school classes, but the Amarillo school board said it plans no change the admission policy at this time.

The board said that admission of Negro students to the summer school, which opened Tuesday would "not contribute to the ultimate solution of the problem of integration."

It added that such a change would be making a "hurried decision on a problem that requires a considerable amount of study." Seven Appear

Seven Negro civic leaders appeared with the request before the school poard at a meeting Monday night, although there were no for mal applications from parents or students.

The group was headed by David W. Hughes, representing the Amarillo council of community organizations composed of Negro serv ice and civic clubs, and the Rev. L. B. George, pastor of the Mount Zion Baptist Church.

Hughes told the board that its thinking on desegregation, as ordered by a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision, had been "so indecisive we think this would be a good time to start, during the summer months, on working on the problem."

No Solution Discussed Board President H. O. Willborn said that the solution of the problem had not been discussed by the board, which has been "waiting for some guide from the state board of education."

Willborn said later that he was speaking for himself and that "frankly, I don't want to be a pioneer.

Hughes pointed out to the board that Negro students had been admitted to Amarillo college several years ago and that it had worked out smoothly. He said Carver (Negro) high school did not offer a complete education along some lines which students wished to study.

Texas' First Grapes Shipped

LAREDO, Tex. -- UP-Packing of the first rall carload shipment of grapes ever sent out of Texas will begin late this week, Robert Trautmann of Trautmann Brothers said Tuesday.

Trautmann said the grape grow ing venture was new to the Laredo section, and added that very few grapes were grown anywhere in Texas,

He said his firm would begin harvesting 50 acres of vineyards, all Thompson seedless table grape, in the next day or two. The vines are only two and three years old, but Trautmann said prospects were good they would provide a heavy yield.

There continues to be much criticism of the Nationalist Chinese holed up on their island stronghold of Formosa, We find it difficult to defend ANY government operation and we have wondered somewhat as to the validity of some of the charges against Chiang Kai-shek. We are indebted to Dr. W. G. Goddard, an Australian, and a commentator on Far Eastern Affairs for the Commonwealth Broadcasting Corporation, for a report he has just issued on the conditions as they exist on the island of Formosa.

The one yard stick we carry as to the value of any political regime is the degree of freedom possessed by the inhabitants under that regime. We would naturally expect that Formosa, only a few miles from enemy communist guns, would be somewhat regimented. And so we were prepared to read Dr. Goddard's report with threat of war as an overriding alibi for Chiang if violations of freedom were not otherwise too obnoxious.

But, according to Dr. Goddard, no alibis are necessary. As a visitor arriving in Taipei, Dr. Goddard found there were no excessive regulations designed to trap him. He negotiated customs in about ten minutes. No one challenged him. He was free to come and go as he pleased over the whole island. He talked to businessmen on the streets, to farmers on their farms, to housewives and industrial workers. He says that not once was he questioned as to his business in Formosa. He was invited on two occasions to broadcast on radio. He was not even required to submit a script in advance. He was given complete freedom to say what he thought about anything.

He found the people with a complete antipathy toward communism. He inquired why there weren't more safeguards against communists. He was informed that the people didn't like communism; that a communist could not be effective unless he revealed himself as a communist; and that as soon as he was thus revealed he stopped being effective because people shunned him.

Formosa is not an "ideal" place. There are still many things wrong, many instances of government meddling in private affairs, business, schools and so forth. One of the reasons for this is that the Formosan government has tried to copy methods practiced by the government of the United States.

But in view of its geographic location, Goddard expressed himself as "amazed" at the amount of personal freedom maintained by nearly everyone. His report will go a long way toward minimizing the completely unauthenticated smears that still persist against the Nationalist Chinese.

A Blueprint For Tyranny One of the most interesting chapters in Dr. V. Orval Watts' book "The United Nations, Road to War" is under the heading of "A Blueprint for Tyranny." Lis-

"The subversive force of this foreign host is growing by another means. The agencies of the United Nations and of other treaty organizations are finding ways to reinterpret the agreements by which they got their start. "In other words, they are revising the UN Charter and other agreements by methods which completely by-pass the procedures originally established for that pur-"This startling fact came to light last year in the work of the Senate subcommittee considering proposals for revising the UN Charter. The staff of this committee reported:

"'We are by no means examining the charter that was drafted in San Francisco in 1945. We are examining the charter of 1954 as it has been amplified by custom and usage, resolutions of the various UN organs, and treaties, like the Atlantic Pact, which are consistent with the charter and have a heavy impact on the U.N. system. If we should proceed now to consider amendments to the old charter rather than the new, would be very much like a surgeon planning a major operation on the basis of a diagnosis made 9 years ago.'

"In formerly accepted diplomatic usage, such a change in the terms of a treaty, without the consent or knowledge of all paries to it, would have automaticaldestroyed the treaty. It would have relieved all parties of any obligation under its terms.

"But the authors of the UN Charter were not writing just another treaty. They were devising a new organization - a new political force - for remaking the world according to their ambitious plans

Therefore, they deliberately stated the scope and powers of the new body in vague and general terms to permit it to extend its authority as far as Member States and their citizens or subjects would stand for. 'This appeared in an address by Mr. John Foster Dulles during the sounding Conference at San Francisco at which he was a delegate. His remarks show that these men knew what they were doing. For, in one of his addresses, he praised the Charter provision lim-

Parent-Teacher Associations are essentially private clubs, serving many good and useful purposes. but with no official public status. So long as they remain that, it is clearly pretty much their own private business how they run their own affairs.

When, however, they constitute themselves a political lobby and lign their mass membership behind demands for fundamental change in national policies that affect everybody, it seems to me they waive this privilege of privacy, and invite public inspection of the "influence" they assert. Just now they are the principal citizen organization fighting for federal aid to education - in fact. the only organization with any important membership. Quite a considerable number of those memhers, however, contend that they themselves are not for federal aid -but on the contrary vigorously oppose it - although they are counted as part of the organization support. They charge, furthermore, that the membership has never been asked which side of this controversial issue it wishes to take, but has simply been herded into line. That is the basis of the long. erable active sentiment aginst the smoldering fight that flared up in Broad Fipple last week, and again in the state PTA convention - a dispute that gets no less bitter because of the presence of a good many fine, sincere, wellmeaning people on both sides of Ostensibly it's over the hot federal aid issue. But basically, it is about how democratic - or undemocratic - PTA procedure is.

The National Congress of Parons, of which it is composed, indorsed the proposal, although it has firmly refused to reveal which states, or how many, or how they did it.

The indorsement was just renewed this week by Indiana, however, in an interesting manner. The conion was informed that local PTA units in the state had inprsed the national (ederal aid pol-

"out of order." There are more than 1100 local PTA units in Indiana. So that fewer than one-third of them actually had indorsed federal aid by this "poll" - although the entire state organization was thus considered bound to that policy. Even in those units, there had been no real vote on it by members. "Ballots" - one to each unit - had been sent to local secretaries to be acted upon by local PTA meet-

So far as these ballots were concerned that issue aiready has been settled and closed. The "vote" was only on how it was to be distributed.
