WHAT A MOTHER — When the mother of three kittens was struck and killed by a car nearly three weeks ago, Skeeter, a dog, adopted the orphans and began nursing them. Although the milk is not that of a mother cat, a local veterinarian said there should be no harmful effects. And the kittens don't seem to mind the difference, anyway. After all, a mother is a mother. The dog and kittens all belong to Jack Becker, 345 Tignor. (Photo by Terry Hanna)

President Develops Energy Crisis Plan

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon has decided to attack the energy shortage by lifting quotas and tariffs on imported fuel, mounting a $10 billion crash research program and putting an energy czar in the White House and a secretary of energy in the Cabinet, according to White House sources.

The White House energy post will go to Colorado Gov. John A. Love, the sources said.

White House sources said the President would unveil his sweeping package of energy proposals in a special message to Congress from the Western White House.

The program will include a proposal to spend $10 billion in a five-year crash program to fund research into new energy sources, beginning in fiscal 1975, the sources said.

Will Begin Search

Furthermore, the sources said, he would call for a $100 million outlay in the 1974 fiscal year budget to begin the search for resources to replace dwindling oil supplies.

Nixon has been severely criticized in some quarters for failing to move faster to meet the shortages.

The sources said he would urge a voluntary reduction in energy consumption by the American public over the next 12 months.

Love will head a new Office of Energy Policy in the White House with the responsibility of coordinating all federal activities in this field.

In addition, Nixon will propose creation of a new Cabinet-level Department of Energy and Natural Resources which will absorb the functions of the Interior Department and other energy-related agencies. The reorganization plan also will recommend establishment of a new agency for energy research and development, which will include the Atomic Energy Commission.

Laird Arrives

His new chief domestic adviser, Melvin R. Laird, has arrived on the scene for a long weekend of talks on White House matters. Nixon met Thursday with Ambassador to India Daniel P. Moynihan, architect of his defunct family assistance plan. Laird told an interviewer he has asked Moynihan, who is home for

Chairmen Seeking President Montoya Suggests Nixon Didn't Get Probe Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic chairman and the Republican vice chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee appear to be laying the groundwork for asking President Nixon to appear before them and submit to questioning about the Watergate affair. The White House says he won't do it.

Sens. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and Howard Baker, R-Tenn., made the point during Thursday's session that only the President can answer the serious charges that have been made against him before their committee.

Ervin wants Nixon's response to documents indicating he approved an illegal plan for domestic intelligence gathering. Baker wants to know whether Nixon disclosed to John W. Dean III two months before the 1972 election that he knew a Watergate cover-up was in process. Dean says Nixon knew.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., suggested today that President Nixon knew there had been no investigation when he said last Aug. 29 that a probe of the Watergate scandal indicated no one in the White House was involved.

The White House acknowledged May 16 that no such investigation was conducted.

Zeroing in on the President's August statement at the Senate Watergate hearings, Montoya closely questioned witness John W. Dean III, the ousted White House counsel who Nixon originally said had handled the internal probe.

In addition to official government investigations of the budding of Democratic party headquarters last year, Nixon said on Aug. 29 that "under my direction, counsel to the President, Mr. Dean had conducted a complete investigation of all leads which might involve present members of the White House staff or members of government. I can say categorically that his investigation indicates that no one on the White House staff, no one in this administration, presently employed, was involved in this bizarre incident."

Report Required

Appearing for the fifth straight day at the nationally televised Senate hearings, Dean nodded and smiled faintly as Montoya read the familiar words.

"Now, I ask you this question, with respect to any project that you handled directly for the President, where a report was required, wouldn't you assume that if this is true, that you would have been required to file a report?" Montoya asked.

"Yes, sir," Dean replied.

"And also, if—assuming this was true—wouldn't that report be available at the White House?" Montoya asked.

"That is correct," Dean said.

"And so, assuming the correctness of the President's statement, then it necessarily follows that if you made a complete investigation at his behest and for him, that the President should produce that Dean report?" Montoya asked.

Audience Laughs

"I already believe that the White House has indicated there was no Dean investigation," Dean replied. "I think that was one of the 'inoperative' statements."

The audience packed into the Senate Caucus Room broke into laughter at Dean's reference to a remark by presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, who told reporters April 17 that all previous White House comments on Watergate were "inoperative."

"But it is still your testimony that you were not requested by the President to make a report to him or to conduct this investigation?" Montoya asked.

"Not at that time, senator, that is correct," Dean replied.

After Newsweek magazine published a story last month quoting Dean as saying he had made no Watergate investigation for the President, the White House conceded May 16 that no such report had been written or submitted to Nixon. Ziegler said Nixon had requested a probe through intermediaries and had received an oral report from John D. Ehrlichman, who resigned April 30 as the President's chief domestic affairs adviser.

Cambodia Civilians Flee Before Reds

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — More than 2,000 refugees fled down embattled Highway 6 toward Phnom Penh today as Communist troops closed behind them at the Prek Kdam ferry crossing 18 miles north of the capital, field reporters said.

Five taxis came barreling down the road and about 30 Communists got out of them, said a UPI photographer who returned from the scene. "They had taken the taxis—no one knew from where—then all the refugees gave up ideas of getting back and headed for the ferry, the Communists shooting warning shots in the air behind us."

The refugees fought and struggled for places on a single ferry boat that crossed the Tontle Sap River and a company of 30 soldiers requested permission to evacuate. The high command radioed the troops that they could abandon the threatened east bank when all civilians had left.

The Prek Kdam ferry commands the gateway to Highways 5, 6 and 7—the main roads leading north, northeast and

AS THREE TESTIFY 'Payoff' Hearing Gets Slow Start

By RAY BAXTER

Only three persons had been before the Gray County grand jury at press deadline today to testify in the panel's investigation of alleged "payoffs" in local narcotics cases.

After a day and a half of hearings, this leaves way more than half of the 44 persons summoned by subpoena yet to face the grand jury.

That figure represents every law enforcement officer with duty inside Gray County and three persons from Amarillo, including the woman reporter for an Amarillo television station who stated in a recent news story that officers suspected a payoff, thus placing District Attorney Guy Hardin on the spot.

Hardin's response was to ask for a grand jury investigation and subpoenas for all law officers. Knowledgeable people on the court house scene

County Court Faces Loaded Agenda Session

Members of the Gray County Commissioners Court face a loaded agenda for the regular session 10 a.m. Monday in the county courtroom, plus an executive session following to consider committee appointments.

The final decision of the county's participation in the Red Deer Creek Watershed Project should come before the court. Members of the panel attended the recent hearing at the Court House in Miami that was the prelude to final action on the part of the three counties involved: Gray, Roberts and Hemphill.

Bids will be considered on a Precinct Four pickup truck (with trade-in) and a building in Precinct One.

There will be a discussion with the highway department concerning a farm-to-market road. Then the remainder of the agenda will concern routine payment of bills and a discussion of increased cost for jail inmate meals.

The court will then convene as a board of equalization and order the county clerk to notify taxpayers whose assessments have been raised.

The executive session will be concerned with appointments to the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Regional Committee.

Foods Hit By Production Cuts

By United Press International

Housewives may soon be unable to find enough milk, chicken, and eggs in their supermarkets. Drastic cuts in poultry flocks and the production of other foods are already under way and a food shortage seems probable within the next few months.

Congressmen from the farm bloc said Thursday that the threat to consumer supplies posed by the production cuts will not ease until the administration replaces the current price freeze with more flexible Phase IV controls allowing some increases in food prices.

The lawmakers told a House agriculture subcommittee meeting the administration's cutback Wednesday on livestock feed exports—soybeans and cottonseed—may ease pressures on livestock feed costs but would probably not be enough to reverse the liquidation of poultry flocks.

Still in a Crunch

Rep. Abraham Kazen, D-Tex., said poultrymen are still in a crunch between frozen selling prices and feed costs so high as to make losses a certainty under current conditions. Unless the freeze is lifted immediately, there will be shortages of chickens and eggs in a few months, he said.

"It may not be welcome news to consumers that they may have to pay more for some foods, but if the choice is between slight increases in prices or food famines, I think I know what people would prefer," he said.

A Cost of Living Council spokesman told Kazen the administration was driving toward an announcement "as soon as possible" on new controls to replace the freeze but he did not elaborate.

In addition to poultry, production of milk, hogs, flour, and some fruits are also dropping as a result of the price ceilings which means that when the 60-day freeze is up, prices will skyrocket.

The National Association of Food Chains said several plants owned by soybean and corn oil suppliers were closing down because their stores of soybeans had been exhausted and the farm price of corn was too high to allow a profit on corn oil at its current fixed price.

The American Soybean Association warned the Nixon administration's export crackdown would boomerang against livestock producers. It said soybean growers, who have indicated they plan to expand acreage to new record levels this year, now may scale back their plans in some cases.

Emergency Session

News of the soybean embargo sent leaders of the European Common Market into emergency session Thursday to determine what effect it would have on European markets. Britain's National Farmers Union said it would seriously effect the production of poultry and pigs.

An FTC spokesman said it had brought to court allegations of anti-competitive practices resulting from a shared monopoly in the dry cereal industry, territorial allocations involving distribution of soft drinks, and anti-competitive acquisitions in the wine, frozen fish and soft drink concentrate industries.

Ervin wants Nixon's response to documents indicating he approved an illegal plan for domestic intelligence gathering. Baker wants to know whether Nixon disclosed to John W. Dean III two months before the 1972 election that he knew a Watergate cover-up was in process. Dean says Nixon knew.

No President in modern times has testified before a committee of Congress. The White House said again Thursday that such an appearance, even without a subpoena, would be "constitutionally inappropriate," making the chief executive subservient to Congress.

But Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., has disclosed that the committee staff is looking into the question and its legal ramifications. Montoya said its research shows that Presidents Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln appeared before congressional committees while in office.

Ervin said a written statement from Nixon would be inadequate since "you can't cross-examine a statement."

Baker said only Nixon can give his account of what was said in a meeting attended by the President, his aide, H. R. Haldeman and Dean, his counsel, on Sept. 15, 1972, "a terribly important moment in history."

Through four days of testimony, Dean has insisted that in that conversation Nixon revealed he knew what was going on and congratulated Dean for keeping the scandal from reaching the White House.

City Officials Prepare 'Needs Survey' Report

Deadline for a "Needs Survey" on Pampa's proposed $570,000 sewage treatment plant improvements was met today by City Hall.

The Texas Water Quality Board's district office in Amarillo had requested the 35-page report.

Prepared by City Manager Mack Wofford and the consultant engineering firm of Merriman and Barber, the report went into the mail today, according to Wofford.

