Stevenson Officially Throws Hat In Ring

Adlai Says It's Important Demos Get White House

By TOM NELSON

CHICAGO — UP — Adlai E. Stevenson Tuesday announced he will run for the 1956 Democratic presidential nomination.

Stevenson issued a long-awaited statement saying, "I shall do all I can to persuade my party" to give him the presidential nomination again.

"I shall be a candidate for the Text of the statement: Democratic nomination for president next year.

"I shall do all I can to persuade my party to entrust that immense responsibility to me again, because

"First, I believe it important for the Democratic party to resume the executive direction of our national affairs;

"Second, I am assured that my candidacy would be welcomed by representative people in and out of my party throughout the country;

"Third, I believe any citizen should make whatever contribution he can to the search for a safer, saner world."

"It is of first importance to return the executive branch of our government to the Democratic party because it is apparent that wisdom and responsibility began to reappear in the conduct of our affairs only with the return of congress to Democratic leadership in the 1954 election.

Period of Great Responsibility
"Seldom before has the United States faced a period of greater opportunity — and greater danger.

"Our great opportunity lies in the fact that our prosperity and wealth can now be used to give all our people the higher standards and wider opportunities which are mankind's universal dream. These are now within our reach, not simply for the favored few, but for every family in America.

"Our danger lies in the ambition of a new tyranny for masters of the world, and in Communist exploitation of the hope and discontents of the two-thirds of mankind who now demand a share in the good things of life. In partnership with our friends and allies, with confidence born of strength and influence born of magnanimity (See ADLAI, Page 3)

Johnson Says He Won't Seek Nomination

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON — UP — Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson is telling friends that he has no intention of becoming a serious candidate for the 1956 presidential nomination, it was disclosed Tuesday.

That report circulated here while Democrats awaited Tuesday's announcement at Chicago that Adlai E. Stevenson, the 1952 nominee, is going to be a candidate.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) told a Jefferson City, Mo., audience Monday that Stevenson definitely would run. Humphrey also said Stevenson would enter the Minnesota presidential primary.

Wonder if Johnson Available
A number of conservative and middle-of-the-road Democrats particularly in the South, have been wondering if Johnson might be available for the 1956 nomination even though he suffered a heart attack last July 2.

Friends of Johnson here said, however, that he is telling fellow Democrats, including backers of the principal contenders, that he will not be a serious candidate. His position presumably would not rule out his being a "favorite son" candidate of Texas Democrats and receiving first ballot votes of other delegates at the Chicago convention next August.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) said after a tour of his home state that he thinks the people there do not want President Eisenhower to run again after his recent heart attack.

'No Part-Time President'
"They would not vote for a part-time president in a world riddled with 24-hour problems," Jackson said.

Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) said Monday night he feels that President Eisenhower would be unfair to himself and do the American people if he ran for re-election despite his recent heart attack.

McCarthy said he considered as "good candidates" for the Republicans, FBI director J. Edgar Hoover, Sens. William F. Knowland (Calif.), Styles Bridges (N.H.) and Everett Dirksen (Ill.), Utah Gov. J. Bracken Lee and Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Red Bid For Data Refused

West Rejects Science Exchange

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
GENEVA — UP — Russia suggested Tuesday the East and West increase the flow of scientific knowledge across the Iron Curtain but the West slapped down the proposal as "a very great danger to peace."

Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov put forward the proposal in the dying hours of the futile Big Four conference but the West said his proposal would do little more than lock the Iron Curtain firmly in place.

At the same time Molotov rejected a French proposal for increased contacts between the two sides and for a free flow of news between East and West. The West already had warned that continuation of the Iron Curtain was a threat to peace.

The Molotov proposal provided for exchanges of scientific delegations that would bring western know-how to Russia. But it pointedly ignored all western plans for opening holes in the Iron Curtain for news and ideas.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles conferred during a 20-minute talk with British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay. Then he told Molotov:

"I have pointed out that we consider peace not solidly based unless the peoples of different countries can have access to what other peoples believe and think. To base peace on the power of government to dictate what people shall think about each other is in our opinion a very dangerous condition."

Arrested by FBI
Graham was arrested by the FBI Monday and charged with sabotage in the destruction of the United Airlines plane which exploded and crashed north of Denver.

The FBI announced that he planted an explosive aboard the plane apparently to collect $37,900 worth of trip insurance he took out on his mother when she left on the trip. Graham could not have collected because his mother did not counterclaim it.

But the FBI declined to disclose the details of Graham's confession. Stolberg, in his story, said that Graham collected the equipment for the bomb and assembled them in a cardboard box on Oct. 18 or 19.

The equipment included 25 sticks of dynamite, two dynamite caps, one dry cell Eveready six-volt "hot shot" battery and the timing device. The exact nature of the timing device was not made known but it was known that it was not a clock.

Narrow Margin of Time
Graham's confession indicated he had figured the time for the bomb to explode by a narrow margin.

He said he picked up his mother, wife and child at a garage, drove to the airport, parked half a block away, and carried his mother's suitcase (See CONFESSION, Page 3)

MAYBE NOT THE FACTS, BUT IT WAS STRAIGHT DOPE

CHICAGO — UP — Two motorists, irked by a slow poke car which was idling along at five miles per hour, forced it to the curb Monday and asked what the trouble was.

"Don't mess with me, boy, I'm a policeman," the driver replied, flashing a badge.

The complaining motorists happened to be detectives John Craig and William Davis of the Chicago police department. They ordered the man out of the car and found 24 bottles of liquid morphine, several bottles of opium, and an assortment of other narcotics on the back seat.

Showers Expected From Cold Front

By UNITED PRESS

A cold front headed for Texas Tuesday, expected to produce showers for much of the state and end summer-like temperatures that broke at least two records for this time of year.

The front caused cold wave warnings to be issued for the Texas Panhandle and South Plains Tuesday night. It was expected to arrive in those sections by late Tuesday and spread rapidly over the state reaching Galveston by Wednesday morning.

Actually, the front likely will be too severe, but will drop temperatures down to about what they should be for this time of year, forecasters said.

Low Temperatures in Panhandle
The cold wave warnings predicted temperatures of 20 to 25 degrees for the Panhandle Tuesday night and 25 to 30 degrees for the South Plains.

The front also was expected to bring showers and thunderstorms to North and South Central Texas and East Texas.

Ahead of the front, forecasters looked for considerable cloudiness and rather warm temperatures — over most of the state Tuesday. Showers were expected to begin falling in east and South Central Texas during the afternoon and in North Central Texas late in the day or Tuesday night.

The unseasonable weather broke two records Monday — at Dallas and Fort Worth. Dallas had a high reading of 87 degrees Monday and Fort Worth 86, breaking records for Nov. 14 that had stood since 1898.

Dallas and Alice recorded the highest readings in the state Monday, each with 87 degrees. Temperatures ranged on down to 71 at Dalhart and Del Rio.

Low overnight readings ranged from 28 at Presidio up to 76 at Corpus Christi and Brownsville.

Some rainfall was reported, mostly after midnight in the southern part of the state. Houston received .18 of an inch. College Station .01, at San Antonio and Victoria traces.

General Strike In Argentina Called Failure

BUENOS AIRES — UP — A general strike called by the General Confederation of Labor, once the strongest supporter of ousted President Juan D. Peron, was a complete failure Tuesday.

The strike was called by CGT leaders for Monday midnight to protest alleged "outrages" by independent labor leaders against union headquarters still held by Peronist supporters.

All morning newspapers appeared in their usual format, although "all-ways" late appearing on the streets.

All public services were operating on schedule. In some cases staffs which were due to finish work at midnight were ordered to stay on the job as a precaution.

The roads were running on schedule in Buenos Aires and at provincial stations. The general strike was guarding rail installations outside the capital. Rifle-carrying police were on duty in Buenos Aires.

The strike call came from the CGT only 24 hours after Aramburu took over from Maj. Gen. Eduardo Lonardi, the provisional president who was ousted Sunday afternoon in a palace coup.

The collapse of the strike gave the new government of President Pedro E. Aramburu a smashing victory in a referendum of strength. It also seemed to sound the death knell for what remained of Peronist power in Argentina.

The City Commission this morning heard bids for a new fire truck but postponed action until this afternoon in order for City Engineer James Cowan and Fire Chief Ernest Winborne to study the bids to see which ones come up to city specifications.

The bids of 11 companies were read and included a unit price, trade-in allowance and net price.

The group was to meet again at 2 p.m. to accept one of the bids.

In other action, the commission selected R. W. Lane to serve on the tax advisory board in the place of H. R. Thompson. Other board members are A. C. Troop, Gene Lewis, C. P. Pursley and Jim Nation.

The commission passed on an ordinance to close streets which would cross the site of the proposed new school building in the East Fraser Addition in an emergency session, hearing all three readings in the same session.

The library bill, which amounted to $435.91 was also paid.

Confession Gives Bomb Plot Details

By POLLY WITTE

DENVER — UP — The confession of John Gilbert Graham revealed Tuesday that he sweated for 35 minutes waiting for a late plane to take off with his mother and his home made time bomb that exploded minutes later in air killing her and 43 others on Nov. 1.

Details of the confession were made known in a story in the Rocky Mountain News by David Stolberg. He said he learned the details from a variety of sources which he was not at liberty to divulge.

Graham's confession said the bomb was regulated by a timing device set for its maximum period of 90 minutes. He set it about 45 minutes to an hour before his mother boarded the plane that carried her to her death.

Arrested by FBI
Graham was arrested by the FBI Monday and charged with sabotage in the destruction of the United Airlines plane which exploded and crashed north of Denver.

The FBI announced that he planted an explosive aboard the plane apparently to collect $37,900 worth of trip insurance he took out on his mother when she left on the trip. Graham could not have collected because his mother did not counterclaim it.

Wife Didn't Suspect Mate's Fiendish Plot

DENVER — UP — John Gilbert Graham's pretty young wife apparently did not suspect that he was the fiend who planted a dynamite bomb aboard a United Airlines plane until he confessed the murder plot to the FBI.

