Fighter Careens Out Of Control On Carrier

Six Die As Hook Fails To Catch Arresting Wire

WASHINGTON — UP — A fighter plane careened out of control down the deck of the aircraft carrier Ticonderoga Monday night, killing six men and seriously injuring another.

The Navy announced that the accident occurred in the Mediterranean where the Ticonderoga is operating with the Sixth Fleet. The Navy said an F-2H Banshee, piloted by Ensign O. C. Lightner, Altus, Okla., was making a landing on the carrier after a night navigation flight. Its tail hook failed to engage an arresting wire. The plane bounced over a barricade, careened down the deck and over the bow.

The pilot was picked out of the water 20 minutes later by a motor whaleboat from the destroyer Goodrich. Lightner suffered only scratches and bruises and was not seriously injured.

Listed as killed were: Charles E. Allen, airman, Dalton, Ill.; Gary M. Cobb, airman, South Wardsboro, Vt.; Paul G. Collins, airman apprentice, Houston, Tex.; Herschel B. Daniels, warrant officer, Dickson, Tenn.; Pierce E. Kidd, airman, Wytheville, Va.; Paul G. Leathurby, airman, East Gary, Ind. Lt. Cmdr. Curtis A. Weaver, of Manila, Ark., was critically injured. Another man struck by the jet plane was injured only slightly. His name was not immediately available here.

Benson Makes Appeal

CLEVELAND — UP — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson Wednesday appealed to "every-one" for help in solving the nation's farm problems.

Benson made his broad appeal for "advice and suggestions" in a speech prepared for the 59th annual convention of the National Grange, one of the major farm organizations. "I ask everyone of you—both here at this national grange meeting and home by your radios—to send me your ideas about solutions to the problems we face," Benson said. "Every suggestion will be considered and every letter will receive a personal answer. We will listen to any suggestions from any source—except the suggestion that would turn back to the programs that helped create our present difficult problems."

Thus he turned down in advance any suggestions that the government return to a system of rigid 90 per cent price supports for farm products. "The prime reason why farm families are not sharing fully in our unprecedented prosperity is the accumulation of surplus stock of major farm commodities—surpluses so big that they drive down the price farmers get for their current production," Benson said. "These surpluses have accumulated under rigid supports."

He said situations had been solved involving beef, dairy products, and eggs. But impending is what to do about surplus commodities costing about $7 billion. More than $3.5 billion of that is tied up in wheat and cotton.

Local Offices To Be Closed

In observance of Thanksgiving, all city and county offices will be closed tomorrow along with most of the stores downtown, according to the Chamber of Commerce.

The Merchants Activity Committee will work out final details in connection with observance of Christmas tomorrow morning at 10 in Johnson's Cafe. Program ideas will be discussed. Joe Tooley, chairman, urges all members of the committee to attend and to bring guests.

PITTSBURGH — UP — A spokesman for Westinghouse Electric Corp. estimates that in 10 years there will be $5,000,000 television sets, more than half of them color, in 30,000,000 homes in the United States and Canada.

Bomb Is Planted In Dorm

AMES, Iowa — UP — Authorities began a needle-in-a-haystack search Wednesday for the person or persons who planted a homemade bomb in an Iowa State College dormitory, endangering the lives of 136 coeds.

The device was found, chained to the bannisters of a stairway. An automobile horn blared out in the early morning hours Sunday, awakening janitor Arthur Larson.

Larson found the box containing an automobile battery, five sticks of dynamite, and an "ingenious" triggering device, with a note thumbtacked on the outside.

"Read carefully!" it said. "No one need get hurt. The device will detonate (sic) 20 minutes after horn sounds or on movement of box."

Police Chief Orville Erickson said Larson risked his life by ripping the device apart, disconnecting the detonator cap.

The detonator circuit ran through a mousetrap, held open by an alarm clock. Twenty minutes after the warning of the auto horn first sounded, the trap would have been sprung, setting off five sticks of dynamite.

College officials apparently considered the affair a "prank." Erickson said, and authorities were not notified until Tuesday. They began an exhaustive check, theorizing that a rejected suitor might be responsible, or an emotionally unstable "mechanical genius."

Puzzled by Action "We can't fathom it yet," Sgt. Thomas Lytle said. "We don't know what he had in mind."

Cudrew for he coeds sounded at 10:30 p.m. Sunday night, and police believed the bomb was planted some time after that hour. A late-comer told police that she passed the spot on the stairs 35 minutes before the horn ounded its warning, and that it was not there then.

Police considered it unlikely that incendiary bombs, with the penciled note on white paper prominently displayed.

Police Chief Gives S-D Day Statement

It is entirely possible for Pampa to go through "S-D Day" — Safe Driving Day, Thursday, December 1 — without a single traffic accident, Chief of Police Jim Conner said today.

"We can achieve this goal of no accidents on S-D Day," Chief Conner said. "If we accept the idea that traffic safety is an individual, personal matter.

"If every man, woman, and child in our community will keep in mind that traffic safety is his or her own personal responsibility, we can wipe out the traffic accident problem as effectively as medical science has eliminated some of our dread diseases of the past.

"S-Day" will be observed in every community in the United States. It is a tremendous nationwide effort to prove that traffic accidents can be reduced if all motorists and pedestrians cooperate. The President through his committee for Traffic Safety is lending the full support of his office to this program. It deserves the full support of all of us."

Chief Conner suggested these specific safety rules to drivers and pedestrians: (1) Observe the letter and spirit of all traffic regulations; (2) Be courteous to every driver and pedestrian — practice sportsmanship; (3) Give full attention to driving and walking.

In short, drive and walk as you would have everyone else drive and walk. "Let's make every day Safe Driving Day in Pampa," Chief Conner said.

Services will be held also at the First Church of Christ Scientists at 11 a.m.

Army Revises Its Regulations On G. I. Personnel Security

By JOHN W. FINNEY

WASHINGTON — UP — The Army Wednesday revised its personnel security regulations to protect the individual soldier against unsubstantiated or anonymous charges.

The revised regulations provide that information which might prejudice an individual's reputation shall not be included in his official personnel file if such information is "unsubstantiated."

The regulations also provide that, in general, no adverse information can be made a part of an individual's record without his knowledge or without an opportunity for him to make a rebuttal to the charges.

