Saigon Reaches New Agreement

SAIGON (UPI) — The Viet Cong said today it had finally reached agreement with the Saigon government on a timetable for resuming exchange of military and civilian prisoners of war, ending a two-month deadlock.

Congress Ponders Bombing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the Soviet-American summit meeting over, Congress returned today to the business of legislating an end to the U.S. bombing of Cambodia.

President Nixon may be forced to decide within 10 days whether to accept the congressional verdict or fight back with a veto.

A crucial House vote on the war issue—postponed while President Nixon and Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev met—was set for this afternoon.

Legislation cutting off funds for further U.S. military action "in, over or from the shores of Cambodia," which passed the Senate 63 to 19 May 31, will come up as part of a $3.3 billion supplemental appropriations bill.

The House Appropriations Committee met this morning to deal with an even stronger war amendment, by Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-Conn., to cut off funds not only for the Cambodia bombing but for any further U.S. military action in North Vietnam, South Vietnam and Laos.

The House was already in record opposition to the bombing by votes of 224 to 172 and 219 to 188 on more limited anti-bombing amendments approved on the floor May 10.

ending at noon today, 17 fewer than in the previous 24 hours.

Three small ground attacks and a shelling, all within 40 miles of Saigon, killed three government soldiers and wounded seven. Two Communists were slain in one of the actions, a command spokesman said.

Five persons were killed and two wounded when a hamlet administrative office was attacked deep in the Mekong Delta, 100 miles southwest of Saigon. Communist casualties were unknown, the spokesman said.

On Sunday, the command reported killing 22 Communists in a spurt of fighting in the Mekong Delta.

Viet Cong press officer Capt. Phuong Nam said today agreement for the resumed exchange was made through the Joint Military Commission (JMC). He said the releases are scheduled to resume Friday and will continue through July 7. In that period, he said, the Viet Cong will free 617 persons and the government 533.

The timetable also provides for visits by representatives of the two sides to a prison camp operated by each side. The Viet Cong prison visit will be on July 2 at Duc Nghiep in Pleiku Province in the Central Highlands.

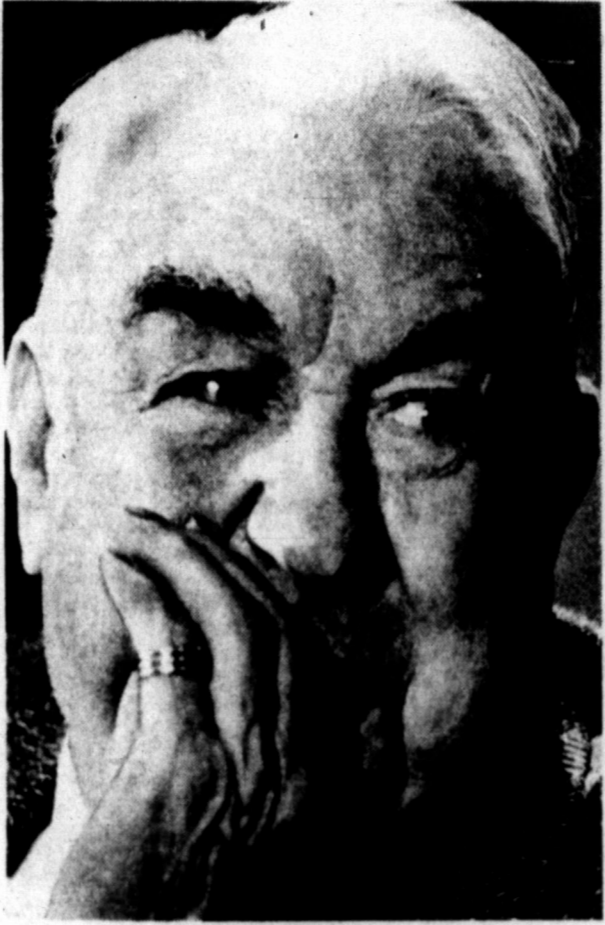

The following day a government prison camp at Tam Hiep in Bien Hoa Province, near Saigon, will be visited, Nam said.

A command spokesman said the delta fighting broke out when Communist troops attacked a South Vietnamese infantry position Sunday morning near Kien Thien, 125 miles southwest of Saigon.

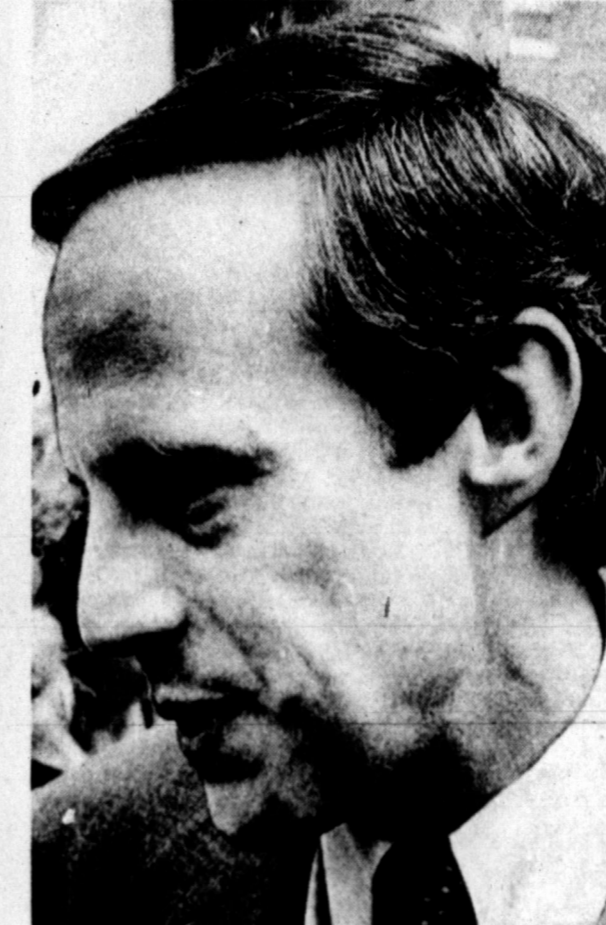

He said 22 Communists died in the battle at a cost of 15 infantrymen wounded.

The command has been reporting one or more incidents involving civilian casualties almost daily since the initial Jan. 28 cease-fire.

Former Counsel Says Nixon Involved In Watergate Affair

AWAITED TESTIMONY — Sen. Sam Ervin, left, listens as former White House counsel John W. Dean III, right, provides testimony saying

President Nixon was involved in the Watergate affair. During the morning session, Dean did not reveal the extent of Nixon's alleged involvement.

'Did Not Realize His Implications'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former White House counsel John W. Dean said today that President Nixon "was involved" in the Watergate affair, but that Nixon did not realize the implications of his involvement.

