'America's Boy Friend' Has Returned To Make A Film

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD — UP — Twenty-five years ago Buddy Rogers was the curly-haired handsome "America's Boy Friend" of the movies. Now he's back on film — but this time as a gun-totin' preacher in a western.

Movie fans remember Buddy as that perennial college boy who romped through "Wings," "My Best Girl" and "Road to Reno." Then he was the smiling leader of a dance band at college proms around the country.

Today Rogers has stepped out of stereotype to shoulder a shootin' iron and gallop over the purple sage as a fighting parson.

He hired himself for the part. Rogers decided to make four movies as an independent producer. His director asked the boss to take a role in the company's first film, "The Killer and 21 Men," starring Bob Steele and Marie Windsor.

"The director came to me with the part," explained Rogers. "I hadn't intended to play the role, I told him I didn't want to try acting again. But they talked me into it. So I got my feet wet.

"Now somebody wants me to do a TV series about a fighting parson, but it would be too much work."

Rogers has never appeared in a western before, nor played a minister. Another crooner of that era

Be Quiet, Boy!

HIGHLAND PARK, Ill. — UP — William Chaffee, 18, insisted he was charged in magistrates court with putting a police siren on his car.

To prove it, he threw back his head and let out an ear-splitting wail.

Magistrate Samuel Smith said hastily he was convinced. He dismissed Chaffee with a warning not to do it again unless he is "in a boat several miles out in the lake."

Open Season On The Tax Collectors

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON — UP — It's open season on the tax collector, scan other pieces about the Internal Revenue Service seems in order.

It seems some newspapers can be pretty mean. The revenue folks, though, take it in stride and even brag about their press clippings.

Not long back there was a notice of a new Internal Revenue Service building being planned for a large city in the South. One of the biggest papers there around commented: "We shall come to know this as the house our jack built."

The guy who put finger to key and wrote those lines apparently was not aware that he was rattling off a double pun. The head of the collection division in Washington is a nice guy named Robert L. Jack.

In a certain city in the South-west, there is a federal office building where the regional commissioner holds forth on the fifth floor. Two floors above is the alcohol and tobacco tax division.

One day the commissioner put his cane to the "up" button and got into the lift after hours. He asked the operator: "Everybody gone home, Joe?" "Yes, sub," the man said, "everybody but them alcoholics on the seventh floor."

This next one, I'll have to relate just as I got it from the tax people.

Out in Denver, the IRS and the chamber of commerce sponsored a series of classes. Personnel of companies there was to be trained in helping colleagues fill out 1955 forms. But there was a mix-up. Some letters explaining the plan were not stuffed, so a great many business firms received empty official tax envelopes. Phone calls were made and there were cries of "what goes on here?"

The press in Denver was alert. Stories were done and one headline was written: "The guilty flee where no man pursueth. Businessmen — just disregard those empty threats."

The service just lets it roll off when addressed as "the Internal Revenue Service" or the "Eternal Revenue Service."

An agent in the nearby Baltimore office sent out a letter that could qualify the service for an "eternal" label. He had sent a form to a local firm asking information about a former employe. There were a couple of blanks. One had to do with the year of employment. As sent out, the form said: "The records of this office indicate that the above named individual was employed by you in the year 1412." The former employe was on his toes. He penciled his reply with a question: "A.D. or B.C.?"

Stamp Dies Stolen When Bombs Destroyed Building

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON — UP — The German bombers came in with the dusk to the moan of sirens and the staccato of anti-aircraft guns. This was the great incendiary raid of 1940 which left London aflame.

Through streets filled with fire and rubble, security men fought their way to one of the most closely guarded private factories in the world — the plant where Thomas De La Rue and Co., print for many nations stamps and bank notes estimated at more than a billion dollars a year.

It was a smoking ruin. Gerald Newman, the architect of the company, leaped into the pit to try to save as many of the precious stamp dies as possible.

Some Never Found

But some of them were never found and, for years, Scotland Yard wondered: Could anyone have been there ahead of Newman? Someone who knew the value of the dies and was willing to risk his life to get them?

They have the answers now. Someone did manage to get one or more of the dies, for American collectors have been offered proofs of stamps made from the plates which disappeared that night.

Whoever had the dies was patient. He waited until the statute of limitations had expired before he tried to cash in on his find. But in case he's interested, Scotland Yard is still looking for him "for future reference."

De La Rue let newspapermen into their plant last week for the first time in 145 years. Uniformed guards pressed buttons, a steel grill slid up and guards checked reporters' identity at intervals.

Stamps of Confederacy

On display were stamps to be shown in the International Philatelic Exhibition in New York April 25. Among them were a sheet of 300 five-cent stamps bearing the head of Jefferson Davis and printed for the American Confederacy.

Will Rogers, Jr. Refuses To Imitate His Famous Father

By WILLIAM EWALD
NEW YORK — UP — Will Rogers Jr. may be the spittin' image of his old man, but he has no plans to be the spattin' image.

It was Will Sr., a lariat and word-twirler from Oklahoma, who lassoed himself an elegant reputation more than two decades ago by poking pointed fun at the men who make headlines. It's a pretty safe bet that a political campaign like this year's would have provided fair game for his sharp-shooting.

But Will Jr., a sensitive, articulate man who toils in the genteel sweatshops of CBS-TV, refuses to be forced into his father's mold. He'll take his "Good Morning" show to the political convention this year, but won't essay the role of picking them apart.

"I'm not much like my father in any way except for the physical resemblance," said young Rogers Thursday. "He was more humorous, more of a commentator. He had more of a point of view that he liked to express."

"I think the difference between him and myself is this: He analyzed; I'm descriptive."

Digging into a late breakfast of sausages and scrambled eggs, the 44-year-old former congressman ventured the thought that his father would have dropped pretty comfortably into the TV medium today.

"This would really have been the medium for him. Radio wasn't, but TV would have been. I think he would have been a little like Arthur Godfrey, only more humorous and more reflective."

Young Will, who also has worked as a newsman and movie actor, agreed that the kind of political needling for which his father became famous has largely disappeared.

"It's because radio and TV are neuter—sort of media," drawled Rogers. "It's just the nature of the brute and I think it should be that way."

"TV invades everybody's home. It's not like a newspaper where you can pay your money and take your choice. On TV, you simply can't take a crack at the Democrats one day and a crack at the Republicans the next."

"Someone will immediately want to know whether the cracks have been equal."

Salk Is Against 3rd Polio Shot

By MICHAEL J. O'NEILL

PITTSBURGH — UP—Dr. Jonas E. Salk is strongly against giving third polio shots to any children this year while supplies are short.

He said two injections will protect most children during the coming polio season. Third shots, recommended for the long run, should be delayed to make more vaccine available to children who need it most.

"No child should get a third dose until all children have had two shots," Salk told the United Press. "For the good of the country, the third injections should be postponed until 1957."

The famed scientist runs the virus research laboratory of the University of Pittsburgh. Salk made it plain he decided to recommend postponement of the third shots this year only because there is now substantial evidence that two doses — to a certain extent even one — will give most children protection during the coming polio season.

"On the basis of our 1955 experience," he said, "two doses can be expected to have such a good effect that little risk is involved in delaying the third. The third injection can be regarded as the one which provides a relatively long effect. Since this is not our immediate concern in 1956, the third dose should be delayed while supplies are short."

Then what kind of protection can children expect this year if they have received only one or two shots? Salk, who speaks with more authority on this subject than perhaps any other man, provided this guide:

One shot: Between 60 and 100 per cent of the children who get one dose receive protection against polio. This dose sensitizes the body's defensive mechanism so that it reacts quickly and powerfully if polio virus threatens to invade the central nervous system. Since the first shot does not produce an immune response in all children, however, a second shot is recommended.

Two Shots Protect Most Per cent: Between 85 and 100 per cent of the children who receive two shots.

TORNADOES

The Kansas highway patrol office at Chanute also confirmed one person dead and several injured at Granada, Kan., but was unable to identify any of the victims.

There was extensive property damage in Drumright to both businesses and residences. W. B. Browning, Drumright city manager, said about 20 to 25 homes were destroyed or heavily damaged. Joe Salem, a building contractor, said damage would exceed $1 million in Drumright.

Salem said there was no advance warning that the tornado would hit. In fact, he said the sky was clear and stars were shining, then suddenly "it hit with a bang."

The Salvation Army building downtown was almost demolished and the First Christian Church, the city library and a large grocery were heavily damaged.

Salem said damage to the new Edison school in Drumright, which had been recently constructed, would amount possibly to $200,000. The tornadoes played up and down a 200-mile long squall line running from about central Oklahoma to central Kansas.

