US Not To Accept A Divided Germany

Ike Says Injustice Is Not Real Peace

PHILADELPHIA — UP — President Eisenhower said Wednesday the United States "can never accept" a divided Germany, Russian satellites and continued Communist subversion "as a part of the peace we desire and seek."

He also said this nation must not, in its "eagerness to avoid war," make any agreement that would sell out "the freedom of men for the pottage of a false peace."

Reds Are Invited To U.S.

By KENNETH BRODNEY
MOSCOW — UP — U.S. Sen. Allen J. Ellender Tuesday night invited five top Soviet Communist leaders to visit the United States "to make for better understanding" between the two nations.

He also said a delegation from the U.S. Congress should come to Russia to see how the country is run.

Ellender specifically invited the Russians to visit his state—Louisiana.

Asked what he thought Red-hunting Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) would say about his views, Ellender replied that "I don't know and I don't give a damn."

Attends Reception
The Louisiana Democrat extended the invitation at a reception given by the Rumanian embassy at Moscow's plush hotel Soviet-skaya and attended by U.S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen and virtually the entire Moscow diplomatic corps.

The invitation included former Premier Georgi Malenkov, First Deputy Premier Lazar Kaganovich, Anastas Mikoyan, Mikhail Perukhin, and M. A. Suslov, a secretary of the Communist party central committee.

Top Soviet leaders, including Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev, have indicated a desire to visit the United States but so far no official invitation has been forthcoming.

Swaps Jokes
Ellender gaily swapping jokes with Soviet leaders, said he thought the exchange of agricultural delegations between the United States and the Soviet Union was "one of the finest things that has happened—both for this country and our own."

He said that although there was "no question" that the Soviet Union is still a threat to the United States, "my hope is that the Russians do what they say and keep trying to find better ways to get along" with the free world.

Ellender said he thought a congressional delegation should follow the American farmers to the Soviet Union.

"Let senators and congressmen come here but let them be treated as we treat the Russians," he said. "Let them show us everything. Let it be on an equal basis."

Nation To Support Flood-Hit States

By UNITED PRESS
Flood ravaged areas of north-east Wednesday sped the task of reconstruction with assurance that the nation would support the effort.

The six states hit by the most damaging flood in U.S. history rushed plans to restore their residents, their communities, their industries and their homes.

The federal government promised a $80 million assistance program.

Gov. George M. Leader of Pennsylvania summed up official opinion in the six affected states when he said:

"I shall brief legislative leaders on my meeting with President Eisenhower and ask their assistance in appropriating the money and in levying the taxes to meet the wealth in assisting the people to recover from this disaster."

Evacuate Summer Camps

He made the statement as plans were completed to evacuate 10,000 boys and girls from summer camps in the flood-torn area of eastern Pennsylvania.

Buses took the children from Camps Hagen, Miller and Minsterium in the Pocono Mountains to Allentown and Philadelphia for routing to their homes.

The mass evacuation had been delayed by broken or overburdened telephone lines to camps and faulty transportation brought on by the floods.

Similar operations were in progress in Connecticut and Massachusetts. Twenty-five persons were evacuated from a rest home in South Natick, Mass., and taken to a hospital when cesspools overflowed due to high water.

Receive Anti-Typhoid Shots
Connecticut received 250,000 anti-typhoid shots from the National Drug Co. in Philadelphia. Drinking water, food and dry ice to prevent food spoilage were also rushed into the stricken area.

Clear skies over most of the flood area helped the relief and rehabilitation work. The rains which pelted much of the area Tuesday and slowed reconstruction had mostly ended by midnight.

Many areas continued to depend on helicopters and boats of supplies and mail.

Rail transportation near Lowell, Mass., was disrupted Tuesday night when the Boston and Maine railroad's crack train, the Red Wing, was derailed on a bridge over the swollen Concord River.

Six persons suffered minor injuries when the passenger train, bound from Boston to Montreal, struck a parked freight car on the bridge.

Relief Plans Rushed To Aid Flood Areas

By RICHARD E. MOONEY
WASHINGTON — UP — The government Wednesday rushed plans for an $80 million relief program to carry out the "total war" President Eisenhower has ordered against northeastern flood damage.

Mr. Eisenhower was to receive a personal report on the program's progress late Wednesday after returning from a speech in Philadelphia and before resuming his Colorado vacation.

He and his top officials mapped tentative plans for vastly expanded disaster aid at a White House conference late Tuesday. They met after the President's dramatic flight over the flood-stricken area and after his pledge to do "everything possible" — even to calling a special session of congress if necessary — to speed government aid to the area.

Doubt Session Necessary
Congressional leaders generally expressed doubt that a special session would be necessary to provide funds for the relief program. But Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said it was still possible such a session would be summoned.

The White House began contacting congressional leaders Tuesday night on plans for the relief program and asking for their opinions.

Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson told reporters the President already has "considerable authority" to act in using funds for flood relief without a special session of congress. But he said he is sure that if more authority is needed, congress would grant it.

Endorsement from Rayburn
Speaker Sam Rayburn said that "if the President, without calling congress into session, wants to use emergency funds for relief of the disaster area, he would have my endorsement."

The White House said government aid would go mainly to the repair and rehabilitation of such public facilities as streets, water systems, schools and clearing of debris which might become a health hazard.

Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson, in charge of the relief program, said the President "has declared total war on the effects of the (flood) disaster, and we are trying to move with all of the resources of the government to alleviate this situation."

Local Red Cross To Aid Flood Relief Fund

The Pampa chapter of American Red Cross received a telegram today from Jack Bassett, ARC service director for the Midwest Area, with headquarters in St. Louis, Mo., advising of the need for funds for the Eastern disaster areas, Homer Craig, chapter chairman, has announced.

The funds will go for relief of flood victims, he stated. Any donations made in Pampa will go directly to headquarters for this purpose and will not be kept or used in Pampa, he stressed.

Craig also explained that the Pampa chapter is "privileged" to make such a request by the United Flood board when disasters occur.

All contributions should be mailed to the Pampa Red Cross chapter, Box 1036, or may be presented at the Red Cross office on the second floor of the City Hall.

Mrs. F.W. Shotwell, executive secretary of the local chapter, stated she had received a request from a Pampa woman to inquire about her son and family in North Carolina. The reply was favorable, Mrs. Shotwell advised.

Ex-Pampans To Picnic On Coast

About 228 former area residents in California are receiving invitations to the 8th Annual Pampa Picnic to be held at Recreation Park in Long Beach, Calif., on Sept. 18.

The Chamber of Commerce is sending out letters this week bringing the residents up to date on changes and progress in Pampa during the past few years.

Willard Ivey, committee chairman, sent Joe Tooley the list of names to contact. The Tooley sent the list to the chamber of commerce.

Close to 250 attended the picnic held on last Sept. 26, 1951. The picnic starts at 11 a.m. and all former Pampa residents are requested to be there with picnic lunches not later than 12:30 p.m. at which time the lunches will be spread with coffee and punch furnished by committee. There will be games and door prizes.

Train Service May Be Improved

About 15 city and Chamber of Commerce officials met with C.R. Buchanan, vice president of the Santa Fe Railroad Co. Amavillo office, yesterday noon in the Pampa Hotel to discuss train service on the San Francisco Chief being rendered through Pampa.

No pullman service is available for points west at the present time, but Buchanan assured the group that he would study the needs of Pampa for service to Los Angeles and San Francisco. E. O. Wedgeworth said that he felt sure satisfactory arrangements would be worked out.

The San Francisco Chief stops about 75 per cent of the time here for passengers to points east.

If it comes from a Hardware Store, we have it Lewis Hardware.

$362,500 Suit Is Filed Here

A damage suit for $362,500 was filed on Aug. 20 with District Clerk Helen Sprinkle by Charlotte B. Mackey vs. G. & K. Trucking Co. et ux, in regard to the death of her husband, John H. Mackey, 41, who was killed in a truck automobile collision on May 4.

Mrs. Mackey is representing herself as guardian for John Mackey, Jr., and Bradford Lee Mackey, and resides in Wichita County.

She is suing for negligence, "in failing to properly and fully inspect the equipment and particularly the pole connecting trailer to truck."

The suit alleges that John H. Mackey was proceeding east on U.S. 66 in Gray County and was in a collision with a truck, allegedly owned by G & K with a pole trailer ordinarily used for oil field pipe with a steel frame and braces upon eight tiers connecting to the truck by metal pole. The trailer jackknifed and broke loose, cut directly across the highway into the Oldsmobile driven by Mackey, demolishing the engine and throwing his body on the highway. He was killed instantly.

Mackey was district manager for Mid-Continent Supply Co. Damage suit calls for $285,000 for Mrs. Mackey, $75,000 for her children, and $2,500 for funeral expenses, or a total of $362,500.

