Youth Trouble In Red Paradise III

Soviet Youth Rediscover God

(Last of Three Dispatches)
BY LEON DENNEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK -- (NEA) -- The fact that many Russian youngsters are returning to God and church -- after years of furious anti-religious propaganda -- seems to have come as a shock to the Soviet leaders.

Immediately after the Bolsheviks seized power in 1917, Lenin said: "Our hope is in our growing youth." The founder of Soviet communism saw the "new" Soviet man, who was to have emerged from the mills of dictatorship, as a totally Godless robot.

However, after 38 years of persecution faith in God still persists behind the Iron Curtain and is even growing among the young people.

Here is a typical story printed in the Komsomolskaya Pravda, Communist youth newspaper:

"The Komsomol district committee discovered that Tatiana Rastroguyeva wanted to baptize her child in church. Brunilina consented to be godmother. The committee spent much time questioning these Komsomol members whether they were in church or not."

Both young Communists denied going to church. They admitted that they wanted to go, but changed their minds. They were punished, nevertheless.

The decision of the "district committee," as reported in Komsomolskaya Pravda, reads: "In view of the irresponsible attitude toward an attempt to perform a religious ceremony Rastroguyeva and Brunilina are to be strongly reprimanded and the decision entered on their party record card."

"But we did not go to church," the Komsomol members complained. "Why this penalty?"

"Be thankful that you were not expelled from the Komsomol altogether," the committee secretary replied.

Another complaint -- this time from an unhappy father -- printed in the Komsomolskaya Pravda throws additional light on the growth of religious sentiment among Soviet youngsters.

The father, V. Kudinov, writes: "I inform you that my daughter, Vera, a student of the Radio Technical School, told me that she plans to make a pilgrimage to the Kiev Monastery. Please have a talk with her and help her give up this religious prejudice."

It seems that once, when Vera was in her fourth grade, she happened to pass by a church. "She remembered that she was there once with her deceased mother, and a vague desire attracted the girl into the open door of the stone building."

On that day Vera did not attend school. She did not appear in school for several days. All these days the girl spent in church.

In addition to their campaign against increasing juvenile delinquency, divorces, alcoholism and Red-style zoot-suits, the Soviet newspapers and radio have lately turned their entire editorial fury against youthful religious practices.

Communist Party members are being called upon to help in new efforts to "sever" Soviet youth from the reactionary influences of religion." In Krokodil, Russia's only humorous magazine, there are frequently savage cartoons ridiculing Komsomol members who go to church to be married.

Still, religious marriages have become increasingly frequent even among the "gilded" youth -- the favored members of the Young Communist Organization.

The Red dictators, in fact, have recently made a "terrible" discovery. It seems that while there is a ban on religious teaching in Soviet schools in many of them, there isn't sufficiently effective anti-religious teaching either. In some cases religion has taken hold of both pupils and teachers. According to the Teacher's Gazette, mouthpiece of the Soviet Ministry of Education, school children in the town of Yaroslavl wear crosses and go regularly to church. One girl, a high school senior, came under church influence quite recently and was already baptized.

In the town of Yaroslavl, too, the teacher of biology no less has been a regular church-goer and even had her child baptized. Worst of all, the principal of a village school actually taught his pupils to pray and made no bones about it.

To the Komsomol, an organization with nearly 19,000,000 members between the ages of 14 and 23, has been assigned the key role in combatting religion described in the Red press as "a weapon of the class oppression of the toiling masses."

Said Komsomolskaya Pravda: "The struggle towards overcoming religious survivals is one of the most important tasks of the Communist upbringing of children."

The Reds, avowed atheists, permit the church to function in Russia and at the same time try to deaden its influence by furious anti-religious propaganda. This policy has succeeded over many years in sharply reducing the attendance of young people at religious services. Now the church seems to be winning back much of the lost ground.

One thing seems certain: Lenin and Stalin are dead, Lavrenti Beria executed, Georgi Malenkov deposed, but God lives on in Russia -- 38 years after the revolution.

Ike-Nixon Looks Like Team That's Ready To Run Again

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON -- UP --

The Eisenhower-Nixon combination will be conspicuously present at the convention of the most powerful organization of colored voters in the United States.

Of such moves the game of politics is made. The shift in 1954 of millions of northern Negro voters to the Democratic ticket was a major factor in making the Republicans a minority party in this country. One of the main objectives of Republican strategists is to regain the Negro vote. It is the balance of power in any close elections in all northern industrial states. It was not by chance that Nixon changed his mind about the NAACP convention.

Mr. Eisenhower may not be kissing babies, but he began his New England swing with a chicken barbecue in Rutland, Vt., which is almost as good. He was to visit Maine and New Hampshire and work in a weekend of fishing before returning to Washington. There is friction within some state Republican organizations in New England, notably in New Hampshire.

The measure of Republican trouble in Maine was evident last November when that state elected Edmund S. Muskie to be governor. He's a Democrat. When any President commits himself to an eight - speech program within the span of a few days, he means business. The business now is to heat up New England's Republican fires.

Back in January the President said he would not venture more than two hours by airplane from Washington for two or three months. Formosa was critical there, and, further, Mr. Eisenhower wanted to maintain close contact with the new congress as it began to consider his legislative program.

