Hotel Committee Gets 31 Members

The steering committee of the planning group for a proposed new hotel for Pampa, under the chairmanship of George Cree Jr., had its second meeting yesterday at 4 p.m. with Philo Dix and H. W. Rohrer, representatives of the Hockensbury System, in the Cabot Auditorium of the Hughes Building. The meeting was held to get a report on the progress being done in connection with gaining members for the executive committee.

There were 25 persons present with six absences for a total of 31 persons so far who have accepted positions on the executive board of the proposed corporation. Dix stated that he had never seen a second meeting that showed the results of the meeting yesterday. "It is a clear indication," he said, "of the spirit of cooperation with which the persons involved are going about in the establishment of a corporate structure for the betterment of the community. He said further that if any of those members present who had offered to join the proposed corporation expected to make anything on it or for any such personal reason, they could forget about it. There would be no special consideration given to any individual; and the project was to be undertaken for one purpose alone, and that was for the good of the City of Pampa and its future.

He said that the committee was burning all its bridges behind them and that there was only one direction to look, and that was ahead. The campaign must be conducted, he said, on a purely impersonal basis. There could be no commitments made to anyone in an effort to solicit subscriptions. These people must do so, mainly because they believe in Pampa, its welfare, and its future, he said. No one will, he added, get one dollar's worth of extra profit. Public affairs, he pointed out, should be run in the interest of the public. Once formed, the executive committee will handle the campaign and work at raising the capital necessary for the starting of the structure.

After the money has been raised, the board of directors will then go about the job of bargaining and doing the bidding of the stockholders.

The executive committee will be, Dix said, expected to produce at least one half of the total figure it is supposed the hotel will cost.

He concluded by asking those present to think about whether or not they really wanted a hotel, and pointed out that if this project was not successful, then in actuality it would be a regression instead of a progression in the fact that it would be many, many years before anyone would undertake to build a modern hotel in this city again. It was a wonderful opportunity for the city, he said, and it needed to be done.

It was mentioned at the meeting that there were a number of people who had not been approached for membership in the executive committee and measures were taken to be sure that they would be contacted.

Speaker Likes U. S. A., Wants Individualism

By BOB FERREZ
Pampa News Staff Writer
Dr. R. C. Young, guest speaker at the Top o' Texas Knife and Fork Club meeting last night, left this morning for Cincinnati, O., where he has been staying while on leave from State College in Atlanta, Ga.

However, the message he imparted on the minds of most of the 300 in attendance here will remain for some time to come. Dr. Young is of Scottish birth, and he came to this country after having spent several years in the military service of the "English nation."

Upon coming here, he started working in an auto factory from whence he contracted several other jobs, and eventually wound up in the land of his choice — Georgia — "with the peaches." But the actual locations and undertakings were only secondary to the impression made on him in comparing class restrictions of the land he had left with the incredible opportunities available to all in the land he had come to and, incidentally, of his choice.

Dr. Young went on to state, in no unambiguous terms, that the trend seems to be the wholesale criticism of a system which has time and again proven itself through application and hard work. "We are being misunderstood," he said, "and our motives are being impugned. In reports on our boys overseas, we always hear about the ones in the saloons, but we never hear about those going to church, and there are many of those."

The purpose of his talk, he said, was onefold: "to tell you and your children what I told mine time and time again... to love that country which had given them so much, and asked so little in return." In so doing, he pointed out the oneness of the "American nation"; "that when we go abroad, they look at us not from a viewpoint."

Texas Would Outlaw The N. A. A. C. P.

By O. B. LLOYD JR.
United Press Staff Correspondent
TYLER, Tex. (UP)— Texas took its second step to have the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People outlawed in the state today.

The first step was taken last Friday when Attorney General John Ben Shepperd obtained a restraining order from Tyler District Judge Otis T. Dunagan to stop the NAACP from doing business in Texas.

Today Dunagan will hear arguments on whether or not he should grant Shepperd an injunction. Thurgood Marshall of New York City, top legal mind of the Negro organization, will argue for the NAACP.

He has charged Shepperd has only the flimsiest of cases and is politically motivated.

Shepperd will present the case for Texas, assisted by Davis Grant, first assistant attorney general.

The hearing was scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

Shepperd charged in his petition for the restraining order that the NAACP has gone "beyond the limits of propriety and law" in its Texas operations.

Today's suit grows out of an investigation conducted by representatives of Shepperd following efforts by the NAACP to have Mansfield, Tex., high school and Texarkana Junior College desegregated.

In both cases, integration attempts were called off when violence was threatened.

U.S. District Judge Joseph Sheehy threw out of court Thursday an attempt by an NAACP lawyer to get two white officials of the junior college put in jail for lack of co-operation in desegregating.

He threw the case out because the two Negro students in whose name the action was filed, didn't even know the NAACP lawyer, U. Simpson Tate, was acting in their name until they read about it in the newspaper.

Judge Sheehy, who was the judge who ordered the junior college to integrate, reprimanded Tate, regional attorney for the NAACP in the Southwest.

Tate had filed an intervening motion in the names of Jessalyn Gray, 18, and Steve Poston, 17, who charged they twice were prevented from attending Texarkana Junior College by throngs of white people.

MADE RUSSIAN TOUR — Otto C. Barby of Beaver, Okla., left, one of a group of 29 farmers, ranchers, reporters and a doctor, who visited Russia this year is shown as he was being interviewed by Fred Parker, Pampa News reporter, this morning. Barby reported that the group spent 20 days in Russia and visited numerous collective farms and several cities. He reported his impressions of Russia during a talk at the noon meeting of the Kiwanis Club. (News photo)

Club Hears Farmer Who Toured Russia

By FRED M. PARKER
Pampa News Staff Writer

Main speaker at the noon luncheon of the Kiwanis Club today was Otto C. Barby of Beaver, Okla., who was one of the 29 persons who toured Russia during May and June of this year.

The group, which consisted of 26 farmers and ranchers from Oklahoma, one doctor from Kansas and two reporters, spent 20 days in Russia visiting various collective farms and cities, Barby stated.

The trip was sponsored by the Oklahoma Publishing Company in an effort to acquaint American farmers and ranchers with the methods used in Russia.