In opening remarks at the nationally televised Senate Watergate hearings just prior to reading his lengthy public statement, Dean said it was difficult for him to implicate many men whom he respected and admired. He then turned his attention to the President.

"It is my honest belief that while the President was involved, he did not realize or appreciate the implication of his involvement," Dean said, "and I think that when the facts come out I hope the President will be forgiven."

He did not elaborate, instead going straight into his prepared statement. However, he was certain to be asked numerous questions about any possible presidential involvement over the next few days.

Committee Chairman Sam Ervin, prior to Dean's testimony, emphasized for public consumption what had been discussed extensively in closed sessions — that Dean was testifying under subpoena, involuntarily, and that he had been granted limited immunity for anything he might say before the committee.

Early in his testimony, Dean said he would skip parts of his statement to keep within the timetable set by the committee. But Ervin suggested that he read the entire statement since Dean thought it was "important enough to write it," Dean said he would.

"It's a very difficult thing for me to testify about other people. It's far more easy for me to explain my own involvement in this matter; the fact that I was involved in obstruction of justice; the fact that I assisted another in purjured testimony; the fact that I made personal use of funds that were in my custody; it's far easier to talk about these things myself than to talk about what others did."

"Some of these people I'll be referring to are friends, some are men I greatly admire and respect... and particularly with reference to the President of the United States... I'd like to say this:

"It is my honest belief that while the President was involved, he did not realize or appreciate at any time the implications of his involvement and I think that when the facts come out, I hope the President is forgiven."

Dean said the scandal grew out of the Nixon administration's "insatiable appetite for political intelligence."

Dean, who claims personal knowledge of the depth of Nixon's involvement in the burglary and wiretapping of Democratic national headquarters in June 1972, made the characterization of the "climate" in Nixon's White House at the start of his televised testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee.

Said Dean: "To one who was in the White House and became somewhat familiar with its interworkings, the Watergate matter was an inevitable outgrowth of a climate of excessive concern over the political impact of demonstrators, excessive concern over leaks, an insatiable appetite for political intelligence, all coupled with a do-it-yourself White House staff regardless of the law."

As many as one million letters have poured into the offices of senators and representatives on the vitamin issue, most of them urging support for proposed legislation to force the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to abandon its plan to place restrictions on vitamins, minerals and other food supplements.

The FDA has said its restrictions are aimed at protecting the public welfare. Opponents of the restrictions disagree, saying that if the new rules are put into effect many vitamin products may disappear from the market.

There are several aspects to the FDA's proposal, but the one which seems to have triggered the most controversy says that any vitamin, food supplement or food containing more than 150 per cent of the recommended daily allowance (RDA) of any vitamin shall be classified as a drug.

Once so classified, such projects can continue to be sold over the counter the way cough medicines and aspirin are now, but as drugs they would be subject to review by the FDA, which can decide whether they should be put on a prescription basis or banned entirely.

Vitamins A and D in doses over 150 per cent of the RDA will be available only by prescription because, according to the FDA, high doses of those two can "cause serious harm."

But A, D and all others will continue to be available in smaller doses, allowing anyone who desires, the FDA contends, to duplicate the impact of high-dose pills by swallowing a handful of the less potent ones.

Leaders Conclude Summit Talks

WITH GOOD PROSPECTS

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Hailing their summit talks as a milestone toward peaceful U.S.-Soviet relations, President Nixon and Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev today agreed that prospects are favorable for reaching a permanent treaty to clamp a lid on their nuclear arsenals.

In a 17-page joint communique, the two leaders also settled on next Oct. 30 as the date to begin talks on the withdrawal of U.S. and Soviet troops from Europe, and set a goal of $2 billion to $3 billion in trade expansion between the two countries during the next three years.

Nixon and Brezhnev also said they expected the European Security Conference, starting July 3 in Helsinki, will be successfully concluded with an East-West heads of state summit meeting. The conference will seek to ratify post-war boundaries of Europe and the permanent division of Germany.

And both sides also agreed that a world disarmament conference could play a role in ending the arms race "at an appropriate time."

The Brezhnev-Nixon summit, the statement said, centered on ways "nations could work toward removing the danger of war, particularly nuclear war, between the U.S. and U.S.S.R. and between either party and other countries... and the prospects for reaching a permanent agreement on more complete measures limiting strategic offensive armaments are favorable."

The communique was issued as Brezhnev wound up his nine-day stay in the United States and flew to Paris for two days of talks with French President Georges Pompidou. The Communist leader exuded good spirits and satisfaction with the accomplishments of his second round of summitry with Nixon.

Nixon and Brezhnev signed the communique at a farewell ceremony Sunday at the President's Spanish-style villa and Brezhnev forecast a reunion between the two men in Moscow in six to eight months that would produce, even more important agreements.

"Both sides are convinced that the discussions they have just held represent a further milestone in the constructive development of their relations," the communique said.

"Convinced that such a development of American-Soviet relations serves the interests of both of their peoples and all of mankind," their statement added, "it was decided to take further major steps to give these relations maximum stability and to turn the development of friendship and cooperation between their peoples into a permanent factor for worldwide peace."

On Vietnam, Nixon and Brezhnev emphasized that the cease-fire must be strictly implemented, and called for "an early end to military conflict in Cambodia." They also reaffirmed their stand that the political future of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia should be left to their respective peoples, "free from outside interference."

During the summit, Nixon and Brezhnev decreed a virtual end to the cold war which has dominated East-West relations since 1946.

Brezhnev underlined the dramatic development in an extraordinary television address to the American people Sunday: "Mankind has outgrown the rigid 'cold war' armor which it was once forced to wear," Brezhnev said in his 47-minute television address taped in San Clemente.

"It wants to breathe freely and peacefully. And we will be happy if our efforts to better Soviet-American relations help draw more and more nations into the process of détente—be it in Europe or Asia in Africa or Latin America, in the Middle or Far East."

The main purport, Brezhnev said, "of all that we discussed and agreed upon with President Nixon in the field of international affairs is the firm determination of both sides to make good relations between the USSR and the U.S."

City Budget Proposals Start Annual Mill Run

Pampa's annual budget for operating the city in fiscal 1973-74 starts through the mill next Monday.

That day, July 2, is the deadline for city department heads to submit requests for operating funds in the coming year.

The city budget for the current fiscal year was $2,243,000 with a tax rate of $1.72 per $100 assessed property valuation.

How much will the figures change for the coming year? That is still an unknown factor. City Manager Mack Wofford said today.

WITH 700 CONTACTS

Radio Hams End Field Day Event

Members of the Pampa Amateur Radio Club concluded participation in the annual Field Day activities of the American Radio Relay League Sunday afternoon.