The new regulations, now being circulated to all Army commands, resulted from an overhauling of the Army's security program ordered by Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker when he took office last summer. They follow by only a few days a new Defense Department directive specifying that draftees suspected of being security risks will be investigated before, rather than after, being inducted.

The Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, which has been studying various phases of the Defense Department's security programs called Jerome D. Fenton, the Pentagon's specialist on personnel security, "for questioning."

Fenton handles the security program for uniformed servicemen, the program for civilian employees in the defense establishment and the industrial security program at defense plants. The subcommittee already has heard testimony criticizing defects in the security program for servicemen and in the industrial program.

The primary emphasis of the regulations is that derogatory information must not be indiscriminately placed in a person's file but should be fully substantiated first.

"Daddy" and "the boy who means everything to me." She referred to herself as "your wife."

"Mama and your five-by-five." Laneri, who appeared not at all embarrassed by the letters, said he couldn't imagine what she meant by calling him "Daddy."

"I've been a sick man," Laneri said. "Even if I wanted to, I couldn't. I'm a victim of TB."

"All I ever did was extend a lot of courtesy and stability," he said, and added that he would do this "for anyone."

Victim of Illness Laneri, a New York merchant broker, explained that he has been ill for 10 years with tuberculosis, and that it would have been physically impossible to have had intimate relations with Mrs. Clark, even if he had desired it.

The state has contended that Laneri was the paramour of Mrs. Clark when she married William P. Clark, her late husband.

Meantime, Judge Willis McGreggor said there would be no time out for Thanksgiving Thursday, and indicated the trial might run into next week.

The state charges that Clark had found out that she didn't love him and that to keep him from cutting her out of his will she guaranteed three Fort Worth gangsters $10,000 to kill him. He was shot to death in his 23-room Fort Worth mansion on May 19, 1953.

Reads Excerpts Laneri was called by District Attorney Howard Fenciler to bolster his charge that Mrs. Clark was misconducting herself with Laneri in the midst of Clark's courtship. He read excerpts from letters Mrs. Clark wrote Laneri between December, 1947, and December, 1949.

The excerpts included these: "You've brought out in me much greater love than I ever experienced before. It's really hell, dear, without you. I, too, long for that home and that little bundle of love which I will give you if you give me half a chance."

"I'm looking forward to a nice weekend with you."

"I can't get enough of that special type of love that you give me. The use of a school gym for basketball practice. Their request met with approval. Their request met with approval. Their request met with approval."

The past six weeks have been wonderful, particularly since we became one."

Approval of bills and invoices She variously addressed him as was made.

Demo Hits Republicans

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON — UP — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) told protesting Republicans Wednesday that "bipartisanship" in foreign policy "does not mean rubber-stampism."

He thus defended Democratic presidential aspirants against GOP complaint that they have repudiated bipartisanship by their criticism of the Eisenhower administration's foreign policy.

Only last Saturday, Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson said he did not expect foreign policy to be a political issue in the 1956 campaign.

In varying degree, however, Adlai E. Stevenson, Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) and Gov. Averell Harriman of New York had some critical remarks about administration foreign policy in weekend speeches. The three are regarded as the chief contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination next year.

"We need a bipartisan foreign policy and the administration has received bipartisan support on the broad outlines of foreign policy," Humphrey commented to reporters. "Bipartisanship does not mean rubber-stampism. It does not mean that you give your right to talk openly and freely over differences you have on the fulfillment of foreign policy."

Humphrey is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations committee and a leading Stevenson backer.

In a statement Tuesday night, Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.) said Democratic presidential possibility had made general attacks on President Eisenhower's foreign policy without any "positive" recommendations of their own for improvements.

He said Mr. Eisenhower has great prestige throughout the world as a "man of peace" and that his leadership should be strengthened rather than used "as a target of negative criticism alone."

Subversive Control Board Awaits Hearing On Cain

WASHINGTON — UP — The Subversive Activities Control Board will take no action in a bias and prejudice case against board member Harry P. Cain until the matter is aired in open hearings here, informed sources said Wednesday.

But they said a case which Cain is hearing in Seattle, Wash., will be recessed until the matter is resolved. Cain has been presiding since Oct. 8 at oral arguments in a case brought by Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. against the Washington Pension Union.

Brownell asked the SABC late Tuesday to reconsider charges of bias and prejudice filed against Cain by the union last February. He made it clear he thought the former Washington senator should be disqualified.

Since both the government and the union have done a complete flipflop the SABC has no choice but to schedule open arguments in the matter, officials here said.

The union filed its motion seeking to disqualify Cain last February. The government opposed it at that time. Then Cain was assigned to the WPU case.

Records on the Seattle proceedings, recently forwarded here, show that these events have since transpired:

On Oct. 2, Jay G. Sykes, attorney for the union, told Cain and a Justice Department attorney in a private session that the union was satisfied Cain could give "an impartial hearing."

On Nov. 11 Cain introduced into the record a letter from the Justice Department questioning his role and Sykes replied, for the record: "Let there be any doubt in the minds of the department we are not now making a new motion to disqualify Cain and we will not make a motion to disqualify him..."

A lot of people who can't run anything but a temperature think they could run the government.

TEEN TOPICS

By HELEN STEWARD

There was never sweeter music than the sound of the 3-5 bell this afternoon. That bell, marked the end of six weeks tests and the beginning of four days of wonderful holidays.

Some one was asked recently what they were most thankful for this year. They answered, "Thanksgiving holidays."
Four days of holidays are truly something to be thankful for because they will give everyone a chance to catch up on sleep and everything they have neglected during the packed schedule of school life.

Course, the weekend won't be spent entirely in rest and leisure; there are billions of things planned. Homecoming will be the biggest activity. All the grades of Pampa

High who are in Pampa or have traveled to Pampa for the celebration will gather in the cafeteria for a coffee and a reminiscing session. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. and the coffee follows immediately. All grades, and especially the Classes of 1906 to 1920, who are the honored classes, are urged to be present by Mrs. Roy Hall, president of the Alumna Association.

Eight journalists from PHS attended a conference at Texas Tech last weekend. They came home with several honors, too. The Little Harvesters won first place in printed papers. Jeneane Price, junior and LH feature editor, received a first place in news writing. Bill Atkinson, junior sports editor, won first in sports stories. Third places went to Malcolm Brown for photography and Martha Rittaler for advertising.