The group began its tour of Russia in Leningrad where they arrived by plane. The next town visited was Moscow where they visited in the only Protestant church in the city. They then went to Kiev and on to Khar'kov, which was to have been the end of their trip in Russia, Barby stated that after arriving in Russia they made arrangements to visit the Black Sea area.

The group traveled approximately 2,500 miles by train and 5,000 miles by bus during their stay in Russia, Barby reported that there are very few automobiles and trucks in Russia and these either belong to the government or to government leaders. They only saw two filling stations in Russia, and these only had one pump each.

Main impressions which Barby stressed during his visit in Pampa were the Russians' educational system and the lack of religion.

He reported that education in Russia is on a selective basis. The grading is done on a medal system and if a student does not receive a medal during his high school period he has no chance of going to a university. The sciences are stressed with only languages being taught in the general arts classification.

Barby reported that in Moscow, a city of over 8 million, there are only 20 buildings being used for church type services. He reported that the young people do not know the meaning of religion and that one of the interpreters assigned to the group told him that it was the first time that he had ever discussed the Bible.

He reported that the worker on the collective farms in Russia has only a hoe and a shovel. All of the machinery is placed in a central machinery station and the farmer does not have access to it. All mechanical operations are carried on by the state and the worker only receives a small salary for his work.

Barby stated that he personally believes that Russia is between 40 and 50 years behind the United States in farm development but qualified his statement by saying there was no true method of comparison due to the different types of farming operations.

Founder Of Celanese Dies In New York

NEW YORK — Dr. Camille Edward Dreyfus, chairman of Celanese Corporation of America and one of the great pioneers of the textile and chemical industries, died Thursday in his apartment at the Hotel Pierre, following a brief illness.

Early basic research in cellulose chemistry, undertaken by Dr. Camille Dreyfus and his brother, the late Dr. Henry Dreyfus, led to the founding of three major enterprises — British Celanese, Ltd., Celanese Corporation of America and Canadian Celanese, Ltd.

Since 1948, Dr. Camille Dreyfus had been chairman of Celanese Corporation of America and for 27 years previously had served as president, from the time of the corporation's founding in 1918. He also was president of Canadian Celanese, Ltd., and managing director of British Celanese, Ltd.

The brothers Dreyfus were natives of Basel, Switzerland, sons of Abraham Dreyfus, a banker, and (See FOUNDER, Page 3)

'De-Stalinize' Plan May Be Reason

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON — UP — Marshal Tito's amazing flight to Russia set off reports today that some of the Soviet Union's collective leaders may have turned against the Khrushchev program to vilify former Premier Josef Stalin.

The Yugoslav capital of Belgrade — and the Western capitals — were taken by surprise when Tito rushed off by plane to the Soviet Union Thursday with Soviet Communist Party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Khrushchev is the No. 1 leader of the plan to "de-Stalinize" Russia and it was believed he may have taken the once - balky Yugoslav leader back with him to Russia to support the new line in talks with other Communist leaders.

Diplomats in Moscow offered the alternative theory that Tito was drastically dissatisfied with the Soviet follow up to agreements last year and this June for close economic and ideological cooperation between the two countries.

No Official Explanation
Moscow radio said Tito and Khrushchev had arrived in Yalta, site of the "Big Three" meeting of World War II. Earlier Moscow disclosed that Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov were at Sochi, a Red army health resort 300 miles from Yalta, across the Black Sea.

There was no official explanation of the trip other than Belgrade and Moscow announcements that Tito and Khrushchev "will be resting" along Russia's Black Sea coast, a subtropical area long famous as a winter resort.

The facts pointed to one conclusion: Something of extreme seriousness brought on Khrushchev's mysterious trip to Yugoslavia and Tito's even more amazing flight with him to Crimea.

A surprising feature was Tito's decision to fly. He has not flown since World War II when the Allies evacuated him from Yugoslavia by air after Nazi troops surrounded his mountain hideaway. Usually he travels by car or armored train.

Whatever brought on the journey has arisen since Tito's state visit to Moscow in June when close accords were signed between the governments and the Communist parties of the two countries. And it appeared so serious Khrushchev could not settle it during his eight days of talks in Yugoslavia.

Belgrade dispatches frankly quoted Yugoslavs as being puzzled by the trip. But there were indications that Khrushchev's determined campaign of downgrading Stalin might lie at the root of whatever brought on the Tito visit. The reconciliation of Tito and the Soviet were believed to have been one result of the campaign.

Officers Are Working On Theft Cases

Local law enforcement officers are working on the case of the missing hubcaps and are reporting some success as the result of a full day spent yesterday in questioning persons believed to have been responsible.

Chief of Police Jim Conner and Juvenile Officer H. A. Doggett spent most of Thursday in talking to persons whom they had reason to believe had stolen some of the hubcaps and wheel covers which have turned up missing during recent weeks.

Several of those questioned were cleared as the result of their statements and other evidence. However, several hubcaps and wheel covers were recovered when some of the youths admitted that they had taken them from the cars in Pampa.

The officers reported this morning that work was continuing on the case and additional information would be checked out as soon as possible. It is the aim of the officers to apprehend all persons who have been responsible for the sudden increase in stolen hubcaps that has occurred in Pampa during recent weeks, Conner said.

District Governor Visits Lions

Honor guest of the Lions Clubs of Pampa yesterday was Don Stark, district governor of District 2T-1 of Lions International.

Lion Stark presented Ralph Thomas, deputy district governor and a member of the noon club, with a 25-year perfect attendance pin in presenting Thomas with the pin Stark pointed out that Thomas had been a member of the Pampa club throughout that period and had been active in Lionism throughout his membership.

Thomas was zone chairman last year and was president of the club the previous year.

In his speech to the noon club, Stark emphasized the purpose of Lionism. He stated that "A Lion's main purpose should be that of working toward good will toward man."

He also pointed out that the things that Lions clubs throughout the world are accomplishing will last longer than man-made objects.

Stark also briefly gave the history of Lionism since its organization in Dallas in 1917 and also told the newer members of the Pampa Lions Club of some of the things accomplished by that club since it was founded nearly 30 years ago.

He reported that there are over 4,000 Lions in District 2T-1, with which the two Pampa clubs are

In concluding his talk to the noon club he told those present of the purpose of the colors used by the Lions International. The purple stands for the color of Christ's robe, which stands for nobility, and the gold is symbolic of the rays of the sun.

