Irish Strife Grows

BELFAST (UPI) — Police found the garrotted body of a man in a Roman Catholic area of Belfast today while bonfires burned in Protestant areas to celebrate a 283-year-old victory that made them the dominant force in Northern Ireland.

Police said the man, who was not identified, was strangled with barbed wire.

It was the 845th death in nearly four years of political and religious strife among Protestants, Catholics and security forces.

Earlier, British commanders ordered 28,500 troops and police to keep the peace during Protestant celebrations of the battle that established their dominance over the Catholics nearly three centuries ago. Bonfires burned before dawn as the celebrations began.

"We are on full alert throughout the day," a security spokesman said.

Parade organizers said about 100,000 Protestants were marching in Belfast and 17 other cities and towns to celebrate the victory of King William of Orange over Catholic King James II in the 1690 Battle of the Boyne.

Authorities cancelled police leave, called up 2,000 reservists to reinforce 4,000 regular police and placed on duty the 6,000 part-time militiamen of the Ulster Defense Regiment. In addition, 16,500 regular troops were on duty.

Security officials said Belfast, where about 23,000 Protestants were marching, was the worst potential trouble spot.

The celebrations got under way at midnight Wednesday with hundreds of street parties and bonfires. Huge crowds drank toasts to Protestant heroes, sang patriotic songs and occasionally pitched effigies of Catholics into the fires.

The effigies included figures representing Pope Paul VI and Gerry Fitt, leader of Northern Ireland's main Catholic political group, the Social Democratic and Labor Party.

To prevent possible bombing attacks by the Irish Republican Army (IRA), the army warned that troops might blow up any cars parked along the Belfast parade—reference to the fact bomb-laden cars are a favorite IRA weapon.

Mitchell Volunteers Little Information To Questions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — He had warned the senators he would volunteer nothing and John N. Mitchell was true to his word Wednesday in a cross-examination that grew crisper and crisper.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., the moralist on the Senate Watergate Committee, wanted to draw Mitchell out into a discussion of the morality of withholding from the President word of his associates' damaging complicity in Watergate. But Mitchell would have none of it.

Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., the constitutionalist, wanted to debate whether Nixon, by withholding information from the committee, was not inviting the legitimate inference that he had something to hide. Mitchell couldn't say.

And Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., sparred futilely and finally complained limply, "Is this what you call stonewalling?"

Term Not Familiar
Dead-pan, Mitchell said he wasn't familiar with the term. Was it some Connecticut Yankee expression?

Mitchell said his reluctance to tell Nixon the truth about Watergate was matched only by Nixon's lack of interest in asking him questions.

"I presume the President has more important things to do," he said, drily.

In developments away from the hearing, Charles Colson, a future witness, said Nixon probably did seriously raise the question of resigning with his family—as Julie Nixon Eisenhower insists and the White House denies.

"Knowing the President, he would use his family and he would use me often as a sounding board," the former White House lawyer told the Detroit News.

Julie, questioned by reporters when she greeted 200 members of the National Association of Farm Broadcasters and their families, stuck by her guns and added that her father is "trying to run everything himself now."

"We can all learn from Watergate," she said. "I can't really condemn the fact that my father didn't know."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., in an interview with CBS, said impeachment proceedings would serve no purpose "except to tear the country to pieces."

Nixon Signs Social Security Increases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Social Security benefits for almost 30 million Americans will increase by more than 5 per cent beginning in June, 1974.

President Nixon signed the compromise legislation authorizing the benefits increase Wednesday. The measure would also increase to $12,600 the maximum wage base on which Social Security taxes are imposed on wage-earners.

"The critical feature of this bill is an increase in Social Security benefits of more than 5 per cent next year in order to meet the rising costs of living," Nixon said in a written statement issued by the White House.

White House officials estimated that the benefits increase would range between 5.6 and 5.8 per cent, with the first checks to be paid in July of next year.

The legislation also provides: —The amount of money an individual may earn without a reduction in Social Security benefits would increase from $2,100 to $2,400—effective next Jan. 1.

—Increased welfare benefits for more than six million aged, blind and disabled recipients.

The increases, also intended to compensate for advances in the cost of living, lift the monthly payments from $130 to $140 for an individual and from $195 to $210 for a couple, starting next July.

—States must supplement federal welfare benefits to make sure no recipient receives a benefit cut when welfare programs shift from state to federal operation at the end of this year.

The Social Security increase was attached to an amendment on a minor bill passed by Congress in the closing hours before it began its July 4th recess.

The measure was a compromise which the administration agreed to accept after threatening to veto a more generous version.

Nixon objected to one section of the new bill postponing until Nov. 1 the effective date of regulations, adopted by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), to limit the social services which states may provide under programs requiring a federal reimbursement.

"As the Congress knows, neither I nor my predecessors have been able to accept such a 'coming into agreement' because it infringes on the essential responsibility of the President and the executive branch, and on the separation of powers doctrine," Nixon said.

In separate action Wednesday, Nixon signed legislation extending temporary increases in railroad retirement benefits from June 30 until the end of this year. This measure also permits men with 30 years of railroad employment to retire at age 60 with full pension.

Martha Denies Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Martha Mitchell said today she still believes everything she has said about President Nixon and the Watergate scandal even though her husband has sworn Nixon was kept in the dark about the scope of the scandal.

Mrs. Mitchell told UPI in a telephone conversation—as her husband John was starting his third day of testimony before the Senate Watergate committee—that "I stand on everything I've said previously."

In previous interviews, Mrs. Mitchell said the President should resign because of Watergate and asserted that "if John knew about it, then Nixon knew about it."

Mrs. Mitchell said she was calling today from somewhere in the South because she wanted to deny calling UPI's Washington bureau early Wednesday. "I haven't talked to a damned soul," she said.

A woman claiming to be Mrs. Mitchell told a UPI reporter Wednesday: "I want you to know that my husband is absolutely correct in all of his testimony. He is completely honest. I'm standing completely beside him because I know he is telling the truth."

The former attorney general insisted repeatedly in his Senate testimony that he never told Nixon what he knew about the cover-up and that he was sure the President had no knowledge of the extent of it until last March.

Mrs. Mitchell said today she would reserve comment on her husband's testimony "by everything I've said in the past ... I stand on the whole shooting match—from A to Z."

"I want you to put out a denial," she said. "I'm sick and tired of people picking up the phone and saying they are Martha Mitchell."

Mrs. Mitchell declined to say exactly where she was, revealing only that the location was in the Central Time Zone.

Otherwise, she said only she was "down South running around, seeing old friends and getting a tan."

Asked why she chose not to attend the Senate hearings, Mrs. Mitchell indicated that she feared her presence in Washington now would cause too much of a commotion and that she would not have had enough protection.

Mrs. Mitchell was one of the "dirty business" of politics in the Nixon re-election campaign that her husband directed from April to July last year. She publicly threatened to leave her husband after the Watergate incident unless he quit politics.

Mitchell Testifies Haldeman, Ehrlichman Tried To Cover Acts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John N. Mitchell testified today that former presidential advisers H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman were among those who had an "active concern" last year in hiding the truth about Watergate and other criminal acts.

The former attorney general, during a third day of questioning by the Senate Watergate Committee, said he believed that both campaign and White House officials helped shield President Nixon from the full story of the "horrors" involving his subordinates.

"Is it your impression that the President was being misled by that (White House) group just as you were misleading the President?" asked Samuel Dash, the chief committee counsel.

"I believe that would be, would certainly be, the impression I would have," Mitchell replied.

Mitchell, Nixon's campaign manager until two weeks after the June 17, 1972 bugging arrests at Democratic headquarters at the Watergate, said he had discussed the situation fully with Haldeman and Ehrlichman sometime last year, although he said he could not give a date.

attempting to keep the lid on?" Dash asked.

"They had a very active concern just as I did," Mitchell replied, contending that he didn't know in "what ways they participated in implementing it."

The committee, in its sixth week of hearings, met privately this morning to discuss whether to subpoena Watergate-related documents from the White House—documents that Nixon has said he will not provide.

Further discussion on the subpoena question was postponed until the hearings recessed for lunch.

Contrary to the sworn testimony earlier of ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III, Mitchell said he believed Dean did conduct a Watergate investigation for the President.

"Did you ever ask him?" asked Dash.

No Direct Report
"I'm not sure I put it in the form of that type of question," Mitchell replied. "We did have such a discussion and he said he had been in discussions with Haldeman and Ehrlichman but had not made a direct report to the President. He was going through Haldeman or Ehrlichman—one or the other. I don't recall which."

Last Aug. 29, Nixon announced that an investigation by Dean made at his request had indicated that no one in the White House or his administration had been involved in the Watergate affair. The White House later acknowledged there had been no such Dean report.

At the outset of continuation of Mitchell's testimony, Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, questioned the former attorney general further about his insistence that he told President Nixon nothing of what he knew about the Watergate cover-up despite his closeness to the chief executive.

White House troubleshooter Richard A. Moore, who in high school played ice hockey with Mitchell, was summoned to follow Mitchell to the witness stand. Dean testified last month that Moore would and could verify Dean's allegation that he notified Nixon about the cover-up.

Contradiction Expected
Moore is the first top Nixon aide still at the White House to testify before the committee. He was expected to contradict some testimony by Mitchell, although Moore is a longtime friend of Mitchell's—he played hockey against Mitchell in high school.

Liz, Richard To Reunite
NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Burton, described as "very much on the wagon," and Elizabeth Taylor will reunite in Rome next week after a week-long public separation, it was reported today.

Quoting friends of Miss Taylor's in Hollywood, an undated dispatch in the New York Post said the couple will meet in Rome, where Miss Taylor will make a movie, on July 20 and will probably reconcile their marriage.

Gasoline Supplies Showing Increase

By United Press International
Filling stations in scattered areas reported there still wasn't enough gasoline to go around, but across the country there was more available than there has been at any time this summer, the American Automobile Association (AAA) said Wednesday.

"While gasoline supply and distribution inequities continue to inconvenience motorists and dealers to some degree in every area of the nation, most dealers expressed considerably more optimism than the statistics reveal," the AAA said.