He feels freer now to move about. He will be under much pressure to go elsewhere among the states on fence - mending expeditions. Mr. Eisenhower has said he would reveal his political intentions next spring.

UP FROM THE DEEP

This sketch, made for Mechanix Illustrated, shows a jet plane zooming skyward after being launched from an atomic-powered submarine. According to the magazine, a-bomb-carrying jets could be carried under water by the subs in special hangars below deck. After a mission, planes would land in the water on skis and be retrieved by the sub.

Plane Crash Probes Made

SAN ANTONIO —UP— An Air Force board conducted an investigation Friday into two separate Randolph Air Force Base crashes which killed five airmen and injured critically two others.

The most deadly was that of a B-29 which crashed and burned on takeoff, killing four and injuring two.

The Air Force identified the dead as:

Capt. James S. Crawford Jr., 32, instructor-pilot, son of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Crawford Sr., Jackson Heights, New York.

T-Sgt. Charles M. Hawthorne, 30, instructor-engineer, husband of Mrs. Jean M. Hawthorne of Randolph and son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hawthorne, Chula Vista, Calif.

Lt. Col. Willie G. Woods Jr., 34, aircraft commander, husband of Mrs. Jeanne T. Woods, Randolph; father, W. G. Woods, Sr., Fort Worth.

Second Lt. Bobbie Gene Wykert, 22, co-pilot, son of George H. Wykert, Troy, Kan.

The injured men, both airmen second class, were identified as Thomas A. Schollert of Chicago and Robert F. Philipski of Detroit. Schollert was in Brooke Army hospital with second and third degree burns; Philipski was treated at Brooke and later transferred to the hospital at Randolph.

A second plane, a B-57 twin jet bomber from Randolph, crashed and burned 16 miles north of San Antonio. Capt. William P. Brown, 32, of Springfield, Ill., the student pilot, was killed.

Brown was the son of Illinois Police Supt. and Mrs. Phillip M. Brown of Springfield. Other survivors included his wife, Margaret W. Brown, and a 21-month-old daughter.

Brown was on a training mission. The B-57 also on a training mission and the type of plane used to deliver the atom bomb on Hiroshima in World War II. west end runway at Randolph.

Randolph authorities said the B-29 was practicing touch-and-go takeoffs and landings. The two suffered burns and shock.

Reports On Oil Industry Proposed

WASHINGTON —UP— Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson proposed Thursday that the government get regular reports from the oil industry to help in deciding when imports of foreign crude oil threaten to endanger the American industry.

The Texas senator made his suggestion in a letter to director Arthur S. Flemming of the Office of Defense Mobilization. Under the recently extended reciprocal trade law, Flemming's agency is to advise the President when it finds any national defense industry threatened by imports.

Johnson proposed that ODM ask major oil importers at the beginning of each quarter to estimate the imports planned for that quarter. The importers also would be asked to report monthly on actual imports.

The Democratic leader said "It should give the Office of Defense Mobilization an up-to-date picture on petroleum imports at all times and would facilitate prompt action to restrict such imports when conditions warranted."

Johnson pointed out that the supplies and resources policy recommended that imports should be held at about the 1954 level.

"I also call your attention to the fact that the intent of congress, as evidenced by extended and specific discussion in the Senate, was that this recommendation should be followed," Johnson wrote Flemming.

Steel Talks Around Clock

PITTSBURGH —UP— The CIO United Steelworkers were prepared Friday to bargain around the clock in an effort to reach an agreement on wages with the basic steel industry before a strike deadline of midnight, June 30.

The USW proposed continuous negotiations Thursday after angrily rejecting as "shameful" the U.S. Steel Corp.'s offer of day increase that the nation's principal steelmaker said averaged more than 10 cents an hour.

Clifford F. Hood, president of U.S. Steel, said the company's offer would increase hourly pay per man by 22 cents in top job classifications now paying $3.27½ and by 9½ cents in the bottom bracket, for which the present rate is $1.57. Steelworkers currently make an average $2.23 per hour.

Galbraith Found Sane

MCALISTER, Okla. —UP— The state moved Friday toward a speedy murder trial of Dr. Ben T. Galbraith, possibly in the next two weeks.

The 34-year-old McAlester physician Thursday was found sane enough to stand trial on charges he killed his wife and three small children.

Assistant County Attorney Bill Layden said an attempt would be made to try Galbraith in two weeks, although it had been indicated earlier that the trial might be delayed until September.

More than two dozen witnesses testified at the four-day hearing with their testimony varying sharply as to his sanity.

The same witnesses may be called again for his murder trial since his lawyers have indicated they will base their defense on insanity. Thursday's verdict pertained only to his mental capacity to aid in his defense.

The 12 male jurors announced their unanimous verdict one hour and 44 minutes after retiring behind locked doors.

Dr. Galbraith was not present when the verdict was read. He showed no emotion when his attorney relayed the news to him in his jail cell.

Nuckols Returns From School Meet

County School Superintendent E. R. Nuckols returned yesterday from the annual meeting of school administrators at College Station which was held during the first of the week.