According to Robert G. Fleming, director of central operations for the Texas Water Quality Board in Austin, the "Needs Survey" will be the basis for determining Texas' federal allocation for construction grant funds.

Pampa has applied for a $447,000 aid grant, or 75 per cent of the total estimated project cost.

Fleming said today's deadline was set to get information on all waste water system construction to the Environmental Agency in Washington as soon as possible.

Delay, he stated, would result in Texas' federal allocation for construction being less than required to meet water quality construction needs of the state and its cities.

EPS had advised that the national survey of needs for municipal sewage treatment facilities will be the tool that Congress will use to determine the ratio of federal construction appropriations each state will receive.

The 1973 survey, according to Robert W. Fri, acting EPA administrator, also will determine directly how funds will be allocated for the next two fiscal years.

Newspapers Shocked By 'Enemy List'

By United Press International

A number of newspapers said editorially Thursday and today that they were shocked to learn of the White House "political enemies" list. Many said it was high time that President Nixon step forward and answer questions brought up during the Senate Watergate hearings.

One newspaper, however, said testimony by John W. Dean III that the White House ordered an FBI investigation of CBS newsmen Daniel Schorr was "far from surprising."

"However remote a punitive White House move against a newsmen may have seemed in 1971 to the public, in view of recent revelations, it seems more like a routine type of operation," said an editorial in the Rutland, Vt., Daily Herald.

The Chicago Sun-Times and the New York Daily News called for Nixon to give a public answer quickly to Dean's charges.

Urgent that He Respond

"The accusation that President Nixon was involved in a criminal effort to obstruct justice in the Watergate case... can only be answered by the President himself," the Sun-Times said. "It is urgent that he respond to Dean's charges, and that in so doing he make more than a mere television statement."

The Daily News said that Nixon has the right to keep quiet, "but this is hardly the occasion to stand on the niceties of due process..."

"Like it or not, this case has been thrown into the court of public opinion, and Mr. Nixon owes a full, frank accounting to that tribunal," the News said.

Both the Washington Star-News and Salt Lake City's Deseret News cautioned the public not to jump to conclusions on the basis of Dean's testimony.

"Can John Dean be believed?" asked the Star-News. "By his own account, he is capable of a championship style of lying."

The Deseret News said there were holes in Dean's testimony.

The Holes in Testimony

"On Monday, for example, Dean maintained that in March the President ordered a cover-up of the Watergate scandal but didn't seem to know what he was doing. On Tuesday, Dean testified that Mr. Nixon not only 'knew about the cover-up but knew about it as early as last fall,'" the News said.

The Miami Herald said, "The Watergate drama has produced no more disgusting act in the process of undermining democracy than these virtual lettres de cachet, a device of the Bourbon kings whose reigns, it appears, have come alive again in the White House."

The Washington Post said, "Three times now Mr. Nixon has addressed the public on what he is pleased to call the 'deplorable' Watergate 'incident.' It is not an incident; it is a way of life we are learning about."

The Times called for a separate investigation of the IRS and a review of existing tax laws.

FOR ARTESIA HALL

Attorney Feels Position Affected License Okay

HOUSTON (UPI) — A former member of the State Welfare Board said early today Artesia Hall probably would not have been licensed if he had not acted as attorney for the school's owner.

W. Kendall Baker, a Houston attorney who represented Dr. Joseph Farrar during licensing procedures for the controversial detention home in Liberty County, told a House subcommittee he regretted his former position influenced the Welfare Department.

"From what I have learned, the fact I represented him (Farrar) and was a former board member seemed to have had some kind of influence on the department to do things that were not ordinarily done," Baker said.

"In all probability if it had been someone else besides me representing him, it (a license) would never have been granted," he said. "I certainly didn't intend it that way."

Baker served on the welfare board for 12 years until March, 1971. He was retained by Farrar in June, 1971, and the school was granted a license in November, 1971, shortly before a court hearing on an injunction to close the school for operating without a license.

Baker was the last witness to appear before the subcommittee which is investigating the licensing of Artesia Hall. Farrar has been indicted in the death of a 17-year-old student who died last Nov. 14 after swallowing rat poison. Farrar allegedly denied the girl medical attention.

The subcommittee adjourned at 12:20 a.m. after four days of testimony from State Welfare Department administrators and employees.

Rep. Lane Denton, D-Waco, chairman of the subcommittee, said he would have to review testimony before deciding what to do next.

"It's beginning to look more and more like there was some sort of interference in the licensing procedure," Denton said. "Until all the facts are in we won't be able to determine what happened, but we will get the truth."

Rep. John Whitmire, D-Houston, said case workers' reports that recommended the school be permanently enjoined from operating because of such disciplinary practices as placing students in a chain-link cage, shaking by the hair and handcuffing obviously were ignored.

"What it boils down to is political influence within the state agency," Whitmire said. "It took a girl's death to bring it to people's attention. Without that, it could have gone on indefinitely."

In Liberty, state District Judge Clarence D. Cain granted a temporary injunction

Thursday against Farrar and his employees from operating Artesia Hall and a companion school, Aston Academy in Houston. Cain had granted a temporary restraining order last week against Artesia Hall and the state took control of the facility.

The effect of the Thursday hearing was to turn the school and its property back over to Farrar with the understanding he would not house any students.

In Austin, the state's three-man welfare board met Thursday amid reports that commissioner Raymond Vowell would be fired because of the agency's handling of the Artesia Hall case.

Board chairman George A. Butler of Houston said there was no discussion of possible firings or disciplinary action against welfare employees. He said no action would even be considered until after investigations were completed by the attorney general's office and the Department of Public Safety.

Germany Revalues Currency

BONN (UPI) — West Germany revalued its currency upward by 5 1/2 per cent today.

Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt announced.

Schmidt said the decision was made at an emergency cabinet meeting called by Chancellor Willy Brandt.

The move, the latest episode in the international money crisis, was taken after 12 days of trading that forced West Germany to buy four billion German marks worth of French francs, Dutch guilders, Belgian francs and Danish crowns.

West Germany does not maintain a fixed rate against the U.S. dollar, but the decision to raise the value of the mark nevertheless meant a further drop in the American currency's price.

Foreign exchange markets ground to a halt in London and Amsterdam and other centers pending adjustment of what one London dealer called "not so simple a situation."

Solons Okay Social Security Benefits Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate negotiators have approved a 5.6 per cent increase in Social Security benefits and higher employee payroll deductions to help pay for it.

Under the bill, the maximum benefits for an individual would increase by $106 a year and the maximum payroll deduction would increase by $35.10.

But the measure may become ensnared in the debate over the bombing of Cambodia. The bill to which it is attached is one of several pieces of legislation to which amendments have been added to halt the bombing of Cambodia.

If the Cambodia amendment is approved, President Nixon appeared certain to veto the whole bill, as he did a $3.3 supplemental appropriation bill which contained a no-bombing provision Wednesday.

Mitchell Won't Implicate Nixon, Lawyer Claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell has no information that would implicate President Nixon in the Watergate cover-up, his lawyer said Thursday, according to the Washington Post.

The lawyer, William G. Hundley, said Mitchell "will in no way incriminate the President" when he testifies before the Senate Watergate Committee, the Post said.

Senate investigators trying to confirm or disprove former White House counsel John W. Dean III's testimony implicating Nixon had expected Mitchell to be able to help

IN CHILE

Army Section Revolts Against Leftist Regime

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — A section of the army revolted today against the leftist government of President Salvador Allende, the hemisphere's first elected Marxist chief of state.

Motorized troops backed by tanks and armored cars attacked the palace in downtown Santiago with cannon and machinegun fire.

The palace guard and regular army troops in the defense ministry across the street from La Moneda, the seat of government, fought back against the attack with machinegun fire.

Cannon fire and bullets ricocheted against the palace and defense ministry buildings and the fronts of other buildings in Bulnes Plaza, including the offices of United Press International.

This correspondent watched the attack from his office windows. The attacking troops were crouched behind tanks and atop armored cars. They appeared to be units from a motorized regiment stationed in Santiago.

The tanks and armored cars arrived at the square shortly after 9 a. m., and people on the streets immediately fled for shelter, leaving the normally busy square deserted.

Only Thursday night the army announced it had quelled a conspiracy by army sergeants against Allende, arresting nine persons.

Defense minister Jose Toha said at that time that sergeants from the powerful Santiago-based 2nd Division had "planned to take their units into the streets with the object of provoking the fall of the government."

Sirens of ambulances could be clearly heard from the scene of battle. Some radio stations were reporting wounded in the streets, but the reports could not be immediately confirmed.

Heavy gunfire was still being exchanged an hour after the start of the attack. Workers in office buildings evacuated the area.

Allende went on nationwide radio to appeal for calm. He urged people to stay away from the center of town, the focus of present fighting. Allende called on his followers not to allow themselves to be provoked into joining the fighting. He said he was confident that troops loyal to his regime could put down the revolt.

Allende was at the presidential residence in another section of the city at the time of the attack. He made his radio appeal for calm from his home saying only a small section of the army was involved.

He urged his followers to stay at their jobs and not risk their lives by going downtown to aid in the defense of the palace. "I have confidence that the loyal forces will put down the action of the rebels," he said.

Allende identified the attackers as members of motorized division 2 in Santiago. He said loyal troops were "marching" to attack them.

The uprising came less than 24 hours after the government announced it had crushed an armed revolt against Allende, first in his 2 1/2 years of government. Nine men were arrested.

Explosions Hit Belfast And Airport Areas

BELFAST (UPI) -- Cars packed with explosives blasted downtown Belfast and the freight section of the municipal airport today, causing extensive damage and injuring several persons. The bombs went off as the population awaited the outcome of Northern Ireland's "last chance" election for a provincial legislature. Polling officials said first returns in the voting by an estimated 75 per cent of the electorate were expected later today. The bomb at Aldergrove airport hospitalized at least 10 persons but none suffered more than shock, cuts and bruises, an army spokesman said. The downtown bomb blew up behind the city's art college half an hour after army experts tried and failed to dismantle it. The area had been cleared and the only injury was a woman who was cut slightly on the face.

Welfare Head Claims Staff Lacks Expertise

AUSTIN (UPI)—The state's welfare commissioner said Thursday the Artesia Hall detention home was under surveillance at the time a 17-year-old girl swallowed rat poisoning and died, allegedly because doctors failed to give her medical treatment.

State Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell, his job in question because of the way the Artesia Hall licensing was handled, met Thursday with the three-man public welfare board. After the meeting it was learned the board had "admonished" Vowell, but had decided to let him keep his position at least for a little while longer.

Vowell said the Artesia school was under continuing surveillance from the spring of 1972 until the present time.