It was difficult to determine exactly how many twisters struck, since some of them could have been the same tornado that already had struck other points as the front pushed eastward.

There was very little rain accompanying the front. It was so dry, for instance, that where one victim's body was found after the storm passed through Drumright, the ground was dry underneath.

Drumright is a hilly town, some 35 miles southwest of Tulsa. The twister hit here about 9:33 p. m. and jumped across several hills. The downtown section was the hardest hit.

Cat Eats Child's Toes

HYATTSVILLE, Md. — UP—A couple whose pet margay cat ate some of their infant's toes face 10-day jail sentences for child neglect.

A handyman who was caring for the infant also faces a 10-day sentence. The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Perry of nearby Beltsville, were convicted Monday in Hyattsville police court of "willful" child neglect. Their 49-year-old handyman, Winslow Prescott, was convicted of failure to provide proper care for the child. All three noted appeals.

Police said the margay cat stole into the Perry nursery March 13 and ate the toes from a foot of three-month-old Thomas Perry. Thomas sleeping year-old sister, Pamela, was unharmed.

Dr. William Mann, director of the Washington, D. C., zoo, testified at the trial that a margay is a small wild cat from the tropical jungles, somewhat resembling an ocelot. Mann said the viciousness of margay varies with individual beasts, but "at the zoo we keep our hands out of the cages, they like to nibble at you."

Testimony brought out the cat had attached the child once before. "Perry testified that he was in New York facing a drunk driving charge when the second attack occurred. He is a manufacturer's representative and former union official."

The child is still in a Baltimore, Md., hospital where his condition is described as serious. Physicians there said osteomyelitis had developed in his leg below the knee.

Man Fined On Driving Charge Here

Daniel Warren Frye, 51, of Shamrock, pleaded guilty in County Court yesterday afternoon to a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was fined $100 and costs by the court and is being held in the county jail in lieu of payment of the fine.

Frye was arrested by city police following a collision with James R. Kimberly, Lefors, at 5:25 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of Francis and Ward.

He pleaded not guilty in County Court at first and the case was transferred to District Court as it was the second offense DWI charge against him. He was given a chance to change his plea, which he did, and the case was sent back to the County Court for the hearing.

30 Apply For Doctor At Clinic

McLEAN — About 30 applications have been received to date for the position of doctor at the McLean clinic, Mayor Ed Lander said yesterday.

Doctors have applied from all over the state and as far away as Jackson, Miss. Several are expected to be in McLean in about 10 days for interviews. Although all 30 applicants have been contacted, no definite commitment has been made at this time.

Work on the clinic is expected to be finished within the next month. The ceiling is still to be completed along with inside plaster work, painting and cleaning-up. No actual construction has been done on the clinic within the last 10 days.

INDUSTRIAL SPEAKER — Wes Izzard (left), publisher of the Amarillo Daily News, is being congratulated by Mayor Lynn Boyd upon completion of his address yesterday during the Industrial Week luncheon in the Palm Room. Izzard stressed the need for a strong local government and big city planning, and urged Pampa to prepare for industrial expansion. (News Photo)

Publisher Says Texas Needs A New Constitution

Wes Izzard, publisher of the Amarillo Daily News, pointed out the need for a new state constitution, urged Pampa to plan ahead for industrial growth, and suggested a stronger city government yesterday in his address before 100 Pampans during the Industrial Week Banquet.

Izzard said: "We've got to get that Texas constitution changed. We've been at it 20 years and we haven't got to first base." He outlined the atmosphere in which the constitution was adopted, presenting the situation in Texas in 1875. It was a time of carpet-baggers, slaves, and worthless cattle. After several years, laws were added to the constitution, but we still live under many restrictions, Izzard said, and the cities can not assess certain taxes.

Discussing restricted legal matters, Izzard said that Texas communities would like to do many things that they can't do. "I fully expect there will be a revolution amongst American cities—before very long," he added. The city is the last agency of government, he said.

"You hear about getting money from Washington without strings, there is no such thing," Izzard emphasized. "They can't give us money without strings attached. I'm for getting government back on a local level. We've gone as far as we can go without government going back the other way."

Tito Discovered Stalin Was False 8 Years Ago

By CHARLES M. MCCANN United Press Foreign Analyst There is just one big Communist leader who isn't feeling any pain these days.

He is Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, for years the No. 1 Communist outside of the Kremlin.

Tito found out for himself eight years ago that Josef Stalin was a false idol.

To the astonishment of the world, Tito had the boldness to proclaim his discovery.

That, on the record as it has unfolded since the recent Russian Communist party congress in Moscow, makes Tito look smarter than ever.

We read that the Communist party leaders in France, Italy and Great Britain, to name only three countries, are in danger of losing their jobs as the result of Stalin's official debunking.

Tito, on the contrary, is sitting back easy in his office in the White Palace in Belgrade, where as president he rules Yugoslavia's 17 million people, or in his villa at Brioni on the Adriatic Sea.

It would be interesting to know just what Tito thinks about the big Stalin crisis. He must be getting a lot of laughs.

Tito, who will be 64 on May 25, was a village locksmith, dreaming of emigrating to the United States, when World War I broke out. He was drafted into the Austrian army and taken prisoner by the Russians. In Russia, he was caught up in the Red revolution. He became a Communist.

Back home, he was put in prison. After his release he went to Moscow. He returned home in 1937. In World War II, Tito organized a guerrilla army of 150,000 men to fight the Germans and the Italian Fascists. After the war, he threw young King Peter II off the throne and became president.

New York '57 Auto Show To Be Eye-Opening Event

By REY W. BRUNE
DETROIT, March 31 — UP—The widespread changes in cars planned for 1957 models should make the revivals of the industry's national automobile show in New York in December an eye-opening event.

The timing of completion of the coliseum in New York where the show will be held and the major changes due in automobiles for 1957 worked out just right.

Without the new coliseum, the industry couldn't have revived the show. It had outgrown the old show places like Madison Square Garden and the Grand Central Palace when it was discontinued in 1940.

The revival also will tie in with the "billion-dollar" model changeover of the automobile industry.

Brand New for Show
Indications now are that most new model cars will make their public appearance in November. They'll be brand new products when the automobile show comes up.

The public will have plenty to see in the displays of the 1957 cars. The changeover for 1957 should be the biggest overall model change in automobile history.

All but a few of the cars now being manufactured are due for major changes in 1957 after getting face-liftings in 1956. The number of models receiving complete changeovers should be even greater than in 1955, when the big change in cars touched off the greatest year of automobile production and sales on record.

Indications leaking out are that the new models will be the essence of the industry's theory of "dynamic obsolescence."

"Dynamic obsolescence" is more than a model changeover. It not only calls for changing models, but also the science of changing and improving the new models to the point where a person feels uncomfortable out-of-date sitting in a car just a year or two old and rushes out to buy a new model.

Smaller Wheels, Lower Look
There will be smaller wheels on some of the 1957 models—14 inches instead of 15 inches— which will permit an even lower-slung, low look.

There will be more wrap-around glass, with some cars, probably having panels opening in the roof along with the doors to permit easier stepping down into the low cars. There are reports some will have fuel injection engines, at least as optional equipment, and that there will be paneled identations gracefully sweeping along the side of the cars, replacing some of the effect formerly created by chrome.

With this billion dollar changeover to promote 30,000 square feet of space in the coliseum for spectacular displays, and with the promotion experts of all the auto companies joined in one chorus where individually they can all sing loud enough anyhow, the send-off given the 1957 models year should be a memorable event.

HONORS WHO—The United Nations is issuing this stamp April 6 in honor of the World Health Organization. The U.N.'s second commemorative stamp of 1956, this one will be issued in three-cent and eight-cent denominations. It features a globe against which is shown the caduceus, symbol of the WHO. Design is by Olav Mathiesen of Denmark.

GOVERNOR SETS TEXAS CANCER CONTROL MONTH—Governor Allan Shivers is shown above as he signed a strongly worded proclamation this week declaring April as Cancer-Control Month in Texas, urging all citizens to support the educational fundraising crusade of the American Cancer Society. With the Governor are Joe Polichino (center) of Rosenberg, 1956 ACS crusade chairman for Texas, and Maxwell T. Dabry (right), crusade director for the Society's Texas Division. Governor Shivers designated April 17 as Texas Cancer Control Day—a day on which thousands of ACS volunteers will make a concerted statewide effort to tell all Texas citizens lifesaving facts about cancer.

Japanese Resent H-Bomb Tests In The Marshalls

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst

The United States is not going to be very popular in Japan for some time to come.

The Japanese government, Japanese political parties and Japanese people generally resent President Eisenhower's decision to go ahead with the H-bomb tests in the Marshall Islands next month.

