Ekberg, Steel Heading For Honeymoon

By CHARLES W. RIDLEY
FLORENCE, Italy — UP — Lucious Anita Ekberg and screen idol Anthony Steel headed Wednesday for a London honeymoon that threatened to be as hectic as their "circus" wedding.

The British actor who melted the "Swedish iceberg" was in no hurry to get to London where he is due to start work on a new film at 7:30 a.m. Thursday.

"They wanted us to catch the 8 a.m. train," said Steel before he and his wife retired Tuesday night to their hotel room.

"I flatly refused. We plan to catch the train to Rome around 11 a.m. and then fly on to London. As it is, we'll be spending our honeymoon in the makeup room of the studio."

The bride and groom dined out Tuesday night after the wedding and then took a moonlit buggy ride through romantic Florence.

Anita still was dressed in the form-fitting pagan goddess silk dress which she wore at the wedding, but she covered her bare shoulders with a long mink coat.

The wedding ceremony itself still was the talk of the town Wednesday, especially for the 3,000 tourists and citizens who turned it into a near riot as the newlyweds left the ancient hall of Pope Leo X in Florence's historic Palazzo Vecchio Tuesday.

The crowd grabbed at the couple's clothes. In the case of Anita this was nearly disastrous. There was very little of the skin-tight dress to grab.

Police came to the rescue and conveyed the couple through the mob.

The contract calls for work on the new library building to begin immediately and to be completed within a period of 130 days.

Architects for the library are Bliss and Vaughn of Amarillo.

Army Happy With Its 'Nike' Exhibit

By MICKEY TOPPINO
WHITE SANDS PROVING GROUNDS, N. M. — UP — The Army, happy with the result of its first demonstration of the controversial Nike anti-aircraft weapon, planned to shoot 8 to 10 "shots" of the Nike Wednesday from semi-portable launching sites in rough mountain terrain.

Tuesday, as 115 newsmen and photographers watched spellbound, two Nike missiles were launched to intercept a tiny drone target, traveling faster than 800 miles an hour at an altitude of 15,000 feet.

The slender, 20-foot-long Nikes, fired two seconds apart, climbed to 10,000 feet within three and one-half seconds, and then leveled into a wide arc. One missile hit the drone, which was only 11 feet long with an eight-foot wing span, and exploded. The other Nike, close by, quickly was blown up by a self-destruction device.

The Army said it had planned the unrestricted demonstration long before the Pentagon erupted in an argument about the relative merits of Nike and the Air Force's Talos, developed by the Navy. The Army said furthermore that it had made little change in its routine launching procedure for the press demonstration.

To Remote Canyon Wednesday Wednesday the company of newsmen and photographers were to be taken to remote Red Canyon in the Organ Mountains, which rim this desert proving center, to watch training groups fire between 8 and 10 Nikes from semi-portable launching sites.

"In Nike, the Army has a good weapon which is operational," he said. "It is the only missile in the hands of units which are now deployed."

He said also that by the time "any other missile is available," present missile devices "will be improved with later developments."

The Army demonstrated two other types of missiles Tuesday—the surface-to-surface Corporal rocket and the Honest John Artillery ballistic missile. Both rockets scored solid hits on ground targets.

The Army, Navy and Air Force share the extensive facilities at White Sands to test their rocket missiles. Last year there were about 1,200 "shots."

Maj. Gen. W. E. Laidlaw, the commanding officer at White Sands, said that in an average week, the three services have to make "an average of 100 revisions in times, locations and other problems" but these seem to be "little problems."

"I have never seen the integration of services work as well as here," General Laidlaw said. "If there are any differences, we leave them to the Pentagon."

A-Scientists Setting Up Next Nuclear Test Shot

By JOSEPH L. MYER
HONOLULU — UP — Atomic scientists at the Pacific proving grounds were busy Wednesday setting up the next shot in this year's test series—but they made it plain they won't talk much about them.

Before leaving the proving ground Tuesday for Honolulu and home, newsmen who witnessed the first two explosions in the 1956 series were told few details will be given out about the rest of the tests.

There will be in all about 10 shots, ranging in size from the multi-megaton hydrogen explosion like the ak drop of last Monday at Bikini to explosions of compact warheads of comparatively weak power.

The big tests are taking place this year at Bikini and the others at Eniwetok. Newsmen saw the shot towers at Eniwetok set for at least seven more low yield explosions.

Had the May 21 blast taken place right over Washington, D.C., for example, it probably would have killed 85 per cent of the capital's residents.

Further proof of the H-bomb's awesome power came from Tokyo. The central meteorological observatory disclosed that earth vibrations from Monday's test traveled the 2,300 miles from Bikini to Japan in just 12 minutes.

Ike Backs Services' Right To Differences

Johnson Gets Nod

By PRESTON MCGRAW
DALLAS — UP — The state Democratic convention left U.S. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the new party leader in Texas, with a small but active minority to which he couldn't sell his policy of moderation.

The convention, which lasted until nearly 11 p.m. Tuesday, designated Johnson as "favorite son" candidate for President and chairman of Texas' 56-member delegation to the Democratic national convention.

It also removed any chance that the Democratic delegation will, as it did in 1952, return from the national convention and start campaigning for the Republicans. The Republicans carried Texas in 1952.

Shivers Absent
Johnson's forces ousted the forces of Gov. Allan H. Shivers in precinct conventions May 5. Shivers, who had dominated the party for seven-and-a-half years didn't come to the convention.

Johnson, at least three times, urged moderation upon elected delegates. He most especially urged the delegates not to try to fire the Shivers-dominated state executive committee, which has three months to serve.

That was the first thing that the minority, composed of liberal Democrats and members of the state Democratic Advisory committee, tried to do at the convention. Johnson won on a roll call vote, 1,206-524.

A credentials committee controlled by the liberals, threw out three pro-Shivers delegations that a temporary subcommittee had seated. These delegations — from Dallas, Smith and Anderson counties — were replaced by pro-Johnson delegations.

Refuses Mrs. Bentzen
Then the liberal wing refused to accept pretty Mrs. Lloyd Bentzen Jr., as national committeewoman. Mrs. Bentzen was understood to be Johnson's choice.

He was reported to have agreed to let Byron Skelton of Temple, chairman of the Democratic Ad-

Republicans Give Ike, Nixon Okay

By KYLE THOMPSON
HOUSTON — UP — The Republican state convention slid by like greased glass Tuesday as delegates shouted approval of the reelection of President Eisenhower and Vice President Richard Nixon.

There was no sort of organized opposition to anything the convention sought to approve as delegates moved smoothly through the day's business with routine ease.

The convention adopted 22 resolutions and named 54 delegates to the national convention in San Francisco.

