S. A. T. TO IMPROVE AIRPORT

Area Scout Convention Will Convene Here
GAS LINE CONSTRUCTION TO START

HOME TOWN TALK
By Beddy
Very gratifying were the announcements made to us this morning by our old friend, Jerry Marshall, who now is operations manager of the Southern Air Transport system.

Jerry flew out from Dallas Sunday in a Challenger-Robin monoplane, a cabin job with air-cooled 170-horsepower motor, which will replace the J-6 travelair recently brought here by Charles Smoot, local airport manager for S. A. T.

The new monoplane will be kept here permanently for general commercial purposes.
Not only that, Jerry announced complete radio equipment for broadcasting and receiving weather reports and for handling passenger reservations will be installed at the local port immediately. It will be the only airport in this section thus equipped, just as it was the first completely lighted airport in West Texas.

The big idea with S. A. T. now, Jerry said, is to provide service at the Big Spring port—which, you perhaps know, is under lease to S. A. T.—that will make of it a favorite stopping place for flyers. The facilities are here and if service is provided—and Jerry assures us it will be—the traffic will come here.
Since the fares were cut to 5 1/2 cents per mile traffic over S. A. T. lines has grown tremendously, Marshall reported. Big Spring has until now lagged far behind in number of passengers boarding the ships here. Now it is using its quota of reservations.

Big Spring is, you know, the division point on the S. A. T. line between Dallas and El Paso. When the daily trips are started from Dallas and El Paso by the big Fokker Universal monoplanes the local port is informed of the number of passengers aboard and the number of reservations available. Then if Abilene, Midland, Sweetwater or other towns along the route have passengers they must obtain the reservations from Big Spring.

MACHINERY UNLOADED FOR WORK
Haste Being Shown In Preparations For More Fuel
All machinery for construction of a 37-mile, eight-inch gas line from Big Spring to the South Plains Pipe Line Company's trunk line in Martin county is being unloaded in this city and E. R. Rodgers, superintendent for F. G. Hoffman & Company of Dallas, reported actual work on the line will start Tuesday morning.

100 Men
Eighty to 100 men will be employed on the job when the work is in full swing, Mr. Rodgers said. Before ditches can be dug and actual laying of the line started, work of clearing the right-of-way between Big Spring and the point of intersecting the trunk carrier must be done.
Sufficient welding equipment to accommodate 15 welders is being brought to Big Spring along with air compressors, two ditches, tractors and hundreds of hand tools.

Plans
Mr. Rodgers explained it will not be necessary to clear the entire right-of-way before pipe liners can start. A few miles of the right-of-way will be cleared, then ditches will start to be followed as rapidly as possible by welding crews laying the pipe.
When F. G. Hoffman and Company was awarded contract nearly one week ago, officials assured the Consumers Natural Gas and Power Company that the line will be completed within 30 days. When a full crew is at work, approximately two to three miles of line will be completed daily.

Although officials of the Consumers Natural Gas and Power Company and the Big Spring Public Service Company are not prepared to state definitely the exact amount of gas obtainable from South Plains Pipe Line Company, they have assured consumers of this city that the supply will be sufficient to accommodate a city many times larger than Big Spring.
Oil Cotton is district manager for both the Consumers Natural Gas and Power Company and for the Big Spring Public Service Company.

Christmas Seal Proceeds Here Provide Milk For 150 Children Found Suffering For Lack Of It
Beginning Monday morning, 150 under-nourished children of the city schools will be given milk daily, through courtesy and efforts of the Howard County Health association.
Money from sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals will be used in this cause, according to Miss Verbena Barnes, chairman of the seal sale. The decision to aid underfed children and teach them the importance of drinking milk each day, is largely due to the efforts of local mothers who have been interested in this health project for a number of years.

ANDREWS WILL BUILD NEW ROAD
Connection To Four Cities Favored By Court
Andrews county commissioners agreed upon a highway system that will connect the city of Andrews, about seven miles from the discovery oil well in that county, with Big Spring, Stanton, Lamesa and Midland, according to announcement made here Monday by R. L. Cook, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce road committee which made a personal visit to Andrews county last Friday.

TESTIMONY FOR STATE IS STARTED
COURT ROOM, AUSTIN, Jan. 27 (AP)—F. B. McNaughton was the first witness called by the state in the John W. Brady murder trial.
McNaughton testified Brady had been with Miss Highsmith drinking on the night of the killing and that he heard a scream and rushed outside to find Brady standing over the wounded girl, a knife in his hand.
McNaughton said he, Frank Graham, Jr., and Miss Highsmith had returned to the McNaughton apartment where Brady had been ejected earlier in the evening and found Brady there again.