Junior Red Cross Drive Underway

According to Mrs. A. D. Hills, who is assisting in the Red Cross office in the absence of Mrs. F. W. Shotwell, chapter executive secretary, a total of $379.83 has been collected during the Junior Red Cross drive last week. Mrs. Hills stressed this is an incomplete total as some of the schools have not yet reported.
The enrollment drive was held in Pampa and Lefors elementary schools and high schools.
One of the JRC activities is the packing of individual gift boxes each year with contents provided by the students themselves and shipped as a token of good will to the school children in other countries. High school students fill chests with school supplies, each adequate for a classroom of 40 students for a school year. These are sent to countries which have suffered natural disasters or war to help restore normal school facilities.

Optimist Donations Growing

Hundreds of Pampans interested in boys have donated $1550.00 for the Optimist Boys Club Project. These results were reported recently to the Optimist Fund Raising Committee.
Funds are far short of the $10,000.00 goal, but interest and enthusiasm generated since last week's mail campaign is growing. Six thousand letters were mailed by the Optimist Club requesting a small donation to support a building program for the boys of this community.
Club President, John Schofield, urged that those who have not yet contributed, do so as soon as possible.
He pointed out that the club proposes to get started on the land clearing project to ready 3 baseball diamonds for the summer programs by the first of next year. School field stated that contributions can be mailed to: Optimist Boys Work Fund, Box 802, Pampa, Texas.

Wheeler Harvest Nearly Complete
SHAMROCK (Special) — As last week ended, it was estimated the cotton harvest in Wheeler County was two-thirds completed. Some 4,327 bales of cotton had been processed by the three gins in Shamrock and one at Twitty by Thursday.
The Traders Compress in Shamrock had received 9,435 bales up to Tuesday night, an increase of 4,443 bales in the past two weeks.
Three of the ginners interviewed estimated that gathering in this area was two-thirds complete. The fourth operator believes that 70 percent of the crop has been ginned.
Grade and staple of much of the cotton was lower last week than at the peak of the season. Some has been classified as spots, 13-13-inch. Most of it was grading strict low middling 7-8-inch, 29-32-inch or 15-16-inch.

JayCees Plan Pancake Supper

Details and arrangements for the big Pancake Supper at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 2, at the High School Cafeteria, were worked out at the Junior Chamber of Commerce session yesterday afternoon.
Johnny Campbell made a "pen talk" before the club, urging them to sell 1500 tickets by December 2. Campbell said, "Let's get these tickets circulated, to make money we've got to sell." He commented on the publicity being given through radio and the press and asked for a distribution of posters in stores.
Reports of committee chairmen were made following the session, at which time Campbell said, "Let's sell — sell — sell." Dr. Bob Syrett, ticket sales chairman, agreed to work out a list of merchants to be contacted by Campbell and other JayCees today. Three or four firms are being assigned to each member. Tickets are being sold by Hi-Y and Seven-Eleven Club members of Pampa High, and are available at the following firms: Highland Pharmacy, Richard Drug, Wilson Drug, B & B Pharmacy, and Elmer's Super Market.

About 10 JayCees will work in the Santa Day Parade, dressed in chef hats and aprons, selling tickets to the Pancake Supper. Door prizes, to be donated by local merchants, will be presented after the program. Winners will be announced in Sunday's paper.
A brief talk was given by John Schofield, president of the Optimist Club, who commended the JayCees on the work they are doing in helping the Optimist's programs. "We appreciate your work more than you know," he said.
Schofield indicated that over 600 boys were participating in the overall program, and that over 50 are now registered for boxing. He stated that the headquarters to be built as a part of the building program were not to take the place of a Pampa youth center. "We do ask and appreciate your help. We can always count on this club and we know it," he concluded.

Bob Carmichael, president, announced that a Bosses Night banquet will be held Tuesday night at The Amarillo Country Club. Hugh McKenna, national president, and Ed Stumpf, state president, are to be the principal speakers. The Light Crust Doughboys will furnish the entertainment next Tuesday, he indicated.
Christmas decorations will gaily bedeck the streets of Pampa next Sunday. The JayCees are to meet at Johnson's Cafe at 7 a.m., ready to start to work on their annual project. They prepared the bells and other decorations last night in the basement of the City Hall.

Pastor Says Galveston Open
GALVESTON — UP — A prominent minister charged Tuesday that Galveston "closed" by a citizen-backed vice clampdown two months ago, has slipped back into the ways of sin.
"If Galveston is not wide open, it is at least three-quarters open," said the Rev. George Scotchmer, head of the Galveston Ministerial Association.

Scotchmer added that "it is now apparent that our law enforcement officers' declarations that they would uphold the law was only 'window dressing'.
And E. J. Pennington Sr., president of the chamber of commerce which sparked the blackout on vice and gambling, agreed.
"We are subject to the actions of our duly-elected officials," Pennington said. "On our request they closed the town. Now, apparently, they have allowed vice operations to re-open."

DIRTY-BURNING TAIL-END vs. NEW GULF NO-NOX

Gulf No-Nox Gasoline burns clean. Note the black deposit, on plate at left, caused by the "dirty-burning tail-end" of gasoline—the part which Gulf refines out in making New Super-Refined NO-NOX. But see how clean new NO-NOX leaves the plate at right. Now—in your own car—see how new NO-NOX can give you more miles per gallon in the short-trip, stop-and-go driving you do most.

Gulfpride Select Oil works clean. Here's why: Most conventional oils are refined only to the stage shown in A. But New Gulfpride Select is further refined by the Akhlor Process—removing up to 15% more of the carbon-formers, in B... C contains the new super-refined oil that gives you more miles per quart because it has natural viscosity (body)—contains no artificial thickeners that break down in service.

ARE YOU PLANNING TO DRESS A TURKEY, or turkeys, for Thanksgiving? If you are, you don't have to throw away the turkey feathers. You can make a lovely Christmas decoration with them. At least, that is what Mrs. Jacquie Noland, 1100 Varnon Drive, does. Of course, she has an almost inexhaustible supply of feathers as her father-in-law owns the Noland turkey farm in White Deer, but it is a real clever idea.

THE INSPIRATION for the turkey-feather Christmas decoration came to Mrs. Noland when she was dressing a lot of turkeys for her father-in-law. She thought it was such a waste to throw away all those feathers. Following a suggestion from a friend, she began experimenting and came up with a Christmas-tree centerpiece, or decoration, made from turkey feathers.