Japan Is Heading For Cabinet Crisis

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Japan is heading toward an apparently certain cabinet crisis.

Illing, aging, semi-paralyzed Premier Ichiro Hatoyama is likely to be ousted within the next few weeks by members of his own dominant Liberal-Democratic Party.

The most prominent candidate for the prime ministry appears to be Nobusuke Kishi, secretary-general of the party and one of Japan's original 40 war crimes defendants.

The overturn, if it comes, will involve reassessments of Japanese policy toward the United States, Soviet Russia and Communist China.

If Kishi got the job, the outlook would be for a more independent Japanese policy toward the United States.

Forms New Party
Hatoyama, 73, got the prime ministry on December 9, 1954, after torpedoing his one-time colleague Shigeru Yoshida.

A co-founder with Yoshida of the Liberal Party, Hatoyama broke away and formed a new Japan-Democratic Party. He succeeded in overthrowing Yoshida and the two parties were merged.

Now Hatoyama himself is under an increasingly heavy attack.

He has been accused of lack of leadership and of bungling peace negotiations with Russia. Though he is a member of the Yoshida faction of the merged party, which is identified with Japanese big business, a powerful big business group including the Japanese Chamber of Commerce, issued a formal demand three weeks ago that Hatoyama step down.

Stage Sit-Down Strike
On Tuesday, 176 of the 423 Liberal-Democratic members of Parliament formed a special council aimed at forcing his resignation.

A group of the extreme right wing staged an anti-Hatoyama sit-down strike in front of Hatoyama's residence. Another rightist group announced it would stage a symbolic Hatoyama funeral procession today.

Incidentally, police strengthened their guard over Hatoyama last week after receiving reports that extreme rightists might attempt to assassinate him.

The rightists demand a strong policy toward Russia in the peace negotiations now under way.

Liberals Have Majority
The businessmen fear a surge toward the left in Japanese politics. The Liberal-Democratic Party has an overwhelming majority in Parliament—300 seats out of 467 in the House of Representatives, the dominant house of parliament, against only 154 for the Socialists.

Love Without Language
NICOSIA, Cyprus (UP)—A British airman and his Greek bride started married life today without either knowing how to speak the other's language. Corp. Brian Hollingsworth, 22, said after the wedding Monday that he and his wife, 19-year old Despina Prodromou, carried on a six-month courtship with the aid of a book called "Greek Without Tears."

How Not To Tinker
PORTADOWN, Ireland (UP)—Police hoped today that 13-year old Brendan Bailey won't develop a complex over his lack of mechanical aptitude. They said the boy found a bomb on a beach, kicked it around the street, opened it with a can opener and prodded its workings with a red-hot poker. He never did get it to go off.

But recent polls have shown that the Socialists are gaining strength among the voters. There also has been a strong shift toward the left in the three million-member Japan labor union organization.

The question of a successor to Hatoyama, if he goes, is yet to be decided finally. Kishi, most prominently mentioned, was jailed for two years after the war as a war criminal defendant. He was released, in the end, without trial. Kishi is an independent nationalist. He likes the United States attitude toward Communism and is not anti-American. But under him, independence and nationalism would be emphasized in Japan's relations with the United States.

U. S. Plans To Bypass Suez Ready

WASHINGTON (UP)—America officials said yesterday the United States is ready to put into effect within one week plans for bypassing the Suez Canal if the waterway is closed down.

They said the plans are the result of a vast governmental study of what steps to take should Egypt suddenly close the canal to Western shipping. The plans also could be used should the waterway be accidentally blocked through a shipping mishap caused by the shortage of canal pilots.

In either case, various government agencies would be ready to quickly take such steps as ordering reserve tankers out of the mothball fleet and reconditioning them for oil transport, stepping up U.S. oil production to meet a European deficit caused by difficulty getting Middle Eastern petroleum and lending money to European allies to pay the dollar costs of buying American oil.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles hopes the canal will remain open to Western shipping and that some peaceful solution to the dispute with Egypt can be worked out. This would eliminate the need for putting the costly reserve plans into operation.

After 40 years as a Telephone man— He'd choose the same career again

Seasoned Telephone "Pioneer" J. E. Breshears talks about his 40 years in telephone work.

By Don Davis, Telephone News Reporter

What makes a lad of 16 so sure his first job is going to turn into a lifetime career? For J. E. (Eldon) Breshears, now in his 40th year as a telephone man, it was a matter of knowing what he wanted.

As a boy, he can remember spending much of his time with wires, motors, most anything electrical. Then, too, a neighboring telephone man always seemed to be talking about telephone people and the company. And he was a man to respect, active in his church, a leader in community activities.

Young Breshears was impressed. He joined the company as a repairman while still in high school.

Forty years later, he's never at a loss for superlatives when talking about his work.

Enough of his father's enthusiasm rubbed off on Ross Breshears to send him straight from college to the telephone company as a traffic engineer.

Telephone man J. E. (Eldon) Breshears (right) is as enthusiastic about his work today as he was when he started 40 years ago. He owes his start in the business to a neighbor—another telephone man.

A district plant superintendent today, Breshears says fellow telephone people and the company's "up-from-the-ranks" policy made the job everything he hoped it would be. "Still does," he adds, with conviction.

THROUGH THE YEARS

During his years with the company, Breshears has witnessed many technical advances in telephone service. He's had some exciting moments, too. He says his most memorable event took place during a severe ice storm about 30 years ago.

Before the telephone company developed modern stormproofing techniques—laying cable underground—the whims of the weather often played havoc with telephone service. The storm in point was a "pip," knocked out service across the state. "We stayed on the job day and night for six straight weeks," Breshears recalls. "I even slept on a switchboard—but we got service back to normal and that was the big thing."

It's this combination of getting the job done, plus the dedication of the people around him, that leads Breshears to believe his company is the "best managed business in the world." Sound reasons why, if he had it all to do over again, he'd be very careful to make the same moves he made the first time around.