The Weather
West Texas: Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; colder in extreme southeast portion tonight.
East Texas: Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday; somewhat tonight. Light to moderate variable winds on the coast, mostly northerly.
Miss Ada Lingo Undergoes Operation
The condition of Miss Ada Lingo who underwent a major operation Monday morning in a local hospital is reported satisfactory, according to reports from attending physicians. Miss Lingo came from New York City to be under care of the family physician and is the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. A. M. Evans while here.

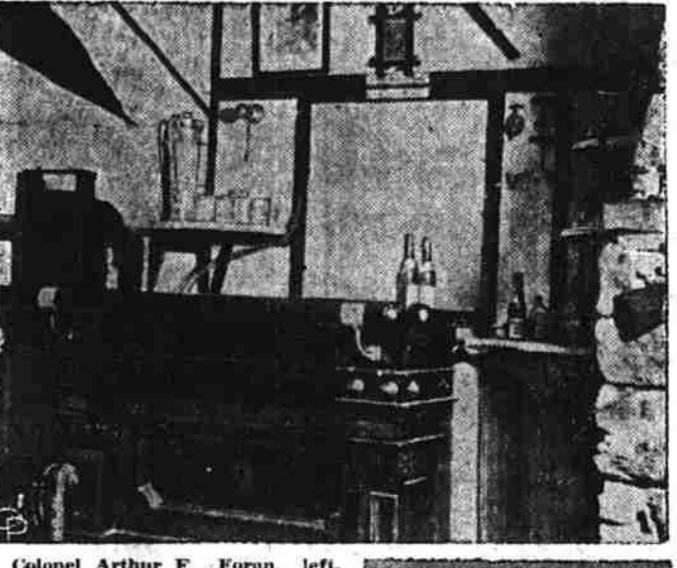

OFFICIALS TO ADDRESS SESSIONS
Annual Election One Of Items Set For Consideration
With approximately 50 out-of-town men joining a large number of local persons, the annual business meeting of the Buffalo Trails Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, will convene at the Methodist church here at 4 p. m., Monday with Rev. W. M. Elliott of Colorado, area president, in charge, assisted by A. C. Williamson, area executive, and the local council, headed by B. Reagan.

Glasscock To Enter Lower Pay
With drilling continuing below 2,425 feet in a hard grey lime, Glasscock Brothers expect to set casing Tuesday or Wednesday around 2,432 feet before drilling into the lower pay in No. 1 Edwards. There is slight showing of oil now appearing with water that was encountered from 2,375 to 2,420 feet. The first hard grey lime was drilled at 2,422 feet, according to reports from the well.
No. 1 Edwards is located 1,650 feet from the east line and 330 feet from the south line of section 18, block 33, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Colonel Arthur F. Foran, left, controller of customs of the port of New York, wealthy New Jersey Republican, and seeking reappointment, alleged by the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey to have a bar in his hunting lodge at Mount Airy, N. J., demands criminal charges be placed against men he declares broke into his lodge and took alleged pictures. Above is a picture alleged to have been taken through a glass door of the hunting lodge and is attached to an affidavit presented to the U. S. Treasury Department, Washington, by the Anti-Saloon League, protesting Foran's reappointment on the grounds that he is personally wet. Photo shows bar the league alleges to be in the hunting lodge. Foran declares he is the subject of a "political and religious plot." Foran also is one of the six officials accused by the league of neglect of duty in handling the seizure of champagne the league alleges was shipped to Herbert L. Pratt, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of New York. "No violation of the law was found at the lodge," the Anti-Saloon League counsel admits.

MARSHALL ANNOUNCES NEW PLANS
Radio Facilities Will Be Provided Immediately
Plans designed to add service to excellent facilities at the local airport were announced here Monday morning by Jerry Marshall, operations manager of the Southern Air Transport system, which operates the port.
Complete radio broadcasting and receiving equipment, re-furnishing of the administration building, re-conditioning of the landing area and designation of a Challenger-Robin cabin monoplane as a permanent part of local facilities are items in the S. A. T. plans for Big Spring, all of which will be carried through at once.

Improvements
Until very recently Big Spring, although divisions headquarters for S. A. T. has lagged far behind in number of passengers using the S. A. T. planes on their daily flights, Marshall said.
However, since fares were reduced to 5 1/2 cents per mile traffic has increased enormously here and at all other points on the system.