Operating through three transmitters east of Lefors, the group made about 700 contacts with other radio hams throughout the world during competition in a 24-hour period from 1 p.m. Saturday at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Set up under emergency conditions, including operating from power generators, the club members tried to contact other ARRL members. About 10 contacts were made via Oscar 6, a satellite launched by National Aeronautics and Space Administration for amateur radio operators.

Fifteen PARC members participated in the around-the-clock event.

The Field Day drew an estimated 12,000 "hams" in the United States and Canada.

The group set up antennae in a field east of Lefors and used its own power supply sources for the operating of the equipment. Other groups in the two countries set up on mountain tops, at lake sites and at other areas to simulate conditions that might be required in emergencies caused by natural disasters or other emergency situations.

The amateurs operate the yearly program to remain in practice for need by the Red Cross, Civil Defense agencies or other authorities.

Points were gathered for the number of stations contacted, efficiency and ability to set up quickly the various equipment required. Contest results will be announced later in the year by ARRL.

The event is the world's largest simulated emergency communications test.

Club members were on hand to explain the equipment and to show how the club coordinates its efforts with various authorities during emergency situations.

The 1973 Field Day was the 37th such activity, except for a break during the World War II years.

The activity provides necessary practice which could pay off during real emergencies such as tornadoes, hurricanes, fires and so on.

Neither sensible nor cheap—just insensitive

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged woman who is presently dating a man a few years older than I am. He is loaded with money and takes me to all the finest places. He has a fine automobile, dresses expensively and beautifully, and is very good-looking. He sounds perfect, doesn't he? Well, he would be, except for one fault. He HATES to tip. And I mean he absolutely will not tip anyone a dime for anything unless that person has performed a special service other than what he is being paid to do.

For example: We will go to a restaurant and if this gentleman thinks the food is exceptionally good he will send a $5 bill to the COOK. (He says: "Why tip the waiter? He just serves it. The cook deserves the tip.") He will tip a waiter only if the waiter gives him extra special service. Doormen get nothing. ("I can open the door myself," he says.) Captains get nothing. ("He's supposed to show us to our table.") Parking attendants get nothing.

This man claims he is not cheap—just sensible. Do you think he's "sensible" or cheap? EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Any man who tips the cook for excellence cannot be considered "cheap." [Too few even think of it.] However, he should realize that many people who perform services depend upon their tips for their bread and butter. I know it shouldn't be that way, but, unfortunately, that's the way it is.

DEAR ABBY: I am 5 foot 7 (stocking feet), 20 years old, and am told I have a very beautiful face and figure. My boy friend, who I am beginning to love dearly, is 5 foot 6. David is very handsome, but on the stocky side.

I find that the difference in our height bothers me. I am very uncomfortable when he and I are out together, and I keep hoping we won't run into people we know. When we do, I imagine they are thinking: "My goodness, SHE is taller than HE is!" I realize that a man's height shouldn't be all that important, but I am torn apart worrying about what people think and say about it.

I'm beginning to think it just won't work out between David and me. I'm so afraid if I marry him I will always think maybe I should have waited for a taller man. TORN

DEAR TORN: If the one-inch difference in height is such a serious source of concern to you now, you'd be wise to look for a taller fellow. You say a man's height shouldn't be THAT important, but face it, to you it IS!

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago I foolishly shoplifted a small item from a department store. I was caught, arrested, and prosecuted. Now my name is permanently engraved in the police files. Soon I will be looking for a new job, which brings me to my problem. On every job application is the question: "Do you have a police record?" Or: "Have you ever been arrested?" I am not a criminal, and I feel that I have learned my lesson. I don't want to lie, but I don't want to spoil my chances for getting a job.

Should I say "No" to the question? The item I took was worth less than $5, which the store got back anyway, and for which I paid many times over in many ways. Must I pay for this mistake for the rest of my life? If I say "No," could a prospective employer press charges against me for falsifying an application?

Please help, Abby. Perhaps your answer could help other people in the same predicament. SORRY

DEAR SORRY: Don't compound your problem by adding yet another offense to it. Tell the truth, and accept the consequences.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Doctors Oppose Medical Plans

AUSTIN (UPI) — Who would oppose a plan to provide more medical care, quicker and at lower costs?

Answer: Doctors.

Spokesmen for the Texas Medical Association (TMA) hotly protested proposals presented to the Texas Insurance Board last week for prepaid health maintenance programs.

Proponents of such programs — including Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby — say they cut patients' medical costs a minimum of 15 per cent, eliminate unnecessary hospital stays, and encourage the prevention and early detection of disease.

The doctors argue that the quality of medical care deteriorates in such plans, that doctors are given a financial incentive not to hospitalize patients who need it, and that the programs are likely to go bankrupt unless doctors are in complete control.

Proposal Is Rejected

TMA lobbyists killed proposals in the legislature this year that would have given official sanction for the organization of non-doctor run Health Maintenance Organizations (HMO's). HMO proponents countered by getting Joe Christie, chairman of the three-man State Insurance Board, to call a hearing to consider whether legislation is even needed to authorize such operations.

Christie says board attorneys are still briefing the question but that he doesn't think specific approval from lawmakers is needed and that "if there's any way legally I want to approve it."

"The state board is going to do what it can to help in the delivery of health care," Christie said. "We have a philosophy over here of trying to do something rather than trying to find reasons not to do something."

Christie dismissed many of the complaints and dire predictions put forward by doctor representatives.

Board Is Concerned

"The state board is concerned about preserving the physician-patient relationship and controlling advertising so there are no false and misleading solicitations and about making sure that these companies are financially stable," he said.

"But we're also concerned about the high infant mortality rate in Texas, the high incidence of tuberculosis and the diphtheria epidemic that swept through San Antonio last year — the only such epidemic in the nation."

Former Sen. Joe Bernal of San Antonio testified at the hearing that most of the poor people living in the Alamo City

"cannot afford a doctor-patient relationship" like doctor groups insist must be maintained.

Bernal charged that putting doctors in charge of HMO's creates a conflict of interest for them anyway since they will control the amount they will be paid.

'Rest With People'

"I think the decision making power should rest with the people," Bernal said. "I don't make any claim to know how to provide health care. But I could sure contract with a good doctor to provide health care. I can contract with a lawyer for legal business. Why can't I contract with a doctor for medical care?"

Robert P. Clines, attorney for the state insurance board, suggested in his questioning of the TMA spokesman, Dr. James H. Simmons of Seguin, that the control of fees is doctors' main objection to allowing the creation of HMO's not controlled by doctors.