The AAA said its survey of gas stations along major travel routes in the United States showed 46 per cent were operating at normal hours and allowing motorists to fill their tanks; 48 per cent reported closing early, and only 10 per cent were still limiting the amount of gas a motorist could buy.

Motorists in less populated areas were warned to make sure they have enough gasoline, especially evenings and weekends, when many gas stations are closed.

Western Airlines and Continental Airlines meanwhile filed a joint application to provide one-plane service between Anchorage, Alaska; and the oil centers of Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma and Colorado, claiming, "The energy needs of the nation would be uniquely served by such a routing."

The amendment was added to a bill intended to clear the way for construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline. The bill was scheduled for a vote early next week.

Under the law, corporations cannot make political contributions. Special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox has promised to go easy on other corporations which come forward and disclose that they made illegal gifts, too.

INDUSTRY HEAD WARNS Food Prices 'Deceptively Low'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Today's record food prices are really "deceptively low," and consumers will be shocked when the food industry finally passes on the increases it has been absorbing during the temporary price freeze, a leading industry executive has warned Congress.

C. W. Cook, chairman of General Foods Corp., in a wire sent to all members of Congress July 3 and made public Wednesday, warned the lawmakers not to be misled by rosy hopes growing out of Agriculture Department reports this week that farm production may set new records this year.

Cook said that because of past and present control systems, current retail food prices are based on raw farm product prices far below the actual current cost of raw products.

"When sharp commodity price increases are reflected at retail, as ultimately they must be, the resultant rise in food costs is certain to shock consumers ... Even excellent crop prospects this year will not be sufficient to curb this spiral significantly," Cook warned.

"We believe the consuming public should be made aware of this distasteful prospect now because we fear many consumers expect food prices to hold steady or possibly decline once new crop estimates are in."

President Nixon met for two hours with his Cabinet Wednesday on plans for a Phase IV anti-inflation program to follow the temporary freeze. A spokesman said the new plan will be announced "relatively soon," although no final decisions have yet been made on it.

Agriculture Department officials said they expected some further increase in food prices after ceilings are relaxed, but the potential big harvest of grains and soybeans would ease the situation by spurring increases in livestock and poultry production beginning in the fall.

The National Association of Food Chains, meanwhile, told the Cost of Living Council that a list of developing food shortages, reportedly caused by the 60-day price freeze, is growing longer. It said retailers "are receiving an increasing number of notices from their suppliers that deliveries of various products will no longer be made until prices can be raised to cover costs."

122 PASSENGERS DIE

Brazilian Airliner's Pilot Hailed In Crash Landing

SAULX — Les CHARTREUX, a France (UPI) — The pilot of a Brazilian Varig airliner was hailed today as a hero for the skillfully executed crash landing of his flaming airliner. It apparently was smoke and flames that killed the 122 victims, not the crash itself.

Rescuers who rushed to the wreckage in a lettuce field outside this Paris suburb said the victims died strapped in their seats, choked unconscious by fumes and then burned by the flames that started in a restroom and flashed through the aircraft, fed by the emergency oxygen system.

Firemen who brought out the Blackened bodies said many were in the correct position for a crash landing—heads down and knees together.

Doctors fought today to save the lives of the seriously ill among the 12 survivors of the Boeing 707 jetliner. One survivor died in a hospital today, bringing the official death toll to 122.

All the survivors were crewmen. Among the badly injured was the pilot, Gilberto Araujo Da Silva, hailed by Frenchmen today as a hero for guiding the plane past rows of houses to a safe landing.

"He was nerveless—a hero," said one news broadcast.

The plane was only two miles—90 seconds flying time—from Orly Airport at the end of a 5,800-mile flight from Brazil when it ditched, "like a bomb," according to one witness, because of a fire which a survivor said started in a rear toilet, apparently as a result of a short circuit.

A local farmer who was among the first to reach the plane said: "I got into the cockpit and two crew members were unconscious in their seats, their faces black. The passenger compartment was silent."

"A fireman tried to get to the door but was beaten back by the smoke," another farmer said. "It was like a furnace. Then I covered my head with my shirt and got in. It was quiet in the passenger area and I could not see much for the smoke but I think they had been killed already, first by the smoke, then the flames."

The crash was the worst in France since June 1962, when an Air France Boeing 707 crashed on take-off from Orly Airport, killing 131 persons.

Among them were many from Atlanta, Ga., who had been on an art tour of Europe.

Investigators today played black tapes from the aircraft's "black box" flight recorder to hear the last communications between the plane and Orly ground control. Aviation authorities already had made it clear the cause of the crash was a fire that started in the tail section, apparently from a short circuit.

Da Silva guided the plane to a difficult emergency landing in a field, missing houses and a major highway, when the fire forced him to land short of the Orly Airport runway though he was only 90 seconds away.

Varig said 117 of the victims were passengers, among them an entertainer, the highest-ranking civilian politician in Brazil, a world champion yachtsman and the other four crew members.

One crewman was French, but the airline did not report any other foreigners on board.

Most of the persons on the passenger list were Brazilian.

The disaster, officials said, was caused by a fire that apparently began in a rear toilet of the Varig airlines Boeing 707 and raced the length of the plane in seconds. The cause of the fire itself was not determined.

The jetliner was carrying 134 persons on a flight from Sao Paulo to Paris when Da Silva radioed an emergency message to Orly airport saying, "There is trouble here with reactors." He did not explain what he meant.

Cambodian Troops Hit Red Positions

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian helicopters airlifted two battalions, or 800 troops, to positions 12 miles south of Phnom Penh today to engage entrenched Communist forces there.

Newsmen at the scene said U.S. F4 and F111 bombers flew heavy air strikes in the region near Highway 3, hitting Communist positions before the government's airborne assault began.

Heavy fighting was reported earlier in regions 10 miles south and west of the capital, with U.S. warplanes reportedly carrying out intense raids in support of the government offensive.

The airborne assault began when ten helicopters airlifted the first of 800 government troops into an area one-half mile south of the Prey Thanot River, the same region where two battalions of government troops have been isolated for several days in a well-fortified school.

The government front lines are now located about a mile north of the river.

There were no immediate reports from the military command on the progress of the government assault, but newsmen at the scene said Gen. Nguon Ly Kheang, commander of the 3rd division, told them the assault was aimed at liberating the town of Kampong Kantuot, 155 miles from the capital. It fell six days ago.

Communist troops have been inching closer to the capital in the past week along the southern defense perimeter.

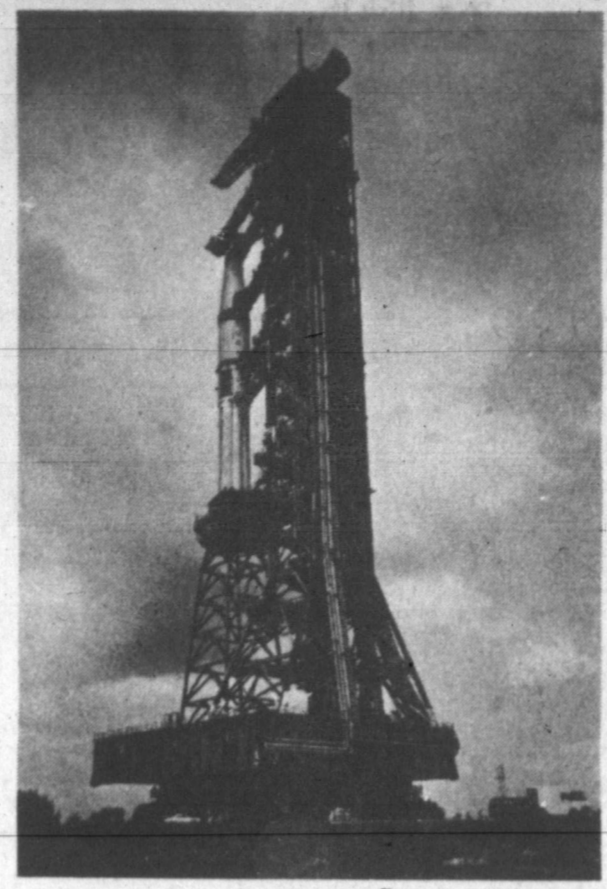

Government forces launched a counter offensive Wednesday, attacking Communist troops in an attempt to drive them farther from the capital.

Authoritative sources in the capital said they believed the Communists were retreating slightly from their positions in the face of the heavy American bombing, which Cambodian officers said Wednesday killed 200 insurgents only nine miles south of the capital.

Newsmen in the area Wednesday said there was furious ground fighting along Highway 2, only nine miles south of the capital.

The high command said government troops were conducting operations to force Communist troops from their newly won positions, but it did not report on the success of the operation.

To the northwest of the capital, U.S. warplanes continued to fly air strikes near Phnom Basset, where government forces earlier linked up with a besieged battalion.

ON PARDON OF DeCARLO Investigators Want To Question Dean

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate investigators, probing President Nixon's pardon of gangland figure Angelo DeCarlo, will question former White House counsel John W. Dean in the near future, it was disclosed today.

DeCarlo, a high-ranking Mafia captain, was pardoned last December after serving less than two years of a 12-year prison term for loan sharking and extortion.

The Senate permanent investigating subcommittee has been inquiring into the commutation of the sentence and in a statement today said it was seeking "additional information regarding the presidential commutation from former White House counsel John W. Dean III and others."

In addition to Dean it was understood that in addition to Dean, who as Nixon's counsel cleared the proposal of pardon, the investigators want to question Richard Kleindienst who was attorney general at the time.

A subcommittee spokesman said that Dean would be interrogated in the "immediate future" but no date has been set for calling Kleindienst.

At the same time, Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., announced that Gerald Martin Zelmanowitz, the key government witness in DeCarlo's conviction, will testify in open hearings Friday.

Zelmanowitz, 36, will testify on stolen securities and related frauds involving the use of secret foreign bank accounts by organized crime figures.

Zelmanowitz, who, according to Jackson, has admitted being a front man for organized crime figures in moving money and through European banks and brokerage houses, won immunity from prosecution for testifying against DeCarlo.

"Cover" Exposed
The Justice Department provided Zelmanowitz with a new background and credentials to prove it after DeCarlo was convicted but the "cover" was exposed and he is now in protective custody.