Twenty-two-year-old Gloria Graham broke down Monday when she learned of her husband's confession. The family physician, Dr. Earl J. Miller, put her under sedation.

Graham's older sister, Mrs. Helen Habutzel of Anchorage, Alaska, also was in Denver. She had come here for her mother's funeral.

The bomb killed Graham's mother, Mrs. Daisy King, and 43 others when the DC-6B crashed near Longmont, Colo., the night of Nov. 1.

Dr. Miller said Gloria Graham never suspected her husband.

"We all had dinner together the night before Daisy left," Dr. Miller said.

The doctor, who has treated the Grahams for 20 years and been a friend besides, said young Graham had worked on construction jobs and was a master mechanic by the time he was 16. The physician said Graham "bordered" on mechanical genius.

Dr. Miller said that while they were hunting recently, Graham pointed to a shack "full of dynamite" near Yampa, Colo., where Graham once lived. Graham did not take any dynamite from the shack while he was with Dr. Miller, however.

Mrs. Habutzel said she "could not understand why he'd do anything to hurt all the others aboard the plane."

Ex-Con Tells Of Murdering Housewife

SAN FRANCISCO — UP — A 30-year-old ex-convict, who casually admitted the kidnap-slaying of a Kansas City housewife, faced Tuesday still other charges of attempted murder, kidnaping, rape, burglary and car theft.

The suspect, Arthur Ross Brown, had vowed never to be taken alive. He was arrested Monday without a struggle when FBI agents and police found him asleep in a stolen car with two loaded pistols at his feet.

An FBI agent testified at a bail hearing Monday that the stocky, blond ex-convict admitted the kidnap-slaying of Wilma Allen, the attractive 34-year-old wife of a wealthy Kansas City automobile dealer last Aug. 4.

U.S. Commissioner Joseph Karsh ordered Brown held on $100,000 bond pending action by Kansas City authorities. He was held on a charge of transporting a stolen car across state lines.

Mrs. Allen's nude body was found in a field 25 miles from Kansas City three days after she disappeared from a fashionable shopping area. She had been shot twice in the back of the head.

The FBI said Brown confessed he forced his way into Mrs. Allen's car and made her drive out of town where he killed her and dumped her body in a field. He drove the blood-spattered car back to Kansas City and abandoned it near Union station.

The murder of Mrs. Allen, a mother of two boys, ages 9 and 11, touched off the most intensive Kansas City police hunt since the kidnap-slaying of Bobby Greenlease in 1953.

Optimist Playground Drive Opens

The Optimist Club of Pampa Monday launched a campaign for the purpose of purchasing 10 acres of land on which to build baseball diamonds and to place a building to house the club-sponsored indoor activities for boys.

Letters were mailed to Pampa residents requesting a $2 donation for this purpose. The club plans to build three ball diamonds on the land and purchase and remodel a building to house such indoor activities as boxing, ping-pong, basketball, reading and television.

John B. Scootfield, Optimist president, stated that the project is not to be confused with the Civic Youth Center project. The Optimist project is to bring its Little League and Pony League baseball and boys' club boxing programs to a central permanent headquarters. At present it has ball diamonds at two locations, and for its winter program has had to move its equipment five times from buildings donated for the club's use when owners found paying tenants.

Over 600 Pampa boys participated in the Optimist-sponsored sports program last year.

If it comes from a Hardware Store, we have it Lewis Hardware.

United Fund: $40,300.20

The total amount of contributions to the Pampa United Fund campaign this morning stood at $40,300.20, according to Mrs. Emmett Gee, secretary of the fund.

The new total still leaves the drive over $6,000 short of its goal of $47,173. Mrs. Gee stated that the campaign was still going on and would continue until the goal was reached.

Big Four Ministers Are Just Human After All

By RUDY WCHMAR

GENEVA — UP — Molotov stammered. Dulles doodled. MacMillan looks bored. Pinay may be ready to blow his top.

The Big Four foreign ministers, with all their formality and weighty problems, are only human. How they behave at the conference table, in and out of the spotlight, helps show what kind of men they are.

Observers say Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov stammers nervously at critical moments during the Big Four conference. He takes off his glasses, shuffles papers in front of him, puts on his glasses again and points a pencil at his Western colleagues. Then he takes off his glasses again.

Molotov shows no sign of emotion when accusations are fired at him. He looks like a school teacher listening to a pupil recite. He jots down notes afterwards.

The most striking figure of the Big Four meetings is America's John Foster Dulles, the inside sources say. He is an eloquent speaker, full of pep and quick to react. When Molotov makes a mistake, Dulles is first to pin him down.

While listening to one of Molotov's lengthy speeches, Dulles doodles on the blotter in front of him and jots down notes every now and then.

Britain's Harold MacMillan acts as a representative of the British foreign office is expected to act. He leans back in his chair, listens to the speeches politely, sinks his hands in his pockets or strikes his thumb in the armbands of his vest.

"He looks bored stiff," one witness reported.

Antoine Pinay, the former provincial French, looks shy and nervous most of the time. But he can "blow his top" when Molotov exaggerates or misinterprets the Western attitude.

Then the little Frenchman jumps to his feet, puts on his rimless glasses, leans over the table and in a clear pointed voice says: "I want you to know, Mr. Molotov, . . ."

Some folks are always ready to blame things on a depression because they themselves are in a rut.

Conversation among women would probably be cut in half if they said only things of importance.

A member of the FBI says a crime is committed every 18 seconds.

Not counting those on his TV set.

Talking things out with little kids is still the best way to whip them into shape.

The more you let other people talk about themselves the more interested they are in you.

JIM CRACKS

By JIM DEANS

TOMORROW THE Dean family will be leaving for a trip back to East Texas and those towering Pines.

It has been almost 18 months since I have seen that "land of my youth," and as the hour of departure nears the heart beats a bit faster at the expectation of seeing family and old friends again—and of seeing a land of trees.

This is not a particularly good time of the year to be visiting East Texas, for the leaves will be gone from the oaks and the many other seasonal trees which clothe those gentle, rolling hills. But the Pines will be there, green as ever and stretching as if with some great hunger towards the heavens. And the wind will gently caress the Pines and they will give forth music if one has ears for nature's melodies. And they will perfume the air with a fragrance that only a pine tree can give. For this aroma is born with the pine tree in that first hopeful thrust upward from the earth . . . and even at its death, in some hunter's campfire, it leaves behind, if only for a little while, its breath of sweetness.

SO MUCH for trees and such, but the prospect of trip back home does give me an opportunity to get somewhat philosophical about this idea of rating one section of the country above another.

There is much to be said for loyal devotion to one's home town or area, but too often this exaltation is a result of bigotry which prevents people from seeing beyond their limited confines.

I have noticed that people who travel extensively or who have travelled a great deal at one time or other in their lives are less inclined to be provincial than those who have not moved about.

That, of course, is no great observation. However, it is significant if one would learn a lesson in humility. For there is something wonderful about any and every place on earth. It might be a very dull place if all the virtues were concentrated in one particular area. . . . one thing for certain, it would probably be extremely crowded.

ONE THING ABOUT our trip is that we will be in Tyler when the football game of the year will be played between Tyler's undefeated Lions and Wichita Falls' unbeaten Coyotes who are rated number two and three respectively in Texas High School football.

Lee Roy McBride, who used to play football for the Coyotes is quick to disagree with me that Tyler will win. Anyway, it is bound to be an exciting contest.

The Tyler Rose Stadium has a 14,700 seating capacity, and it's likely to be a sell-out.

It is a rare thing for Tyler to be tied so high. The Lions are in the same boat with Amarillo. In the 1950's, they were enjoying years of athletic greatness, but since 1941, the team has gotten out of the district only once.

"This will be of interest to Pampers because the present coach in Tyler is J. C. "Buck" Prejean who once coached the Pampa Harvesters.

Prejean came to Tyler in 1951, the year I bowed out of the sports writing field. He had enjoyed considerable success at Lufkin just prior to accepting the Tyler position.

Tyler has never beaten Wichita Falls . . . but until this year, they had never beaten Waco nor Highland Park. . . like 1-AAAA, it's a mighty tough district, and it seems quite likely that the 3-AAAA winner and Abilene will be playing for the state title.

FROM THE GRIDIRON to the checkerboard. That is the observation that George Koltanowski, world famed chess expert will be in Pampa Wednesday to give a lecture on the "game of kings" and to play a simultaneous match with some 20 chess players of the area.

It seems quite remarkable that a city our size could lure such a celebrity. It's a result of fine work by the Pampa Chess Club. It will be an interesting experience for folks who know even a little bit about chess or who would like to know something about it.

I HAVE ASKED my colleagues Joel Combs and Ronald Waters to collaborate next Tuesday to provide material for this space.

You are likely to hear something about Lefors in the next effort, for no city ever had a more loyal spokesman than Joel. . . and oh how he has suffered this season at the unfortunate blow fate has dealt his beloved Pirate football team with its staggering injury list.

THE POET'S NOOK I had one telephone call on last week's puzzle in poetry. The quotation was from Algernon Charles Swinburne's "The Garden of Proserpine."

Since I will not be writing next week's column, I have decided not to plant a puzzle here this week. Instead, here is a brief bit of poetry for your consumption. It was written by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, a quite prolific writer whose romantic verse is well quoted.

This poem, according to a footnote in the volume, was written by Mrs. Wilcox on the steamer Richard Peck between New Haven and New York, following her husband's observation that one ship went west and another east in the same wind.

THE WINDS OF FATE
One ship drives east and another drives west
With the sea-fame winds that blow.
The set of the sails
And not the gales
Which tells us the way to go.
Like the winds of the sea are the ways of fate,
As we voyage along through life:
'Tis the set of a soul
That decides its goal,
And not the calm or the strife."

Boy, 13, Admits Stealing Only Air-Conditioned Cars

HOUSTON—UP—A freckle-faced, 13-year old schoolboy calmly told juvenile police Monday he always steals air-conditioned autos because "they're more comfortable to sleep in."