Simmons had pointed to an insurance company's efforts to force west Texas doctors to reduce fees as the "evil" he saw in an HMO proposal awaiting approval of the State Insurance Board.

Doctors Stand Pat

Christie said Simmons indicated doctors are "pretty damn adamant about not having any controls over them."

The insurance board chairman said he agreed with at least one point made by the doctors — that if insurance companies were as concerned about providing full medical coverage as the companies pushing HMO plans claim they would have written policies long ago without exclusions that force doctors to put patients in hospitals for tests just so the patient can claim insurance benefits.

"I think the thing the hearing really showed was the obvious animosity between the insurance industry and the doctors," Christie said. "The insurance companies are always trying to hold down their claims and the doctors are always trying to get that extra buck."

GAINES NAMED

DETROIT (UPI) — Former Harlem Globetrotter and Kentucky Colonel stand-out Dave Gaines has been appointed assistant basketball coach at the University of Detroit.

For the past few years, Gaines, 32, has served as assistant basketball and head baseball coach at Detroit's Southeastern High.

'SEDAN CHAIR 88'

GOP Spy Infiltrated Campaign

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A Republican spy known by the code name "Sedan Chair 88" has told the St. Louis Post-Dispatch about infiltrating the campaigns of Sens. Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern during last year's race for the presidency, the newspaper said in its Sunday editions.

The newspaper reported Michael W. McMinoway, a Louisville, Ky., private detective, said he served as a volunteer security guard at Miami Beach during the Democratic National Convention last July.

McMinoway told the Post-Dispatch he overheard political discussions between McGovern's principal advisers.

The newspaper said McMinoway was paid $6,000 for relaying information he learned to the Committee to Re-Elect the President. He said his spying, over a three-month period, took him to Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and California for the Humphrey campaign.

McMinoway, the newspaper said, was part of the political sabotage program known under the code names "dirty tricks" and "black advance," under which Democratic candidates were handicapped by reports of false cancellations of speeches, confusing travel schedules and attempts to reduce the size of crowds.

The Post-Dispatch said, "federal investigators said they believed that the re-election committee's objective was to discredit the Democratic front-runners, Sens. Edmund Muskie and Humphrey, during the primaries, making it easier for McGovern to secure the presidential nomination."

McMinoway told the newspaper he was asked to work for the Nixon campaign by someone he knew, but he would not identify his contact. He denied he had done anything illegal. He said he worked alone and therefore could not be easily traced by the FBI.

McMinoway said he overheard McGovern campaign director Frank Mankiewicz discussing the health record of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, McGovern's original running mate.

Oswald: "The best way to play a key suit usually depends on how you as declarer expect the opponents' cards in that suit to be divided."

Jim: "In the absence of any information about distribution, the correct way for South to play diamonds is to lay down his ace. This play will hold his diamond losers to one if the suit breaks 2-2 or if East holds a singleton king or queen. It falls against three to the king-queen in either hand."

Oswald: "South ruffs the third club and draws trumps. He notes that West held seven clubs and three spades and is most unlikely to also hold three diamonds. He can check further by playing some hearts, so he cashes his king and leads a heart to dummy's ace."

Jim: "West follows to those two heart leads, which leaves him just one card that may be a diamond. If that card is the seven-spot, South must lose two diamond tricks. If it is the queen or king, South may get East to make a mistake and cover if the jack is led from dummy. If it is the 10-spot, it doesn't matter what East does. The jack lead from dummy will be the winning play."

Oswald: "After all that thought the jack of diamonds is led. East can duck or cover but South scores game and rubber."

'Oil Capital' Faces Energy Crisis, Too

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The local chamber of commerce calls this northeast Oklahoma city "The Oil Capital of the World."

But come June 30 the city — which for the most part was built by, and with oil — will find itself like many other municipalities around the country, squeezed by the so-called energy crisis.

The present contract with Sun Oil Co. to supply the fuel for the city's vehicles expires. When bids were called for on a new six-month contract, none was received.

"We've had a squeeze from the environmental thing, too. Our 80 new 1973 police cars use a third more gas than our two-year-old cars. Our older cars were worn out, but gas-wise they're cheaper to run."

Another area of consideration is the pet project of Joe Arnn, director of the Metropolitan-Tulsa Transit Authority (MTTA).

Working On Problem

Arnn, a lifelong veteran in bus transportation, has been working to get the city to put more money into mass transit, to lower fares, increase routes, improve both the buses and the service in an effort to get more people on buses and out of cars.

Mayor LaFortune has endorsed his efforts and Arnn now hopes to get city employees riding buses as well.

"Now is the time for every department in the city to encourage people to ride the bus if they don't absolutely have to have their cars at work," Arnn said.

Both the city and the MTTA have contracts with Sun, although the MTTA's contract does not expire until October. Also the buses are running on kerosene instead of the more expensive fuels needed by the city automobiles.

"Actually, we got more replies than ever before — all no bids," city purchasing agent Bob Hansen said.

"We've been cut back and allocated already on gas," Hansen said. "For June we're getting 145,000 gallons and last year in June we used about 160,000 — and the rub is our demand is even higher this year."

It's Tough Problem

Tulsa is growing tremendously. If we go back even to last year, we'll be cutting way back on services. It's a tough problem to cut consumption when you're in a service business.

REPRESENTATIVE SAYS Administration To Initiate Fuel Allocation Program

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — The Nixon Administration will initiate a program of mandatory fuel allocation possibly as early as Friday with farmers receiving top priority, according to the office of Rep. Keith Sebelius, R-Kan.

The Washington bureau of the Topeka Daily Capital said that the congressman's office had been informed of the allocation plans by sources in the office of Bill Simon, deputy secretary of the treasury, who is also chairman of the Oil Policy Committee.

Sebelius aides said the allocations would give farmers harvesting and planting crops top priority for fuel as has been demanded by many farm state legislators. The aides indicated the mandatory program could be announced as early as Friday and not later than July 6, the newspaper reported.

The newspaper quoted sources in Sebelius' office as saying the quotas would be on a monthly basis, and might not be effective for Kansas farmers who quickly burn up a majority of their fuel during the harvest season.

You are invited . . . to good times, good food

. . . in your own backyard with an outdoor gas grill and gas light. You can cook up a party at a moment's notice, because a gas grill is ready to cook in minutes. And it's so easy to cook on because you can control the heat. With a gas grill there's no charcoal mess, and you still get that delicious, outdoor char-broiled flavor that comes from the smoke of meat juices dripping on permanent ceramic briquets.

Besides the good times you'll have cooking out, you enjoy the convenience of having a gas grill. You'll probably find yourself cooking on it just because you wanted to get out of the kitchen or didn't want to mess up the broiler of your kitchen range.