Home Drinking Is Big Problem

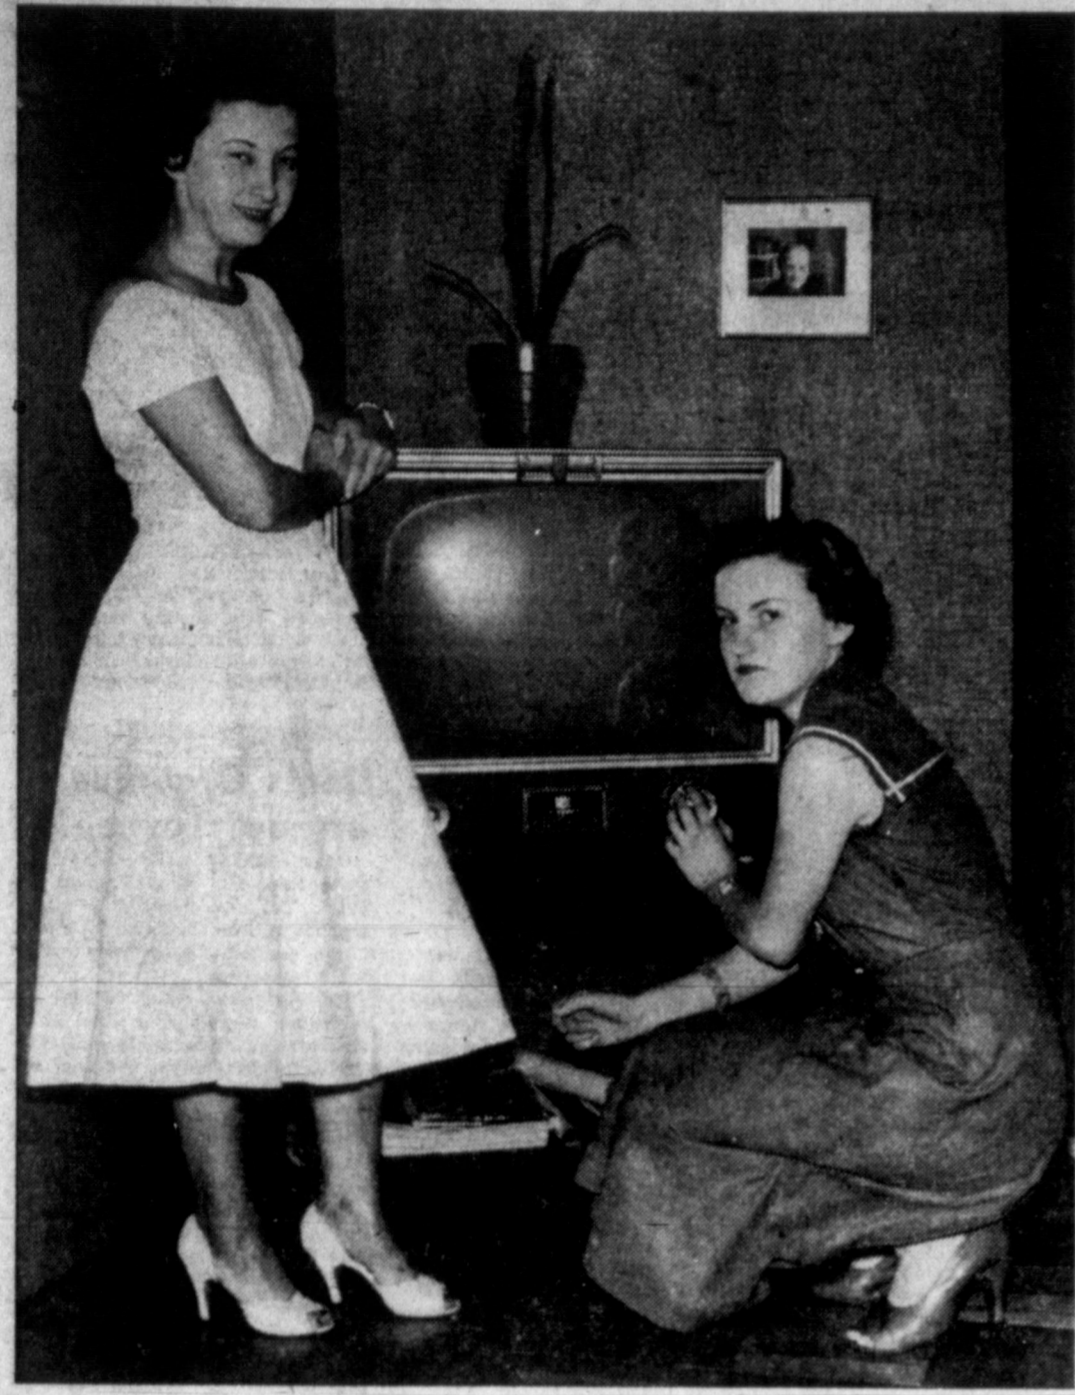

LONG BEACH, Calif. — UP — The president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union warned Wednesday that home drinking has become the nation's foremost temperance problem.

She called for "greater support" of bills in congress to outlaw alcoholic beverage advertising on radio and TV.

Indications were that Gloria would go for the bigger money. Her divorced parents, James Lockerman and Vivian Singleton, both of Philadelphia, seemed to favor a go-ahead.

Her Future Most Important
"The important thing is Gloria's future," said her father. "We don't want the publicity to affect her life in any way."

Gloria's mother said: "She hasn't got anything to lose since she had nothing to start with. And she's assured of $4,000 anyway."

Beserk Airman Kills 3, Self In Wild Gunfight On Base

BROADSTAIRS, Eng. — UP — A deranged Negro airman Wednesday fatally shot two U.S. fliers and an RAF corporal, and wounded eight others in a wild gunfight and chase through a U.S. air base and this crowded beach resort.

The Negro, identified as Napoleon Green, an air base shiproom clerk, was cornered and

French Under Orders To 'Shoot First'

CASABLANCA — UP — French troops Wednesday hunted down the hard Moroccan and Algerian terrorists under orders to "shoot first — ask questions later," reliable sources reported.

Tank and plane supported French security forces launched a big mop-up operation Tuesday against the fanatical rebels who have bathed the French North African empire in blood.

And France Wednesday began calling up reserve troops to help crush the last vestiges of the revolt that has claimed more than 1,500 lives since Saturday.

100,000 Troops Pinned Down
More than 100,000 French troops, including the famed Foreign Legionnaires, already are pinned down in Algeria, Morocco and Tunisia.

The call-up of reservists was announced Wednesday night by Premier Edgar Faure at Aix-Les-Bains where French leaders are holding talks with representatives of various Moroccan elements in an attempt to find a solution to the crisis.

Meantime, French troops tightened an iron ring around key Nomad tribal towns in Morocco's desolate Atlas mountain region. They were backed by jet fighters, armored cars and tanks.

Tribesmen Captured
The French forces, estimated in the thousands, were reported to have captured large numbers of Berber tribesmen held responsible for the mass slaughter of French settlers.

In Algeria, officials reported sporadic fighting in both the Constantine and Aures mountain areas, both hotbeds of nationalist terrorism. But they insisted the situation is well in hand.

While the hunt is being pressed, the wives and children of French settlers are being evacuated from isolated Moroccan farms, it was announced.

New Resident Is Awed By U.S. Methods

"Oh you have an electric cook stove and a television," was one of the first comments made by Miss Toni Stein, a native of Berlin, Germany, when she arrived in Pampa two weeks ago. She is living with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stein.

"I am fascinated by your newspaper system," she said. "In Germany a person has to do something big to get a picture or story in the paper, but here in the U.S. I was interviewed by a New York paper immediately after I got off the ship."

She has been asked the question "How do you like Texas?" many times already but she doesn't know how to answer yet since she hasn't formed an opinion. "It's so different from my home land."

Miss Stein has hopes of getting her American citizenship after the 5 year period of waiting but says "I sure do get homesick." Her mother still lives in West Berlin.

"I like your country very much especially your ladies' fashions. A very inexpensive dress here is better than some of the very expensive in Germany." She said she also likes the American food.

She is looking forward to getting better acquainted with the people, customs and the country but hopes she will be able to visit her mother in Germany sometime in the future.

Her Parents Want Gloria To Go For $32,000

By WILLIAM EWALD
NEW YORK — UP — Little Gloria Lockerman, the 12-year-old Negro spelling champ who ran her winnings to $16,000 on a TV giveaway show, rides back home to Baltimore Wednesday for some bonding up with the dictionary and family conferences about her TV future.

Gloria, smiling and pert in a new Navy blue organdy dress, confidently spelled her way through a nonsense sentence on CBS-TV's "The $64,000 Question" to earn a possible shot next Tuesday at $32,000.

Mrs. Singleton referred to the $4,000 the producers of the show give as a consolation prize to any contestant who reaches the upper levels in the TV question-and-answer game.

Gloria, however, said she didn't know whether she would go on — instead she preferred to talk about what she would like to do with some of the money she has won.

"I'd like an English racer bike," she said. "I already have a bike, but some of the other kids in the neighborhood have the English kind. And I'd also like a tape recorder."

She revealed that she had stumbled through part of the answer of her question because "I forgot where I was." The answer that boosted her to the $16,000 level on the quiz program was the spelling of "The belligerent antagonistic anthropologist annihilated innumerable chrysanthe-mums."

Given Dictionary
After her spelling chore, Hal March, emcee of "The $64,000 Question" presented Gloria with a calf-bound copy of "Webster's New World Dictionary of the American Language" with her name embossed on it. Gloria said she would give it a heavy reading this week.

Another contestant on the program, Marine Capt. Richard Sher-rill McCutchen, who chose "Food and Cooking" as his category, moved to the $8,000 plateau. He will be back next week to take a possible crack at $36,000.

One other contestant, Mrs. Connie Ardren of West Hartford, Conn., struck a sour note in the category "Pop Music" and was given a consolation prize of $512.

Large Rocket Needed For Satellite

By ALFRED LEECH
EVANSTON, Ill. —UP—The launching of a tiny satellite weighing no more than 100 pounds will require a multi-stage rocket larger than any yet fired, a rocket fuel expert said Tuesday.

Dr. Noah S. Davis Jr. said the rocket will have to be larger than the combined WAC Corporal and V-2 launched at White Sands, N. M., in mankind's closest approach yet to outer space.

Davis, liquid fuels specialist of the Buffalo Electro-Chemical Co., is one of the nation's top rocket scientists attending a symposium on gas dynamics sponsored by the American Rocket Society at Northwestern University.

He said most of the technical problems in launching the proposed satellite already have been licked.

"It's mostly a question of manpower, materials and money," he said.

The satellite would circle the earth at an altitude of about 250 miles, he said, and this height already has been attained by the two-stage White Sands rocket.

Another stage would be required, he said, to launch the satellite proper on its orbital course around the earth.

James J. Harford, executive secretary of the rocket society, said rockets have been traced back to 1,200 A.D. when they supposedly were invented by the Chinese. They first were used as a military weapon by the Chinese against the Mongols in the siege of Kaiteng in 1232.

Development Spreads
News of the development spread quickly to Europe, Harford said, and for the next century rockets were commonly used as fireworks and as a "strictly unreliable" weapon. But, for a while, he said, it seemed as if the rocket might replace the cannon. Then improvements in artillery rendered the rocket obsolete.

Not until World War II, he said, did the rocket make a spectacular comeback in the form of the German V-2 and the American Bangalore torpedo, or bazooka.

Davis and Harford said the U.S. lost the lead to Germany in rocket development before and during World War II despite the fact an American, the late Robert Goddard, opened up the field of modern research with experiments that began in World War I.

Goddard showed that rockets could be used to carry scientific instruments to altitudes never before reached.

"SOUVENIR HUNTING can be one of the most rewarding—or one of the most wasteful—features of any trip, whether it's 100 or 10,000 miles from home. The ultimate value of any souvenir you acquire depends on 'selective buying'—the purchase of good items which can be worked into your everyday pattern of living," says William Parker McFadden, prominent interior decorator and world traveler, by whom the following article is written.

ONE OF THE CHIEF objections to souvenirs—which can mean any object acquired as a reminder or memento—is that people store them in boxes in the backs of drawers. Consequently, they are never reminded of anything, unless it's of the presence of a lot of "junk" when they start cleaning out those drawers.

"Selective souvenir hunting" was the objective on a three-month trip around the world to acquire furnishings and art objects for a series of model rooms being decorated by McFadden Associates at the 1955 State Fair of Texas.

Articles were brought back to Dallas from Japan, India, Finland, Mexico, Denmark, Hong Kong, Siam, Burma, Spain, Morocco, Java, Bali, Lebanon, Syria and Italy. The various items used in the State Fair rooms will illustrate how you can be "at-home with the world" in Dallas, Texas.

One very inexpensive thing used very effectively was a collection of coins in a closet. We have had them embedded in black plastic trays which from the top of a long coffee table. In this way the trays and coins are in constant use—thus fitting them into a daily living pattern. The same thing could be done with tiles, or with any number of items—people usually buy when they are travelling.

Another example is a ceremonial wash basin from Japan. Something like this makes a wonderful conversation piece when used as a salad bowl or centerpiece filled with colorful fruits. Everyone can enjoy it in use, whereas no one would enjoy it as a "museum display piece."

