Marines Not Off Hook In 'Death March' Case

Gen. Pate Is Praised For Revealing Tragic Details

By PAUL SOUTHWICK

WASHINGTON — UP — Members of the House Armed Services committee made it clear Wednesday the Marine Corps still isn't off the hook on the Parris Island, S. C., "death march."

Although they generally praised Gen. Randolph McCall Pate for frankly laying bare details of the tragedy, committee members said the matter was still "wide open" — particularly regarding immediate superior officers concerned.

Pate, Marine Corps commandant, told the committee Tuesday that Staff Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon was drinking before he illegally ordered his platoon on the march. The 31-year-old Worcester, Mass. junior drill instructor led his men into the tidal swamps where six recruits drowned in darkness and panic.

Recommendations Court Martial Pate recommended that McKeon be court-martialed on four charges including manslaughter and "oppression" of recruits. Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas endorsed the court martial.

Pate also removed Maj. Gen. J. C. Burger as commanding general of Parris Island and transferred several other officers. Burger will swap jobs with Maj. Gen. Homer (See MARINES, Page 2)

Capitol Hill Roundup

WASHINGTON — UP — The new catch-all farm bill came up for debate Wednesday in the House. This time it was a farm bill much closer to the wishes of President Eisenhower.

Principally it included the administration-backed $1.2 billion soil bank. And it did not include the big provisions calling for high rigid price supports that caused the President to veto the first catch-all bill.

The Democrats refused to put into the bill the administration's soil bank pre-payment plan. That would pay farmers $500 million this year for contracting to cut planting next year.

Republicans prepared to fight for that. Some also proposed to fight against a provision that would enable producers of four feed grains to get higher price supports.

Voting was expected to begin Thursday. Other developments: AIR POWER Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Strategic Air Command chief, disclosed SAC is studying how much it thinks B-52 jet bomber production should be stepped up. He made the disclosure before resuming testimony before the Senate Armed Services subcommittee on air power.

FOREIGN AID Chairman James P. Richards of the House Foreign Affairs committee said the administration's foreign aid bill probably will reach the House floor in about two weeks. But Richards said the administration request for $4.9 billion in foreign aid is "too much."

MARINES Members of the House Armed Services committee made it clear the Marine Corps still isn't off the hook on the Parris Island "death march." Committee members said the matter is "wide open" despite Marine Corps reforms.

LOBBYING The Senate special committee on lobbying is studying the records of the General Gas committee before announcing its next move. Gas committee records show the group spent $19,000 contributed by gas industry sources to back the since-vetoed natural gas bill.

INFORMATION The House Government Information subcommittee scheduled a panel discussion by eight legal experts next Tuesday and Wednesday. Subcommittee Chairman John E. Moss said the experts would help develop legislation to remove unnecessary restrictions on obtaining information from government agencies.

Drys Want Supervisors

Judge Bruce Parker this morning appointed a total of 34 supervisors to serve as witnesses for the May 3 prohibition election, as requested in petitions by the dry forces in Gray County.

The supervisors will act as witnesses in each of the 18 precincts of Gray County at each polling place. They will have no legal authority but can testify as to questioned voting or events that take place at the election boxes.

It appeared earlier that both the wets and drys would have supervisors in the election, as inquiries were made on both sides, in regard to the matter. One of the leaders of the wet forces, Jack Perry, wholesale Schlitz dealer, yesterday advised the judge that the wets would not place supervisors in voting places.

Parker is sending out letters to the judges instructing them that supervisors have been legally appointed. He is also sending out copies of the state law providing for supervisors. The oath of office will be administered to them by the election judges, upon the supervisors' appearance at the polling place. Each supervisor will have a slip

Right-To-Work Crops Up In Supreme Court

WASHINGTON — UP — A battle over state right-to-work laws cropped up in the Supreme Court Wednesday in a test of the validity of the union shop in the railroad industry.

A group of railroad workers objected to joining the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks are asking the court to strike down a 1951 amendment to the railway labor act which permits union shop contracts. Under such contracts between carriers and unions a worker is required to become a union member 60 days after he is hired.

These agreements run counter to "right-to-work" laws in 18 states. In general the statutes provide that a worker shall make up his own mind whether he wants to join a union.

The non-union workers filed suit in Nebraska against the Union Pacific Railroad, which has agreed to the union shop, and 14 railroad unions. The workers won a favorable decision from the Nebraska Supreme Court.

The court said "we think the freedom... to join or not to join an association with others for whatever purposes such association is lawfully organized, is a freedom guaranteed by the First Amendment."

The unions, appealing to the Supreme Court, argued that the union shop legislation was a proper exercise of Congress' power to regulate interstate commerce and that contrary state laws have been invalidated.

Attorney General Clarence S. Heck of Nebraska countered that "the primary duty of a state is to secure the life and liberty and protect the property of its people."

Utah, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, Florida and Mississippi are on record as supporting Nebraska in the case. A similar test is pending before the highest court of Texas.

One Mishap Is Reported Here

Only one collision was reported within the city limits Tuesday. At 5:15 p.m. on Wells, 150 feet north of Alcock, George Clarence Pylett, 1410 Alcock, driving a '53 Mercury, was in collision with Donald Leroy Young, 413 N. Faulkner, driving a '52 Chevrolet pickup.

The Mercury encountered damages estimated at $100 and the pickup was reported to have not been damaged.

Adlai Gets Nudge In Two Primaries

WASHINGTON — UP — Democratic primaries in Alabama and the District of Columbia gave another nudge Wednesday to Adlai E. Stevenson's reviving hopes for the Democratic presidential nomination.

But neither primary was expected to have any major impact on the contest between Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver in their current series of presidential primary battles.

In Alabama, Gov. James E. Folsom apparently was beaten by a strong pro-segregation vote in his bid for election to the Democratic national committee.

One Direct Contest Only the District of Columbia, which has no vote in November, provided a direct contest between Stevenson and Kefauver in the voting Tuesday. States of national convention delegates pledged to each were entered in the primary, the first official vote in Washington in 82 years. Six convention votes were at stake.

About 40,000 Republicans and Democrats voted in their respective primaries in this city of 900,000. The official tally was very slow and was suspended during the night until Thursday.

With about a sixth of the Democratic vote counted, pro-Stevenson delegate candidates were leading those pledged to Kefauver by an average margin of about 2 to 1.

Six Delegates Elected In the GOP primary, six delegates were elected to vote for the renomination of President Eisenhower. Alabama Democrats elected un-pledged delegates who will share 26 national convention votes. In the Alabama contest for 15 half-vote delegates at large, 12 of the leaders were considered to be either pro-Stevenson or leaning his way if the national convention develops into a straight Stevenson-Kefauver contest. The only announced Kefauver delegate candidate appeared out of the running.

Ike Cancels Conference To Attend Funeral

WASHINGTON — UP — President Eisenhower cancelled his news conference Wednesday in order to attend funeral services for Sen. Alben W. Barkley.

The White House announces at 6:35 a. m. that less than two hours before the scheduled start of the President's news conference—that Mr. Eisenhower had decided to attend the funeral of the beloved Democratic "Veep."

The services were scheduled for 9 a. m. in the Foundry Methodist Church, with the Rev. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the Senate, presiding.

The 78-year-old Barkley died of a heart attack late Monday while speaking at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va.

Barkley's body was to be taken after the funeral by special train on his last journey home—to Paducah, Ky. — for burial services and interment Thursday. His family and an official congressional delegation will accompany the body.

The Kentucky senator's widow, the former Mrs. Jane Hadley of St. Louis whom he married in 1939, requested no long eulogy at the service. Harris agreed to make only a brief personal reference to the veteran senator and former vice president whose public career spanned 50 years, 41 of them in Washington.

Mr. Barkley also requested no flowers. She asked that contributions be sent instead to the Kentucky Heart Fund. But that didn't stop a flood of floral tributes.

Barkley's death rang down the curtain on one of the most notable careers in American political life. No death here in years plunged the capital so quickly into complete and sincere mourning.

Senate Suspends Business The Senate suspended most of its business for the rest of this week, and the House Tuesday canceled all legislative business and adjourned in his memory.

One example of Barkley's popularity with both parties was the action of the Senate Republican Policy Committee Tuesday. It adopted a unanimous resolution of regret and adjourned its regular weekly lunch meeting, devoted to partisan planning in his memory.

Rain In Repeat Performance Here

Rain returned to the Top o' Texas area last night bringing .58 of an inch to Pampa, making a total of 1.24 inches in the two-day period.

The rain was reported to have been general throughout the area last night and increased the favorable outlook of the farmers and ranchers.

Some hail was reported to have fallen throughout the area last night.

The United States Weather Bureau at Amarillo issued tornado warnings at 3:20 p.m. yesterday for the Panhandle which were in effect until 9 p.m. however, no tornadoes were reported within the area.

The expected low in Pampa tonight is 45 degrees with an expected high of 80 degrees on Thursday.

Thunderstorm, High Wind Hit The Houston-Galveston Area

A vicious thunderstorm with peak winds of 100 miles an hour battered the Houston-Galveston area early Wednesday in what forecasters hoped was the final big blow of four days of turbulent Texas weather.

Flash floods left at least four persons dead and drove hundreds of west Central Texas families from their homes.

Forecasters said the rains — heaviest in years — appeared to be moving out of the state and that skies likely would begin clearing late in the day.

Houston received 1.56 inches of rain in six hours. It washed five inches of mud along an 80-foot stretch of Houston's new Memorial freeway and blocked traffic. Heavy Damage in Galveston But the heaviest damage was in Galveston where wind gusts up to 60 and 100 mph uprooted a city several hundred feet down a siding at Pier 20.

The rain flooded underpasses and lightning set off numerous fires, including a $70,000 blaze that destroyed four businesses in Spring Branch, north of Houston. Rains of up to 12 inches boiled creeks and rivers out of their banks in Central and west Central Texas, driving hundreds of families from their homes.

Two school buses were trapped by flash floods on low-water highway. (See RAINS, Page 2)

'The Veep' Wanted To Be President

WASHINGTON — UP — There'll be a rousing political meeting somewhere along about now with Alben William Barkley up there on the platform doing his stuff to the assembly's rebel yells.

As the servant of the Lord which he hoped to be, Barkley will serve up some hearty laughs for all hands present. It was his belief that a good laugh was appropriate in any company. Those who knew Barkley well will believe he was not long in resuming that speech so sadly interrupted in Lexington, Va., Monday evening.

The oath of office will be administered to them by the election judges, upon the supervisors' appearance at the polling place. Each supervisor will have a slip signed by the judge to eliminate imposters.

At least five percent of the voters in each precinct, or not over 40, were necessary to sign the petition circulated by the drys in order to appoint the supervisors.