Henrietta Wahl Dreyfus. Their researches began in Basel in 1904, and six years later they started production of cellulose acetate lacquers and plastic film. An early market for their acetate film was in non-inflammable motion picture film bases that superseded the volatile cellulose nitrate previously used. Also, initially, small amounts of acetate lacquer were sold to the expanding aircraft industry to serve as a "dope" coating for wing and fuselage fabric coverings and to help reduce fire hazards.
By 1913, after some 20,000-odd separate experiments, the Dreyfus brothers produced good quality laboratory samples of acetate filament yarn. However, outbreak of World War thrust them into volume production of acetate "dope" for military aircraft and forced postponement of further work on textiles.

The doctors were invited by the British government in 1941 to erect a plant in England to make aircraft "dope" and in 1948, at the urging of President Woodrow Wilson and Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, Dr. Camille Dreyfus came to the United States to start a similar operation here. Construction work started on a plant in Cumberland, Md., but the war ended before its completion.

Despite termination of the government business, plant construction continued and the doctor began to pull together a nucleus of what was later to become the American Celanese Company's management. Meanwhile, in England was being developed the first commercially feasible acetate textile yarn.

In America, along with gradual formation of an organization, the postwar years were marked by construction and equipping of spinning and textile buildings at the Cumberland plant. A discouraging early setback came in the form of a flood, which caused serious damage and delays in getting operations started.
Finally, during the 1924 Christmas holiday season, Dr. Camille Dreyfus and his indefatigable colleagues were rewarded for their painstaking work when the first yarn was spun in the Cumberland plant.

Getting acetate yarn production on a practical commercial scale was only part of the job. Sales resistance to the new, relatively unknown synthetic material was stubborn during the early years. In order to overcome natural apathy to the new product and also combat certain competitive opposition, Dr. Dreyfus and associates had to take direct and aggressive steps to obtain acceptance for their "artificial silk" as the early acetate was known.

Silk mills were commissioned during the early days to weave acetate fabrics to Celanese specifications and Dr. Dreyfus carried on a personally dedicated campaign to get the new synthetics out into the market.
Dr. Dreyfus' genius has not been confined to discoveries in the laboratory. His has been a rare combination of qualities that in men such as he have served to make American industry great. Dr. Dreyfus has made eminent contributions not only as a scientist, but

Reds Admit Brutality Charges

POZNAN, Poland (UP)—Seven young Poles accused of such crimes as armed attacks on the public security officials gave their side of the story today in the second day of the Poznan riots trials.
Two others on trial with them, Zenon Urbanek, a 20-year-old railroad worker, and Josef Pocztowy, pleaded "partially guilty" to the charges Thursday. The trial adjourned before the other seven could speak before the three-judge tribunal.
Three other Polish youths are being tried on charges of beating a Polish army corporal to death during the June riots. The trial was highlighted by a prosecutor's admission police used illegal methods in attempting to extract confessions.
The trial of the three accused murderers and of the nine other men is being held in the same building of Poznan's grey stone courthouse only half a mile from the June riots in which 53 persons were killed. Their trial is expected to end Oct. 2 or 3.

The three defendants in the murder trial, all under 21 years of age, said they were beaten by police in an effort to get them to confess to crimes they did not commit.
State prosecutor Alfonso Elyman labeled the charges of police brutality as "lies." But he admitted that police used illegal methods during questioning of some suspects after the June 28 riots. He said four policemen now are under arrest.

Shivers To Question Daniel Move
AUSTIN (UP)—Gov. Allan Shivers said today he will have to ask Attorney General John Ben Shepperd whether U.S. Sen. Price Daniel is on "sound legal ground" with his announced plans for resigning the Senate seat.
Daniel is the Democrat nominee for governor. When he was campaigning, he pledged to resign the Senate seat so as to give the voters the freest choice in electing a successor. Thursday he announced his resignation, effective when a successor is elected.
He took the action, he said, in accordance with the Garner Act. But Shivers isn't sure that Daniel's announced intention create a vacancy. If not, Shivers said, he cannot call a special election to nominate a new senator.
Shivers Replies
In replying to a letter from Daniel, Shivers said:
"It may be necessary to ask the attorney general for an official ruling, in which case we will need to submit a brief, outlining the question and our interpretation of the law."
"I am sure you have briefed this question, and I would be happy to receive from you or your attorneys any legal briefs in support of your position."
Daniel had expressed the hope that an election to fill his post be held so the successor could take office before the next session of Congress, due to begin Jan. 3.
Not to Take Salary
The Garner Act authorizes any elected official to resign effective at a future date. It also requires that an election for the official's successor be called by the governor—within not less than 20 or more than 90 days.
Thad Hutcheson, announced Republican candidate for Daniel's Senate seat, when it becomes vacant, said all of the legal problems could be resolved immediately if Daniel would give his "full, final and unconditional resignation today."
"In a sense, I think that is the legal result of his letter to the governor," Hutcheson said in Fort Arthur.

Air Force Views Wreck

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UP)—An Air Force investigating board today viewed the remnants of the world's fastest and highest flying plane—the X2 experimental rocket ship—which crashed at this desert Air Force test center, killing its pilot.
Capt. Milburn G. Apt, 32, of Buffalo, Kans., was at the controls of the $3-million plane Thursday when it plunged into the Mojave Desert shortly after it was released from the belly of a B50 mother plane. It was Apt's first attempt to fly the slim rocket plane.
The Air Force clamped a lid of secrecy on the crash. It assigned a board of officers to conduct a thorough investigation. The Air Force confirmed only that the plane had crashed.
Apt had taken over the plane from Capt. Iven Kincheloe, who three weeks ago flew the sleek plane to a record height of 128,000 feet. Lt. Col. Frank (Pete) Everest, famed test pilot, earlier had piloted the plane 1,900 miles an hour.
The Air Force said Apt was on a "routine indoctrination flight" and the X2 had been taken aloft attached to the belly of the giant bomber. The Air Force said the plane was cut loose from the B50 at a normal altitude of 30,000 feet and crashed within two minutes after its release. Observers said the pilot didn't have a chance to eject himself from the plane's cockpit when rockets apparently burned out, sending the heavy plane earthward.