 Last November a 17-year-old girl swallowed rat poison and when she began having convulsions she was allegedly locked in a strait jacket. The owner of the school, Dr. Joseph Farrar, has been indicted on a Vowell said during the time the school was under surveillance there had been "numerous complaints" but investigators had not been able to substantiate any of the allegations. He also said he had complained to the legislature his department lacked personnel with expertise to evaluate psychiatric programs for children.

"I'm not trying to alibi for anything," Vowell said. "But I think anybody would tell you that. There are no psychiatrists nor psychologists on the welfare department staff."

Following its closed door session with Vowell, the board voted to assume the responsibility of reviewing the licensing of all child care institutions in Texas.

The board declined to talk specifically about Artesia Hall because the district attorney in Montgomery County has advised the board to keep all records on the school confidential.

Skylab Data Could Aid Ecology

HOUSTON (UPI) -- The world's balance of nature is out of whack but the knowledge gained from Skylab may help man put this ecological balance back in order, according to space center's program director.

The Skylab space pioneers, Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph

Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz, planned to hold their first news conference today since returning from their record

"The benefits (of Skylab) as of today are nothing more than the technology that has been developed," Kenneth S. Kleinknecht, program director at the Johnson Space Center, said Thursday in a news conference. "But man will benefit from now on from that technology. We had another unparalleled success in Skylab.

Easier Than Expected
 "By using this data you can better manage the resources and ecology of the earth. We can all realize the ecological balance in the world is in jeopardy and anything that helps is good."

Kleinknecht said it was significant the nation had flown its first space station and learned it's easier for man to work in space than expected.

"Many more things worked better than I thought they would," he said. "We found it a lot easier to work in space than we expected."

The chief astronaut physician, Dr. Royce Hawkins, said veteran spaceflier Conrad had the least problem readapting to gravity, and he had also gotten more inflight exercise than his fellow crewmen.

Hawkins said he's recommending two other

Skylab crews scheduled to man the giant orbiting ship for 56 days each this year get more exercise on their trips.

Beyond that, the physician said, doctors aren't sure yet of the significance of the mountain of data they have to analyze.

"We're on the frontier and we're learning," Hawkins said at another briefing. "As we're identifying these changes, we need a chance to analyze them."

'Extremely Pleased'
 He said another interesting finding is that the astronauts didn't become dizzy in space while performing head movements as they sat in a whirling chair. They became dizzy before the flight on the ground when the chair was rotating only half as fast and they made the same movements.

'Untouchable' attitude should be unearthed

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've got this problem which is getting worse. I can't stand for a guy to touch me or kiss me. I am a decent 18-year-old Mormon girl, and I've always wanted guys to notice me, but I never like one to hold my hand or try to kiss me. [It makes me sick to my stomach.] I am going with a very respectable 21-year-old GI and I really like him a lot, but I don't want any physical contact with him because one thing always leads to another and I don't want to end up fighting him off.

This guy will probably drop me if I don't let him kiss me pretty soon, which I guess is why I'm writing to you. I don't want to lose him. Am I normal? Don't tell me to talk to a doctor. I just couldn't. He would think I am nuts. I would be very grateful for any advice you can give me.

TOUCH-ME-NOT

DEAR TOUCH: It is normal to want to touch, kiss and embrace someone you like. For some reason you have denied and suppressed these normal feelings to such a degree that you won't permit yourself to feel them.

Discuss this with a doctor. He won't think you're "nuts." He will guide you in finding a counselor. When the reason for your "touch-me-not" attitude is unearthed, you'll have no problem.

DEAR ABBY: My husband says I dress like a missionary and look like an old lady because I think short skirts, skintight clothes and bare-bosom dresses look cheap on a woman my age. [I am 45. So is he.]

Stanley also is crazy about miniskirts, hotpants and boots, and that's what he would like to have wear. I positively refuse. He says I have only a few good years left, so I should take advantage of them and dress like a "broad." I don't want to dress like a "broad." I want to dress like a lady.

The arguments we have over how I should dress have become so unpleasant I would rather stay home. Abby, is there something wrong with my taste? Or is Stanley in the wrong? You always say a woman should try to please her husband, but I think he's unreasonable. Please help me.

NO BROAD

DEAR NO: I think your taste in clothes is far superior to your husband's, and he is unreasonable. Stick to your guns.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a professional artist who paints only from life. He considers it unethical to copy from pictures or photographs as some so-called artists do, and therefore if he wishes to paint a landscape he must be out-of-doors at the actual scene.

Far too often, passersby will stand around as he works, making comments to each other. It's almost as if they think he is putting on a public performance. I realize that many people don't mean to be rude or annoying. Some even imagine they are flattering the artist by watching him, when, in fact, they are distracting and inhibiting him.

These same people would never glance over a composer's musical score as he worked or look over an author's shoulder as he wrote. Why haven't they the same respect for an artist?

The problem is how to handle these people without being rude or insulting. Perhaps just publishing this letter will help.

ARTIST'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Perhaps, but artists who work out-of-doors should realize that the out-of-doors belongs to everyone, and passersby cannot be blamed for showing normal curiosity.

DEAR ABBY: I work for an eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist and we have a sign in our waiting room which says, "Feel Free to Smoke . . . and Make the Doctor Rich."

That is far more effective than a "No Smoking" sign.

NURSE

Insurance underwriters worry more about the man who never gets really drunk but still manages to imbibe a lot of alcohol every day than they do about the individual who takes good care of himself except for an occasional bender.

Similarly, the explosive bridge player who takes an occasional plunge does better than the man who likes to bid every time it is his turn, whether or not there is a valid reason.

West's two-diamond call is one of those pointless bids. He won't be hurt there but the bid is not going to do him any good and may really hurt him.

This time it did. South went right up with dummy's king of diamonds and led a trump. West took his ace and led a second diamond. East could ruff or not. It didn't matter. If he did ruff he would be ruffing a trick that declarer would have had to lose later.

Now, let's see what would have happened if West had not overcalled. When he led the queen of diamonds South might still have played dummy's king, but he might have let it come around to his ace. Then, when the second diamond was led East would get a chance to trump a winner, not a loser.

DETROIT (UPI)—Riders on an airport shuttle bus who ignored an old, wrinkled plastic bag on one of the seats are sorry now they failed to look inside.

The bag contained nearly $17,000.
It remained all day one Friday on a shuttle bus running between Detroit and Metropolitan Airport. At the end of the day, driver Roger Doering dumped it on the desk of the Greyhound ticket agent, saying "somebody left this garbage on my bus."
The Wayne County Sheriff's Department said they were searching for the owner.

The Baron cure

By JOANNE AND LEW KOCH

(Today's column is written by Lew Koch.)

This is certain to upset my brother-in-law and thousands, perhaps millions of other dog-lovers throughout the nation. As a boy, I always wanted a dog. After reading "Lassie Come Home" I wanted a collie; after reading "Rusty, A Cocker Spaniel," I wanted a cocker spaniel.

But I grew up in an apartment and my parents claimed it just wasn't fair to have a dog in such a small space. They also had the distinct feeling that after about two weeks, they, not I, would have to walk the dog.

When Joanne and I moved into our home, I casually mentioned the fact that a dog might make a valuable addition to our happy household—a watchdog for Joanne and the children and for me an animal to fetch the paper and sit at my feet, looking adoringly into my face.

Joanne informed me, rather firmly, that she was not interested in cleaning up dog refuse while she was still cleaning up kid refuse—or words to that effect.

A convincing argument, but I nevertheless continued to point out cute dogs when they appeared in television commercials, brave dogs when they rescued TV families from disaster.

For her part, Joanne commented on the rising cost of dog food, the canine overpopulation issue, and any incidents of rabies here or on the international scene.

Once someone abandoned a wet and frightened mutt in my car, but I had barely bought a leash and five pounds of food when Joanne was on the phone to the police, fearing that the dog might be mad. That night she admitted that one more hour of looking into those pitiful dark eyes and she would have relented and her dream of freedom from latrine duty would have been gone forever.

But now I'm the one who doesn't want a dog. You see, Joanne and I and the children went to stay in Florida with my brother-in-law, his wife, their two children, and their 150-pound Rottweiler named Baron.

Baron's tongue, which must weigh more than 30-pound Joshua, provided a warm damp welcome all over my new shirt and pants. Baron was very glad to see 118-pound Joanne, shoving her into a wall in his enthusiasm. For a moment, I thought he might consume 34-pound Rachel as an appetizer and follow it with a main course of 49-pound Lisa.

During our two-week visit to Florida, I became acquainted with Baron's likes and dislikes.

Baron liked salt. And if I came in sweaty from sitting in the sun, Baron made certain to lick off every drop of sweat he could locate, displaying no delicacy in the process.

Baron did not like to be alone—ever. With the perversity of a spoiled brat, Baron refused to leave the guest room, no matter how much we begged and pleaded. Not anxious to have a voyeur, or worse, in the room, I tried to push the massive fellow out the door.

But Baron did not like to be disliked. He was convinced that the best way to win my good favor was to be my constant, ubiquitous companion. Not until he had barked for 10 minutes at a higher than jet decibel level, bared his huge teeth several times, and aroused his resigned and loyal master, did I succeed in ridding myself of this friend.

After two weeks of what we now refer to as the Baron cure, I found I loved my brother-in-law, his wife and their two children. I did not love his dog.

I have stopped pointing out cute dogs to my wife when we watch television.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, JUNE 30

Your birthday today:

Opens one of the most diverse, interesting [as will be seen later] chapters of your life. You are thrust into unforeseen situations time and again until you can cope with almost anything without notice. Today's natives enjoy home life, often succeed under stringent conditions.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: All sorts of fresh beginnings are in progress, some of them tentative, all requiring discretion and great care.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: There's enough conflict to provide grit for any mill. Strive, to add nothing which would bring strife or rumor.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Stick with simple everyday routines. Getting others to do some of your work entails confusion—do it yourself.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Personal satisfaction comes to you despite a variety of incomplete details. Keep plans uncomplicated, with plenty of leeway.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Major problems are improbable, but keep business dealings for business days. Spend some time in or with organized sports.

Vargo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Your mind sharpens with interest in today's events. It's unlikely you'll ever forget what happens.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]:

Minding your own affairs becomes a delicate art. Altho you won't have a chance to relax, there's fun if you keep it light.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Intense rivalry is apt to develop over almost anything. Take the experience as an opportunity to learn the mechanics of your system.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Early incidents give this interesting day a good start. Keep things rolling—it's time for celebration.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Visitors bring tales and perhaps presents. Be at your tactful best, listen well in order to avoid dissonance.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Arise in serenity, attend personal projects early, before the crowd. You'll be happy you're prepared.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Right action and adequate results are promised—take advantage of transitory conditions favoring your creative talents.