This resentment is likely to grow in the coming weeks. And it will be fanned not only by the Chinese Communists and Soviet Russians but, undoubtedly, by "neutrals" like Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India.

There is no indication, fortunately, that in the long run the friendly relations between the United States and Japan will suffer.

But Japanese infecting seems sure to continue.

Stems From Other Tests
Japanese opposition to H-bomb experiments stems from the big tests held in March, 1954.

At that time radioactive fallout contaminated 7,000 square miles of the Pacific.

The waters involved are used by Japanese fishing boats. There was practically a national panic in Japan for fear that fish sold after the tests were poisoned. To make it worse, the crew of one fishing trawler far from the test area were dusted by fall-out. One of the 23 men died later.

It developed, long after the tests, that the fish were not poisonous and that the crewman of the trawler Fortunate Dragon who died was the victim of a liver complaint. Nevertheless the United States paid $2 million damages as a gesture of good will.

All this did not convince the Japanese that the H-bomb test were not a real threat.

As far back as October, 1954, Japan started protesting officially against any new H-bomb tests.

Wants Advance Guarantee
Immediately after the announcement by the Atomic Energy Commission last January of the new tests, Japan sent a note of protest. Japan also asked a guarantee in advance that the United States would pay for any damage or inconvenience the tests might cause to its shipping or its fishing industry.

This protest was rejected. But the United States promised to consider any solid claims of specific damage.

SPRING — THE NEW TIME OF YEAR! The season when everyone has an urge to do something, see something, go someplace and wear something — NEW! Spring — when nature emerges in fresh, tender colors. The restless time when most of us yearn to travel for a few places. Spring when Trifari, makers of fine fashion jewelry has created a fresh and colorful line for Spring-Summer '56. Taking their inspiration from many parts of the globe, Trifari has created jewelry that is so fashion right for any part of the globe, for any and every activity, costume and hour that it is called their "round-the-world, round-the-clock" collection.

TRIFARI'S TROPICAL Treasures will make their initial appearance at many of the resorts which were their inspiration, as the first, lucky travelers seek the sun. They are designed to be worn with all the colors (and some in many of the colors) which predominate in the tropics and will later bloom all over the United States. The space-conscious traveler as well as the stay at home, will love this collection that looks so right and equally smart with springtime's town favorites, navy and black.

Far and away spring and summer's favorite and most flattering color is white. This season Trifari gives you pure white set in gold-tone Trifanium and white set in platinum-tone that has a frosty, cool effect that will make you look crisp as a lettuce leaf on the most wilting day.

Fashion offers no radically new silhouette, this spring, and the all

But Trifari knows that white is so outstandingly important, from cruise-time to Labor Day that many of the loveliest sets, including Waikiki, Snowdrift and Arctar are shown only in gleaming, immaculate white.

Skellytown Family Feted With Shower

SKELLYTOWN — (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bilyew and children were recently complimented with a miscellaneous shower in the IOOF Hall by various civic and church organizations. The family lost all its household belongings by fire.

Attending were: Mmes. Homer Garrett, H. D. Moran, Ben Ross, Les Roberts, Ted Hoff, Amos Cook, Bill Harlan, Miles Pearson, Clarence Kaiser, Oscar Downs, T. A. Ingram, Leon Atkins, Floyd L. Lewis, Delbert McCune, Johnny White, Grace Smith, Boyd Moore, T. C. Horner, J. D. Herd, Clyde Mercer, W. H. Price, J. T. Crawford, L. D. Cowart, Dewey Godwin, Floyd McCoy, B. C. Neely, Carl Moran, J. W. Toma, R. N. Payne, H. M. McClendon, H. C. Boyd, Frank Carpenter.

And Mmes. Roy McKissick, Walter Smith, Al Shubring, Clara Brown, Virgil Weaver, T. C. Cofer, Frank Genett, E. L. Smith, Ethel Hunt, Freda Brown, Bernice Dean, John Spence, Granville Boyd, Everett Fitch, J. R. Ellis, J. C. Jarvis, Joe Chapin, Clifton Hanna and Melvin Beagle.

Rowler's 286 Tourney High ROCHESTER, N. Y. — UP — Don Spitalo, a photo-engraver from Rochester, rolled a 286 Monday night for the high single game of the 1956 American Bowling Congress tournament. The previous high was 279, by Frank Schwartz of St. Paul, Minn., and Frank Deber of Syracuse, N. Y.

Refreshments of pink punch, cake decorated with blue and pink rosebuds, and nuts and minis were served. Mrs. Bertha Hussa presided at the punch bowl, and Mrs. John Mitchell and Mrs. Bill Mitchell served the cake. Others assisting were Mmes. J. B. Hilburn, Wayne Cobb, Ralph Prock and Melton Burns.

Approximately 90 persons attended the event.

GOLDEN AND AROMATIC, these bread and bacon waffles are fun to cook. Besides, they're nutritious, just right for teen-agers!

Bread And Bacon Waffles Offer Proper Breakfast

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor
Whether your teen-age daughter is a Girl Scout or a Campfire Girl, or just plain Mary Jane, she needs a substantial breakfast everyday. So does your teen-age son, Boy Scout or not.

An adequate breakfast pattern consists of fruit preferably citrus, cereals, some form of bread with butter, and milk. Bacon, eggs or meat added give the breakfast that much more nutritive value.

By simple use of the waffle baker and two favorite foods — toast and bacon, teen-agers can make a substantial dish.

Two servings — 2 waffles per, stir until blended.

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend,
When I was 11 and my brother seven, my folks were divorced, my mother receiving custody of us. Within a year, my mother had remarried and had a baby boy.

We were never allowed to see my father, he drank too much. My brother soon forgot him, but I did not. I never did get along with my step-father, maybe because he was so much younger than my mother, maybe because of the way in which he was presented to us. "This is your new father," was enough for my youngest brother, but not for me. Especially since I had always been "Daddy's girl".

My father does drink, I'll admit that, in fact he's a drunkard. He has, since, remarried and holds a steady job, but every week — end he gets drunk.

LIVED WITH FATHER

I stayed at home as long as I thought I could, and after the third try, I went to live with my mother. I found out too soon that mother had meant by his drinking. And I couldn't live with it. I left again and this time took a room with a job put myself through college. I feel bad about my Dad sometimes, because he is the nicest guy in the world when he's sober. All he does is say how much he misses my brother, myself and my mother (even though he's remarried). I'll admit, losing us was quite a blow to any man, but I can't see that drinking.

I am now married and have a baby of my own and am very happy. My problem is my brother. Last year the folks moved out of the state. My brother, having gone to high school here, has come back and is staying with us.

MOTHER CRITICAL

In all the years since the divorce, I have never heard my Dad say anything disrespectful about my mother, but my mother has really poured it on poor daddy. Everyone thinks he's terrible, and about the worst, meanest person alive, which he is not.

Just mention Dad around my brother, his son, and he just laughs. He's already making remarks about the baby taking after his grandfather with the bottle. Ordinarily, I might laugh, but not under the circumstances.

The problem is how can I get my brother to respect his father instead of ridicule him? My brother refers once in a while to my step-father as "Dad" which is all right, I guess, because he missed him, but at the same time his real father has just as much love if not more for my brother as his son. My brother is inclined to be a little cocky as are all know-it-all teenagers; goodness knows I was. But I know that my father will be hurt when he finds out my brother is here and didn't even call him.

MATURE PARENT
In the big railroad terminal from which Stewart's father commutes to his suburban home there's a shop that sells toys.

One evening he dashed into it on his way to catch the 3:25. For Stewart, recuperating from a bout with tonsillitis, he bought a game.

According to the moves you make on its board, you could land in all the well-remembered places of interest in the Land of Oz.

It made a terrific hit. Before Stewart went to sleep that night his father played two games with him.

The following evening, he played another. And the next and the next and the next, another.

Now playing the Oz game with Stewart has somehow become an inexorable pre-bedtime ritual. Every night, his father, conscientiously mindful of the child psychologist's command that we "do things together" with children, struggles to dissolve his counter from Among the Deadly Poppies or one of the other of the Wicked Witch's bunkers.

In him mounts a feeling resembling that of the ancient sinner condemned to roll a rock eternally up hill only to have it roll down again from the summit.

Why doesn't he say to Stewart, "No, no, no, I don't want to play anything with you tonight. What I want is to be left alone to read my paper and digest my dinner without talking."

Oh, how relieved Stewart would be! How grateful he'd be to be released from the boring game he now plays only to avoid offending his father.

How comforted he'd be to know that Daddy trusts him with what he really feels — and sees no harm in forthrightness.

Perhaps his father has not spoken the relieving words — because he's got Stewart mixed up with people in his office.

All day, every day, he spends his energy gratifying their wishes. It's how he earns his living.