Nuckols said that the meeting included a workshop on school problems and the principle item of discussion was how to go about effecting desegregation in Texas schools.

Nuckols said that, in his opinion, "Most schools will wait until after the State Board of Education meeting in Austin July 4 to determine what action they will take concerning desegregation."

Pampa Radio Group Plans Field Day

About 15 amateur radio operators from Pampa are expected to take part in the "CQ Field Day" this Saturday and Sunday in connection with the American Radio Relay League's annual program designed to strengthen the ability of amateurs to carry on radio communications during emergencies.

The Pampa Amateur Radio Club (call letters W7FVS) will operate four transmitters and four receivers east of Lefors, between Coltex Gasoline plant and Carbon Co., beginning at 4 p.m. Saturday until 4 p.m. Sunday. Herman Whatley is trustee of the station.

About eight thousand radio amateurs throughout the nation will participate in the ARRL Field Day. This annual event gives practice in operating with low power under difficult conditions to develop communications to the point where they can efficiently operate in large scale disasters.

The field day is set up on a point system, with competition between individual members for high points.

Between 50 and 75 persons are expected to participate in the Panhandle Amateur Radio Club's all-night meeting in Amarillo. This group will have nine portable stations operating in the Pleasant Valley area, and have set up headquarters at Thompson Park.

BABY

Days are warm, even hot, but nights can have a chill. The problem: what's Baby to sleep in? Terry-cloth pajamas that are open to ventilation through the midriff can do the job. And, if the night's cold enough for you to reach for a blanket, cover Baby lightly, too.

Jane Talk

By JANE KADINGO
Pampa News Women's Editor

BEAUTY IS OUR TOPIC TODAY. The column is concerned more specifically with what hats to wear with what shape face, how to hide a black eye and what kind and how much make-up to wear during the hot, sticky weather.

IF A BUN — HAIR OR HAT — is going to the back of your head, be careful where it's anchored.

Max Factor, Jr., warns that if either nose or chin is larger than you like, you'll increase its apparent size, when viewed in profile, by pinning a bun back of the offending feature.

The trick, says the expert, spilling Hollywood secrets, is to wear the bun high, if you chin juts out, low, if a nose is the aggressive feature. And if you're awfully sensitive about the size of your nose, wear instead one of the season's little visor caps — just as chic, says Factor, as a chignon hat. The visor brim will work magic in seeming to minimize the size of nose.

For women with no profile problems who want to slick short hair back into a pin-on bun or chignon, Factor offers these neatening tricks:
Arm yourself with a can of spray-on lacquer and a hairbrush. Brush and spray all ends and wisps back. Catch up what you can at the back of your head with a rubber band to make a pony tail, no matter if it's no bigger than a button. To it secure your hair-piece or bun hat with bobble pins or tuck combs. Tuck combs, says Factor, sewed to the sides of hair-piece or hat, will probably give you the greatest feeling of security, if you worry about having your head-piece topple.

ANYBODY CAN HAVE a plain old cold-sober fall. And collect a black eye for the trouble.
So, knowing how to put a shiner under cover of make-up quickly is a good thing to know. Good for mama, as well as papa, good for big as well as little sister, and for brothers of all ages, says Max Factor, Jr.

The new way of concealment — a make-up eraser of a tinted stick type — is as different from the old way — beefsteak poultice and all the rest — as a jet bomber is from a Wright Brothers' plane.
Applied directly to the black eye area, the stick chosen in whatever skin shade the victim requires to match the natural color of the skin, covers up the bruise easily and painlessly in a light stroke or two.

If Mama or Big Sister, heaven forbid, should come a cropper or run into a door, the girls can, says Factor, easily blend the eraser in with their regular make-up. The black-eye camouflage goes over a make-up of the cream or fluid type, and goes under one of the cake type. With either type, it's blended until there's no visible difference between the black eye area and the rest of the skin.

The ladies, says Factor, should fringe their lashes and pencil their eyebrows more effectively a fier covering of the black eye, so that the beauty of the eyes will be the emphasis rather than any puff appearance. All in all, a shiner which has encouraged such dazzling eye make-up can be a blessing in disguise. The man, Factor continues, should wipe off any of the eraser which they might have inadvertently applied to their eyebrows or eyelashes. The natural color of the eyebrows and lashes, themselves, will assist in the disguise.

DO YOU DREAD the ordeal of wrestling with your powder puff, now that sultry weather is here? For ways to give your powder puff a relaxed summer, too, listen to Max Factor, Jr., who says to choose a porous make-up foundation, and one which has such definite color and beauty that the thinnest application will give you the coverage you want. After your foundation make-up has been applied, and before you begin your powder puffing, pat your face with skin freshener-dampened cot-

Mrs. L. L. Moore Feted With Shower

Mrs. Leo L. Moore, the former Dolores Drake, was complimented with a bridal shower recently in the home of Mrs. F. W. Broyles, 325 N. Dwight.

Co-hostesses with Mrs. Broyles were Mmes. J. P. Rogers, W. W. Windsor, Bill Freeman, Charles Holloway, A. N. Rogers and Bob Crouch.