Perry said this morning, "although we know some of them (the election judges) are possibly drys, we consider them men of integrity and honesty." He added, "we will not have supervisors and we trust those judges 100 percent."

Carroll B. Ray, Chairman of the Gray County Civic Loyalty League, said "Practically all the pastors of the town have said their churches would be open Saturday morning and they would be happy for people to come by the church for prayer for divine guidance as they go to vote... we're willing to risk the decision to praying people."

Some churches will be open all day Saturday, but no services are scheduled.

The Mercury encountered damage estimated at $400 and the pickup was reported to have not been damaged.

Following Tuesday's debate, the state of the Church Committee met for two hours debating changes in one sentence of its recommended statement of policy.

The original sentence said the conference recognizes the church has not attained the goal of desegregation, but added "we rejoice in the progress made."

Adlai Gets Nudge In Two Primaries

With about a sixth of the Democratic vote counted, pro-Stevenson delegate candidates were leading those pledged to Kefauver by an average margin of about 2 to 1.

The high court granted the writ, and in simultaneous action said the laws were unconstitutional because they were in direct conflict. The state had alleged Sanford violated the election laws by making two expenditures, one for $35 and the other $41.25, for advertising placed in behalf of Ben Ramsey during his campaign for lieutenant governor in 1954.

The United States Weather Bureau at Amarillo issued tornado warnings at 2:30 p.m. yesterday for the Panhandle which were in effect until 9 p.m. however, no tornadoes were reported within the area.

One fire in Pampa was attributed to the weather last night when lightning struck a TV antenna at 514 Harlem about 9:05 p.m. The lightning followed the lead-in wire through a window and set fire to the curtains.

Light damage to the wall resulted from the fire according to firemen from the local fire station who made the call.

The water at some of the street intersections in Pampa was running-board deep during the rain.

The weather forecast for the area is for partly cloudy today and Thursday with widely scattered thundershowers mainly in the east portion of the South Plains.

The expected low in Pampa tonight is 46 degrees with an expected high of 80 degrees on Thursday.

stunk, when Barkley first was elected to Congress back in 1912. The Senate followed and in July, 1937, came Barkley's first big break. In the contest to elect a Democratic Senate leader following the death of Arkansas' Joseph T. Robinson, FDR intervened with a public letter which began, "Dear Alben." That was enough for wavering Democrats. Barkley won by a one-vote margin over the late Pat Harrison of Mississippi.

Pursued Post Twice
That triumph sent Barkley twice in pursuit of the vice-presidential nomination, always in happy confidence that he had from Mr. Roosevelt a green light for that ambition. But in 1940 and again in 1944 Barkley's green light flickered out before the balloting, as it did for a considerable number of others who had believed FDR's friendly interests. Barkley decided to refuse to deliver a scheduled keynote speech on grounds that Mr. Roosevelt had double-crossed him. But he changed his mind in time and paid great tribute to the President. Barkley was a team man.

His lone rebellion was in February, 1944. FDR had vetoed in secret a long-ago victory tax bill which Barkley and others had sweated through. FDR's hand-picked Senate leader took the floor, raging, red-faced and almost explosive. He called the veto message "a calculated and deliberate assault upon the legislative integrity of every member of Congress."

"I do not intend to take this unjustifiable assault lying down," shouted Barkley, and promptly resigned his Senate leadership. By nightfall, Mr. Roosevelt was busy smoothing Barkley's feelings and the breach was patched — too soon, some Democrats thought.

SAC Is Studying B-52 Need

By JOHN W. FINNEY
WASHINGTON, May 1 (AP)—Gen. Curtis E. LeMay disclosed Wednesday that the Strategic Air Command is studying how much it thinks B-52 production should be increased under administration plans.

The commander made it clear that he believes SAC needs more B-52 intercontinental jet bombers than planned by the administration if it is to maintain superiority over the Russian air force. But he said in an interview he has set no fixed number of how many additional B-52's should be built.

"We are in the midst of a study of that right now," he told a United Press reporter.

LeMay was called back for further questioning by a Senate Armed Services subcommittee on whether the United States is in danger of losing air supremacy to Russia. LeMay told the subcommittee on Monday that Russia will seize supremacy in long-range striking power by 1958-60 unless present administration plans are changed.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson conceded at a news conference Tuesday that Russia presently is outstripping the United States in production of modern intercontinental bombers.

At the same time, Wilson disclosed that the striking power of the Strategic Air Command's long-range bomber wings will be increased by 50 per cent. He said that each of the command's B-52 wings will have 45 bombers instead of 30, the number of bombers presently in heavy wings. The 52's are replacing B-36 Superbombers.

But Wilson refused to comment on LeMay's claim that the Russians will have more intercontinental bombers in 1958-60 than this country.

SAC now has 11 heavy bomber wings. Under the new program, it will have more than 500 B-52's, including spares. It also has about 1,500 B-47 medium bombers.

L. Litzberg, commander of Camp LeJeune, N. C., Litzberg was scheduled to confer Wednesday with Pate.

Rep. Paul Cunningham (R-Iowa) said he wasn't satisfied with Pate's explanation about the part played by McKeon's superior officers.

Cunningham said if McKeon rates a manslaughter charge, then maybe "they do, too, at least the one immediately over him."

"I don't like to see a non-com get all the blame," he said in an interview. "They're punishing one man, maybe others need punishing, too."

Rams Sign Woodley Lewis

LOS ANGELES—UP—Woodley Lewis, who played on both offense and defense for the Los Angeles Rams last year, has signed his 1956 contract with the National Football League entry, Lewis, who signed his seventh contract with the club, played back on defensive and end on offense. Also signing with the Lions is Jack Bighead, offensive end who spent most of last season on the injured list.

Manager Of Rodeo Unhappy

PARIS—UP—A rodeo manager from Texas complained Wednesday that French cattle will not cooperate with his wranglers.

When they are supposed to breathe fire and meanness, they stretch out on the sawdust and chew their cud. When a cowboy tries to wrestle a cow to the ground, it refuses to fall.

"We should have left some of the cowboys at home and brought some cows along, instead," said the disgruntled manager, Bob Estes, of Baird, Tex.

"We brought 56 saddles, 30 ponies, 100 bales of hay, 23 cowboys and 13 cowgirls over here. Now if we had some cows that would cooperate..."

French audiences are getting a big kick out of American cowboys' struggles with the cattle.

The usual reaction of a cow in a chute is to stick a baleful head out the opening, eye the crowd and decide the whole thing is not worth the fuss.

"Takes all hellfire to move 'em out again."

Wheeler Bond Issue Passes

WHEELER—(Special)—Mayor C. B. Kirk announced the results of the $61,000 bond issue for water and the $48,000 sewer issue held here yesterday, this morning.

Both items carried, the water bonds by a count of 169 votes to 78 and the sewer bonds by a count of 171 to 75.

Plans are now underway to have 100,000 gallon storage tank water and sewer service to the 137 additional houses and to 3,350 building lots extending to the new city limits.

This will make fire protection 100 percent when the fire hydrants are installed. The new service water main line in town will be replaced to eight-inches, instead of the six inches now in use. Other lines will be replaced to six inches, that formerly have been 2 1/2 by 4 inches. The sewer line will be increased from six to 10 inches.

Theater Group Sets Production

The first workshop production of Pampa Little Theatre, Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," is slated to take place in Lovett Memorial Library tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Jim Terrell, president, extends an invitation to the public to attend the show and especially urge prospective members. There will be no admission charge.

The cast of the comedy, which will present three scenes from the play, are as follows: Ed Young will play the part of Jack; Terrell will play Algernon; Mrs. Jack Miller, Lady Bracknell; Mrs. Beverly Brandt Ross, Gwendolyn; Mrs. John Willis, Cecily; Ida Mae Fuqua, Miss Prism; Jack Foster, Dr. Chauble; and Ronald Waters, narrator.

Jack Miller, director of the play, who has prepared the show in two weeks, says, "In the most elegant of settings, Wilde has wedded the utmost propriety to the utmost preposterousness."

The story grows out of a situation wherein one young man, Jack Worthing, has invented a wicked brother, Earnest, as an excuse for his frequent visits to London from his country estate. Another young man, Algernon Moncrieff, has conjured up an invalid friend as a device to cover his absences from London.

In the final scene, the play is resolved from what appears to be a hopeless muddle that can grow no worse.

The play will be presented over station KPAT next Sunday afternoon and over station KPDM at a later date.

School Bus Stalls
Near Lometa Tuesday night, a school bus stalled and a wall of water hit the teacher-bus driver and six children as they tried to get to high ground.

Billy Ed Whittenberg, 14, and a girl were swept down a creek. Both managed to grab hold of a tree, but a floating log knocked the boy downstream. His body was found in a tree fork hours later.

The teacher-driver, 21-year-old Thomas Knox, rescued the girl and brought all five children to safety.

Another heroic rescue saved eight children and a bus driver near Abbott.

Dear Rev. Ray:

In your letter of April 19th you state that Gray County is currently engaged in a Local Option election campaign to be held on May 5th.

You ask if the County should vote to prohibit the sale of all alcoholic beverages what effect would this have on the size of Old Age Assistance checks thereafter.

In many counties of Texas the sale of alcoholic beverages is prohibited. In some other counties the sale of alcoholic beverages is legal. The wet or dry status of a county does not enter into the determination of the amount one is to receive as Old Age Assistance.

If there is any further information I can give you, please feel free to call on me.

Yours very truly,

Jane Talk

By JANE KADANGO
Pampa News Women's Editor

THE TYPICAL TEN-YEAR-OLD is a happy child who gets along well with his parents. Eleven, on the other hand, often behaves like an untamed lion. Twelve is warm and bubbling—a far pleasanter companion than he was the year before.

THESE ARE highlights from the long-awaited Gesell study of adolescent behavior previewed in a two-part Collier's series beginning in the current issue.

Written by famed Dr. Arnold Gesell and his collaborators Drs. Frances L. Big and Louise Bates Ames, "Youth: The Years From Ten to Sixteen" offers reassurance and specific advice to harassed parents.

The years from 10 to 12 are covered in the first installment of the series. Part II in the next issue will feature the 13 to 16 group. The entire 200,000-word report will be published by Harper & Brothers May 9th.

Parents are warned that when Gesell experts say, for example, that a representative twelve-year-old is "enthusiastic" they do not mean that every child of twelve is enthusiastic. A youngster may have reached this stage earlier or may not reach it until later.

The preview emphasizes these findings:

TEN YEARS

A busy father will do well to enjoy his youngster now and not wait until he is older and more interesting. By then, the child may not have the time for him.

Sleep is a problem for many ten-year-olds. They need to be reminded they are tired and ready for bed.

ELEVEN YEARS

The typical eleven-year-old is at times an untamed lion tries to cut loose from established home, school and church authorities.