Price Freeze Doesn't Cover Market For Industrial Metal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's price freeze was supposed to cover all prices except for raw farm products. It isn't quite that complete. Speculators in industrial commodities also are exempt from the freeze, but they cannot deliver the merchandise at prices higher than those which existed the first week in June. Here is how that works: Industrial metals are sold and bought on the commodity market for future delivery, and some metals have been rising on the commodity markets since the freeze. That puzzled some newsmen.

Business Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most Americans think a foreign trade zone is just an area of an international airport where you can buy liquor or perfume duty free, but it's something vastly more important, says Marshall Miller of Kansas City. Miller expects the new Great Midwest International Trade Center to make landlocked Kansas City one of the world's biggest import-export markets. He says it will increase the foreign trade of Kansas City and its hinterland from a present $3 billion a year to $6 billion within three years. Recently back from a month's visit to Japan, Miller has all but completed deals with several big Japanese companies to locate in the Kansas City trade zone. A number of European and some American firms also plan to locate there.

The Zone is Unique The Kansas City zone is unique among the United States' 10 foreign trade zones designated by the federal government. It is the only one far inland, and it is the biggest. It is the only one with two separate areas and underground storage and travel facilities. And it is the first to be entirely operated by private enterprise with no bureaucratic supervision. It is on a water, rail, highway and air transportation hub that can tap the entire Midwest overnight. It is even served by 1,200-ton barges in the Missouri-Mississippi river system.

But this trade zone isn't designed to dispense liquor and other luxury goods at bargain prices. Rather, it is a manufacturing assembly and warehousing center for goods from all over the world. It enables manufacturers to bring products into the United States without paying tariff duty, and warehouse and process them until they leave.

Locale Change Though very small in its native habitat, the hills near Monterey, Calif., the Monterey pine when planted in the southern hemisphere is the fastest-growing timber pine in the world.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The Redcoats are coming" in the form of foreign investors seeking "bargain basement" prices in American shares reduced by more than 50 per cent in the past 12 to 18 months, says Abraham & Co.'s Technical Review. The letter says Securities & Exchange Commission statistics show foreign investors purchased a record $1.29 billion of common shares in this year's first quarter, up from just under $1 billion in the last quarter of 1972.

"Interest rates are now close to the highest levels in one hundred years," says Vance, Sanders & Co.'s Brevits, "thus creating an outstanding opportunity for the income-oriented investor." The letter says present money market conditions should encourage the investor to seek a generous current return and the modestly valued equities an additional return on appreciation and growth of income.

Advertising equities have been largely ignored lately to a far greater degree than most other groups, although there's little doubt the ad world is a growing field, says Alexander Hamilton Institute, Inc. Potential investors are troubled by the cyclical nature of advertising, the firm says, because "in periods of economic stress, the tendency is for companies to tighten their belts, especially in the promotion area." It encourages the investor to overlook the low price-earnings syndrome affecting ad stocks, however, and to consider some interesting speculations in the ad stocks.

Fresh Fruits, Vegetables In Good Supply

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — A Texas Agricultural Extension Service spokesman said fresh fruit and vegetables are in the greatest supply at the best prices in Texas but, generally, supplies are the smallest in years. Consumer market specialist Gwendolyn Clyatt said prices on vegetables and fruits will likely remain steady until new crops come in. "Fresh fruit and vegetable items in best supply at the most economical prices include oranges, bananas, lemons, cantaloupes, watermelons, celery, carrots, cabbage, corn, dry yellow onions, radishes, green onions and cooking greens," she said.

Retail pork prices are generally the same as a week ago with weekend specials on hams, picnics, pork liver, shoulder roasts and steaks," she said. "Fyer chicken is higher than earlier in the season, but it's still a good protein buy. Purchase the whole bird, cut it up at home and save the difference."

The answer is quite simple. The speculator doesn't really deal in the commodity. He deals in paper. Very seldom, if ever, does a speculator see the commodity in which he is buying and selling. The speculator doesn't take delivery, he merely balances his account long before the delivery date is up, buying as much as he has sold or selling as much as he bought—all on paper. And he wins or loses basing his judgment against that of other speculators. The transactions thus are exempt from the freeze, because they involve paper trading in futures.

Conditions Vary Conditions that promise to make the Kansas City zone attractive to world's manufacturers vary tremendously. Miller said. He cited two examples to explain the basic principle. "A foreign bicycle manufacturer can ship components into the Kansas City trade zone without paying any duty. He then can assemble them into complete bicycles with American labor. When he ships them out of Kansas City to other parts of the United States, he pays only the 5 1/2 per cent duty." The other example rests on the fact that American makers of products can import up to 49 per cent foreign components at substantial savings into the Kansas City trade zone without paying any tariff duty. The finished products can be assembled in the trade zone with American labor, then can be legally shipped anywhere in the United States without paying duty so long as the foreign cost component is 49 per cent or less.

The Lighter Side

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You see these trim, clean-cut young witnesses testifying before the Senate Watergate committee and you want to ask, "What's a nice boy like you doing in a place like this?" But, deep down, you already know the answer. If he but admit it, they are to a large extent victims of the American system. From the cradle onward, they have had it drummed into them that cover-ups are desirable. The message comes across every time they turn on the television set or thumb through a magazine. There on the tube or in a double-page ad they see exemplary people covering up gray hair, wrinkles, natural complexion, skin blemishes, odors of various sorts. And all involved in these cover-ups are depicted as being better off for the deception.

Enter Scan-Shield In the circumstances, it is hardly surprising that when involved in something unsavory like the Watergate scandal the first instinct is to cover it up. The scene may have unfolded something like this: "Hi, John. Why the long face?" "I'm in a heap of trouble. Bob. A couple of FBI agents are coming to question me about the Watergate break-in." "Surely you aren't letting a little thing like that get you down?" "But I'm involved. Bob. I knew about the plans to bug the Democratic National Committee. In fact, I was the one who took those $100 bills to the laundry." "Silly boy! Haven't you ever heard of Scan-Shield?" "Scan-Shield? What's that?" "It's the new super-powered scandal covering with the miracle deluding agent that conceals involvement in political espionage with just one easy application."

Gas shortage? So what else is new?

Warnings of an energy crisis might suggest to nostalgia buffs the years when the country faced a critical gas shortage because of the war effort. By 1942, most of the available gasoline was strictly rationed. Motorists (right) received alphabet stickers according to need and (bottom) ration card. And millions of bumper stickers (near bottom) were also distributed. Will it happen again?

1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return
Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. I am a state government employee. Are contributions to my retirement fund taxable when they are withheld or after retirement when paid out to me?