Controversy Nil
Some controversy had been expected over four resolutions, but none developed. The greatest opposition raised was nine "Noes" to an estimated 2,000 "Ayes" to a desegregation resolution.

The convention unanimously reelected Jack Porter and Mrs. John W. Martin, both of Houston, as its national committeeman and committeewoman.

The desegregation resolution stated that "in the absence of any legal and orderly change of the laws by constitutional amendment or court decree, we urge that the general solution for desegregation in Texas be left to the people, the school boards and the courts within this state pursuant to the decree of the United States Supreme Court which is the law of the land."

A resolution favoring the Bricker treaty amendment passed, with only three "no" votes. The convention also opposed further extension of foreign aid "without well defined long range planning and a constant reevaluation of objectives."

Favors Tax Revision
The convention also passed a resolution favoring revision of federal income taxes, and praised the President for his recent veto of the Congressional farm bill.

It also resolved that Texas Democrats be invited to join the GOP party in the state, an invitation made by the keynote speaker, Fort Worth attorney J. A. Gooch, who also acted as temporary chairman of the convention.

Just Taking A Nap!

THREE RIVERS, Mich. — UP — A 50-man posse combed this area for an hour Tuesday night searching for two-year-old Nancy Robinson.

The search was called off when Nancy's parents found her snoozing comfortably in a closet at home.

G. O. P. Sees Chance In West Virginia

By RAYMOND LAHR
WASHINGTON — UP — Republican campaign managers added West Virginia Wednesday to the states where they spot a good chance to pick up a Senate seat in the 1956 battle for control of Congress.

They also indicated increased confidence that former Sen. John Sherman Cooper would try for a vacant Senate seat in Kentucky. They figure he would have better than an even chance to win. His decision on running is expected within the next week.

The GOP seems to have benefited from unforeseen developments in the closely contested fight for control of the new Democratic-run Senate. The deaths of Sen. Alben W. Barkley (D-Ky.) and Harley M. Kilgore (D-W. Va.) gave the Republicans a crack at two Democratic seats not scheduled to be at stake this year.

Other developments:
Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson pushed on in his campaign for Florida's 28 convention votes. He charged at Lake City that President Eisenhower has failed "to reduce rivalry and competition" among the armed services.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, also fighting for Florida's 28 convention votes, spent three hours hand-shaking beneath the hot sun in the Miami area. He called for sweeping changes in the federal social security program to benefit the nation's aged and needy.

Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson, possible dark horse presidential candidate, crushed a revolt against his leadership of the Texas Democratic party. "Loyalists" and "liberals" at the Texas Democratic state convention tried to buck Johnson's policy of moderation in dealing with the defeated forces of Gov. Allan Shivers. Afterwards, the convention named Johnson its "favorite son" presidential candidate and chairman of the Texas delegation to the Democratic national convention.

Democratic delegates are expected to return this afternoon from the convention. Republican delegates from the county will probably return today or tomorrow from the state convention in Houston.

President Says Arguments Should Not Alarm U. S.

By MERRIMAN SMITH
WASHINGTON — UP — President Eisenhower Wednesday defended the right of the armed services to argue forcefully among themselves on the best way to protect the country. But he said these arguments should not be conducted in a manner to alarm the nation.

Speaking with tight-lipped civility, Mr. Eisenhower said any officer who fails to support the President's decision on defense strategy is not fit for command.

The day discipline disappears from the military, he said, the nation will have no armed force worthy of mention.

The President, at his news conference appealed to the country to appraise the strength of America as a massive whole involving the economy, the farms, and the schools and not only the development of one weapon against another.

The armed forces have been feuding over the merits of various service weapons and their respective roles in any future war.

Other Highlights
Mr. Eisenhower at his news conference also:
1. Pictured the recent Russian cut of 1.2 million troops as a streamlining operation designed to get more people back into industry and to achieve a new look in the Russian military setup.
2. He said that by no means does he believe there should be a cut in taxes until a start can be made on reducing the national debt. This, he said, is a matter of financial integrity.
3. He said he believes too much pessimism is being expressed in this country about the condition of the world today. He conceded that, in a co-operative Democratic effort to achieve a unified international approach to foreign policy, there is bound to be more under a totalitarian system.
Believes Egypt Made Error
4. He said he believes Egypt made a mistake in recognizing Red China. But he added that a single act by another nation does not destroy this country's friendship for that nation or deter our willingness to work co-operatively with the Texas Democratic party.
5. He dismissed the idea that a nation with a large stock of hydrogen bombs could "win" a war in 24 hours. What would result, he said, would be a real shambles.
Mr. Eisenhower discussed the armed services feud at some length.
He repeatedly drummed on the idea that the strength of America is not in missiles and bombs, but a total thing involving every segment of the population and the economy.
Complicated Effort
Achieving national security, he said, involves a complicated effort on a tremendously broad front. He said this is not merely confined

Capitol Hill Roundup

WASHINGTON — UP — Congress Wednesday was expected to complete action on the new farm bill.

The Senate passed it quickly Tuesday. The House was expected to pass it even quicker Tuesday afternoon and sent it to the White House.

Republican congressional leaders predicted President Eisenhower will sign it.

The new bill meets almost all of the President's demands. Its core is his $1.2 billion soil bank. It contains some price support boosting provisions, but none of the bigrigid price supports that caused Mr. Eisenhower to veto the first farm bill.

Other developments:
FOREIGN AID
The House Foreign Affairs committee cut $1 billion from the administration's $4.9 billion foreign aid program. House administration leaders charged the cut "wrecked" the West's defenses. Committee Chairman James F. Richards (D - S. C.) replied: "They're nuts."
REFUGEES
The Senate Internal Security subcommittee summoned Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, daughter of the famed 19th Century Russian novelist, Leo Tolstoy. The subcommittee sought to question the countess about "the security threat posed by Soviet emigrants" living in the United States under false names.
PASSPORTS
Chairman Francis E. Walter of the House Committee on Un-American Activities said Soviet agents have fraudulently obtained U. S. passports. His committee opened hearings on the methods used to obtain them.
HOUSING
Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) said the "elements which breed housing scandals still persist" in federal housing programs. He wrote the President citing government reports that "clearly show . . . irregularities and inefficiencies."

Swimming Pool To Open Here

The municipal swimming pool is now undergoing a coat of paint in preparation for the swimming season which is tentatively scheduled to open here on Monday, May 28.

City Manager Fred Brook said this morning that the pool is scheduled to open at that time, but weather or progress on the work may hold up the opening date until June 1.

E. S. Lowry, city water department superintendent, is in charge of the cleaning-up and painting the city pool.

Accident Injures Oklahoman

An automobile collision about nine miles north of McLean last night at 7:40 seriously injured John Harlas Tidwell, 49, of Randlett, Okla., when the Ford he was driving collided with a truck driven by Leroy Johnson of 200 Tignor.