Wise parents now make few but firm demands. Some parents get cooperation at this stage by making deals: "You help me wash the dishes and I'll help you with your homework."

Though boys fight and cheat more, girls are more apt to steal—especially merchandise on store counters. Getting caught usually cures them of stealing for the rest of their lives.

The sixth grade is a good stage at which to help them understand sex through well-tried films.

TWELVE YEARS

The youngster is now generally more responsible and a far pleasanter companion than he was the year before. Warm, bubbling, uninhibited, the child good-naturedly "loves" everything. This enthusiasm needs channeling, firmness and control.

Hockaday School Scholarships Are Reported Available

The Alumnae Association of The Hockaday School recently announced examinations for Upper School scholarship applicants will be held May 19 on the campus. All girls interested in applying for grades 9, 10, and 11 should write to Miss Mary Reynolds, director of admissions, Hockaday School, Dallas 6, Texas, for scholarship forms. The forms should be filled out and returned to the school as quickly as possible. The school has a two-year attendance requirement, and, therefore, new students are not accepted into the twelfth grade.

Each year 10 to 15 girls in the Upper School receive partial or total aid. Several of these receive awards from the Alumnae Association and others receive aid from the school scholarship fund. Still other scholarship girls receive help from both the school and the Alumnae Association.

Boarding students as well as day girls are eligible for scholarship aid. This year, half of the scholarship students are in the boarding department. In addition, each year several foreign girls study at Hockaday. These girls are sponsored by the American Field Service International Scholarship Program.

The Alumnae Association and the School are constantly expanding the program and hope this year to be able to make awards to a greater number of qualified girls. Eligibility is based on academic records, previous school records, character, and financial need.

The morning of May 19, has been set aside for the tests. The interviews by members of the Alumnae Scholarship Committee will be held in the afternoon following the testing. Mrs. Duncan E. Boeckman, chairman, has announced. Both tests and interviews will be

RUTH MILLET

Jane makes friends easily. But even more important, she keeps the friends she makes.

There is more than one reason for this, of course. But, perhaps, the most important reason is that Jane looks for qualities to admire in others. Then, like a good press agent, she promotes those qualities.

Because she recognizes their admirable qualities, Jane's friends are happy and relaxed when they are with her. They never have to be on guard for fear she is looking for flaws or something to disapprove of.

And they wouldn't be human if they didn't appreciate her enthusiastic advertising of their good points.

Some people have the mistaken notion that the way to build them selves up is to tear others down. But it never works.

The people so criticized eventually become enemies. And those who hear the constant criticism of others are fearful of this person who is always looking for flaws and pointing them out.

Jane's attitude is the right one for making and keeping friends.

And it is easy to master if you never allow yourself the luxury of envy. For without envy you are free to admire and to advertise your admiration.

You get your pleasure out of enjoying the best in your friends and overlooking their faults. (Otherwise, you are getting pleasure out of picking people to pieces and gloating over their mistakes and faults.)

Your reward will certainly be an ease in making friends and keeping them through the years.

And that is a very fine reward, indeed.

Brownie Scouts Plan For Holiday

A "Brownie Holiday" will be observed Saturday at Camp Mel Davison for an all-day session of sewing, near Lefors, by Brownie Scouts and leaders. The event will be an orientation period to acquaint Brownie leaders with the camp's physical set-up in preparation for Day Camp, to begin May 30.

The group will leave the Girl Scout Little House at 10 a.m. and return at 3 p.m. Each person has been asked to bring a sack lunch, drinks and coffee will be furnished at the camp by the Top of Texas Girl Scout Council.

Each troop will be responsible for its own transportation, explained Mrs. Marian Osborne, council assistant. One adult will be present for each six girls, and several first aiders with first aid equipment will be on hand.

Each girl must turn in her signed permission slip before leaving for camp. Mrs. Osborne stated. She added that a later-orientation session will be held to acquaint leaders with the Day Camp program.

Miss Ragaini Feted By Music Teachers

The Pampa Music Teachers Association gave a reception in the home of Mrs. H. A. Yoder, 1215 Williston honoring Miss Aurora Ragaini of New York City, adjudicator for the National Piano Auditions now being held in the First Methodist Church.

Miss Ragaini is an artist teacher and concert pianist sent here by the National Guild of Piano Teachers which has its headquarters in Austin. The auditions began Saturday and will continue through Thursday. Miss Ragaini will go to Abilene as judge in another Guild center upon completion of the Pampa auditions.

During the informal reception, Miss Ragaini gave suggestions to the teachers and played two solo selections. The group also listened to high fidelity recordings.

Refreshments of punch and cookies were served. The table was centered with a stereo-foam treble clef and notes accented by an arrangement of daisies.

Attending were Mrs. Irvin Cole, assisting as monitor for the auditions; and Meses. Lily Hartsfield, W. H. Fuller, Lois Fagan, W. M. Cooper, H. A. Yoder; and Billy Haley.

American Plastic Gadgets, Washable Jackets "Cause Commotion" In Paris

PARIS — UP — Plastic gadgets and washable sports jackets straight from America cause more commotion here than a Paris label in a closet back home. While visiting Americans crowd into cut-rate perfume shops and expensive boutiques, French shoppers now are flocking to buy American-made products imported in record numbers by two leading Paris department stores.

Their enthusiasm for genuine made-in-U. S. products is so contagious it makes even Americans look with new respect at such familiar items as plastic bridge table covers, nylon undershorts for men and plastic playthings for children.

The escalator which carries customers up to the fifth floor American section in Le Printemps, one of the two stores, rolls past walls advertising scores of the imported items.

Davy Crockett in Paris. Caught in one of these eager upward riders, I rode past Davy Crockett chemises, nylon rompers, plastic mats and finally, spilled onto the fifth floor with the shoving crowd, found myself in the men's slacks department.

"The section for men is the most popular except for plastics," a pretty clerk explained when I questioned her in English. "Men in France cannot buy such things before."

Prices of seersucker pajamas, dacron jackets and slacks and nylon raincoats were as high and often higher than they were in the United States.

One French couple fingered a lightweight dacron sports jacket. "Too cold for our weather," the woman complained in English as I could understand. Her husband added, "It is for Tex-ahz," and laughed uproariously at his joke.

Entire families gathered around the American toy display. In the center was a colorful cardboard booth with a sign reading "Super Duper Market." The play store unfortunately had not come equipped with American-type merchandise, so the display shelves held one box of corn muffin mix, some Easter egg dye, hair ointment and tooth paste.

Women Buying Plastics. Nearby scores of women bought blue and yellow plastic flour sifters; red plastic garbage pails; pink nylon floor mops, shiny metal egg beaters; royal blue plastic dish pans and mysterious cork and metal holders for either paper napkins or hors d'oeuvres.

When they tired of buying they moved over to another counter to munch free samples of American breakfast cereal which were served in small plastic dishes. They also could buy, for 85 francs (about 30 cents) an American hot dog inserted in the center of a crusty French roll in a hole made by a metal spike.

The whole scene had a catching, carnival atmosphere. Which explains, unfortunately, how I came to own such Paris-bought souvenirs as: One box pink and white marshmallows (they've never seen such marshmallows over here); one yellow plastic table cloth; two pairs men's nylon stretch socks and a bread box.

Stiff Penalties To Be Given
Several Colleges By NCAA

NEW ORLEANS —UP— Stiff penalties were expected to be handed out to a number of colleges and universities Wednesday by the National Collegiate Athletic Association under its new announced "get tough policy" on rule violations.

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, said the stiffer penalties will be levied against institutions that violated rules after June 9, 1955, under a stepped-up enforcement program effective that date.

The NCAA council, which slapped penalties on three institutions Tuesday, indicated a number more would be handed out Wednesday and they would be against schools that violated rules after the last June 9th date. Hence stiffer penalties were expected.

The three listed by the NCAA Tuesday — Texas A&M, Kansas and Mississippi Colleges — were for violations prior to June 9, 1955, but not imposed until now.

Some "Not Small Fry"

Officials declined to say what schools would be given penalties Wednesday, but one said "some of them are not small fry and there are several of them."

It was believed Ohio State, which was given a year's probation by the Big Ten last week, and Auburn, which was taken to task by the Southeastern Conference earlier this year over football recruiting practices, would be included.

A&M was placed on probation for a year and 13 days and its athletic teams prohibited from participating in NCAA championship and invitational events, including post-season football games, for violating NCAA football recruiting and financial rules.

The action, however, does not interfere with A&M's regular season schedule games or conference championships or tournaments.

Kansas and Mississippi College were placed on one year probation for violating basketball by-laws. Neither was forbidden to participate in tournaments and post-season events.

In explaining the stiffer penalty policy, Byers said when the enforcement program was authorized in 1952, the council moved slowly at first "to see how the program shookdown."

Then in May, 1954, the council sent out a memo called certificate of compliance. All member institution presidents, athletic directors and allied conference commissioners were asked to review NCAA rules with their staffs. They were asked to advise the NCAA their institutions and conferences were complying with the rules and they intended to maintain compliance with them.

"By June, 1955, we felt the enforcement program had reached maturity," Byers said. "It reached us that there should be less violations necessary because everyone should have known by then what the rules were. So, we decided after June 9, 1955, that violators should be treated more severely than before."

Stormy Weather
Plagues Texas
Baseball Games

By UNITED PRESS
The San Antonio Missions have regained second place in the Texas League race as stormy weather continued to plague three-fourths of the loop schedule.

The Missions beat Houston 7-3 Tuesday night in the only game played and swapped places in the standings with the Buffs for the third straight time, while Tulsa at Dallas, Oklahoma City at Fort Worth and Austin at Shreveport were postponed by rain and wet grounds.

Weather permitting, doubleheaders will be on the schedule Wednesday night everywhere except at San Antonio as the clubs attempt to make up the postponements.

Oilers, Indians Cancel; Return Here Tonight

Weather Still Worries
Southwestern League

The Pampa Oiler-Midland baseball game was postponed last night because of wet grounds. The two teams will come to Pampa today. They are scheduled to play tonight at 8 in Oiler Park.

Pampa dropped in the standings by virtue of the rain out but the Oilers are still only one game out of the top place. Four teams, which haven't faced the Oilers, are tied at the top of the list with 8-6 records. Pampa boasts a 6-6 seasonal mark.

Only the Carlsbad Potashers seem to be out of their class in a hectic Southwestern League race that has four teams tied for the lead, three others only a half game out of the pace and the ninth-place club a mere two games from the top.

With two weeks of the freshman season now past history, Carlsbad is floundering 5 1/2 games back after its 10th straight setback—this time a 9-3 verdict to Plainview as the Ponies' Jack Cardey held the Potashers to seven scattered hits.