Then the boy, who learned to drive only a month ago by watching a friend steal a car, related a week and crime spree in which he made off for "joy rides" in six cars.

Five of the cars were air-conditioned. The other was a fancy red-and-white convertible that caught his eye.

The boy was found sleeping in an air-conditioned car at 4 a. m. Monday a few hours after the car smashed into another one and then

"Butch wants to use it to learn to smoke!"

TAKES SQUEEZE FROM PARKING—Getting out of tight parking spots is easy if you own a gadget like the one being demonstrated here. The device, top photo, is sold in London, England, and is a steel platform with casters at one end and in the middle. Two are used, one under each rear wheel, (center). The car is moved forward onto the platform, and it is then given a sideways shove from the trunk, lower photo. It admittedly works easier with these small British cars than it would with heavy American autos.

Lassie Arrives Late For Reception In Washington

WASHINGTON—UP—What's new in Washington: Lassie, the movie and TV star, came to town, but the Collie came late. Carlos Castillo Armas, the president of Guatemala got here first. Armas got a key to the city from the district commissioners. Lassie got a bone and went back to making personal appearances, tail wagging.

The lovely Pat Nixon, wife of the Vice President, was seen walking down Washington's swank Connecticut Avenue the other day. Pat was dressed in a fashionable but simple brown tweed outfit. She oh-ed and ah-ed at the things for sale in the window. Hats with brown lace. Things like that. But Mrs. N. wasn't in a buying mood, it was about time to pick up the kids at school.

The lovable poet, Robert Frost, was a guest speaker at the Library of Congress. After his recitation of some of his best known poems, somebody asked him how he came up with the title for "North of Boston." He scratched his head and said: "I reckon I got it out of farm advertisements."

At nearby Bolling Air Force Base, civilian employees are howling because they can't get into the coffee mess like the airmen. During the "breaks" for java, they have to run out to trucks outside—and sometimes it's cold outside. Besides the coffee also gets cold.

Charles E. Wilson, our defense secretary, came back from Geneva the other day, and reporters noted that he was wearing a bomb.

Photographers asked him to take off his new topper. He was disinclined.

"You want me to look more like a business man than a diplomat?" The namesake said "yes." The former executive of General Motors said "no." Usually, Wilson wears a snap-brim hat, at a cocky angle.

Men on "Operation Deep Freeze" with Adm. Richard E. Byrd won't have to worry about good food. Mama maybe couldn't do better. In the vessels on the way to the South Pole are such as: 43,000 pounds of frozen meat and poultry; 80,000 pounds of canned meat and fish—and more poultry; 63,000 pounds of flour, meal and crackers; 48,000 pounds of coffee, tea and cocoa; and 50,000 pounds of sugar.

Reds Warned Against Starting Arms Race

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
GENEVA—UP—The United States bluntly warned Russia Monday against starting a world trade in arms.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles delivered the warning as the Big Four foreign ministers conference ran into a solid deadlock on the question of expanded East-West contacts.

The new impasse followed failure to agree on German unity, disarmament and admission of new countries to the United Nations.

Dulles also charged the Soviet leaders with being afraid their system would not stand up in contact with the outside world.

Refuses to Raise Iron Curtain
The bitter words came at the conference's 13th plenary session in which the West hammered away at the Soviets' V.M. Molotov to urge his government to tear down the Iron Curtain and open the way to free interchange of ideas.

Molotov promptly and flatly refused to raise the Iron Curtain.

Details of Molotov's speech were not disclosed immediately. But western officials described it as "totally uncompromising." They said it showed no indication that Russia would facilitate East-West cultural ties despite pleas from Dulles, Britain's Harold MacMillan and France's Antoine Pinay.

MacMillan led off for the West in a speech in which he went through the 17 points of a western proposal submitted to the conference earlier. It called for increased cultural relations and trade.

Just Wanted Embargo Ended
MacMillan said the directive handed to the foreign ministers by the Big Four summit leaders here last July made it clear that there should be an improvement in peaceful trade.

But, the British foreign secretary was quoted as saying, the Russians had shown they were not interested in genuine trade but only in having the West lift its embargo on exports of strategic goods to Iron Curtain countries.

Interested in Genuine Trade
MacMillan also called for freedom of information in the Soviet Union and closer cultural relations with the West. He said the West was interested in "genuine" contacts, not in exchanges of sponsored delegations under government control.

Frank Capra Quit Movies To Make Films For Video

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD—UP—Director Frank Capra, one of Hollywood's most famous movie-makers, Tuesday revealed why he dropped out of movies in 1950—he's taking five years to make four TV films.

Capra, an Oscar winner and notable film creator, vanished from the Hollywood scene after finishing "Here Comes the Groom," a Big Crosby comedy that was not a smash success. Friends say he felt the results were not up to his earlier pictures such as "It Happened One Night" and "Lost Horizon."

His absence has been puzzling to Hollywood, and Tuesday the director told about his until-now secret project, of shooting four one-hour TV programs in color since 1951.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. asked the film-maker to direct the TV movies. He calls them "experimental"—an entirely new form for television.

The TV shows are "a combination of science and entertainment," and have the famed Capra comedy touch.

"For example, the first one deals with the sun," he explained. "What the sun means and so forth."

The other Capra TV programs feature cosmic rays, blood and the weather. Fifty per cent of them are done in cartoon form by United Productions of America, creators of "Gerald McBoing Boing" and "Mr. McGoo."

Only one Capra show—on the sun—has been completed, but the other three will be ready for showing on some as yet unselected network "towards the end of next year." The first show stars Eddie Albert, Dr. Frank Baxter of TV's Shakespeare class and the late Lionel Barrymore.

Most half-hour TV films are made in two or three days. But AT&T is not alarmed because Capra is taking nearly five years for four hour films.

"They put up the money and I went to work," shrugged the balding director, never one for fast shooting when he made feature-length movies.

CERAMICS DISPLAY — Shown above is the ceramics display of W. B. Burtram of Shamrock at last year's Arts and Crafts Show in Shamrock. The show will be held again this year in the National Guard Armory from 5 until 9:30 p.m., Nov. 29.

Shamrock Arts, Crafts Show Set

SHAMROCK — (Special) — The second annual Arts and Crafts Show will be held in the National Guard Armory in Shamrock Nov. 29 from 5 until 9:30 p.m. The show, which presents craftsmen at work on their favorite hobbies, drew large crowds last year. This year the show will be a half-hour longer than last year by popular demand.

Throughout the evening, all comers are invited to watch craftsmen as they work, at basketweaving, sewing, painting in oils and on china, polished stones, woodcarving, making flies for casting, model ships and airplanes, cake decorations, fiber flowers and many other things.

New this year will be a division in physics and science by students of Mrs. Clyde Whittle. The junior crafts division will be much larger than last year. This unit will show the arts and crafts which can be done by younger children and those primarily done to entertain the younger generation such as puppets, paper mache, etc.

The Thursday Heritage Club of Shamrock is again sponsoring the show. Mrs. M. L. Gierhart is general chairman of the show. She invites any craftsman to contact her for a place at the Armory if they would like to take part.

Admission prices this year will be 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children over 12, and 10 cents for gradeschool students. Tickets may be purchased from any Heritage club member.

CONFESSION

three pieces of luggage into the airport for her. He said he stood 30 feet away with his wife and child while his mother checked the luggage, onto the plane.

Ironically, the heaviness of the bomb made Mrs. King's luggage over weight. She paid $27.01 for excess weight in her luggage and went to board the plane.

It was about this time that the announcement came that the plane was late. Graham's confession indicated it was a nerve-wracking 35 minutes that he waited for the plane to depart.

Stolberg said Graham's confession revealed nothing about his parting with his mother. But he said he told a probation officer last week that he kissed her goodbye.

His confession said he watched her board the plane, saw the plane taxi down the runway and soar aloft.

Graham then took his wife and son into the airport restaurant for dinner, according to the confession. They remained there until he heard a cashier say, "an airplane has crashed north of Denver."

Graham then drove home with his family and heard the news over the radio that the airplane had crashed.

Neighbors said Graham put his face in his hands and cried when he heard that all aboard had been killed.

William A. Patterson, president of United Airlines, told Stolberg that the 35 minutes the plane was late in departing may well have accounted for detection that the crash was caused by an explosion within the airliner.

He said if the plane had departed on time the bomb would have exploded while the plane was over the Medicine Bow mountain range.

Amarillo Man Addresses Optimists Here

"The project you are about to undertake is one of the main ways to do away with juvenile delinquency," stated Tom Little, chief probation officer of Amarillo, as he addressed the Pampa Optimist Club Monday night.

He gave the Amarillo Optimist club the credit for curtailing the problem in one section of the city with the organizing of a Junior Optimist Club.

"The boy that has something to do in his spare time very rarely gets into juvenile court," he stated. "We handle approximately 500 cases each year in the city of Amarillo and if organizations such as the Junior Optimist Club, Kids Incorporated, Boy Scouts, Maverick Club and the YMCA were to cease their work, the number would soar upward to the extent that it would be impossible to control the youth of our city."

He commended all organizations that deal with boys. He stated that it takes very little money to handle the juvenile problem while the boys are young, but it costs the taxpayers from $600 to $3,000 a year to send a boy to a training school or penal institute.

"That money comes from the pockets of your community, the same as donations to civic organizations, and much more good can be done in the community with the same amount of money," he concluded.

He pointed out that a boy sentenced to either training schools or penal institutions learn more than is taught by the instructor. He learns from his classmates the things he is sent to forget and is sometimes better educated in criminal tactics than he was before he was sentenced.

"It all boils down to the fact that a little money spent on a boy in his early life can help much more than a few thousand dollars later," Little commented.

He encouraged the Optimists to continue their work in the Pampa area.

"It will make your Police and juvenile officer's job a lot easier and make useful citizens of your boys," he pointed out.

Recreation Leadership School Set

A recreation leadership training school is being conducted by Miss Lucille Moore, recreation specialist from Texas A & M, for all leaders of 4-H and Home Demonstration clubs in the county.