Are you wondering how turkey feathers can be made to look like a Christmas tree? Well, Mrs. Noland dyes them—white, red, green, pink and almost any color you would want.

Here is the process, from the beginning. Strip and wash the wing and tail feathers of the turkey. Then boil and dry them. Next step is to die them the desired color and dry them again. Strip the side of the feather, taking off the sort of hard coarse feathers. Then cement the little downy feathers to the "stalk" of the larger feather.

For the base, use a rounded stereofoni form, and for the tree trunk, use a longer, rod-type stereofoni form. Then stick the feathers into the "trunk" so it looks like a Christmas tree.

For added attraction, Mrs. Noland sprays the feathers with different-colored glitter, and the result is very nice. She says she is going to try to experiment with little stars and tiny, light-weight balls. She explained that the feathers won't hold any decoration that is at all heavy. Another variation she plans to try is sequins.

Mrs. Noland makes two sizes of trees. The medium size is about 17 inches high and the big ones is a little over two feet high. She says it takes quite a bit of time to make the trees, and she has a hard time keeping up with orders for them.

I think Mrs. Noland has created quite a unique and clever decoration. And she says she began from nothing. After she got the idea, she had to experiment with different methods to find out the best and most effective way to make them. And she is still experimenting, which is always a sign of progress.

ALL THIS opens up an unlimited field of ideas. It might be fun to experiment with different uses for turkey feathers.

turkey feathers. I was wondering how they'd work on a hat. It might be quite attractive, if you used a design to keep the feathers away from your face so they wouldn't tickle you to death. If you could find a stereofoni turkey form, it might make a nice centerpiece—maybe a brightly-colored, glittered turkey. Or maybe you can think of other uses for them—you who are far more creative than I. If you think of something and want to share the idea, why not let me know?

HERE'S ONE WAY to really click with the camera addicts in the family, and save them money as well. Store color film in the freezer to more than double the life of the film, say Amara freezer home economists. The cold storage will also assure correct color balance in the film.

Add sparkle to that punch party by freezing leftover fruit juices in layers in a large straight-side container or fancy mold. Each layer should be frozen before pouring in the next, explains Sara Walls, Amara freezer home economics director. Color contrast can be increased by tinting some of the pale juice, and the end product will be an attractive float for your punch bowl.

Teenage Girls' Beauty, Brains Pay Off According To Week-In-Manhattan News

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

NEW YORK—UP—A week in Manhattan:

Brains and beauty pay off at an early age now. One teenager took off for Europe Friday as a prize for designing a doll; eight girls spent the week in Manhattan as winners in a nationwide sewing contest, and a "Young Miss America" contest opened for girls from 7 to 14 years old.

Final prizes of $1,000 and $500 went to two of the eight young seamstresses at a fashion show in a Park Avenue hotel. A black plaid dress with long torso lines won first prize for Sally Moffett, 17, of New Rochelle, N. Y., and a cotton dress made along Alice in Wonderland lines won second prize in the Singer dress-making contest for 12-year-old Nancy Ann Archie of Houston, Tex.

Judy Foster, 16, of Creve Coeur, Mo., will be touring Germany, Austria, Turkey, Italy and France for the next 19 days as top prize winner in the national doll contest sponsored by Seventeen magazine and Save the Children Federation.

As for Young Miss America—that contest still is going on. But brains will get a girl nowhere. Appearance is the important thing in this judging.

Add to whimsical Christmas gift lists: jewel-toned feather dusters with gilded handles and a simulated tiger skin rug for children.

Both gift items are included in Lilly Dache's collection of boutique gifts unwrapped officially for Christmas shoppers Thursday.

The tiny tiger skin actually is part sleeping bag—a child can crawl into it to keep warm while watching TV. The tiger has red felt claws tipped with rhinestones and felt butterflies perched on its head.

Scottish beauty queen Isobel Duff is here from Aberdeen as Scotland's "queen of industry," to urge people to visit her native land and to tell a few jokes on Scottish thriftiness.

"Aberdeen is noted for two things, you know," the red-haired, shy beauty explained. "Its kippers and its jokes about thur-rifty Scots."

Course for Young Women With Political Ambitions Is Inaugurated In New York

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

NEW YORK—UP—When women want something, they will wait, outwork and outfox their competition to get it.

Now we have a fresh young generation of women who want careers in politics. They have political backgrounds their mothers can't match. They grew up, unlike their mothers, in households where women voted as often as the men and did more of the doorbell-ringing drudgery than men had time for in political campaigns.

Training Course
A training course for these young women with political ambitions opens here this week, specifically designed for the girl who thinks she would like to run for office some day.

The first half dozen girls to sign up for the course have interesting similarities. They have the patience to take the long route to public office; they have demonstrated they are willing to work hard as volunteers in political campaigns; they are well educated and intelligent—and in almost every case their own mothers were active political volunteer workers.

"We assume their enthusiasm will last," said Helen Moberg, a member of the Women's National Republican Club which is sponsoring the course for its own junior members. "But they have chosen a terrifically hard future. It is hard physically and emotionally. We want them to understand what they're up against."

Expert Advice
The club agreed to organize the course for its junior group of women members, ranging in age from 17 to 35, after numerous requests. They contacted eight high-ranking women in politics, including Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me.), Rep. Katharine St. George (R-N.Y.) and Rep. Edith Norton Rogers (R-Mass.) for advice.

Mrs. St. George sent word from Washington that "you must have a sense of humor and the hide of a rhinoceros. Politics is no place for the over-sensitive."

Mrs. Smith's words of advice, which will be read to the ambitious young women at one of the classes, reminded them that "politics is simply home operations on a large scale. Home is government in miniature. In principle, the operation of government is not unlike the basic operation of keeping a home well-regulated."

Mrs. Rogers listed the qualities indispensable to a woman politician as, "character, courage, health, patience, intelligence and a desire to serve."

Womanlike, Though
Barbara Witzell, a 23-year-old "Girl Friday" in an advertising agency here, and one of the 25 young women expected to show up for the first class Thursday night, says she "certainly" hopes to run for congress some day.

Womanlike, though, these young political aspirants reserve the right to change their minds. They do not put a career above everything.

One of the early registrants dropped out three days ago. She got engaged.

"Would your boyfriend object to your going into politics?" she was asked when she resigned from the course. She had been one of the 5 girls most adamant about wanting to run for office.