Egypt Sources Say Nehru Holds Key

CAIRO (UP)—Semi-official Egyptian sources said today a Suez compromise lies almost exclusively in the hands of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India.
Nehru sent his roving Ambassador V. K. Krishna Menon to Cairo last week for conferences with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser on the dispute over the canal.
Krishna Menon since has flown the sources said that a "workable compromise solution" might be produced during Nehru's talks with President Eisenhower in the United States. Nehru is scheduled to visit Washington later this year.
They gave no indication of what would be considered a workable compromise solution. Both sides were holding firmly to their original positions on Egyptian operation of the canal.
The sources expressed doubt the U.N. Security Council could work out any compromise, and accused Britain, France and the United States of seeking only the council's moral backing for their own proposals.

American Political Campaigns Have Always Been Muscular

By H. D. QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—The trial left by American political campaigns throughout history suggests they always have been rather muscular. Even in George Washington's day the punches were unpulled.
The New York Historical Society has dipped into its collection of 3,000 political cartoons and other campaign musketry for a special exhibition. It runs from Washington to "Willkie or bust" buttons.
One of the exhibits is an 1807 poster depicting Washington as the "good guy" and Thomas Jefferson as the bad. Beneath a drawing of Washington is the Shakespearean quotation: "See what a grace is seated on this brow."
Beneath Jefferson is a quotation saying he is "like a milled ear, blasting his campaign brother."
Plenty of Material
The 1840 campaign of log-cabin-hard-cider fame provided cartoonists and single fingers with plenty of material. One poster on display shows "an authentic view of the bar room, in the log cabin, Broadway, New York" in which men at the bar are drinking "Tyler punch" and "Harrison juleps."
Underneath is a lecture on the evils of drink.
A book of "log cabin and hard cider melodies" contains song lyrics such as:
"Oh, pray, Mr. Farmer, just walk up this way;
"We hardly expected to see you this day;
"So many stout swiggers are here at this time,
"There's but one bottle left, but you'll find it is prime."
Lincoln Campaign
In 1864, the "President Lincoln campaign songster" contained such sweet songs as "The Southern Call," which begins:
"Come out, you slimy hussies,
"Forget domestic musses,
"And vend a few more cusses
"On abolitionists."
"Wake, snakes!"
Another song of Lincoln's time alleges that "Uncle Abe" once was
"...Great at spitting rails,
"But 'twas very long ago, long ago;
"And he kept a one-horse grocery and tended to the mails,
"But at both he made a very sorry show."
Songs Continue
The songs continue through the years, including such wows as "Prosperity, Protection, and McKinley" and "Keep Cool and Keep Coolidge."
Among the gimmicks is a 1900 combination cane and campaign torch, stamped with the pictures of the Democratic candidates, William Jennings Bryan and Adlai E. Stevenson. There's also an AIF

Clothes Are Reported Stolen

Samples of western clothing was reported to have been stolen from the car of Glen A. Clifton, sales representative from Austin, while it was parked either at the Blue Bonnet Inn or the Plainsman Motel last night. Chief of Police Jim Conner stated today.
According to the report made by Clifton to the local police department, he did not notice the items missing until this morning.
Items taken from the car were: one man's tan suit coat; four ranchman jackets; one lady's white leather jacket; one man's rust colored suede jacket; three children's jackets, two sand colored and one red smooth leather, all size 10; two western shirts, one red and the other blue plaid; and one children's sand colored suede jacket.
He warned that although he may not realize it, collectivism is being taught in many schools. This, he added, is incongruous with the American way. "The American nation" was formed through hard work. The people did not advance this far without having to work and sweat for it. There is much to be had in this country, and it all must be worked for. Each boy should compete by making his own way. Charity, he said, was the function of individuals... not government, lest we become like so many parasitic nations and come to expect and live off subsidies.
He said that this country has become the greatest nation in the world; and it can only stay that way providing we do not become overconfident that it will never end, and to be constantly on guard to keep it like that. He said that all children must be taught a sense of values which only the church teaches... if we will only bring them in touch with the church.

If they hate us, and he admitted that there was a certain amount of dislike for the United States in other countries, it is not collectively. "In any other country throughout the world," he said, "you tell me where a boy lives, and I'll tell you what his father does for a living." Not so in this country, he added. Cause For Alarm

The July issue of Changing Times, a monthly magazine published by the Kiplinger service, carries an apology for the modern state high school system...

Let's get back only a few years to the Korean war and the developments therefrom.

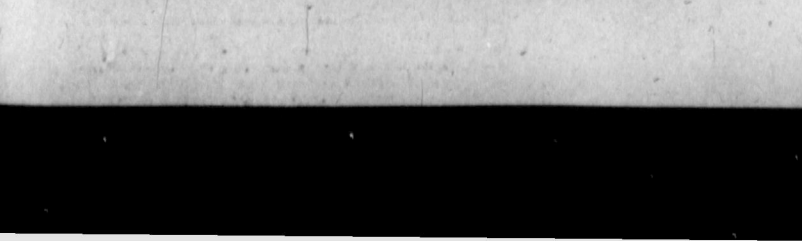

There was a wave of indignation when a quotation from the chief of intelligence of Red Chinese Army in North Korea was publicized around the United States.

"The American soldier," he said, "has weak loyalties to his family, his community, his country, his religion and to his fellow soldier."

This was ridiculed as an enemy appraisal without merit, without truth. But, some supporting evidence from the actions of prisoners of war instigated an investigation by military authorities...

At the beginning, Maj. Mayer says, the team had the usual brainwashing, Chinese style, consisting of torture, degradation, and brutalities of every kind...

What is the answer to the problem? It certainly can't rest in the state school system of which the youngsters who fought in Korea are a product.

The Church And Organized Labor

I want to quote from Edmund A. Optis' book, "Case Studies of the Church in Politics," from his chapter under the heading of "The Church and Organized Labor."

"Many social reformers, inside the church and out, pin their hopes on Labor - even though they may view flesh and blood workmen with some distaste."

"If this account appears overdrawn when stated thus baldly, it is only necessary to say that these are the submerged premises which appear to guide the formulation of opinion on the issues of labor unionism."

There is a considerable history of the relation between organized religion and organized labor which long antedates the recent and much publicized gift of $200,000 from the CIO's Philip Murray Foundation to the National Council of Churches.