In a letter to Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson last week, seeking information on why DeCarlo was pardoned, Jackson said Kleindienst and Dean "bypassed normal procedures and safeguards" in arranging executive clemency.

"Something smells and I want to know what," Jackson commented at that time.

MINISTER PERSUADED HIM

Daniel Gives Testimony On Artesia Hall Action

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. said Wednesday his only contact with Artesia Hall at the time he was asked to be a legal counsel for the youth camp was an expose about the facility he read in his own newspaper.

"Frankly, it was quite an expose and I was reluctant to get involved in the case because of the story that was run in my newspaper," Daniel told a House subcommittee investigating the state's licensing of Artesia Hall.

But Daniel said he was persuaded by a Baptist minister who praised the school to be its legal counsel in the school's effort to obtain a state permit. Daniel said he was also convinced by the argument that the school's owner, Dr. Joseph Farrar, was entitled to counsel.

Farrar has since been indicted for murder in connection with the death of a teen-aged patient.

Daniel said he never heard of the facility until the Liberty Vindicator, a newspaper in which Daniels owns 50 per cent interest, ran its expose. Not long after the story appeared, Daniel said Houston attorney Kendall Baker asked him in August, 1971, to represent Farrar and Artesia.

"Baker came to me looking for someone familiar with the courtroom procedure and the judges in Liberty County," Daniel said. "I never heard of met Dr. Farrar and never visited Artesia Hall."

Daniel said his first thought was of the expose in the Vindicator.

"When I tentatively decided to turn Baker down, I said I was going to be too busy," Daniel said. "But he said he felt very strongly that the man (Farrar) had his rights.

"He (Baker) brought in a Baptist minister with a church right across the road from Artesia Hall. The minister was very, very persuasive and said the kids came to church every Sunday. And the parents were most persuasive, too. One of them said it was the first place his child had made any substantial improvement.

Moyer Testifies On Stamp Deal

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Former Amarillo Legislator Hudson Moyer testified during his own trial Wednesday his wife used her own money to purchase $6,000 worth of stamps to mail official documents.

Moyer said he reimbursed his family bank account $5,040 in stamps paid for by the state.

"I believed then, and I believe now that I was perfectly entitled to be reimbursed for my expenses," Moyer said.

Moyer is accused of stealing the postage stamps from his House expense account and using them to pay off a bank loan.

Moyer contends the stamps were used to reimburse the family bank account for money spent on stamps used to mail 80,000 pieces of legislative correspondence during the 1968 session of the legislature.

Moyer said he bought $8,100 worth of stamps with his own money in 1968 in anticipation of a tough political campaign. But, he said, it turned out the campaign wasn't as heavy as he originally planned and he only used $1,500 worth of the stamps. He said he took the remaining $6,600 in stamps with him to Austin and used them on state business.

But there was some discrepancy in Moyer's version of what the stamps were used to mail and the testimony from government officials who prepared the mailings.

Moyer and his secretary Peggy McGee said Moyer had the House print shop make 25,000 copies of one letter and an abortion bill. But Larry Davis, head of the House Print Shop, said Moyer ordered no printing done at the shop in 1968.

Moyer and McGee testified they had 25,000 copies of another letter xeroxed in the House clerk's office. But House Clerk Dorothy Hallman said members were limited to 25 copies at a time on the office copying machine.

Actor Robert Ryan Dies From Cancer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Robert Ryan, 59, a screen actor who played in more than 75 films, usually played a two-fisted, red-blooded he-man, died Wednesday of cancer.

Ryan, whose adventures off the screen rivaled his Hollywood movie exploits, was a college boxing champion who later stoked coal on freighters bound for Africa. He also worked in a gold mine in British Guiana, served as a ranch hand in Montana and was a Marine drill instructor before he became an actor.

He got his screen break in 1941 and appeared in top roles from then until his death.

Only a few weeks ago shooting was finished on two men who plot the assassination of John F. Kennedy, entitled "Executive Action," a film in which Ryan co-starred with Burt Lancaster.

The 6-foot-3 son of an immigrant Irish father and an English mother died at New York Hospital, where he had been undergoing treatment for the past 10 days. He had a history of cancer and had undergone an operation last year.

Asked about his illness, Ryan once said, "At first it's a shock; then you become reconciled. I am much more tolerant now that I know I'm on borrowed time. I see trees and flowers and pretty girls. I see beauty that I used to be oblivious to. Actually life is much better enjoying it day to day."

After he was graduated from Dartmouth in 1932, he went on his round-the-world journey. He later migrated to Hollywood to study in Max Reinhardt's acting workshop, played odd parts and came back to New York, where his big break came in 1941 as leading man to Tallulah Bankhead in "Clash By Night."

A year later he made his motion picture debut in "Bombardier." From then on he appeared in top film roles as well as stage musicals, including the title role in Irving Berlin's musical, "Mr. President."

Ryan's wife of 33 years, Jessica, died in 1972 of cancer of the liver. The couple had three children, Timothy, Cheyney and Lisa.

Defies Order

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (UPI) — The New Zealand protest frigate Otago tonight defied a French order for all ships and aircraft to leave a prohibited area off the Mururoa atoll where France plans a series of nuclear tests which may begin this weekend.

New Zealand Prime Minister Norman Kirk compared his government's action in sending a warship into the zone with the British government's action in its "Cod War" with Iceland.

Senate Okays Gold Ownership

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate overwhelmingly adopted legislation Wednesday allowing Americans to own gold.

The legislation, offered by Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., and approved on a 69-21 vote, would allow U.S. citizens to purchase, hold, sell or deal in gold beginning Jan. 1, 1975, or earlier if President Nixon decrees that it would not have an adverse impact on the U.S. international monetary position.

It was the second time this year that the Senate has approved such a measure.

The Senate and House added similar amendments to the gold devaluation bill but it is locked in conference because of a controversy over an anti-impoundment amendment.

The new amendment was attached to a bill providing for the minting of special quarters, half-dollars and dollars to commemorate the bicentennial of the revolution in 1976. The bill passed by voice vote.

Pampa Homemaker Prepares For Wedding

Recipes this week come from the kitchen of Mrs. Ted (LaDell) Atwood, 2500 Mary Ellen, who enjoys cooking for her husband, an employe of Cabot Corp. for the past 19 years, and their three children, Phyllis Stuckey, who teaches homemaking in Lewisville, Tex.; Ted, Jr., 19, who will be married today, and Regina, 16, a senior at Pampa High School.

LaDell has been very busy this week with her son's wedding preparations and the menu for the rehearsal dinner. The dinner was prepared by Mrs. Atwood and served in her home. The menu featured baked ham, but the main attraction was the 'Red Devil's Food Cake,' (printed below) which is her son's favorite recipe.

LaDell has been a Pampa resident for 20 years and her hobbies are cooking and sewing. She made her son's wedding suit, the dress she will wear in the wedding, and the suit her two-year-old grandson, Shawn Stuckey, will wear in the wedding.

She is an adult organization leader for the Top O' Texas 4-H Club where she received a five and ten year Adult Leader Award. She is also a member of the First Baptist Church.

Nuptial vows were solemnized in the First Christian Church of Pampa, at 7 p.m. June 22, by Miss Joan Carol Maxey and Russel Gary Johnson.

The bride is the daughter of G.M. Maxey, 340 Sunset Dr., and the bridegroom is the son of R.C. Johnson, 321 E. 8th, both of Pampa.

THE CEREMONY

The Rev. Ralph Palmer, pastor, officiated for the double-ring ceremony. Miss Linda Reed, pianist, accompanied Randy Talley, as he sang "One Hand, One Heart," "Somewhere," and "The Lord's Prayer."

A kneeling bench was used in front of the table.

THE BRIDE

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal white wedding gown of silk peau de soie. Tiny buttons also enhanced the back of the gown which featured a soft skirt and chapel length train. Her floor-length veil of rainbow illusion, fell from a band of white seed pearls and lace petals, and carried a yellow rose corsage. She wore a diamond-drop necklace, a gift of her father; a borrowed lace handkerchief; a blue garter, a gift of Mrs. E.D. Meeker; and a lucky penny in her shoe.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. W.T. Atkinson of Amarillo was matron of honor. She was attired in a floor-length aqua and yellow floral print dress styled with ruffles at the neckline. She wore short white Meaker designed aqua flower mints which were served. The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with yellow sweetpeas, cupid doll's and doves atop.

Miss Molly Meeker served the cake and Mrs. George Bailey

For the wedding trip to Dallas, the bride wore a blue pant and vest ensemble with a white halter top and lifted the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple plans to reside in Amarillo.

Local Artist Will Hold Children's Art Workshop

The Pampa Fine Arts Association will sponsor a children's workshop in water coloring July 16 - 27, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at The Art Gallery. Six lessons, $18 plus material totaling approximately $8.75 will be instructed by Mrs. Robin Gantz, local artist. Call 665-5402 for information.

A former Pampa resident, Robin Gantz, has recently moved back from Boston, Mass. While she lived here several years ago, she was active in the Pampa Art Club, assisted in crafts classes for the Exceptional Children's Association sponsored by the Junior Service League and conducted art classes at the Pampa Community Center.

Robin had her first one-man show in 1960, sponsored by the Department of Art at West Texas State University. Following the W.T. show, another one-man show was held at Lovett Memorial Library sponsored by local Cabot employees. The primary medium was watercolor and ink sketches, many of which were made at the Cabot Schafer plant in Skellytown.

From 1960-70 she taught art in Louisiana, Kentucky and Massachusetts. While in Kentucky she worked as an assistant for a Louisville architect.

Specialized study was pursued in 1970-71 at Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass., as well as private study with watercolorist Brad Vioght of Rockport Art Association. While in Massachusetts, Robin was a member of both the Framingham Artists Association and the Sudbury Artists Guild.

Robin's paintings have been purchased by several Texas collectors including Ben Carlton Mead, Dallas. She is a member of the Amarillo Art Center, recently having two paintings on display in the member's gallery there.

Watercolor classes have been conducted for junior high students this past year at Robin's home. Watercolor painting as taught by Robin is not limited to teaching watercolor technique alone.

"Before one can paint one must learn to 'see' and experiments in awareness are used to help each child see the beauty that is present everywhere," she stated.