"Oh, no," she said, "but I just don't think I'll have time."

Half its Horsepower is for Safety!

A pretty steep hill, you'd say?

Well, not so far as this gentleman is concerned. He just gave the accelerator a little encouragement with his toe . . . and swept from bottom to top so effortlessly he was scarcely aware of it.

For he's at the wheel of a beautiful new 1956 Cadillac. And beneath that long, sleek, graceful hood rests the smoothest, most powerful engine in Cadillac history.

The fact is that this great new Cadillac engine is powerful and dynamic far beyond the requirements of normal usage. In the course of ordinary motoring, it is entirely possible that the driver will never have to put the accelerator down to the floor board.

But how wonderful that extra length of throttle will be if he does need it!

It will be there to give him that extra burst of speed that can carry him free from a difficult driving situation.

It will be there in case he needs it for safety in passing . . . or to answer the challenge of a mountain road.

And even when not in active use, it will add to his motoring pleasure.

It will bring him confidence and contentment and peace of mind . . . and it will provide the kind of operating economy and dependability that can come only from a motor car that literally loafs at the legal limits of the highway.

Of course, Cadillac's magnificent performance is only part of the exciting Cadillac story for 1956. There is inspiring beauty . . . and extraordinary luxury . . . and superlative craftsmanship. For this is, literally, the Cadillac of Cadillacs.

Why not stop in soon and let us show you what we mean?

We've got the keys and the car—all you have to provide is an hour of your time.

We can promise you . . . it will be the most revealing sixty minutes you ever spent at the wheel of a motor car.

Failure Of Force

Proponents of government schools sustain their point of view by repeating over and over again that they want an equal educational opportunity for every boy and girl. Having established the validity of their opinion by much repetition, they embark upon the fulfillment of their desire through the use of aggressive force.

With the passage of each year, the same persons, who always depend on government, find that they have fallen short of their goal. Equal educational opportunities for all (if EDUCATION is meant and not simply baby sitting), is as far from reality as ever. So, the proponents of getting the government to do the job call for still more government, still more taxes, still more force.

To begin with, in America, the hand of government in the school system was not heavy. Local boards raised their own funds, hired their own teachers, set up their own policies and managed to instill a little Latin and some pretty fair fundamentals in to the minds of some of the children. But this was not enough.

Presently the school boards expanded in political power and prestige. They received city and county blessings. Finally the several states came to their rescue with funds. But, even this was not enough.

Now the big cry is for the federal government to get into the act and provide money for every device and desire of the professional educators. And, if federal "aid" to education should be sanctioned (it has been going on surreptitiously for years), this will still not be the end of it. Equal educational opportunities for every boy and girl simply will not come about by means of government even when all levels of government are employed.

The fault is not in the hopes and, let us presume, the intentions of the educators. The fault is with the means employed to gain a very desirable end. Government, however big and powerful, just can't do the job. Failure of the government to accomplish at local, county and state level should convince the most stubborn that even with the federal government in on the scheme, the end result will be the same. Aggressive force just has no business in the educational picture. Government is merely an agency to collect money and in most states to compel attendance. The only difference in local, county, state or federal government is in the size of the stick.

Many persons today are objecting to the idea of permitting FEDERAL "aid" to education. Yet, most have no objection to state "aid." Thus they do not object to aggressive force and violence in principle; they merely object to the use of the stick when the stick, in their opinion, becomes too large. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, until a few years ago president of Columbia University, had this to say about the problem:

"One of the most noteworthy of recent developments in American life is the zeal with which machinery is designed and built ostensibly to serve various public interests and undertakings, but in reality to control them. When anything appears to go wrong, or when any desirable movement seems to lag, a cry goes up for the creation of some new board or commission, and for an appropriation of public funds to maintain it in reasonable comfort. So far as education is concerned, there has been over-organization for a long time past. It is now proposed to bureaucratize and to bring into uniformity the educational system of the whole United States, while making the most solemn assurance that nothing of the kind is intended. The glory and the successes of education in the United States are due to its freedom, to its unevenness."

Truthfully, political authority, whether federal, state or local, is unwanted in education. We must return the school to the free market and bring about a separation between school and state.

Labor Pays For Services Rendered

I am continuing to quote from yesterday's article published in The Freeman magazine of November. It was written by Rev. Edmund A. Optiz.

Since I believe our trouble comes from too few people understanding the true meaning of justice, honesty and liberty and since this article gets at the roots of our ethical and moral problems, it is certainly worth reading. From here on Rev. Optiz is speaking:

"Labor's Cause
"If labor's cause is the cause of all humanity, as it appears to be, then all who fail to do it homage virtually excommunicate themselves from membership in the human clan. As viewed through Social Gospel lenses, 'labor's cause' is the sum of everything noble and uplifting. It is the way to better housing, finer education; and it is an up-to-date way of practicing religion besides! Sarah Cleghorn wrote in a celebrated poem.

Ah, let no Local him refuse!
Comrade Jesus hath paid his due Whatever other be debarred.
Comrade Jesus hath his red card.
"Jerome Davis, formerly of Yale Divinity School, dedicated his book, Labor Speaks for Itself on Religion (Macmillan, 1929), to the labor leaders of all nations and went on to say, 'In aiding labor, they have been followers of the carpenter of Nazareth.' And John Ramsay of the CIO, whose job is to work with clergymen, pays tribute to the labor leaders who have left the Church: 'I do not feel,' he says, 'that they lost their religion. The labor movement became the outlet for that religious zeal. To me, those men who have built the great labor unions in our country have been motivated by a spiritual zeal...'

"One more quotation in this vein will indicate why it is so difficult to discuss unionism with churchmen of that kind on its merits. Kermit Ely, a churchman who became an education director for the CIO, regards the labor movement as 'a militant effort to bring about the end of the common man and the elimination of poverty.' It is 'the alternative to wars and revolutions.' It is 'the way to produce houses, schools, and playgrounds for happy families and healthy children. Those who stand in the way of such an achievement are sinners, and it is our task to convict them of their sin.'

"More in the same vein is to be found in the volume from which these quotations were taken, Labor's Relation to Church and Community, edited by Liston Pope, Dean of Yale Divinity School, from speeches delivered at the Institute for Religious and Social Studies.