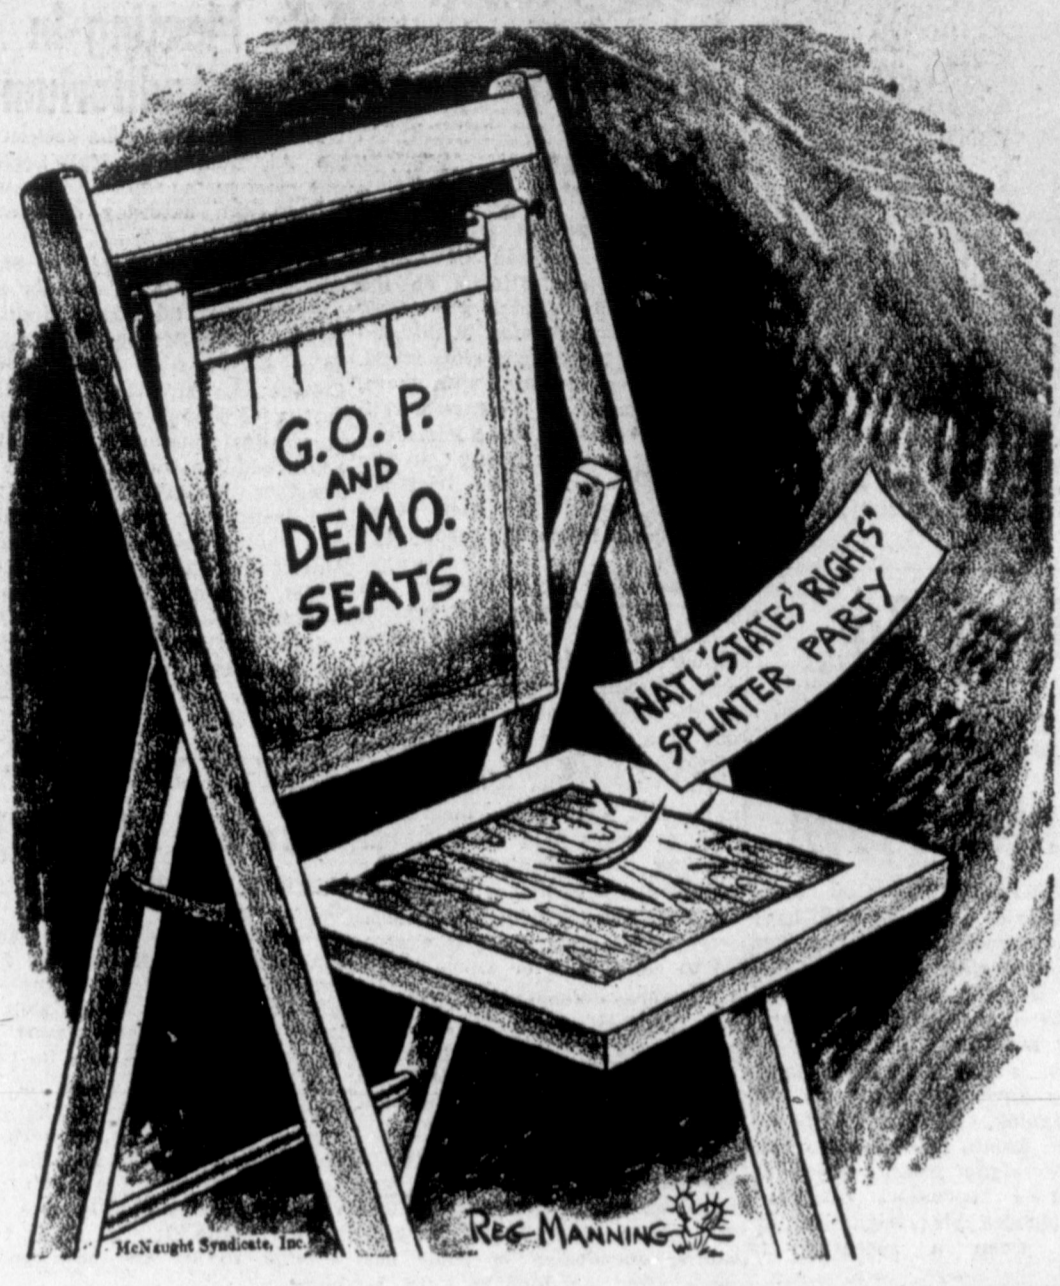

Dubinsky knows more about the garment industry and the racketeers which infest it, and the racketeers who operate the rackets, than any other man.

Dubinsky's late friendly biographer, Ben Stolberg, wrote that Dubinsky joined the Socialist Party immediately after arriving in the United States in 1912.

Stolberg traced their careers in minute detail. By his version, not one of them heard the call to arms. Dubinsky's treasury is incalculable because of some unreal assets...

This support continues. John C. Bennett, Dean of Union Theological Seminary, declares that the large scale economic group to which the churchmen during the last half century have given most support is the labor movement.

Most Think Warren Strayed From Original Stand

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON - When Chief Justice Earl Warren was seeking the Republican Presidential nomination in 1948, he expressed the written opinion that racial problems, including school desegregation, should be dealt with by local government, and not by the authorities at Washington.

Despite charges by Southerners on Capitol Hill that Warren has played politics with this issue, first as Governor and then as an Eisenhower appointee to the Supreme Court, many lawyers believe that the 1948 Warren statement throws a new light on the tribunal's future attitude and policy on carrying out its desegregation ruling.

The provocative Warren declaration in favor of a "local" solution was contained in a letter, dated June 5, 1948, to Herman H. Ross, who was then living in Anchorage, Alaska.

El Progresso Club Presented Program On Refugee Program In United States

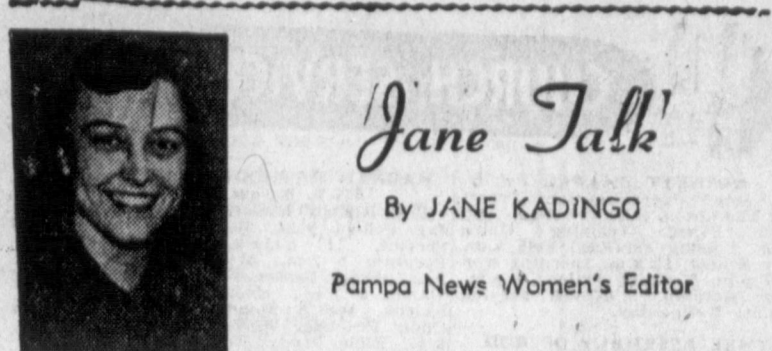

El Progresso Club met in the home of Mrs. D. V. Burton, with Mrs. Bob McCoy, president, leading the business session.