Rather than helping just the budding artist, watercolor can be used by any child, once he learns its characteristics, as a means to express his own unique feelings. Equal emphasis is placed on the value of learning through experimentation.

Robin is the wife of David Gantz, the mother of three children and resides at 2132 Mary Ellen.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The third money crunch in seven years is now upon us," according to the Lehman Letter. It says "a disturbing number of banks" are borrowing close to $1 billion daily in the Federal funds market and the supply of funds from smaller banks appears to be dwindling. Investor interest on the money market is only nominal except at distressed prices, it adds.

Both business and labor are critical the recent price freeze and promise of a tough Phase IV controls program is "intended primarily as a stopgap measure to afford a perplexed administration the time to devise a more complete anti-inflation package," says Irving Trust Co. The bank says the public's disenchantment with the freeze was underscored by a sharp drop in the stock market and a further weakening of the dollar abroad.

"The 'boom-bust' danger that loomed earlier in the year could be less of a threat since recent developments suggest the economy is beginning to slow down," says Manufacturer Hanovers Trust. A lower level of residential building, a decline in annual automobile sales, and a rapid buildup in consumer credit indicate the overheated economy is starting to cool, the banks say.

A. W. Zelomek Associates says "the official price of gold will have to be raised, even if the monetary rate of gold remains limited and restricted." A boost in the price of gold may only occur when inflation becomes manageable "or the specter of a serious recession develops," the letter adds. In such a case, it says, there would be overwhelming support for a substantial increase from the current free price, probably in 1974.

ROBIN GANTZ To Conduct Workshop

Record Soybean Harvests Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department has predicted a potential record grain and soybean harvest which could ease inflationary pressure on food prices this fall.

Don Paarlberg, the department's chief economist, told a news conference following the issuance of a monthly crop report, that meat prices probably will rise after current ceilings are lifted because of an earlier boom in livestock feed cost. But he said the bumper corn, soybean and wheat crops forecast Tuesday should help by both reducing feed prices and persuading farmers to reverse recent trends toward slowing meat, poultry and egg production.

Paarlberg said he could not foresee "any prospects of lower food prices to any appreciable extent for the rest of 1973," but he said the "favorable" crop report should speed an administration decision to move out of the price freeze and into a more flexible economic control program.

The report estimated farmers will harvest 62.5 million acres of corn, up nine per cent from last year and 55.7 million acres of soybeans, up 22 per cent. No formal production estimates were issued but the report said that with average yield the corn crop could reach a record of 5.879 billion bushels — up six per cent from last year while the soybean harvest might be up a record 24 per cent or 1.588 billion bushels.

September and October. He said beef supplies this fall could increase over levels now in sight, but it might be well into 1974 before any substantial gain in pork appears.

NOW HE KNOWS SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Paul Elliott said he received a card from the White House, signed "Dick and Pat, David and Julie, and Eddie and Tricia," bearing the presidential seal and a picture of the Nixon family, thanking him "with our deep appreciation for helping make our victory on Nov. 7, 1972."

Elliott, 21, who was Washington State youth coordinator for Sen. George McGovern, said, "I know we weren't able to carry the state, but I didn't realize we were that ineffective."

TO FINANCE SCHOOLS Bankers Oppose Taxing Intangibles

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Taxing intangibles to generate money to finance public schools will be opposed by bankers who believe such a tax will cause large withdrawals and economic instability, according to one state legislator.

Rep. R. B. McAllister, D-Lubbock, in testimony before the House Education Committee, told legislators any proposal to tax intangible wealth will be opposed by the banking industry.

"The big scare is that they would take money out of their bank accounts in order to dodge the tax," McAllister said.

Taxing bank accounts, stocks and bonds, investments and other intangibles is one possibility being considered to raise money to finance public schools.

House Education Committee Chairman Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale said he hopes a taxing bill can be ready to submit to House Speaker Price Daniel by the middle of September. Kubiak is hoping he and Daniel can persuade Gov. Dolph Briscoe to call a special session of the legislature to adopt a school financing plan but Briscoe has been reluctant to consider the idea.

Kubiak asked the main committee's three subcommittees to continue working on various proposals and have them ready for the next full committee meeting Aug. 10.

Rep. T. H. McDonald, D-Mesquite, told Kubiak his subcommittee will recommend a central taxing agency assess property taxes on a statewide basis.

The Lighter Side

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I've been trying to tell everybody the "Fiddleworth Factor," which is a psychological quirk named in honor of Wally Fiddleworth, the Washington representative of a large industrial corporation.

They Drove
A couple of years ago Fiddleworth invited me to lunch. He picked me up in a chauffeured limousine and we drove approximately two blocks to a restaurant. (This is a distance some of the more intrepid lunch parties have braved on foot.)

All during the meal, Fiddleworth had the chauffeur keep the motor running so the air conditioner would remain on and we could return to a cool car.

Whenever I am being urged to help reduce air pollution by doing less driving, I know that all the while I am making the sacrifice Fiddleworth will be somewhere having lunch with the motor running.

That realization puts a distinct chill on my ecological fervor.

The Fiddleworth Factor is probably the main reason why voluntary anti-smog programs don't work. Since nearly everyone knows a few Fiddleworth types, hardly anyone is willing to inconvenience himself for the sake of fresh air.

We'll all stay in our autos until we either run out of gas or run out of oxygen. Whichever comes first.

Musicians Sing Out On Pilots

By TERRANCE W. MCGARRY
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Head tilted back, binoculars uplifted, the watcher peered into the night sky, ears alert for the drone of the intruders' engines, eyes straining for a shadow of wings on the stars.

At his elbow was a telephone, a link to the air command post. A short wave radio crackled beside it. Beacons stabbed aloft. But there were no Spitfires warming up.

Just the string section.

The classical musicians at the Hollywood Bowl, tired of cursing the Red Barons who fracture their fugues, inundate their intermezzos and blitz their nocturnes by flying over open air concerts in the midst of the music, have escalated their countermeasures.

He Was Ready

When the season's first concert got under way Tuesday night stage manager Mark Ferber was on the alert with his binoculars, his radio tuned to air control frequencies, and a telephone ready to dial control towers and the FAA to catch the culprits.

The bowl's beacon lights are supposed to warn pilots off when a concert is in progress.

It is against FAA regulations for a pilot to fly lower than 1,000 feet above the highest object—which in the bowl's case would be a flanking hill several hundred feet higher than the stage. The FAA has also told pilots that "as a matter of courtesy, they are requested to avoid the bowl area when concerts are in progress," according to Vic Tarantino, assistant chief of the control tower at Van Nuys Airport.

Planes Disrupt Concerts

Despite the FAA's help, at least two or three planes have disrupted most concerts in past years, according to Ernest Fleishman, executive director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. "This year we are making a concerted effort to report any violators," he said.

Despite the steps, guest conductor Eugene Ormandy was barely into Beethoven's Ninth Symphony Tuesday when a jetliner roared over.

"In the second movement, we were graced by a single engine aircraft, and few minutes later by a helicopter," Helfitz said.

"Ferber identified all three and those pilots can expect to hear from federal inspectors."

"Ferber even heard the jet pilot call in for landing instructions, reporting his position as 'over the Hollywood Bowl.'"

"And Ferber also heard the control tower answer 'Well, get the hell away from there.'"

Scientists believe that the Mediterranean Sea, as recently as six million years ago, was a two-mile-deep dry valley floored with sun-baked salt flats.

Restive Demos Await Kennedy's Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A line of ambitious and increasingly restive Senate Democrats will be waiting with bated breath for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to make the "hard decision" whether to seek the presidency in 1976.

No matter how high their individual political fortunes may rise between now and Kennedy's ultimate announcement, the ambitions of past and future White House aspirants hinge inextricably on the course to be set by the sole surviving Kennedy brother.

For there can be little doubt that should Kennedy decide to run—and many contend he is already running—he could expect little if any opposition for the nomination.

A new Louis Harris poll matched Kennedy against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and gave Kennedy a lead of 50 percent to 42 percent. Matched against former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally as a GOP nominee, Kennedy led, 49 percent to 45 percent.

Line Begins Forming

But the line to the rear is forming anyway—waiting, watching, perhaps even searching, for some sign that Kennedy will decide his responsibilities to his family and the children of his assassinated brother rule out a bid for the nation's highest office.

The Massachusetts senator said in a recent interview he recognized "there's a responsibility to make clear intentions at an early time," perhaps giving the other hopefuls a clear shot at the 1976 nomination.

Meanwhile, the party's other contenders are becoming increasingly active politically, striving to play a major role in the Senate's legislative battles and stake out their own reputations.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., a close Kennedy ally, has been accepting more speaking engagements and churning out press releases lashing the administration on everything from the Cambodian bombing to the anti-poverty program.

Jackson Bides Time

Frequently mentioned as a possible candidate, the young, liberal Minnesotan has said that talk of a 1976 presidential bid is "premature," despite enthusiastic prodding from his mentor, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., whose 1972 campaign for the presidential nomination failed in the primaries, has held center stage in the Senate this year on a half dozen different issues ranging from the energy crisis to Soviet trade.

As chairman of the Interior Committee, Jackson won Senate passage of a bill to set strict mandatory allocation of fuels and he is pressing for more far-reaching legislation to solve the energy problem.

As chairman of the permanent investigations subcommittee, Jackson will be at the forefront of investigations he is undertaking into the Soviet grain deal and the oil industry.

Friends say Jackson would like to make another try for his party's prize, but he is waiting to see what Kennedy will do.

Muskie Options Open

Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana made a well-financed effort for the 1972 nomination, but pulled out early when his wife was found to have breast cancer.

Young and articulate, Bayh has earned a reputation in the Senate for his leadership on gun control laws and legislation to combat drug abuse and juvenile delinquency. A big reelection win in the 1974 congressional elections could propel his candidacy two years hence.

Speaking on the party circuit or on the Senate floor, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine still sounds and acts like a presidential candidate. Despite his come down from 1972 frontrunner at the hands of George McGovern, Muskie admits he's "keeping all the options open" for the next time around.

"If the opportunity arises," he has said, "then we'll take another look at it."

But before the ambitions of any of these men can be set into concrete campaigns, Kennedy must first call a news conference and announce his political plans.