"In the presence of such sentiments as these, the only proper discussion may be an awe-struck silence. Simpler than discussion would be to line up all those who favor wars and revolutions and who can't stand happy families and healthy children, and so to dispose of them as to leave no mess to clean up afterward; then the world could safely be turned over to the righteous remnant — the labor leaders and the supporting churchmen. In actual fact, of course, every man of good will wants to see others decently housed, fed, and clothed; he wants them to be healthier, better educated, and with fewer prejudices and hates. The big question, then, is how to go about achieving these admittedly desirable ends. But this is to put the issues on the mundane level of means, operational procedures and techniques — than which nothing is more irritating to those working time-and-a-half against a deadline to bring in their Kingdom of God on earth."

"The Nature of Unionism."
"To assert trade unionism is a device for ushering in the millennium is to avoid saying what unionism really is. The person who approaches social problems from an ethical base cannot make up his mind about the right and wrong of unionism unless he understands the necessary conditions surrounding it as well as the premises upon which it is based.

"Trade unionism stands or falls on its claim to raise wages. If unions do not improve the material lot of their members, then every other reason adduced for union organization has the rug pulled out from under it. In modern times, the general level of wages and well-being has been raised by vast accumulations of capital — by the multiplicity of machines and industrial processes. These things, which have made the worker more productive, have, for that reason, raised his wages. For wages are part of production. The unions neither seek nor deserve credit for inventions or for accumulations of capital; what they claim is that by an organized threat of violence they have persuaded the employer off his moneybags so that the share of created wealth going to the man who works for wages has increased percentage-wise. Jerome Davis voices the sentiments of many unionists when he declares that 'capitalism, by its inherent nature, tends to exploit the worker.' The militant union is the answer to this alleged exploitation.

"Have the unions raised the general wage level? If their claim holds water, statistics should show a sharp rise in the wage level coincident with their rise to power. The figures do not show any such upgrading. The cumulative effect of statistics gathered for more than half a century indicates that the percentage return to wage earners of the total value added by manufacture has remained remarkably constant. Some spectacular and temporary gains made by some unions have been at the expense of other wage earners, organized and unorganized, and too often these spectacular gains put workers out of jobs. The general wage level, as a proportion of production, remains constant."

Adlai Says G.O.P. Carrying Out Demo Idea Of Security

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Democratic politicians now believe that they can knock out the word, "Peace," from the "Peace and Prosperity" slogan with which the Republicans had hoped to remain in power after the 1956 election.

Adlai E. Stevenson, leading contender for the Democratic Presidential nomination, has furnished the tip-off. A few months ago, he was urging more impatient politicians to await further foreign developments before assailing the Eisenhower-Dulles program. After all, he pointed out, they were trying to carry out the Roosevelt-Truman ideas of collective security.

The only possible point of attack, he argues, would be the means and the success with which they implemented and executed predecessor policy. Referring to the Geneva Summit Conference and Eisenhower's appeal for a swap of military blueprints, he said:

"It proves that contrary to many people's belief, the United States was no more of a threat to peace than the Russians, despite three years of our 'get tough' policy... Now, Stevenson regards the Administration's handling of foreign questions as "mess." He will soon elaborate on that one-word indictment, and furnish a preview of the Democrats' forthcoming strategy in this field.

Stevenson himself will quip as well as thrust, as he did in 1952. Suggesting that there was a quality of "appeasement" in our eagerness to negotiate with Moscow, he has joked like for "pleading with Zhdanov, a third-string Communist, to please believe that the United States wants peace."

The Democrats will contend that our position throughout the world is less secure than it was when the Republicans took over the White House. They will also insist that we are nearer to war of a global nature.

Geneva has not solved the basic problem of German unification. On the contrary, they maintain that by a spirit of overoptimism after the MOPSY

Mac Draws Blank In Early Christmas Shopping Spree

By HENRY McLEMORE

Having read ten thousand times over and don't know where anything is and spend what seems months looking for it, I once went to buy a piano at last minute and got a temporary Christmas clerk. It took him a good fifteen minutes to locate a baby grand. And with me helping him, too.

Nope, I'm going down town on Christmas Eve after dark, as usual.

Yesterday offered none of this. The stores were only moderately crowded. I could get to a counter with no trouble at all, there was an abundance of clerks to serve me, and the shelves and counter displays were filled to capacity.

It was no fun at all. Absolutely none. It was like skiing without snow, hunting birds with blanks, or kissing a girl's picture and not the girl.

All my Christmas spirit fled. The final blow took place when I asked a clerk if she could suggest something to give a fourteen-year-old girl.

"Yes, is it her birthday?"
"No," I said, "for Christmas."
She looked at me as if I had said "For Arbor Day," or "For her graduation from Miss Elliott's Classes for Wayward Girls."

She recovered after a bit and said, "Oh, Christmas, I see, Well, sir..."

But by that time I had caught the express escalator for the street floor.

The jam-packed shelves and counters are a strong drawback to early Christmas shopping. There is so much on display that a man can't make up his mind what to buy. Just when he settled on something his eye catches something more attractive.

More different from last-second shopping! Then the stores are as depleted as Mother Hubbard's well-known cupboard and there is no shilly-shallying about what to buy.

You buy what is left and like it, even if it means sending a 10-year-old boy a shaving mirror and your grandmother a tie that lights up and says "Hello, Kid!"

Another thing you miss when you shop early is the absence of the temporary Christmas help. You know the kind I mean. They come

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK. — Let us not stroll down the garden-path of psychosomatic medicine (you can avoid a common cold by being certain that your wife loves you) today, but, instead, look upon something new to the public but not to research. The word and the item is bioflavonoids, and if it sounds to you like something out of science fiction, don't flinch. Your next cold may be eased and routed because right here in this space, which covers everything from tubeless tires to welded steel, not counting the denizens of Broadway and New York, you may have the information on bioflavonoids.

There are professors at UCLA in California who vow that a man distrustful of his wife's affections is a set-up to catch cold. There is a doctor in New York who advocates walking on all fours to obtain relief from colds. He has something; the posture pitches the sinuses forward and automatically causes them to drain and the pressure on them to ease. If you don't believe it, try it. You'll look awfully silly, but you'll feel better.

Right instinct
I once had a grandmother who learned that you could ease a cold, if not shatter it, by boiling grapefruit skins and drinking down the bitter brew in humblerful. I also have observed men gulping down hot toddies and gnawing the lemon skins in Scotch mists (the drinks, not what happens on the mists). Their instincts were right. In citrus there is help. But you could eat a crate of lemons or oranges and not get the help a small dosage of bioflavonoids can give you.