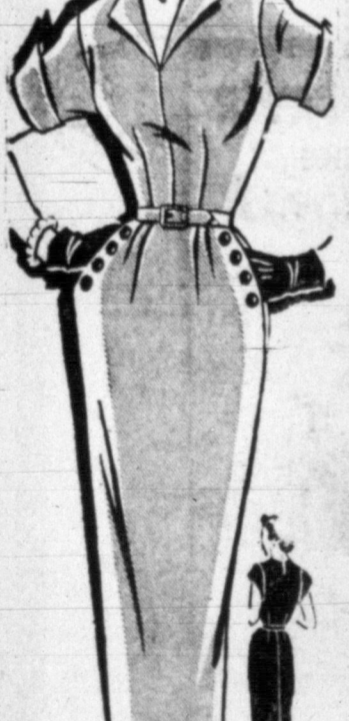

This is just as true of items you can purchase on a trip to El Paso or Galveston as to Japan or Africa.

The model rooms at the State Fair will be in connection with

Henry Dreyfuss, Industrial Designer, Slated For Coveted Exposition Award

A man who has washed clothes, cooked, vacuumed rugs, operated a linotype machine, run a Diesel locomotive and ridden an armored tank will be honored at one of the nation's largest and most elaborate fashion shows, the Neiman-Marcus Fashion Exposition, September 30 and 6th in Dallas.

A Neiman-Marcus Award will go to Henry Dreyfuss, industrial designer, who has had much to do with redesigning the way America lives. Awards also will go to four others who have had a notable effect on the way people live and work.

Pierre Balmain of Paris, ranking French couturier; Florence Eiseman of Milwaukee, who designs beautiful clothes for American children; Sally Kirkland, fashion's great reporter and associate editor of Life; and Vera Maxwell, who designs clothes truly American and totally international.

Wall Street collapsed the year Henry Dreyfuss entered the field of industrial design. But he was never actually blamed for it. He opened an office on Fifth Avenue with little money, bright ideas and a 25-cent philodendron plant with two leaves.

In the interviewing quarter of a century, the same philodendron plant has flourished and so has Henry Dreyfuss and so has American industry in which he has played such an important role.

Dreyfuss flies about 100,000 miles a year, mostly in planes whose interiors he designed himself, and mainly between his West Coast office in South Pasadena and his East Coast office in New York. The luxury and comfort of the Super Constellation as well as the cheerful face of America's favorite alarm clock were conceived and developed in his offices. Because of Dreyfuss, innumerable objects that millions know and use, from the telephone and the RCA radio to great transatlantic liners the SS Independence and the SS Constitution look better, work better or make life easier.

Girl Scout Workers Hold Planning Meet

Girl Scout leaders and workers met Tuesday afternoon in the GS Little House for a planning session, led by Mrs. Marian Osborne, council assistant.

Mrs. John Gentry, new organization chairman, and other new members were introduced. Improvement at Camp Mel Davis and the national convention were discussed. Pamphlets containing program and project suggestions, a list of GS facilities, tips to leaders and the training schedule were handed out and explained by Mrs. Osborne.

Troop publicity and the GS radio program, held each month, were explained by Mrs. Nicholas Kadango, public relations chairman.

Forty-five persons attended the event. Refreshments of punch and cookies were served by members of Mariner Troop 22, who also supervised a nursery.

OES Gavel Club Has Dinner Meet

The Gavel Club of the Order of the Eastern Star met Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Ruth Sewell, 2122 Williston. Co-hostesses with Mrs. Sewell were Mrs. Otto Rice and Mrs. Guy Andis.

Following dinner on the patio, a business session was held. Mrs. Juanita Suttle, vice-president, presided in the absence of Mrs. W. A. Rankin, president. Mrs. Pearl Mitchell was welcomed as a new member.

Next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Crystal Hankhouse, 1300 Mary Ellen, with Miss Corrine Landrum and Mrs. Clara Mealer as co-hostesses.

Visitors were Mrs. O. A. Larson and Sandra. Members present were Meses. Otis Nace, Juanita Suttle, Katie Vincent, Oscar Shearer, Leslie B. Hale, Earl C. Four Boys Slated To Give Program To Lady Golfers

Four young boys will present a program of pantomimes for the Ladies Golf Association Friday in the Pampa Country Club. They are Larry Cox, Gordon Shultz, Donald Robinson and John Prince. The boys are coached by Mrs. Horace Prince.

The pantomimes will include "Dance With Me, Henry," "Wild Bill Hickock," "Your Cheating Heart," "Minnie, The Mermaid" and "Rock Around the Clock."

The program will begin at 12:30 p.m., following the noon luncheon. Deadline for luncheon reservations is noon Thursday. Golf may be played at any time during the day, and bridge will begin at 10 a.m. Both golf and bridge will be continued during the afternoon.

Mrs. J. E. Moore Honored At Party

Mrs. Joe E. Moore of Philadelphia, Pa., was honored with a handkerchief shower and lawn party recently at the home of Mrs. W. D. Roland. Co-hostess was Mrs. A. Roland. Mrs. Moore is visiting her mother, Mrs. Johnny Roland, 528 Oklahoma.

The serving table was covered with a lace cloth over pink, and centered with an arrangement of zinnias. Flanking the centerpiece were white tapers in crystal holders. Refreshments of punch and cake were served.

Other honored guests, other than Mrs. Moore, were Mrs. Angelo Traddo and her daughter, Mrs. C. Carrasco, both of Oakland, Calif., who are visiting Mrs. Traddo's mother, Mrs. Alma, Stuesy, 801 S. Gray.

Attending were Meses. A. Clark, A. Roland, J. Williams, J. Roland, G. Bonner, W. D. Roland, N. M. Davis and A. Coleman.

Order of Does Has Card Party

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Does held a card party recently in the backyard of Mrs. Sam Williams, 508 Magnolia.

Guests played canasta and bridge. The canasta prize went to Mrs. Buck Haggard, and bridge prizes were awarded Mrs. Claude Timmons and Mrs. Marie Herring.

Refreshments of pineapple ice box cake and coffee were served. Guests were Meses. Claude Timmons, Dell Demos, O. E. Chenoweth, and Buck Haggard. Members present were Meses. Lynn Crider, Marie Herring, E. A. Barber, Gordon Stafford, Bill McComas, Jim Terrell, George Ingram, Jim Dean, Johnny Gikas and J. M. Foster.

FROM THE TROPICS comes a delicious meal, meant for warm weather. It is barbecued chicken with glazed bananas.

COOK'S NOOK

Add Caribbean Flavor To Barbecued Chicken

By GAYNOR MADDOX NEA Food and Markets Editor

The West Indies are famous for molasses; also for cockfights, carnivals and voodoo ceremonies. Just back from a Caribbean visit, a noted home economist gives us the plan for a colorful backyard party.

Suggest that your guests arrive in native costumes. They can dress as Chinese storekeepers, Japanese and Portuguese market gardeners, East Indian and Syrian traders, Spanish, British, French, Dutch and Danish colonials.

Along with barbecued chicken serve foods typical of the islands: Coconut, fresh pineapple, and bananas.

Mrs. Tupper tells of a Virgin Islands dinner party. The menu: Stuffed red snapper, whole roast pig, native sweet potatoes and native gooseberries cooked as we do applesauce with cloves and cinnamon. For dessert, there was spice cake (also made with the gooseberries as we do applesauce spice cake) topped with a coconut milk sauce.

Caribbean Barbecue Sauce for Barbecued Chicken One-quarter cup unsulphured molasses, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce, 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 1-4 teaspoon Tabasco.

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Bring to a boil; boil 1 minute. Use to brush chicken during broiling or grilling. Recipe makes 1-1 1/2 cups, or enough for 2-2 1/2-pound ready-to-cook broilers.

Tropical Glazed Bananas (6 servings) One-third cup butter, 1-4 cup unsulphured molasses, 6 green-tipped bananas, salt.

Melt butter in skillet; stir in unsulphured molasses. Peel bananas. Cut each banana in half lengthwise, then crosswise. Place in skillet cook until tender, about 5 to 8 minutes, turning and basting occasionally. Sprinkle with salt.

'Little Inch' Still Must Get Federal Power Commission OK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—UP—The Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. still has another Federal Power Commission hurdle to clear before it can start converting use of its little inch pipeline to transportation of petroleum and petroleum products.

More than a year ago, Texas Eastern asked FPC permission to retire part of its little inch pipeline system from natural gas service. It proposed to construct new facilities to continued rendering natural gas service but would use the original little inch—actually a 20-inch pipeline—to transport oil and oil products.

The portion of little inch to be retired from natural gas and used for oil transportation stretches between Baytown, Tex., and Mountsville, W. Va., a distance of 1,186 miles. This stretch includes five compressor stations and part capacity at 18 other compressor stations.

The new facilities to move natural gas would cost an estimated $71,814,000. They would include 41 miles of pipeline, 86,000 horsepower in compressor stations, and 56,020 additional horsepower at existing stations. The new pipeline and compressor facilities would be located in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Alabama. The project would include a 362-mile line from Beaumont to Kosciusko, Miss.

Change Approved After a lengthy hearing, the FPC examiner and later the commission itself approved Texas Eastern's plans. A certificate was granted to make the change.

Later, in July, 1955, the commission agreed to permit Texas Eastern to change the substitute facilities.

The city of Pittsburgh, River Co., Inc., and the American Pipeline Corp., interveners in the proceeding, asked for a recommendation. They claimed the July order was issued without hearing.

The changes in the July order included substitution of 30-inch for 24-inch pipe between Beaumont and Kosciusko; elimination of two authorized compressor stations; and changes in the type of facilities or amount of horsepower approved in certain other compressor stations. The changes are expected to reduce the cost of Texas Eastern's project by about $1 million and cut service costs by about $350,000. A rehearing was set for Sept. 14.

Another Hearing in Oklahoma The Interior Department has scheduled a public hearing Sept. 6 at the Osage Indian Agency, Pawhuska, Okla., to consider four proposed amendments to the federal regulations governing the leasing of Osage reservation lands.

for oil and gas development. The reservation, which comprises the whole of Osage county, Okla., has a rather unique ownership pattern. While the surface lands are owned principally by non-Indians, most of the minerals are owned by the Osage tribe and are subject to trust supervision by the Indian Bureau.

More than 600 million barrels of oil have been produced from these tribal lands in the last 50 years. One of the proposed amendments would increase the fees paid to the surface owners by lessees for well and tank-site locations in order to bring these charges in line with current economic conditions.

Under existing regulations, which have been in effect since 1932, the fee is $100 for each well on cultivated or cultivable land, $35 for each well on lands of other types, and $10 for each tank site. Under the proposed new regulations, the fee would be $200 on cultivated land, $150 on open pasture land, $100 on other types of land, and $30 for each tank site. The three other proposed amendments are largely technical in nature.