If he doesn't watch it, the momentum of his office obligation to serve only other people's wants can carry right over into his living room. And the relieving idea that Stewart might respect his wish to digest his dinner in peace just won't occur to him.

Perhaps I'd better remind him that, unlike his client and vice president, his child loves him.

White Deer Class Has Quilting Meet
WHITE DEER — (Special) — The TEL Class of the First Baptist Church met recently for a work session in the basement of the church. Six quilts were completed.

Reports were given by group captain, and Mrs. Neal Edwards gave the devotional, "Of Yours." Plans were made for a Mother's Day luncheon and a committee was appointed.

A covered dish luncheon was served.

Attending were Mmes. Neal Edwards, G. A. Bell, C. P. Hussey, W. B. Carey, Bill Moore, Eva Inman, J. W. Wells, Rilla Enoch, E. L. Colgrove, J. W. Evely, A. M. Harvey, Sarah McKeel and Charles Milligan. Birthday honoree was Mrs. Rilla Enoch.

ILO Was Always Evil

We have great respect for William L. McGrath of Cincinnati, Ohio. Mr. McGrath is a member of the joint Chamber of Commerce — National Association of Manufacturers Committee on the International Labor Organization. In addition to this distinction, Mr. McGrath has served as the United States employer delegate to the 1954 and 1955 conferences of the International Labor Organization which were held at Geneva, Switzerland.

Since his appointment to this second post, McGrath has become increasingly alarmed at the machinations within the ILO, which is an affiliate of the United Nations.

In the 1955 convention, the sudden return of the Russian delegates to the conference upset what was theoretically a tripartite type of representation. Until the Russians got back in the gathering . . . they had withdrawn from the ILO in 1939 . . . there were representatives from labor, from management, and from government within the structure. With the return of the Russians, since there are no free employers in Russia, the Soviet furnished two government delegates to represent government, a third delegate to represent labor who was also a government man, and a fourth delegate to represent management who was also a government man. Thus, Russia has four government men who vote solidly as a block. Since their satellites were also admitted, they had a block of 32 votes which will be increased to 36 as soon as Romania is admitted, which is merely a matter of confirming a formality.

The other nations were all represented by two government men and one each from labor and management.

Since the close of the 1955 convention, Mr. McGrath has worked ardently to cause the United States to withdraw from participation and to cancel its contribution to the ILO. We are glad he has taken this belated stand.

What we want to say is that this action on the part of the ILO and Russia should not come as a surprise to American business men. The cards were stacked against them in the first place. And while we admire the optimism which seems to permeate the character of so many American business men, they are certainly filled with child-like faith when it comes to dealing with communism and communists.

In point of fact, there was never a chance for free enterprise to have even a decent hearing in the ILO. The agency was established for the declared purpose of causing laws to be passed by member governments which would cause those governments to pay money for "any condition requiring medical care of a preventive or corrective nature, including pregnancy; and any morbid condition, whatever its cause; loss of earnings due to sickness or unemployment; survival beyond a prescribed age; employment injuries; babies (the government pays you for having them, the more you have the more money you get); child birth, including medical care and hospitalization; invalidity and death benefits (life insurance)."

Even with the alleged tripartite representation which existed prior to Russia's advent on the scene, the scales were tipped in favor of government. And when has government ever been a particular friend of free enterprise?

As it was, management, the only area from which a fair and impartial understanding of free enterprise could have come, had three strikes at the start, for there was a labor man who could be counted on to favor more government regulations, and two government men who would be bound to do likewise. Russia's appearance merely raises the odds. There had been three against one; now there are four against one, at least for the Reds.

It is certainly true that men who love their country and the spirit of freedom which functions wherever the free market is permitted to operate, recognize that they can't do business with socialism or communists. And they must learn that it is GOVERNMENT which is the natural habit of both.

It doesn't have to be a Russian government. Any government which curtails or eliminates the business of production and distribution, and which assesses production and distribution for any and all manner of purposes has already succumbed to socialism.

In a sense we could be grateful that Russia has moved on the scene, if only because its appearance shows up the matter in its true light.

By all means the United States should get out of the ILO and refuse to continue to compel the American taxpayers to underwrite its collectivist activities. Once out of that, we hope Mr. McGrath will turn his attention to getting the United States out of the United Nations in toto.

BID FOR A SMILE

Success has been said to depend on picking the right wife. Having the right husband is a big help too.

Self-preservation is the first rule of nature, but self-sacrifice is the highest rule of grace.

Wife (in back seat) — Harry, dear, you mustn't drive so fast! Husband — Why not? Wife — The motor policeman who has been following us won't like it.

Neighbor — I see you're letting your little son drive so fast? Man — Yes, he's still too young to be trusted as a pedestrian.

Whatever fortune may tell you if it cannot take away what is most valuable — the peace of good conscience.

It is easier to do a job right than to explain why you didn't.

BETTER JOBS

The Rights of Property — A Refutation of Communism and Socialism XXIII.

Adolphe Thiers, in his book, "A Refutation of Communism and Socialism," under his part of the book called "Socialism," has a chapter "On Piece-Work." He sub-heads this chapter with this statement:

"Showing that by the abolition of piece-work, the workman's only means of sharing in the profits of capital have been taken away."

While this book was written over 100 years ago, it is just as timely today as it was then. This is true because labor unions, as a general rule, object to making peace with the piece. They have even now secured laws, when an employer has a union contract, so that it is unfair labor practice for the employer without consent of the union to pay any workman by the piece if he is doing his work less or more than the wages established by the collective bargaining unit. As Thiers points out, this takes away from the efficient man his ability to use his capital, his natural talents and the benefits from so doing. Thiers puts it in this manner:

"I may be told that I have no desire to see a workman rise above the condition of a paid servant, the slave of a master, the proletarian, excluded from the profits of capital. Such, indeed, is the language of the Socialists, when the emptiness of their systems has been demonstrated. . . . beg pardon; but nature, more selfish than they, and not less humane, had taught men a way by which workmen of talent had so far climbed the first steps in the ladder of fortune. But they have had the wit to destroy this way, and to break the ladder, or at least permit it to be broken by the bad workmen, who had never been able to pass the first round. The fact is certain, and I will produce the proofs."

"Yes, it is my earnest desire that the workman, whose only wealth is bodily strength, may also share in the profits of his master, in his turn become a capitalist, and rise to fortune. I do not think he can do so by setting himself in his master's place, by joining his comrades, and forming with them a collective enterprise, which will be without capital or directing hands, and without anything that leads to success. But here is a sure means by which the meritorious artisan may attain the proposed result, may become a master without capital, and without the inconveniences attached to a collective enterprise; this means is piece-work or marchandise, which the new friends of the workman have abolished."

"There are certain intelligent and industrious mechanics who work longer and better than others, who can, in a day, do two or three times more work than some of their comrades, and as regards workmanship, better than any of them. These certainly deserve to be distinguished and encouraged. We cannot, however, confer on them the cross of the Legion of Honour, which must be reserved for the day when they march to the banks of the Adige or the Rhine; it would not suffice indeed, for hundreds of decorations would be required in a factory of 3000 workmen, while in the army only three or four are given to a regiment of 3000 men. We must, therefore, confer some distinction on these laborious and intelligent artisans. This is necessary on their own account, and for the development of production; since, being paid by the day, they would have no motive to work better or more than their comrades, and, even, if raised to a higher class, they would have no motive for conducting themselves differently from the workman of that class, while, on the contrary, by proportioning their wages exactly to what they are capable of doing, each one is led to produce as much as he can. It is, therefore, necessary to find a system of remuneration proportionate to the labour of these adepts. But this is not all. There is yet a class of workmen for whom it is important to devise a method of employment different from time-work or day-work. To this class belong all the young workmen."

"The industrious youth, who gives promise of skill, also deserves to be encouraged, and, above all, to be overlooked and taught: a master with a thousand men in his employ, who is condemned to care of every kind, who has the raw material to purchase, produce to dispose of, contracts to make, and extensive connections to keep up, cannot so and put right the youth who holds the file or the chisel badly. He can neither watch over him, direct, nor train him. In this inability, the youth would be left without instruction, without advance, in an inferior class, from which he would be removed more frequently on account of his age, without a sufficient appreciation of his services. If there should be then some method of employing this young man according to his means, and of training him, it would be something worthy of our approval."