"I realize at some time I'm going to have to make hard judgments about these particular matters, and I will," he said. "I think all of this is really a question of time. Now obviously it is not the time."

The Queen of the Nile is a real asp

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-H. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am married and have three preschool children. My husband has a good position with a well-known corporation.

My problem is the lady next door. She is around 40, divorced, and has teen-age children. We live in townhouses and our front doors are side by side.

About a year ago she told me that she was the reincarnation of Cleopatra and has had visions as proof. Later she told me another neighbor, who was trying to possess her body, was making her stink! Then "Cleopatra" started leaving her garbage by the front door, which attracted flies, so my husband asked her to please remove it. She insulted my husband and accused HIM of making her stink, too. [My husband removed the garbage himself.]

When a friend called on me a few days ago, "Cleopatra" met her on my doorstep, announcing that SHE was now the Queen of Austria! She also told her that I was making her stink. Later that day she rang my bell to tell me that she knew my husband and I had entered her house while she was away. She used insulting, abusive language.

She must be sick. What can we do? Is there some society we can call? One almost hates to get involved.

INSULTED BUT FORGIVING

DEAR INSULTED: Contact your County Welfare Information Service and report your neighbor's peculiar behavior to them. They will investigate the matter without using your name. She appears to be disturbed and in need of help.

DEAR ABBY: I have just won $500 in a contest, and my husband is furious because I told him I am going to give the money to our church. Our church is in dire need of funds for an important project. I prayed hard to somehow get the money for this project, so when I saw this contest advertised I entered it. I made a promise to God that if I won the contest, I would give the money to the church.

My husband doesn't believe in God, and says a promise like that means exactly nothing. He says I am crazy for feeling the way I do and he thinks we should spend the money on things we need for ourselves. I must admit we could use it right now, but I feel it was the power of prayer that brought us that money and it belongs to the church.

My husband is barely speaking to me. Abby, we honor commitments to people. Why not to God? What shall I do?

CONTEST WINNER IN N. Y.

DEAR WINNER: You won the money and it's yours, so give it to the church if you wish.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old boy with a question to ask you. What do you think of long hair on a boy?

My father is so old fashioned it's pitiful. He thinks if a boy has long hair, he is on drugs or something. He makes me wear my hair real short, and I feel like a freak. Abby, I wouldn't think of taking drugs, but I want to be one of the crowd. How can I get my father to let me wear my hair a little longer?

GEORGIA PEACH

DEAR PEACH: I think it's what is IN a head that is important—not what is ON it. I see nothing wrong with long hair if it's kept clean and neat. However, a sign of maturity is being able to play by the rules. Don't nag or whine. When your father notices your maturity, he may change his mind.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HUNGRY FOR LOVE" IN RURAL VALLEY: A woman likes—indeed "needs"—to be told that she is loved. And I will let you in on another not-so-well-kept secret. So does a man. So, if you want to be loved—love!

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

The male silkworm moth or the Emperor moth can detect a female moth up to a distance of 6.8 miles. No turtle has teeth, whether it be a sea turtle, a tortoise or a fresh-water terrapin.

Television In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television executives take Lucille Ball's hold on the viewing audience for granted, and you sometimes wonder if the network people genuinely appreciate the miraculous nature of her video longevity.

The trouble with being the kind of superstar that Miss Ball is—with ceaselessly solid ratings and a long-held reputation as queen of the home medium—is that people do, indeed, take her, and perhaps even her talents, for granted. I sometimes think that if she took a season off and then came back, she would be regarded with fresh appreciation upon her return, and might well acquire even more fans than the countless number she already has.

She'll Be Back

Miss Ball will be back on CBS-TV again next season with her situation comedy series, which has undergone various alterations over the years—but which has basically been a succession of shows set up to allow her to display her unique and often remarkable talents.

It really doesn't matter much whether the individual episodes of Miss Ball's series are always up to snuff—what matters is to watch this amazingly commanding artist take charge. It seems a simple thing: Ask a star to take charge of the proceedings for a while—proceedings that have been constructed to show you off at your best. But consider how many name performers have been unable to carry off this task on video even for a short while. And yet here is this zany redhead who has done it week after week, year after year.

The fact is, though, she can do just about anything in show business—and with the authority, the presence, that only the truly great stars can radiate.

Not merely just a glamorous, knockabout comedienne, she can sing, dance and act—and her acting has a broad range.

Personal Feeling

My personal feeling, however, is that she registers most effectively when she appears in witty movie roles with a touch of romance to them. If you haven't seen a Bob Hope-Lucille Ball movie, you've missed out on some crackling professional entertainment.

I haven't spoken to Miss Ball personally in a long time, but I recall her as a standup dame, someone who could clearly outmaneuver anyone in show business who might try to give her a tough time—and a woman who gave the impression she would be great fun to have a few drinks with. She talked straight, with a clear lack of interest in small talk and other frilly aspects of her business.

There are a lot of name performers I wouldn't walk across the street to see. But Lucille Ball is something very special to me. She is one of our all-time major show business stars, and television, as important as it is to her, is just one of the fields she can dominate. Put her on the stage, or in a movie, and you know a star is up there. She is All-Pro.

Austin's Chief Electrician Sees Flexibility As Aid For Energy

AUSTIN (UPI) — The chief electrician in the energy-short capital city of Texas believes it will take flexibility and a little Rube Goldberg inventiveness to keep the lights on for the next six years.

"Those are going to be the tough ones," said R. L. Hancock, the director of Austin's electrical utilities. "Our options are going to be pretty limited but we're just going to have to try to patch the system through, try to keep functional, and look for improvements all the time."

Hancock inherited one of the more challenging tasks to face a city official when he took over as utilities director in 1970. The seat of Texas government (Pop. 250,000) was moving into a period of unprecedented growth and maintained three highly efficient natural gas generators to keep the electricity flowing to the hungry consumers.

An extensive street lighting program was nearing completion and more Austinites than ever were employing central air conditioning to fight the hot Central Texas summers.

Then Began Nightmare
But last November a series of events produced nightmarish possibilities for Hancock and his generator crews—Coastal States Gas Producing Co., from which the city gulped millions of cubic feet of natural gas weekly to convert to electricity, revealed it no longer had enough gas to supply all its customers.

"The situation deteriorated so quickly that in the course of those first curtailments we were immediately forced into enlarging our reserve fuel oil program to 20 million gallons," Hancock said.

Throughout the winter and into the summer months, the city emerged from one gas curtailment and fell into another. Mayor Roy Butler urged citizens to cut electrical consumptions by setting their air conditioning thermostats on 78 degrees, and, in turn, the city blacked out street lamps and decorative lighting on its many landmarks.

Hancock became one of the city's most quoted public officers.

Must Look Ahead
"We've got to begin thinking about our way out of the problem—I mean five or six years in the future," he said. "We have

Science Today
ORONO, Maine (UPI) — Maine has a scenic coastline, beautiful evergreen forests — and an abundance of mosquitoes and black flies.

With most pesticides that effectively control the pests banned, a professor of entomology at the University of Maine is working on a control plan designed to make outdoor living more enjoyable without ruffling the feathers of environmentalists.

Ivan N. McDaniel's good news is in the form of planarians, a type of free-living flat worm that is not parasitic but eats mosquito larvae. Another type planarium eats blackfly larvae.

"Planarians have a big appetite," the professor said in an interview. "Where they are present in water pools, they can manage a 96 per cent reduction in mosquitoes."

More Research Needed
McDaniel said he cannot foresee the use of planarians causing any environmental damage. He said they already live in many of Maine's woodland pools and are part of the ecological balance.

"I can't see much harm in suppressing mosquitoes and black flies," McDaniel said. "Most materials that have been effective in controlling them have been banned. It seems we have to go to some form of biological control."

He said much more research is needed before an effective biological control program can be implemented. "The planarians will virtually wipe out all the mosquitoes in some pools while in others they will be less effective."

The professor has tried spreading the planarians around to new sites in the state and said he has had some degree of success in getting them to adapt to a new environment. "I see no real problems in mass producing them and moving them to new areas," he said.

Mosquito Control Ahead
He said the planarians can reproduce in three ways. They can lay eggs, or can reproduce by division—a process called transverse fission. Finally, they have the unique ability to regenerate. That means if a planarian is cut into two parts, rather than dying, the organism simply grows into two new organisms.

to look at our other sources of fuel—coal, Texas lignite, and nuclear, which is a pretty good long-term possibility.

"Nuclear fuel is fairly available and it's economically and environmentally attractive. But we need a nine or 10 year lead time for nuclear production. On the other hand lignite is quite limited, and we would need six or seven years lead time with it. It would take us about five years to modify completely to fuel oil. In the intermediate period we have to look very closely at coal and we have to keep flexible. It'll take a little Rube Goldberg."

Hancock said an electrical generator can find no more attractive fuel today than natural gas, with its efficient and clean-burning characteristics.

In Limited Supply
"But by the 1980's its out of the picture for our boilers. It will be in such limited supplies that it will be socially impossible to use it as a base generating fuel," he said.

Ironically, Austin voters last year rejected a proposal from the city officialdom to participate in a multi-nd proposal to finance the city's share of the generator failed by four percentage points only two months before the first gas curtailments grabbed local headlines.

Local politics played a big part in the defeat of the nuclear proposal as did concerns about the environmental impact of the generator. But Hancock said Austin will have to look seriously at the proposal again before long.

Maintenance Problems
The three generators, designed to burn natural gas primarily, encounter maintenance problems with the continual switches to fuel oil in times of gas curtailments, Hancock said. Since November, the city has burned over 100 million gallons of reserve fuel oil to supplement the dwindling natural gas supplies.

"By comparison, we burned only 600,000 in the rest of 1972," Hancock said. "All our reserve fuel oil would give us only 20 days in the summer and 40 days in the winter if the gas was completely turned off. And that is predicated on no equipment problems.

Broke Wide Open
"The situation descended on us so quickly and with such intensity that we're still designed for emergency situations only. I think that's true of most utilities today."

The 24-year veteran of the Austin electric power department believes his job will be personally rewarding "depending on how we can come out of this."