CIO, Chrysler Talk Contract

DETROIT—UP—Chrysler Corp. and CIO United Auto Workers Union negotiators met again Tuesday in an effort to hammer out a new contract for 139,000 workers before the current pact expires in a little more than a week.

Talks resumed Monday afternoon following a weekend recess during which Chrysler workers voted overwhelmingly to strike, if necessary, to win "reasonable demands."

The union said that more than 96 per cent of the workers voting favored strike action if negotiations aren't successfully completed by the time the current five-year contract expires at midnight next Wednesday.

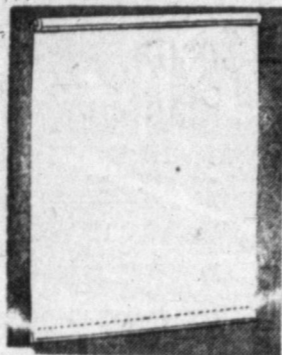

Chrysler workers are represented by 23 locals at 32 plants, warehouses and technical centers. Most of them are employed in the Detroit area but others work at Los Angeles and San Leandro, Calif.; Newark, Del.; Atlanta, Ga.; New Castle, Kokomo, Evansville and Indianapolis; New Orleans, and Kansas City.

Beyond Us

According to the New York Times, there is an official document bearing the imprint of the United States government, being circulated widely through France. It has a curious title: "The American Economy, Beyond Capitalism." The United States Information Service, that agency of foreign propaganda, is the responsible source of this wholly astonishing publication.

Even Frenchmen are reportedly surprised to learn that America, the citadel of capitalistic enterprise, has gone "beyond" capitalism. According to the Times, the booklet does not say just what it is that has succeeded capitalism. However, it apparently utilizes the socialist incursions against our economy as though they were in our best interests, and part of a permanent change toward a universally accepted collective.

Perhaps it's true, and sadly we confirm it, that the government in this country has now grown so large and has intruded so successfully in private affairs, that capitalism in its true laissez faire status has been virtually taxed out of existence.

However, "The American Economy, Beyond Capitalism" is obviously not a tombstone to mark the grave of the system which has provided the most benefits for the most people in the history of the world. It is instead an opponent paean of praise for the bureaucrats who have contrived by means of bribery, pressure, politics and corruption of every conceivable caliber to rob us of our heritage.

It is no wonder we have difficulty in retaining friends abroad. Some Frenchmen may have read the history of American revolution and learned of our devotion to freedom and independence. The official Twentieth-century revelation by our own government, that our system of economics which made us great has been abandoned in favor of a system which has been used in France for a thousand years and which every Frenchman knows won't work, is certainly apt to upset the most calmly dispositioned Parisian.

Our government has made many errors and blunders in its short but aggressively collectivist career. But this one is a classic. We wonder what our braintrusts and our egg-head liberals will be telling foreigners next.

Hank's Day, From A Shave To Reading Jane Austen

By HENRY McLEMORE

If Mrs. R. will forgive me I will tell you my day.

Woke at six and decided not to shave but to find out how I would look in a beard. Mary woke at seven and I will never find out how I look in a beard. Wondered if I had been a country physician or a sculptor if she would have married me.

Ran the flag up and when it caught the morning breeze said to myself that the U. S. flag, standing out must be the prettiest sight in the world, and decided that I never could honestly be an internationalist. This country would always have to come first.

Read where Willie Shoemaker rode six winners at Chicago's Washington Park with all of them paying better than 4 to 1. Wished I had been in Chicago with a little extra money as I would bet on Shoemaker at 4 to 1 even if he were riding a nanny goat that wore blinkers, had four sore feet, and sulked.

Suddenly thought I would like to have some old-fashioned boiled coffee like we used to have when I was a boy, so made some. Remembered at the last moment how my mother used to break an egg in the pot, so broke an egg in mine, and if you have never tasted an egg poached in coffee and garnished with grounds, then you should have had breakfast with us.

Saw an odd-looking thing flopping on the beach and looked through my binoculars. Discovered it was a baby seal and Mary insisted that she open a can of salmon and that I walk down and give it something to eat. Told her seals were dangerous and that one could break a man's leg with a flip of its tail, and, besides, all the seals I had ever encountered liked to have their fish thrown at them, and not served on a plate.

But she fixed up a plate, and just to make her mad I put a slice of lemon and a salad fork on it, and went to the beach.

"Here, seal. Here, seal," I called, but when I got within ten or fifteen feet of the baby it galumphed to the water and hook off for the rocks. Wonder what we'll have with the salmon loaf for dinner.

Mary found a tiny flea on her ankle and said she was afraid it had jumped off the rug in the living room, and wanted to know what I was going to do about it. Said I must run right over to the hardware store and get a bomb or something. She laughed and wouldn't believe me when I told her how Mama used to get rid of a few fleas that jumped off our dogs when I was little. Mama would make my two brothers and me pull on our sisters' long white stockings and walk around the room. The fleas would jump up, be spotlighted on the white stockings, and presto! no more fleas.

But Mary said she didn't have a pair of white stockings to her name, wasn't going to get any, and what would a neighbor think if he propped in and saw me parading around the living room in white stockings?

Read a few chapters of Jane Austen's "Persuasion" and couldn't help but wonder how Miss Austen would fare if she arrived at a publisher's today with manuscripts of her novels. Elizabeth Bennett and Anne Elliot are a far cry from the heroines of today, and would be terrified by, say, one of Mickey Spillane's heroes. They'd have to take the waters at Bath for a year and, besides, all the seals I had ever encountered liked to have their

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

Fashion For Fear

Here is the last installment of Paul Jones' article in Freeman magazine on the subject of government's policy of advising mass evacuation in case of bombing. In the last issue he pointed out how much better off people would be at home than in groups on the highways.

He continues: "For many families, it is true, there would be no problem, in any case, after the first blinding flash. But their chances, if they survived, would be far better in familiar surroundings than in any mass exodus.

"The nation-wide test of mass evacuation held in mid-June of this year bore no relation to reality. All over the country, perhaps one tenth of 1 per cent of the population supposed to be affected was moved out of the cities. A Deputy Director of Civil Defense in Washington was summarily fired for saying the whole thing was non-sensical. Yet he was only saying aloud what everybody else was thinking, except for the boy scouts in charge.

"Oddly enough, while the grand emergency test held the headlines, five Navy doctors reported to the A. M. A. on the clinical picture presented by actual victims of the fallout at the Eniwetok H-bomb 'island-destroying' explosion. Early loss of hair and ugly skin lesions disappeared completely within six months, with no permanent deterioration of the blood. The American doctors were inclined to believe that the one Japanese fisherman who died (they saw 175 cases) lost his life as a result of complications arising during treatment.

"The medical report, therefore, was reassuring. It got very little attention at a time when it is the fashion to paint large pictures of appalling destruction over immense areas, with no escape possible for the victim of 'lethal' fallout.

"Obviously, a sober and sensible approach to a problem which demands the utmost in cool courage would be infinitely better than this perpetual promotion of panic. We could do with far fewer speeches by public figures in which every other sentence begins with 'I fear.' The effect can only be to inject the slow poison of despair in repeated doses, until we are all convinced that there is no hope except we take to the hills. Or, worse still, until they persuade many of us that a 'pepventive' war is morally justified.

"Mankind has gone through many hard moments, and will go through more. It may be flattering to our conceit to believe that no generation ever faced anything worse than what we face. But it is hardly probable. Whatever befalls, it is better to meet it with courage than with fear. And for those who seek a consoling word, it may be well to state that many of us will survive any conceivable war, for the simple reason that, to the cold eye of the bombing expert, we are lucrative targets. We are not worth, literally, the plutonium to blow us to hell.

"In any event, let us have done with panic as a prescription for safety. Ajax defying the lightning was punished for his presumption. But he expressed human dignity better, and was altogether more admirable, than an Ajax running for the coat closet at the first rumble of a summer thunderstorm."

On The Common Man

It is difficult to understand how a man with the record of Dean Alfange could write like the following quote. He was nominated for governor of New York on the American Labor Party in 1942.

Now read this rational statement by him: "I do not choose to be a common man. It is my right to be uncommon if I can. I seek opportunity—not security. I do not wish to be a kept citizen, humbled and dulled by having the state look after me.

"I want to take the calculated risk; to dream and to build, to fail and to succeed. I refuse to barter incentive for a dole. I prefer the challenge of life to the guaranteed existence; the thrill of fulfillment to the state calm of Utopia.

"I will not trade freedom for beneficence, nor my dignity for a handout. I will never cover before any master nor bend to any threat. It's my heritage to stand erect, proud and unafraid; to think and act for myself, enjoy the benefits of my creation and to face the world boldly and say, this I have done. All this is what it means to be an American."

