factually, most of the plotting was arranged as casually as A telling B, "I know where I can hire a private-eye type who'll keep us out of it."

So the only way you can make this third-rate burglary into a Page One scandal is to add the whodunit element.

If you should know from the beginning whodunit it's no mystery, no story, no news.

Some day our nation will be mature and secure enough so that its leaders can look at Vietnam and say, "We goofed!"

They can look at the record of foreign aid and say, "We've been had."

They can look at a Watergate and, the morning after, confess: "We sinned! We knew the gun was loaded and we took a chance."

Both government planners and dotting parents will be horrified to hear that in expert suggests that pre-school education is harmful to a child. But that is exactly what Dr. Raymond S. Moore, Chief Executive Officer of the Hewitt Research Center, maintains. A former public school elementary teacher, and a teacher of child development at the college level, Moore, speaking over the Manion Forum Radio Program, had this to say:

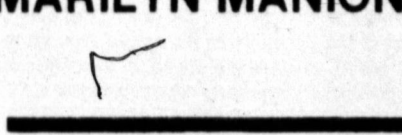

"Neurophysiologists know that the young brain is not ready for sustained application to school work until it is at least seven or eight or older. Learning psychologists know that a child is not yet fully able to reason until he is at least seven or eight. Those who understand visual perception know that the young child's eyes are not yet ready for close work until the child is seven or eight or older.

"We know that, as shown by overwhelming evidence in comparative school entrance age studies, that children who start to school later, relatively, quickly catch up with and pass the children who start earlier and come out as more stable, more sociable, better motivated and better leaders than do the children who start to school early.

"The idea of sociality developed by pre-schools is really a farce. Surely they go out and they get excited being with a lot of other youngsters, but these small children play in parallel,

Head Starts At Home

Much has been said on the subject of why "Johnny" can't read. Is it the teaching methods that are at fault? The home atmosphere? Or, perhaps, Jonny himself? Parents and educators continue to argue the point; several years ago the Federal Government stepped in with "Head Start."

The theory behind this government program was that very young children could be "enriched" to the point where, upon entering grammar school, they would be more ready to learn. And the theory behind that was that enrichment, at least in many socio-economic groups, was not available at home.

Head Starts away from home are not limited to the poor. Lots of middle and upper-class parents trot their toddlers off to nursery schools every year. I don't know how many millions of dollars are spent annually for pre-school education, but just ring up your local nursery school and inquire about the rates — you'll find it's an expensive proposition indeed.

Both government planners and dotting parents will be horrified to hear that in expert suggests that pre-school education is harmful to a child. But that is exactly what Dr. Raymond S. Moore, Chief Executive Officer of the Hewitt Research Center, maintains. A former public school elementary teacher, and a teacher of child development at the college level, Moore, speaking over the Manion Forum Radio Program, had this to say:

"Neurophysiologists know that the young brain is not ready for sustained application to school work until it is at least seven or eight or older. Learning psychologists know that a child is not yet fully able to reason until he is at least seven or eight. Those who understand visual perception know that the young child's eyes are not yet ready for close work until the child is seven or eight or older.

"We know that, as shown by overwhelming evidence in comparative school entrance age studies, that children who start to school later, relatively, quickly catch up with and pass the children who start earlier and come out as more stable, more sociable, better motivated and better leaders than do the children who start to school early.

"The idea of sociality developed by pre-schools is really a farce. Surely they go out and they get excited being with a lot of other youngsters, but these small children play in parallel, they don't come there to share toys. The normal child in the normal home situation actually crosses paths with many people anyway. He plays with them in the yard, he's out shopping with his mother, he's out occasionally to church.

"The child is much better off at home, in a relatively free, warm, continuing, consistent environment. The mother takes him along with her in the various activities of the home. Gradually she will start him, if she's a knowing mother, into the activities of fluffing the pillow while she makes the bed, or helping to polish Daddy's shoes and his own, or keeping his own corner clean, or putting things away. Ultimately, and before he's in school, whether boy or girl, he can be helping with the cooking, the mowing of the lawn, the cleaning.

"When he becomes ready for school work, at seven or eight, he will be a stable individual with what we call self-confidence. This type of self-respect is the basis for self-control or self-discipline. Then when he goes to school, he's his own man.

"I'd like to point out that Dr. Glen Nimnicht, who was a former chief psychologist for Operation Head Start, now says that it is his hunch that 20 minutes spent by the mother playing with or reading to her child each day is worth three hours in pre-schools."

It's a lot cheaper, too.

Wit And Whimsy

Bond paper is nice stuff to write on—unless you need the bond to make bail.

Can't wait to tell you about the out-of-work dog who had a hard time keeping a woof over his head.

Yes, calories do count. There is no magic that enables one to avoid the principle that what you weigh depends on the calories in (food) balanced against the calories out (activity). It's just like a checking account, and you either have to lose the calories through the digestive tract (as may occur with an illness such as an infectious diarrhea), or else you have to burn up the calories you take in if they're not to be stored as fat.

Yps, 100 calories in cake has the same weight gaining effect as 100 calories of meat. A calorie is a calorie. Since lean meat is over 70 per cent water it does contain fewer calories per ounce than cake.

- QUESTION SOLVED
LONDON (UPI) — Science finally has solved the baffling question—whether milk should go into the cup before or after tea.
Experts employed by the British Standards Institution said the milk should go into the cup first. If it is poured into the tea, they said, the milk is scalded and that affects the taste of the tea.
The experts also drew up rules for tea making to guarantee that tea sold to the public is uniform.
Water used for making tea, they said, must boil and must come to almost the top of the pot when the lid is put on. Then the pot, must stand exactly six minutes before the tea is poured.
"We're not trying to tell the public how to make tea," one expert said. "This is just for the professional tasters."

BERRY'S WORLD

The first all-talking movie, "Lights of New York" was presented at the Strand Theatre in New York City on July 6, 1928. The World Almanac says: Previously, in "The Jazz Singer" Al Jolson demonstrated talking pictures in New York City on Oct. 6, 1927. The first sound-on-film moving pictures were shown at the Rivoli Theatre in April, 1933.

Czar Nicholas of Russia, the Empress Alexandra, their daughters, Olga, Tatiana, Marie, Anastasia, and their son, Alexis were shot on Bolshevik orders in Ekaterinburg on July 16, 1918. The World Almanac says: Other relatives of the royal family were also killed, leaving no living heirs to claim the Russian throne.

"... I would like to nip in the bud the rumor that the President's favorite game is SOLITAIRE!"