Reservations
The radio equipment also will be used to handle reservations for passengers. When the ships leave the terminal of the Dallas-El Paso line each day the ports there will radio the local port, giving the number of passengers that may be accommodated in addition to those boarding the ships in those cities. Abilene, Midland, Sweetwater and other stations on the line will communicate with Big Spring when they have passengers, to determine whether they may be accommodated.

The five-room administration building at the field, which has never been completely furnished, will be fitted with the best type of furniture, rugs, draperies and other designed to make it inviting to the public. It is used not only as an office and living quarters for the manager, but also to house controls of the field lighting equipment and has a waiting room and rest rooms.
Payne and Marshall inspected the landing field itself and found

WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD, SAYS B R ECKENRIDGE WOMAN

DIDN'T THINK THERE WAS A MEDICINE ON EARTH THAT WOULD DO HUSBAND GOOD ORGATONE DID

"This medicine is worth its weight in gold and if the price was much more per bottle than it is, my husband would buy it just the same," said Mrs. Claude Johnson, who lives at 303 West Sixth St., Breckenridge, Texas.

"My husband had been suffering for five years with constipation, dizzy spells and pains across his back," she continued. "He was forced to take a purgative all the time and would get so dizzy he would nearly fall. I don't know what was the matter with him, but it must have been something like indigestion. He had been going down hill for several years and it seemed like nothing he would try did him any good. He had such a severe pain across his back, too, and never could get a good night's rest, and just felt so bad when he got up every morning, he couldn't do a day's work, like he wanted to."

"We saw in the papers, where Orgatone had helped lots of other people who described his trouble, and the first chance he had to get a bottle he started taking it. He had confidence in the medicine and thought it would help him, but had no idea it would help him so quick. He began to feel better right from the start. It takes hold quicker than any medicine I ever saw, and seems to give you an appetite and make you feel good. I simply wouldn't take anything for what it has done for him, and it would be hard for me to figure out in dollars and cents what it has been worth in my husband's case."

Genuine Orgatone may be obtained in Big Spring at the Cunningham & Phillips Drug Store—adv.

Miss Musgrove Bride Of Mr. Carlos Clover

A wedding of interest to Big Spring people is that of Miss Anita Musgrove, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Musgrove of 1510 Scurry street, to Mr. Carlos L. Clover, Sunday morning.

Rev. W. G. Bailey, pastor of the Methodist church, performed the ceremony in the parsonage of the church at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning, when only a few close friends of the young couple were in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Clover left immediately following the ceremony for points south, and plan to return to make their home here about the middle of the week.

Mrs. Clover was a member of the 1930 graduating class of the local high school. She was editor-in-chief of the high school annual and a member of the I. K. K. A. H. club. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. John K. Taylor of 608 Gregg street, and has made his home here the last two years. He attended Howard Payne college in Brownwood in 1928 after a year in the University of Missouri, in Columbia, Mo., where he was pledged and initiated into Kappa Alpha Southern, national scholastic fraternity. He is employed by the Continental Supply company.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Dalton of Dallas spent the week-end with Mr. Dalton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Dalton at the home of Mr. Dalton's sister, Mrs. J. A. Myers. Mrs. Fred Dozier of Colorado also visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Dalton.

New Beauty for the New Ford

THE NEW FORD TOWN SEDAN

In the Town Sedan you see a distinguished example of the unbroken sweep of line which adds so much charm to all the new, roomy Ford bodies. Radiator, hood, cowl, lower roof line, fenders, wheels — every point of design reflects the new style and beauty that have been placed within the means of every one. All of the new Ford cars are finished in a variety of colors.

ANOTHER STEP FORWARD

THE introduction of the new Ford bodies has set a high standard of motor car value. From the new deep radiator to the tip of the curving rear fender, there is an unbroken sweep of line—a flowing grace of contour gaining added charm from the rich and attractive colors.

You will take a real pride in the smart style and fresh new beauty of the Ford just as you will find an ever-growing satisfaction in its safety, comfort, speed, acceleration, ease of control, reliability and economy. In appearance, as in mechanical construction, craftsmanship has been put into mass production. New beauty has been added to outstanding performance.

A feature of unusual interest is the use of Rustless Steel for the radiator shell, head lamps, cowl finish strip, hub caps, tail lamp and other exposed metal parts. This steel will not rust, corrode or tarnish and will retain its bright brilliance for the life of the car. Here, as in so many other important details, you see evidence of the enduring quality that has been built into the new Ford.

considerable trespassing had been going on, said Marshall. This is being stopped by blocking places where vehicles have been driven onto the field and a month's work will be done by a man retained Monday to re-condition the landing area.