Tidwell was admitted to Highland General Hospital last night with head injuries. He is described as being in serious condition by his attending physician.

The accident occurred at an intersection of two county roads, near Highway 273. The intersecting roads lead to Kellerville and north into an oil field.

Johnson was reported uninjured by the investigating highway patrolman from McLean.

Pampans Get Demo Positions

O. F. "Ott" Shewmaker, a Gray County Democratic delegate to the state convention in Dallas, was elected floor leader of the convention yesterday in a session that saw the 18th Congressional district yield almost unanimous support to Lyndon B. Johnson.

Among the delegates named for the national convention was Jimmy Thompson, Gray County Democratic chairman and a local attorney. Selbert Worley, Mayor of Shamrock was named as alternate.

Harry Wolford of Wheeler County was selected to serve as secretary of the permanent convention committee. Ott Shewmaker was earlier named as a committee member on credentials, but he withdrew to accept leadership of the floor.

Democratic delegates are expected to return this afternoon from the convention. Republican delegates from the county will probably return today or tomorrow from the state convention in Houston.

Ex-Premier Would Resign

PARIS — UP — Radical leader Pierre Mendes-France told Premier Guy Mollet Wednesday he wanted to resign from the French cabinet. But both Mollet and President Rene Coty urged him to remain in the government. He agreed to postpone his decision temporarily.

A cabinet spokesman told reporters after a hectic four and a half hour meeting that Mendes-France told Mollet he wanted to resign because he disagreed with Mollet's handling of the Algerian rebellion.

The spokesman said Mendes-France agreed to postpone his final decision until the cabinet meets formally.

Earlier, it had been reported that Mendes-France resigned from the government as an individual, rather than pulling the other radical party members with him. However, his decision to hold off temporarily was made after much persuasion.

Mendes-France is a minister without portfolio, having no specific duties, so Mollet would be under no immediate pressure to replace him.

Baseball Organization Starts Contribution Campaign Here

Contributions are being taken here this week to support the Pampa Oilers baseball team.

The Pampa Oilers Community Baseball Association, headed by "Pinky" Branson, started a pledge drive Monday in which it urged all citizens of Pampa and the surrounding territory to pledge to contribute money to the club each month through September.

A contributions pledge card is being run in The News today on page 5 for all fans wishing to contribute to the club to fill out and mail.

The Oilers, expected to be named Homer Glover, Jack Mask, Harry James, Reed Mulkey and Ben Ginsberg.

Glover, Mask and James were three of the four businessmen who last week bought control of the club from Earl Perry to save the team from going on the rocks then.

Wednesday began plugging for $100 pledges from as many businessmen and residents to cover the guarantee. The chamber said its current budget is already committed and there would be no money to cover any losses without the pledges.

The chamber, meeting here Tuesday, voted to name a five-man council to operate the team which has had financially tough sledding since the season opened.

The five, expected to be named Homer Glover, Jack Mask, Harry James, Reed Mulkey and Ben Ginsberg.

Glover, Mask and James were three of the four businessmen who last week bought control of the club from Earl Perry to save the team from going on the rocks then.

A PARTY FOR 9-YEAR-OLD CHILDREN will fall apart unless constant activities are offered that try the guests' skills and use up their energies. LIFE Magazine says in a series on "How to Give Children Parties." Prepared under the guidance of the Gesell Institute of Child Development, LIFE's suggestions for parents faced with child entertainment problems are based upon years of scientific studies of just what a child can and will do at a given age.

THE RECOMMENDATIONS for the party for 9-year-olds are based on the knowledge that children of that age are bursting with energy and the need to test themselves in competition. They are generally too well-behaved at 9 to become unruly if the party doesn't go well, but will become bored, which is probably worse.

Some of the rules which should be observed when planning a birthday party for a 9-year-old:

Plan party around an outdoor theme; carry themeout in games, decorations.

Invite limited number of guests. Nine is ideal, of same age and sex.

Plan for adult friend to help mother.

Schedule party from noon to 3 p.m.

Serve simple luncheon.

Plan both indoor and outdoor games.

Gather game equipment, inexpensive prizes, favors and candy.

The magazine suggests this timetable for the three-hour party, using a cowboy theme: Arriving guests inspect opened presents and are branded (10 min.); go outside for treasure hunt (20 min.); and cowboy games (30 min.); eat luncheon inside (30 min.); after indoor project (20 min.) run outdoor "rodeo" relay races (30 min.); some inside for siesta, indoor games, snack, favors and prizes (40 min.).

The 9-year-old party feature is the third in LIFE's Children's Parties Series. Parties for other ages will follow in later issues.

HAVING A TEEN-AGE party and worried about whether or not it will be a success? Here are some ideas for breaking the ice and getting the party going which teen-agers have contributed to the Woman's Home Companion to pass on to you:

When guests arrive, hand them newspapers, scissors and boxes of pins. Let each improvise his own costume. Gales of laughter will be forthcoming in no time.

You can break up partners who won't dance with anyone else two ways. Have the boys roll up their pants legs and sit behind a sheet or something that will hide all but their legs. Then let each girl try to find her date by his legs. She must dance with whichever boy she's picked.

Or, when the group is dancing, turn the music off and command everyone to dance with the one directly behind him. Stopping the music often keeps things in a whirl.

A hobo party is a novel idea for a backyard or beach party, say the teen panelists. Have everyone come in worn-out clothes and bring one ingredient for mulligan stew. Carrots, tomatoes, potatoes, cooked meat, onions are all tossed into a large kettle over an open fire. The head bum dishes it up in tin cups — no forks or spoons allowed. Prizes go to the shoddiest-looking tramp.

Graduating Girls Feted At Coffee

Mrs. John V. Young Sr., 1120 Williston, was hostess for a coffee honoring the Pampa High School girl graduates and their mothers.

The serving table was covered with a dark green cloth. The centerpiece was a candelabra before a staircase fashioned from golden crysanthemums and roses down which miniature graduates were descending.

Other decorations included bouquets of yellow iris in green composites.

Refreshments of melon balls, pigs-in-a-blanket and sweet rolls and coffee were served.

About 30 guests attended.

GM Layoff To Swell Unemployed

DETROIT — UP — The ranks of the nation's unemployed will be swelled by at least 4,500 more workers this week because of additional auto production cutbacks at two General Motors Corp. divisions. The latest slashes were reported Tuesday by the Chevrolet and Fisher Body divisions. Chevrolet said it planned to release 2,500 workers Friday at its 32 plants across the nation. Fisher Body said it laid off 2,000 workers Monday at 15 of its 35 plants. On Monday, GM's Pontiac division laid off another 500 employees. A GM spokesman said layoff figures at the giant auto firm's other division were not immediately available. The newly idled workers will increase the nation's automotive unemployment rolls to an estimated 164,000. Of this figure, at least 50,000 are from the GM work force. The 50,000 figure was given by GM President Harlow Curtice but the United Auto Workers Union estimated GM's layoffs at closer to 60,000. Thursday, the UAW will open a meeting here of its General Motors locals national council to discuss the unemployment situation in the auto industry. And on Sunday, a mass meeting of the industry's unemployed will be held here. The turnout was called by Pat Quim, vice president of the UAW's Local 8. Quim said his union planned to ask a huge federal works program to aid the motor city's idled workers.