The average woman worker is as well educated as the average man worker. Both women and men in the U.S. have completed a median of 12.4 years of schooling, according to Dr. Jennie C. Kitching, family life education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Private medicine is thriving on Britain's public health system

By TOM CULLEN
LONDON — (NEA) — While Americans debate whether to extend Medicare, in Britain, home of socialized medicine, more and more people are opting to pay for their medical care under private health insurance schemes.

The trend here is seen as a black eye for Britain's National Health Service, which celebrates its 25th birthday in July, and which is currently costing the taxpayer $6.2 billion a year.

The private sector stresses that it is not competing with socialized medicine, but merely supplementing what the state provides. Nevertheless, membership in private health services is booming.

The largest of these, the British United Provident Association (BUPA), now has 800,000 members on its books, which means that it covers two million people when members' families are taken into account.

Not all of BUPA's members are company executives. "With the affluent society ordinary working people now find that they can afford the best in medicine as well as color television and holidays on the continent," Mrs. Mary Adams, a BUPA executive, explained.

SHOWBEAT

Who's splitting in Bacharach idyll?

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (NEA) — Rumors that Burt Bacharach and his wife, Angie Dickinson, are splitting up are, I'm told by their friends, unfounded. Maybe the rumors started because of the split between Burt and his song-writing partner, Hal David, and perhaps people figured it was the season for Burt to do some wholesale splitting.

The Bacharach-David divorce may be only temporary.

WHEN THESE BRITONS lined up for free medicine under the fledgling National Health Service in 1948, it was hoped to provide free, adequate and equal health service for all. But today many believe NHS is inadequate and they are turning back to private health care.

The advantages private medicine has to offer are obvious. For example, a private patient who is hospitalized can choose his own consultant rather than take pot-luck with a National Health Service doctor.

More important, the private patient can jump the line for a hospital bed. Currently the NHS has a waiting list of 500,000 patients for hospital beds, 80 per cent of whom require some form of surgery.

An NHS patient stands a 1 in 16 chance of being admitted to one of London's teaching hospitals, which are the pampered darlings of state medicine. But a private patient's chances are 1 in 3. (Under the original National Health Act one per cent of the beds in State-owned hospitals are set aside for private patients.)

A free, adequate, and equal health service for all was the high — some would say utopian — goal set by the National Health Service, which began operations in July, 1948.

After a quarter of a century the NHS remains free, aside from minor charges for drug prescriptions, spectacles and dentures. Its services, however, are not adequate in the opinion of many.

An example is the acute shortage of doctors, there being fewer general practitioners today than there were 10 years ago to care for a greater population.

The reason for this is that the government made a colossal blunder in 1955 when it ordered a 10 per cent cut in the intake of medical schools. The government was basing itself on a faulty population projection which showed a population increase of only 4.5 per cent between 1955 and 1971. In reality it grew by almost twice as much.

The result is that today the percentage of NHS patients who live in "under-doctored" areas has doubled from 17 per cent to 35 per cent. The doctors themselves, many of whom carry a case-load of 3,500 patients, are over-worked, have turned into mere pill-pushers in many cases.

In George Orwell's "Animal Farm" the Seventh Commandment, "All animals are equal," was changed to read, "All animals are equal, but some are more equal than others."

This could well be the motto of the National Health Service, which tends to perpetuate old social and economic inequalities.

The mental and geriatric hospitals, for example, are the Cinderellas of the NHS. Here patients usually get less medical attention, worse food, and live in more miserable conditions than other types of cases.

In 1971-72 the average weekly expenditure on food in psychiatric hospitals was $8.50 per patient whereas other hospitals spent double that amount, and London teaching hospitals spent three times as much.

When the NHS came into being in 1948, none of the private health insurance schemes

BUT NONE HIT Egypt Fires Missiles At Israeli Warplanes

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Egypt fired several surface-to-air missiles at Israeli warplanes flying a routine patrol over the western end of the occupied Sinai Peninsula Thursday, the Israeli military command said. None of the planes was hit and all returned safely to base, a command communiqué said. The command said "a number of ground-to-air missiles" were fired at the planes at 3:10 p.m. (6:10 a.m. CDT) while the aircraft were on a routine flight east of the Suez Canal. It marked the first reported incident of a missile firing on the Suez Canal front since Oct. 10 when Egypt fired three or four SAMs at Israeli planes patrolling nine miles east of the canal. No damage was reported and there was no retaliation. It was the first reported incident between Israel and Egypt since Feb. 15 when the command said its planes shot down an Egyptian MIG21 south of the canal.

Burt Bacharach Angie Dickinson Hal David

I hear. The background is simply that Hal, the lyricist half, felt left out when Burt went off on his concert tours and all his other non-song-writing endeavors.

Hal does nothing except write songs. Burt does much more. Hal had nothing to do when Burt was off on tour. So the separation between the two was not because of any deep-seated dislike, merely a question of logistics. They are going to talk of a way to resolve that question. Hopefully, they'll be working together again before too long.

When I dropped in to visit Jacqueline Susann, on her promotional trip here to push her new book, "One Is Not Enough," I found her with Doris Day.

It may seem like a strange friendship — the author who writes sexy books and the girl who is the symbol of next-door virtues like goodness and purity and ice cream sodas — but they are good and close friends.

It all started, Jackie says, because of their mutual love of animals. Then they discovered that they just plain liked each other a lot, so they've become buddies.

Neile Adams, the former Mrs. Steve McQueen, will marry a young actor named David Ross, probably next October.

There's no question about this being true love. It figures it has to be, based on economics. The minute Neile becomes Mrs. Anybody, she gives up the $6,000-a-month alimony she's getting as Steve's ex-wife.

Twiggie is a big fan of the far-out rock singer, David Bowie. She says that his passion for make-up is really nothing new.

"I have friends," Twiggie says, "who knew him long ago, when he was just a schoolboy. And he always dressed that way then, and wore make-up, mascara and everything. His school masters used to send him home regularly."

Actually, I think his make-up is lovely. I wish I could do that well. He has a Parisian make-up artist who travels with him and does it.

Michael Caine says he was surprised at the appeal his "Sleuth" had for children.

"I had a very intelligent conversation," Caine says, "with an 11-year-old about the film."

Schlesinger Wins Confirmation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — James R. Schlesinger won Senate confirmation as secretary of Defense Thursday, the fourth man in six months to head the Pentagon as part of a post-Watergate reshuffling of top government personnel.

President Nixon nominated him for the job May 10 after Schlesinger served for six months as director of the Central Intelligence Agency. The Senate gave its approval after Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., withdrew his objections to the 44-year-old former university professor.

Proxmire had held up action on the nomination because Schlesinger had testified during confirmation hearings by the Senate Armed Services Committee that he supported U.S. bombing of Cambodia and that he would not hesitate to recommend renewal of air strikes in North and South Vietnam as well as Laos in the event of a major Communist violation of January's cease-fire accords.

Nixon turned to Schlesinger, a recognized expert on weapons systems, 10 days after he announced that he was shifting Elliot L. Richardson from the Pentagon to attorney general to take charge of the Justice Department's Watergate investigation.

Richardson replaced Melvin R. Laird as head of the Defense Department.

Washington (UPI) — The Nixon administration kept a list of about 200 political "enemies" — including actors, journalists, professors, businessmen and senators — and John W. Dean III drew up a plan to give some of them a "hard time," Dean testified this week.

The ousted presidential counsel gave the Senate Watergate Committee a copy of an Aug. 16, 1971, memorandum he said he wrote, marked "confidential" and entitled: "Dealing with our Political Enemies."

"This memorandum," the document began, "addresses the matter of how we can maximize the fact of our incumbency in dealing with persons known to be active in their opposition to our administration. Stated a bit more bluntly—how we can use the available federal machinery to screw our political enemies."

Among those "enemies" the administration was urged to give priority to were United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, actor Paul Newman and CBS correspondent Daniel Schorr.

Dean Reveals List Of Enemies

Steps Outlined

Most of those included on the list of 200 said they were honored to see their names there. At least two journalists said it was comparable to winning a Pulitzer prize. Some figures were amused and others were angry that the power of government should be used to compile such a list.

Dean outlined these three proposed steps for dealing with the "enemies":

—Staff members "should be requested to inform us as to who they feel we should be giving a hard time."

—The project coordinator should then determine what sorts of dealings these individuals have with the federal government and how we can best screw them (e.g. grant availability, federal contracts, litigation, prosecution, etc.).

—The project coordinator then should have access to and the full support of the top officials of the agency or department in proceeding to deal with the individual.

Dean's memo made clear that his plan did not contemplate creating federal troubles for run of the mill "enemies" such as those on the list of 200, who included such celebrities as New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, comedian Dick Gregory, Alabama Gov. George Wallace, and New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath.

20 Names Picked

"I would recommend that we develop a small list of names—not more than ten—as our targets for concentration," he wrote.

A month later, on Sept. 14, 1971, Dean addressed a memo to White House aide Larry Higby on "persons who have both the desire and capability of harming us." With it—and also turned over to the committee—was a list of 20 names described as "worthwhile for go status."

Dean said the 20 names had been picked by White House aide Charles W. Colson. Colson later issued a statement denying this.

It was not clear from Dean's testimony what the list of 200, which he said was added to and subtracted from occasionally, was for. He said it mostly sat in his files. Colson said there was nothing "unusual" about it.

"The purpose was very simple and straightforward," Colson said. "To keep the social office, the personnel office, the press office, the counsel's office and other offices in the White House apprised of persons who had been particularly critical of the President. The information was primarily for consideration as names were proposed for invitations to White House social events or appointments to federal boards and commissions."

Picker No. 1

The 20 names were ranked in "priority order" and contained a pungent comment about each.

No. 1 was Arnold M. Picker of United Artists Corp.—"Top Muskie fundraiser. Success here could be both debilitating and very embarrassing to the Muskie machine."

Others were:

—Ed Guthman, managing editor of the Los Angeles Times — "a highly sophisticated hater against us in '68."

—Maxwell Dane, of Doyle, Dane and Bernbach of New York.

York—"The top Democratic advertising firm — they destroyed Goldwater in '64. They should be hit hard starting with Dane."

—Leonard Woodcock, president of the Unites Auto Workers — "No comments necessary."

—Sidney Davidoff, aide to New York Mayor Lindsay — "A first class S.O.B."

—Daniel Schorr, CBS correspondent — "A real media enemy."

—Paul Newman, actor — "Radio-lib causes."

—Mary McGrovy, syndicated columnist for the Washington Evening Star-News — "Daily hate Nixon articles."