"Austin is blessed with a lot of good people and with real concern for the city's well-being," Hancock said. "I love Austin and I love utility work and if we're successful in this in the next few years it'll be very rewarding indeed."

City Texans Turning To Growing Their Own Vegetable Gardens

United Press International
City Texans who never before saw vegetables outside of a supermarket are raising tomatoes and corn this year. County extension agents are swamped with telephone calls from city people about canning and freezing vegetables.

The primary reason for so many city gardeners is a sudden increase this year in vegetable prices. But some authorities believe high vegetable prices and gardens between the freeways are here to stay, notwithstanding statements in Washington about future big crops bringing prices down.

Dallas probably is the center of the inflation garden movement in Texas, though a survey of the state showed a lack of interest only in El Paso.

Cheaper in El Paso
Vegetables are cheaper in El Paso than in other cities and if housewives do not like local prices they have only to cross the Mexican border into Juarez. Tomatoes in Juarez sometimes sell for 16 cents a pound.

Dallas County Agricultural Agent Steve Wheelless estimates home gardening in the City of Dallas is up 25 to 35 per cent.

"Even producing vegetables in flower beds, they can do a pretty good job," Wheelless said. "By spacing out their vegetables they can have something coming along all the time."

"It not only cuts food costs to some extent but there is some good in it for a person. There is something odd about a lawn you cut a lawn and fertilize it and water it and it really does not make too much sense."

Tomatoes No. 1 Crop
Wheelless said that judging by telephone calls — a "staggering" number — tomatoes are the most popular vegetable in Dallas. City dwellers are even growing them in pots.

Interests is up in gardens in Texas' largest city, Houston. Bill Adams, the Harris County (Houston) extension horticulturist, sees city vegetable gardening as good exercise and recreation but hardly as a money saving device for the city dweller. "They are better off to let the farmer produce it," Adams said. "I hate to see people disappointed because they are not saving money. It takes time and knowledge for a successful garden."

Take Hard Work
"It takes a lot of hard work to prepare the soil from St. Augustine (grass) to garden soil. And we had many gardens lost this year because of the rains. But there is a good interest in gardens. We had an extension garden school and 300 people showed up — just regular homeowners."

"We've had a tremendous increase in requests for materials and information," Travis County (Austin) Agent Jack Doby said. "Up to 500 people from Austin showed up for one meeting a couple of months back. We had to turn people away from the door."

"I think it's inflation, very definitely. Tomatoes are by far the biggest thing. At the market you know they're pretty high and, of course, you can grow them in a flower bed or any place."

In the western part of Texas, there is less interest in city gardening than in the eastern half of the state. In El Paso, a factor in addition to Juarez helping keep vegetable prices down are the pick-it-yourself farms in New Mexico about 40 miles from El Paso.

Business Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scattered information indicates that several million American motorists, particularly young people, drive without adequate insurance or no insurance.

Since inflation has driven average jury awards in auto accident cases up to a range of $30,000 to $50,000, this is a serious problem, insurance experts agree. The growing trend toward state no-fault insurance laws also may aggravate the matter.

Some motorists may carelessly assume that no-fault laws will protect them and fail to buy enough supplementary liability insurance or even collision insurance to pay for damage to their own cars.

There is a surprising lack of information on a national scale about the problem. Neither the Insurance Information Institute, which represents many insurance companies, nor the American Automobile Association, which keeps an eye on nearly every aspect of motoring, has any meaningful national statistical information about the matter.

Extra Insurance Cheap
However, both acknowledged that the problem exists. Insurance agents are more specific. "There's no question that many drivers are grossly underinsured, particularly youngsters, considering the presently inflated cost of hospital care and automobile repairs," said Arthur Milton, a New York general agent.

"The tragedy of it," Milton said, "is that it is totally unnecessary. Liability insurance rates naturally are based on the insurance company's most numerous and most costly perils, claims under $25,000. So, in a state like New York, the premium for the minimum legally required policy commonly called "5-10-25" with a $25,000 limit, may be $400 a year for a male driver under 25 years old. But for as little as $15 or $20 more, the young motorist can buy liability protection up to a maximum of $300,000."

No Sales Pressure
Milton said too many agents don't try hard enough to sell the additional coverage and the younger drivers, being hard pressed to raise the $400 basic premium, don't ask about additional coverage. It just doesn't occur to the young motorist that he may be responsible for a wreck with such a huge price in injury costs.

FIRST WOMAN pilot hired by Eastern Airlines is Barbara J. Barrett, 22, who signed on with 2,800 hours flying time—cargo planes mostly. She joins 4,000 men pilots and is destined to fly a turboprop Lockheed Electra or the Boeing 727 trijet.

The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.
Those born on this date are under the sign of Cancer.
American writer Henry Thoreau was born July 12, 1817.
On this day in history:

In 1862, the U.S. Medal of Honor was authorized by Congress.

In 1933, a new industrial code was established to fix a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour in the United States.

In 1961, 73 persons died in the crash of a Czechoslovakian plane in Africa.

In 1972, Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota was nominated as the Democratic candidate for president. He was badly beaten in November by Richard Nixon.

A thought for the day: Writer Henry Thoreau said, "That man is the richest whose pleasures are the cheapest."

FBI Agents Make Arrests For Securities Fraud

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 44-year-old New Jersey man was arrested by FBI agents Wednesday for allegedly masterminding a scheme to dispose of more than $18 million in stolen and counterfeit securities in California and abroad.
An FBI spokesman identified the suspect as Peter Raia of North Bergen, N.J.
The arrest, the FBI said, was the result of an indictment returned July 10 by a federal grand jury in Manhattan in which Raia and 15 others—including seven Europeans—were charged with conspiring to dispose of more than $18 million in stolen and counterfeit securities in Belgium, California, Italy, Panama and Switzerland.
Among the charges against Raia were conspiracy and interstate transportation of stolen property.
FBI agents also arrested in Florida, Dominick Mantell, 55, of Emerald Hills, Hollywood, Fla., and in California, Jerry Marc Jacobs, 29, of Acordia, Calif., Evelyn Jacobs, Los Angeles, and Louis Gittleman, 67, also Los Angeles.
The spokesman said arrests were the culmination of a major securities investigation with "international ramifications" by the FBI.
He said the FBI was aided in the investigation by the Justice Department's joint strike force against organized crime. He said New York City detectives and a number of foreign police agencies "maintained continuous contact with the FBI throughout the investigation."

Also charged in the indictment were Tomaso Amato, 38, Rome, Italy; Remigio Begni, 36, also of Rome; William Benjamin, 64, Philadelphia; Mario Foligni, 38, Rome; Hyman T. Grant, 64, London; Manuel Richard Jacobs, 54, Los Angeles; Leopold Ledl, 38, Vienna, Austria; Pasquale Marino, 30, New York City; Marina Neubert, 51, Venice, Italy; Vincent J. Rizzo, 41, New York City, and Ernest Shinwell, 54, London.
All were charged in the federal indictment with conspiracy to distribute $14.5 million in counterfeit bonds and approximately $3.7 million in federal government and corporate securities stolen by unknown persons in a total of 11 separate thefts from Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company and Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner and Smith, both in New York City, and from nine interstate mail shipments between February and November 1970, the FBI spokesman said.

Mantegna Painting Brings $1,249,500

LONDON (UPI) — A London art dealer paid $1,249,500 at Sotheby's auction rooms today for a painting by the 15th Century Italian artist Andrea Mantegna.

The price for Mantegna's Christ's descent into limbo was a record for a work by the artist. The painting measuring 15 1/4 inches by 16 1/4 inches shows Christ standing on a rocky ledge at the entrance of a cavern.

The work, one of only four by Mantegna still in private hands, was probably painted around 1490 when the artist was at the height of his power. It was sent for sale anonymously.

Sihanouk's Negotiations Role Uncertain

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
The United States has said it is willing to consider Prince Norodom Sihanouk, chief of the Cambodian Government in exile, a participant in any peace negotiations for Cambodia.

The next question is whether the unpredictable Sihanouk will negotiate with the United States. Right now, he says he won't.

And the question after that is whether Sihanouk really is the right man to negotiate with after all.

Among the several unanswered questions about the war in Cambodia is the one about who is really fighting it on the other side. If for many years the South Vietnamese Viet Cong were no more than shadowy figures in the jungle, the leadership of the Cambodian insurgents is even more a mystery.

One Side of Triangle
Sihanouk claims it, but with no clear lines of communication between his Peking exile and the Cambodian jungle few give him credit for being more than one side of a triangle, and maybe a temporary one, at that.

His chief credentials are that he is recognized by Hanoi and Peking as chief of state, although he himself is quoted in an interview with the French newspaper Figaro as saying he expects a Communist attempt to dislodge him after the war. The other sides of the triangle are the Lon Nol government, which now controls not much more than the capital city of Phnom Penh, and the insurgents, known as "The Cambodian People's National Liberation Armed Forces," or more generally as the "Khmer Reds."

The few prisoners taken by the government side suggest that most of the fighting is being carried on by Cambodians, although it is the contention of the government and the United States that the insurgents are both supplied and led by the North Vietnamese.

Signal for Take-over
With this as a general thesis, it is said to be President Nixon's belief that if the Lon Nol government falls, it will be the signal for a pro-Communist take-over affecting not only Cambodia but weakening the whole structure of the Vietnam ceasefire itself.

With the end of American bombing in Cambodia scheduled for Aug. 15, U.S. hopes for a satisfactory peace settlement appears to rest on one or a combination of three possibilities.

One is for the Lon Nol government to demonstrate within a few weeks what it has failed to do in three years, an ability to stand on its own.

Another is for Sihanouk to emerge as a leader capable of resuming the balancing act that for so long kept Cambodia more or less neutral as war engulfed both Laos and South Vietnam, its two Indochina neighbors.

A third is to bring pressure through contacts with Hanoi, Peking and the Soviet Union.

All of which is to suggest that presidential adviser Henry Kissinger has his work cut out for him on his next visit to Peking—especially so since even in the face of American bombing the Cambodian insurgents seem to have military victory within their grasp.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Highway littering is an unsightly and expensive problem which can be resolved only by individual efforts of restraint. Recently highway officials in Illinois have computed that it costs the state about 63 cents to pick up, collect and dispose of an empty can or bottle littering a highway. The World Almanac notes.