We are going to operate this field as a modern air terminal should be. It is second to none in Texas for facilities," said Marshall, who added that an iron-clad rule has been invoked that no unlicensed ship may be flown off of the local field and that when one lands it must either be dragged off or disassembled. Unlicensed ships will in no case be allowed to take off from the field.

A QUESTION of HONOR by Ruth Cross

SYNOPSIS: In Scott Glenn's rude mountain cabin, Anne Wilmot becomes his bride. Ten minutes after the marriage Glenn returns to watch completion of his irrigation project. While he is away Anne turns to house cleaning and is joined by her French maid, Delphine. Aunt Emily pays a surprise visit to the cabin. She urges Anne to desert her "poor" husband telling her Morse still is willing to marry her and quizzes Anne about Glenn's notes to her that she will be fully repaid for the money spent on Anne's social career. Anne, however, is adamant. Their conversation is interrupted when a clatter of pans calls Anne to the kitchen where Delphine is working.

Chapter 25
A DESPERATE WOMAN
When the door had closed behind her niece, Mrs. Wilmot rose, crossed over to the table and stood looking about her curiously, striking the knuckles of one plump, white hand abstractedly against the table edge.

Her eyes fell on the litter of papers, which Anne had made no attempt to put in order—knowing how men detest having their belongings touched. She lifted one and then another, glancing at them absently, without any particular interest. But suddenly she raised an envelope close to her eyes.

Finding it unsealed, she took it out and put up her glasses to read it—ordinarily she would not have been guilty of such an act, but she felt that the desperation of the present crisis justified any means that might come to hand. She perused the letter hastily but with care. It was addressed: "Messrs. Blackwell and Cooper, 819 Exchange Building, San Francisco, California."

It was the letter which Glenn had written about the big gold strike; in the rush of things it had been left unmailed.

Mrs. Wilmot thrust the sheet back into the envelope and shoved it under the other papers. Then she stood considering tensely, her lips tightly compressed, her knuckles still tapping against the table edge. Finally she sat down in front of the table, drew pen and ink swiftly toward her and wrote steadily, her brows puckered with thought.

Out in the kitchen, Anne had discovered that Delphine had sustained no injury more serious than a rather severe bruise on her forehead. Delphine in her zeal for ferreting out the best choice of treasures from their hiding places, had pulled down an old rubber boot with a varied assortment of relics in it. When she put in her hand and pulled out a snake skin, she had screamed and fallen to the floor.

Anne bathed the bruised head with witch hazel, comforted her as best she could, and went back into the living-room.

When she entered, her aunt was just moving away from the couch, on one end of which lay Anne's old sweater. "Poor Delphine," she said, laughing "she almost pulled the whole kitchen down on herself."

"I didn't come up here to talk about Delphine—nor kitchens," Mrs. Wilmot informed her tersely. "Now put on your hat, if you have one, and come on home with me. Leon has been more than generous, but he certainly can't be expected to stand for any further nonsense."

Anne gazed at her incredulously. "Auntie, can't you understand?" she said gently. "I'm not coming. And—even if I were not married already—there is nothing on earth that could induce me to be Leon Morse's wife, after what he has done—or tried to do!"

"What has he done?"

"You must know—that he and Mr. Douglas have set these mountaineers on to try to dynamite Mr. Glenn's—my husband's—reservoir."

"Well, and what of that?"

"What of it?"

"My dear child!" Mrs. Wilmot was evidently hard now to be patient, "you don't suppose for a moment that Leon's any fortune in the same class with Leon's that hasn't got something as bad—or a good deal worse—than that behind it, do you? After all, what's a little irrigation project more or less in comparison with a great transcontinental railway which will be of benefit to the entire country? You see, my dear, a man like Leon Morse gets the habit of looking at things in the large—"

"Yes, I suppose so," Anne murmured. "His perspective has widened to such an extent that he doesn't in the least mind—or even sees perhaps—that he's stepping on a lot of mere average human beings in going after what he wants."

"Good heavens!" Mrs. Wilmot regarded her with genuine horror and consternation. "You talk like an I. W. W.—an innocent right out of a convent!"

Anne looked back at her despairingly. "I guess it's no use, Aunt Emily," she said. "We can't seem to understand one another."

The older woman pulled herself stiffly to her feet, picked up her stole and wrapped it firmly about her plump shoulders. "Well, perhaps we shall—a little later—when you get some of these highfaluting dens out of your head and come to your senses."