Plainview is one of the four tied for the lead with 8-6 records. The others are Hobbs, Roswell and El Paso. Midland, San Angelo and Clovis are only one-half game back, while Pampa is one game out of the top spot and Ballinger two.

Hobbs beat Roswell 2-1 as Jim Grimm bested Wayne Godell in a pitchers battle; Clovis rode Jim Waugh's seven-hit mound work to an 8-1 verdict over El Paso; San Angelo nosed out Ballinger 6-5, while Pampa at Midland was postponed because of wet grounds.

Wednesday night's schedule finds San Angelo at Ballinger, Hobbs at Roswell, El Paso at Clovis, Carlsbad at Plainview and Midland at Pampa.

IBC Boxing
Investigation
Nears End

NEW YORK —UP— Craig Smith, a razor company executive was expected to be a defense witness Wednesday at the International Boxing Club's anti-monopoly trial near its end in federal district court.

The defense will rest its case late Wednesday or early Thursday.

Defense attorneys had Smith ready to testify about contracts and financial arrangements for televising and broadcasting the Friday-night fights, promoted by the IBC. The company is the Friday-night sponsor.

Tuesday Lester M. Malitz, advertising agency executive from Chicago, concluded his testimony about televising the Wednesday-night fights.

The agency represents a brewing company, a co-sponsor of the Wednesday bouts, also promoted by the IBC. Malitz testimony disputed the government charges of restraint and monopoly by the IBC in "promoting, exhibiting, broadcasting, and telecasting" championship fights.

He stressed that contracts with the networks were arranged by representatives of the sponsors and not by the IBC.

Floyd Patterson Recognized Contender For Heavy Title

NEW YORK —UP— Remarkable young Floyd Patterson of Brooklyn was recognized by the Ring magazine Wednesday for the first time as a contender for the vacant heavyweight boxing crown.

Sporting 11 straight knockouts and 18 straight victories, the former Olympic middleweight champion was shifted from top light heavyweight contender to fifth-ranking heavyweight aspirant in the Ring's latest ratings.

The shift was made so that 21-year-old Floyd can be considered a full-fledged contender for the title left vacant by Rocky Marciano's retirement.

Light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore, 39, still is rated top contender for the heavy crown and is the man the others must best in an elimination tournament to freekick to Marciano's throne.

Freakish Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson of Far Rockaway, N. Y., is ranked second among the heavies.

Nino Valdes of Cuba and Heinz Neuhaus of Germany were dropped out of the top 10.

In the light heavy division, Gerard Hecht of Germany moved up a notch to top contender. There were no changes among the No. 1 contenders in the other divisions.

Featherweight Cherif Hamia of Algeria, jumped from eighth to third among 126-pound aspirants.

Here are the ring magazine's latest ratings:

HEAVYWEIGHTS — Title vacant. 1 - Archie Moore. 2 - Hurricane Jackson. 3 - Bob Baker. 4 - Johnny Holman. 5 - Floyd Patterson. 6 - Johnny Summerlin. 7 - Willie Pasrano. 8 - Harold Carter. 9 - Bob Satterfield. 10 - Eddie Machen.

LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHTS — Champion Archie Moore. 1 - Gerhard Hecht. 2 - Yolande Pompey. 3 - Chuck Spieser. 4 - Hans Stretz. 5 - Willie Hoepner. 6 - Joey Maxim. 7 - Harold Johnson. 8 - Ron

Scheduled

Workouts will be in progress each week-day afternoon at 5:30 except Monday.

Persons who wish to participate in the umpiring of kid baseball games, this summer are asked to be on hand Thursday night as plans for an umpire clinic will be discussed at the meeting.

Optimist Club president, John B. Schofield, will open the meeting. Addresses by Johnny Campbell, boys work chairman, and Bob Banks one of the 12 team managers, will conclude the meeting which is scheduled for approximately 45 minutes.

Harvesters Play
Sandies, Dons
Friday, Saturday

Pampa's Harvester baseballers will be idle until Friday of this week. Pampa and Amarillo, first and second teams of the district, will clash in their second game Friday in Amarillo.

The Harvesters and the Palo Duro Dons will tangle Saturday, also in Amarillo. The Harvesters defeated the Dons in the first meeting but fell to the Sandies, 5-0.

Both games will be broadcast over radio station KPDM. Game time for the Sandie contest is 3:30 and the Saturday Don game begins at 2:30.

Jokey Completes Triple
CAMDEN, N. J. —UP— Henry Moreno completed a triple at Laurel Park Tuesday when he booted Calumet Farm's Eastgate to an easy win in the featured Clayton Purse. Moreno also scored on Marco Saul (22.80) and King Oscar (24.40). Eastgate, a possible Kentucky Derby starter, paid $4.20 straight.

'As Al Smith Goes, So Go The Indians,' Says Lopez

BREAKING AND ENTERING—Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson showed there is no way to catch a thief with his quick legs when he made a clean steal of home against the Giants. Wes Westrum, New York's catcher, never had a chance. In bursts such as this, Jackie still flies.

By UNITED PRESS
Al Lopez claims "as Al Smith goes, so go the Indians" — and both Smith and Cleveland were going great guns Wednesday.

To hear Lopez talk, the 28-year-old Smith has become Cleveland's new "key man" and that was pretty much the story Tuesday night as the Indians ripped the Senators 3-2 with the help of Early Wynn's seven-hit pitching.

"Smith is our best hitter in the clutch," Lopez insists. "When he doesn't hit, we don't win. And when he does hit, we do."

Smith collected three of Cleveland's nine hits while boosting his average to .345 and the Indians to within a half-game of the on-place White Sox. He led off the seventh inning with a homer off Pedro Ramos that tied the score at 2-all, then opened the ninth with a double and scored the winning run on Chico Carrasquel's sacrifice fly.

Chico Lose First Place
The Baltimore Orioles knocked the Chicago White Sox out of first place in the American League by beating them 3-2 in 11 innings. Four errors caused Chicago's downfall and it was the last one, a wild throw by relief pitcher

Dixie Howell in the 11th, that allowed Bob Boyd to score from second base with the winning run. What hurt Manager Marty Marion was that his White Sox hadn't committed a single error in any of their previous six games.

The Yankees took over first Tuesday place with a 9-2 victory over the Tigers as Mickey Manile and Hank Bauer hit home runs and Whitey Ford posted his third consecutive complete game victory with a seven-hitter.

A perfect squeeze bunt by Joe DeMaestri brought in the winning run in the eighth inning for the Athletics in a 3-2 triumph over the Red Sox. Lou Kretlow buried the Red Sox in the seventh inning. Bob Porterfield, Dick Gernert homered with one on for Boston in the second inning.

Milwaukee Heads NL
Milwaukee moved atop the National League with a 6-4 victory over Philadelphia. Reliever Dave Jolly pitched his way out of a bases-loaded, none out situation in the seventh inning and kept the Phillies throttled after that to the victory.

The Cincinnati Redlegs stretched their winning streak to five games in beating the Brooklyn Dodgers

Those surprising Pirates won their third straight game, beating the Cardinals 4-2 even though Manager Bobby Bragan had to employ three pitchers in the ninth inning to do so.

Willie Mays clouted two triples, drove in one run and scored another in leading the Giants to a 2-1 triumph over the Cubs. Jim Hearn gave up four hits and struck out five batters in registering the victory over Warren Chicago.

Tuesday's Star
Al Smith, whose three hits paced the Indians to a 3-2 victory over the Senators.

Snaps Longhorn String
WACO, Tex., April 28—UP—Baylor lost 5-1 Saturday but snapped the University of Texas' string of consecutive individual victories in Southwest Conference tennis competition at 97. Ed White unbeaten in intercollegiate competition for Baylor this year, stopped the Longhorn string when he beat David Snyder, 6-4, 6-4.

Lubbock A CLEAN DRY CITY??

Bullets, Beatings Mark Lubbock Bootleg Wars

By BOB FENLEY
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal

LUBBOCK, Feb. 5 (AP)—A lusty thirst which all the pumping windmills on the South Plains can't seem to quench has brought to amazing proportions the business of that furtive character with the bulge in his pocket—the bootlegger.

In 24 counties where the handle books onto the pan in Texas, it is against the law to sell any beverage containing alcohol, even a can of beer.

Long War

The West Texas wars between rum and righteousness have been waged a long time, but, as was inevitable, the law of supply and demand has come out on top.

On the South Plains, the lure of the thirsty dollar makes pawas of men.

The newest look in the game is violent, but it's really an old profile. Brutal inter-clan clashes in bootlegging ranks have been punctuated late at night with the crackle of gunfire.

Pair Tied Up

In Lubbock recently a man and woman were bound, gagged and locked in the closet of their home while hijackers drove away their liquor-loaded car.

A Negro hired to guard a collection of liquor near Lubbock was virtually whipped to a pulp with a chain wielded by robbers.

One can almost hear the pink of a 1920 ukelele and smell the tang of bathtub gin as stories are told of rifle slugs fired through cars, of flashing red lights and of iron spikes booby trapping highways for the liquor runner as competitors vie with each other for a larger slice of illicit business.

What's the picture?

Today in Lubbock you can buy a fifth of cheap bourbon for $6 to $7. The Latins drink beer at $4 a quart. The Negroes like wine at $4 a pint.

Town 'Bone-Dry'

In "bone-dry" Lubbock, police records show that over half of arrests, excluding traffic, have to do with liquor.

Bootleg liquor is too costly for some. An aged man recently told police he had been mixing canned heat with strawberry soda pop.

The "long neckers" clan has grown. They buy the long necked bottles of bay rum for a half buck or so for the high alcohol content.

But the better-to-do can buy anything from blended Bourbon to ancient Scotch.

Sold in Clubs

Various clubs and organizations have and do sell liquor.

No less than 11 South Plains clubs applied for federal liquor dealer's permits from 1950 to 1952.

But if you're not a club member and have a thirst you pick a telephone number. Some of the easiest-to-remember numbers in Lubbock are owned by bootleggers.

If you are "in the know and sent by Joe" the bootlegger has your name listed.

Liquor moves into the South Plains in amazing quantities, but not without effort and trouble.

Picture a lonely South Plains road in early morning hours as the lights of a fast-moving car out through the blackness.

Trapped on Road

Ahead of the car, shadowy figures move across the road and place instruments with spikes in the way. The figures retreat to watch the car whose driver sees the trap too late. Flat tires slap at the pavement and the dark figures dart toward the lurching vehicle.

"Ghey, boy out! . . . Got 'em up!"

As the driver is marched down the highway, long brown packages from his car are transferred to another auto. Then the auto rears away, leaving the driver alone to contemplate his monstrous bad luck—a loss that may mount into thousands.

This is bootleg hijacking.