Art Exhibit Being Held In Library

A one-man show by Lynn Trank, assistant professor of art at Eastern Illinois State College, which is considered the largest art exhibit to show in Pampa by its sponsors will be on display in Lovett Memorial Library for the next month, sponsored by the Vari-Arts group. The show consists of 48 paintings, prints and watercolors reflecting the modern view and many of them concerned with Mexican themes. The Vari-Arts group has worked together for the past three years and established a studio at the home of Mrs. Florance Jackson. Among the paintings are "Paracutin," a night scene of a volcano; "Calle Real," a scene of Morelia, Mexico; "Urusan Fruits," featured at the Des Moines Art Center in a previous show; and many others. Trank has often visited in the Berger area and has painted scenes of industry in this area. Several of his paintings have been purchased by residents in the Panhandle. The show here was arranged by Mrs. F. W. Lewis of Berger. His paintings have been sponsored by Hamline University, Des Moines Art Center, Fine Arts Association of Texas, Texas Tech and West Texas State College, among other institutions. Born in Cook, Neb., Trank graduated from the University of Nebraska with a fine arts degree. Following World War II, he returned to the University as an artist instructor. Later he went to Washington University in St. Louis, and obtained his master's degree at the State University of Iowa. For 15 months he studied at the University of Morelia in Mexico. His work is represented in the Joselyn Memorial Gallery at Omaha; the Art Guild Collection at the University of Nebraska; the Miller and Paine Collection, Lincoln Neb., and in many private collections. All works are offered for sale in Pampa, and the paintings may be removed from the show by the purchaser. There are about 18,500,000 home gardens in the United States today.

(Continued from Page 1) visory committee, be national committee if he could appoint the committee woman. The liberal wing, at the last minute, insisted that Skelton get his job, but that Mrs. Bentzen withdraw. She did, but the committee that had picked her declined to substitute another person and three nominations open from the floor. The liberal wing nominated and got elected Mrs. R. D. (Frankie) Randolph of Houston, an official of the Democratic Advisory committee. The convention named 56 delegates to the national convention and bound them to vote under the unit rule. The resolutions establishing Johnson as "favorite son" and as chairman of the Texas delegation, were approved by voice vote, though some "noes" were heard. The "favorite son" resolution directed delegates to the national convention to put Johnson's name in nomination as a candidate for President and vote for him as a unit "as long as his name shall be before the Democratic convention as a candidate." Another resolution named him leader of the delegation with the provision that he could name "another member to act in his stead." Johnson has been honored by this convention beyond his wildest dreams. Johnson said in his acceptance speech, "It is an honor I take seriously because with it go heavy responsibilities. The role of the (Texas) delegation is clear. It should go to Chicago. It should do everything within its power to help write the best platform and select the best nominee. And then it should return to Texas and fight for the election of the Democratic candidate."

The President instead of being pessimistic about the foreign situation said he believes the West is making some progress, however slow, but he confessed that this country does not truly know the full meaning of the cut in the size of the Russian armed forces nor recent Russian economic moves, particularly in the Mediterranean area. Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said Tuesday Mr. Eisenhower was a "bit unhappy" because of current difference between the armed services. Wilson warned then that it might be "dangerous" for anyone in the military to renew the feud. The President was asked Wednesday whether he saw anything in the situation to require his direct intervention. He said in the first place as commander-in-chief of the military forces there was no important thing in military policy in which he was not involved. He said he believes the differences between the services should be regarded in proper perspective but that he might question the manner in which such arguments are conducted. He said a proper commander of a service should fight with all his strength in behalf of his viewpoint. Then once an overall policy is determined, the commander should support it loyally. ## Behind The Tension

We are little apprehensive concerning the middle eastern situation.

With all due respect for Mr. Dag Hammarskjold and his U. N. mission to Israel and its border countries, we just don't think the effort he made is going to result in anything resembling peace.

In the touchy Gaza strip there is no real will to peace. There is a very real and present will for war. The cease fire and the armistice or whatever treaties or promises are entered into will be largely meaningless, unless the will to peace is achieved. And there will be no will to peace so long as there is a widespread feeling of injustice and dissatisfaction.

Here is where the will to war originates:

On April 9, 1948, before Israel became a state, advancing Israeli forces moved into the small Arab village of Deir Yassin and massacred some 250 women and children. A small number of Arabs had left the area, which Israeli leaders had marked out as the plum they were about to pluck. Arab leaders had advised departure.

But the vast number of Arabs, estimated at 915,000, held their ground. Their lives were all tied up with their lands and their homes. It was inconceivable to them that international politicians would have the right to force them to give up their property. Following the massacre at Deir Yassin, the bulk of this huge body of refugees fled in terror.

Since that date in April, eight years have passed. These 900,000 refugees have not been permitted during this time to return to their homes. The United Nations has, in eight successive resolutions, stated that these Arabs have the right to return to their homes or to be compensated for their loss.

This fact is well known by the Israeli government. In the new history, the followers of Dr. Judah Magnes, first president of the Hebrew University, have repeatedly implored the Israeli leaders to correct this terrible injustice.

The tension in this area stems from these facts.

And so far as we can learn the Israeli government has never faced up to the issue created by their seizure of Arab lands. To some Arabs, token payments have been offered. According to some sources, the offer has been roughly 10 per cent of the true value of the lands involved.

The majority of the Arabs, however, have had nothing offered at all.

During these eight long years, Israel has put down roots. Most of the inhabitants of the new country are refugees, too, and should have a close fellow feeling for the refugees created by the carving up of the Middle East.

But as Israel dug in, forces outside the tiny country have crystallized.

In 1946, King Farouk was at the head of the Egyptian government. Other Arab leaders in Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Jordan, Iran and elsewhere were disorganized, and hostile each to the other.

With the passing of the years, changes have occurred. Egypt is led by a military figure named Nasser, who is showing the world that he has sharp elbows. The entire Moslem world is uniting under the pressure created by 900,000 refugees who are demanding some kind of restitution.

The Gaza strip is the no-man's land where trouble is first apt to appear. Nominally, it is on the Arabian side of the line. But Israel wants the land as it would provide a Mediterranean coast line. A great many of the refugees are in this territory.