Plans were made to send a contribution to CARE and a Christmas package to the hospital in Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Knox Kinard, in the absence of Mrs. J. F. Curtis, presented the first part of the program entitled, "The Refugee Program in the U.S." She stated that the U.S. shared deeply the plight of the victims of political and religious oppression. She explained the Refugee Relief Act of 1953 allocated 200,000 visas to bring in refugees, escapees, expellees, relatives, and orphans and that these people must have American sponsors. The program has lagged to such extent that it wasn't until this year that the 100,000th was issued, she pointed out.

The West as a whole has a deep sense of responsibility those who have sought have the territories from Communist tyranny and regimentation. Kinard told the women. The ceiving countries have already en in more than one million gees since 1945, she stated.

MARKING EYEBROWS BEFORE YOU PLUCK will give you as unerring a guide as the ruler a draftsman uses for drawing a design. According to Max Factor, whose expert trick this is, women's brows—because of this fall's eccentric hats—need to be put in the best possible shape.

BY USING a pencil to make a preliminary draft of your brows—this, says Factor, is not to be confused with make-up—tweezers aren't apt to run wild. And brows won't come up from the plucking too thin, too short or, heaven for bid, bald in spots.

The best pencil line to follow, says Factor, begins on a line with the inner corner of the eye and stops beyond its outer corner.

Before you pluck, swab on antiseptic lotion, such as rubbing alcohol, to the areas to be plucked.

The least painful way to tweeze, according to this expert, is to hold the flesh you pluck taut with forefinger and thumb.

Remember, he reminds you, that the happy hunting ground of your tweezers is underneath the brow—not above it. Plucking underneath is where you can enlarge eye space. That's always a mark, says Factor, of more beautiful eyes.

Always clean up every single stray over the bridge of the nose. The more wide-spaced eyes, the prettier they look.

WITH fall's dulled down colors as popular on college campuses as four-year scholarships, the debut of a new lipstick red, as vivid and vibrant as the Olympic torch, is a masterpiece of timing.

Created for red contrast with the season's dulled-down greens, smoky taupes, off-beat blues and all subdued colors—which are high, high fashion from Christian Dior's elegant haute couture to the little dressmaker's fashions down the street—this dazzling red is just the thing for the smart coed. It is dramatic with camel color "car hops," loden green jumpers and frosty brown dancing dresses. It's color is to this season's drabbed down campus clothes what a red battle ribbon is to khaki.

As happily keyed to the need of young users as the most sophisticated woman who ever gazed her mouth is this lipstick's creamy fine texture. It imparts a fresh, moist look and feeling to lips. For the young wearer—even a first-time user—it has even more virtues to shout about. There's no need for skilled fingers, when it comes to applying it. It sets instantly, requires no blotting. It will keep a girl's mouth as red as a diploma ribbon for 24 hours or longer without renewal.

The girl with adolescent blenishes couldn't ask for a better color-decoy than this fresh lipstick red for flagging attention away from skin flaws, says Factor. While wearing her vivid decoy, the faithful, unremitting use of another Factor friend—a magical treatment formula in the Secret Key line, especially designed to help disturbed skins, is suggested.

A girl whose skin is merely dull can be helped, Factor points out, by using high fidelity make-up foundation—it is to color what high fidelity is to sound—in a choice of natural-looking shades. No matter how much the shade lightens or brightens, how much bloom it brings up on a young skin, it can never, says Factor, be guilty of painting the teen-age lily. In fact, as this expert points out, because of the silky soft and veil-like sheerness of the fluid make-up, a girl's skin can actually look as natural, and, of course, prettier than it does after the best wash-basin ritual with face cloth, soap suds and elbow grease is performed.

Canned tuna in oil is on the national list of plentiful foods. Therefore we will give you a recipe of Mrs. Ruth Hayes of Chicago. She is a business woman who enjoys entertaining. But she must keep her food preparation to a minimum. This casserole is one of her standbys—easy, popular and with a "party" look.

TUNA COMPANY CASSEROLE (Makes 4 servings)

Two 7-ounce cans solid-pack tuna, 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 1/2 cup light cream, 2 caps cooked carrots, 2 caps cooked peas, 1/2 cup cooked, small white onions, 2 tablespoons chopped, cooked mushrooms.

Drain tuna and reserve 3 tablespoons oil. Add flour and salt to tuna oil and blend. Gradually add milk and cream and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Break tuna into pieces. Add tuna, carrots, peas, onions and mushrooms to white sauce; mix well. Turn into lightly greased 2-quart casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 20 minutes, or until thoroughly heated.

Tuna Cheese Rolls (Makes 4 servings)

Eight thin slices bread, 1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened, 1 canned pimiento, finely chopped, 1 1/2-ounce can chunk-style tuna, drained, 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine.

Cut crusts from bread. Combine cheese and pimiento. Mix well. Spread on bread slices, top with tuna. Roll up jelly-roll fashion. Brush with butter or margarine. Arrange in shallow baking pan and bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 15 minutes, or until browned.

MATURE PARENT Varietas Club Has First Fall Meeting

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Gerry came home from summer camp with a rock collection, a tooled leather belt, soiled laundry—and a deep disappointment.

His father had failed to visit him on Field Day. At the last minute, he'd called to say that he had to rush his new wife to an ailing relative instead of spending the day with Gerry. Reporting this to his divorced mother, Gerry said bleakly, "I sure wish I had a Dad like other kids."

She sank down on his bed. Her immediate response was this: "Oh, how sorry I am that my broken marriage must hurt you this way. How I regret you must suffer because your father and I were mismatched."

Thus, her first spontaneous sympathy for Gerry's hurt included some responsibility for causing it. Then she became afraid of the responsibility. As she thought more about Gerry's hurt, it began to seem so cruel that she could take no responsibility for it. Frightened, she sought to place it all on his father, saying with rising anger, "There's no use in your ever expecting Daddy to keep his word. How many times do I have to tell you not to depend on him?"

So Gerry never got to know that his mother shared his pain over the Field Day disappointment, but was left with the impression that her feeling had been anger at his father—instead of sympathy for him.