An iron curtain of secrecy is maintained by the victims. How can they complain?

'Logger's Comments

I talked with a bootlegger who had been robbed but hadn't told officers.

"They shot six times through my car and were flashing a red light at me," he recalled.

The bootlegger said he thought he was being stopped by a law officer but soon learned this wasn't the case.

"They robbed me of $200 cash and 40 cases of beer," he ruefully remembered.

Women Shot At

Another bootlegger said the hijacker's shots were answered with a shotgun blast which sent them fleeing across a cotton patch. A woman in another case was greeted with hijacker bullets at her feet.

This has caused a rumble among the bootleg kinglypins.

Some officers are inclined to lean back and say, "If the bootleggers knock each other off, we're for it."

Fourth Off July Type Of Politics Pops In Texas

By UNITED PRESS
Fourth of July type of politics popped in Texas Wednesday as the bitter and tremendous struggle between Gov. Allan Shivers and Sen. Lyndon Johnson for the control of the state's delegation to the national Democratic convention neared its first decision in the precinct conventions Saturday.
Johnson, Senate majority leader, used his strongest language yet in an all-out bid for North Texas backing in Dallas Tuesday.
"There is only one question before the people of Texas: Is Allan Shivers fit to represent the Democrats of Texas at a Democratic convention," Johnson said.
"Same Old Gang"
Shivers charged at Beaumont Tuesday night that "the same old gang" is backing Johnson that "has fought the moderate Texas Democrats down through the years."
"We are reminded," he said, "that Lyndon Johnson was chairman of the Texas delegation to the Democratic national convention in 1940, which convention turned its back on (former vice president) John Nance Garner and nominated Henry Wallace for vice president."
Johnson will speak at Waco at noon Wednesday and meet with campaign workers in Austin Wednesday night. His plans for Thursday were "indefinite."
Shivers will tour the Houston area Wednesday and will speak at noon Wednesday and meet with campaign workers in Austin Wednesday night.

Four Powerful Leaders Under Attack For "One Man Rule"

By CHARLES F. McMANN United Press Foreign Analyst
"One man rule" is under attack in four countries in widely separated parts of the world.
The leaders concerned are Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany, Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain, President Fulgencio Batista of Cuba and President Syngman Rhee of South Korea.
Adenauer and Rhee became their countries' leaders in the course of normal political elections. Franco attained power as the result of the Spanish civil war. Batista got back into the presidency by a coup.
Each Dominant Figure
Each is the outstandingly dominant figure in the country concerned.
Now 80-year-old Adenauer's one man rule is being challenged not only by members of opposition political parties but by the rank and file of his own Christian Democrats.
Adenauer is chairman of the party. There have been two deputy chairmen.
Over Adenauer's protest, the party at a conference in Stuttgart Saturday decided to name four deputies.
One of them is Karl Arnold, former premier of the state of North Rhine-Westphalia, a leader of the Christian Democratic left wing.
The rank and file elected Arnold a deputy to put him in line to succeed Adenauer as chancellor when the time comes. Adenauer's plea that Arnold's election would undermine his authority went unheeded.
One reason, undoubtedly, is that Adenauer has refused persistently to name his own political heir. He had come pretty near to promising that he would designate an heir at the conference. Instead he made it plain that he means to stay in office indefinitely.
Two Groups Attack Franco
In Spain, Franco is under attack by intellectuals and workers.
There were serious riots in February in Madrid between University students and members of Franco's Falange party. Now there has been an outbreak of strikes, involving scores of thousands of workers, in industrial northern Spain.
The students, supported by intellectual elements, complain against the domination of the Falange. The workers struck in protest against economic conditions.
Opposition to Batista broke out in Matanzas province in Cuba Sunday.
A band of rebels, apparently supporters of former President Carlos Prio Socarras, attacked an army post. Fifteen rebels were killed. Five university students had been killed earlier last week in attacks on police patrols.
Batista former President
Batista blamed Prio Socarras for the outbreaks and had him taken into custody briefly. Batista had ousted him from the presidency in a coup in 1952. Prio Socarras went into exile in Miami, Fla. But returned in six months ago. Batista accused him early last month of plotting a revolt.
Finally, 81-year-old Syngman Rhee is being challenged by two opponents in the presidential election to be held May 15. They are campaigning largely against Rhee's firm one-man rule.
It is pretty certain that Rhee will be elected. Nor are the challenges to Adenauer, Franco and Batista likely to get anywhere soon. West Germans and Koreans seem to feel that Adenauer and Rhee are indispensable in the present world situation. Franco and Batista have the support of their armies, as well as political parties, against any serious revolt.

Approves Disaster Pay

WASHINGTON — UP — The Army has approved payment of a $25,000 claim—the first such settlement arising from the 1947 harbor explosion in Texas City, Tex. The claim was made by Mrs. Elizabeth H. Dalehite, whose husband was killed in the disaster, and her son, Henry G. Dalehite Jr., both of Galveston.

May 8, 1945, was V-E Day in World War II.

Rocket Blast May Be Today

By PRESTON MCGRAW
WHITE SANDS — PROVING GROUNDS, N. M. — UP — Naval experts hoped for improved weather conditions Wednesday so they could attempt to break an altitude record with the Aerobee-HI rocket.
Winds of 100-mile an hour velocity at the 60,000-foot level Tuesday first delayed and then cancelled launching the single-stage rocket which the Navy hopes to fire 185 miles into the ionosphere.
The test is planned to gather information that could help scientists build the first U. S. earth satellite.
Lt. Cmdr. E. W. Diehl, in charge of the shoot, said the launching might be set at 3 p.m. Wednesday, weather permitting. He said Tuesday he feared high winds would carry the rocket off the vast White Sands grounds.
The rocket was to have been launched at 5:45 a. m. Tuesday, but officers kept postponing the firing and then at dawn a sudden emergency was announced and everyone was a cement structure with 10-foot thick walls.
A irrat of smoke rose from the rocket, but A. D. Weaver, a chief gunner's mate, climbed the tower and reported that some nitric acid had spilled into a pool of amine, causing the smoke. The emergency was lifted.
The Aerobee-HI is pencil-slim, weighing 1,050 3-4 pounds and propelled by a mixture of red-fuming nitric acid, aniline and alcohol.
The nose contains 145 pounds of cameras and delicate instruments to tell Navy scientists what goes on 185 miles above the earth, where a man's blood would boil from lack of air pressure.
Before the United States fires its first satellite, probably in 1958, scientists first must know how thick to make the shell, to allow for the eroding action of the meteor dust.

IT'S HER OWN VIEWPOINT—Mrs. Irene Riebling de Giovanni has found a way to make her painting area seem larger. She painted this three-dimensional mural of a forest scene on one of the room's 14-foot walls. The Pittsburgh, Pa., woman never had an art lesson, but it took her only three evenings to paint the mural. Trees, brown with black shading, have green and black leaves and are painted over a chartreuse background, all of which goes well with the room's carved oak furniture. One of her reasons for painting the mural was that she had hunted in the area for several years. Now that it's slowly developing into a residential district, she thought it would be "nice to bring those trees indoors and preserve them."

Candidates Of Both Parties Are All Big Flops On TV

NEW YORK—UP—Betty Cashman, one of this town's top dramatic coaches, sized up the candidates of both parties Monday and decided they're all flops on TV. "There's not a single man in politics today," said Miss Cashman, "who really understands the medium. They lack eye appeal and ear appeal. I teach my actors that they can't make speeches at an audience. It's about time politicians learned the same thing. Speeches don't work when you're visiting some one's living room." Miss Cashman, a specialist in self-expression, has been teaching for eight years. She has tutored such scholars as Tony Curtis, Denise Darcel, Jack Palance, Paul Page, Martha Wright and the sisters Gabor. Lessons for Leaders It's her belief that she could impart some profitable lessons in TV-politicking to Messrs. Eisenhower, Stevenson, Kefauver and the rest. "Mr. Eisenhower has improved a good deal. But he was in the Army so long, he picked up the habit of talking at people instead of to them. He was too used to giving direct orders to make a good TV speaker in the beginning."

Only an expert would have trouble with today's hand. Experts have had it drummed into them that the "safety play" with today's trump holding is to lead out the ace first and then get to dummy for another round of trumps towards the queen.

Both declarers adopted this line of play when this hand was played in a recent team championship. They won the first trick with the ace of clubs, cashed the ace of spades, entered dummy with a club, and led another trump. This gave West the chance to take two trump tricks immediately. Only two trumps were left in the dummy, and these were not enough to ruff out South's losing hearts. South wound up with only nine tricks.

The "safety" play is correct if you can afford to lose only one trump trick. What both experts forgot is that they could afford to lose two trump tricks. After leading out the ace of trumps, South should abandon the trumps. He should lead a heart, discard a diamond on one of dummy's high clubs, and proceed to cash high cards. A cross-ruff would then develop 10 tricks. South would be content to lose two trump tricks whether the same or different opponents held the two missing trumps. It would be equally proper to win the first trick in dummy and finesse the queen of spades. South would later lead a heart and then cash the ace of trumps before proceeding with the rest of the play. The important thing was to give the opponents no chance to win two trump tricks and also draw three rounds of trumps.

Amid picnic baskets, swim suits and sun tan lotion, seniors enjoyed their annual class trip to Palo Duro Canyon Monday.

Although the weather was a bit cloudy and damp, nothing could dampen the seniors' spirits. They kept up the time-honored tradition of dumping each other in the creek, and climbed all over the canyons. Some of them went swimming in the indoor pool at West Texas State College.

When it was time to load on to the old busses and come home, they knew that they had had one day of fun that will not be forgotten for a long time.

The Seniors were also honored Saturday night. The Junior Class entertained them with the annual Junior-Senior Banquet in the cafeteria. Theme of the banquet was "Candyland." Johnny Lynn of KGNC spoke and Eddie Swinney and the Hi-Fi Quartet entertained.

With these activities, the year is fast coming to a close for seniors. Only exams, practice for graduation, vespers services and the big one, graduation day, remain.

Another group of students are preparing to be the top knobs on the totem pole; the juniors have registered for next year's courses. Monday they measured for their class rings.

Good luck to the state interscholastic league entries. The group will leave tomorrow morning early. There will be Joan Robertson in extemporaneous speaking, Marilyn Wells and Vickie Osborn in debate and the track and golf entries.

Donna Hankins (who used to be Donna Hegwer) will leave tomorrow on a journey, also. Donna is going to England to join her husband, who is in the service there. Bon voyage, Donna.

Sunday afternoon the PHS troupe of Theatians will initiate nine new members. They are Melvin Ro-mine, Danny Johnson, Carolyn Ford, Ted Swindle, Luther Nor-ton, Sally Cahill and Sheila Chisholm. The ceremony was concluded by an informal supper in the home of Dan Teed.