Two Possibilities In The Willie Bioff Case

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

PHOENIX — There are two fairly interesting possibilities to be considered in the murder of Willie Bioff, the old racketeer of the American Federation of Labor, who was blown up by a bomb planted in his car last November. The union racket, through agents of our journalism, has insisted that a mythical cabal of Italian terrorists called the "Mafia" killed Bioff in revenge for his testimony against members of the old Capone mob in Chicago in the Hollywood movie union cases more than 10 years ago. It is "genocide" under accepted journalistic rules of today to suggest that Italians are any more likely to be criminals than Irish, Jews, Englishmen or Puerto Ricans. However, this imaginative publicity, impugning the character and citizenship of Americans who were born in Italy or born in the United States of Italian natives, carelessly flouts that sacred verboten which is the very base of all our propaganda favoring indiscriminate immigration "integration" and "fair employment practices."

I have already disclosed that Bioff was a social protégé of the FBI in Phoenix and, under the auspices of an agent of the FBI, was introduced to Judge Dave Ling of the federal court as William Nelson, whereupon Ling, the agent and Bioff drive to a shooting range for practice. Judge Ling shot some skeet. I do not know what weapon Bioff fired that day and Judge Ling does not recall. He just remembers that he did not shoot with Bioff, personally. He doesn't know for a fact that Bioff did any shooting at all.

Bioff also had become an undercover informant for Senator Barry Goldwater, Republican, or Arizona, who lives in Phoenix and has made a specialty of exposing the criminality of unions in his campaign to uphold the open-shop, or right-to-work, laws of some 18 states, including Arizona. The Arizona law is not a mere statute but a constitutional amendment adopted by popular vote and upheld once by the same process. The union rackets with the billions and their great pool of criminal hoodlums or goons have declared political if not personal war on Goldwater. Possibly they are not yet emboldened to knock him off but it is not straining to suspect that they would have procured the assassination of Willie Bioff for his traffic with Goldwater and with the FBI. (There are other criminal elements who would have had reason to kill Bioff for playing around with the FBI in Phoenix. These agents try

G. O. P., Demos Alike Are Perplexed

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Anxious Republican members of Congress have thrown up their hands with regard to political sentiment in this Presidential year. Their Democratic colleagues are equally perplexed, but for entirely different reasons. The cannot find a candidate!

The Republican anxiety derives from the fact that, although their constituents appear to oppose many major points of President Eisenhower's domestic and foreign program, they wind up their questionnaires with the comment that they favor the Administration's general record, and "still like Ike."

Opinions differ, of course, depending on the section of the country from which the replies come. The two seaboards and the South are generally more favorable to the White House management of national and international affairs than the Appalachian or the Rocky Mountains. If Ike has any serious weaknesses, it is in that somewhat conservative, Agricultural and Troublesome Region.

These conclusions are based on thousands of responses to formal and itemized questionnaires which hurried Congressmen distribute among the voters in their districts in every re-election year. For the Republicans, there is a form letter made out for them by the Republican National Committee. For many members, this sampling influences their votes.

On foreign affairs, the majority back home have set themselves rather definitely against any increase in economic or military aid to our Allies and on-the-fence nations is the keystone of the Eisenhower-Dulles policy.

Except in consumers' areas, mainly the large cities and their suburban back yards, another majority favors rigid 90 per cent farm price supports, as against the Benson demand for lower and flexible figures. They mirror the resentment which was responsible for the Kefauver upset of Stevenson in Minnesota.

The replies reflect overwhelming demand for more generous Social Security benefits than the Administration desires. The vote was two and three to one in favor of lowering the age of women's eligibility for Federal payments from 65 to 62 years. They also advocate appointment to disabled persons at 50. But White House spokesmen argue that these changes would impose too great a burden on the taxpayers, including the prospective beneficiaries.

The voters and this embraces almost every section of the country, are almost unanimous against Allied trading with Communist China and Russia, a question now at the bottom of a fierce controversy between the McClellan Committee and the State Department.

Secretary Dulles has almost no support for this theory that Russia's shift from military to economic aggression means that "We have the Reds on the run." To the query, "Are we being fooled by the Russians?" the answer is an uproarious "Yes!"

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

"So little is said about low blood pressure" writes Mrs. W. S. "that I wish you would comment on it."

This and many other letters along the same line indicate that it is desirable to write on low blood pressure even though it really does not deserve too much attention.

There are, it is true, a few diseases which are definitely associated with lower than normal pressure. Most of these, however, are relatively uncommon and can usually be identified without great difficulty.

ORDINARY low blood pressure is a matter of little concern from the health standpoint. There does seem to be general agreement that low blood pressure of itself, unless definitely tied to some physical abnormality — and this is the exception — is likely to be accompanied by a long life and generally above average health.

There are only a few exceptions. One condition known as Addison's disease is characterized, among other symptoms, by a low blood pressure but this is rare. There is another condition in which low blood pressure appears, off and on, known as carotid sinus syndrome. Sudden pressure on the neck or sudden motion of the head may bring on an attack of low blood pressure together with other symptoms but this is not the type of low blood pressure in which most readers are interested.

OCCASIONALLY, a person will have a drop in blood pressure when moving from a lying or sitting position to a standing one, and this may require some attention. It goes under the tongue-twisting name of orthostatic hypotension.

It is hard to say whether there are any symptoms which can be blamed on low blood pressure and nothing else.

Mac Submits Slogans For The State Department

By HENRY McLEMORE

The State Department wants more money from Congress for cocktail parties.

Secretary Dulles believes that much more is accomplished at such social functions than over the telephone, by formal notes, or quiet talks over a round table.

To help Mr. Dulles get his dough, I have worked out some slogans, which the State Department is free to use in their appeal for funds to the House Appropriations Committee.

Let's have an OLD-FASHIONED PEACE AND PUT THE WORLD ON THE ROCKS.

"Furnish us with enough olives and small onions and we'll beat down the Iron Curtain."

"Cocktails to combat the cold war."

"Let's sidestep war with a side-car."

"Help us spread canapes of good will over all the world."

"Better a bottle than a battle."

"Let's twist a lemon peel, not the other fellow's leg."

"Better hiccoughs than hydrogen bombs."

"Better that the State Department gets plastered than our cities."

Help us keep our bombers on the ground by keeping the State Department as high as a kite."

I have even written a little theme song for the State Department, which its members could sing when talking with the Russians.

"Toan, Ivan, I've been thinking, What a fine world this would be, If the money we spent on H-bombs

We spent on throwing a global spree."

From what I know of cocktail parties, the State Department might have something in wanting a few more million kollars to keep the glasses tinkling.

It is true that there are always a few people who wind up getting belligerent at cocktail parties, but the great majority winds up feeling weary and worn out. I'd say that tiredness is the trade-name of cocktail parties. The endless standing on the feet, the elbowing and shoving by the crowds of people, the walking back and forth to the

Masters Tour Calls Golfers; Hogan Is Again Man To Beat

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

Augusta, Ga. — (NEA) — If the Ben Hogan-Snead era has come to an end, you'd never know it by their scores and pre-Masters Championship talk — in the Augusta-National clubhouse and on its magnificent course, lined by dogwood trees in bloom.

Hogan once more is the man to beat and, save in the United States Open, Snead doesn't play for second. Eighty registered for the 72 holes of the 20th Masters, April 5-8, over the model course that is a monument to Bobby Jones.

To the renowned golfer, the Masters is homecoming. It is the one tournament where no one complains. The seasonal course, each hole a replica of a world famous one, is in grand shape. The layout doesn't iron the greens. The Augusta National Club simply lets nature take its course, but the course is so constructed that it requires the use of every club and type of shot.

It can rain and be cold around Augusta in the spring. Weather conditions account for the tournament having been won all the way from Hogan's near perfect 247 of 1953 to 289, a difference of 13 strokes. Par for the near 7,000 yards is 36-36.

No. 8 has a new tee a little farther to the right, which might make the hole a little bit more interesting, but combatants doubt that the scoring will be affected. No. 15 does not play any harder because of an improved tee arrangement.

A name golfer has to win the Masters because only name golfers compete. The qualifications are winning a major title, being in the top eight in the PGA Championship or on the Ryder or Walker Cup teams. Two shot-makers not otherwise eligible are nominated by the Professional Golfers' Association.

The Old Guard comes back, even the glorified Freddie McLeod and Jock Hutchison, who tee off first and play only nine holes.

The Masters rates right behind the U.S. and British Opens as the more coveted, of championships. Gallery-wise, it is the finest organized golf show. Hole-in-one runs parallel. There is plenty of room for the 15,000 who take in the final round. It's regrettable

Whistlin' Charley would like to banish memory of the 10th inning when the Yanks scored three runs with the help of four errors. But Wiesler, acquired from the Yankees during the winter, impressed by holding the Yankees to one earned run, and five hits in seven innings. His usual wildness was missing, for he walked only three.

Redlegs ease main problem by adding 2 good hurlers

Redlegs Trade

SAVANNAH, Ga. — UP — The Cincinnati Redlegs are trying to make player trades for "bench strength." Manager Baidie Tebbets indicated Tuesday, because they think reserves would give them a shot at the pennant.