Something About Riggs Is Altogether Redeeming

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nobody likes a hustler, particularly one who evidently enjoys making it his whole life style, but whether you like him or not, there is something redeeming about bouncing Bobby Riggs.

True, he's skittish, even abrasively old-maidish at times, and his persistent prattle about what he can do, or will do, causes some to call him "the white Muhammad Ali," but nobody in all sports today has a better time doing what he's doing than Bobby Riggs.

Maybe nobody's more honest either. Bobby Riggs doesn't know what it means to masquerade. He doesn't parade under false colors or pretend to be somebody he's not either.

Nor does he say things merely to be polite. His sit-down and get-together with Wimbledon winner Billie Jean King Wednesday at the ritzy Town Tennis Club in midtown Manhattan to announce their historic $100,000 winner-take-all match is as good as example as any.

Date and Site Undecided The date and site of the match have not been decided yet, but Jerry Perenchio, the dapper, affable gentleman who promoted the $5 million Ali-Joe Frazier fight, is putting on this male vs. female confrontation also. He used Wednesday's affair to point out that the 100 big ones going to the winner represent the greatest single prize ever offered in tennis history.

Riggs was more at ease than Billie Jean. Genuinely more at ease, anyway. The 29-year-old Wimbledon champ tried to match his nonchalance, but she was working at it too hard.

From the outset, Riggs was right there with the old hustle. Remember how he presented a bouquet of roses to Margaret Court for Mother's Day before annihilating her in their match two months ago? He was no less gallant with Billie Jean King.

"Here, lemme help you," he said to her, pulling out a chair before the news conference even started so she could sit down.

"Thank you," she said, quietly. Recorded for Posterity Then the photographers and TV cameramen wanted to record all this for posterity, and as Riggs put both his hands on the ends of the chair, it was Billie Jean who hammed it up, not him.

"C'mon, muscles, pick me up!" she commanded. "Okay, when you get down, I will," replied the 55-year-old Riggs.

Before you could say love-40, the two of them were taking digs at each other.

Like this: King: "I figure I'm better than Bobby and I'll beat him. I won't take 431 vitamins either. I might take Geritol though."

Riggs: "Margaret got bombed. You're not going to do much better."

King: "I'm not Margaret." Riggs: "Yeah, but you're going to go out there and get as frustrated as she did. I think you're gonna choke the same way. Look, you're 30 years old and..."

They Warm Up on Court The two of them got out on the court and warmed up briefly, both of them on the same side hitting the ball across the net to Lornie Kuhle, pro at the Las Vegas Tennis Club.

"Do you feel any difference in the balls?" Riggs called out to Kuhle. "Notice how much harder mine come back at you?"

"He's hustling me already," Billie Jean shook her head. Among those watching the warmup was an old friend of Riggs, advertising executive Bob Towers, who told a story which offers a penetrating insight into Bobby Riggs.

Classic who was one-under-par 71 overnight, went one over today with four bogeys and three birdies for an even-par 144.

Padres Liabe SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A Superior Court judge has ruled the San Diego Padres are liable for breach of contract and damage suits if the team's new owners go ahead with a plan to move the club to Washington, D.C. But the current parent city is still not happy.

The city attorney's office filed a motion with the 4th Appellate District Court Wednesday, hours after Superior Court Judge Eli Levenson refused to issue a preliminary injunction to prevent the Padres from being sold.

The city, owner of San Diego Stadium and landlord of the Padres, sought the court action to keep the team in town pending a hearing on a permanent injunction against the sale.

Levenson ruled he had no power to prevent the sale, but said the city could sue the team for breach of contract and damages.

The city had a 20-year contract with the team until 1988 and said loss of the baseball club would cause irreparable harm.

Mark Set MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Smiling broadly over Dwight Stones' high jump world record Wednesday and his youngsters' 14-point lead, U.S. track and field coach Jim Bush today predicted a clear victory over West Germany.

"I told you not to underrate these boys, he said leaving the Olympic Stadium. "There is fantastic potential in this team."

The men's team had taken a 60-46 points advantage after 10 events, but the West German girls were ahead 40-33.

The 19-year-old Stones, a student from Los Angeles, was the star of the opening night when he cleared seven feet, 6 1/4 inches to beat Pat Matzdorf's world high jump record from July 1, 1971.

Fregosi Traded NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets traded former All Star shortstop Jim Fregosi, who was a bitter disappointment to the club, to the Texas Rangers Wednesday for a player to be named later.

Ball Coach Reinstated

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — The Galveston School Board Wednesday reinstated Ball High School football coach Joe Woolley, the man who admitted altering the transcript of Oklahoma football star Kerry Jackson.

The board voted 4-3 to reinstate Woolley for a one-year probationary period. Woolley had been assigned to the school district's maintenance department following his resignation last May.

Cooler heads prevailed, however, and assistant coach Leon Beford said the matter would be discussed with school superintendent Eli Douglas before the assistants make any definite decisions.

The board's action overrode a motion by Douglas to rehire Woolley as a health and physical education teacher only.

Jackson, a quarterback, and Mike Phillips, a center, also from Ball, both entered Oklahoma after their transcripts were altered in violation of NCAA rules. The violations were revealed by a Big Eight Conference investigation.

Two Rookies Leave Poke Training Camp THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — Two rookie free agents, Mike Amos and Eric Cross, Wednesday quit the Dallas Cowboys preseason practice and left training camp.

Amos of California Poly and Cross of Stanford both were wide receivers.

The Cowboys continued heavy hitting during workouts Wednesday and linebacker Carl Johnson of Tennessee and defensive back Tyrone Daisy of Washington State were described as "very impressive."

Quarterbacks and wide receivers report to camp Thursday with the rest of the veterans due in Monday.

Luzinski Leads Phillies Over Atlanta Braves, 6-5

By United Press International Greg Luzinski drove in three runs, including a pair of tape-measure home runs, Wednesday night to highlight a 6-5 Philly victory over the Atlanta Braves.

He connected after Willie Montanez' double in the seventh inning to put Philadelphia in front, 6-5. The ball cleared the giant leftfield scoreboard over 415 feet from the plate and standing 80 feet high.

In the sixth inning, Luzinski hit a solo shot into the leftfield upper deck, giving him three titanic home runs in two nights and 15 for the year. Luzinski, in his second year in the majors, now has 57 runs batted in.

His second homer of the night was the longest ball ever hit at the Phil's new ballpark.

"Tonight I hit my longest home run ever," Luzinski said. "I'm just swinging the bat good. I don't have any real goals other than to improve on last season."

Aaron Contributes Hank Aaron, who returned to the Braves' lineup, contributed a double and two singles in five at-bats to pace Atlanta's offensive effort. Aaron doubled in the first inning and had singles in the third and fifth. He fled out to left field close to the left field foul line in the seventh inning and hit into a force play in the ninth.

In other games' Los Angeles defeated St. Louis, 3-1, San Francisco ripped Chicago, 7-3, Pittsburgh trounced San Diego, 10-2, Montreal edged Cincinnati, 4-3, and Houston defeated New York, 7-1.

In the American League Minnesota blanked Boston, 3-0, New York ripped Chicago, 2-1, Oakland ripped Cleveland, 9-3, Baltimore crushed California, 7, Detroit romped past Texas, 14-2, and Milwaukee downed Kansas City, 8-1.

Willie Wipes Out Record Willie Stargell cracked the 302nd home run of his career to set a Pittsburgh club record as the Pirates turned back the San Diego. Stargell's fifth inning blast with the bases-empty was his 25th this year and his 12-year career figure wiped out Ralph Kiner's mark of 301 set over seven seasons with Pittsburgh.

Kiner wound up his career in the American League with a lifetime total of 369.

Hal Breiden, whose two errors contributed to two unearned Cincinnati runs, singled home the winning run in the seventh inning as the Expos edged the Reds. The game was tied, 2-2, going into the seventh when Pepe Fries led off with a triple and winning pitcher Steve Renko doubled him home to give the Expos a 3-2 lead.

Breiden's single drove home Renko with what proved to be the winning run as Bobby Tolan homered for Cincinnati in the eighth inning.

Doctors at Los Robles Hospital say they will keep Dallas Cowboy assistant coach Ernal Allen under intensive care for a few days due to a mild heart attack suffered during the Cowboys' preseason drills.

Allen, 52, had complained of "discomfort" during the day Wednesday and went to the hospital for tests. The heart condition was found and Allen was admitted to the hospital.

Doctors said Allen, who is special assistant to Head Coach Tom Landry, suffered the mild heart attack sometime in the past few days.

Quarterbacks and wide receivers were due to report for drills today. The rest of the veterans are scheduled to report next Monday.

Hackbart Dealt ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals traded defensive back Dale Hackbart, a veteran of 11 NFL seasons, to the Denver Broncos for a future draft choice Wednesday.

Hackbart, who previously saw duty with the Minnesota Vikings, played the past two seasons with the Cardinals and was used primarily as a utility player and member of special teams.

Golf Tips from the Old Masters By The Editors of Golf Digest

SNEAD TELLS HOW TO PLAY SIDEHILL SHOTS One of the trickiest shots in golf is playing off a sidehill lie when the ball rests below your feet. Sam Snead, who grew up on a mountain course, learned how to play these shots at an early age.

"With this shot, you'll find yourself leaning down the hill, so set your feet firmly and far enough apart to achieve balance," Snead says. "Place your weight back on your heels to avoid pitching forward into the shot."

"There is a tendency to slice from this type of lie. Compensate by aiming slightly to the left of your target. Remember above all that when you find yourself on a hilly lie the best position is the one that lets you maintain balance and swing through the ball. Practice will make these shots easier."

America Vs. U.S.A.

Do you know the name of the country you live in? A survey shows there is a difference of opinion. Specifically, the question was, "What is the name of the country you live in?" Eight of the ten respondents replied that they lived in the "United States of America." The other two replied they lived in "America." Now let us explain why we believe the question and the answers are important.