Miss Moore is teaching leaders to conduct community groups in recreation activities. She outlined the requirements of good leaders last night as being enthusiastic and capable of planning ahead.

Tonight the program will consist of a review of the points brought out, and a division into groups to make plans for recreation games. Tomorrow night, the plans will be carried out as if the participants were actually conducting the group games.

A total of 34 persons were present for the first session last night, including representatives from McLean and Groom.

Man Guilty Of Posing As Colonel

MOBILE, Ala. —UP— A federal court jury convicted a 26-year-old jet-flying Texan Monday on posing as an Air Force colonel and persuading the military to fly him to Bermuda on "official business."

Sentence was to be imposed later. A U.S. district court jury recessed Thursday without reaching a verdict in the trial of Jack Kenneth Brown of Eldorado, Tex., accused of masquerading at Brookley Air Force Base here last year as "Lt. Col. H. Lee Royal."

Witnesses testified that Brown, now serving five years in another case of impersonating an officer, also wrote four checks totaling $149.50 on a non-existent California bank and forged an order under which he was flown to Kindley Air Force Base in Bermuda.

Brown is now serving five years at Leavenworth federal prison for impersonating an officer at Williams Air Force Base, Ariz., in August, 1954. His record also shows convictions for impersonating officers at Pensacola (Fla.) Naval Air Station, Columbus Air Force Base, Miss., and Scott Air Force Base, Ill.

Dan Tobin, Union Boss, Dead At 80

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. —UP— Daniel J. Tobin, an Irish-born wagon driver who became one of the most powerful figures in American labor as president of the AFL Teamsters Union, died Monday night at the age of 80.

Tobin had bossed the teamsters for 45 years, the longest reign in organized labor's history, and had been a power in the Roosevelt and Truman administrations.

His death came three years after he had relinquished control of the powerful teamsters union and assumed the role of president-emeritus.

Suffered Heart Trouble — He and his wife left Indianapolis for a Florida home bought by the union. But they returned in late October and Tobin entered St. Vincent's hospital, suffering from high blood pressure and heart trouble.

His condition was listed as critical two weeks later and he died in the hospital Monday night at 8:35 p.m. (CST) with his son, Frank, at his bedside. His wife had left the room a short time earlier.

Tobin became president of the teamsters seven years after he joined the union.

Born in Ireland — He was born in County Claire, Ireland, in 1875 and came to Cambridge, Mass., when he was 14 years old.

His first job in a sheet metal factory paid him less than 10 cents an hour. He joined the teamsters in 1900 while driving a horse-drawn vehicle in Boston.

Tobin began to ease his hold on the teamsters shortly after Mr. Truman's re-election that year. The end of his active role became complete in 1952, when West Coast labor leader Dave Beck took over as president of the teamsters and moved its national headquarters from Indianapolis to Washington.

Oklahoma City Union Paper Is Published

OKLAHOMA CITY —UP — A new daily newspaper began publication here Monday and publishers laid plans to "blanket the city" with the union-produced tabloid.

James Tucker, spokesman for the International Typographical Union, which publishes the paper, said 25,000 copies of the first edition rolled off the presses by 11:30 a.m.

The paper, the Oklahoma City edition of Labor's Daily, will be distributed free to a portion of the northwest section of the city for one week, and afterward to other parts of the city, Tucker said.

Plans call for an eventual circulation increase to 50,000 copies daily. The 16-page publication will use a 12-page insert of national news from the union's national headquarters.

Local union members, idle since Dec. 17 in a labor dispute with the Oklahoma Publicity Co., handled both reporting and mechanical requirements of the new paper.

Pigs Go To Market In Big Numbers

CHICAGO —UP — The greatest flood of pork-on-the-hoof to enter the Chicago market in nearly 12 years was reported from the stockyards Monday, and prices went down.

There were 32,000 hogs on the market here, the biggest number since Jan. 17, 1944, and similar shipments were reported from 11 other major terminals. In all, about 170,000 hogs were on sale at 12 big markets.

Prices went down 50 cents to as much as $1.25 per hundred pounds at some points in early sales. The top price paid at Chicago was $12.90 per hundredweight, the lowest in 13 years.

Market men have been warning that the hog supply was due to remain high.

Only Saturday, at the 50th annual meeting of the American Meat Institute, J. Russell Ives, associate director of the AMI's marketing department, had said an 11 per cent increase in federally inspected hog slaughter was anticipated for the market year which began last August.

MAKING A GO OF LIFE

By ROY L. SMITH

Read I Corinthians 12: 14-26

Sin is mismanagement of life. The problem of bringing all of life's forces under one control is enough to command the total powers of the soul, for every individual life is required to deal with myriad forces. There are the facts of environment, such as heat, cold, food, shelter, security. There are physical urges, such as sex and hunger. There are mental influences, such as imagination, memory, and mental reaction. There are psychological factors like fears, tensions, and the weird influence of the subconscious. All these and many more enter into the making of life, and each one exercises a mighty influence in its own sphere. He who makes a go of life must establish unity among them all. The total calls for careful management. Each can serve a useful purpose if properly disciplined, and each can become a terrible master if allowed to go undisciplined. Caution perverted becomes cowardice; zeal undirected becomes brutality; imagination leads off into derangement; faith can degenerate into mere credulity or, polluted, become presumption.

The best life is that one which is best managed, with every force assigned to a duty and held responsible for good performance.

Physiologists have done much to lighten the burden of living by teaching us how to live inside these highly complex bodies of ours. Psychologists have made enormous contributions to the cause of mental management during recent years. It now remains for the spiritual scientists to put us in control of the spiritual forces of life. That is the function of the teacher of good religion.

Thou hast put me in charge of a kingdom, O God, and I have a host of subjects over which I must rule. I must be strong, I must discipline them all if my kingdom is to live in peace. I must compel each to do its work, and each to work with others. O God, help me. Amen.

We believe that one truth is always consistent with another truth. We endeavor to be consistent with truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Should we, at any time, be inconsistent with these truths, we would appreciate anyone pointing out to us how we are inconsistent with these moral guides.

Newsprint Cost

Historically, newspapers take certain traditional stands on certain traditional issues. Newspapers stand for a free press. They will lash out at their best political friends if the freedom of the press appears to be in jeopardy. They are customarily not nearly so sensitive if radio or TV freedom is in doubt. After all, unless the newspaper is dedicated to freedom, why worry about it if a rival has trouble?

Thus, it is customary for newspapers to wail and moan the moment a rise in the price of newsprint occurs. Here the press is strangely in unison. Perhaps this is the reason why the newspaper industry has called upon the Justice Department in Washington and thereby elicited a promise from Deputy Attorney William P. Rogers that a probe of the cost of newsprint in these United States will be conducted forthwith.

This panic-stricken turning to the federal government on the part of the newspaper industry is slightly nauseating. Certainly, no one in business likes to see his costs rise. But the newspaper industry is in the best possible position to know the reason for that rise in cost. And it is in the best possible position to say something about it, too.

But, instead, it closes its eyes to the facts and goes chasing off after the producers of newsprint, as though they were double-dyed villains for (presumably) trying to collect an additional $5.00 per ton. Apparently, newspapers which support freedom of the press are now quite willing to endorse a federal straight-jacket for the producers of paper. Yet, the villains of the piece are far from being the independent manufacturers of newsprint.

The villainy actually comes from two directions: The directions are labor unions and government itself. Only from these two agencies do the stimuli for higher prices come. One comes on the wings of each new wage or "fringe benefit" demand. The other, with each new tax, or rule or regulation.

So now the newspapers are teaming up to demand a governmental investigation of the producers of newsprint, who are at the mercy of the unions and the government. The newspapers are thus caught in the act of teaming up with the very agency creating the cost rise, to investigate the reason for this rise in cost. The newsman would be doing their country and their industry a real service if, instead, they were themselves to investigate the unions and the government and the effect of these two agencies upon the high cost of living.

If true freedom were to prevail in the business of manufacturing paper on which newspapers are printed, then the low supply and demand would be operative. The announced rise in price of Canadian newsprint, instead of heralding a similar rise of price in this country might be followed by a drop in price. Immediately, Canadian and other purchasers of Canadian newsprint would begin casting about for ways and means of buying American-made paper.

This very fact, providing the unions and the governments didn't interfere, would tend to get the Canadian manufacturers to lower, rather than raise their prices. In the end, we would all benefit.

As it is, costs keep spiraling upward, and there is no indication where they will end, if end they ever do. The reason is the yeast of unions and government which constantly creates the ferment of higher prices.

THE NATION'S PRESS

PROGRAMS ACROSS THE SEA

(The Wall Street Journal)

The British Broadcasting Company, a government chartered institution, has had a monopoly on radio and television broadcasting in the British Isles.

So far as radio is concerned its monopoly position was upset long ago. British listeners could tune in programs from the continent of Europe if they did not like the home product. They did so to the extent that B.B.C. found it expedient to change some of its ideas about what was suitable radio fare for the British public.

Now B.B.C. is to have competition in television and the competing programs are to be financed by advertisers as they are in the United States.

This project met with strong opposition from its inception. There was a campaign of disparagement about the "commercialization" of British television, which might seem like a somewhat curious objection on the part of a nation which grew great by producing and trading. At any rate those who wanted to keep television a monopoly pointed out some of the less edifying features of television in the United States — they did not lack for material — and declared that honest Britishers would have none of that.

There are probably many who have some sympathy with this point of view. Anyone who has suffered through the banalities of some American television programs and from the outright spassiness of commercials — personally we have a list of products we do not intend to buy — might be pardoned for thinking that the British had the right idea.

But granting the defects of commercial competitive television did not obscure the defects of the British system. Here was a closed corporation which determined what the British people should have in the way of entertainment and information. Strong as might be the arguments for that system, it was nevertheless a group of intellectuals who gave the British people what they thought the British people ought to have and not what the British people wanted. The system might guard against the infiltration of bad ideas but it was also proof against the infusion of new ideas which might be good.