And, since the cold season is upon us, I rush to you with the happy news. These bioflavonoids can help anything from chicken pox to coronary thrombosis. The term was coined six years ago, the substance was discovered in 1922. Which only proves how long it takes for a good thing to reach the sneezing public.

Flavonoids are a broad group of compounds found abundantly in plants, fruits and vegetables. Where there is yellow in nature—there is flavonoid. They have found about 200 of them, all useful in various ailments. The most potent come from citrus fruits. Which is why the lemon peel chews was on the right track but getting a diluted version. And the flavonoids do not come only from the skins of lemons and oranges. They come richest from the meat of the fruit. They have to be highly concentrated into capsule form, like say 1,000 oranges to a capsule, before they battle what ails you.

If you want to be persnickety and ask just how citrus or any other flavonoids work you'll have to consult such far uninformed men. They are not sure. Even the laboratory geniuses aren't sure. They aren't sure exactly how penicillin or cortisone work, either, for that matter. But as surely as chlorophyll exists and is a powerful agent in the plant field, that important and powerful are the flavonoids.

Ask The Doctor
If your doctor has not mentioned these to you, it may be that you haven't needed them. There have been more than 800 medical papers on the subject and the entire session of this year's annual meeting of the New York Academy of Sciences was devoted to them. After all, they have helped in rheumatic fever, tonsillitis, influenza, nosebleeds, high blood pressure, complications in diabetes, polio, internal bleeding, chicken pox, tooth extractions, upper respiratory diseases and, as mentioned, coronary thrombosis. In addition to certain ailments not convenient to describe. They seem to work on bacteria as well as viruses. One man is working until late at night on the theory that they might even reduce the effects of atomic radiation.

The best way to find out about citrus bioflavonoids is to ask your doctor. He knows how and when to use them and what commercial medicines contain them. This column wasn't designed to sell medicine. But, now and then, struggling around all that is New York it comes on something fascinating.

Anything that can ease the common cold is fascinating. And the flavonoids seem to do that. How? It's a long story, but the belief in research is that they decrease the size of the capillaries and restore the "cement" substances around the capillary walls. I didn't understand it, either.

THE Cracker BARREL

EAGLE ROCK, Cal. — When it comes to getting the Democratic nomination, I don't believe Governor Frank J. Lausche of Ohio is a dead duck yet. In fact, he is getting less dead every minute. In spite of being a Democrat, Lausche is said to have voted for Taft in his reelection campaign of 1950. Lausche has always been a PRO-American. Last January, Executive DeSapio, New York's Democratic political boss, is said to have sounded Lausche out on him. The Lauchies didn't like him, out of a lot of other people did.

Then came the big news, when Senator Richard Russell of Georgia recommended him for the nomination the other day. THIS IS THE FIRST TIME IN HISTORY THAT A SOUTHERN DEMOCRAT HAS RECOMMENDED A CATHOLIC FOR THE PRESIDENCY. It is argued that he could not only pull the Southern Democrats, but a lot of Northern conservative Democrats as well. And a lot of conservative Republicans too. All the patriotic Americans who, in resistance to one-worldism, have for years had no one to vote for. He might avert what many political experts fear may be a VOTER'S STRIKE by a large section of the country — maybe the largest section — in 1956. He's a man to watch. And maybe to root for and vote for.

Sooner's Support As Mythical Champion Increases

Oklahoma Is Set With O Bowl Bid

By NORMAN MILLER
NEW YORK — Oklahoma's split-T powerhouse picked up increased support as the No. 1 college football team in the United Press ratings Tuesday with one week left to decide the mythical national championship.

Coach Bud Wilkinson's Sooners now seek an impressive victory over Oklahoma A & M in their season finale next Saturday to solidify their claim to the national title. If successful, it will mark the second time in the past five years that Oklahoma wins the top honor.

Twenty-two of the 35 leading coaches who comprise the United Press rating board picked the Sooners as the No. 1 team this week. Second-ranked Michigan State attracted six first-place votes; Maryland and UCLA, which ranked third and fourth, respectively, each had three first-place votes, and seventh-ranked Texas Christian received one.

Ohio State jumps two places in the 17-0 upset victory over Michigan produced the biggest shakeup in this week's top 10. The result boosted the Buckeyes two notches to the No. 6 ranking behind Notre Dame, Michigan, which led the ratings for four weeks this season, dropped out of the top 10 for the first time.

Following Texas Christian, which retained the No. 7 rating, came Texas A&M, Georgia Tech and Navy, each advancing one place from last week. The Midshipmen returned to the top 10 after an absence of two weeks, even though they were idle last week.

The Rose and Orange Bowls thus have correlated this week's first four teams. Oklahoma and Maryland will meet in the Orange Bowl, while Michigan State and UCLA are headed for the Rose Bowl. Texas Christian has clinched the host role in the Cotton Bowl.

Sooners Widen Lead
The Sooners, who retained the top spot for the third week in a row, widened their lead over Michigan State from 15 to 24 points. Oklahoma's first-place vote total was four more than last week. Wilkinson's marauders extended their winning streak to 28 and clinched their 10th consecutive Big Seven championship with a 41-0 triumph over Nebraska.

With points distributed 10 down to 1 for votes from first to 10th places, here is how the top 10 lined up: Oklahoma 317, Michigan State 283, Maryland 268, UCLA 245, Notre Dame 210, Ohio State 171, Texas Christian 152, Texas A & M 141, Georgia Tech 131, Navy 81-1.

Others: Auburn 25, Michigan 24, Pittsburgh 15, Stanford 5, West Virginia and Mississippi 4 each, Washington and Duke 3 each, Southern California and Iowa 2 each.

Army-Navy Clash Is Unpredictable

By OLIVER MORRISON
ANNAPOLIS Md., —UP— Eddie Erdelatz, blandly professed Tuesday to have no idea what to expect from either team when his Navy squad guns for its fifth victory in six starts against Army Saturday—and perhaps a Cotton Bowl berth.

Despite persistent reports of a possible Cotton Bowl bid if Navy wins Saturday, Erdelatz refused to comment but acknowledged that the squad and coaching staff found the Sugar Bowl trip last season a "very pleasant experience."