Arab leaders have announced that within a few weeks a great army of refugees will be formed. This army is supposed to march on Israel to demand payment or restitution of some kind. The army will be unarmed and, presumably, peaceful. But what could develop from such a march is anyone's guess.

In view of these facts, the Hammarskjold peace mission doesn't amount to a snap of the fingers. It won't be the leaders who decide the outcome in the Middle East. It will be the people themselves.

If the Arabian refugees decide that they must fight, they will do so. If the Israeli decide that they must take the Gaza strip, they will certainly make the effort. The situation is pregnant with unpleasant possibilities. All steps taken up to this time to prevent a war are virtually meaningless.

Frankly, we are apprehensive.

THE NATION'S PRESS

TOLL ROAD TROUBLES

(Chicago Daily Tribune)

Twenty-five trucks are using the 21-mile toll road across Ohio that was expected to do so before the road was opened last Oct. 1. As a result, the highway authority is failing to collect enough revenue to pay operating expenses and meet debt service and amortization on the 265 million dollar bond issue floated to build the road.

This news has alarmed the Indiana toll road commission, and it has announced plans for a series of conferences with trucking firms to persuade them to use the state's 156-mile turnpike to be opened next fall. Another conference on the problem in Indiana, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey toll road agencies.

Trucks were expected to supply 60 to 65 per cent of the Ohio turnpike's revenues. Instead, they are paying only a little more than a third. The truckers say they are avoiding the road because the toll charges are too high. They find it more profitable to use free roads, which now are less congested because many passenger cars have moved to the new turnpike.

The truck owners explain that their union contracts require them to pay drivers by the mile, not by the hour. Time saved on toll roads therefore brings no saving in labor costs, which amount to 60 per cent of the operating expenses. Toll road operation permits some savings in fuel costs and wear and tear on vehicles. If much time can be saved, economies also can be made by scheduling additional trips with the same equipment.

Truckers insist that the Ohio rates are out of line with those on other turnpikes where truck patronage is high. The cost of operating a 55,000-pound tractor and semi-trailer is placed at 4.26 cents on the New Jersey turnpike, and 5.4 cents on the Pennsylvania turnpike. Indiana's proposed rate is 5.23 cents. Ohio's rate is 7.37 cents.

The dispute is being watched with interest by the Illinois toll highway commission, which has started acquiring land for 193 miles of roads to be built at a cost of 252 million dollars. The commission expects to get only 23 per cent of its revenue from trucks (compared with the Ohio estimate of 60 to 65 per cent) and thus seems to have been more realistic than the Ohio commission.

Proposed Illinois toll rates for trucks also are lower than those in effect in Ohio. The comparable Illinois rates are estimated at 3.74 cents a mile for traveling the full length of the Tri-State route, 2.36 cents on the East-West road to Aurora, and 2.94 cents on the North Illinois road to South Beloit.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES
"The Human Venture"
Reduces Venture
III.

I want to continue to comment on "The Human Venture" by Gerald Heard.

Heard goes into the history of the Chinese religion and the Indian religion and the Western religion. The Chinese religion, of course, is more or less a history of the ideologies of Confucius. He puts it this way:

"...Confucius felt it was necessary to go back only as far as the age and achievement of his inspirer, the Duke of Chou. Before that time there had been, of course, the three emperors who ruled as sages. And Confucius never tired of citing Yao and Shun as perfect rulers who maintained a well-nigh perfect state, and were able to keep it going not only without coercion or repression but without strained activity or strenuous zeal. As long as the Emperor Shun sat looking toward the south, all went well. Still, although Confucius admitted that it was not possible to get back to this state of effortless harmony, he did feel that if only the rulers of the much later Chou procedure were followed, they would do very well, because Duke Tan had revived the behavior patterns of the three emperors, and all men had to do was to make a similar revival and re-exemplification."

The Basic Faith Of Confucius

"So Confucius, the great sociologist — who belongs to the same horizon of consciousness as Gautama — would not teach about the natural and supernatural powers but only about that morality which men, if they cared enough, could practice well enough to bring society to a state that makes life worth while enough for a sober man soberly to enjoy it. For this is the Confucian basic faith: that men on the whole, and good if they get good treatment. Trouble arises because men on the whole — the majority — cannot govern themselves. They seek happiness, private profit and amusement, not duty, and the distant aim of an ordered, peaceful society."

"...Confucius knew even better than Tallyrand that 'man can do everything with bayonets save sit on them.' Force may have to be used at times, but peace depends upon consent and consent can only be won by example."

"...With regard to China specifically, it is patent that the concern of the Confucian missionary has always been to help men to be more 'conscientious' and 'orderly' than they have had."

The Indian Religion
His chapter on the Indian answer to religion is rather difficult to read because he uses words that are combinations of Greek words that are not in Webster's Funk and Wagnall dictionary.

He uses the word, for instance, "psychoecy." This comes from two words, "psycho," which means mind or soul and "ecy," which means rule or government. In other words, it means the rule of the mind or the soul rather than a physical force. He does the same thing with "hypococry," which means sleep and rule or control. Then he writes:

Linkage Of Conviction
"...Hence men cannot cohere around it (mechanism) because they cannot see coherence in it. All government, as thinkers from Plato to Admiral Mahan have said, is seeking this secret — how to pass from the strangeness of coercion to the linkage of conviction. This Indus culture seems to have attained this linkage and to have stabilized it. In brief, this society that discovered psychoecy, the power of exercising the apt force of suggestion — conviction over a large heterogeneous society, failed, as China too failed. And it failed precisely through success, by the very completeness of the coherence it achieved. What began and what flowered as a psychoecy ran to seed, shrunk and encapsulated itself as a hypococry."

After the question "What am I with regard to others?" the Indian religion replied:
"...They are part of your only true self. For though Yoga is a psycho-physiology, it is definitely a social one. There can be no private salvation. Man must and can love his neighbor as himself, for, in the truest sense, his neighbor is himself. Every attempt to make Yoga a purely private affair, as in the mainly physical exercises of Hathi Yoga, failed, for the ego at best is a stalk-eye of the true consciousness; too often a strangulated hernia of extruded awareness."

More Fun to Give Than to Get
"...Only by an immensely vital dilation of the capacity to embrace could the whole be grasped. The negative, retractive, panico-recoils of murder, theft, rape, cruelty, lying must not be tolerated. They, too, must be released from their strangulated restrictions to wholeness by dilation, by the creative laughter that convinces even fear that it is much more fun to give than to get, to create than to rob, to delight than to threaten, to embrace than to attack, to trust than to deceive, to persuade than to persecute, to grant liberties than to impose restrictions."

A small boy went from door to door in a large apartment house, selling business.
Small boy (to prospective customer): "Boss, if you have a small dog, I'll walk him all around the block for a dime. Or I'll walk a dog for you for 10 cents. And if you have a great big dog, I'll only a nickel."
Housewife: "Why do you only charge a nickel for great big dogs?"
Small boy: "I don't walk great big dogs. I ride them."