NEWS! This i thousan

Television In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Some well-known show business performers are making television news in unexpected ways these days.

First there is Danny Kaye. On July 9, he'll turn commentator for a baseball game on NBC-TV. This is part of the network's current moves to add spice to its Monday night major league contests.

Before this season's Monday games began, NBC-TV made known that it would have celebrities as guest commentators. The idea propagated was that visiting personalities from show business and other fields would heighten video audience interest.

Actually, the games are handled very capably in all areas by the regular sportscasters whom the guest parties join.

The First Entertainer
And, in fact, Kaye is the first show business entertainer to be a visiting baseball sportscaster under the new plan. He is a long-time fan.

This Monday another sportscaster, Mel Allen, the voice of the New York Yankees for many years, will be the guest.

Another performer making unexpected television news is Gardner McKay, an actor who burst upon the show business scene some years ago with tremendous publicity as a potential matinee idol. He did, in fact, become well known.

And now it is announced that a play he has written will be broadcast on the non-commercial Video network this coming season.

He also will direct the play, which is entitled "Me," and which, according to a press release, "deals with the effect of a mentally retarded boy on other members of his family."

The play will be a production of the non-commercial network's series of often-notable presentations, "Hollywood Television Theatre."

Yet another performer in a unique television position these days is Bob Newhart, star of his own situation comedy series on CBS-TV.

Series Skyrockets
The series has been doing well in the ratings all along, but in recent weeks it has skyrocketed. In the 70-market ratings for the week ending June 10, it came in No. 1. And then for the week ending June 17, the 70-market survey placed it in the top spot again.

CBS-TV's "All In The Family," for a lengthy time video's top rated series, dropped to 18th place in the same survey for the period ending June 10, but it bounced back to second position in the seven-day span through June 17.

"All In The Family" had slipped for some weeks in the 70-city ratings until it rebounded in the June 17 rankings.

However, in the major national statistics for the two weeks ending May 27, it was still the No. 1 series, with only the Emmy Awards show and the Miss U.S.A. Pageant finishing ahead of it.

The 70-market June 17 statistics, by the way, ranked ABC-TV's new summer comedy series "Love Thy Neighbor," about a black couple and white couple whose houses are next to each other, as the No. 4 show.

"Love Thy Neighbor," a weekly half-hour entry, trailed only Newhart, "All In The Family" and the Mary Tyler Moore series.

CHARGES DISMISSED
LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Charges of resisting arrest and hitting a policeman have been dismissed against Los Angeles Rams linebacker Isaiah Robertson, according to court records.

Attorney Edward Masry said Robertson pleaded innocent and that on June 14 agreement was reached to dismiss the case in West Orange County Municipal Court after "lack of intent to commit harm" was shown.

Robertson was arrested May 19 after police were called to break up a fight at a party in Huntington Beach.

WORRY CLINIC

Lucy's mother shows the change in sexual outlook that has occurred, due to the pioneering by hundreds of progressive newspapers that have been running this column. Discreetly, I used euphemisms, like "boudoir cheesecake" and not vulgar terminology.

show that "Newspaper Counseling" prevents divorce, school dropouts and many other vital problems of human beings.

When I launched this advisory column 38 years ago, you young adults can't imagine the prudery that existed.

Why, some papers wouldn't even print the phrase "opposite sex" for the little word "sex" was considered taboo!

In 1942, even the bold, brave Chicago Tribune censored my quiz column, called "Test Your Horse Sense," because I had used this 4-answer question:

"Which ailment is never inherited? Epilepsy - Syphilis - Deafness - Diabetes"

The Tribune editor insisted on my deleting "Syphilis" and inserting "Venereal."

Yet the Tribune had boasted on Page One of bringing the word "Syphilis" out into the open so physicians could curb that dangerous disease.

Despite the fact that many older readers claimed I was a "Sexologist" and threatened to cancel their newspaper subscriptions, I was using discreet medical terms and euphemisms, such as "boudoir cheesecake" and "erotic calories."

Never did I employ lewd 4-letter words or indulge in the vulgarity now appearing on magazine covers and the stage or TV screen!

But all through the past 38 years, I have been described as the "American Dr. Freud."

Yet I have meanwhile stopped an untold number of divorces by merely explaining the very different erotic hungers of male vs. female.

And I have shown that God Almighty endowed man with both a vastly greater gastric appetite as well as erotic hunger.

Send for my booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped return envelope, plus 25 cents, and see how the newspapers pioneered sane Marriage Counseling.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, 1500 N. Hobart, Indiana 47918. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

The Malling of America With liberty and shopping centers for all Shopping centers have changed old store-consumer relationships.

By MARTY RALBOVSKY
(Last of Three Parts)

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It is no coincidence, perhaps, that the tallest building on the planet earth is the Sears Tower in Chicago. Ever since the company jettisoned Mr. Roebuck from its masthead, and de-emphasized mail-order catalogues in favor of charge plates, Sears stores have not only altered skylines in cities such as Chicago, but they have helped to create skylines in numerous suburbs from Newton, Mass., to La Jolla, Calif.

The Sears company, and many others, stopped waiting for consumers to come into their stores; they have taken their stores to the consumers — in some cases, the stores actually begin where back yards leave off.

Now, one does not have to visit Fifth Avenue in New York City to acquire a Sak's label; Mack's and Gimbels have taken their bargain basements out to Syosset and Swampscott and, down in Fort Lauderdale, one can go to a shopping center and dine in a Patricia Murphy's Candlelight Restaurant. The Boston Store has left Boston for greater environs, and even Brooks Brothers has been testing the suburban waters with its three-piece tweed suits and its $50 V-necked pullover sweaters.

The largest building in the city of Pittsfield, Mass., is now a Hilton Hotel, which rises out from the middle of a shopping center. On the west side of Cleveland, the houses that were built in Parma had barely settled into their foundations when a shopping center called Parmatown — with over 100 stores — went up. In central Florida, shopping centers are currently being constructed at breakneck paces to accommodate the needs of the thousands of tourists who will visit the Walt Disney World in Orlando.

Even in rustic, old Bennington, Vt., 300 feet from the Grandma Moses Museum, there is a shopping center.

The malling of America has created some new intrigue in the old company-consumer relationship. For example:

"This sales-tax thing is a nightmare," said a dark-haired girl who worked behind a cash register at Macy's in the Glenside Center near Albany, N.Y. "On Friday nights and Saturday afternoons, the lines are 40 people deep. I have enough trouble tabulating the prices. People get edgy, waiting in line, they start hollering. 'Hurry up, hurry up, get moving.'"

"By the time I get to the sales tax, I don't know what I'm doing half of the time. Sometimes I just guess. You know, you overcharge somebody a nickel on an item and they'll be back, mad as hell. But you overcharge them a couple dollars on the sales tax, and they don't even know the difference. It's going on at all the stores, with all the girls I know."

At a Walden-book store in the Willowbrook Plaza in Wayne, N.J., a salesman said: "People really know how to use us. We get some people in here, they come in on Fridays and they buy a best-selling book, 'The Best and the Brightest,' say, for $11. They always make sure they tell us they're buying it for a gift. So what happens? They come back on Monday and return the book and ask for their money back. They say the person they bought it for already has it. But you know what they're doing? They're buying the book, reading it over the weekend, and returning it on Monday for a full refund. That means they can read every damn book on the best-seller list and not pay a dime for any of them."

At the Grand Central Shopping Plaza in Stamford, Conn., a salesgirl at the perfume counter of Bamberger's said: "Five out of ten women who walk past the counter will stop, pick up some expensive brand of perfume, and look around to see if somebody's watching them. Then they squirt themselves with the perfume, put the bottle down, and keep on going. So we decided to stop fighting it; we've put out samplers on the counters and we let them use all they want."

The assistant manager of the men's clothing department at Sears in the Southport Shopping Center in Fort Lauderdale, said: "The biggest theft items in this store are jock straps. Young guys come in, put them into their pockets, and walk out. I don't know why they want jock straps so much, but they do. Funny, but you take the candy counter, people go over there, take a chocolate bar, or something, and they always seem to leave money on the counter. The salesgirl gets called away for a minute and, when she gets back, the counter is filled with nickels and dimes and quarters. She never has to worry about people stealing candy. But me, I've got to stand around all day watching jock straps."

Sometimes, both the shopping centers and shoppers get hustled at the same time — in the name of the Ringling Brothers, or good government, or the great outdoors. For instance:

The Nanuet, N.Y., Mall, 35 miles northwest of Manhattan, has become — as most shopping centers have — a showcase for indoor exhibits. The exhibits have nothing to do with the stores. They just occupy mall space in the hope of catching the consumers' attention. One week, the mall may be filled with camping equipment, put on display by companies which manufacture camper-trailers; the next week might be "Circus Week," and shoppers would be greeted by clowns and other performers from a visiting circus. Recently, at the Nanuet Mall, there was a "Government Week." A security policeman, who patrolled the exhibits, described them:

"All the local government agencies had exhibits. There was a boat in here from the river patrol; the building inspectors had jars of termites, the sewage disposal people had a couple live rats in cages, the hospital people drove an ambulance in here. But the worst thing of all was this display by the county health department. It was supposed to show what polluted air does to your lungs. They had one set of lungs that were healthy-looking, mounted, behind glass. They had another set that were bad, and a third set that were cancerous."

"Now, when I looked at the cancerous lung, I got sick to my stomach. I walked away. So what happens a couple minutes later? These two kids come running by me, and one of them says to the other, 'Hey, this way; let's go see the cancerous lung.' I nearly quit, and went home."

SHEFFIELD, England (UPI) — The residents of Cliffe Field Road, who have been trying for 30 years to get their street paved, finally got the application approved and the work completed.

Black Honor Hall Enshrines 38 Men

NEW YORK (UPI)—"This is not a form of separatism," said Allan Barrow, publisher of Black Sports magazine, in announcing the formation of the Black Hall of Fame, which on Thursday inducted its first 38 members ranging from 80-year-old Fritz Pollard to 26-year-old Bob Beamon.

The prime concept of the formation of this Hall of Fame is to attempt to insure the continuity of success and glory that the black athlete has brought to America and black Americans to the total society.

Pollard, the All America running back from Brown University in 1916, broke down in tears after receiving the loudest ovation of all. "I'm just grateful to still be alive to receive this honor," said the wet-eyed Pollard.

Chances Excellent For Bill Passage

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Marlowe Cook, R-Ky., believes the chances are excellent that the Senate will pass legislation intended to halt the decades-long feud between the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and the American Athletic Union (AAU).

Cook and four other senators joined in sponsoring a bill that would set up a board that would charter a single organization as the governing body in each sport for international competition.