Don't forget the annual Spring Choral Festival this week end. The public is invited to attend this week end. The public is invited to attend this event which climaxes the year's work for all Pampa school choirs. It is to be held in the field house.

Congratulations to Bill Walsh and Jimmy Edwards upon being elected presidents of their junior and senior classes for next year. Other officers are Carroll Cole and Sandra Walsh, senior vice-president and secretary, respectively, and Robert Langford and Pat Dial, junior vice-president and secretary respectively.

Officers for the upcoming sophomore class will be elected in Junior High soon.

After a day of running the affairs of the city, De Molays celebrated their annual dance last Tuesday night. At the formal affair, Mary Kennedy was chosen De Molay Queen. Her escort was Philo Grossman and the attendants were Cynthia Duncan and Rhonda Finkelstein.

Duggan Smith was named De Molay of the year.

The main item of next week's activities is the big, big talent show in the field house Friday night. It is a benefit for the city youth center. Students have volunteered their talents and compiled a showfull of entertainment.

Everyone that is interested in helping build our youth center will buy a ticket.

It took about 100 man hours of work to produce 100 bushels of wheat in 1900. Now it takes about 25 hours to produce the same amount.

Martha Raye Trapped In Own Tragedy

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK—UP—Martha Raye is an onstage clown trapped in an offstage tragedy.

She is, perhaps, the most successful female jester in show business. She earns an estimated $150,000 a year and NBC says she plays before an average audience of some 20 million when she appears on TV.

She rapidly is socking away enough in annuities to insure her financial future, owns a $50,000 house in the Chi-Chi social jungles of Connecticut and has reached that heady point in her career where she can check into a fashionable hospital for a two-day rest after her TV show.

But her personal life is a flop. Like most entertainers, she is surrounded by people—friends, acquaintances, glad-handers. But "Maggie," as her friends call her, is still a lonely woman who would prefer to pivot her life around her 11-year-old daughter, Melody.

She is a five-time loser in marriage. She was 20 when she eloped with Buddy Westmore, brother of make-up man Perc Westmore, in early 1937. It lasted three months. Westmore was trailed by, in order, David Rose, Neal Lang, Nick Condos and Edward Begley. Martha's family has been stalked by tragedy. Her brother, Buddy, and sister, Melody, died of tuberculosis. Her mother died in California while Martha was performing in a Boston night club only a few years back. When Martha got word of her mother's death, she went on despite the news.

Martha comes from a family of trouper. Her father, Pete Reed, and her mother, Peggy, were touring with a "tab" show—a kind of "miniature musical"—when Martha was born. It happened on Aug. 27, 1916, in Butte, Mont.

Anti-Semitism

A friend of ours has written in a state of some confusion. "What is an anti-Semite?" he asks. "There are many persons who consider that anyone who is against the A.D.L. (Anti-Defamation League) is 'anti-Semitic.'"

Perhaps we can shed a little light on this subject. First of all, our friend is right in stating that the term "anti-Semite" if it is applied to Jews exclusively, is dishonest.

From whence comes this feeling of hostility toward Jews? We think it springs from several sources and exists in certain persons with greater or lesser extent according to that source.

There are some who feel hostility toward Jews on purely religious grounds. There are certain Christians, for instance, who have never forgotten nor forgiven that Jesus was crucified at the insistence of a certain sect of Jews.

A second source of antagonism is found in the more or less normal aggressiveness that Jewish business men are apt to display. There is probably no other group of persons so outstandingly successful in various forms of enterprise.

A third source of irritation is political in origin. Until the establishment of Israel in very recent days and for a period which extended from 70 A.D., until that date, the Jews had no land of their own.

It is from these sources, separately or in combination that some persons have apparently become hostile toward at least certain members of the Jewish religion or the Semitic race.

We feel that the vast number of American people are not anti-Jewish. Certainly, most Americans are Christian, and practice Christianity sufficiently to grant to any other person the right to worship God as he pleases.

Virtually the same conclusion could be reached respecting Jews who operate various types of free enterprise institutions. Free enterprise functions in a highly competitive atmosphere. This is as it should be.

The problem, however, becomes acute when we move into the realm of politics. There are several highly un-American political beliefs going the rounds which are collectivist in nature.

These beliefs could be generalized as: (1) Internationalism, an effort to substitute some type of world government for home rule. (2) Communism, a belief in the violent overthrow of capitalism so that an economic dictatorship could be established.

To claim that there are no Jews mixed up in these various schemes would be foolish. Also, to claim that these schemes are totally Jewish in origin is equally foolish.

We do not think that religion, racial origin or condition in life excuses anyone who advocates wrong and immoral ideas. If a Christian favors collectivism he is wrong. If a Jew favors collectivism he is wrong.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES Division Of Labor Cornerstone Of General Welfare

One of the things that has caused us a lot of trouble in recent years is that too few people understand how the division of labor increases production.

Division of labor simply means that men specialize in producing certain things and then trade them for other things that they want and do not produce.

It is conceded by those who have thought about production that there would be very little production if there were no division of labor; that those people who are able to live, would just merely subsist.

If the division of labor would come to an end, most of the tools we now have would be useless. They would be useless because nobody would buy the product of these tools.

Who Interferes With Division Of Labor? If division of labor is essential and a cornerstone of the general welfare and a higher standard of civilization, who is impeding the division of labor?

The primary purpose of any government that might be called a good government and would be beneficial to all mankind, is a government whose sole purpose is to see that labor can be freely divided.

But because too many people take a shortsighted view and think a producer of wealth deprives other people of their right to produce wealth and improve their lot, we have a lot of laws and customs that interfere with the free and unimpeded division of labor.

There are some laws and customs that interfere with the free and unimpeded division of labor. We have such laws as protective tariffs, immigration quotas, minimum wage laws, 40-hour a week law that penalizes men for employing a man for more than 40 hours.

Instead of President Eisenhower, the principal target of attack will be the Rayburn - Johnson leadership in Congress. According to Joseph L. Rauh, Jr., A.D.A. National Chairman, the Democrats have forfeited their right to ask for votes on the basis of the Rayburn - Johnson legislative record.

In Rauh's opinion, they have flouted and antagonized "the coalition of labor, small business, farmers and minorities which created the New Deal and sustained the Fair Deal."

Ironically, Rauh's blast against the Senate Majority Leader was issued simultaneously with public endorsement of the Texas' Presidential candidacy by Rayburn, Senator Russell of Georgia, and Senators Byrd and Robertson of Virginia. In fact, it is expected that Johnson will be the man around whom almost all the Dixie delegations will rally at the Chicago convention, which should give him an early-bellot tally of more than 300 delegates.

The A.D.A.'s chosen candidates for the Democratic Presidential nomination are two men who are anathema to the Southern faction - Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Governor Averell Harriman of New York. They give a polite nod to Adlai E. Stevenson, but he is suspect because of his attitude of "moderation" on racial and economic problems.

In referring to the possible selection of Senator Johnson or Governor Frank J. Lausche of Ohio as a compromise, Rauh comments: "The probabilities in that situation are: (1) Johnson will be chosen; (2) Lausche will be chosen; (3) neither will be chosen; (4) neither will be chosen."

an "anti-Jew" is opposed to certain persons, regardless of their ideas. The libertarian will seek to oppose wrong ideas with ideas that are right. He is neither for nor against the Jews. He is for truth and he supports others of any race or religion who also favor truth.

We would conclude, therefore, that an anti-Semite is a person who is off the track. He is seeking to participate in the war of ideas by opposing certain people. An idea can only be overcome by a better idea.

Individualism is a better idea than collectivism, by any name.

Slam At Southern Demos Predicted By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON - A flat and noisy defiance of the Southern Democrats will be hurled by the Northern and Rooseveltian faction of the Party when the Americans for Democratic Action hold their annual convention here from May 11 to 13.

The star performers at the forthcoming convention are not friends of the Southern, conservative group. Elmer Davis, radio troubador for Democratic leftists, will preside at a recorded interview with Kefauver and Stevenson. Davis was accused of leading the Office of Public Information with "radicals" when he headed that agency during World War II.

Walter P. Reuther, vice president of the AFL-CIO, will keynote the convention, and possibly blow a horn for another Presidential prospect on the South's black-list - Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan. Principal speakers will be Eleanor Roosevelt, A.D.A.'s National Honorary Chairman, and Roy Wilkins, head of the Association for Advancement of the Colored People.

Other anti-Southern orators will be Senators Lehman of New York, Humphrey of Minnesota and Morse of Washington. All three have been bitter and vocal opponents of the Rayburn - Johnson Leadership on Capitol Hill.

What record, asks Rauh, "can Johnson now take to the country in support of his Party's claim to the right of Executive leadership?" Rauh assailed particularly the Natural Gas Bill sponsored by the two Texans, denouncing it as a "multibillion giveaway."

Ironically, Rauh's blast against the Senate Majority Leader was issued simultaneously with public endorsement of the Texas' Presidential candidacy by Rayburn, Senator Russell of Georgia, and Senators Byrd and Robertson of Virginia. In fact, it is expected that Johnson will be the man around whom almost all the Dixie delegations will rally at the Chicago convention, which should give him an early-bellot tally of more than 300 delegates.

Union Inadvertently Served Public Purpose

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK - The recent convention of the International Union of Operating Engineers, one of the more notorious rackets of the A.F. of L., inadvertently served a useful-public-purpose.

The attack on Victor Riesel, of New York, dramatized the outrageous character of union power and rule over American citizens who must submit to all this or go without work or pay.

Whatever the motive, this attack occurred just before the engineers convened in Chicago, a few hours after Riesel had interviewed by radio rebellious members of a local of that international. This attack fixed attention on the conduct of the engineers in typical hoodlums' old home week.

The conventions of this racket always rigged by gimmicks written into the constitution. By a perfectly legitimate parliamentary ruse, the convention adopted a rule excluding the press. Some of the press expressed surprise that this was possible, proving that lessons carefully written long ago were lost on journalists who may have been in school or at work then or merely may have failed to pay attention.

I have referred to the classical case of the hodcarriers and common laborers' union which held no convention from September, 1911, when it met in Scranton, until Sept. 15, 1941. That means that a hodcarrier whose car was lifted in 1911 for refusing to kick back a fourth of his pay, then probably $12 a week, to a shakedown business agent, would have been barred from all work at this or any other unionized trade for 30 years.

Unions have not abandoned their old claim that they are weak and the bosses are strong, and therefore, they should not be forced to reveal their financial condition. However, most unions are stronger than most employers nowadays and the big unions, at least, have taken to boasting of their hundreds of millions.