Concern Over The Supreme Court No Longer Sectional

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The South's attack on the Supreme Court, which was inspired originally by its two-year-old, anti-segregation decision, has been broadened and strengthened as a result of recent rulings seemingly advantageous to the Communist cause in the United States. Concern over the high tribunal's philosophy is no longer only sectional.

Another reason for growing concern over these judicial trends is the Court's striking down of State statutes enacted to make law enforcement more effective. In a verdict that still baffles lawyers on and off Capitol Hill, the jurists in the Steve Nelson case declared that State laws designed to cripple and penalize Communist activities were unconstitutional. Forty-two states has enacted such provisions in accord with the Federal law on the subject.

Senator Harry F. Byrd has pressed this theory to what he regards as a logical conclusion. If the Supreme Court can upset these statutes, he insists, it can outlaw the States' systems of levying taxes, and enforcing laws against narcotics, liquor and even traffic violators. It has already stripped local communities of control of schools, parks and intrastate travel.

Former Supreme Court Justice James F. Byrnes also warns that the Supreme Court's "usurpation" threatens the whole country, not the South alone. In an interview with David Lawrence's U.S. News and World Report, the distinguished South Carolinian says:
"A further consequence is the harm done to the entire country by the demonstrated willingness of the Supreme Court to disregard our written Constitution and its own decisions, invalidate the laws of the States, and substitute for these a policy of its own, supported not by legal precedents but by the writings of sociologists."

Here is the gist of the Byrd-Byrnes cry of alarm, which finds an echo in legal and judicial circles throughout the country:
"Today, this usurpation by the Court of the power of the States hurts the South. Tomorrow, it may hurt the North, East and West. It may hurt you."
With this new and more comprehensive criticism of the Supreme Court, the South may find sympathizers among elements which support the anti-segregation finding, if only for sociological reasons.

The other pro-Communist decision, which rejected the Subversive Activities Control Board's ruling that the American branch was a "tool of Moscow," has stirred widespread indignation. Together with invalidation of State laws on this question, it has emboldened and encouraged Red agitators everywhere.
Herbert R. O'Connor, as chairman of the American Bar Association's Committee on Communist Tactics, Strategy and Objectives, has been deeply disturbed by this trend. The former Maryland Governor and Senator may submit a scathing report to the A.B.A. on the Court's leftist leanings. A former A.B.A. president recently told a Congressional Committee that "98 per cent of America's good lawyers have no respect for the legal ability of members of the Supreme Court."

Oddly, the Warren body's Federalization philosophy conflicts sharply with President Eisenhower's beliefs.
Only recently, on such problems as taxation, development of power resources and administration of the government's vast holdings of land and property throughout the country, Ike declared that greater consideration should be given to the State's rights and needs.
"I firmly believe," he told a May 4 press conference, "in the decentralization of the functions of the government."
Senator Frank Carlson of Kansas says he has received more letters protesting the disqualification of Wes Santee, the nation's crack milker, than he has on farm depression or legislation. This does not mean, he adds, that farmers are more concerned about sports than about falling prices.
Only a few letters on Santee's plight came from Kansas. Most of them were from other sections, with Californians leading the list. They had hoped to see Santee run against Australia's two breakers of the four-minute mile — Landy and Bailey.

When I read this paragraph from a news story in a recent issue of The (Santa Ana) Register, I thought to myself how like the Biblical picture of the final judgment of all mankind it was:
"Behold, the Lord cometh...to execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly...of all their hard speeches which (they) have spoken against him."
"And the nations were angry."
"...there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."
To assault the Judge when arraigned for our own misdeeds is much more common than we like to admit. How irrational is such behavior — especially when we consider that the Judge has made provision for remitting the penalty, if only we will accept His conditions.

Roosevelt Promised To Cut Expenses

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington — The budget of the Government of the United States is $6 billion. The national debt is $275 billion.

In 1932, Franklin D. Roosevelt campaigned for his first term as president on an issue of extravagance and economy. In a landmark speech in Pittsburgh on October 19, 1932, Roosevelt gave a solemn promise "to reduce the current cost of federal government operations by 25 per cent." About a half year later, Roosevelt tore up the script on which he had won the election and power and went all out for extravagance.

The only challenge came from a few newspapers which ran plaintive editorials reminding the people of Roosevelt's false promises, and from political figures of the discredited opposition. The people had no means of expressing their thoughts, but there was no public outcry at all. The whole country was confused and when Roosevelt handed Harold Ickes $3,300 million to squander at will the reaction was emotional. Whoever objected to this humane generosity doubtless was an economic royalist who would let the hungry masses starve.

In that Pittsburgh speech, Roosevelt warned the nation against the usurpation of power by the national administration. He said the Republicans under Herbert Hoover had decided "to center control of everything in Washington as rapidly as possible — federal control."

"That," he said, "was the idea that increased the cost of government by a billion dollars in four years. Ever since the days of Thomas Jefferson, that has been the exact reverse of the Democratic concept, which is to permit Washington to take from the states nothing more than is necessary to keep abreast of the march of our changing economic situation." The federal government's total receipts were two billion, eighty million in 1932. Expenditures were $4,623 million — disastrous figures.

Roosevelt boasted of great knowledge of the federal administration derived during long residence in Washington under Theodore Roosevelt and Taft and under Wilson whom he served as assistant secretary of the navy. He then promised absolutely that every member of his cabinet would give him a "twofold pledge," as follows: "1. absolute loyalty to the Democratic platform and especially to its economy plank, 2. complete cooperation with me, looking to economy and reorganization in his department."

"I regard reduction in federal spending as one of the most important issues of this campaign," he said, in a text which also contained this charge, "I do indict his (Hoover's) administration for lack of frankness."

Roosevelt apologized for spending 45 minutes discussing the federal budget, but explained that the American family's credit depended on the stability of the nation's credit. Therefore he must reduce the problem of a national budget to "the terms of a family budget." The credit of a family depends on whether the family lived within its income and that was equally true of a nation. True, in a crisis, a nation could borrow temporarily at reasonable rates and live beyond its income for a year or two. But, if, like a spendthrift, it threw discretion to the winds and was willing to make no sacrifice at all in spending; if it extended its taxing to the limit of the people's power to pay and continued to pile up deficits, then it was on the road to bankruptcy.

Judge Sam Rosenman of New York was believed to have written this speech.