2nd Choice Signs

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI)—Seventeen-year-old Richard Shubert, No. 2 draft choice of the Texas Rangers, signed a contract Thursday.

Shubert, 17, of Astoria, N.Y., is a left-handed pitcher like No. 1 draft choice David Clyde. Shubert had a 27-4 record in three years of high school and last year struck out 222 batters in 119 innings.

Dick Allen Injured

By United Press International
An injury to Dick Allen—a hairline fracture of his left leg—Thursday night, dented Chicago's 2-0 victory over California.

The win knocked the Angels out of first place in the American League West and enabled the Oakland A's to take over the top spot.

Allen was trying to snare Bill Melton's overthrown at first base in the sixth inning when Epstein, a 6-foot-4, 225-pounder, collided with him. He stayed in the game until the end of the inning and then was taken to a hospital.

Dr. Jules Rasinski, the California Angels' team doctor, said he suffered a hairline fracture of his left fibula. "The healing process will take from one to four weeks," the doctor said.

Manager Chuck Tanner said, "We'll just have to hang tough but I think he can come back

Palmer, Two Others Share Western Lead

CHICAGO (UPI)—It was a tough day on the greens for the pros in the first round of the $175,000 Western Open and it's not likely to get better.

"I don't see how the greens can get any better," said J. C. Snead, one of the most explicit in his condemnation of the rough greens as he wound up a stroke off the pace of frontrunners Arnold Palmer, Bruce Crampton and Rik Massengale.

The only consolation Snead could find was that he will play in the morning today since he played in the afternoon Thursday. "They should be better in the morning," he said.

Hale Irwin, who was tied with Snead and Billy Casper at 67, only one stroke off the lead, agreed with the analysis of the greens.

"You can't be guaranteed a one-footer will go in," he said. "These are very unpredictable surfaces to putt on."

Palmer, Crampton and Massengale shot five-under-par 66's to share the first-round lead as 36 of the 143 players who turned in scores bettered par with 21 more at par.

Three dozen players were within four shots off the lead going into the second round.

Palmer and Irwin also play in the morning today. Massengale, Crampton and Casper have afternoon tee-offs after half the field has had a chance to scar the greens with the marks of heels, spikes and balls.

Crampton's longest putts Thursday were 15-footers for birdies while Massengale edged out one from 30 and another from 20 feet. Palmer's longest putt was 35 feet.

The field will be cut to the low 70 and ties after today's round. There will be network TV for an hour Saturday for the third-round windup and two hours for the Sunday finish.

SNEAD TELLS HOW TO PLAY UPHILL LIES

Many golfers have trouble playing golf shots from uphill lies. Sam Snead, the ancient mountaineer and master golfer, explains how he plays these shots.

"I take my usual stance, then bend my left knee so my hips and shoulders are near normal when I address the ball. Balance is very important, so I lean my weight slightly to the left, into the hill. I play the ball farther forward than usual because I know I'll catch the ball on the upswing.

"Usually I use a straighter-faced club than the distance would normally call for because shots from uphill lies tend to go high in the air. Many golfers tend to hook from an uphill lie. If this is your problem, simply aim a little right of target.

Rebels Host Borger In Crucial Contest

The Pampa Rebels host the Borger American Legion baseball team tonight at 8 o'clock at Optimist Park in a crucial District 18 zone game for each squad.

The Rebels are 3-1 in district play, having lost to Borger 9-2 earlier this month. Borger, however, has lost two games to Dumas in loop action.

Should the Rebels win tonight, they can split their two games with Dumas next week and finish second in the district's north zone. That would enable the team to go to the district tourney.

If Borger wins tonight, the Rebels will have to beat Dumas

Ambush Avoided Young Girls Lined Up For Swede Bjorn Borg

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—Around Court 4 at the Wimbledon tennis championships, separated only by a waist-high canvas from the playing surface, scores of school-age girls had taken up stations Thursday. Scores were patrolling all the possible routes from dressing rooms to the court.

They were waiting for Sweden's 17-year-old Bjorn Borg to make his appearance. But in the referee's room a historic decision was being taken.

Matches have been switched from one court to another practically since the famous tournament started 96 years ago. But never for the reason of possible danger to the life and limb of a player. And no one who has seen the teenyboppers in action here has any doubt Borg ran the risk of affectionate injury from his overstimulated fans.

So to squeals of disappointment, Borg's late evening doubles match Thursday was switched from Court 4 to fully enclosed Court 1 where admission is by ticket only, except for a few standing room places.

Even then officials had to smuggle him onto the court via a catwalk from the dressing room to avoid an ambush of young girls.

Earlier in the day Borg, the sixth-seed, made his fans deliriously happy by beating powerful Karl Meiler of Germany in an amazingly adult fashion for a teen-ager, 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 2-6, 6-3. They cheered and shouted encouragement even when Meiler made errors and when the German slipped and lost a vital game in the final set he raised his racket to the crowd in a gesture more familiar in Italy.

BOROS EXPLAINS WHY PIVOT IS IMPORTANT TO GOLF SWING

Despite his hefty build, Julius Boros has one of the finest pivots, or body turns in golf. Boros explains why this body turn is so important to a good golf swing:

"The body should turn naturally in response to the movement of the arms and hands swinging the club to the top. This keeps the club on the proper swing path and puts it in position to deliver a square hit to the ball.

"Many golfers pivot improperly because they jerk away the club too quickly at the start of the swing and break the wrists too early. This causes you to lose control of the club. This can be cured by swinging the club back with the hands, arms and shoulders moving in unison. Remember, you swing the club; you don't lift it," Boros advises.

U.S. Dominant

TORONTO (UPI)—The United States, as expected, dominated the second Pacific Conference Games by sweeping 20 of 32 available gold medals.

But runners from Canada, Australia and New Zealand managed notable victories in long-distance races on the last night of the two-day, five nation track and field meet.

In the final evening of events at Etobicoke Centennial Stadium, U.S. men took gold in the 400 meters, 100 meters, 400 meters relay, discus, pole vault, long jump and 110 meters hurdles.

Attendance Slumps

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI)—The attendance at Arlington Stadium slumped off a little Thursday night.

It slumped 31,706 to be exact. The Rangers had drawn their first capacity crowd ever on Wednesday night—35,698—to watch the major league pitching debut of David Clyde.

But on Thursday night the crowd all but took the night off with 3,992 showing up to watch the Rangers lose to the Minnesota Twins 4-0.

The fickle fans were apparently awaiting for Clyde's next appearance, scheduled for Monday night against the Chicago White Sox. More than 5,000 tickets were sold for that game during business hours Thursday at Arlington Stadium.

Horse To Practice

CHICAGO (UPI)—Superhorse Secretariat will sample the dirt track at Arlington Park early today, his only test of the surface on which he'll face three lesser rivals in a $125,000 invitational race Saturday.

Team Will Stay

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The San Diego Conquistadors will remain in San Diego and play next season at the 3,400-seat Community Concourse.

American Basketball Association trustees voted, 6-3, Thursday to allow the squad to remain here.

San Francisco's first cable car had its trial run on Aug. 1, 1873.

Former football coach Duffy Daugherty is on a sabbatical from Michigan State University and enjoying golf in such places as Marco Island, Fla., and Hawaii.

Religious Heritage Awards Announced

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Humanitarian service and religious commitment, to the community and to the nation, can begin in a converted store in Detroit, Michigan or originate in an executive office in Beverly Hills, California.

The nine Americans who received the Religious Heritage of America major awards for 1973 come from all parts of the country and from various economic levels. They have in common one great bond — their significant contributions to mankind in the furtherance of brotherhood, religious tolerance, and the upholding of the highest principles of this nation's religious heritage.

The awardees, honored at ceremonies June 7 in Washington, D.C. are:

CONRAD HILTON, Chairman, Hilton Hotels Corporation, who will be honored as Lay Churchman of the Year. Long recognized as a business leader, Mr. Hilton has served his country often and well. He is founder, director, or trustee of more than one hundred charitable organizations.

DR. BILL BRIGHT will receive a Special Award and MRS. VONETTE BRIGHT has been designated Churchwoman of the Year. These awards are being given for their work in founding and developing Campus Crusade for Christ International. Campus Crusade, an interdenominational Christian movement, has aroused the enthusiasm and dedication of young people on high school and college campuses throughout the nation and sponsored the successful youth rally, Expto 72, where over 80,000 gather in Dallas, Texas.

DR. PRESTON BRADLEY, founder, and Senior Pastor of the Peoples Church of Chicago for over 60 years, will be honored with the RHA Gold Medal Award for over 50 years of active ministry. Dr. Bradley is not only the leader of his flock but is recognized as the civic and moral conscience of the Midwest.

MOTHER CHARLESZETTA WADDLES will receive a Special Award as originator and administrator of the Perpetual Mission for All Nations, in Detroit. The Mission, taking no foundation or government funds, relies entirely on volunteer aid and contributions to help feed, clothe, educate and care for all those who come seeking aid. A special facet of this unique ministry is the

Excerpts from Pat Boone's Testimony:

What was holding me? I had seen my own wife, Shirley, transformed from a frustrated and confused woman to a beautiful Christian person — radiating love, peace and joy. I heard her praying in tongues saying "Ave Dis" (praise God) and "Deum Amamus" (We love you God). Never having learned Latin, she did not even know what she was saying. I understood the language and I knew it was the Holy Spirit in control of her faculties.

In New York's Manhattan Church of Christ a young man said he had prayed in "Tongues." Another young man said "You couldn't have. It is not scriptural." I objected "How can you tell someone what he has or has not experienced, if you were not in his skin at the time. You may tell him what you THINK the Bible teaches but to judge another person's religious experience is always presumptuous. The Apostle Paul found this to be true! I had not yet received the Holy Spirit myself but I wanted to be fair. About this same time I was meeting many men and women who had discovered this exciting relationship with God. I could just see and feel "They had been with Jesus." I couldn't help but contrast them to so many other Christians I knew who were FAITHFUL YET POWERLESS, so sure they were right, but with little else to share with a drowning world.

All of my traditional ideas began to melt away before Jesus' simple question, "If you — being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more shall your Heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask him?" (Luke 11:13)

I wanted the Holy Spirit even if it meant my career, reputation, church standing or financial security. One evening in January of 1969 I went to the home of George Otis. We searched the scriptures concerning the Baptism in the Holy Spirit. In Matthew 14 we saw how Peter responded when he saw Jesus walking on the water. Peter wanted to go to Jesus but to get there, he needed the "GIFT" of being able to walk on water, and he asked Jesus for it. Jesus said one word — "COME." Here was the PROMISE, the RIGHT, the AUTHORITY. Peter didn't wait for some overwhelming power to pick him up and take him to Jesus. He threw his legs over the side of the boat and found himself actually walking on the water, toward Jesus. Right then I left "My Boat" — everything I had believed and trusted in to go to Jesus. I prayed "O, Father, this is it. I give up. Take my life Lord and make me whatever you want me to be. Baptize me now in thy Holy Spirit!"