The engineers did not pull anything new in kicking out the reporters in Chicago. Reporters are admitted only by elaborate courtesy and the secrets of union meetings are acknowledged to be its very own and sacred as any others between human beings. There is distinguished precedent for all this in the British mother of Parliaments. When any member cries, "I spy a stranger" all spectators must get out, including the press.

British Correspondent Doggedly Follows Reds

By HENRY McLEMORE

If you saw the pictures of the arrival of Bulganski and Khrushchev in London, you probably saw our chief correspondent for the British Isles, Chutney Harrow, of Upper Tree, Derby.

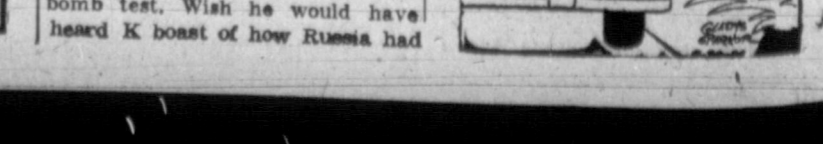

Chutney was one of the demonstrators and carried a placard which read, "All the Vodka You Can Drink - Two Sixty's, The Goose and Quill, 56 Petticoat Lane."

Since then he has dogged the footsteps of the Soviet leaders, and has lost sight of them only when they visited Eden's country home and took tea with the Queen. And he doubtless would have gone to both places had he been invited.

Chutney's first report, filed from Birmingham, came today, and offers a first-hand, unbiased observation of the Kremlin Kids. "Silly looking blighters, both of them," his report begins. "A little on the tightwad side, too. Neither of them tipped the station porters so much as a tuppence, and they had a bit of it."

"Both B and K (Chutney's code name for Bulganski and Khrushchev. . . Editors' Note) are overweight, and both could be over having their trousers pressed. I waved my placard high and believed I noticed a gleam in K's eye when he saw it. It was right after this that K said he would like to meet more of the common English people, the people in the street, and I believe he was referring to me."

Chutney then explains how he had to go home at this point to listen to the first nightingale of the season sing from a tree in a neighbor's back yard, and how he then went to Birmingham with B and K. "K made a hot speech here. He started with good cheer but was as sore as a boiled egg at the finish. I had read where your Mr. Adlai Stevenson has suggested that the U. S. (Chutney's code name for the U. S. A. . . Editor's Note) postpone its scheduled H-bomb test. Wish he would have heard K boast of how Russia had exploded one from a plane. 'A' how Russia soon will be able to fire H-bombs in missiles to any place in the world.

PICTURE NEWS

AROUND THE WORLD

NEVER HAD IT SO GOOD—A prisoner on a camel gets a light from a guard during a picnic for Egyptian convicts at the Gizeh pyramids, near Cairo. It was a most unusual outing by an equally unusual group. The picnic followed a prison reform by the revolutionary army government, which earlier cut chains from the prisoners' hands and feet.

LIVING IT UP—Rosy-faced Willy McDorman seems to have his hands full in Sun Valley, Idaho. That two-edged ax might be the means for chopping down a snow-covered tree, but it's much too heavy for a wee tot to wield effectively.

RARE SIGHT—Cigar store Indians are infrequently seen these days, but the only one ever taken to Panama is still on view in David, the country's third largest city. A constant attention-getter, the Indian occupies a place of honor in the office of a construction company. These youngsters are certainly giving it their full attention.

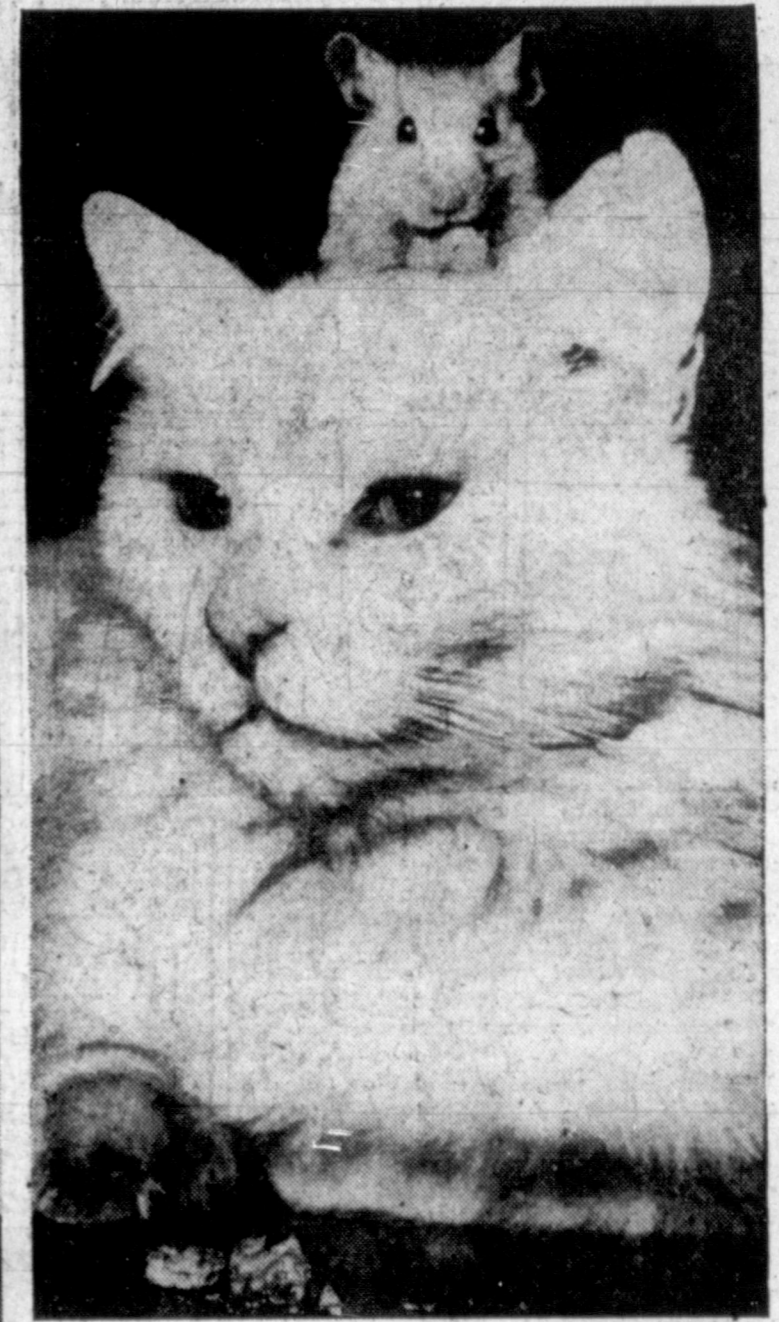

CAUGHT!—Italian beauty Gina Lollobrigida is staring up at the camera after a plunge into that net in Paris. It was done for a scene in "Trapeze," in which she co-stars with Burt Lancaster and Tony Curtis. Gina performed in many dangerous scenes in the film without using a double, and she's probably breathing easier now that the picture is completed.

TOLL OF THE SEA—The Belgian trawler Beatrix Fernande is shown disabled at the foot of the towering cliffs on the Banffshire Coast after it was wrecked on the rocks off the British Isles. Of the five crewmen who tried to swim ashore, only two men made it. Three others who stayed aboard were rescued by breeches buoy.

NO TIME FOR FATHER—British sailor Colin Newman is making that "Come to daddy" gesture in Portsmouth, England, but his tiny daughter, Colleen, has eyes only for a parakeet he's brought her. Newman had just arrived from nine months in the Mediterranean, but his daughter, who had come to greet him with mistletoe, seems to have postponed her welcome.

SEEING IS BELIEVING—Whitey, a cat in London, seems to be going out of his way to offer Sam, a hamster, a resting place. Despite its rat-like appearance, the tiny animal is a playmate of Whitey's, and finds the cat's head a haven of safety in a world of danger.

FOR AIR TRAVELERS

FLYING ANIMALS—Because so many animals are being shipped by air, the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has set up a deluxe hostel near the London Airport. A staff member is shown feeding monkeys which are spending the night there before continuing their air journey from India to the U.S., their future home.