Tebbetts said the Redlegs now want to build their bench because their other main problem, pitching, has been eased by the addition of Brooks Lawrence and Pat Seantlebury.

Seantlebury said right-hander Lawrence, who had a 3-8 mark for the Cardinals last year, southpaw Seantlebury, who had a 13-9 mark for Havana, of the International League, or lefty Joe Nuxhall, the Redlegs' ace with a 17-12 mark, will be the opening day pitcher against St. Louis.

Phillies Win 4

CLEARWATER, Fla. — UP — The Philadelphia Phillies carried a four-game winning streak into Tuesday's exhibition game here against the Detroit Tigers.

The Phil's reserve chucked up a 7-1 triumph over the Dodgers' "B" team Monday. Curt Simmons turned in a creditable three innings of pitching. The Tigers dropped a 7-0 decision to Cincinnati Monday, being held to four hits over the distance by Joe Nuxhall.

Sens Fall In 10

SAVANNAH, Ga. — UP — The pitching of lefty Bob Wiesler is the only thing Washington Manager Charley Dressen would like to remember from Monday's 5-3, 10-inning loss to the New York Yankees.

Whistlin' Charley would like to banish memory of the 10th inning when the Yanks scored three runs with the help of four errors. But Wiesler, acquired from the Yankees during the winter, impressed by holding the Yankees to one earned run, and five hits in seven innings. His usual wildness was missing, for he walked only three.

Trade Worthwhile

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — UP — Bob Porterfield continues to impress his Boston Red Sox mates, and now he's even using his bat to do it.

The veteran right-hander acquired from Washington gained credit for a 7-4 victory over the world champion Brooklyn Dodgers Monday as he allowed four runs in six innings. And he chalked up three straight hits and a run batted in. Tuesday the Sox visit the New York Yankees.

Loes May Quit

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — UP — Pitcher Billy Loes of the Brooklyn Dodgers was scheduled to confer Tuesday with Dodger Vice President E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi about his recurring sore arm.

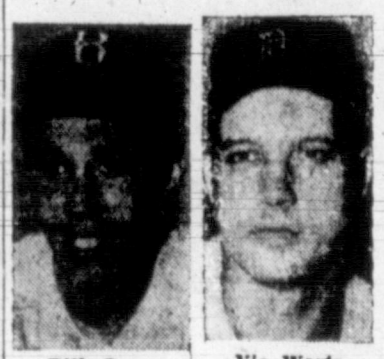

Loes says he may quit baseball that Augusta is not more accessible to the thousands who would like to see a Masters and that hotel facilities are limited. This year millions will see late afternoon bits, for they are to be televised from 5 to 5:30 all four days.

Dr. Cary Middlecoff is the defending champion, Jimmy Demaret, three-time winner with Snead, was in the money in every winter tournament in which he played. Other highly competent shotmakers with Masters experience are Lloyd Mangrum, Jackie Burke, Harvey Ward, Julius Boros, Tommy Bolt, Bob Rosburg, Doug Ford, Billy Joe Patton and Mike Souchak.

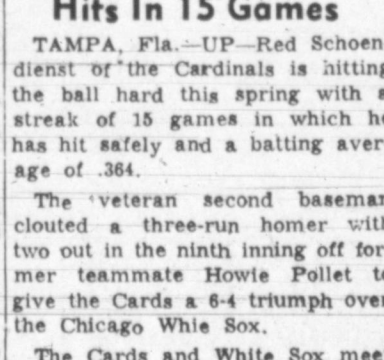

But any discussion of the 1956 Masters starts and finishes with Ben Hogan.

It will be that way as long as the Little Man can walk 72 holes, unless his arm improves. Observers believe the Dodger official will recommend that Loes visit Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore for examination.

The Dodgers meet the Milwaukee Braves here Tuesday. The Braves scored an 11-7 victory over their Wichita farm hands of the American Association Monday at Waycross, Ga.

Hits In 15 Games

TAMPA, Fla. — UP — Red Schoendienst of the Cardinals is hitting the ball hard this spring with a streak of 15 games in which he has hit safely and a batting average of .364.

The veteran second baseman clouted a three-run homer with two out in the ninth inning off former teammate Howie Pollet to give the Cards a 6-4 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

The Cards and White Sox meet again Tuesday.

A's, Pirates Meet

NEW ORLEANS — UP — Jim Finigan was the Kansas City Athletics' big hero and Nelson King was the darling of the Pittsburgh Pirates as the two teams got set to renew their spring rivalry in a high game here Tuesday night.

Finigan drove a three-run homer over the left field wall with two out in the ninth inning Monday at Mobile, Ala., to give the A's a 4-3 victory. King had held the A's to one hit, a single, and no runs in the first six innings.

Rhodes, Wertz Hit

LUBBOCK — UP — Dusty Rhodes and Vic Wertz were the hitting heroes when the Giants and Indians met in the 1954 World Series, and they still love to hit against each other.

Rhodes connected for four hits, including two doubles, and scored the winning run at Albuquerque, N. M., Monday as the Giants nipped the Tribe 7-6 in snow flurries. Wertz, who batted .500 in the '54 Series, racked up a double and a triple Monday to continue his comeback from polo.

Services Upset Phillips

By LYLE SCHWILLING

KANSAS CITY — UP — Big Bill Russell and the College All-Stars established themselves as the team to beat in the American Olympics final with a 86-79 win Monday night over the AAU champion Seattle Buchanan Bakers.

The collegians meet an Armed Services team, surprise winner over Phillips Oilers in overtime in the first round, Tuesday night. An earlier game pits the losing AAU teams, Seattle and Phillips against each other.

Play will continue through Wednesday night so each of the four teams plays the other. Unless one team takes a clear-cut championship, the winner will be determined by point spread.

Ragged At First

The College Stars were slightly ragged in team play in the first half against Seattle and were down 43-41 at intermission.

However, the unit began to click in the second half and pulled to a 10-point lead 55-45. Seattle never gave up and had the gap narrowed to two points, 62-60, with 11 minutes left.

Ron Tomic, former Stanford ace, hit 28 points for the Armed Forces but the servicemen ended up with a 68-all tie at the end of regular play.

Ray Warren, formerly of Texas Christian, and Gib Ford, Texas, hit four points each in the overtime period to seal the Armed Forces win. Ford was second high serviceman with 14.

Burdy Halderson of Colorado, forward for Phillips, had 2 points and Bill Houglund, formerly of Kansas, had 10. Houglund is the only one of the 56 players here who went to the Olympics at Helsinki in 1952. He was a member of Coach Forrest C. (Phog) Allen's NCAA championship Kansas team which combined with the Peoria (Ill.) Caterpillars to take the crown from Russia.

Russell, Jones Team Up

Russell had San Francisco teammate K. C. Jones as a running partner in the game. The All-Stars also started Willie Nauls of UCLA, Carl Cain of Iowa and Paul Judson of Illinois.

Jones had 18 points and Nauls 14. Hal Lear of Temple, voted the outstanding player in the NCAA championships at Evanston, Ill., played a considerable part of the second-half and got 15 points.

Dick Boushka, formerly of St. Louis, had a good night against Russell and scored 20 points.

Smallwood Upsets Gasper Ortega In Televised Fight

NEW YORK — UP — Hardy (Bazooka) Smallwood, upset victor over Gaspar Ortega in a bout that had more wild pitches than a spring baseball game, now would like to settle accounts with unbeaten Rory Calhoun.

Smallwood, a 2-1 underdog from Brooklyn, out-lunged Mexico's Ortega to take the unanimous decision in Monday night's widely-televised bout at St. Nicholas Arena.

In his dressing room, Smallwood said his No. 1 objective remains to get another bout with Calhoun, the hard-hitting young middleweight who has won all of 19 bouts. Calhoun handed Smallwood a defeat in Bazooka's third pro bout.

Smallwood may have to wait for revenge, since Calhoun is booked for a bout next Monday in the same ring against Jackie Labau.

Plans for another league are being discussed at the present time but nothing definite has been decided. The other league would probably be included only the 17-year-olds.

The boys, 18 years old and over, are eligible to play with the Pampa Junior Oilers. This league will probably be organized soon also.

The Oilers will definitely operate this year. Several persons have asked if they would be operating this season and we feel sure many more are wondering PAMPA WILL HAVE A PROFESSIONAL BASEBALL TEAM.

Glad to see that someone has recognized the talents of Jimmy Bond. The Phillips Oilers selected him to play in the tryouts for the Olympic basketball team.

The tournament is underway this week in Kansas City and is being broadcast over radio station KPDN.