Even as I prayed I began to sense the Lord's presence in a remarkable way. How can I describe something so graceful, so beautiful? I hardly recognized my voice as being my own. A warmth and assurance filled me.

The gift of the Holy Spirit is for every believer in Christ, for YOU.

A member of the Van Nuys Foursquare Church, Pat Boone tells crowd, "I've been known for years as 'Square'. I am happy to be known now as 'Foursquare'!"

Church Sets 'Shirtsleeve' Services

First Presbyterian Church will worship Sunday at 8:30 and 10:45.

Church School for all ages will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.

At the 8:30 a.m. "Shirtsleeves Service," Miss Jane McCauslin will sing "Pass It On," a contemporary Gospel hymn accompanied by the guitar. The "Shirtsleeves Service" is an informal, contemporary service where participants in worship are encouraged to dress comfortably and join the congregation for doughnuts, coffee and fruit juice after the service in Calvin Hall.

Miss Gail Duncan will assist in worship at the early service.

The Rev. Martin Hager, pastor of the Church, will preach at both services on the subject "The Dream of Marriage" using the Gospel of John's account of the Marriage at Cana.

Ruling Elder Charles Fuller will assist at the late service.

The summer-long recreation program for all age groups will continue throughout the coming week. Any questions about the program can be answered by Lynn Lunsford, summer work director, 669-2112.

Rev. Burns Resigns From Local Church

The Rev. A.E. Burns, pastor, Highland Baptist Church, ends a two and a half years ministry to that congregation July 8.

Rev. Burns tendered his resignation to the church in the mid-week service Wednesday night.

He has accepted the pastorate of the Klondike Baptist Church located in a rural setting south of Lamesa.

"The area served by Klondike Baptist Church is an unusual rural area and offers a challenge to a different type of ministry than that required by an urban congregation," Rev. Burns said.

Mrs. Burns, wife of the pastor, praised the people of Pampa highly and expressed regret at their departure. In addition to working with her husband in Highland Church, she has been one of the prominent music teachers in the city.

The tenure at Highland Baptist Church was the third for Rev. Burns in the immediate area. Several years ago, he pastored Barrett Baptist Church in Pampa. Later, he returned to the Panhandle as pastor of First Baptist Church, White Deer. Then, some time after leaving the church, he accepted the ministry at Highland Baptist.

He will fill the pulpit the first two Sundays in July before leaving for his new field.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

Fellowship Baptist Church

Rev. EARL MADDUX

"BEHOLD THE LAMB OF GOD!"
We now have the freedom to witness for Christ, but it may be taken from us, and so we must be careful to use it aright. May we not ask, as witnesses for Christ, what is our one aim, what is the heart of our message, the one indispensable truth which we must press home? What is our distinctive, supreme, compelling message to the non-Christian world? Is it not expressed in the words of John the Baptist, that voice crying in the wilderness had one message: "Behold the Lamb of God!"

John's freedom to witness for Christ was soon taken from Herod's cruel sword did its work; but while John had freedom, he put first things first. It was in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar: Pontius Pilate was governor of Judea; Herod ruled Galilee; Philip and Lysias had their tetrarchies. Annas and Caiaphas controlled the temple worship and the daily sacrifice. The Roman world was in revolution. There were many sects and parties and philosophies, but they held out no living hope. Therefore the word of God came to John in the desert, and what he heard he cried: "Behold the Lamb of God!"

The words, Lamb of God as a title of our Saviour, occur twice in the Gospel of John and once in Peter's First Epistle. But John uses the same title, although the word for Lamb, is in diminutive form (a little lamb) in the Book of Revelation, no less than twenty-eight times. A study of these passages will help us to understand how much this title meant to him, who leaned on Jesus' bosom and knew the secret of His redeeming love perhaps better than any of the twelve apostles.

It is in the witness of John the Baptist to the Christ that mention is first made of Jesus in these words: "On the morrow he seeth Jesus coming unto him and saith, Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." The next day again, at Bathabara or Bethany beyond Jordan, "John was standing with two of his disciples and he looked upon Jesus as he walked and saith, Behold the Lamb of God!"

Peter does not use this title directly, but in speaking of our redemption from sin, he says it was not with corruptible silver or gold; but with precious blood as of a Lamb without blemish and without spot, even the blood of Christ.

In the vision of John on Patmos, we are suddenly introduced to the Lion of the tribe of Judah, who is also the Lamb of God. Rev. 5:6. "And I saw in the midst of the throne and of the four living creatures and in the midst of the elders a Lamb standing as though it had been slain." The four and twenty elders fall down before this Lamb v. 8 and sing a new song which ten thousand times ten thousand voices join: "Worthy is the Lamb that hath been slain to receive the power and riches and wisdom and might and honour and glory and blessing." All creation joins in the antiphonal response of glory to the Lamb.

Then we read that the Lamb opens one of the seven seals and God's judgment follows in swift succession, until men cry in terror, asking the very mountains to fall on them and hide them from the wrath of the Lamb 6:16. But the redeemed, and innumerable multitude, stands before the throne and before the Lamb arrayed in white and sing His praise: for the Lamb in the midst of the throne is their Shepherd and God wipes away every tear 7:10-17.

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Seeds Of Police State?

It was a minor incident and no far-reaching conclusions should be drawn from the unfortunate experience of a demonstrator during a presidential visit to Pampa, Ill., the other day.

First, police and Secret Service agents made the man take his "Impeach Nixon" sign off its pole, then ordered him to remove it from its plywood backing.

When he gave them an argument, they arrested him and, according to a wire service report, hustled him around a corner where an officer clamped metal keys over his mouth, jerking his head back and forcing him to his knees.

Then he was handcuffed.

If it was a case of "police brutality," or just the use of somewhat more physical force than might have been necessary, it is not the first time it has happened in this country, or anywhere else, and won't be the last.

And after all, presidents have been known to be assassinated during public appearances.

Even if we grant this, however, and even if we dismiss the demonstrator as some sort of kook or a troublemaker, there was also the unpleasant sight of a policeman with a rifle shouting from the top of a nearby building: "No pictures!"

What would he have done if some news photographer had taken a picture—shot him? Yes, the demonstrator in Peking may have been a kook, just as drug pushers may be "the very vermin of humanity," as Myles J. Ambrose, a federal drug abuse official, said recently in defense of lawmen who had mistakenly broken into homes of innocent citizens and terrorized them on more than one occasion.

But we could do worse than recall a statement attributed to an anti-Nazi martyr whose name at one time was well-known in America: "In Germany they first came for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me — and by that time no one was left to speak up."

User Charge vs. Tax

People who use water should pay for the water they use. That is the gist of a report by the National Water Commission. Not an earth-shaker type of conclusion at all, but indirectly it makes a point that we have often tried to bring out in these columns. The point has to do with the difference between a user charge and a tax.

In the case of a user charge, the person getting the benefit of a given governmental activity pays for the benefit. And he pays in proportion to the amount of benefit he receives. The postage stamp and the misnamed "gasoline tax" — in so far as they go for the respective services, mail delivery and roads — are user charges. They are user charges because the non-user does not have to pay for them.

A tax, on the other hand, is a compulsory exaction that you pay regardless of whether you get any benefit or not. The school tax is an example. State schools certainly perform a service, including training and custodial care of children. And the beneficiaries of those services do pay part of the costs. To that extent the school tax is also a user charge. But the element that makes the school tax a genuine tax is that you have to pay it even if you send your child to a private school and even if you have no children to send anywhere.

Taxes and user charges both produce governmental revenues. Of the two methods of raising money, the News has consistently favored the user charge in preference to the tax because one is essentially voluntary whereas the other is essentially compulsory. We favor voluntarism over compulsion. The voluntary approach lets more people get what they want and does not force anybody to pay for what he does not receive or for what he may prefer not to receive.

True, the user-charge principle would diminish that portion of the government which fewer persons desire to pay for. And vice versa, those government activities that people desire — such desire being measured by their willingness to buy them — would enlarge. And isn't that the type of government that derives from the consent of the governed?

"Peace with honor," now how about a dollar with value?

Deadbeats From U.N. On Loose

Diplomatic deadbeats from the United Nations have been using their diplomatic pouches to carry around an abundance of unpaid bills and fixed parking tickets and, according to reports, local New Yorkers are "up in arms."

Businessmen, doctors, shopkeepers and telephone company officials who have extended credit to the U.N. crowd want to get their money back. But in many cases the swindlers have already skipped town leaving a string of unpaid bills blowing in the breeze.

More than a dozen individual diplomats are said to be in danger of having their residential telephone service disconnected for non-payment. Apparently a number of diplomats are using their status as "international citizens" to make money in the blackmarket. U.S. officials have complained that some U.N. missions are reselling "unusually large imports to tax-exempt liquor and cigarettes."

In addition to their financial habit of ripping off local business people, the U.N. representatives have been accused of "undisciplined and dangerous parking practices" such as leaving diplomatic cars parked overnight in front of fire hydrants. Police report that during the past 26 months a total of 7,982 parking tickets have been issued to diplomatic-licensed cars.

The U.S. taxpayer ends up footing the bill for the U.N. crowd's bad debts. The business people who sold them the goods and services on credit can declare the loss on their income tax as an "UN-collectible debt."

Australia In Danger

Mr. Bob Hawke, president of the Australian Council of Trade Unions, recently announced: "This country is no longer a lapdog of the United States; we are now an independent nation." Under her radical new Labor Government, Australia is bent on a modified version of the Allende experiment. They call it "outward looking," and it is described by Marxists as a cultural and political renaissance.

First development with the arrival of Prime Minister Gough Whitlam was the end of the "White-Australia" policy. From now on, Australia will support the Afro-Asian bloc in the United Nations, and in return will gain Afro-Asian support in the fight to prevent French nuclear testing in the Pacific. Whether that issue is won or lost, the next move will be against American bases in Australia. Those bases may survive for a year, but not much longer. Barring a last, violent spasm of popular anti-Communism, Australia is likely to be solidly in the Socialist-Marxist camp within six months.

"That Thing's Running About Five Months Slow!"

BRUCE BLOSSAT Plane passenger searches 'good'

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Rigid searches of airline passengers and their carry-on belongings, in effect since Jan. 5, have cut U.S. plane hijacking attempts to zero. But they are a source of some controversy.