...with JAMES C. INGEBRESEN President, Spiritual Mobilization

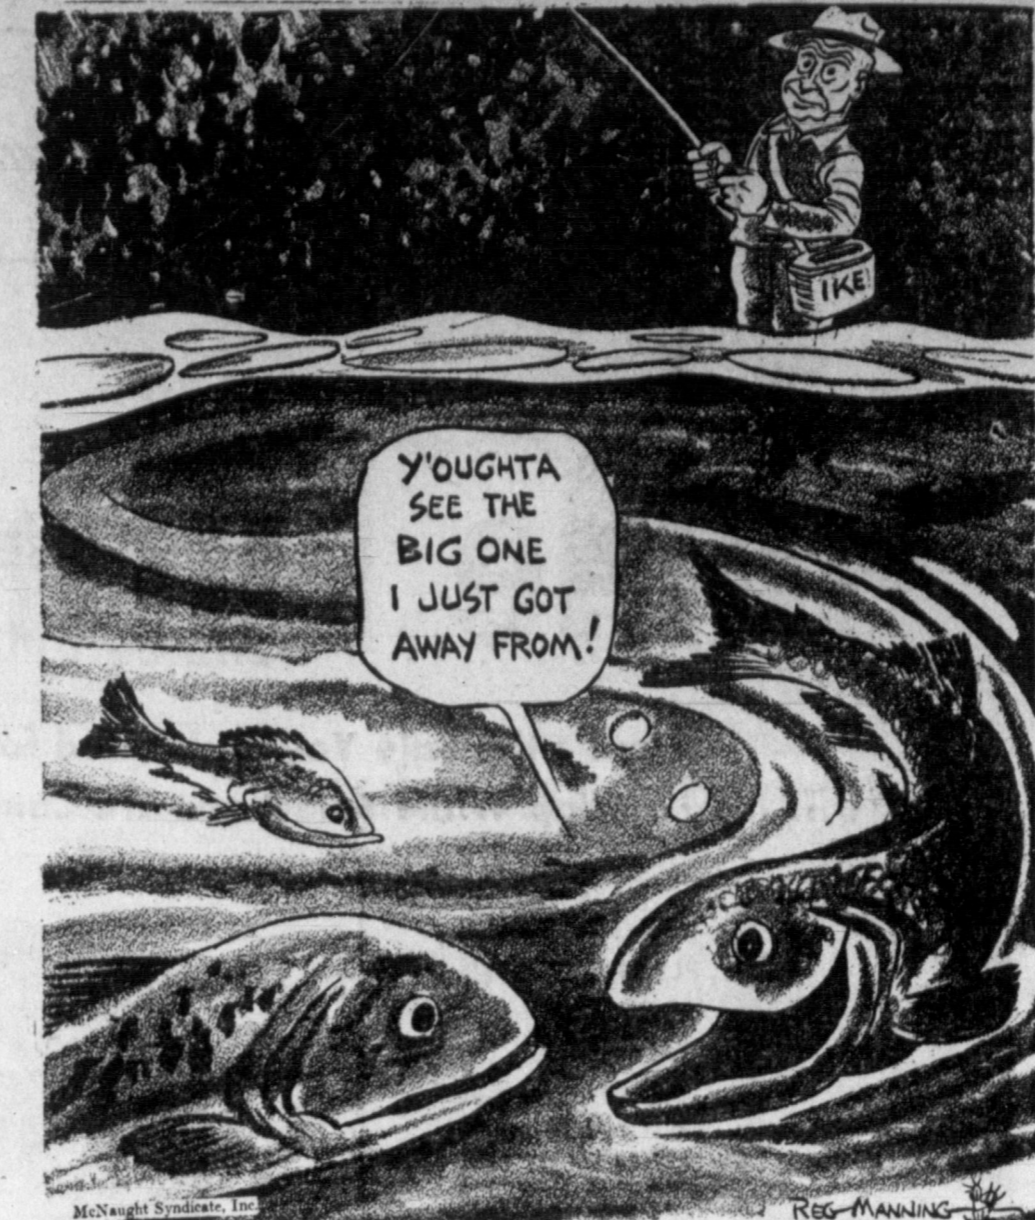

"I will walk at liberty: for I seek thy precepts," declared the Psalmist long ago.

Perhaps no more succinct formula for freedom has ever been penned than that. As long as we sincerely and honestly and earnestly seek God's precepts in order to faithfully and fully obey them, we shall walk at liberty. There is no question about that.

It is when we begin to regard God's precepts as too rigorous and demanding and when we, as a consequence, start substituting expediency for principle that we relinquish our freedom.

As long as we stay on the highway of God's precepts, we walk at liberty, when we try to detour across the swamps and quicksands of opportunism, we are almost certain to lose our liberty. The real freedom is freedom under God.

Anti-Supreme Court Feeling At Explosive Point In South

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—A current movement of considerable social, economic and political importance is the South's rebellion against what it regards as other sections' neglect and misunderstanding of its postwar problems. Nor is this feeling based solely or mainly on the question of desegregation of the public school system, although that hurts grievously.

A recent editorial in the Charleston (S.C.) News and Courier was typical. It refers to a book entitled, "Weep No More, My Lady," which assails the Supreme Court's alleged overriding of states' rights, and presents the South's viewpoint. From a reading of editorials and letters to the editor in Dixie's newspapers, it is obvious that anti-Supreme Court sentiment has reached an explosive point.

According to the author of "Weep No More, My Lady," although it has sold 210,000 copies under extremely difficult marketing methods, northern publishers turned it down "because no national publisher is even the least bit interested in any book that attempts to set forth the Southern viewpoint on matters racial."

He adds that Northern publishers of books and magazines accept only manuscripts that "are either an attack upon the South and its way of life, or an apology."

Some months ago, Southerners on Capitol Hill were angered when a national weekly of vast circulation refused to publish an answer to a pro-segregation article that attracted great interest. It was written by the only white member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (a woman), but all manuscripts expressing a contrary viewpoint were rejected.

Southern newspapers, however, are extremely vocal. Periodically, they denounce and defy the Supreme Court for its attempt to upset their social and educational system. And this revolt has found practical sympathizers and supporters on the benches of State Courts.

The South also resents the new attempt to block or check migration of industries to its area. A recent American Federation of Labor report, widely publicized, sought to halt this movement, largely because it has had no luck in organizing Southern farm or factory workers.

Although many Southern leaders dislike government competition with private enterprise preferring Eisenhower's "partnership" program, the States directly affected are upset over the effort to curtail TVA expansion, as in the booming West and Southwest, they figure that they rate belated but expediency for principle that we relinquish our freedom. As long as we stay on the highway of God's precepts, we walk at liberty, when we try to detour across the swamps and quicksands of opportunism, we are almost certain to lose our liberty. The real freedom is freedom under God.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

Unhappy parents frequently ask whether there is any way by which a child can be made to grow taller or a way in which a youngster can be made to stop growing! Almost certainly millions of children or their parents wish they were taller or shorter. Probably few of us are satisfied with either our own or our children's physical characteristics.

One question of this sort coming from W. M. deserves a special answer. "My daughter, age 15" she says "has grown several inches in a short period of time. Despite proper shoes and diet the legs have suddenly become bowed during this fast growth period. Are there any corrective measures that should be taken?"

ALTHOUGH I HAVE NO suggestions to halt the growth of Mrs. M.'s daughter, the fact that her legs have become bowed is a matter of importance. This is perhaps a sign of rickets which is a disease resulting in softening of the bones due to a deficiency of vitamin D in the diet. If the doctor feels this is responsible then addition of vitamin D, to the 15-year-old daughter's intake would certainly seem desirable.

Concern over small size is perhaps most common among boys around 9 - 14 years old. Parents and the youngsters, too, should understand that the rate of growth varies from one youngster to another, and a boy who seems small up to his teens may suddenly shoot up and end considerably taller than those who were bigger than he at an earlier age.

FOR PRACTICAL PURPOSES it should also be said that there is no special injection, exercise, or food which increases height. The diet almost certainly has something to do with height but a well-balanced diet with enough to eat is probably all that is necessary.

Labor Dept. Man Fired For Learning Too Much

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

GENEVA—One of the funniest pictures of David A. Morse, the Hicogalorum of the International Labor office at $20,000 a year, tax-free, plus car, chauffeur and gasoline, was published, at our expense, by his own publicity department in the July issue of the ILO News. It shows Morse standing at the portal of his palace on the shore of Lake Geneva (beautiful beach adjoins palace gardens) engaged in official discussion with the minister of labor and welfare of Nigeria. This dignitary is Chief Festus Sam Okotie-Ehoh and he is wearing an old-fashioned two-dollar sailor straw hat with a cluster of cassowary plumes sticking about two feet in the air over Morse's nude scalp. Festus Sam is wearing a jacket like the top of a pajama suit and a triple strand of beads down to his sternum and a longer loop down to his belt-buckle with a spool strung onto it. He has a watch on his left wrist. He is leaning on a walking stick with a ferrule about five inches long and he is clutching in his left fingers a liberal fold of a long dress which has a couple of yards of voluminous train kicked forward on the ground, revealing a black leather European shoe as big as a seagoing barge. The dress is a rich brocade with ivy leaves and a special figure that looks like a conventionalized australian crab.

To Festus Sam's left stands James P. Mitchell, the U. S. Secretary of Labor and Sam's official opposite number. Mitchell and Morse are smiling at Sam and Sam wears a quizzical grin which might be construed as "what goofy characters these American are, wearing collars and ties and tailored pants when they could wear plumes, beads and brocade dresses.

The cut-line, by Morse's official press-agent, Ed Allen, a colonel in the reserve of our gallant armed forces, says Morse, Festus Sam and Mitchell are discussing "ways for ILO to help improve labor-management relations throughout the world. (ILO News Photo.)"

Nigeria may not be one of those places where people drink their bath-water and eat their young, but the public officials do wear cassowary, plumes, clam-shells and trains.

Mitchell is a mysterious stranger who was brought in to cover Ike's embarrassment after Martin Durkin, the president of the Plumbers' union racket and a Democrat, of course, resigned in a blast of abuse at the AF of L convention in St. Louis. In March, 1954, soon after Mitchell took over Durkin's job, he fired Spencer Miller, one of the few honest, idealistic unionists in the whole United States on a trumped-up charge that Miller made "indiscreet" remarks at a dinner given by Morse's ILO in Geneva on Thanksgiving Day, 1953.

Miller's job was assistant secretary of labor. The fact is that Ike had thrown in with Dave Dubinsky's underground political apparatus operated by the old inveterate, unregenerate Bolshevik Communists, Jay Lovestone and Irving Brown. For some fantastic, if not idiotic reason, he had let himself be convinced that this Dubinsky team was a fine, absolutely anti-Communist layout, notwithstanding the undisputed history of Lovestone and Brown and their failure, under public challenge, to present proof that they had ever recanted.

Miller knew Lovestone and Brown of old and he soon turned up evidence that Lovestone, a mysterious conniver and political propagandist, was appointing so-called labor attaches in our embassies all over the non-Soviet world. At this dinner in Geneva, on Thanksgiving Day, 1953, Miller was asked to read Ike's Thanksgiving proclamation, Miller was a greenhorn in the bureaucratic mazes of Morse's Geneva Hicogalorum so he didn't know there was a rule or tradition which forbade speeches at this hoe-down.

Therefore, as the highest U. S. officer present, he read the customary clap-trap, always kicked off by some hack White House secretary and signed with a rubber stamp.

This script was so lousy, however, that poor Miller figured he could do no harm by adorning it with a couple of Joe Millers. So he teed off on Churchill, the late President Taft and Adlai Stevenson. He thought nothing more about it but the American "labor attaché" from the U. S. Embassy in Japan hopped up and let go a beef about the Stevenson gag and offered a toast to the defeated nominee of the repudiated Democratic Party. Miller realized that all his jokes were turkeys, but when one of the Lovestone attaches crawled him for the Stevenson gag after the dinner, he decided to explain and apologize to Stevenson, who sent a graceful reply. Miller promptly mailed this to the character who had made the squawk after the dinner.

Nobody has intimated that Miller was drunk because he is very sedate if not T.T. Others present were well loaded, according to Thanksgiving custom. Miller, incidentally, is on the faculty of New York U. and is honored among men for building the marvelous Jersey Turnpike without a dollar of graft to anyone, including union thieves. This may be an overstatement because surely some graft must have occurred but still, the job is notorious among the union mobs and, of course, among the contractors, as a very repugnant performance. However, it probably is not a precedent, for to err is human and some fun, too.

During his brief tenure as assistant secretary of labor, Miller narrowed down the Lovestone machine with its hidden power in embassies all over. You saw perhaps recently that an investigator for the House committee was indicted on charge of swiping a report on Lovestone from a secret file of the air force.

Somebody squealed from Geneva to Eisenhower that Miller had made "indiscreet" remarks at the Geneva Thanksgiving brawl, Mitchell fired Miller in March, 1954, and Ike gave him a snarling letter acknowledging his resignation. The pretext of the "indiscretion" is a raw fake. Miller was fired because he was learning too much about Lovestone, Brown, Dubinsky and their worldwide political machine operating through "labor attaches" paid with our taxes all over the world. Lovestone and Brown threatened to run over gutters red with the blood of American patriots and never have recanted under challenge.