According to the Constitution, the official name of this country is the "United States of America." At several points in the Constitution that phrase is shortened to "United States." Under the Articles of Confederation which preceded the Constitution, the official name of the government was "United States of America in Congress assembled." Going back to the Declaration of Independence that predated the Articles by two years, you also find the phrase, "United States of America in General Congress, assembled." Since a national government had not been formally organized as of 1776, the phrasing in the Declaration must have referred to the existing state legislatures that had been derived from the colonial legislatures. At any rate, the designation "United States" — whether in longer or shorter form — has always denoted a government or a collection of governments.

But people do not live in a government, they live in a country. For example, if a person says that he lives in the City of Pampa — or Berger, or Miami, or Perryton — you do not understand him to mean that he resides in city hall. For city hall is merely the political authority that has jurisdiction over the city; it is not the city itself. Similarly, the words "United States of America" are the name of the national government that has jurisdiction over the country; it is not the country itself.

Small difference? No, we don't think so. And here's the reason. Turn back to the conditions on the college campus during the 1960's when young men's lives were conscripted to be expended in an undeclared, no-win war. That was an act of the government. The name of that government was "The United States of America." You recall the frustration and violence of the period. In that strife, the young people attacked not only government property, but the property of their neighbor and even their neighbor's life. In short, they attacked both the government that oppressed them and the co-victims of that oppression; they attacked the country along

Are Russia And China Our Friends?

By MARILYN MANION

One hates to mention the Cold War in the sophisticated Seventies. The Soviet Union and Communist China are our friends. Who dares to differ? Father Daniel Lyons, Editor of the National Catholic Newspaper, Twin Circle, dares. Here is how he laid it on the line for Manion Forum listeners not too long ago:

"There's no question in my mind that the Communists in Moscow have made a concerted effort to kill any talk about the Cold War. They are always talking about the detente, which we have heard so much about ever since 1920. This detente does not work. Every time there is a war, the Communists seem to be on the other side, except in World War II when we went to their aid.

"There will not be a war between Peking and Moscow, for a long, long time at any rate, because Peking is simply weak and the economy is so poorly handled that they're simply never going to be able to threaten Moscow as a nuclear power.

"Moscow and Peking cooperated very, very closely in Vietnam and they will cooperate very much together now, helping Hanoi and helping the Communists stir up trouble in Laos, Thailand, and Cambodia. There's really only one enemy in the world, as far as the United States is concerned, that carries any serious threat, and that is the Soviet Union.

"A recent best-selling book by David Halberstam, 'The Best and the Brightest', refers to the Kennedy Presidential era. Halberstam says that we never had the courage to ask ourselves whether or not we should have been fighting for Hanoi, whether we were not actually fighting for the wrong side in Vietnam. Halberstam was a young cub reporter with no reputation at all in Vietnam ten years ago. He really created all the propaganda about the Buddhist crisis in order to bring about the overthrow of the government of South Vietnam in the assassination of Diem. That made him an instant hero.

"Halberstam goes back to the late '40's to tell us that Owen Lattimore was a distinguished Sinologist, as he calls him, a distinguished expert on China. He tells us that the four men who cooperated so much with Lattimore, John K. Fairbank, John Stewart Service, John Carter Vincent and men like Phillip Jessup, also, John Patton Davies, he tells us these were the best men in the whole foreign service. And yet all of these men kept telling us that Mao Tse-tung was a man we should back.

"Now what he says in the book is very dishonest. He says that these men predicted that Mao would succeed. That he fails to tell us is that these men said we should back Mao. That's the insidious part of their story. And he now tries to whitewash the whole thing by saying those men were right. They were right only if you wanted Communism to take over Asia.

"There's no doubt in my mind that Halberstam feels we should have been backing Hanoi all the time. And what's terrible about the whole thing is that it's going to be recommended by liberal professors as required reading for years to come for millions of students."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The spoils system was practiced by American politicians until Congress passed the Federal Civil Service Act of 1883. In 1832, William Marcy defended Martin Van Buren's appointment as minister to London saying that he could see "nothing wrong in the rule that to the victor belong the spoils of the enemy." The World Almanac notes.

Security Or Sell-Out-- The New Red Challenge

In a matter of months, one of the most important international conferences in history is scheduled to be convened and probably not one out of one thousand Americans know anything about it. A "Conference on European Security" has long been advocated by the USSR and its Warsaw Pact allies to settle, once and for all, the fate of those nations swallowed up after World War II by Communist expansionism. The Western world has finally relinquished all previous objections, and preparatory sessions to map out an agenda for the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE), as it will be officially known, have been going on since last November in Helsinki, across the Gulf of Finland from Leningrad, USSR.

Moscow first put forth its suggestion for a conference in 1954 when the Big Four Foreign Ministers met in Berlin. Ten years later, Poland's Foreign Minister Rapacki called for a European security conference in a speech before the United Nations. In March, 1966, Soviet Party Secretary Brezhnev, speaking before a Communist Party Congress, pressed the issue further. Four times in 1969, Communist Warsaw Pact countries renewed the call for a conference.

Official Communist publications, such as the Kremlin's International Affairs, have repeatedly stressed the importance of an "All-European Conference". The November, 1972, issue of International Affairs in fact, contained not one, but two lengthy articles, one of them stating that such a conference "would prepare the ground for the gradual elimination in the future of the division of Europe into military-political groups and their replacement by a collective security system" in which the Soviet Union and its satellites would be participants.

The best brief analysis of what Moscow hopes to achieve at CSCE is outlined in a critical statement issued by the AFL-CIO Executive Council as follows: "In yielding to the Soviet demand for a European Security Conference, the West has handed Moscow still another diplomatic and political success. The Soviets have sought such a conference more than eight years; they regard it as a means of furthering their expansionist designs in Europe. (Editor's note: While the AFL-CIO

Young Boy Has Blood In Urine

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — About 15 months ago my 14-year-old son passed a few drops of blood. This happened after he had urinated. About a drop at a time. His doctor said he thought it was an infection and had him on penicillin for two weeks, a strict diet and restricted activity. Well I took him to a kidney specialist to see what he thought. He wanted him X-rayed and this checked out all right. He said to forget the diet and restricting of his activities. He scheduled a cystoscopy but the bleeding stopped. He said if the bleeding started again he would do it then.

Well, a month ago a spot was in his shorts and another one today. This wouldn't be enough for the doctor to be able to see where it was coming from, but it sure worries me. Everyone I talk with about it says they have never heard of this in a boy, only in women.

Is this very rare and does it have to be something serious? My son doesn't seem a bit concerned and says he has no pain.

Dear Reader — There are several points along the urinary tract where bleeding can occur. It does happen sometimes in young boys. It does not necessarily mean a serious disease. No one can tell the significance of bleeding, however, without a complete examination. The blood has no relation to the bleeding that is seen in women. More often it will occur in the urethral tube to some form of irritation or in the area around the prostate. In the absence of any symptoms it is unlikely to be due to an infection. Rarely, fresh blood of this type may indicate a tumor and it can be important.

You should make an appointment with a doctor and let your son talk to the doctor alone. The doctor can talk to you afterward concerning what he thinks should be done or if he thinks it is possible to wait to see if the matter takes care of itself. But I would not neglect seeing a doctor.

Dear Dr. Lamb — In reference to your column on low blood sugar, I was surprised to see that the three important don'ts were not mentioned. 1. Don't smoke. 2. Don't drink alcoholic beverages. 3. Don't use caffeine (regular coffee) or strong tea. I have known this personally (in my own case of labile glucose levels, easily influenced by disregard of the three don'ts plus excess carbohydrate intake) for years and have also been so advised by my gastroenterologist.

Dear Reader — I agree with your three don'ts. There have been several columns on low blood sugar and, because of limitations in space, I've only been able to cover a limited number of points in each column. To the admonition not to drink coffee I would add a ban on even the decaffeinated coffee if one also utilizes sugar and cream with the coffee.

Inside Washington

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — That fanfare "complete merger" between Libya and Egypt seems to be coming apart at the seams even before it gets off the ground.

Realizing that, Libyan strong man Qaddafi apparently is getting tough about it.

"Make up your mind by Aug. 1 or it's all off," Qaddafi reportedly told President Anwar Sadat at the conclusion of their four days of conferring in Alexandria, Egypt's main Mediterranean port.

"Why Aug. 1?" demanded Sadat. "The union is not due to take place until Sept. 1. What's the hurry?"

"Because I've got to know where we stand before that date," retorted Qaddafi. "As of now, you are not sure what you want to do. I am, but you're not. It will take you at least a month to make up your mind — if ever."

That is the account circulating in diplomatic quarters of the testy wind-up of the long and inconclusive parleying between the two Arab rulers.

In effect, Qaddafi confirmed this inside report in a subsequent press conference with Egyptian newsmen — in which he admitted numerous and unresolved differences with Sadat.

At one point, in response to a question about the ascetic "cultural revolution" for Libya imperiously proclaimed by Qaddafi, he snapped, "We are prepared to sacrifice our wealth, but not our revolution. That is inviolate. We make no concessions on that. If Egypt and Libya unite, what applies to Libya applies to Egypt, too. That's the way it has to be."

As the newsmen eyed him with undisguised skepticism, the bombastic Libyan colonel bristled angrily and barked:

"The Egyptian press is reactionary and trivial. It is well known that it takes money from the reactionary governments and monarchs of Saudi Arabia and the gulf sheikhs. Your press needs drastic overhauling."

To another question on how the unity could be achieved, economically, financially, militarily, politically, etc., Qaddafi shrugged:

"Frankly, I am as perplexed as you are. I don't know on what form and what basis the merger can be brought about. We reached no conclusions. I am willing to be reasonable, but on one thing I am unmovable. Our cultural revolution must be accepted as completely by Egypt as it is in Libya."

That ended the press conference — and as far as the newsmen were concerned, just about all likelihood of a "full union" with Libya. Remarkably, Cairo editor:

"Apparently, Qaddafi's idea is to go into this merger the way he runs his country — with a tommygun in his hands."

Beauty And The Beast

President Sadat patently has no stomach for a union with Libya, but how to squirm out of it is his big and thorny problem.

Foremost among the suave and wily Egyptian ruler's misgivings is a personal distaste for Qaddafi — a rabidly strict orthodox Moslem given to incessant carping against alcohol drinking, dancing, nightclubs, Western movies and various other "evils" of Western origin.