The honoree was presented a corsage of pink carnations and baby's breath. Mrs. F. M. Drake, mother of the bride, and Mrs. George Seitz, mother of the bridegroom, were given corsages of white carnations.

The serving table was covered with a white linen cloth, centered with an arrangement of pink snapdragons, white daisies and baby's breath. Refreshments of white wedding cake decorated with pink bells, pink punch and pink and white mints were served. Napkins were white, with "Dolores and Leo" engraved in pink.

Mrs. Charles Holloway presided at the punch bowl, and Mrs. A. N. Rogers served the cake. About 50 persons attended or sent gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore are now living at 901 Texas, Odessa.

to make it cool as lemonade. As the day gets warmer, apply the freshener again, smooth the make-up surface with your fingertips, and follow with a fresh application of powder.
Do not try dramatic foundation make-up an drace powder colors to give your skin a darker or lighter look. Such shades will have to be applied rather heavily to be effective, and if you are enjoying a low-cut sundress, you'll have to apply the new shades to all exposed skin. Instead, choose foundation make-up and powder colors that match your skin, so they may be applied as light as a breeze, and to your face and neck only. Emphasize your eyes and your lips to make-up for the lack of drama you desire.

RUTH MILLET

The hospitality of a home depends as much on the husband as on the wife.

So here's a test for the husband — to give him an idea of how he rates as a host.

Do you leave your puttering in your workshop to come and welcome drop-in guests, without your wife's having to go and drag you into the living room?

Do you resist the impulse to yawn or look at the clock or talk about the hard day facing you tomorrow when guests stay longer than you think they should?

Do you greet guests warmly, calling them by name and drawing them into the family circle? Do you do small things for the comfort of your guests, such as opening or closing windows, putting an ash tray where it is needed, offering cigarettes, etc.?

Do you help your wife keep the conversation not only going but interesting?

Do you frequently say to a guest, "Come along, and let me show you such-and-such?" in an effort to share the things you are doing with your friends?

Do you treat your wife as courteously as you do guests, rather than make her and the guests feel ill-at-ease by your rudeness toward her?

Do you help your wife keep men and women guests together, instead of getting all of the men off in the kitchen, leaving the women by themselves?

When guests leave do you make them feel that it was a real pleasure to have them in your home? The more "Yes" answers you can give to those questions — the higher you rate as a host.

One or two small bells sewn to the edge of an umbrella makes rainy-day music when you go shopping; reminds umbrella-borrowers it's time to return the accessory to its owner.

Place a piece of bruised orange skin in a tight-covered box or can with cookies which have become hard to freshen them. Gives them a nice flavor, too, but leave in only a few hours so mold won't develop on cookies.

But one little fellow proves how wrong she is. Fact is, one skunklet has B. O. Every once in a while he interjects his two scents worth. She's trying to determine the culprit. In the meantime, she has named her six charges and one supercharge Evening in Pajamas; My Sin; Petunia; Eau de Cologne; Sacket; Chlorophyl and Stinky, Jr. "Mama skunk, of course, is named Stinky."

First Cotton Goes To Elks Hospital

HARLINGEN, Tex. —UP— Texas crippled children will sleep this winter on sheets made from the nation's first bale of 1953 cotton. Springs Cotton Mills, Inc., of Fort Mill, S. C., has announced it will process the first bale free of charge into sheets and pillow cases for presentation to the Texas Elks Crippled Children's Institute at Ottine, Tex.

Announcement of the agreement to make the sheets and pillow cases was made by Elliott White Springs, president of the South Carolina firm, to the Harlingen Elks Lodge No. 182—in a letter Thursday.

"The bale was grown by Will Wallace of Edinburg and Jerry Block of Sharyland, who operate a dry-land cotton farm in the western part of Hidalgo county. It was ginned on June 8.

The Harlingen Chamber of Commerce had posted a prize of $1,500 for the first bale. This, plus the amount brought when sold at auction, made a total of $3,180.81 brought by the bale.

Lone Star Brewing Co. of San Antonio was high bidder at $3.13 a pound. The company donated the bale to the Elks.

The Harlingen Elks Club shipped the bale to the South Carolina mill and dispatched one of its members to present the bale to officials there.

"Nothing is too good for those kids at Ottine," George Russell, Harlingen exalted ruler of the Elks, said. "We insist that they have the best and there can be nothing better to sleep on than sheets made from the first bale of the Rio Grande Valley."

Talking Bird Protests Tax On Income

By RICHARD E. MOONEY. WASHINGTON —UP— Jo-Jo, a huckstering parakeet from Peach Street, appealed directly to Tax Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews Thursday for a refund—and got some advice probably worth more.

Andrews did not give the talking bird the $20.50 refund he sought; but told him his $15 weekly salary may be illegal—too low under the minimum wage laws.

Jo-Jo gets his weekly stipend for saying "it's ok to owe Kay" in an Atlanta, Ga., jewelry store named Kay's.

He earned $615 at his job in '54 and had $20.50 withheld for federal income taxes. After deducting $25 for travel and $1 for membership in the Columbus (Ohio) Zoological Association, the prattling parakeet figured his income should not be taxed at all. So he wants the full $20.50 refunded.

Earlier reports that he was claiming an $11 refund were based on erroneous calculations by Jo-Jo's press agent.