In a recent issue of this newspaper, Mr. Henderson recorded some developments that may benefit not only British television but American television as well. While the British are adopting some American telecasting techniques, Americans already seem to have picked up some British ideas and very soon some British programs will appear on American screens.

So there may be some hope that instead of America lowering the British television standards, the British might make some worthwhile contributions to the American screen; American audiences might even learn that some vocalists can be pleasing and stimulating without singing off key.

Such cross-fertilization could not take place so long as British television was in the exclusive hands of a monopoly. It could not because that monopoly like other monopolies was sterile.

GOV. HARRIMAN IN CHARACTER

(Chicago Daily Tribune)

Prodded along by Gov. Averell Harriman, the multimillionaire New Dealer, the New York State Conference on Education has voted overwhelmingly in support of federal aid to education. The conference, composed of labor, farm, business, parent, and educational representatives, will urge this position at the White House conference on education Nov. 28 to Dec. 1.

Harriman, who has just about dropped the pretense that he will not actively seek the Democratic nomination for President next year, made a curious objection in which he listed the objections to federal aid and then came out unreservedly for it. He said that state and local authorities had responded "in many cases" to educational needs "remarkably well,"

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

Look, Vigilant Parents, Toward Education!

I am continuing to quote from Everett Ridley Taylor, a student of ethical education. He is so much interested in education that he has issued a 24-page folder on it.

In the last installment he contended that there should be no laws respecting education. Then Mr. Taylor goes on as follows:

"This line of reasoning which leads to the conclusion that there shall be no law respecting education, cuts at the foundations of the government school systems. Obviously there could be no government schools without laws to compel tax payments to support them, laws to force attendance, and laws to regulate government operation. However, such laws are now on the statute books; we possess a Utopia of beautiful government school buildings; many parents are content to let the government take care of their children; and there is a tremendous vested political interest and a strongly entrenched economic interest in their continuance. The situation is not unlike that of the miniature golf craze—a dream that the proprietors could live comfortably while nearly everybody enjoyed making tricky punts. The government school Utopia should also fade away as more and more parents awaken. Fortunately, parents have several alternatives to the government child care centers. They can send their children to private schools, parent-owned joint-venture schools, or church schools.

"Parents who decide to take their children from the government child care centers have a weighty decision to make: Should their children's education be under secular management? Or religious management? Let us attempt to use differential reasoning to solve one phase of the question: Should Christianity be taught in schools?"

"Since the beginning of civilization, and until about 1850 in the United States, nearly all education has been under religious auspices. The priesthood of sects, whether pagan, non-Christian or Christian, has had the learning, popular support, and the time to educate the young. In the United States since the year 1850, however, education has been more and more taken from religious management and transferred to State management. Today, 1955, just a small proportion of students receive any religious training of any kind in schools.

Primary Emotion Apathy
"The emotional argument that has influenced this trend away from religious education in the United States is hard to find. Previous to the year 1850, educational methods used in the United States had produced a few outstanding men, and the level of literacy was quite high, considering all of the hard work people had to do then, and compared to the literacy of other countries. We had observed the principal of the separation of church and state; there was no great emotional furor such as there is in countries where all education is under the authoritarian hand of a church or of a state. We had observed the principle that there should be no law respecting an establishment of religion. We still have this right and can send our children to schools that are establishments of religion.

We have not, therefore, had the emotional problem that has faced some Russians, for example, who must attend State schools. It seems, therefore, that the primary emotion was apathy. Parents simply believed that they could escape some of the cost and the responsibility of seeing to the education of their children and passed it over to the government.

"The emotional argument on the side of parents who believe that religious training is most important is not quite so vague. They have simply entered their children in church schools. They have borne the burden of supporting the State schools which they do not use and also the cost of maintaining their children in church schools. While there has been some grumbling against this obvious injustice, their emotional protests have not created enough popular support to prevail against the enormous political power of the State school systems."

but copped that with the statement that "when sudden and sharp increases in expenditures are involved, the federal government does have immensely greater resources than the states."

Harriman failed to explain how the federal government possesses itself of these "immensely greater resources" when all of the resources it has must come from the taxpayers in the states. It is to be assumed that he is recommending the familiar New Deal-Fair Deal formula of putting the government deeper into debt and letting posterity worry about it—not, of course, that the present generation won't have to worry about it, too, for every new federal expenditure is an argument for suffocating federal taxation.

Harriman also conceded that the state of New York "always pays more into every federal program than it gets back," but he blithely sacrificed the interest of the state over which he has been elected to preside. That can only mean that he now has a national ambition — namely, to cop the nomination from his erstwhile pal, Adlai Stevenson. When he dumps the interest of New York, he is canvassing for national delegates in Mississippi, Alabama, etc.

Pentagon Experts Divided On U. S. Defense Strategy

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Pentagon experts are more divided today over national defense strategy and weapons than at any time since "Billy" Mitchell was court-martialed 30 years ago in the airplane versus battleship controversy. But the current problems are far more complicated and dramatic.

On strategy, there are two widely divergent schools. One believes that, despite A and H bombs, guided missiles of intercontinental range and even man-made planets, there will be no fundamental or revolutionary changes in warfare. They contend that, after the initial atomic clashes and shocks, and recoveries, the foe will settle down and slug it out in a struggle as grim and long-drawn out as the 1914-1918 and 1939-1945. Soldiers still predominate over the scientists in the long night of battle, according to them.

The other school argues that such protracted affairs are no longer possible. In their opinion, whoever "gets there first with the most" of these awful weapons will win in a few weeks or months. Obviously, as was possible in the Mitchell matter, when he bombed captured German battlehips off the Virginia Capes, there is no way for a practical test of these opposing viewpoints. It should be noted here that there is no bitterness, although necessarily some service rivalry, in these hush-hush arguments.

It should be added, too, that these basic differences have not been resolved as of today. And until they are, other problems of great importance cannot be settled.

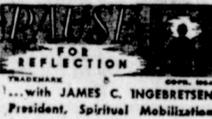

If the first faction is correct, the United States must carry on, militarily, in a fairly customary manner, without, however, neglecting the new developments. The Army must have a large ground force. It must still build vast supplies of tanks, planes, motorized artillery, transportation vehicles. It must store food and uniforms and other quartermaster necessities. The Army, too, must have and control its own fleet of air transports for maneuvering men in the field. Moreover, if this theory is sound, we must continue to pile up great stores of these weapons, taking the chance that they might become obsolete. Our finest pursuit and bombing planes in the Korean fighting are now out-of-date.

But we must do just the opposite, if the believers in a "sudden death" outcome have a valid case. In that event, the U.S. must skimp on conventional things. It must concentrate on — and spend money on — faster and faster jets, A-H bombs and pinpointing shells, missiles that will strike the most distant foe in an hour, and other still unpublicized weapons. We must step up scientific experimentation.

These old and new views of war have been presented to the National Security Council by the Joint-Chiefs-of-Staff. The Council's eventual recommendation will be passed on to President Eisenhower, who will have the ultimate decision — perhaps the most fateful since Truman ordered actual military use of the A-bomb more than ten years ago.

Regardless of the final White House and Congressional policy, it means more work to taxpayers. The 1957 military budget will range between $35 billion and $40 billion, barring an unexpected agreement with Moscow at Geneva.

Testifying recently before a joint Congressional economic subcommittee, James Carey, president of the National Electrical Workers Union, reportedly said business and government should assume some share of the costs and responsibility of the "countless problems" he alleged automation will bring. "It is morally and economically wrong to expect the working people of America to bear the entire burden," he was quoted as having said.

There seems to be a widespread illusion that saddling costs onto business and government takes them off "the working people." As far as I know, no one has ever successfully explained how this is accomplished. The truth of the matter seems to be that every economic burden, no matter how much it may be statutorily shifted around, in the final analysis, rests heaviest on those at the bottom of the economic heap — just as all the weight of a rock pile, regardless of how the rocks may be shifted about, in the final analysis rests on the rocks at the bottom of the pile.

When and if this simple truth ever becomes manifest to the rank and file of people everywhere, the day of the demagogue, the bureaucrat, and the collectivist will be ended. And it will become clear at last that the only way to ease "the burden" of "the working people" is to get rid of the economically and morally unsound practices — whether in business, government, or labor unions — that weigh all of it down.

The new model cars have all kinds of new looks. They have the forward look, the panoramic look, the dynamic look and even the motorcar look. But at least, our old heap has that nice, comfortable paid-for look.

Fair Enough

British Journalists Fail To Fight In Spy Stories

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Rome — Miss Rebecca West is one of the best British journalists, a good writer with strong style and a fine head for facts and situations. But she, too, floundered on the story of Maclean and Burgess, two dear boys of the British foreign office who have now been repudiated by the foreign office in a weak, sniveling apology for its own incompetence and probably some guilt. Somehow, she did not directly say how, Miss West was acquainted with Donald Quart Maclean and Guy Francis De Morny Burgess and she wrote three pieces in which she undertook to deliver a good deal more than she did deliver.

The foreign office does not flatly say on its own responsibility that these two were Soviet spies operating in the British department of American affairs in its gloomy and always mysterious limestone heaps in Whitehall. It hedges even on that. The "white paper" says, instead, that Vladimir Petrov said, that Vladimir Petrov said, that the third secretary of the Red embassy in the Australian capital of Canberra was "defected" to our side, and the foreign office either is so stupid that it did not have information of its own or did have that information and flagrantly did nothing to prevent these two or prevent their escape to Moscow.

The foreign office says nothing about their sex life, but Miss West flatly wrote "two men were homosexuals."

You may recall that Senator Joe McCarthy raised a big row by charges of homosexuality in our state department and that this charge was the one that evoked the shrillest outcry of the Anti-Joe Press on the ground that it cast suspicion on the whole department. Well, I know people in state who have not felt the faintest embarrassment because they know nobody could possibly think Joe meant them.