Jimmy Bond was selected to play with the Oilers following his performance in the AAU tournament in Denver last week. Here's wishing Jimmy the best of luck in the tourney.

Hate to see a 21 game winner leave Pampa but sure glad to see the Oilers get that outfield back up to full strength. Tom Pollet has been traded to the Albuquerque Dukes for Bob Flores, a utility man that can play most any place except on the mound. He will be able to help Jim Martin behind the plate this season as well as fill in for any infielder who might be out of action during the season.

An un-named pitcher will also come to Pampa on the deal. The club can use another limited service hurler.

Pampa baseball fans will have plenty to do in the coming weeks as the league opening date is rapidly approaching. Opening day is the last chance for you fans to buy season books. A lot of you have been putting it off but now is the time to get that book. Tickets at the game during the season will sell for 85 cents. But the season books will sell for less than 50 cents per ticket. Saves you fans a lot of money to purchase the season books now.

Oilers Open At Home Tomorrow With SSTC

The Pampa Oilers will be playing before Pampans for the first time of the season Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 when Southwestern State Teachers College, Weatherford, Okla., comes to Oiler Park.

The contest will be the first home game of the Oilers for the season and will be the second time the two teams have played. The collegians won the first game, 9-8, but indications are that the Oilers should be favorites in this second meeting.

Pampa's pro baseball team has a 1-1-1 record for the season. They stopped a game with Clovis in the eighth inning, although it was tied up 7-7, because of the wind and dust last Saturday. Clovis fell to the Pampans, 9-6, in the Sunday contest.

Field manager, Grover Seitz, has indicated that he would start with veteran pitchers in Wednesday's contest. Red Dial, George Tommecker or Bill Hair will probably start and pitch three innings or more if their arms are conditioned. The other vets will probably be called on for relief.

Carl Pickett or Bob Flores will probably get the nod for the catcher's post.

Joe Fortin, Frank Kempa, Allan Cross and Eddie Rouse will take care of the infield duties while Dick Harrison, Lamar Cagle and Bob Flores will probably start in the outfield. Carl Landrum may also get into the ball game. Landrum is looking good for this early in the season according to Seitz.

Season tickets are still on sale and will be until opening day. A book of 25 tickets sells for $35. That amounts to less than 93 cents per ticket.

All home league games will be 25 cents at the gate and the home exhibition games will be 75 cents.

Got plenty of activity in the high school these days. Three of the Harvester athletic teams will be bidding for district honors this week end. The Harvester thinclads will be in Canyon for the I-AA district track meet, the Harvester golfers will host teams in the district golf tournament and the Harvester baseballers will be meeting the Lubbock Westerners in the first game of the season.

Other action, too, will be on tap earlier this week. The Pampa Oilers will be playing their first home game of the season Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. when Southwestern State Teachers College, Weatherford, Okla., invades Oiler Park.

Little and PONY League base ball will be starting soon and all the boys interested in participating this year should watch your sports wages for the registration dates.

Teen Age Leaguers are already registering. Registration blanks are available at Pampa Hardware now and all boys must be registered on or before May 7 in order to be eligible to participate in this year's program. Only boys who are 15 or 16 on or before August 1 are eligible to play in the Teen Age League.

Tom Pollett Traded To Albuquerque For Flores

Oiler field manager, Grover Seitz, announced today that he has traded Tom Pollett, 21 game winning veteran pitcher for the Oilers last season, to the Albuquerque Dukes for Bob Flores and a limited service pitcher who will be named later.

Seitz's decision to trade was prompted by the fact that he has an abundance of veteran pitchers and a shortage of outfielders and catchers. Flores is an exceptional outfielder and is capable of playing anywhere in the infield including the post behind the plate.

The pitcher, who will be coming to Pampa, will be named at a later date, probably following the spring training of the Dukes.

Pollett came to the Oilers last year from the Amarillo Gold Sox. Previously he played with Lake Charles, La., and Tallahassee, Fla. He was with Greenville in his rookie year. He pitched 218 innings that season in 37 games and won only 16. He had his best year of professional baseball with the Pampa club last year.

In a total of 25 innings last season he won 21 games for the Oilers and lost only 6 although he was active in 40 games. Pollett pitched only two shutouts and struck out a total of 142 batters. He allowed 413 runs to score per game. The weakest point about Pollett is hitting. He batted only .167 last season.

Bob Flores will supply the Oilers with a utility man that can fill any vacancy on the club with the exception of pitching. The unnamed hurler will be a limited service man and will add balance to the pitching staff as well as to the team.

Southwest conference baseball teams swing back into action Tuesday after an Easter vacation layoff.

Three games are scheduled with Southern Methodist hosting Texas Christian in Dallas, the University of Texas meeting Baylor in Waco, and Texas A&M facing Rice in Houston.

The Mustangs, who lost their first two starts by single runs, will send southpaw Mal Shaw to the mound in an effort to break into the win column. The Frogs fell victims to SMU twice in pre-season practice games.

A pitcher's duel between Harry Taylor of Texas and Jerry Mallett of Baylor seems in store in the Waco game. The Longhorns won their only conference game so far, while the Bears have a 1-0 mark.

Other games this week find TCU at Texas A&M Friday and Saturday, Texas at SMU Friday, and Rice at Baylor Friday and Saturday.

Second team members on the 28-player squad include back Larry Duesit of Corpus Christi Miller in AAAA, tackle Raymond Martin of McAllen from AA, and back Tiry Wilson of Waxahatchie and end Larry Stephens of Anilston from AA.

Bill Stages, coach at Corpus Christi Ray, was chairman of the South selection committee, while Cecil Johnson of Dallas Forest headed the North Committee.

Paul (Bear) Bryant of Texas A&M will coach the South Team and Abe Martin of TCU will pilot the North in the annual game.

Texas Relays Open In Austin Friday

AUSTIN — UP — Texas Relay track men will compete in opening events Friday night to mark the first time in 26 runnings that events have been held under lights.

The night's competition will feature performances by shot putter Bill Nieder of Kansas, sprinters Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian College and Dean Smith, and Rev. Bob Richards, Olympic pole vault champion.

Morrow and Smith will clash along with six other top cindermen in the 10-meter dash, and Richards will take part in a pole vaulting exhibition.

Other titles will be decided Friday night in the high school 440-yard dash, open 5,000 meter run, sprint medley relay in all classes, high school 440-yard relay, university distance medley, high school high jump, the shot put, broad jump and javelin throw in the university-college class, and one-mile relay in the high school and freshman-junior college divisions.

"It's even better than 'sweet-mash' bourbon'...
"Even smoother than 'sour-mash' bourbon'...
The one and only "mellow-mash" bourbon...
Mellow Yellowstone
For over 100 years, people have been discovering something "new" in old Kentucky... a different bourbon, remarkably free of bite.
It has the best features of sweet and sour-mash bourbon. It's a step better — mellow-mash, the exclusive Yellowstone way of achieving full-bourbon flavor with light body.

EAST OR WEST—A WOMAN'S A WOMAN—The joyous look on the face of 20-year-old Ching Chang Ying of Hong Kong tells you that, like any other gal, she rates a store full of Easter bonnets as something above Seventh Heaven. She was taken to the Chicago store by her foster father, Sue T. Chin, whom she met for the first time after her recent arrival in the U.S. Ching Chang Ying was raised in China by Chin's wife, who is still behind the Bamboo Curtain. She will live in Knoxville, Ill.

'Bridey Murphy' Is Answer To Some Persons' Fears

EDITOR'S NOTE: Professor Theodore R. Sarbin of the University of California has spent years studying the use of hypnosis as a tool of psychology. In the following dispatch he gives a scientific explanation for the phenomenon described in the best-selling book "The Search for Bridey Murphy."

By PROF. THEODORE SARBIN
Written for United Press
LOS ANGELES—UP—The Bridey Murphy story calls for two types of explanation: First, how does the hypnotic subject perform acts which appear to border on the miraculous; and second, why is there so much to do about Bridey?

The apparent return of the hypnotic subject to a previous life is only an extension of hypnosis regression. This is a standard psychological experiment in which the appropriately predisposed subject can convincingly enact the role of a young child. When controlled psychological tests are used, however, it becomes clear that the subject is not "re-living" the childhood role but rather enacting it. His behavior resembles the behavior that might be expected of a child, but it is by no means an exact duplication.