Andrews told the bird-brained taxpayer he had flown over too many heads with his refund claim. He instructed him to file the claim with the district director of internal revenue in Atlanta, where he works.

"I'm not opposed to a refund for anyone who is entitled to it," Andrews said, with not a smile, "but there are so many millions of taxpayers I cannot go into the merits of every case."

Jo-Jo is said to have a 60-word not-a-word vocabulary. Apparently he was doing, anyway.

Ferry Project Permit Given

WASHINGTON —UP— Oklahoma congressmen reported Thursday that the Federal Power Commission has issued a license to the Grand River Dam Authority to build and operate the Markham Ferry project in Oklahoma.

They joined immediately in requesting the budget bureau to recommend inclusion in the pending public works appropriation bill of a $6.5 million item to finance federal flood control work on the project.

The office of Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla.) said it was advised by the FPC that the license was issued Thursday morning.

It pointed out that the budget bureau had said a recommendation for the $6.5 million expenditure would be forthcoming as soon as the FPC's action was taken.

Rep. Eg Edmondson (D-Okla.) said he has joined Kerr and Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) in a formal request that the recommendation be submitted to the Senate appropriations committee in time for the funds' inclusion in the public works bill.

Genius Not Guilty In Arson Charge

BELOIT, Wis. —UP— Stephen Dykstra Posey, 20-year-old genius reported to have a higher IQ than the late Albert Einstein, was found innocent of arson and forgery charges Thursday but was ordered committed to a mental institution.

Posey was charged with arson for a $250,000 fire which destroyed the Beloit College chapel in 1953. He also faced a charge involving the forgery of a fellow student's check when he was a freshman at the college.

Municipal Judge Arthur Luebke found Posey innocent by reason of insanity. The judge ordered him committed to the Central State hospital until such time as the court finds him sane and mentally responsible.

Posey is the grandson of a former president of the University of Wisconsin, and his father is a Northwestern University professor.

THE GARDEN OF THE SOUL

Text: "Their soul shall be as a watered garden."

Jer. 31:12.