On the other hand, Lewis Douglas, a rich banker and Arizona politician who was ambassador in Britain, last winter circulated an unconvincible rumor that a layman without the slightest pretense of scientific qualifications, who had never met McCarthy, had decided, by observing him, that Joe evinced certain "characteristics." Douglas had only recently attended ceremonies at the Wendell Willkie political hutch in New York to hang a leather medal on Egbert Murrwo as a reward for his abuse of McCarthy on television.

I challenged Douglas to produce his "evidence." He challenged me to give McCarthy a chance to face his "accuser."

Douglas scurried away and he never yet has met the minimum requirement that cut demands of those who spot traitors and panics in the state department. You would think that a man of high finance would have the honor to admit that he stooped to a filthy, rotten slander and to apologize when he was nailed. But he has not opened his trap and Murrwo still has the contemptible bauble which Douglas and Horsepark Herbie wrote, Barney Baruch's old ghost-writer, presented to him last winter. In evaluating smears against McCarthy, you should remember such details. And marvel at the gall of Horsepark Herbie in presuming to hang any medals on anybody.

Of course, there were notorious homos in our state department. One old pet of the Roosevelts finally was nailed on a pullman car. Every politician and reporter who lived in Washington during the war knows about this fellow. Two vice-presidents of the Pullman company told me they had this report in their desks. Old Cordell Hull finally canned him. Later, he figured in a nasty publicized police case near the Washington home of a dear old friend who had been pinched in droll circumstances a long time ago.

Carmel Offie, a leg-man for Bill Bullitt both in Moscow and in Paris, was pinched in Lafayette Park across from the White House and admitted to me that it was fair to infer that he acknowledged guilt when he blew his $25 ball rather than stand trial. Bullitt phoned Roy Howard that he was pinning to explain this dreadful misadventure of justice to me. Roy phoned him 11 times and I have never ceased to phone him when I go to Washington. But I have yet to catch up with Bill Bullitt.

To get back to Miss West's series on Maclean and Burgess: She wrote that "one had only to look at them to know that there was something strange about them." That "they had parted from the herd, and it seemed likely that the herd was right." That Burgess "had wakened up in some very queer rooms." That Maclean's "gaiety had feverish quality of over excited 18". And, finally, flatly: "Both men were homosexuals."

Now, if this loyal British citizen knew his independently, her failure to demand their dismissal would puzzle me but for the British attitude toward panics. By our standards, this attitude is as queer as the panics themselves. The British have under consideration right now a proposal to change the law to provide that such conduct between "consenting adults, aged 30 or above" shall not be a crime except where a mental defective is concerned. Last July one John Gordon, of Beaverbrook's Sunday Express, wrote thus: "Dear! Dear! I'm in trouble again. The Spectator says I'm the lowest form of swampy-allowing life, cruel, brutal, indecent uncivilized." Mr. Gordon alleged that The Spectator was the most brazen advocate of legalized homosexuality. He thought The Spectator's campaign was pernicious and morally degrading.

Knowing Miss West's work, I waited and waited for her to bolt one. But her articles consisted entirely of practice-swings. How and where had she known these two? Who were "other homosexuals who had come to their aid" when they fell under suspicion?

And still the British press and both parties keep repeating: "Come, come, now, chaps! No McCarthyism!" Well, why not?

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

Nature has given us remarkable bodies which function with great satisfaction. Once in a while, however, one of the bodily functions gets out of whack and one can, for example, have too easy clotting of the blood, or its opposite — too easy bleeding.

Q—I should be interested to learn about a drug which is used to prevent blood clotting, particularly when one is past middle age and threatened with apoplexy.—F. V.

A—There are actually two substances which are sometimes used in human beings to delay the coagulation or clotting of blood. One of these is heparin which is obtained by making an extract from the liver. The other is dicumarol which was originally obtained from spoiled sweet clover and can now be made in the laboratory. These substances must be used with care since too much of them may result in excessive bleeding. They are not used too freely to prevent apoplexy but may have value for a few patients.

Q—I am a saleswoman standing on my feet from 6:30 in the morning to 5:00 in the evening, with only a half hour for lunch when I sit. Lately my right leg has begun paining me and even after a good night's sleep, I awake in the morning with the same feeling. Is this a beginning of something serious?—Mrs. T. M.

A—There are several possible causes for the discomfort you are having in your leg. You should have your feet examined for the possibility of fallen arches and to make sure that you are wearing the most comfortable shoes possible. There is also the possibility of some difficulty with the blood circulation in your legs. I should say that this was serious enough for you to seek relief.

Q—My dictionary says that sadism is a sexual perversion in which satisfaction is derived from the infliction of cruelty. Does this mean only physical cruelty, or can it be mental cruelty as well?—Reader.

A—This term is derived from the Marquis de Sade, and I believe applies strictly to physical cruelty, though there is, of course, cruelty of the purely mental variety.

Q—Would you please comment on the dangers, if any, of making a blood donation every three months? There seems to be a divergence of opinion on this.—E.O.A.

A—All of the evidence of which I am aware indicates that a healthy person can make a donation of blood of the usual quantity at least as often as every three months without producing any harm whatever.

Q—Would you say something about the floating kidney? I should like to know how this develops and whether it can be corrected with surgery only, and if it is serious.—Mrs. H. B.

A—This is a condition in which one of the kidneys is not attached as firmly as normally and moves around to some extent. It may not produce any symptoms at all, nor require treatment. If treatment is needed, surgery is the only method of correcting the condition.

The Soviets keep complainin' that they can't find a way to raise fat enough hogs in Russia. That Malenkov sure must know how to keep a secret.

Jane Talk

By JANE KADINGO
Pampa News Women's Editor

THIS IS BOOK WEEK. If you're as avid a reader as I am, and have always been, you'll not be able to help contemplating the meaning of the week with reverence. It makes me think back over the many happy hours I spent completely absorbed in books — classics, plays, non-fiction and others — from the time I learned to read, when the library didn't have enough books on my level to keep me amply supplied, until now.

MRS. LILLIAN SNOW, city librarian, and I were talking about book week the other day. She has lots of plans for visits from school children and other groups. She gave me this poem, which I think is very fitting, as it is through the story-telling period of a child's life, when he is unable to read himself, that his interest in reading springs later in life.

The poem is taken from the Wilson Library Bulletin and was written by Margaret S. Riddle, librarian, Sanger Avenue Elementary School, Waco.

STORY HOUR
I like to watch a child's eyes
As "Once upon a time" I tell;
For these are magic words
That seem to cast a spell.
They instantly bring smiles and sighs
Of satisfaction, when
I turn a page or two
A new story to begin.
Deep, deep within each timid soul
Of eyes — hazel, brown, or blue,
A little bit of Fairyland
Comes slowly back to you:

For eyes have ways of looking
Straight into Make-Believe,
While the storyteller has the joy
Of the wondrous tale to weave.

FOR BABIES here and babies near, the fall and winter collection of Carter's Infants' Wear will dress the little league from birthsize to two years in raiment that will get many a smile of admiration. Babies have been pastel sweet in pinks, blues, yellows and greens. But in keeping with the forward look, the two-tone and three-tone approach, Carter's have blended the pastels in prints.

Pin checks for boys and girls in the tiniest checkerboard pattern in pink, blue or yellow...brushed cotton sleeping bags with a two-way zipper up the front with complete and careful coverage that grows right up to three-year size...Jiffon or snap-fastened jackets and pants...Panti Dresses for girls and Creepers for boys...Play Pajamas in brushed cotton, three-piece sets of long-sleeved blouse, pants and booties.

Polka dots, stripes and animal prints are all entries in the forward look for fall and winter. A frivolous Topper Set of softest cotton knit for baby girls in blue, mint or red polka dots on white has a ruffled shirt tail hemline and matching snap-fastened pants. The boys' Topper Set has a clean-cut striped jacket and solid color snap-fastened, plasticized pants. Marietta Mitchell Feted At Shower

Miss Marietta Mitchell, bride-elect of Jimmy Jack Baird, was sponsored the famous violinist, Rubino, in concert in Pampa Dec. 8, in the Junior High School auditorium. Proceeds from the event will go into the club's scholarship fund. The event is not to be confused with the Community Concert Association presentations.

A student matinee will be held at 4 p.m., and the evening performance will begin at 8:15 p.m.

Tickets are available at the Citizens Bank and Trust Company, Heath's Menswear, and Clyde's Pharmacy, and from club members.

In show business or the musical profession, it is legend that "the show must go on" regardless of anything else. Each year Rubino and his violin travels thousands of miles to meet scheduled appearances in concert.

Sometimes meeting schedules is almost an impossibility. Unusual experiences are incurred and even humorous situations develop. Seeing the genial, relaxed violinist on the stage and seeming to enjoy himself as much as his audience, it's difficult to realize the adventurous situations which develop in traveling.

Once on The Tamiami Trail down the west coast of Florida, Rubino and his party left late at night for Miami not realizing the superstition of the Indians for staying inside at night caused all the gasoline stations to close soon after dusk. With every station closed and the tank registering empty, it began to look as if the night would be spent in the car and just waiting for morning. Just at that minute a darkness loomed up on the side of the road. Two huge dogs barked so furiously that it didn't look safe to get out of the car. Rubino did the next best thing — he yelled at the top of his voice "This is Rubino we're out of gas!" A light appeared and the reluctant owner finally came out, but only after Rubino showed his violin and proved his identification. And so once again the schedule was kept on time with no delay.

Blow-outs, blizzards, road detours, cancellation of plane flights due to weather, sudden floods making impassable obstructions, fogs, sand storms, icy roads, have all been encountered by Rubino in his touring of the nation. But luck seems to always be in his favor. So far not one engagement has been missed and it is a rarity for

Correct Application Of Make-Up, Skin Care, Told To Sunshine HDC Members

The correct way to apply make-up and care of the skin was demonstrated and explained by Mrs. I. U. Bryant at the recent meeting of the Sunshine Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. J. L. Reddell, 2245 Willis-ton.

Mrs. Cordia McBride was Mrs. Bryant's model. Mrs. Bryant explained that a light touch should be used in applying creams and lotions as it is more relaxing than hard rubbing. She advised the women to use an up and out motion on the face and neck, never a downward motion.