Some passengers complain of the delays enforced by inspection procedures, others dislike having their purses, brief cases, hand luggage and packages rifled through by airport checkers. (An occasional random survey shows, however, that countless travelers don't mind any of this at all.)

U.S. Aid To Russia Can Backfire

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Nixon is gambling a lot in his growing involvement with Soviet Russia's Leonid Brezhnev. The gamble itself is easily stated.

The United States would give huge amounts of credit and technical aid to the U.S.S.R. and makes major investments in, and massive mutually profitable trade deals with that country over the next decade.

At this time, no one can answer these questions — no expert in or out of the government. Different specialists will give different answers. The theory on which Mr. Nixon is gambling is straightforward — but unproved. It makes sense from Western democratic logic, and we tend to believe that among intelligent men Western logic and Eastern logic run in parallel lines. But no one knows this for certain. The Vietnam war years demonstrated just how far apart Western and Eastern logic can be.

Your Health Complete, Incomplete Proteins

Dear Dr. Lamb — In your column on incomplete and complete proteins you failed to mention that the incomplete proteins must be eaten at the same meal or they won't complement each other.

Well, let's measure the fuss against the facts. Through the very rigid searches started generally only this January, less general and more casual checks have been in effect quite a bit longer. With what results?

Better Beware: Report Tract Tricets Flies By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Attention horse racing fans! Beware of exotic multiple betting combinations — such as twin doubles, quinellas and tricets.

They are strongly prone to criminal fixing. That's the warning of the House Select Committee on Crime on the basis of an exhaustive investigation of horse racing and other sports.

In its forthcoming four-volume report on "Organized Crime in Sports," the committee, headed by Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., recommends that states impose limits on multiple betting combinations.

The daily double, perfecta and trifecta are held "generally reputable" by the committee. But manifold betting combinations should be barred, in the committee's opinion, because they are conducive to criminal control and manipulation. These type races yield higher profits than individually placed bets, and as a consequence there is a powerful incentive for underworld elements to bribe or intimidate horse owners, trainers and jockeys and drug the thoroughbreds.

Citing a specific instance, the report tells of a race in New York state where two horses ran in formation for most of the race. In the last ten minutes of betting, 80 per cent of the window bets had been placed on these two horses finishing in that position.

It is estimated gamblers made a killing of around $100,000 from this obviously fixed race. The Crime Investigating Committee also makes several other recommendations:

- (1) There should be both pre-race and after-race testing of all horses. They should be examined by authorized specialists to determine whether they had been given drugs to speed them up or slow them down.
- (2) Race tracks should be licensed for several years rather than on an annual basis. The committee holds the latter system to be unduly expensive and time consuming.
- While reporting that the drugging of horses, intimidation of trainers and jockeys and fixing races are not uncommon, the committee finds that "on the whole the racing industry is wholesome and honorable." It points out that horse racing is the largest attended sport in the country, and produces more than $500 million a year to the states in revenue.
- But the committee sternly warns that the states must exercise "unremitting vigilance" to prevent criminal machinations and control.

Duty, Honor And Atheism?

The Supreme Court imposed a ban on compulsory chapel attendance at the U.S. military academies. It has been a historic practice at the military academies to require the cadets to attend chapel services, not as a means of imposing doctrines upon them, but as a way of appreciation of their appreciation of and religious her.

This part of the "academies' program" never been questioned by producing men who devoted to "duty, and country." In this the Supreme Court has a fit to follow the pervasive leadership of the American Civil Liberties Union and thus striking a blow at the spiritual heritage of the military academies.

That's just for the interest alone — $27.5 billion a year. Next year it will be even more — edging up towards $30 billion. These brain-reeving figures came to light during the little-noticed House debate on the bill to continue the federal debt ceiling at the current $465 billion level through Nov. 30. That was necessary to ensure federal spending would not go through the ceiling and create numerous and complex legal and fiscal problems — and uncertainties.

I was a "pack-a-day" man for about 25 years, and believe me I was really beginning to feel it. Fortunately, I woke up in time to the seriousness of the situation. Personally, I feel that smoking should be outlawed. It is especially annoying to a nonsmoker when he enters a public place and finds people smoking where they shouldn't. It's also annoying on airplanes and other places where the nonsmoker can't get away from it.

Statistically speaking, children of nonsmokers are generally healthier than those whose parents smoke. More smokers have automobile accidents than nonsmokers. Many more smokers have heart problems, and many people with heart problems who smoke die a lot sooner than the nonsmokers. What about the cost in terms of burnt clothes, furniture, etc. Pass the word along, doc. Your response was far too gentle to your reader.

Dear Reader — I have been accused of a lot of things, particularly since I started writing a column for the general public, but never of being "far too gentle." You'd have to get up awfully early in the morning to beat me to first place in line to vote for a bill that would outlaw tobacco in all of its forms.

The weak in courage is strong in cunning. William Blake

During the media-ignored House discussion, Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, tenacious economy advocate, noted that he had recently heard that the "net public and private debt of the country as of Dec. 31, 1972, was $2.3 trillion."

The correct figure is $1.2 trillion, asserted Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., powerful chairman of the Ways and Means Committee which originates all revenue legislation. For good measure, he added that the interest on federal debts had reached the stupendous total of $27.5 billion.

"How long does the gentleman think," asked Gross, "we can keep up this race between inflation, with the dollar becoming more worthless all the time, and the retention of any kind of debt ceiling?"

"Longer than some people think," replied Mills cryptically, "and not quite as long as others think."

"I see," observed Gross wryly, and sat down. Congressman Mills is inclined to pooh-pooh the often-heard contention that the "government is going broke." At the same time he concedes that could occur "sometime in the future." Explains the powerful head of the Ways and Means Committee: "I do not think the government is broke by any means. I do think the government can go broke at some time in the future in the sense that the values by which we measure things would become meaningless — if we do not change some of our actions."

As a taxpayer, you can take it from there.

Tacoma: The environment is the issue

Tacoma, Washington (pop. 154,581), is a shipping, industrial and distribution center and the third largest city in the state. Docks and wharves line the waterfront and steamship lines provide service to various ports throughout the world. This gives Tacoma an international flavor.

By AL GIBBS

Citizen participation is the newest buzz-phrase in the lexicon of politicians and bureaucrats in this northwest corner of the country. The term, born in the verbiage of federal laws creating the Model Cities programs, implies a formal attempt to organize and tap for ideas a representative sampling of the people government was organized to serve. Both word and concept have, however, assumed something of the proportions of a Henny-Youngman story, you know, the joke about the husband who says he decides big issues like U.S. trade with China and who's guilty in the Watergate mess, while his wife decides how to spend the family's budget.

Al Gibbs is a reporter for the Tacoma News-Tribune.

Although the reactions are mixed, there seems to be a feeling among members of citizen advisory groups that they have been used more successfully to de-fuse major issues than to provide a different direction or dimension to public policy.

A major area of concern around Puget Sound and the Pacific Northwest — preservation of what Lewis Mumford called its "overpowering beauty" — has led to several environmental battles that tend to support the theory. In the past few years, even with federal and state regulations requiring legislative groups to listen to citizens, opponents of most projects have been more successful in court than in public hearings.

"We're only asked to advise on the end product, never the process that got them to that point," says a formerly active citizen participant who bowed out from frustration. "You just can't work with those kinds of ground rules."

Battle lines have become almost consistently predictable: a staff agency drafts its recommendations for Project X; spokesmen for citizen groups question those plans, perhaps even propose Alternative Solution Y; city council or county commissioners or state legislators sit in the middle trying to decide between staff expertise and the political power of the opponents' constituencies.

(Fifth in a series)

And despite the appearance of citizen groups that are growing in size and number, there seems to be a nagging suspicion by politicians that the general public would rather just be left alone, that the price of beef is more important than preserving the land on which cows can graze, that rising property taxes have become a bigger issue than what governments do with the money raised through them.

"Most people," says a politically astute lobbyist who recently lost a court battle against a waterfront freeway, "seem to feel that something really doesn't affect them and that's probably true in a direct sense."

"They won't get excited until it's next door or somebody raises a big hoo-rah about it."

The legislative perception of what its constituency feels is a helluva lot more important than what they're told by lobbyists or environmentalists, no matter how well motivated either are.

"You just can't get around that." (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

AFRICAN GROUP BELIEVES

Scientists Out To 'Steal' Sun

LAKE RUDOLF, Kenya (UPI) — Saturday's solar eclipse means a rare chance for hundreds of scientists from around the world to study the planet's movement but to a tiny African tribe, it means strangers have come to steal their sun.

The eclipse will be the second longest in history. The phenomenon has brought hordes of professional astronomers, reporters and the curious streaming into Kenya and Mauritania, the East-West extremes of Northern Africa.

The eclipse will not be visible in the United States. Instead, its totality will begin near the border of Guyana with Northern Brazil in South America. From there, it will move over the Atlantic Ocean and begin its African journey at Mauritania, span the 3,500 miles across Africa to Kenya, touch a corner of the Somali Republic and head out to the Indian Ocean before leaving the earth's sight at day's end.

Scientists are hoping to learn much from the eclipse, ranging from gleaned new information on Einstein's theory of relativity to determining the sun's influence on the weather and the atmosphere.

The Smallest Tribe

But the 200 fishermen who make up the Elmolos, the smallest tribe in East Africa, believe the scientists are in Kenya to "put out the sun," according to a female American scientist who has been living among them for two months.

The Elmolos live in round, palm-leaf igloos and, at the moment, are sharing this almost inaccessible inland sea with a group of 80 American and European scientists who have pitched camp for the eclipse.

Carole Scherrer, a 25-year-old anthropologist from the University of Virginia in Charlottesville who has been living with the Elmolos, said the scientists tried to pacify the villagers by assuring them they would put the sun back after using it for a few minutes.

But Miss Scherrer said tribal logic defeated them.

"The elders simply pointed out that to put it back you had to take it away in the first place," she said.

"The older people are a little apprehensive of scientists," she said. "They are not too anxious because they know the sun will eventually come back. What they are deathly afraid of is they heard armed raiders from the north may use the eclipse darkness to attack their camp."

They Hired Guards

The Elmolos have hired spear-throwing guards from the more warlike Samburu tribe to protect the village while the darkness lasts.

The Samburus have charged $1.40 per head to protect the village until the end of the year — a staggering tariff for one of Africa's poorest tribes. The Elmolos live solely on the fish they catch and, until recent months, rarely had any money at all.

But the scientific invasion has brought some changes.

"For the first time, there is money in the tribe," the young American anthropologist said. "Boys are earning 100 shillings ($12) a month at the recently opened lodge. Villagers are charging to allow themselves to be photographed."

The microscope was invented in 1590 by Zacharias Janssen, Dutch spectacle maker.