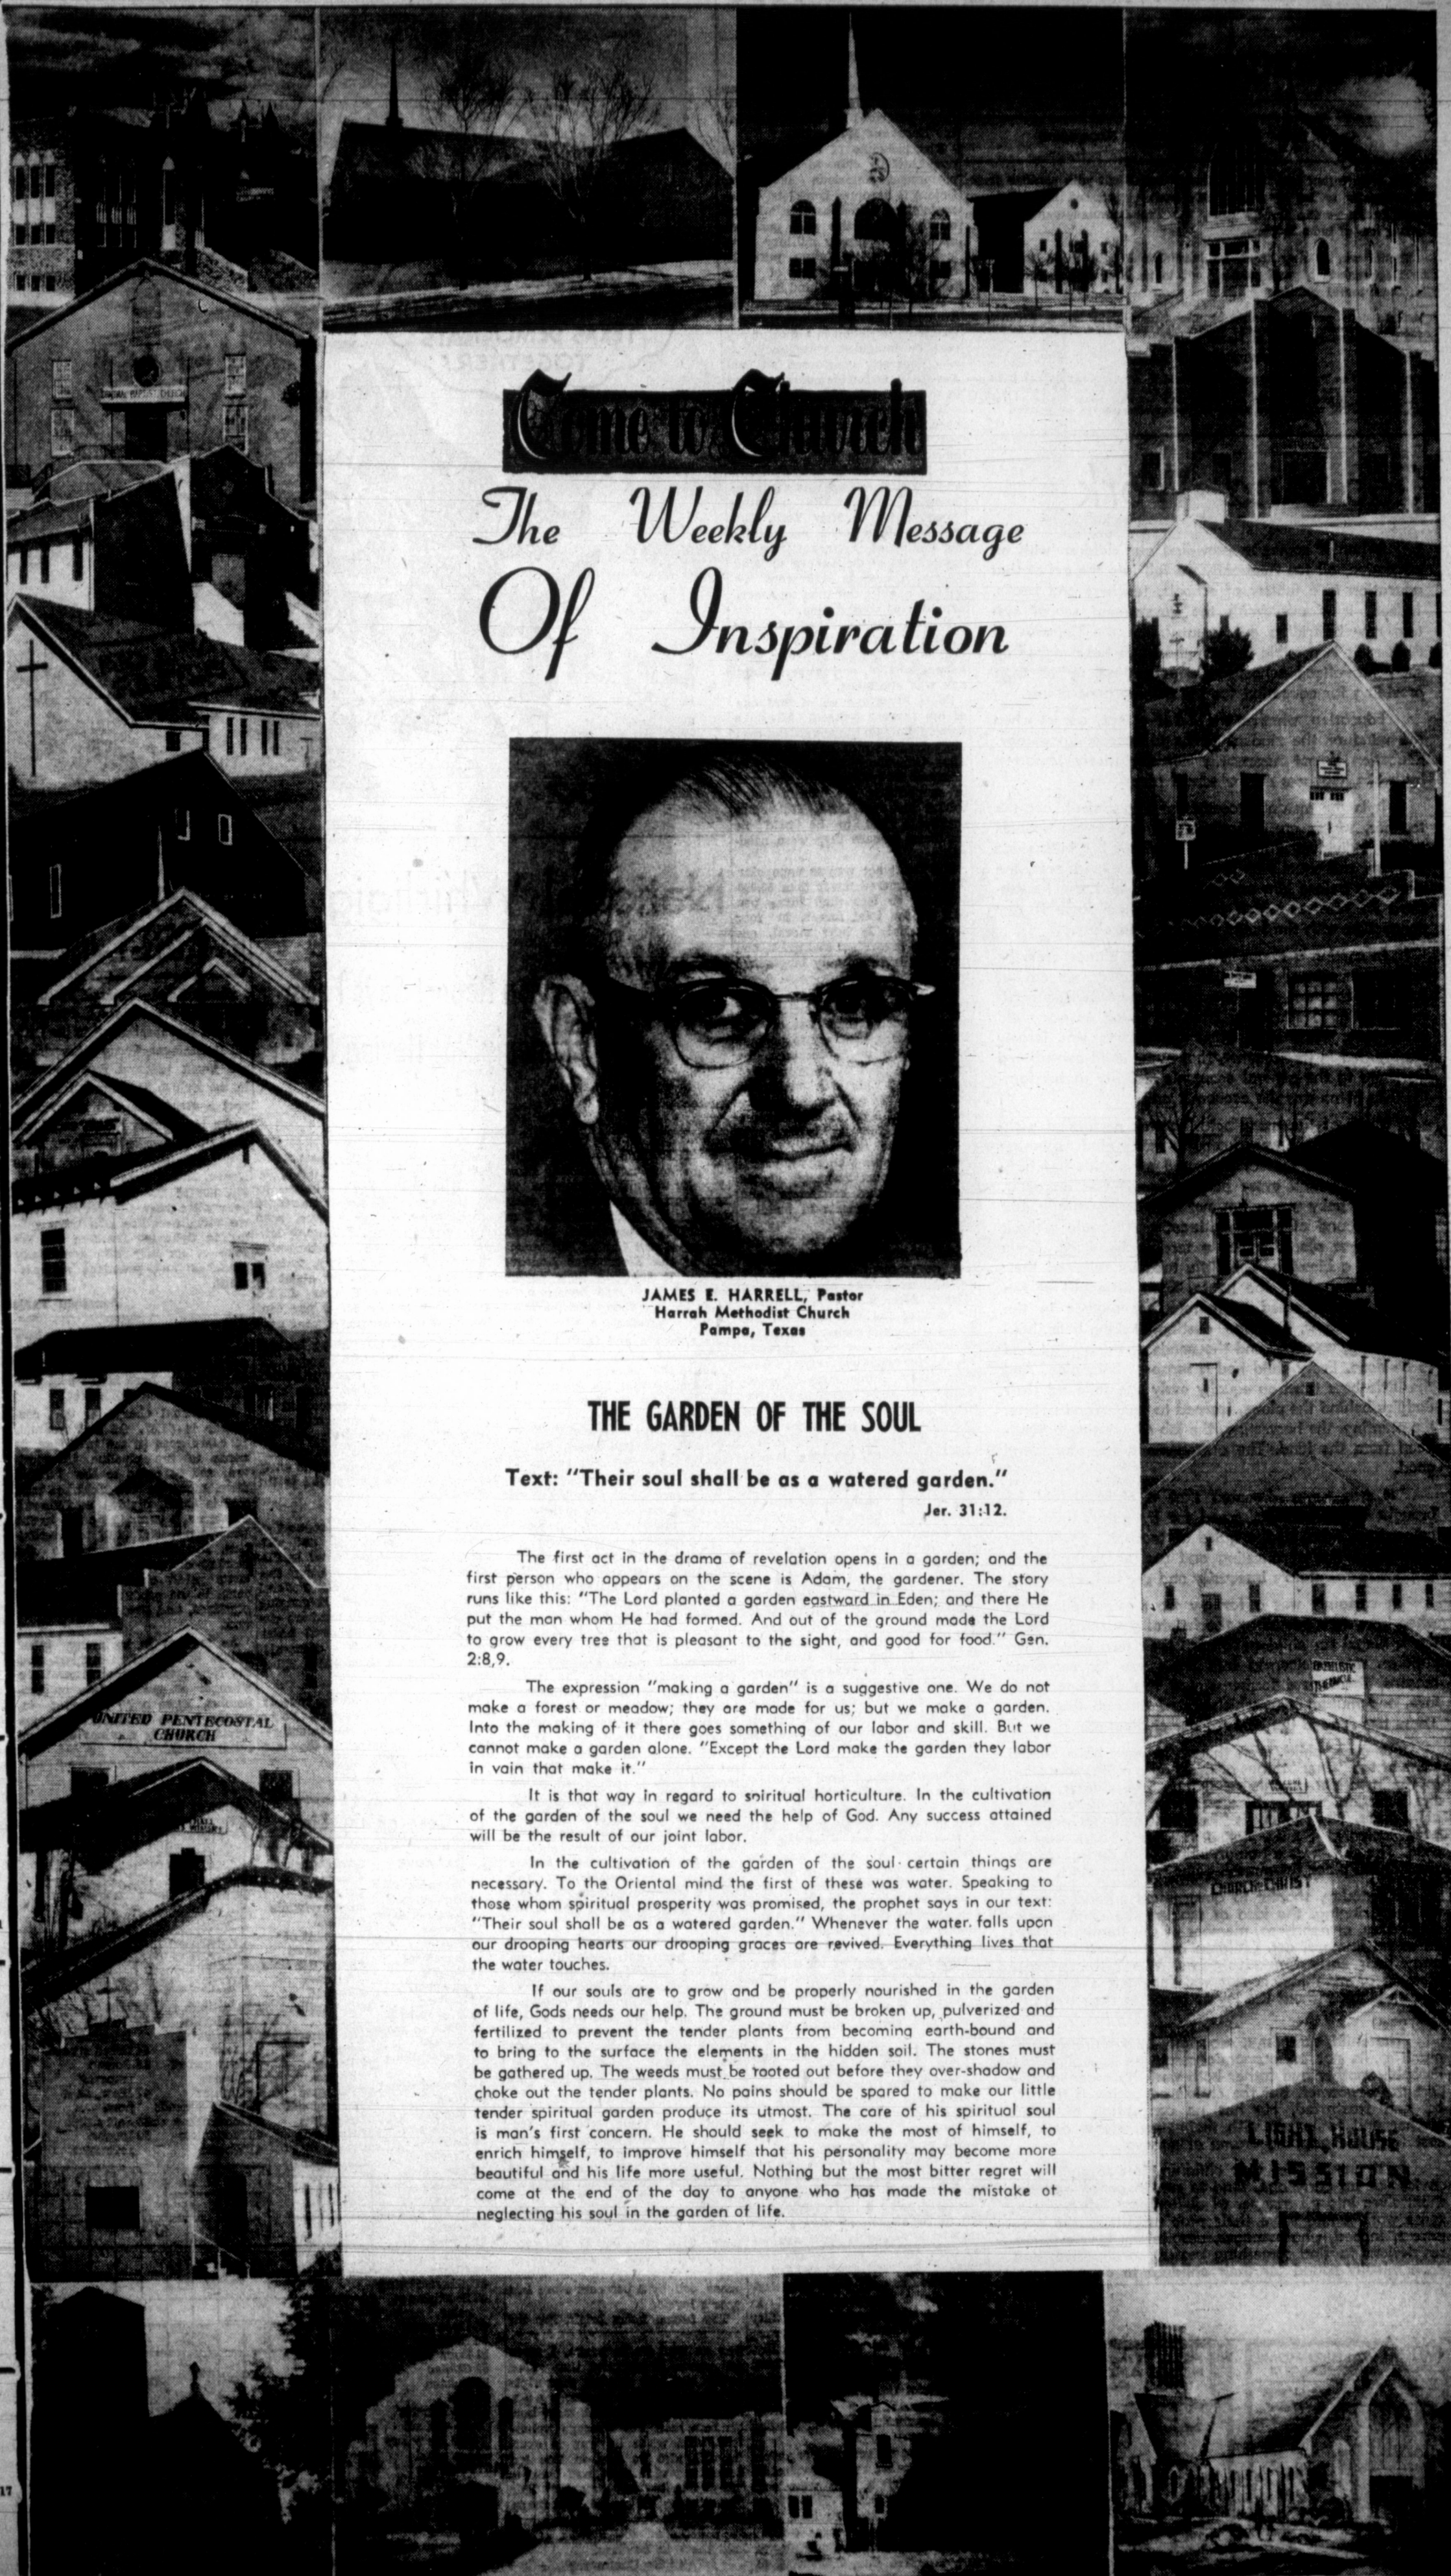

The first act in the drama of revelation opens in a garden; and the first person who appears on the scene is Adam, the gardener. The story runs like this: "The Lord planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there He put the man whom He had formed. And out of the ground made the Lord to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food." Gen. 2:8,9.

The expression "making a garden" is a suggestive one. We do not make a forest or meadow; they are made for us; but we make a garden. Into the making of it there goes something of our labor and skill. But we cannot make a garden alone. "Except the Lord make the garden they labor in vain that make it."

It is that way in regard to spiritual horticulture. In the cultivation of the garden of the soul we need the help of God. Any success attained will be the result of our joint labor.

In the cultivation of the garden of the soul certain things are necessary. To the Oriental mind the first of these was water. Speaking to those whom spiritual prosperity was promised, the prophet says in our text: "Their soul shall be as a watered garden." Whenever the water falls upon our drooping hearts our drooping graces are revived. Everything lives that the water touches.

If our souls are to grow and be properly nourished in the garden of life, Gods needs our help. The ground must be broken up, pulverized and fertilized to prevent the tender plants from becoming earth-bound and to bring to the surface the elements in the hidden soil. The stones must be gathered up. The weeds must be rooted out before they over-shadow and choke out the tender plants. No pains should be spared to make our little tender spiritual garden produce its utmost. The care of his spiritual soul is man's first concern. He should seek to make the most of himself, to enrich himself, to improve himself that his personality may become more beautiful and his life more useful. Nothing but the most bitter regret will come at the end of the day to anyone who has made the mistake of neglecting his soul in the garden of life.