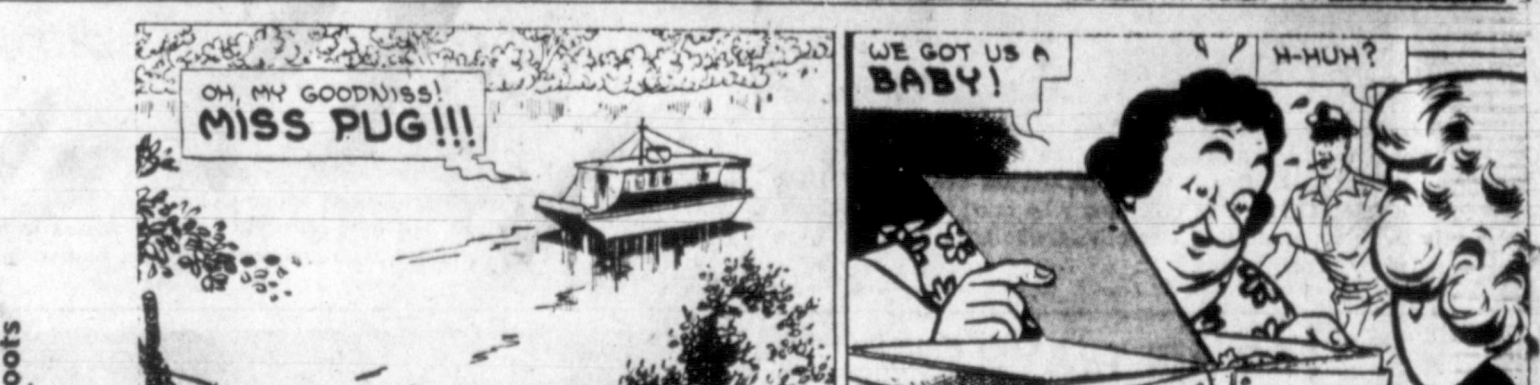

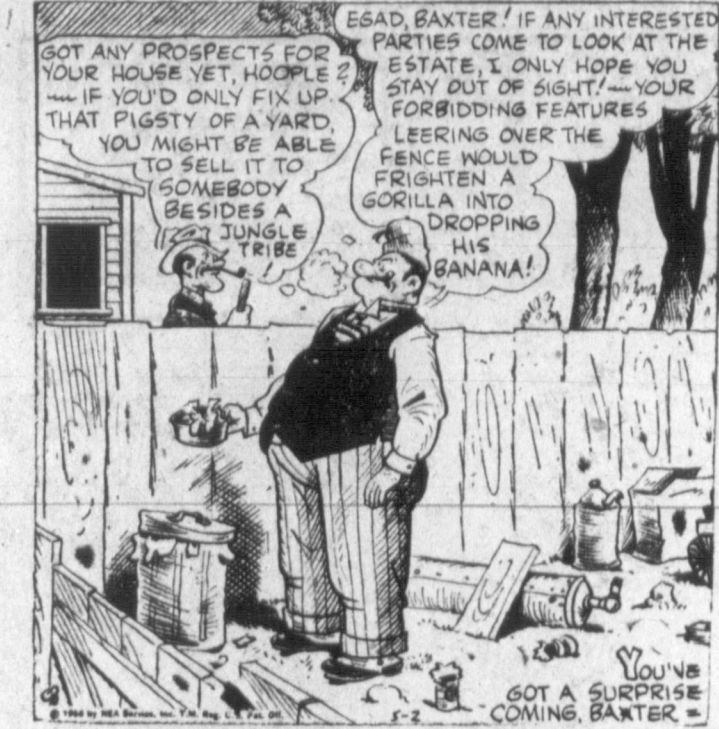

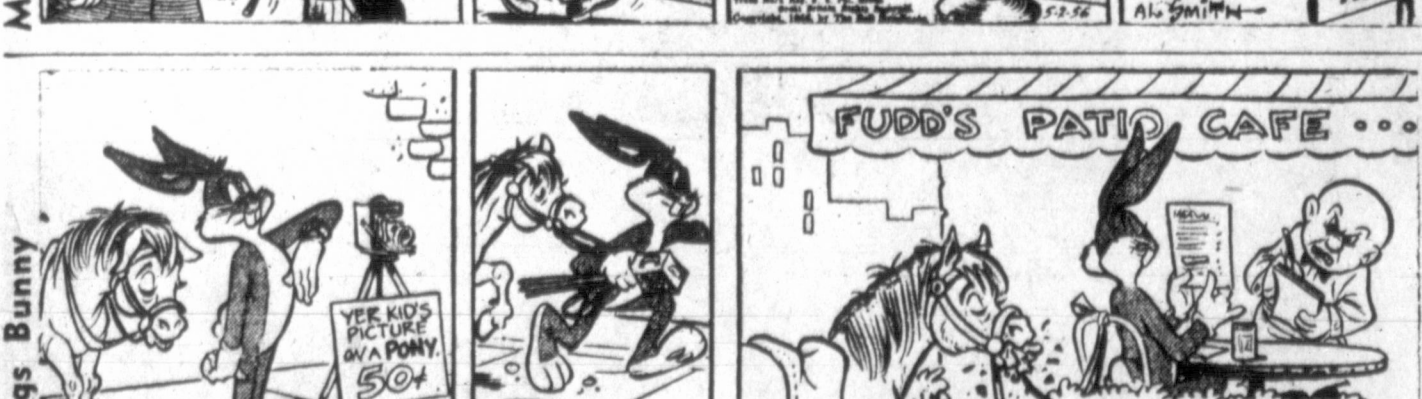

FARE FOR FLYERS—These tubs are filled with seeds, grains, hay and other foods for the animals. Temperature-controlled rooms are maintained for such travelers as polar bears, pythons and ostriches. Food, exercise and veterinary care aid the comfort and health of the temporary visitors to this swank hostel.

LIKE A PICTURE—When anyone says this print is as pretty as a picture, they're telling the truth. At her style show in New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, Mollie Parnis displayed this sheath dress, finished with a deep scoop neckline and tiny puffed sleeves in bold, primary colors.

LOTS OF HOT WATER—These bi-lingual border signs that double as buoys are now in "cold storage" in Berlin. They were used last summer to warn U.S. servicemen and West Germans against crossing into East German territory while boating or swimming along zonal lakes and canals. Things have heated up along the waterways with the East German government threat to blockade barge traffic as a means of asserting sovereignty.

WHEN THE SNOW IS GONE AND THE GRASS IS RIZ THIS IS WHERE YOUR MOVIES IS

GENS OF SPRING—Or some such thing. This spicy verse catch the eye is a plug for a drive-in movie on highway between Saranac Lake and Lake Placid in upper New York. Somebody's striving to get spring customers for a cold-bound drive-in.

ONE O'CLOCK, TWO O'CLOCK—This lantern clock, built in 1620, is advanced one hour for daylight saving time by Mary Welch, costumed hostess at Old Sturbridge Village, Mass.

FUR-CLAD FIDDLER—At Resolute in Canada's far north, this Eskimo girl named Martha, ingeniously fashioned a homemade violin with only a magazine photo to guide her. Martha is a Canadian Gov.-Gen. Vincent Massey with the crude instrument during his recent visit to Resolute. The violin is made of driftwood, an old ham tin, and ability to string along.

STOCKING THE VOTE-APPEAL—It's campaign leg work for guests who by three Washington girls, Georgina Bailey, left, Sandra Winne, center, and Ann Fadelley, right. The girls hope that the stockings, unlike their namesake, won't run.

"200 DAYS TO LIVE"—James Garner, left, a senior at San Francisco State College, is a hemophilia victim, and must receive a pint of bloody dials to survive. Student body president LaVelle Holmes, foreground, and other students are shown donating 200 pints at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank in a 3200 Days to Live drive as a graduation gift for Garner. Jim has already received 1,000 pints of blood, 500 of which have been donated by his fellow-students.

Salesman Killed
BEEVILLE, Tex., —UP—Isaac (Ike) Heffington, a Houston travelling salesman, was killed on Highway 59 Monday when his car went out of control. Heffington was a native of Lexington, Tex.

Strikers Given Deadline
PASADENA, Tex., —UP—Some 600 striking workers at Ethyl Corp. have been given until Wednesday to return to work. The workers have been on strike since April 1. Plant Manager G. O. Hayes said the firm will hire new men Wednesday if the workers refuse to return to their jobs.

Milk Prices Go Up
HOUSTON —UP—Milk went up 2 cents a quart and 3 cents per half-gallon in the Houston area Tuesday. The price boost was announced by the South Texas Producers Association.

48th Year 'Why Does A Sweet Young Thing Join Up?' That's What The Wise Guys Keep Asking

26,000 Gals In Uniform

WAC IN ACTION — is SFC Marjorie Z. Kimmel, here sounding "assembly" for recruits at WAC Center in Fort McClellan, Ala.

By ALICIA HART NEA Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON — (NEA) — "Why would a sweet young thing like you join the WAC?"

As far as 24-year-old Marjorie Hiatt is concerned that line died ages ago, but she still hears it from "clever" types. Marjorie is a Specialist First Class — or corporal — in the Women's Army Corps and works as a secretary at the Pentagon.

She receives $122 a month, lives in a barracks, takes college courses at night, has pretty dimples and goes out on dates. But the wise guys still hand her that old routine. She isn't the only one, however.

"Whether or not we're sweet or young, women in the service always get that question," she explains. "I usually say it's to save income taxes and let it go at that."

join the WAC because they have the idea it has a bad name," says one officer. "We claim it's undeserved, but at the same time we're doing all we can to build up our reputation."

Today all the branches of the service are making a major effort to convince the public that women are important in the military, and that their caliber is first rate.

"The country still has to be educated on accepting women in the peacetime military," says Col. Julia E. Hamblet, Commander of the Women Marines.

"We're here for one main purpose," she explains. "That's to provide an operating nucleus of women in case of all-out mobilization."

As a result, only about 26,000 women are serving today in the four feminine contingents: the Army's WAC, 9,000; the Navy's WAVES, 6,500; the Air Force's WAF, 8,500; and the Women Marines, 2,000.

All the women's branches say they are now stressing quality rather than quantity because they do not need large numbers. For example, Col. Irene Galloway, Director of the WAC, points out the WAC rejects eight out of 10 applicants.

"If there's any need at all, it's for more college educated women who can serve as officers. Thus recruitment programs are concentrating on the campus level."

"Every girl we take in is carefully screened," says Capt. Louise D. Wild who heads the WAVES. "We're making a sincere effort not to accept anyone with a questionable reputation."

"All of the women's services stand or fall together," emphasizes Col. Galloway. "One unfortunate incident can hurt all of us, and we know it."

In addition to the possibility of going overseas, a number of women join up with the hope of finding a man to marry, according to most of the directing officers. And a great many of them succeed, it is reported.

Other advantages include free meals and living quarters, free medical and dental service, retirement at half pay after 20 years or three-fourths pay after 30 years, $10,000 free insurance and 30 days' annual leave. Pay is exactly the same for women in the service as men, grade for grade.

The great majority of the gals have no intention of making a career in the military, however. Most of them expect to get married.

In the meantime, a number of them feel they have more prestige

Marine Sergeant To Be Tried

By PAUL SOUTHWICK WASHINGTON — UP — The Marine Corps charged Monday that Staff Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon was under the influence of liquor when he led six Marine recruits to their deaths on a night "disciplinary" march at Parris Island, S. C., three weeks ago.

A court of inquiry which investigated the death march recommended formally that the 31-year-old sergeant — from Worcester, Mass., face trial by general court martial. Top Marine officials have approved the recommendation.

Gen. Randolph McCall, Pate, Marine Corps commandant, also recommended that Maj. Gen. J. C. Burger be relieved as commanding officer of the Parris Island Marine Base, and that certain other officers there be transferred to other posts.

Pate, in a letter to Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas, also disclosed that he has ordered a closed that he has ordered a complete shakeup in Marine Corps training at Parris Island and San Diego, Calif., the two Marine "boot camps."

He said he has ordered that "every practice which may have arisen at Parris Island or San Diego which involves or suggests hazing, punishment or any other form of treatment incompatible with accepted American standards of human dignity be absolutely eliminated."

Pate's letter to Thomas and the findings of the court of inquiry were made public at a hearing of the House Armed Services committee.

Pate said the court of inquiry found that McKeon was "under the influence of alcohol to a determined degree."

WASHINGTON — Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio), in a one-man committee, charging the two major television networks with creating a "private monopoly."

"The dollar sign has so obstructed the vision of the networks and large stations as to constitute a violation of public trust."

New Tax Amendment Proposed

TAFT, Tex. — UP — A new constitutional amendment to reallocate the 35 per cent ad valorem tax to local use for a state school building and state water program was proposed Monday night by State Rep. Harold Parish of Taft.

The proposed amendment will be presented to the Texas House of Representatives in the next session, Parish told the Taft Lions Club. He said it would reallocate 10 cents back to the local school districts for school building and maintenance and renovation.

Another 10 cents would be distributed on a state basis to give the Gilmer-Aikin districts state aid on school building construction. The remaining 15 cents would be used to back up a state water program which has been unsolved to the present, Parish said.

Parish said that at present the entire 35 cents goes to provide a free text book program and to help with the per capita allotment to the schools. This would be guaranteed and become a part of the Gilmer-Aikin law with the $5 million text book program being appropriated by the legislature, Parish said.