A. It is the IRS position that the portion of a government employee's compensation that is withheld and contributed to a government retirement fund is taxable in the year withheld just as if it were paid to the employee directly in that year.

Q. Are proceeds of a life insurance policy taxable?

A. Life insurance proceeds paid to you because of the death of the insured are not taxable income, unless the policy was transferred to you for something of value. This is true, even if the proceeds were paid under an accident or health insurance policy or an endowment contract.

Q. My dependent son wants to borrow some money to pay for his college tuition. Would I get a greater tax benefit if I borrowed the money and paid his tuition?

A. Possibly. To continue to claim your son as a dependent, you must furnish more than one-half of his total support for the year. Amounts borrowed or spent on a dependent's education must be included in total support. Thus, if your son makes the loan, this amount will count towards the sum he furnishes for his own support; if you make the loan, it will count toward the amount you furnish for his support.

Incidentally, if you make the loan, you can deduct the interest payments.

FRIENDLY NUZZLE—Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus' world-famous tiger trainer, Charly Baumann, enjoys a bit of fun with his huge pet, Kismet, in the 102nd Edition of The Greatest Show On Earth. Four performances are scheduled at Amarillo Civic Center on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 26 and 27. There will be two performances each day, at 2:30 p.m. and 8:00 p.m.

WORRY CLINIC By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Heed Arnold's questions! For Women's Libbers are demanding a change in school books (plus a needless waste of time by 38 state legislatures) to try to make women the same as men. They seem to think God was wrong! Basic sex differences are inborn!

CASE X-543: Arnold T., aged 29, is a school principal. "Dr. Crane," he began, "the advocates of Women's Lib have even attacked our school textbooks. "For they claim that little girls are taught to seek secondary positions in life, even by the time they enter kindergarten. "So they want our textbooks to stop directing a girl's thinking along the usual feminine channels. "Indeed, they believe a boy should be trained to consider cooking and household chores as much his goal in life as they are the aims of the girls in class. "Dr. Crane, are sex differences innate or are they chiefly a result of indoctrination after birth?"

COMPARATIVE PSYCHOLOGY

A partial answer to this moot question can be found by studying birds and animals. In most species of birds, the female builds the nest, hatches the eggs and feeds the fledglings. However, in some cases the male sits on the eggs. He may even build the nest. And the males often assist in feeding the young. But we assume it is instinctive for the usual female to be a nest builder and caretaker of her young. When a sow is about ready to deliver her pigs, she also makes a nest, using sticks and straw, while the boar is a spectator. And among the other domesticated animals, you will find that male dogs and cats seldom fight with a female of their own species. At feeding time, a male dog may growl and snarl at the female, just to drive her away from the food pan. But the real dog fights occur between 2 male canines!

And when a mother dog has had a litter of puppies, the males keep their distance. If they snoop too close to her young, the mother dog growls and the males drift away. For they seem to have either a sense of gallantry at such times, or know that a mother animal will fight like a male when it comes to protecting her young. Apparently, the basic sexual differences are based on heredity and glandular secretions. For by injecting female hormones into a male dog, we can make him more submissive and docile. The reverse is true when male hormones are injected into females. Farmers are now injecting female hormones into chickens and cattle to increase the fat content of their muscle tissue, thereby producing more tender chickens and steak. The government has even recently demanded a reduction in this practice, lest those hormones adversely affect the human males that eat such meat. So Women's Libbers better leave the textbooks alone, since the basic sex differences between human boys and girls are chiefly innate. Send for my booklet "Sex Differences Between Men and Women," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents. For divorces are needlessly caused by lack of a thorough understanding of the different sex outlook of men vs. women!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Mellett, Indiana 47888. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Crayfish Invading Mississippi Area

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Crayfish by the millions are invading western Mississippi, a phenomenon resulting from extensive flooding along the Mississippi River and its tributaries.

People who relish such delicacies as fried crayfish, boiled crayfish and various bayou country recipes are able to pick up as many of the freshwater crustaceans as they want.

Biologists of the Mississippi Game and Fish Commission theorize that the high water spread out the crayfish and the species underwent an unusual population explosion. They also say plenty of food for the creatures is available throughout the region that has been flooded all spring.

For more details, see IRS Publication 523, "Tax Information on Selling Your Home." It's available free by dropping a postcard to your Internal Revenue district office.

Fat Country Singer Wants Glad Reception

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Sunflower County, Mississippi's finest products: Fluffy cotton, delta juice, football hero Archie Manning and perhaps even the fat man himself, Johnny Russell.

The trouble with Johnny is he doesn't look like what people call him, a country music star. He doesn't have the lean, sad face of a Hank Williams, or the grim, mountain-of-morality profile of Johnny Cash.

His smile is hidden behind—Jimmie Rodgers forbid—a pointed black beard and his hair crawls over his shirt collar. He doesn't drink whisky and his big vice is three lumps of sugar in iced tea.

But to the lady standing at the Woolworth's counter during Fan Fair Week in this city recently, he's "The one and only, RCA recording artist, Johnny Russell."

"I don't care about being a real big singing star. I just want people to say 'We're glad we came to hear the fat boy,'" the 300-pound entertainer said after destroying two ears of corn and a heaping plate of rice and beef at a local restaurant.

"Besides, I'm probably the biggest in the business anyway," he said, rubbing his tummy.

More than a decade ago, Russell came to this country music mecca to make his fortune. "I didn't know you weren't supposed to go see Chet Atkins right off," he said of the guitarist who has discovered such talent as trumpeter Al Hirt and sleepy crooner Perry Como.

"He told me to wait a while and he would put me on the RCA label. Well, that was in 1959. I went back in 1971 and said, 'Don't you think I've waited long enough?'"

In the meantime, however, Russell had made enough money by writing songs to introduce himself to the Internal Revenue Service. Atkins got the late Jim Reeves to record one song.

"In A Mansion Stands My Love" might not stand out in the mind of the most avid country fan but it was the flip side of Reeves' biggest hit, "He'll Have To Go."

And then there was this song a group of boys from Liverpool cut. Russell's "Act Naturally" was on the flip side of the Beatles smash "Yesterday," which sold six million copies.

These days, Russell is concentrating on his own singing, and mostly leaving the writing to others. His recent release "Catfish John" got a lot of air play and made an impression on the charts.

His next attempt is a commercial journey into nostalgia land called "Red Necks, White Socks, and Blue Ribbon Beer."

OF MOSCOW, WASHINGTON

Mid-East Apprehensive At Meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Whenever the two nuclear super powers hold a summit conference the smaller clients of Moscow and Washington begin to exhibit signs of extreme nervousness.