Rosalind Russell Turns To Homely Spinster For Movie

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD — UP— Rosalind Russell, the glamorous clothes horse and musical comedy star, has changed into a homely spinster with wrinkles and curlers in her hair for a movie "So I Won't Get Bored."
Fast-talking Roz' most recent roles were in two musicals, "Wonderful Town" on Broadway and "The Girl Rush" for the movies.
But Friday I found the one-time song-and-dance queen wearing an ill-fitting dress and a mop of uncombed hair for her return to heavy drama in "Picnic."
"Some stars are afraid to do do this," the actress said as she sat in her dressing room and stared at herself in the mirror.

Colonel Gets Dismissal From AF

WASHINGTON — UP— The Air Force Thursday gave an "other than honorable" discharge to Col. Patrick W. Hayes, Alexandria, Va., for associating with a beautiful German girl convicted as a Red spy.
Hayes, 48, was formerly a special investigation officer in Germany. His discharge was made effective as of June 17.
The German woman with whom Hayes became involved was Irmgard Margarethe Schmidt, 25, who was sentenced in West Berlin last Dec. 21, to five years imprisonment for spying for the Communists.
The Air Force said Hayes was ordered last January to show cause why he should not be removed from service "as a result of information stemming from the trial" of Miss Schmidt.
"There was no indication that Col. Hayes released classified information to Miss Schmidt," the Air Force said, "but that he evidenced improperly and poor judgment in permitting himself to become involved with her."
Hayes, who has been assigned here to the Air Force headquarters command at Bolling Air Force Base, formerly served with the inspector general's special investigations wing in Germany.

Symonds Case Suspect Held

SINGAPORE — UP— A second suspect in the mob killing of United Press correspondent Gene Symonds, here last month was brought to court Thursday.
Suppliat Subramaniam, 25, was ordered held for trial after a hearing before Judge Choor Singh. Subramaniam is charged with being a member of the "unlawful assembly" that beat Symonds to death May 12.
A Chinese truckdriver named On Gah Too had been jailed previously in connection with the killing. Earlier Thursday, Chinese students on the way to Red China threatened the life of NBC correspondent Jim Robinson when he tried to take pictures of them on board the Dutch ship Tjiuwang. "We very nearly had another Gene Symonds case," Robinson said.

my neck and I frown," she boomed, and made faces at herself in the mirror.
"Somebody asked me why the heck I'm doing this. Well, I've never worried much about my looks. And you get so darned bored if you stay with one type of role. The biggest boxoffice stars don't have much looks, really. You can't call Marlon Brando handsome, or Jimmy Cagney."
"Furthermore, this is a mature role and some actresses who refuse to admit they're growing old are pathetic. For God's sake, act your age!"
Roz' clothes for Columbia's movie version of the Broadway play were carefully made not to fit. The waist of her cheap powder blue suit was hiked up in the back and the skirt was "cut all wrong." She wears junk jewelry and "I found these wonderful 43 shoes with platform soles and ankle straps."
"I'm supposed to be a man-hungry old maid who's after William Holden," she explained. "For many scenes I wear no make-up, and my hair is up in curlers so I look like a pin-head."
The movie company, headed by Broadway director Josh Logan (this is his first film in 20 years), spent uncomfortable weeks on a Kansas location trying to work amidst tornadoes, thunderstorms and hail stones. Unfortunately, some townspeople who watched the shooting thought Miss Russell looked homely not on purpose.
"I got a registered letter from a woman who said it was heart-breaking the way I've let myself go," the actress said with a lusty laugh.
But although she knows some fans will be "horrified" to see her in "Picnic," she prefers the role to those career woman parts that still are offered her.
"I did nothing but career women for 19 films," she said. "I always had nine phones and the same desk — the same desk! — in all those pictures."
"And the same backdrop behind the office window of the Empire State building. They always had me on the 40th floor of Rockefeller Center."
"I never even had my wardrobe fitted. I'd just call the designer and say, well, here's the script, another piece of junk, so make four suits and a negligee for the crying scene."

Soft Drink Stand Bucks City Laws

TULSA — UP— Betty Lou and Beverly Sue moved their soft drink stand 100 feet Thursday, reopened for business, and defied city efforts to make the youngsters close the stand.
City officials Wednesday closed the stand on grounds it was not in an area zoned for business.
Betty Lou Sheppard is 15. Her sister Beverly Sue is 13.
The two youngsters studied the closedown order and noted it specified Lots 3 and 8 on their parents' three-acre tract. Thursday the stand was reopened on Lot 4.
This means the city must issue a new closedown order naming Lot 4.
Even if the city does this, the girls are not giving up. Construction workers, toiling in the hot sun across the street from the stand, are signing a petition to the city commission, demanding a temporary permit for the stand.
The workers are the chief buyers of pop, milk and cigarets at the stand.
The city building inspector's office said it was just doing its job. Other city hall sources said the closedown order came just two days after the girls quit buying milk from one dairy and started buying from another.
The girls had been operating since June 2 without interference.