"I'm sorry, Auntie, I don't know how to tell you how sorry I am," Anne said in a distressed tone, as her guest moved majestically past her towards the door.

"A lot of good that does! But—well see, well see. You may be glad to come crawling back to Leon on your hands and knees yet!"

"Nothing, I'm sure, could please him better," Anne commented thoughtfully. "You must let me go part the way back with you, though, auntie—I don't like to think of your going through the woods alone."

"I came alone; I dare say I can go back the same way—unless—"

On the lowest step, she turned and faced her niece again. "Anne, you said last night that at least I've always been honest with you. I'm not going to pretend that this is not a heavy blow for me—this morning when I knew first that you had gone—"

She paused to choose her words, and Anne, seeing her face in the strong afternoon sunlight, realized that it looked haggard from worry—10 years older almost. She took an involuntary step nearer.

"It was hard," Mrs. Wilmot went on slowly, "to see the hopes and ambitions of a lifetime shattered by the single rash act of a thoughtless, selfish girl, but—after all, I am an old woman. It doesn't matter so much; no doubt I shall get on somehow—I don't require a great deal."

"But for you—your whole future is at stake. In a few weeks or at most a few months, this mad fancy will pass. Love lasts—maybe for the length of the honeymoon, maybe not so long; marriage is a matter of a lifetime." She raised her face to Anne's. For the first time in their long relationship, she was pleading instead of commanding. "Go get your hat, my dear, and come on back with me to Leon like a good, sensible girl!"

Anne turned very white. Her half lifted hand fell to her side. "You must know how hard you are making it for me, Aunt Emily," she said in a very low tone. "You don't understand—I guess you can't," she added slowly. "In the first place, I love the man I have married with all my heart—I've been trying to make you understand that ever since you came. In the second place, the thought of Leon—after what has happened—is so unthinkable, so repulsive—"

She broke off despairingly at sight of the change which had come abruptly over her aunt's face. The grandmotherly mouth was compressed into a hard, narrow line. The keen little dark eyes, which a moment before had looked almost soft and appealing, gleamed and sparkled like cut steel.

She turned sharply and started picking her way cautiously down the steep little path. "Well, we shall see, we shall see—" Her last words came back harshly to Anne, who stood miserably watching her from the front porch. A few moments later, she was lost to view among the trees.

After a while, Anne turned and went dejectedly back into the house. All the joy had gone out of the day. She forgot Delphine and the unfinished house-cleaning. She had sold her right to happiness long ago, she told herself—long before she had any standards by which to gauge its worth. She was in reality, as she had told Glenn, worthless. Perhaps she would only bring trouble and sorrow on him too—she could stand anything but that—

Directors of the board are Fox Striplin, B. F. Robbins, R. F. Scheig, H. Clay Read, and Rube S. Martin. Officers are F. H. Miller, president; M. N. Meiner, vice president and Mrs. Earnest, secretary-treasurer.

MOM N' POP By Cowar

POP, WILL YOU GIVE ME TEN CENTS?
I SUPPOSE YOU WANT A LOLLY POP OR AN ICE CREAM CONE, HUH?
YES!
YOU'RE GETTING MORE LIKE MOM EVERY DAY. LIFE IS JUST ONE WILD SHOPPING SPREE. YOU NEVER THINK OF SAVING MONEY FOR A RAINY DAY.
BUT WHY SAVE FOR A RAINY DAY POP—
I HAVE RUBBERS AND A RAIN COAT AND AN UMBRELLA?

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS By Blosser

OSCAR AND FRECKLES ARE BACK FROM THEIR TRIP TO WASHINGTON. THEY ARE BUSY SHAKING HANDS WITH EVERYBODY—ESPECIALLY OSCAR!!
WELL—LAND SAVES!! YOU DON'T TELL ME!!
HELLO MR. SNOGGLING—D'YA WANT TO SEE SOMETHING YA WOULDN'T SEE IN A MILLION YEARS NEBBE?
MERCY DN, YES! GOODNESS—WHAT COULD IT BE?
BEFORE YOUR VERY EYES YOU SEE A HAND THAT SHOOK HANDS WITH THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES!!
WELL—WELL—I'VE SEEN THE SWISS ALPS, THE PYRAMIDS OF EGYPT AND OTHER THINGS, BUT NEVER HAD I SEEN ANYTHING LIKE THIS!!
YESSIREE—THAT'S JUST WONDERFUL!!
I THINK SO TOO!!