During the business session, Mrs. A. A. McElrath told of the recreation school, which began Monday, and which will continue through Wednesday. Tonight's session will be held in the red brick building near the Junior High School and Wednesday's meeting will be held in the Legion-VFW Hall. Plans are also underway to enter a float in the Santa Day parade.

Do your clear out the clothes you don't wear at least twice a year? Or do you let them hang there, taking up closet space they don't deserve? Best plan is to weed out the ones that never go places and give them to someone who can use them.

Evening bags are getting larger. The velvet clutch has grown. This is welcome news for every woman who's tried to stuff money, compact, lipstick, keys, mirror, cigarette case and lighter into a bag the size of a pillbox.

Green Olive Sauces Give Added Touch To Meat, Vegetable Dishes

By GAYNOR MADDOX, NEA Food and Markets Editor

We've been testing sauces with green olives in them. For meat and vegetable dishes they often seem the perfect answer.

GREEN OLIVE CREOLE SAUCE
(Makes about 2 cups sauce)
Two tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1 No. 303 can tomatoes, drained; 1/4 cup sliced mushrooms, 1 cup beef bouillon, 1 cup pimento-stuffed green olives.
Melt butter or margarine. Add onion and green pepper and cook 5 minutes, or until lightly browned. Add flour, salt and pepper and cook until browned, stirring occasionally. Serve with meats, as desired.
Green Olive Curry Sauce

(Makes about 2 cups)
Three tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon curry powder, 1 1/2 cups milk, 1/2 cup pimento-stuffed green olives.
Melt butter or margarine. Add flour, pepper and curry powder and blend. Gradually add milk and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add olives and continue cooking 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve with rice, as desired.

STUFFED OLIVE CAPER SAUCE
(Makes about 1 1/2 cups)
One cup mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 3 tablespoons chopped capers, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 1/2 cup pimento-stuffed green olives.
Combine ingredients and heat to serving temperature, stirring occasionally. Serve over broccoli, as desired.

Crucial Games Scheduled As Schoolboy Season Nears End

By UNITED PRESS

The schedule makers must have been psychic when they drew up many of the Class AA district games this season to leave so many crucial schoolboy football contests for the final week of the season.

Such games abound all through this week end's grid, but the top ones send Breckenridge against Graham in District 8, Gladewater against New London in 15, Killen against Lampasas in 20, Gonzales against Lockhart in 23, and Refugio against Port Lavaca in 28.

Graham, Gladewater, New London, Killen, Gonzales and Refugio are all among the state's unbeatens-untied list, while Lampasas and Port Lavaca are unbeaten but tied. Breckenridge has been beaten only by two of the state's finest perfect record AAAA teams and Lockhart has been beaten only once.

Playoff Berths

District championships and playoff berths are riding on the outcome of these games, just as they are in a dozen or more other districts.

Other showdown games include Burkburnett vs. Seymour in District 3, Terrell vs. Seagoville in 11, DeKalb vs. Linden in 14, Jasper vs. Rusk in 16, Waxahachie vs. Hillsboro in 18, West vs. La Vega in 19, La Marque vs. La Porte in 21, Phillips in 1, Orlan in 2, Stamford in 4, Spur in 5, Grapevine in 9, Olney in 10, Athens in 12, Bonham in 13, Smiley in 17, Georgetown in 21, Brenham in 24, Nederland in 28 and Weslaco in 32 already have clinched playoff berths.

In District 6, Crane and Kermitt are tied for the lead and if both win Friday against Alpine and Andrews, respectively, Crane will get the playoff berth for having beaten Kermitt 27-13 in regular season play.

Tied for Lead

In District 7, Ballinger and

SMU Tennis Star

War Or Revolution Didn't Stop Murphy

DALLAS — UP — A war and a revolution haven't been able to stop globetrotting Matt Murphy from playing tennis and the 25-year-old Southern Methodist University senior figure to give his Southwest Conference opponents a hard time this spring.

Matt, son of the Irish ambassador to Argentina, was sidetracked from Davis Cup and international tennis competition for two years by the Korean war, and only this fall the Argentine revolt almost kept him from returning to SMU. It took a juggling of documents to get Murphy back to school before the deadline for enrollment.

The No. 1 Mustang netter had a 14-1 record last spring in his first year of varsity play. Unfortunately for Tennis Coach Lester Jordan, however, this will be Murphy's last year of collegiate competition.

Matt, a serious student with a B average and a liking for intellectual courses, has been taking a heavy scholastic load and will graduate from SMU in June with a degree in leadership management after only two and a half years of studies.

Then Murphy plans to return to Buenos Aires to make his home. But that will still give him long enough to be a tough opponent for Southwest Conference netters as Murphy tries to help SMU better its second place finish of last year by breaking the championship domination of the University of Texas.

His only loss last year was to Sammy Giannalva of the Longhorns, despite the fact that Murphy was a long way off the game he had back in 1948 and 1950 while playing for the Irish Davis Cup team before becoming a United States citizen.

A native New Yorker, Murphy competed at Wimbledon and in Europe before his 21st birthday when he returned to the United States as a citizen and was promptly drafted.

While in the Army information service in this country and Japan, Murphy had little chance to play the top tennis he had developed at the California Tennis Club in San Francisco while his dad was diplomatic representative there.

But Murphy did manage to win and can clinch it by beating Taft, but a Sinton defeat would give the berth to Robstown if that team beats Fallurris.

In 20, Floresville and Kenedy share the lead with 3-1 records. Floresville holds a victory over Kenedy and thus would win the playoff spot if it beats San Antonio Sam Houston. Kenedy can win it by beating Karnes City if Floresville loses. Sam Houston could win it if Kenedy, Floresville both lose.

They include such former major league stars as outfielder Monte Irvin, slugger Luke Easter and pitcher Gene Bearden. In addition to Duane Pillette, Bubba Church, Bill Serena, Sam Dante, Jim Fridley, Bob Kuzava, Carl Scheib, and Lloyd Merriman.

Pacific Coast League players can be drafted for $10,000, triple A players for $7,500 and so on down to $2,000 for a class D player. It's rare when a big league club dips below the triple A leagues for a player.

A friend in Japan interested Murphy into coming to SMU, and a letter of inquiry to Jordan brought back an offer of a tennis scholarship. Murphy decided to come to SMU, and sent along his Argentine national grass courts championship partner, Oscar Furlong, ahead on a basketball scholarship in the fall of 1953.

Nowadays Murphy and Furlong team to give the Mustangs a strong assortment of shots to win most of his matches because the long absence from top-flight competition took a lot of zip out of his game.

But Murphy's dependence on strategy is okay with Coach Jordan, for an ex-Davis Cupper who can compile a 933 record in collegiate competition by outfoxing his opponents is a mighty handy man to have around.

Suffers Cracked Rib

CLEVELAND, Ohio — UP — Defensive halfback John Pettison of the Cleveland Browns Tuesday was nursing a cracked rib and a slight shoulder separation. He suffered both injuries in Sunday's loss to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Schedules 18 Games

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. — UP — The Rutgers University football team will play a 16-game schedule next season for the first time since 1923. The Scarlet will open its season against Ohio Wesleyan, Sept. 22, and wind up against Columbia, Nov. 24.

Too Many Honks

INDIANAPOLIS — UP — Bernard Gray is a mild, long-suffering person, but he finally decided enough's enough. He complained to police that a horn-honking neighbor has been disturbing him for two years.

Michigan St. Threatens Orange Hopes For 'Championship' Game

Navy May Receive Cotton B Invitation

DALLAS — UP — Felix R. McKnight, president of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, says the Cotton Bowl is "extremely interested" in having Navy in the bowl for the first time.

McKnight released a statement after a United Press story from New York said Navy "would accept a Cotton Bowl bid if it beats Army Nov. 26 at Philadelphia."

The New York story also cited the possibility that Army might get the Cotton Bowl bid if it beats Navy despite the loss of three games.

"It is true that we are extremely interested in the possibility of having Navy...but it has another game, the big one against Army and I feel certain Navy is thinking of that date and not about a bowl game," McKnight said.

"We have considered Navy among several other teams as a possible opponent for our Southwest Conference representative. It is our feeling that the Southwest is entitled to see one of its service academy teams if their authorities should approve a post-season game. It would be a privilege to have them as a guest team but there are several other outstanding teams which must be considered."

"The Southeast, there are Georgia Tech, Mississippi, Auburn and those fast-closing Tennessee and Vanderbilt teams," McKnight said.

The Cotton Bowl president indicated no official announcement would be made until at least Nov. 26, the day the Southwest Conference season ends.

However, Texas Christian can win the bowl berth if it beats Rice next Saturday since Texas A&M, which is leading the conference, cannot play in the Cotton Bowl because of conference suspension.

Senators Sell Mick Vernon In Boston Deal

NEW YORK — UP — The Washington Senators gave up their best player when they included Mickey Vernon in the recent nine-player deal with the Boston Red Sox, but can replace him for a mere $10,000 on Nov. 28 when they make first pick in the annual baseball draft.

Manager Charley Dressen warned not to forget "we have first pick in the draft" when the deal was announced and it's dollars to doughnuts he meant the Senators will attempt to make up for the loss of Vernon by drafting Glen (Rocky) Nelson from the Montreal Royals.

Nelson, who failed in previous trials with the St. Louis Cardinals, Brooklyn Dodgers and Cleveland Indians, had a spectacular season in the International League this year. He topped the circuit with a .364 average, hit 37 homers and knocked in 129 runs in 153 games, and was voted the league's "most valuable player."

In any event, such intriguing possibilities will make Columbus, Ohio, the center of the baseball world's attention when all 14 major league clubs "go bargain hunting" in two weeks.

Former major leaguers released outright to the minors and players who have been in triple and double A classifications four years without receiving a big league trial are eligible to be drafted—and this year the list includes an unusually large number of well-known names.

They include such former major league stars as outfielder Monte Irvin, slugger Luke Easter and pitcher Gene Bearden. In addition to Duane Pillette, Bubba Church, Bill Serena, Sam Dante, Jim Fridley, Bob Kuzava, Carl Scheib, and Lloyd Merriman.