THE NATION'S PRESS THINGS OUR STUDENTS ARE NOT TAUGHT AVERAGE PERSON DOESN'T KNOW AND POLITICIANS IGNORE The Southern Conservative The United States is a Constitutional Republic. It is not, and has never been, a Democracy. Woodrow Wilson started this deception by referring to the United States as a "Democratic" Republic. Roosevelt played up this misleading designation for all it was worth and today otherwise intelligent and informed persons are perpetuating the error.

Our is a government with Limited Federal powers as specified in the Constitution and most of the extraneous agencies, bureaus, boards and commissions in Washington exercise authority over the lives, actions and destiny of the American people, are unconstitutional, and would be so declared if we still had a Supreme Court, which functioned in accordance with its own specified Constitutional powers.

YOU PERHAPS NOTED THAT Syd Cohen, the ex-Major Leaguer, was back as the El Paso Texan manager at last night's series opener here.

Cohen, who "fired" himself recently as the field boss, returned when his successor, Jim Mangam, left the club a few days ago because of fines assessed against him.

Mangam was assessed a three-day suspension by the league office and a $100 fine by the Texan on charges of "conduct unbecoming a professional baseball player" in a game at Amarillo.

The umpires in this particular game charged that Mangam, while his team was suffering a 2-2 snafu, made a farce of the game, citing one instance of the catcher taking over the hurling duties and throwing "bloopers."

After he was ejected from the game in the sixth inning, the umpire read, he went into the stands and "made a show" before being chased again.

Mangam, who left for his home in San Francisco, said "I clowned around a little but $100 is a pretty stiff fine for Class B." He said he may quit the game to become a golf pro and that he will finish a business administration course at San Francisco University.

Mangam started this season with the Pittsburgh Pirates. He joined the Texan as a player and a manager, who stepped down from his managerial duties after being named General Manager of the Texan.

We don't know what the umpire's report will be on last night's game but we feel sure that if league president Hal Sayles had been in attendance, Cohen would be in for a fine or suspension or both himself.

The Oiler's lost a game this season via forfeit because of an incident that started over Seitz arguing over ball and strike calls.

Cohen, in last night's game, made several trips to the plate to argue with the plate umpire over ball and strike calls and got away with it.

We're not going to say that Cohen wasn't justified in making these trips but there's a WT-NM League rule that a manager cannot protest ball and strike calls.

Umpire Sellers, the plate ump last night, let Cohen get away with "murder."

Cohen's constant baiting was the main reason the game lasted three hours.

If the ump's aren't going to adhere to the league rule all the way on the no baiting of ball and strike calls, then the rule should be scratched from the books.

Several around the league have cast opinions that the ump's are afraid of Seitz. But, it seems, they are more afraid of Cohen than Grover.

Ted Williams

Ted Keeps Red Sox Flag Hopes Alive

Torrid Ted Williams can't win the pennant for the Red Sox all by himself but he's sure giving it one whack of a try and worrying all the other contenders half to death in the process.

The 36-year-old Williams, who is averaging almost a run batted in per game since coming out of "retirement" in late May, put on one of his patented performances Tuesday night in leading the Red Sox to an 8-3 victory over the Indians and to within 3 1/2 games of the American League lead.

Williams drove in four runs, making a total of 63 in 67 games, as he boosted his batting average to .344 with his 23rd homer and a double. Ted's two-run homer in the third inning was a line drive over the right field fence at the expense of loser Herb Score while he smashed his two-run double to left center off the ace reliever Don Mossi in the seventh.

Chiefly because of Williams' justly hitting, the Red Sox were the only club in the league's "top four" to gain ground.

Even though the White Sox actually lost a percentage point by dividing a doubleheader with the Orioles, they took over first place by two percentage points when the Yankees lost to the Tigers 7-2.

The White Sox ran their winning streak to five straight games with a 6-2 victory in the opener but the Orioles ended a four-game losing streak of their own with a 10-3 triumph in the nightcap.

Four Baltimore errors made that relatively easy for Virgil Trucks to post his 13th victory.

Frank Lary nailed Detroit's five-game losing streak by limiting New York to eight hits. The Tigers made short work of Yankee starter Bob Turley, chasing him to cover in the second inning when Detroit went ahead 3-1 and the Yanks never caught up again.

Kansas City defeated Washington 4-3 despite two homers by Roy Sievers and a homer and a triple by Carlos Paula. Vic Power drove in three of the Athletics' runs with a homer and a single.

The Brooklyn Dodgers put a stop to their backslide with a 6-4 victory over the Cubs that moved them 12 games ahead of the second-place Braves who were beaten by the Phillies 4-3. In the other National League games, the Pirates nipped the Redlegs 2-1, while the Cardinals edged the Giants 2-1.

Carl Furuhjelm's two-run homer in the seventh inning snapped a 4-1 tie and earned relief pitcher Don Bessent his sixth straight victory without a defeat. Bessent had taken over for Dodger starter Don Newcombe, who gave up all of Chicago's runs and then left the game with a strained shoulder muscle in the third inning.

Stan Lopata's single with the bases full off Lew Burdette capped a three-run rally in the ninth inning that gave the Phils their victory over the Braves. Ed Mathews hit his 33rd homer with one on in the first.

Deadline Nears For Coaches Assn. Dues

DALLAS - UP - High school coaches Texas have until Sept. 1 to pay their $2 membership in the Texas High School Coaches Association or forfeit the right of their schoolboy athletes to be eligible for either the North-South football or basketball games at next summer's coaching school at Lubbock.

That specific requirement was cited Tuesday by L. W. McConachie of Edna High School, executive secretary of the association, as a warning to avoid slighting or embarrassing a star athlete who can be eligible for the all-star game only if his coach is a paid up member of the association.

An embarrassing situation occurred before the 1955 game early this month in San Antonio because of a coach's failure to maintain membership in the association. A South Texas schoolboy athlete was picked for the basketball squad and his name announced before officials discovered that his basketball coach was not a member of the association.

McConachie also disclosed that the coaches association last year alone paid out nearly $5,000 in insurance benefits to five permanently disabled schoolboy athletes and to a former coach stricken with polio.

Although he said that there were "five or six" permanently disabled football players from Texas schoolboy ranks last year, only three of the players were entitled to $1,000 benefits as a result of their coaches belonging to the association. The other coaches were not members and thus their players could not qualify for benefits.

Two players who were hurt in past years also received $600 checks, while the coach, Peter Bluntzier of Victoria, was given $150 and a $206.95 air conditioner.

McConachie also announced committee chairmen for selection of next year's all-star squads. They are Cecil Johnson and Rosy Adkinson of Dallas, North football and basketball, respectively; Bill Stages of Corpus Christi, South football, and Paul McCarthy of San Antonio, South basketball.

Bobby Brown's grand slam homer, along with excellent relief hurling by Ken Yoke, accounted for El Paso's win over the Oilers. Pat Loeferly accounted for both Blue Sox runs. The only hit off Wade, who won his 11th game, was a bunt single by Paul Mohr, the league's "rookie of the year," in the second inning.

The loss kept Amarillo in a tie for the league lead with the Albuquerque Dukes who fell to Plainview 9 to 7. In other games Lubbock stopped Clovis 4 to 1 and El Paso trimmed Pampa 10 to 6.

Don Stokes and I. B. Palmer drove in the go-ahead runs in the Dukes.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. - UP - Youngsters who hope to crash the headlines as future college stars met here Wednesday night in the seventh annual All-American prep football game.

'Grand Award Nite' On Tap In Finale

By BUCK FRANCIS Pampa News Sports Editor

Red Dial will attempt to square things up for the Oilers in their series with the El Paso Texan tonight when he takes the hill in the last game of the current homestand.

The Texan grabbed the series opener last night, 10-6, before 1,355 paid fans, the 23rd straight time the Oilers have topped the 1,000 mark at Oiler Park.

Tonight's starting time will be 8 o'clock, 15 minutes earlier than in previous games. The new starting time will prevail for the remainder of the season.

Dial will be gunning for his 19th win of the season tonight. He will likely be opposed by Art Perina. Tonight will be "Grand Award Night" at Oiler Park. Hawkins Radio and TV Lab will give away an Admiral table model radio for tonight's grand award of the merchant's homestand.

The Oilers made several threats in the late innings to catch up but couldn't get the hit that would do the trick.

The Texan took a 2-0 lead in the second on singles by Jim Baldacci, John Watson, Sanoff and Benny Dobbins, the latter driving starter Tommy Harrison from the hill.

The Oilers went ahead in the third when Joe Fortin belted his 36th homer of the season with two mates aboard.

El Paso tied it up at 3-3 with an unearned run in the fourth and then poured five runs across in the sixth to assume the lead and then the visitors started off the threatening Oilers the remaining distance.

Jim Martin of the Oilers hit a solo homer in the sixth, his 13th homer of the year.

Yoke came on during a two-run Oiler rally in the seventh and choked off a potential big inning and then blanked the locals the final two innings although he was touched for four hits.

The grand slam came off the bat of Bobby Brown in the sixth. The blow climaxed a five-run Texan rally that snapped a 3-3 deadlock.

Oiler manager Grover Seitz employed five pitchers in last night's tilt with Fred Jackson, second of the quintet, absorbing loss. Jackson served up the grand slammer to Brown that finish him for the night.

Tommy Harrison started but, after giving up four singles in the second, he was lifted in favor of Jackson. Jackson hurled well until the sixth when he ran out of gas.

All of the Texan damage in the sixth came after two were away. The trouble started when Jackson

G-Sox Stopped On 1-Hitter

Ken Wade gave up only one hit Tuesday night as the Abilene Blue Sox trimmed Amarillo 2 to 0.

Don Maddern socked two doubles which accounted for both Blue Sox runs. The only hit off Wade, who won his 11th game, was a bunt single by Paul Mohr, the league's "rookie of the year," in the second inning.

The loss kept Amarillo in a tie for the league lead with the Albuquerque Dukes who fell to Plainview 9 to 7. In other games Lubbock stopped Clovis 4 to 1 and El Paso trimmed Pampa 10 to 6.

Drew has a speedster in quarterback Billy Stacy of Winona, Miss., and a power run in Nick Pietroante, 220 pound back from Ansonia, Conn.

The East team will outweigh the West stars by about eight pounds.

Both squads have big men in the line with the East's giant tackle Mosca, topping the big boys at 245 pounds. Heaviest man on the West squad is tackle Frank Geremia of Sacramento, Calif.

Mohr is WT-NM's 'Rookie Of Year'

AMARILLO - UP - Paul Mohr, former University of Texas star now playing first base for Amarillo, has been named "rookie of the year" in the Class B West Texas-New Mexico League.

Mohr, who is batting above .400 and is leading the league's other first basemen in fielding records, had his biggest day of the season on July 4 when he slammed four homers and a double to drive in 11 runs in a single game.