When later Roosevelt ditched the whole thing Rosenman counseled him not to refer back to this commitment. Obviously, there was just no way to reconcile either course with the other. Of course, inflation came under Roosevelt and grew under Truman and Eisenhower. This can be clearly traced by periodic comparisons of wages, prices and market quotations. The concentration of power in Washington, especially usurpation of legislative power by the federal courts, is now belatedly acknowledged as a dangerous issue by Senators Harry Byrd, Joe McCarthy and others. Roosevelt never had to answer a challenge. He bemused the people and they willingly, almost joyously, laid down their lives in a war which was his last resort when all else had failed.

Three Methods To Prove You Are Looney

By HENRY McLEMORE

There are three universally accepted methods of proving you are looney.

One is to bite a psychiatrist's dog.

Another is to rent your spare room to a bagpipe pupil.

The third, and perhaps the most common way, is to lock yourself out of your own car.

I established my looniness yesterday by performing method No. 3. We were returning from a trip, and there were some pretty good clothes scattered over the back seat.

I tested and re-tested the doors after we had gotten out to go in a super-market, and I remember saying to Mary, "She's locked tighter than a drum. The guy who breaks in there will deserve what he finds."

Coming out of the store, loaded with bags, I wondered how I was going to get the keys out of my pocket. I needn't have. There they were, dangling from the ignition switch like forbidden fruit. I tried all the doors six times, and even opened the hood to see if there were some way I could climb over the motor and pop up by the brake pedal.

By this time passersby weren't passing by, but stopping. They all asked me what was the matter, even though a blind man could have diagnosed my situation. Their remarks weren't very soothing, either.

"Don't you have an extra key hidden somewhere about the car?" one fellow asked. "I always keep one stashed away — stuck under the hood with tape." He said it in a tone that branded me a short-sighted fool.

"You sure got her shut tight," another man said, trying to poke a finger inside. "You should have left one of the windows open a little."

I nearly swung on him. What he was saying — the helpful idiot — was that when a man knows he is going to lock himself out of his car, it is wise to leave one of the windows down, or half-way down. I tried all the doors again. Then what was left of my temper took off up the street.

"I'll get a rock," I told Mary. "and bust a window."

I might as well have said I was going to throw a rock through a going to throw a rock through a White House window.

"You'll do nothing of the kind," she said. "I can't stand a man who has a streak in him like that. We'll sit here all night before you do that."

I finally got around to calling the Automobile Club. When the lady at the Club asked what was the matter with my car I felt like a fool having to tell her that nothing was wrong with the car. "I'm just locked out," I said.

When the service man came he reaffirmed the opinion of the on-looker who said he never had seen a car so thoroughly locked.

"I'll have a time getting my tools injude to get hold of the little safety catch. Say, you sure you haven't got an extra key hidden anywhere?"

You oughta have, you know. She helps at a time like this."

I couldn't help wondering if I didn't look crazier than I really am. You have to be real gone to have people think you have an extra key but won't use it.

The service man fished for an hour for the safety catch. He couldn't see the end of his hook from where he was, so I stood on the other side of the car and yelled, "Now!" and "A little more to the right," and "Easy, easy, you almost got it that time."

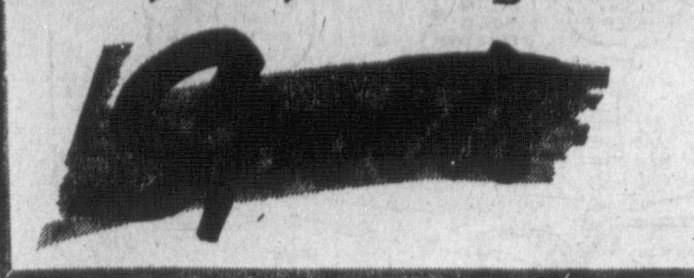

When he finally snared it, there was a burst of handclapping from the crowd.

Boy, did it feel good to yank the door handle and have the door open. In conclusion, I'll give you three guesses as to who talked most of the way home, and what she talked about.

Batting averages were fattened as the rockets started their eighth batting ground in eighth frame off the third Pampa hurler Joe Fortin who had come in to relieve the second of the Oiler pitchers, Marvin Schwein. Jerry Tucker started the game, giving way to Schwein in the third frame.

Eleven men went to the plate for the rockets in the third and eighth innings, while nine men batted in the sixth and seventh innings.

The rockets left a total of 13 men stranded on the base paths in addition to the 28 who crossed the plate.

Aaron, Milwaukee Braves Get 7-3 Win Over Brooklyn Bums

By UNITED PRESS

Hank Aaron's on a .300-batting tear that's proving the Milwaukee Braves outfielder is every bit as good as his word.

Aaron predicted when his average was a sickly .211 only a week ago that he'd "get in the groove" once we start playing regularly, and since then he has collected 12 hits in 20 trips to lift his mark to .312. Aaron estimates he can hit .340 this year and win his first National League batting title.

The 24-year old Negro's spectacular batting surge reached a peak Tuesday night when he collected four hits, including his fourth homer of the season, in leading the Braves to a 7-3 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers. It was the Braves' second win in as many meetings with the world champions.

Aaron homered in the second inning to give the Braves a lead they never lost and added a double and two singles in a 13-hit attack that also included homers by Johnny Logan and Ed Matthews.

Braves Keep Lead

The victory enabled the Braves to hold a 23-point first-place lead over the St. Louis Cardinals, who downed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6-3. The Cincinnati Redlegs beat the New York Giants 6-3 in the other NL game.

Bobby Del Greco scored one run and drove in another against his former teammates as the Cardinals snapped the Pirates' three-game winning streak before 19,316 — largest night crowd at Forbes Field in four years.

Roy McMillan and rookie Frank Robinson homered as the Redlegs staged a four-run seventh-inning rally to beat the Giants. Joe Nuxhall turned in a four-hit performance to give the Redlegs their fifth victory in six games.

Boston Nears Top

In the American League, the Boston Red Sox moved to within a half game of second-place Cleveland when they defeated the Indians 5-3. Billy Goodman's two-run homer in the seventh was the clincher for the Red Sox, who have won seven of their last nine games.

Red Wilson cracked a two-run homer in the ninth inning to give the Detroit Tigers a 3-2 victory that snapped the New York Yankees' six-game winning skunk as well as Whitey Ford's personal six-game skunk. Frank Lary, whose only other win this year was over the Yankees, hung a horse-collar on Mickey Mantle and limited the New Yorkers to seven hits.

Rookie Troy Herriage pitched a three-hitter for his first triumph as the Kansas City Athletics downed the Washington Senators 6-1 in the other AL game. The Athletics scored five runs in the second inning on two doubles and four walks to hand the Senators their 11th loss in 14 games.

Home Run Baker Predicts Mantle To Break Record

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK — Frank (Home Run) Baker stepped out of the baseball past Wednesday with a flat prediction that Mickey Mantle will break Babe Ruth's home run record and, in all probability, will do it this season.