Pacific Coast League players can be drafted for $10,000, triple A players for $7,500 and so on down to $2,000 for a class D player. It's rare when a big league club dips below the triple A leagues for a player.

Country Club Golf Banquet Is Scheduled

The second annual Country Club Golf Tournament Banquet will be held Thursday night at 7:30. It will be a buffet dinner with the trophy presentations to follow. Reservations for the banquet must be turned in by Thursday morning.

Trophies will be presented to the winners at the conclusion of the dinner and all winners are asked to come and bring their wives and enjoy the evening.

The winners were Don Prigmore as the Champion and C. F. McGinnis in the consolation bracket of the championship flight, Martin Lantau in the Class A flight with Al Prigmore as the consolation winner. Myron Marx won the Class B championship and Shorty Lane was the runnerup with the consolation trophy. Loyal Davies and P. D. Grommon will be awarded the Class C trophies with Davies receiving the champion's trophy of that flight.

All participants in the tournament are requested to be on hand when Fred Neagle will recognize L. E. Chisum as last year's champion and make the presentation of the trophies.

"All members are invited to come and root for the trophy winners or cheer them, what ever you wish to do," stated Golf Pro Hart Warren this morning.

Harvester Boosters Meet Again Tonight

The members of the Pampa Harvester club will meet tonight in the gym of the Sam Houston Elementary school to discuss the highlights of the Pampa Odegas game played Saturday at Harvester Park.

The meeting will be called to order by club president Ralph McKinney at 7:30 and should be concluded within one hour.

The films of the game will be shown in conclusion of the meeting and further plans will be discussed concerning the annual football banquet. Plans for securing Bear Bryant as the speaker for the occasion were discussed at last week's meeting.

Reports on the Lubbock Westerners will be given by the coaches who have scouted them and coach Jack Lockett will give his view of the game to come. He will give a report on the physical condition of the Harvesters and their chances of winning the game this week.

"All fans are urged to attend this meeting which will be the first of the remaining two gatherings before the season is concluded," stated Ralph McKinney this morning. The last meeting will be next Tuesday prior to the Pampa Harvester clash.

To Race at Hialeah

MIAMI — UP — El Chama and Prendase, who finished 1-2 in the Washington, D.C. International Park this winter, it was announced Tuesday. The Venezuelan horses will be pointed for the $100,000 Widener and the $50,000 Hialeah turf handicaps.

Oklahoma Still Tops, Maryland Now Third

NEW YORK — UP — Oklahoma retained the No. 1 United Press college football rating Tuesday, but Michigan State moved up to second place ahead of Maryland and threatened to explode Orange Bowl hopes of staging a showdown between the nation's two top teams.

And ironically, Michigan State, which has swept aside some of the nation's toughest opposition since its lone defeat at the hands of Michigan on Oct. 1, may not even receive a bowl bid for its impressive efforts.

A comparatively formful week-end produced few changes in the United Press top 10 teams selected by 35 of the nation's leading coaches. Six of this week's first seven teams — all except fourth-ranked Notre Dame — are New Year's Day bowl prospects.

Oklahoma's split-T errors were the first-place choice of 18 of the 35 coaches; Michigan State was picked tops by 10 coaches and Maryland by four. The only other teams that attracted first-place votes was fifth-ranked UCLA, with two, and seventh-ranked Texas Christian, one.

Orange Bowl promoters are pulling a ball battle for the college football championship. Michigan State and Maryland, who have won 27 straight games and already have clinched an Orange Bowl berth, have games remaining against Nebraska and Oklahoma A&M. Maryland, with a string of 14 triumphs and almost certain to be the Atlantic Coast Conference representative, winds up its regular season against George Washington Saturday.

Attendance Increase Is Hoped For

COLUMBUS, Ohio — UP — Feleorge M. Trautman, president of the minor baseball leagues, said Tuesday he hoped attendance had "turned the corner" and would increase next season.

Minor league teams attracted 19,042,825 paying fans last season, a drop of 542,994 from 1954. Trautman was optimistic about the loss just the same.

"That's the smallest drop in five years, only 2 per cent," he said. "Maybe we have turned the corner and will be on our way up soon. Minor league baseball is healthy and will get more robust."

Trautman was happy to note that the 35 leagues which started out finished the season, unlike the previous year. The minor did lose the Class D-Kitty League, which decided at the end of the season to disband. Its attendance dropped from 241,266 in 1954 to 120,187 this season.

PCC Has Best Mark

Best attendance in the minors was that of the Pacific Coast League, top minor league team, with a gain of 27,569 over 1954 for a paid attendance of 1,810,212. The league's all-star game brought 3,204 paid admissions, boosting total PCL attendance to 1,813,418.

The addition of Omaha and Denver to the American Association boosted its attendance by 378,892, although baseball's second class AAA league, the International League, dropped 81,111. Attendance in the American Association was 1,663,892, while in the International League it was 1,555,205.

The New Mexican League, with a Class AA rating, boasted a paid attendance of 930,795. The Class AA Southern Association gained 3,777 to 1,127,112. The Texas League dropped 106,771 for an attendance of 1,009,243.

Class A Figures

Class A figures showed the Eastern League with a gain of 71,947, for a paid attendance of 633,484. The South Atlantic League lost 41,636 to 818,640. The Western League operating as a six-team league after Omaha and Denver joined the American Association, lost 377,392, for a paid attendance of 497,437.

Johnny Podres, Brooklyn Star, May Be Drafted

ALBANY, N.Y. — UP — The final decision on the draft physical examination of star Brooklyn Dodgers pitcher Johnny Podres probably will be announced in about 10 days by his local selective service board.

That was the indication Tuesday from the results of Podres' examination here and in Troy, N.Y., Monday began to go through official channels. It was considered possible that final acceptance or rejection would be left to Army officials in Washington.

Podres, 25-year-old southpaw who pitched the Dodgers to their first world championship last month, is a doubtful draftee because of an ailing back. The injury, which the young blond pitcher described as a herniated disc, was the reason for his rejection in a similar draft examination in 1952.

Not Too Disturbed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — UP — Coach Dave Strang of Sacramento State College wasn't too disturbed Monday when he took his place among those football mentors who have been hanged in effigy this season. Strang said the incident proved "there's somebody... interested in the Hornets' football team and wants a winner. That's good."

May Get Bowl Bid

PARADISE, Calif. — UP — Jones Junior College of Ellenville, Miss., is a leading candidate for a berth in the Junior Rose Bowl game, it was announced Tuesday.

Charles Seeking Crack At Title

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — UP — Former heavyweight champion Edward Charles, still cocky despite a split decision loss, said Tuesday he planned to keep on fighting.

Charles, seeking another crack at the heavyweight title, lost Monday night to Tozie Hall of Chicago, who once put down champ Rocky Marciano during a sparring drill.

"That bout didn't mean a thing," Charles said. "It could have gone either way."

Tom Tannas, manager of the Cincinnati fighter, was confident that Charles could weather the loss.

"He fought a rugged fight with a tough boy," Tannas said. "We're satisfied with his showing. He won't retire; that's for sure."

Although the decision went against the ex-champ, he looked like a winner in the dressing room after the bout. Hall left the ring with one eye closed but Charles climbed through the ropes without a scratch.

USGA Warns Gambling Is Increasing

NEW YORK — UP — The U.S. Golf Association urged a general tightening up of policy among its member clubs Tuesday in the face of increased cheating and organized gambling.

President Isaac B. Grainger of the USGA warned that golf is being used for ulterior motives in a special bulletin sent to country clubs. He referred to a scandal involving false handicaps in a rich Calcutta pool during a four-ball tournament at the Deepdale Golf Club, Long Island, last September.

"The game is in the keeping of the clubs and their members," Grainger said. "We bespeak your wholehearted support."

Declaring that the "integrity of golf is at stake," Grainger told the clubs that it is time to decide which direction they want golf to take.

"When you answer such questions as to whether to escalate organized gambling, to assign handicaps only when fairly earned, to play the ball as it lies under the rules and to uphold the rules of amateurism."

The USGA has policing authority only over the few national championships it actually runs, so the private clubs are chiefly responsible for their own policy regarding club rules.

In recalling the Deepdale scandal, a tourney which was won by a pair of players using handicaps of 17 and 18, Grainger said, "the club later discovered that those handicaps were false and that the members of the side actually had handicaps of six and three at home."

Grainger added that "cheating can happen anywhere there is a motive other than the play of the game for the game's sake."

Baby-Selling Case Exposed In Kansas

MIAMI, Fla.—UP—An attractive newspaper reporter testified Monday that she posed as an unwed mother in Wichita Kan., and found "approximately" 15 attorneys were engaged in wholesale placements of unwanted children at fees ranging from $800 to $1,500 per baby.

Miss Mary Crice, 28, a reporter on the Wichita Beacon said until her newspaper exposed the attorneys they advertised in the Beacon as "couples who wished to adopt children." She said the attorneys maintained waiting lists of prospective parents.

Her story was related to the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.)

Kefauver asked her if it is a crime to sell babies in Kansas.

"I don't believe it is considered a crime," she replied.

Kefauver indignantly remarked, "Well what is the matter with your legislature? We'll certainly keep an eye out for your legislature and your bar association. This is one of the rottenest situations in the United States."

EAST HAMPTON, Conn.—UP—Two crying third-graders at Memorial School complained to teachers that they had to pay five cents each to use the playground swings. Reds Attack Security Act

WASHINGTON—UP—The Communist party told the Supreme Court Monday the 1950 Internal security act is a "legislative H-bomb" which might destroy freedom of speech in the United States.

In a brief filed with the high court, the party warned that the law is a threat to the spirit of friendliness between East and West achieved at the Geneva conference last summer.

The Supreme Court is scheduled to hear arguments Thursday on the Communists' challenge to the law. It requires the party to register as Moscow-dominated and to open its membership rolls and financial operations to public scrutiny.