Court Photos Cause Mixed Reactions

PHILADELPHIA — UP — Mixed reaction greeted Tuesday an attempt by three photographers to show that a courtroom ban on photography is outmoded. The photographers, with small Leica M-E cameras concealed under their coats, slipped about a mock trial audience and snapped some 325 pictures in a test by the American Bar Association at the Union League Club.

The photographs will be shown with slides to members of the ABA. Prints also will be placed on a bulletin board at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel, headquarters of the ABA convention. The photographers sought to prove that the association's Canon 35, which forbids picture-taking in court, was born in an era of antique cameras and films. They contend modern equipment makes it possible to take photographs with due regard for the dignity of the court and the persons involved.

Three "judges," one of them a real one, presided at the trial, during which four attorneys argued whether a debt adjuster is engaged in the unauthorized practice of law. Judge Herbert F. Goodrich of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here said the photography was "very smoothly done." He pointed out, however, that no witnesses appeared in the test and said he usually found them "self-conscious" and that if the picture-taking would drive them "crazy," he added, however, that "maybe, I'm old-fashioned."

"I think it best to leave it to individual judgment," said Goodrich, meaning he thought the question should be left to each judge. He added that the photography during the mock trial did not bother him but said, "personally, I'm against it."

Youth Admits Arizona Killing

KINGMAN, Ariz. — UP — An 18-year-old former merchant marine tearfully admitted Tuesday that he shot and killed a Taos, N.M., artist when the man refused to give him his money, according to Kingman and Mohave County, Ariz., authorities. Kingman Police Chief Elmer Inus and Mohave County Sheriff Frank L. Porter identified the youth as Beverly Gravelle Romney, of Taos. They said Romney made an oral statement admitting he killed W. B. Rowe, about 45, also of Taos, Monday and then drove to a spot near Sanders, Ariz., on Highway 66 to dispose of the body. Sanders is at the New Mexico state line. Body of a man clothed only in a shirt and partially wrapped in a blanket was found about a mile north of the heavily-traveled highway Monday by an Indian boy. The body was tentatively identified as that of Rowe. Rowe's blood-splattered car was found early Tuesday at Kingman. Romney was arrested at the local bus depot after he purchased a bus ticket to Ontario, Calif.

MAKING A GO OF LIFE

By ROY L. SMITH
Read I Peter 2:19-25
Jesus knew no guilt. The amazing life Jesus lived is explained by the fact that he knew no sense of guilt. If we are to have a vivid sense of God we must be relieved of any sense of guilt with which we may be hampered. Christian theology comes to our assistance just here with a positive assurance that forgiveness is available to all who will accept it, and this removes that sense of guilt. In the case of Jesus there was no sense of guilt such as harras the average person. We see in him what life can be when it is lived utterly devoid of guilt. God seemed as real to him as any companion with whom he walked; he stopped to talk to him as he tramped along the country highway, as he wandered through the fields, or even in the midst of the crowd. He faced life at all times as though he were perfectly sure of the presence and approval of God. To live in such a fashion is worth any moral cost that may be involved. Anything that helps us be rid of the sense of guilt opens the way to peace and power. Anything that helps us feel the nearness of God enlarges our assurance. Every time we do the will of God it intensifies our confidence in the good will of God. There is no mystery here. It is as simple and as demonstrable as can be. The purer the life we live, the clearer our vision of God will be. This is the reason Jesus said: "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God." (Matt. 5:8) I am working and living with three, O God, and thou art the same God who saw Jesus through. As I consider my Master's victory, I become more and more assured of my own. As thou didst prepare a resurrection for him, following the cross, thou wilt prepare a rescue for me following my difficulties. Amen. Can you honestly say that you are at this moment ready to do the will of God if you can know what that will is? Would you tithe if you could be convinced that he desired it? Would you continue that questionable habit for which you must apologize? Read The News Classified Ads.

Reds, Japs In Futile Talks

LONDON — UP — Russian and Japanese peace negotiators conferred for an hour and 45 minutes Tuesday without announced progress. It was the 14th session of a conference aimed at producing a separate peace. After the talks, Japanese delegate Shunichi Matsumoto said Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik had failed again to deliver the list of Japanese war prisoners still in Russian hands which he has been promising since June 26.

July Housing Decline Expecied By 'Experts'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 — UP — Government and industry experts are not surprised at the sharp decline in new housing construction in July. They contend it does not indicate a break in the market. The 11 per cent drop, from 129,000 starts in June to 115,000 last month, was attributed by the Bureau of Labor Statistics to some "voluntary adjustment" in mortgage credit.

The decline had nothing to do with Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration moves to increase down payments and shorten the maximum length of re-payment, because the new VA and FHA regulations did not go into effect until July 30. Also, according to officials of both agencies the measures were aimed at curbing possible excesses, not at cutting down construction. FHA and VA officials say nothing significant in the June-to-July decline, which was 20 per cent for FHA-insured starts and 6 per cent for VA. Housing starts financed by conventional mortgages fell 7 per cent from June.

From Fantastic to Terrific An official of the United States Savings and Loan League described the decline as "a return from a fantastic level to a terrific level." He pointed out that the 115,000 starts made in July was only 1,000 below July of last year — the second highest year on record with 1,220,000 starts. July starts this year were at an annual rate of 1,202,000 units. Coupling this with the preceding six months and the outlook for the next five experts estimate the 1955 total will be 1.2 million to 1.3 million. That would be the second or third best year on record.

Quake Recorded In Canada

VICTORIA, B. C. — UP — Officials of the dominion astrophysical observatory said Tuesday a major earthquake struck off the coast of British Columbia at 11:35 a.m. ed. Seismologist Bill Mile of the observatory here said the quake occurred about 300 to 400 miles southwest of Vancouver island.

Builders, too, consider the drop neither big nor significant. Not Unanticipated "It is not a break and it is not unanticipated," said one. A National Association of Home Builders official said, the annual rate indicated by July starts is "about right."

He said it bears out builders' predictions of about 1.2 million starts for 1955. In fact, he said, there is no reason why home building cannot continue at a rate of better than one million a year through 1960 because of demand generated by population growth and the continued destruction and abandonment of 250,000 to 300,000 dwelling units a year. An FHA official reported his agency's June handling of 32,000 insured commitments was "unusually high in relation to May," when 28,000 such starts were made. He attributed this performance to intensive efforts by FHA field offices to speed up approval of loans. He explained that this speedup was reflected in high June starts but by July the backlog had been taken care of.

"There is absolutely no feeling now," he said, "that a trend (downward) is established." Spears, bless him, said he would like to back up "Mr. Nichols' statement regarding fast rides in caboosees." "When I started to railroad in 1898 on the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad out of Minneapolis as a brakeman, we called the caboose a 'way car.' And with the M. and St. L., and later with the Great Northern, I took many a fast ride in a caboose."

Spears, who is retired, likes to read about the fictional lore of the old roads. Every old-time railroader, he says, had his share of thrills, but nothing like "the young whipper-snapper writers of the fiction field would have us believe." "The old time 'way car,' he says, "were of the best. We had sleeping quarters, a stove with an oven for cooking, and we never left base without a bunch of supplies."

Old Railroader Comes To Aid Of Nichols In 'Caboose' Tiff

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON — UP — It wasn't my purpose when I wrote a story about caboosees to get myself in the middle of a hassle between a couple of old railroad men. At first, along came D. G. Williams of San Antonio, Tex., who disputed my statement that I once took a runaway ride on a "fast caboose." He claimed I was too fast with the word "fast" and mentioned such other words as "slow" as pertinent to the early days of railroading. My ride certainly wasn't a planned one. It was a means of escape from punishment for doing rather badly in seventh grade arithmetic.

Anyhow, now comes a letter in my defense. It is from Robert F. Spears of Whitefish, Mont., and was forwarded from the news editor of the Daily Inter Lake of Kalispell, Mont. Spears said he was 52 years and four months a "rail" man and most of the time on the freights, a good part on the hind end of caboosees of a train.

Spears, bless him, said he would like to back up "Mr. Nichols' statement regarding fast rides in caboosees." "When I started to railroad in 1898 on the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad out of Minneapolis as a brakeman, we called the caboose a 'way car.' And with the M. and St. L., and later with the Great Northern, I took many a fast ride in a caboose."

According to old Bob Spears, a man never knew when he started a freight run whether he would be gone a week, "or a couple of months."

"Mr. Williams," says the man from Montana, "advises that if Mr. Nichols would inspect the undercarriage of the present day caboose he would find few changes made in the last half century. I would like to say there have been many changes."

Spears, my defender, has a nice little anecdote. When the old timers went out they fetched along their finest "get up," Sunday clothes. Never could tell when there would be a lay-over in a town where a dance was being held. Kicking up a heel was better than cooking up a "mulligan," "and it didn't take as long."

Spears says he recalls one rear-end collision on one of his freights. The engineer following the Spears train wasn't watching his knitting and rammed "four-cars deep into my train." "And there, on the engine of the freight that did it," says Spears, "was my dress-up coat. Upside down. Lucky we didn't get killed. Worse, that fellow spoiled a good 'mulligan,' which wasn't quite done yet."

"White's Son Suffers Fever" AUSTIN — UP — Edward White, four-year-old son of Agriculture Commissioner and Mrs. John White, is a victim of rheumatic fever, it has been revealed. A doctor said Edward was making "satisfactory progress" but it was anticipated he would be kept in bed under observation "for several weeks."

Women Responsible For 'Hard-Top' Popularity

By REY W. BRUNE
DETROIT, Aug. 22 — UP — A woman who liked the looks of convertibles but not the "top-down" winds which mussed her hair was responsible for introduction of "hard top" automobiles which now make up one out of every four cars built in the United States.

The woman singled out by Buick officials as being responsible for the automobile style they pioneered in 1949 is Sarah Ragsdale, wife of Buick's manufacturing manager. When she ordered a new convertible in the spring of 1948, her husband couldn't figure out why she insisted on a convertible when she never put the top down. "I like the sporty appearance of a convertible but I don't like to put the top down because the wind musses my hair," she explained.

Her husband thought it over and then called Harley Earl, General Motors' vice president in charge of styling, to find out if General Motors couldn't build a convertible with a steel top. Earl dipped into the files and found a model that had been on the drawing board for years. He said Ragsdale was the first person who had shown an interest in it. When Earl showed the drawings to Harlow Curtice, who then headed the Buick division, it was decided that such a car would be built. A model was shown in early 1949 and it proved such a hit that hard-tops soon were being built for public sale. Buick only built 4,343 that year. But this year the total will swell to about 470,000 hard-tops, including the new four-door hard-top

Youth, 13, Kills His Mother

PALMDALE, Calif. — UP — A 13-year-old boy shot and killed his mother because she apparently thwarted his plan to run away from home, sheriff's deputies reported Tuesday. "I don't know why I did it," Jimmy Thomson told deputies. "I was going to run away from home. I wanted to show the other kids I was no sissy just because I never got into trouble. I got mad because she wouldn't sympathize with me." Detectives found Mrs. Hilde W. Thomson, 51, dead on the kitchen floor. She had been wounded in the head three times.