"Barring accidents or injuries, Mantle should surpass Ruth's record of 60 home runs this year," Baker asserted. "That's the only thing which can stop him."

The principal reason, said the man who was the home run champion of the American League four straight years, is that Mantle "finally has found himself."

Tanned and horny-handed from working on his 600-acre farm in Trappe, Md., Baker shrugs off his feats in the so-called "dead hall era." His league-leading home run 1912, 12 in 1913 and eight in 1914. totals were nine in 1911, 10 in 1912 in 1913 seasons with the A's and the Yankees he managed a total of "only" 95 homers. In that era it was a magnificent performance.

The big man with the iron-gray hair prefers, instead, to look at the present and the future.

"Eventually, somebody is going to have to break Ruth's record," he insists. "It's an old phrase, but a good one, that records are made to be broken. Mantle looks to me like a fellow who can do it."

"Remember, that record of Ruth's has been under heavy fire. Jimmy Foxx could have tied it if he had been given credit for a home run in a called game. I don't look at the big 60 as if it can't be broken."

Mantle, Baker contends, has the best chance "because he has so much power and he gets a piece of the ball regularly."

"Any time he goes to bat he's got a chance to put it out of the park," said the man who made the home run famous. "Yogi Berra, the Yankee catcher, has the same kind of power but he isn't consistent enough. Mantle looks to me like the boy to do it."

"And," he concluded, "once he does, Mantle may go on to put it clear out of sight. There's no limit to what that young man just might do."

Junior Golf Meet Here Next Week

A junior golf tournament sponsored by the Jaycees of Pampa and the Coca-Cola Bottling Company will be held May 25 and 26 on the Pampa Country Club golf course.

All contestants desiring to enter must not have reached their 18th birthday before August 20. Approximately nine entries are expected to participate in the tourney. The meet being a 36-hole go-around will consist of 18 holes per day.

Pampa will send four boys to the state golf tourney to be held on July 18, 19 and 20. The four state winners then journey to Fargo, North Dakota August 20 through 25 for the National Linkster at fair.

George Whitten is in charge of the committee of the junior golf tournament with Weldon Trice, Harvester golf coach, assisting.

Pat Flaherty Leading Choice To Win Memorial Day Race

By KURT FREUDENTHAL

INDIANAPOLIS — UP — Pat Flaherty, a happy-go-lucky Irishman, just wanted to make sure he will fit into the front row when the bomb sends 33 high-powered cars into the auto race Memorial Day.

The 30-year-old Chicagoan wound up with more than that — he'll be leading the rolling roadsters, by virtue of winning the pole position with the record average of 145.596 miles an hour last Saturday.

Flaherty thus became one of the leading choices to pick up the rich jackpot at the payoff banquet the night following the race, and the experts figured it was about time, too, that his racing luck changed.

Only once before did he receive the checkered flag of victory in a major event. That was the 250-mile at Milwaukee last summer.

Ten years ago this freckle-faced youngster had no ambitions to get mixed up in this hazardous profession. He was a mechanic by trade, but caught the racing bug while working for one of the speed merchants.

The rest was easy. He started with jalopies, then graduated to midgets, sprinters, finally winding up with big cars. He took his "500" driving test in 1949 and finished tenth in his first start the next year.

He had his share of troubles. In 1953 he suffered a concussion while hitting the northeast wall. The following year he tangled with Jimmy Daywalt in a spectacular wreck and again glanced off the wall. Last year he drove the distance with bad shocks and again finished 10th.

So this year he wants everything to go correctly. He drove about 300 miles practice, then

GRASSHOPPERS ATTACKING GRAY COUNTY

YOUR cropland is in a critical grasshopper area

It's important that you take immediate control measures to help prevent mass infestations.

Strike back at hoppers with the No. 1 "hopper stopper" — aldrin. Aldrin kills them if they touch, taste or smell it. It's effective in extremely low dosages. Mere ounces of aldrin control grasshoppers on an acre of cropland, no matter how heavy the infestation. Aldrin can be applied as a ground or air spray.

Don't be a victim of serious grasshopper damage this season — get aldrin from your local insecticide dealer. Be prepared — get aldrin today!

By HELEN STRICKLAND

The week has been marked with long faces, lined expressions and the moan of seniors who struggled through final examination, but today at noon seniors' gloom was finished, ended and completed when the last test paper was anxiously handed in. All seniors were dismissed from classes at noon. For underclassmen, the gloom will set in tomorrow morning and last through Friday. When that day is done, all studying will be over for another three months of swimming, vacationing, loafing and having fun.

Graduation services will be held Monday night in Harvester Field House. Ed Gossett of Dallas will speak.

Knox Kinard will award the diplomas; he will be assisted by Jack Edmondson and Cameron Marsh. The Harvester Band will play the processional and recessional marches.

On Sunday preceding graduation, the Vesper Service will be held in the school auditorium. Rev. Ronald Hubbard will speak. Immediately following the Vesper Services the annual senior tea will be held in the cafeteria.

When these activities are over, it will be all over for 220 students—the 1956 graduates of Pampa High School.

Last Wednesday, students cried their way through the farewell assembly as student leaders made their farewell speeches and awards for outstanding work were made.

Student council officers were presented with tokens of appreciation for their work with the organization. Vice-president Ted Swindle received an engraved set of cuff links and tie clasp, and Secretary Sheila Chisholm received a bracelet engraved with the words "Student Council, 1956."

President Lee Ledrick was presented with a gavel encircled with a silver band and inscribed. In his farewell address, Lee brought back memories of last spring when he stood on the stage and delivered his campaign speech for the presidential election.

"I told you then that I was a little man, but I had big hopes, big dreams and big ambitions," said Lee. "I don't have them any more because, with your help, I have used them all up and turned them into the achievements of 1955-56."

Lee wants to express his appreciation and thanks to the students again here. Says Lee, "I shall never forget the cooperation and enthusiasm with which the students of PHS have met the Student Council's activities this year. I will cherish these memories forever. Thanks for making this the best year that PHS has ever known and thanks for letting me have a part in it."

The climax of the year's Student Council work was the All-School Prom held on Saturday night. The theme of the formal affair was Fantasy and Fairy Land. The decorations were based on well-known fairy stories. Mirrors and glitter made the illusion complete as girls in yards of net and silk danced with their fellows in dinner jackets and suits.

The prom was certainly a wonderful success and thanks for that can go to Rhona Finkelstein, chairman of the social committee of the Student Council. Most other social activities have been forsaken in the mad rush to get in last minute themes, book-keeping practice sets, make-up tests and cramming in all knowledge that text books contain. But soon, teen agers will be getting in the swing of summertime fun. In the meantime, if anyone has a surplus of midnight oil, you can get a good price for it about now. Spring has sprung. Turtledoves cry. If I flunked that test, So will I.