They should have, The Tars set back Mississippi 21-0 in that one. Powerful Navy probably will go into the Army game a six and a half point favorite, but Erdelatz, one of the canniest coaches in the business, had nothing but a clouded crystal ball before him when asked about the 56th renewal of the service football classic before 102,000 at Municipal Stadium in Philadelphia.

"We'll be in there working Saturday," Erdelatz said in the understatement of the week. "But," he added, "the only thing I know about it for sure is that it will be a thriller. I never heard of an Army-Navy game that wasn't."

Erdelatz did concede that Navy will be at full strength although team captain and guard John Hopkins will wear a face mask to protect his injured lower left jaw. Halfback Chet Burchett has fully recovered from an ankle injury.

Erdelatz hasn't seen Army this year but he said all reports indicated the Cadets had a "very good line, very fast, very aggressive and with good team work."

Earlier during the practice both Willard and coach Smokey Cates set up two lines with dummy runners and corrected all the blocking and tackling faults. Criticism of the Borgans' defense was the order of the day, as this, claimed Willard, was the key to Borger's downfall to Amarillo.

Playing quarterback and looking sharper every day is junior Bob Page, the lanky boy with so much natural talent that has been fended in because of the small line playing in front of him.

Gene Sewell and Len Hill, two speedsters brought up from the B team, have been slowly working into the thick of things and may see a lot of action Thursday, although it is doubtful whether either will start at the halfback slots. Sewell, however, should do most of the punting.

Starting at the halfs will probably be Gary Braden and Don Chambliss, the latter having worked up to the first string in the last two games with a status of only a junior. Braden, the big ground gainer in the backfield, should carry the brunt of the Bulldogs' ground attack again.

Bulldogs Hope For An Upset At Thanksgiving Day Contest

Bulldogs' Last Chance To Win District Game

By EARL GLOZ
Borger News Herald Sports Editor
BORGER — Monday, Nov. 21, the Bulldogs worked out until darkness fell, putting the accent on contact work.

Coach Bill Willard stressed the lack of tackling and blocking in the 33-0 loss to Amarillo last Saturday. Another long hard workout was scheduled for Tuesday because of the short time space involved before the tilt with the Harvesters Thanksgiving Day.

After taking the first three warm-up games from fairly tough competition, the Bulldogs will likely be running mostly from the straight T, but have used an accentuated split-T recently.

The Bulldogs have scored a total of 63 points but have allowed their opponents to score 210 while Harvesters have scored only 56 points and have allowed 152 points scored against them. The percentage here would give the Harvesters a seven point advantage.

In Post season games the Harvesters dropped one game to the Vernon Lions and then came back to defeat the Paschal Panthers 21-7 for their only victory of the season until the Lubbock upset. The Austin El Paso Panthers tied with the Pampa Harvesters 6-6 in the season opener.

The Borger Bulldogs racked up three impressive wins before they entered the 1-AAAA district games. They dropped Monterey 13-0, Fort Worth Tech. 33-0 and then stormed by Northeast Oklahoma City 39-7. Since entering the district competition they have been winless with their best game being the 20-12 defeat at the hands of the Odessa Bronchos.

Luppino Gets Shot At Two New Records

NEW YORK, Nov. 22—UP—Art Luppino, 175-pound University of Arizona halfback can set two all-time collegiate football records Saturday if he has a good day against Arizona (Tempe) State.

NCAA statistics show Luppino leading all major college players in total offense and rushing with 1,245 yards. The fleet Arizona back, who won a track letter last spring as a dash man, has the same total for both departments because he has made all his yards carrying the ball.

If he holds his challengers this week, he will become the first college player ever to gain more ground by ball-carrying alone than anyone else could muster by rushing and passing combined. He also would become the first player ever to lead the nation's rushers two straight seasons.

George Welsh of Navy and Jim Swink of Texas Christian are the biggest threats to Luppino's hopes. Welsh is runner-up in total offense with 1,163 yards and goes against Army Saturday trailing Luppino by 82 yards. Swink is third with 1,152 and goes into Saturday's game with Southern Methodist 93 yards behind Luppino. All three stars play their final games this week.

Like Luppino, Swink has made all his yards the hard way and is second in rushing. Howard (Hopalong) Cassidy of Ohio State, who has ended his season, is third in rushing with 968 yards.

Back of Swink in total offense are J. Reichow of Iowa, Brodie of Stanford, John Roach of Southern Methodist, Morrall of Michigan State, Haliuka of Wisconsin, Brown of UCLA and Cassidy of Ohio State in that order.

Henry Moore of Arkansas is 8th in rushing offense with 701 yards. Claude Benham of Columbia leads in forward passing with 89 catches for 999 yards. He is followed by Dawson of Purdue, Welsh of Navy, Brodie of Stanford, Beagle of Dartmouth, Haliuka of Wisconsin, Ford of Hardin-Simmons, Consoles of Wake Forest, Clements of Texas and Roach of SMU.

Sports Writer to Retire DALLAS —UP— Faye Loyd, the United Press' first woman sports writer who covered sports on a national scale last year, will retire soon to get married. The 28-year-old Miss Loyd, a graduate from the University of Texas, will marry Harrison Lilly, a special representative for Time and Life magazines, on Dec. 3.

Sugar Ray Ready for Bout GREENWOOD LAKE, N.Y. —UP— Sugar Ray Robinson will resume boxing Tuesday for his title bout with middleweight champion Bobo Olson at Chicago, Dec. 9. The ex-titler weighed 161 pounds Monday after a six-hour trek through the woods surrounding his training camp.

Three Bouts Set Tonight

The Pampa Shrine Club has lined up three good bouts for the oard tonight to be unreeled at the Top O' Texas Sportsman's Club beginning at 8.

The Oklahoma Comanche Indian, Kit Fox, has been signed to oppose Leo "The Lion" Newman in the preliminary bout which will be a one fall match with a 20 minute time limit.

This match will be in addition to the two main events signed earlier this week.

In the first Main Event Dory Funk, the ex-rancher from Umbarger, will take on Danny McShane, former lightweight and heavyweight champion of the world from Hollywood, California.

In the second main event Bob Geigel, former champion of the Southwest States will wrestle Jack O'Reilly, Australian champ.

Tickets will be on sale at the door and all proceeds will go to the Shrine Club's Crippled Children's Fund.