This is particularly true in the Middle East—for a variety of reasons. The Arabs always fear that the Kremlin may sell them down the river in return for concessions by the United States on issues valuable to Moscow.

The Israelis inevitably view with alarm any developments which they believe might remotely threaten their defense against the millions of Arabs surrounding them.

Israelis Leak Reports

This week, during the meetings of President Nixon and Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev, the Middle East scenario has followed a predictable pattern. Some Arabs have asserted there is Soviet-American "collusion" on the Middle East. The nature of this "collusion" is unspecified but presumably it would increase Israel's military advantage.

deny, she may be back soon in the fore of the planes American market, shopping list in hand.

There also are the usual rumors that the United States and Russia intend to try to "impose" some sort of peace solution on the Arabs and Israelis. The State Department denies all these various rumors. Meanwhile, Nixon and Brezhnev are expected to come to the same conclusion regarding the Middle East that they did a year ago. Officials say this can be expressed in the following way. Russia and the United States agree that:

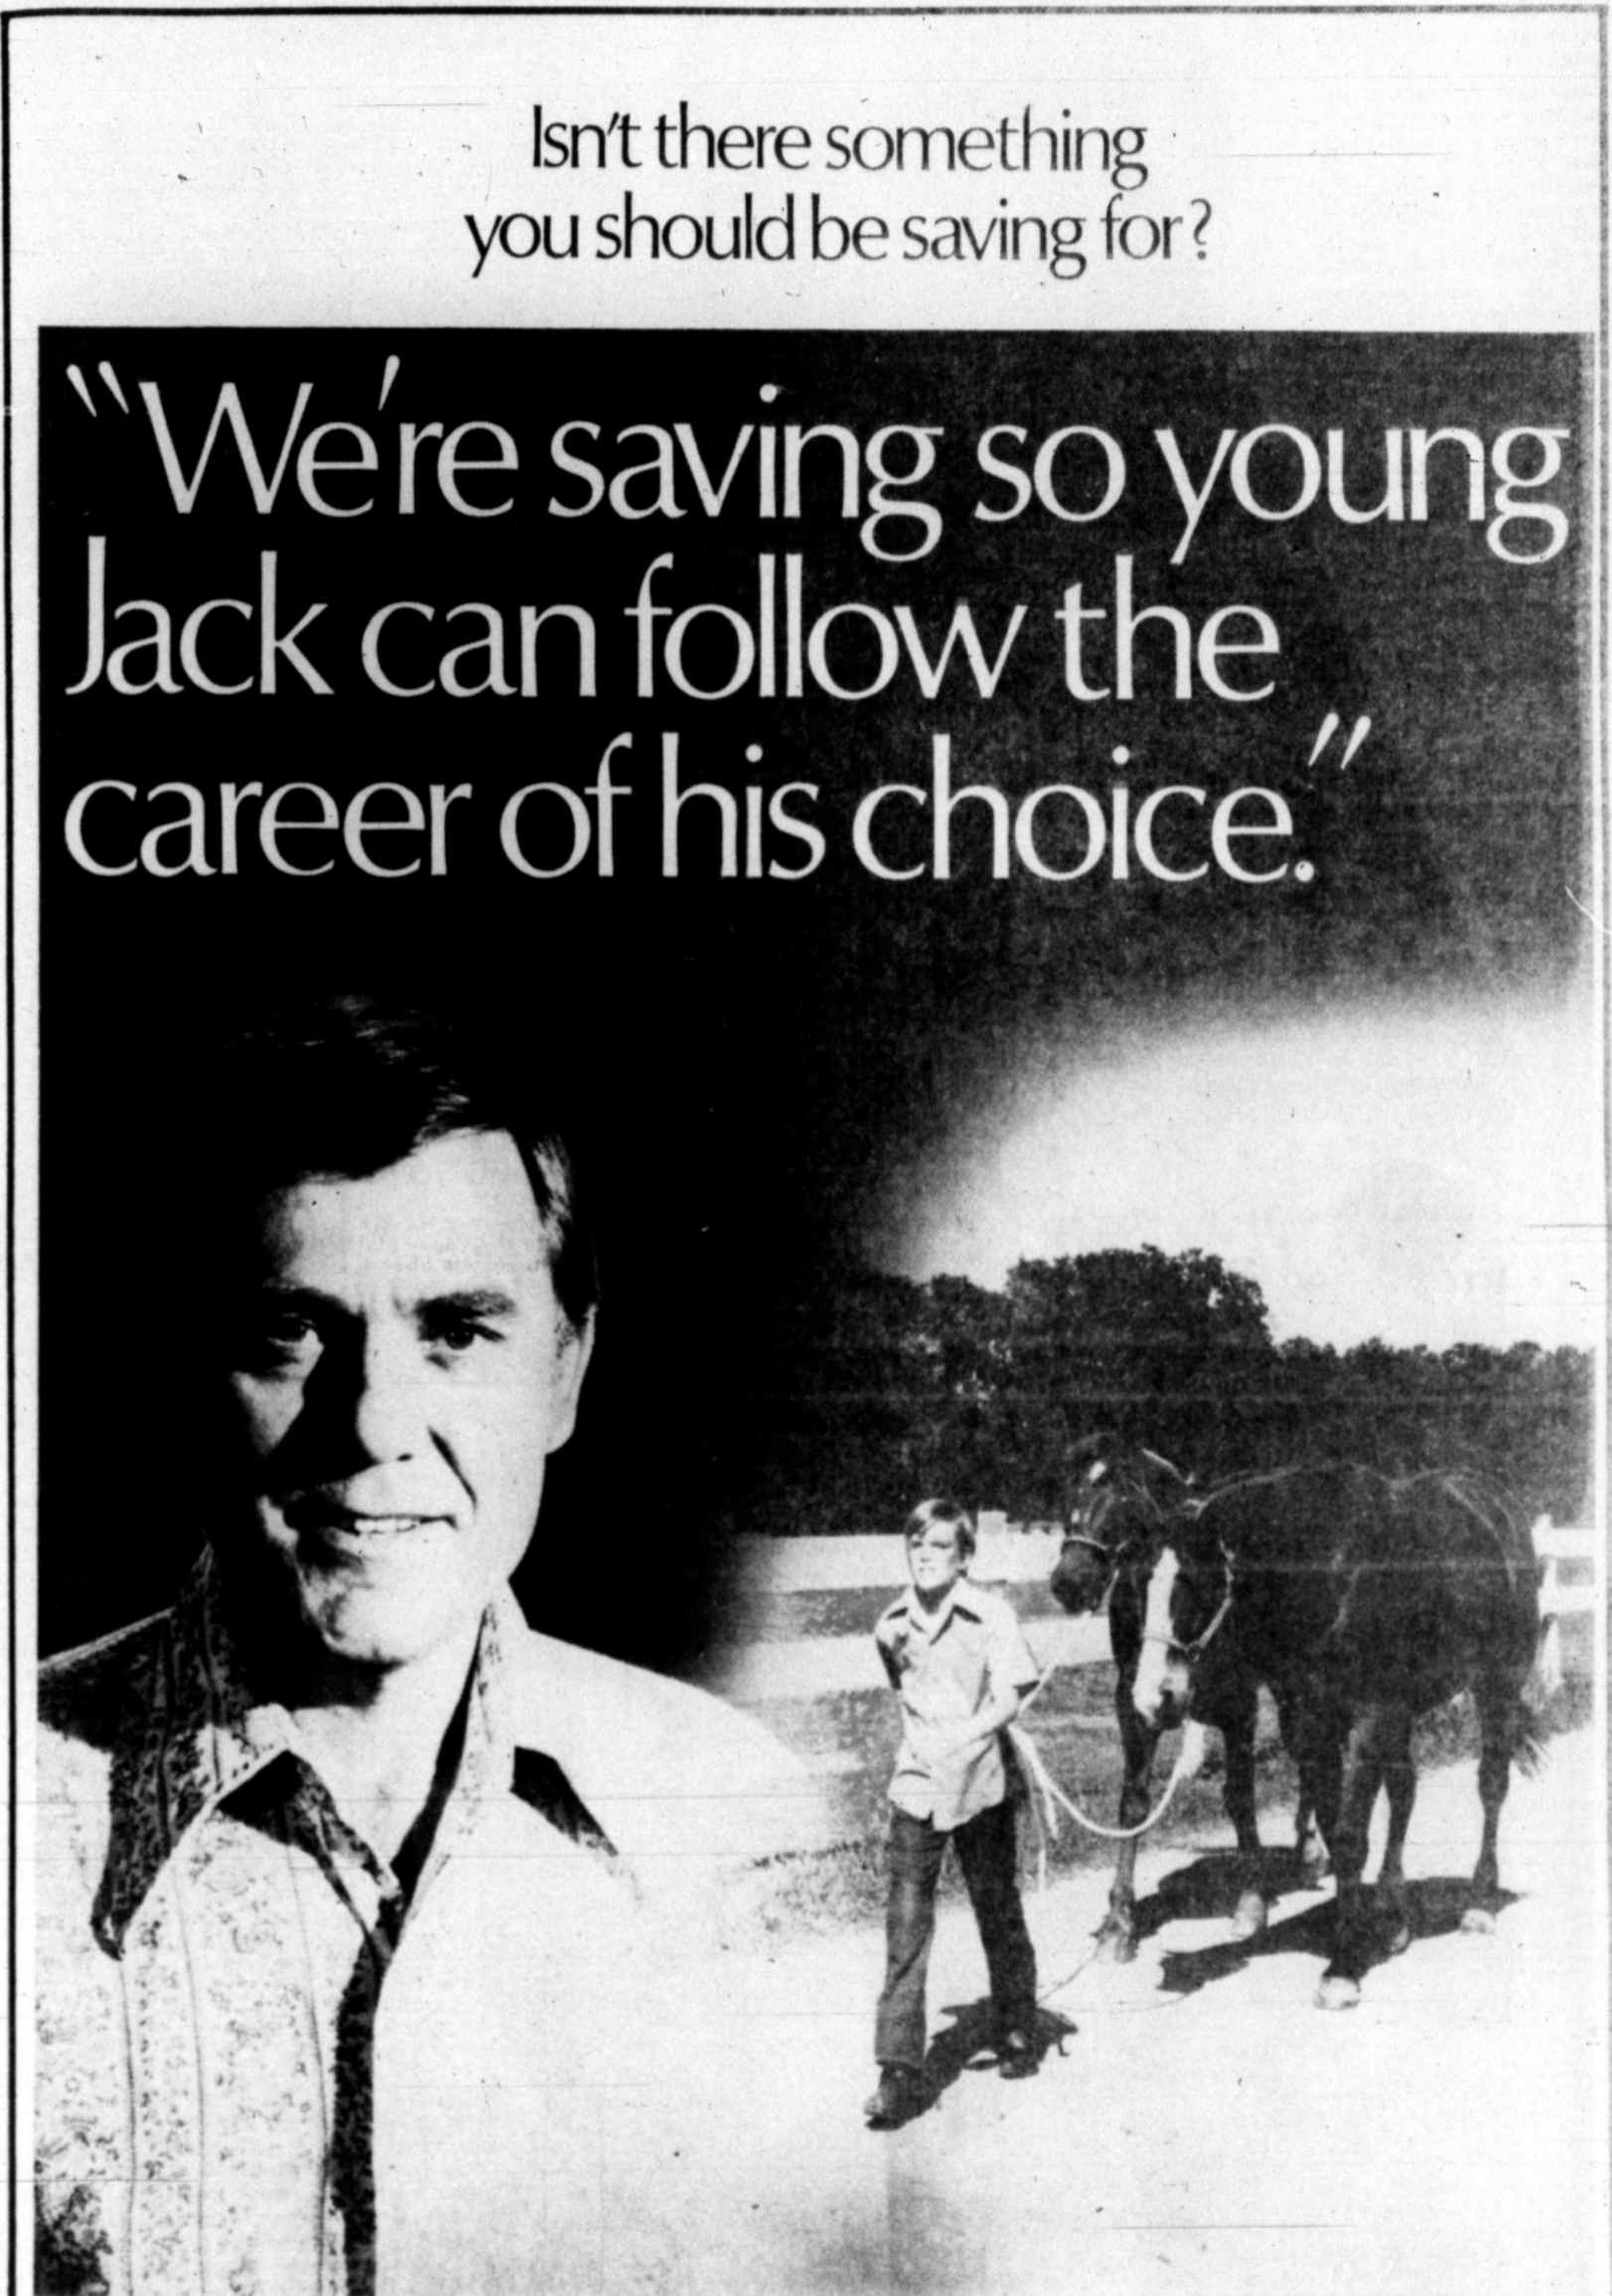

—They will continue to support efforts for a peaceful settlement under the umbrella of the United Nations Security Council resolution of 1967.

—The Arab-Israeli dispute must, in no way, be permitted to escalate into a war which would risk a military confrontation between the two nuclear super-powers.

—The United States and Russia will continue to stand ready to assist in the peace-making process but will not, in any way, try to impose a settlement.

Oil Vital Factor

The situation in the Middle East and the Persian Gulf is bound to become more perilous as the Western world's energy crisis escalates. The oil in that region will become a far more vital factor in the peace-or-war equation in that region.