Physician Learns New Facts Concerning Pain

By DELOS SMITH
NEW YORK—UP—A curious physician has found new evidence that pain is not so much what it is as what it means.
Pain is—in some cases—a myocardial infarction, which is a mouthfilling phrase. But the myocardium simply is the muscular tissue of the heart and in fact is a patch of dead or dying tissue therein, caused by an interruption in blood supply.

Illness Noted by Another

In the majority of his case, the fact that the patient was acutely ill was "picked up by alert psychiatric aides or nurses, who noted something wrong with the patient, rather than on the basis of complaints that were evaluated.

Truman Farm Giving Way To Progress

KANSAS CITY—UP—The Truman farm at nearby Grandview, Mo., where former president Harry S. Truman said he learned to "plow the straight furrow," is gradually giving way to progress.
The former chief executive, his brother, J. Vivian Truman, and his sister, Miss Mary Jane, recently yielded a large piece of their farm to a suburban developer.

Former Industrial Power Was OK For The Germans

By PETER WEBB
DUESSELDORF, Germany — UP — The supervisor at the giant Krupp works waved toward the rows of glittering machines, most of them made in the United States and Switzerland. "You see how foolish politics are," he said. "You take away all our old machines and replace them with new ones. We are very satisfied." It was a sage commentary on the ironic chain of events that has brought Germany surging back to industrial power. There were nights in 1943 and 1944 when the Ruhr's grimy cities were engulfed in fire from Allied bomber strikes. One third of the Krupp industries was totally destroyed. Another 40 per cent was dismantled and shipped all over the world. Alfred Krupp Von Bohlen und Halbach went to prison as a war criminal. Brand New Machines Four years ago he was released and now his factories, making everything from false teeth to steel, are in the thick of the competitive global war for markets. They have the advantage of brand new machinery and plants. There are those who term Ger-

College Is Too Crowded For Negroes

BEAUMONT — UP — Negroes will not be admitted to Lamar State College of Technology this fall because of crowded classroom conditions, the school's board of regents has decided. The decision Tuesday came several hours after a 15-foot long cross made of tar paper was burned into the grass at the entrance to the college. Regents said this had nothing to do with their decision. Seven Negroes from Beaumont and the surrounding area had applied for admission this fall. A committee from the NAACP appeared before the regents and requested a decision favoring admittance of the Negroes. But the board said all planning of facilities and accommodations had been done to accommodate current and prospective increases in enrollment of white students as specified in the bill creating the college. It was estimated that admission of Negroes could bring a 30 per cent increase above the normal anticipated growth which would overtax teaching facilities, regents said. The board offered a resolution that the college administration, in future planning and building, consider the possibility of an increase which would result from admission of Negroes. The cross was burned on the campus early Tuesday morning and college officials were of the opinion it was the work of juveniles. The cross was laid on the ground and then set afire, leaving an image burned into the grass.

Deputy Resigns In Galveston

GALVESTON, — UP — Deputy Sheriff Gene Henson, an ace investigator for Sheriff Frank Bizagone, resigned his post Tuesday, but he wouldn't say why. Reports had it that Henson would take an investigator's job with District Attorney Marsene Johnson Jr. Johnson last week said he had asked his investigator, C. W. Van Dyke, for his resignation. Van Dyke said Tuesday he thought he was getting "a dirty deal." "I'm not going to take it lying down," Van Dyke said.

Expressway Is Cancelled

AUSTIN — UP — The State Highway Commission Tuesday cancelled a proposed expressway project on U.S. 83 in Hidalgo county because the county was unable to provide required right-of-way. Expressway construction had been authorized from Mission to Westaco, approximately 24 miles, an estimated cost of $3 million. A statement from the commission said it now "appears that construction cannot be undertaken within the foreseeable future since the country has been unable to furnish necessary right-of-way." Funds, the commission added, are needed for "construction of other projects throughout the state where plans are prepared and right-of-way secured." However, the Valley proposal was not completely buried. State Highway Engineer Dewitt Greer was directed by the commission to continue advance planning on the project, with the understanding that when and if Hidalgo county is able to furnish the right-of-way, the project "shall again be brought before the commission for finance consideration."

SAC Meet Begins

MARCH AFB, Calif. — UP — Giant Air Force bombers were scheduled to start dropping theoretical hydrogen bombs on western cities Wednesday in the start of the seventh annual Strategic Air Command's bombing and navigation meet. More than 1,000 officers and airmen from 34 SAC bombardment wings throughout the nation will take part in the six-day event to decide the winner of the Fairchild Trophy for the highest combined bombing and navigation scores. Swept-winger Stratofortess will fly from this base near Riverside, Calif., while huge B-36 Peacemakers will fly from Fairchild Air Force Base in the state of Washington. The crew of each plane will fly the competition to make radar-bomb drops on pinpoint targets. Theoretical bombs will be dropped on Los Angeles and Sacramento in California and Spokane, Wash. Achievement awards in the names of two late members, Robert Francis and Susan Ball, will be awarded.

Ex-Marine Dies In Flaming Car

FORT WORTH — UP — A 26-year-old former Marine sergeant was burned to death in his automobile early Tuesday after it was struck from the rear by an empty cattle truck 10 miles north of Fort Worth on Highway 81. The body was identified by papers in a billfold as that of Johnny J. Lovett of Decatur, who was employed by a Weatherford roofing company. It was learned that Lovett and his wife planned to move to Weatherford soon. Lovett, who had worked in Weatherford all day Monday, was believed to have been on his way home. The crash was at 1 a.m., but it was an hour and a half later before Saginaw firemen cooled the burned auto enough for removal of the body. Driver of the truck, Sam Taylor, an employe of B. G. Gibson of Fort Worth, was unhurt.

Democrats' Troubles May Last Into 1956 Campaign

By RAYMOND LAHR
WASHINGTON — UP — Current evidence indicates that the Democratic party's troubles in the South will carry into the 1956 campaign despite the growing unity among Democrats in Congress. Some of the more astute southern veterans here share this belief on the basis of two assumptions: 1. That Republicans will renominate President Eisenhower, who cracked the Solid South in 1952 and won the electoral votes of four southern states. 2. That Adlai E. Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic nominee, is the most probable choice of the 1956 convention, and that Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, who could expect even more southern opposition, ranks next. Problems Unsolved Since Mr. Eisenhower's overwhelming victory in 1952, the Democrats have drawn somewhat closer together, particularly in Congress. But the problems which caused party splits in 1948 and 1952, particularly the civil rights issue, have not been solved. Two of the 1952 pro-Eisenhower governors, Allan Shivers of Texas and Robert F. Kennon of Louisiana, are still in office. Sen. Harry F. Byrd, who refused to support Stevenson in 1952, is still the dominant Democrat in Virginia. Strom Thurmond, 1948 States Rights party nominee and a 1952 Eisenhower backer, is now in the Senate. There is no reason yet to believe that men such as these will turn around and support Stevenson or Harriman in 1956 even if, as many Democrats claim, Mr. Eisenhower has lost ground in the South. Johnson Stricken Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson has been given much of the credit for the increased unity which has developed among Democrats in Congress during the past three years.

'Good Deed' Club Founded By Young Hollywood Stars

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD — UP — A few Hollywood stars make spicy headlines, but some younger thespians of the plaster city have banded together for a worthy "good deed" club. The movie capital in some ways is like college, and members of this charitable group could be roughly classified as the freshmen and sophomores of Flickerville. The young thespians, including such fan magazine veterans as Tony Curtis, Janet Leigh, Debbie Reynolds and Gary Crosby, revived an old Hollywood club of the '30's called the "Thalians." The original club, including Bing Crosby, Charlie Lombard and Ginger Rogers, disbanded in 1934. They went in mostly for fun, but although the club namesake, Thalia, is the Greek muse of comedy, their young successors decided to help one cause: Mental health. Fried and Hollywood were officially combined last May by Thalian charter members Gary Crosby, Jack Haley Jr. (son of the comedian), and actress Jayne Mansfield, Leigh Snowden, Peggy King and Lori Nelson. "We were discussing mental health at a party and the need for more mental hospitals," explained young Haley. "Byrnie Foy, who had been a member of the original group, suggested we re-activate the Thalians and help mental health." By now the incorporated, nonprofit club totals 250 members, including nightclub star Sammy Davis Jr., actress Rita Moreno and Dick Contino. Actor Hugh O'Brian is president, Gary Crosby vice president and Maureen O'Hara secretary ("she's older than most of us but she wanted to help," a member explained). "Elder" advisers to the board of directors include Frank Sinatra, Jimmy Durante and Danny Thomas. A member must work in the "entertainment industry or allied arts," be between 20 and 30 and have "good reputation and character."

Living Costs Show Rise

WASHINGTON — UP — The cost of living in July showed the largest increase of the past 14 months, mostly because of rising food prices. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported Tuesday the gain was 3 per cent. Small as it was, the increase means a penny-an-hour wage rise for some 450,000 General Motors and Ford Motor Co. workers and for 300,000 in other industries. The BLS index of consumer prices for July was 144.7, using average 1947-49 prices as a comparison basis of 100. The June figure was 144.4. The increase put the index figure just half way between the high and low figures of the past two years. BLS also reported the take-home pay (after tax withholdings) of the average factory worker last month was at an all-time high for a July, though lower than the record set in May. For a worker with three dependents, July take-home pay averaged $69.84 a week.

Harris Traffic Loop Gets Highway Commission Nod

AUSTIN — UP — A Harris county delegation seeking construction of a traffic loop from State Highway 73 through Baytown received a favorable nod Tuesday from the State Highway Commission. Commission Chairman E. H. Thornton Jr. expressed hope that the project, estimated to cost $3 million, could be programmed "soon." "Shortly after the first of the year, I believe we can tell you how soon," Thornton told the delegation. He said it would depend on congressional action on highway financing measures. Thornton spoke of the connection from Highway 73 to Baytown as "a project we all agree should be done." Interested in Job "If you're interested in doing it right, we're interested in committing ourselves to the proper amount," he added. Spokesmen for the delegation were W. T. Busch, chairman of the Baytown Chamber of Commerce's highway committee, and Bob Casey of Houston, Harris county judge. Busch emphasized that the group was not interested in giving the Baytown project precedence over the construction of State 73 itself from Houston to Port Arthur. Fred Hartman, publisher of the Baytown Sun, said the delegation "greatly appreciates the attitude of the commission in thinking big on this problem." Decker Drive Construction The proposal advanced by the delegation calls for construction on Decker Drive, then to the south side of the city and to State Highway 146, and on to Chambers county. Thornton said an origin and destination study of traffic in the area would first have to be made before making any plans on the requested project. Thornton told the delegation, "the failure of this congress to pass an adequate highway bill will probably rebound to the benefit of the people." He pointed out that next year is an election year, and that both the Democratic and Republican parties will likely be eager to enact a highway financing measure. Under present conditions, Thornton said, the Baytown project likely would have to be projected "two to three years hence," but he added, "I don't see how congress can fail to provide an answer."