In the age regression experiment, the success of the subject's performance is related to three things:

- Must Know What Expected
- (1) The subject must perceive what the hypnotist expects of the subject. The hypnotist may tell the subject directly what he expects or he may indirectly indicate by his tone of voice, manner, or other expressive acts what role is required of the subject. In addition, the subject will spontaneously and many details to the role to make it more convincing.
 - (2) The subject must be favorably motivated towards performing a given role in hypnosis. The motives are of many different kinds; for example, need for submission, need for pain relief, need for self-actualization, need to express gratitude to the hypnotist for alleviating psychosomatic symptoms, etc. In nearly all instances the motives are unconscious, that is, they are unknown to the hypnotic subject. These motives are difficult to assess, particularly by a person untrained in psychology of psychiatry.
 - (3) The hypnotic subject must have some skill or aptitude in talking roles, in being able imaginatively to put himself in another person's shoes, so to speak. This ability is seen in the readiness with which a person can imagine himself the leading character of an interesting play or novel.

QUOTES IN THE NEWS

By UNITED PRESS
OFLANDO, Fla.—Sen. Estes Kefauver on the Supreme Court decision to desegregate public schools: "It's ridiculous to say that a Supreme Court decision is unconstitutional. Some may disagree with the court's interpretation but we know that the court is the final word. Speaking as a Southerner to Southerners, I say that there is no other answer to this problem. We simply must remain a united nation."

NEW YORK—Former President Truman on his 1948 campaign remark that any farmer who voted for a Republican should have his head examined: "I said that in 1948 and in 1952 their heads examined."

NEW YORK—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., who resigned as General Motors board chairman, on the principles of the firm's growth: "Get the facts. Recognize the equities of all concerned. Realize the necessity of doing a better job every day. Keep an open mind and work hard. The last is the most important of all. There is no shortcut."

SEATTLE—Passenger Nelson Whatstom on the ditching of a Northwest Airlines Stratocruiser in Puget Sound with 37 aboard: "The tail was whipping back and forth like a salmon swimming upstream."

MOUNT KISCO, N. Y.—Showman Billy Rose on the fire which destroyed his world famous paintings and 28-room mansion: "If I had a sense of humor right now, I might be able to chuckle over what they saved from the kitchen. They brought out a bread toaster and some dishes."

'END OF THE LINE'—Only 20 years old and just home from the hospital with her sixth child is Mrs. Roberta Garner of Memphis, Tenn. Husband James, 37, says "That's the end of the line" when asked if they plan to have any more children. Mrs. Garner is shown above holding the still-born daughter. On the floor is son James, 5. From left on couch are: Donald, 2; Linda, 4; Dennis, 3; and Dennis, 1.

News In Brief

WASHINGTON—UP—Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.) accused Interior Secretary Douglas McKay Tuesday of "complete subservience" to private power interests.

Neuberger made the charge in a weekly newsletter to his constituents. He contended it was borne out by McKay's "curiously contradictory view" toward the Upper Colorado and Hells Canyon projects.

He said McKay supported public development of "high cost" dams in the Upper Colorado project, which private utilities "would not touch" but "gives the profitable Hells Canyon site to the Idaho power company."

HOLLYWOOD—UP—The Rev. George Bernard, 83, composer of "The Old Rugged Cross," remained in serious condition Tuesday at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital where he is recovering from a gall bladder condition.

The white-haired composer, of Reed City, Mich., was admitted to the hospital last week.

WASHINGTON—UP—The Navy announced Monday that the first twin-jet Skywarrior, largest and most powerful attack bombers ever built for carrier operation, have been delivered to the fleet.

Five of the fast, swept-wing bombers were ferried to the Jacksonville Naval Air Station to form the Navy's first heavy attack squadron.

HOLLYWOOD—UP—Actor Anthony Dexter, player of Rudolph Valentino on the screen, has been divorced by his wife, Marjorie, after she testified he did not want the responsibility of having a career and being a father.

Mrs. Dexter also told a superior court Monday that the actor did not want another child. She was granted the divorce, $350 monthly support and custody of two children, Kimberly, 4, and Laudia, 2.

WASHINGTON—UP—The Federal Power Commission Monday authorized Permian Basin Pipeline Co., Omaha, Neb., to construct $2.8 million worth of facilities in Texas.

The company will construct 19 miles of pipeline and a 6,750-horsepower compressor station in Andrews County, Tex., to receive and transport gas from Phillips Petroleum, Bartlesville, Okla.

The FPC also issued a certificate to Phillips to sell the gas to Permian.

ST. CLOUD, Fla.—UP—A civil engineer and a boy he was trying to save drowned in east Lake Tohopekalga near here Monday but quick-thinking spectators managed to save a seven-year-old girl.

The victims were identified as John P. Donnellan, 42, civil engineer at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, and Stephen Lyle, Recoy, 9.

HAVANA—UP—A 21-year-old fugitive from an insane asylum ran amok with a knife in the streets of Havana Monday, fatally stabbing four men and seriously wounding a fifth in a three hour reign of terror.

The deranged killer, identified as Emilio Rodriguez, finally was captured as he sat quietly in a downtown bar. He still carried the knife he used to attack the five bystanders.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—UP—The Alsonett Hotels Corp., of Chicago is negotiating to buy the 250-room Hermitage hotel here from the Meyer Hotel Co., of Birmingham, officials of both firms said Tuesday.

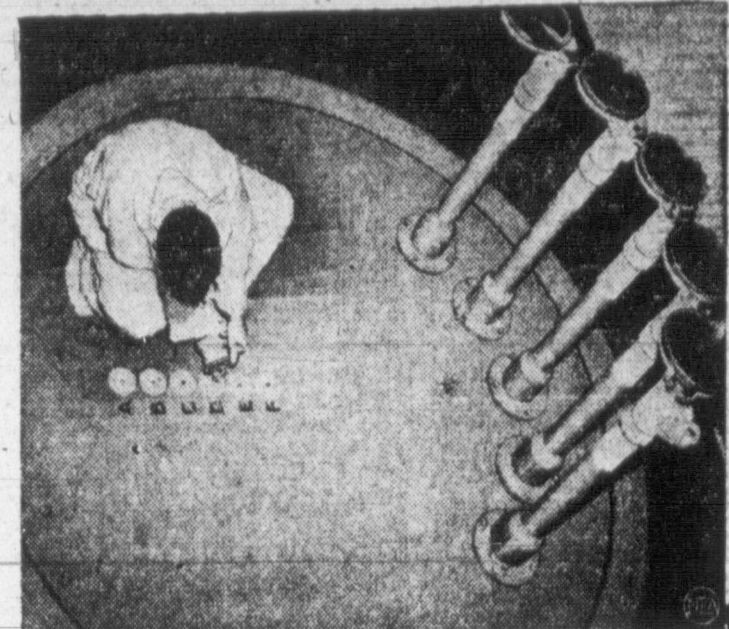

Alsonett operates about 20 hotels throughout the country. The Hermitage is one of six hotels operated by the Meyer company in the southeast.

NORFOLK, Va.—UP—A grand jury Monday indicted Minnie C. Mangum for embezzling the entire reserves of $2,884,593 from the Commonwealth Building and Loan Association where she worked for 28 years.

The grand jury returned 16 indictments against the 82-year-old kind-hearted Norfolk spinster, each of which could bring a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison.

WASHINGTON—UP—The Army has requested that 5,047 acres of inundated public lands in Arkansas and Missouri be set aside for the Bull Shoals Dam and reservoir in Arkansas, the Interior Department announced Tuesday.

The Army's application asks that the lands be withdrawn from all forms of entry under the public land and mining laws. They are located in Marion, Boone and Baxter counties, Ark., and Taney and Ozark Counties, Mo.

'HOTTEST' SAFE—The world's "hottest" safe—one which no burglar would want to crack—is used by General Electric atomic experts in Richland, Wash., to store and study radioactive materials. Up to 780 "hot" samples are on large circular disks located below floor level. By turning wheels at right, disks are rotated until desired sample is lined up under access holes in disks above. To remove the sample, technician lifts one of the lettered plugs. Sample is mechanically lifted into a one-ton cask for transport.

O'Daniel Appeals For Contributions

FORT WORTH—UP—Gubernatorial candidate W. Lee O'Daniel Tuesday was waiting for contributions to come in after he explained to a radio audience that the campaign "costs money."

O'Daniel reviewed accomplishments of his former administration as governor, Monday night in his weekly 15 minute radio program over a Fort Worth radio station.

He called for a "general clean-up" in the state government in Austin, and also for contributions from his listeners.

The former governor, from 1939 to 1942, told how he successfully supported legislation to improve old age pensions and state aid for the handicapped.

He promised to relate "the official record of other great accomplishments during my former administration" in his next Monday night broadcast.

O'Daniel concluded his speech saying "remember, this is our campaign — yours and mine. We do not have a pipeline into the U.S. treasury at Washington. The finances for this campaign must come right out of the old tin pocketbooks of the masses of our Texas citizens. Let me hear from you."

The average motorist in the United States drives about 7,500 miles in a year.