This was a pity. As a hurt little boy, he needed to know that he was not alone in his hurt. What he needed from his mother was not accusation for his father, but comfort for himself.

He needed to be hugged and told, "That was a hard disappointment. I am sorry that Daddy couldn't come. But now that you know I am as sorry as you, we can cheer each other up. How about the zoo this afternoon?"

If we can only attack an ex-spouse when our divorced state brings hurt to our child, we ought to know why. Our first, true, spontaneous response to the hurt is always tenderness. Nearly always, if we look closely at our queer resistance to expressing that tenderness, we'll find it is fear of admitting any part in causing the hurt. We must conquer the fear. For until it's overcome, it diverts all our attention from the child's hurts to the ex-spouse's faults. By making us too anxious to blame the

Make-Up For Elegant Edwardian Look Requires Pearly And Pink Skin Colors

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Edwardian styles call for make-up to match. This look, as visualized by the leading cosmetic houses is pearly of skin and pink of mouth.

One leading manufacturer says of her fall color creation, a shade right out of the front parlor, that almost any woman can wear it. She feels it can be achieved through her recommended change in make-up base to lighten the skin to an under- - the - parol shade.

The United liquid make-up base should be selected in a color lighter than usual, preferably "fair." This should tone down a too-soury skin, right down a sallow one. It should cut down on unevenness of tone. The skin should be cleaned and moistened, probably with a skin lotion selected for the skin type. The base then goes on evenly all over face and throat.

The even application is achieved by dotting the liquid on throat, cheeks, chin, nose and forehead. It is then blended delicately with fingertips.

Many women will want to use liquid rouge after the foundation. If the skin is a bit dark, sallow or very pale, it's a good idea. It minimizes dark shadows under the eyes and helps make the eyes sparkle. A woman with a very light skin may also want to blend a bit of the liquid rouge into the foundation, in her palm, before using the foundation.

The rouge should be blended across the cheek bones and over a wider area than is customary. A fair shade of face powder should be used. Eyes are made deep and luminous with eyebrow pencil, iridescent eyeshadow and mascara.

The new lipstick to go with the new make-up is a vibrant rose. It goes well with fall's fashion shades—black, brown, neutral, greens, blues, violets and pinky reds.

According to the maker, women of any age can wear this delicate make-up. Younger women will like it for the newness, she claims. Older women will enjoy the lightness and clarity it brings to their skins. The pinky lipstick is appropriate to teenagers.

Manners Make Friends

If you go to work for a man who makes a habit of calling the girls in his office by their first names, don't make the mistake of thinking that means you should call him by his first name.

Even though you are Jane to him, he should always be "Mr. Brown" to you.

Other parent for all the child's pain, the fear blinds us to our own ability to comfort it.

It tricks us, like Gerry's mother, into changing our compassion into anger.

Come to Church

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

By ROIS STANDIFER, Pastor
Pampa Missionary Baptist Church
Pampa, Texas

THE BOOK TO LIVE BY

"The Word of God, which liveth and abideth forever," I Peter 1:23. There are many good and bad books in the world today, but the only book to live and die by is the Bible, the Word of God.

Observe how the living and abiding Word of God measures up in every circumstance and situation . . .

I. You Can Live By It in the Crises of Life.
That is exactly what our Lord did when He met the great temptations of Satan (Luke 4). His perfect and assured answer was, "It is written," and then He quoted pertinent Scripture.

Does it work for ordinary men in the midst of life's struggles? It does! We recall the young naval officer who, before facing his first battle, read the words of John 14:27. "My peace I give unto you. Let not your heart be troubled. Neither let it be afraid." He said afterwards, "I was excited but I was not afraid. God's presence was with me."

Ah, but you may say, "It is not the crises that trouble me. My problem is to bear the daily burdens of life." Then remember that—

II. You Can Live By It Under Life's Crushing Load.

We think of the man who lost his sight. As he learned to read Braille, his fingers spelled out the words of Psalms 34:22. "The Lord redeemeth the soul of His servants and none of them shall be desolate" — and he found peace for his soul.

Possibly your problems center around your daily work. The Bible is also helpful here for—

III. You Can Live By It in Business.

Yes, the Book works "on the job" provided we put first things first. Let me tell you about the salesman who had been a failure until he put God and His Word in first place and then became a confident and capable worker. When asked about it, he said, "Being a Christian is more important to me than selling these typewriters." And so he sold typewriters!

For every member of the family in your home the Bible is the Book to live by!

Buhl Tries To Clinch Pennant Today

Yanks May Have Series Difficulties

By OSCAR FRALEY United Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (UP)—The New York Yankees aren't too content as they await the outcome of the National League pennant race...

The Yankees, who still figure to be the series favorite, were shaken up a bit when Whitey Ford hurt his back. On top of that, Tom Sturdivant and Johnny Kucks have not been too effective of late.

Which could place a terrific load on Tommy Byrne, once a wanderer of the baseball wastelands, and towering Don Larsen, a modern tintype of the unpredictable Rube Waddell.

Ford, if he can move his arm, undoubtedly will get the first game call because he is the Yanks money pitcher. Sturdivant and Kucks will get their share of work, too, but you can't get away from recent statistics.

Kucks Needed Help Kucks gave up seven hits as he was beaten by Baltimore in the last series and has needed help in his last four games — three of which the Yankees lost.

Southern California's Trojans, who whipped Texas, 44-20, in an intersectional game last Saturday, are a whopping 19-point pick over Oregon State, 19-13 winner over a fumbling Missouri team.

By JOHN GRIFFIN United Press Sports Writer The high-riding Milwaukee Braves can clinch at least a tie for the National League pennant tonight, if a couple of Dodger-killers named Bob Buhl and Bob Friend can just drive two more nails in Brooklyn's coffin.

All it would take would be for bushy-browed Buhl of the Braves to beat the St. Louis Cardinals at St. Louis while pudgy-cheeked Friend of the Pittsburgh Pirates beats the Dodgers in Brooklyn.

The combination of events would put Milwaukee two full games ahead of Brooklyn with only two games left to go. Even if the Braves lost their remaining two games, the best Brooklyn could do would be tie for the flag and force a playoff starting Monday.

Tonight could turn out much differently, however — it could see the Dodgers regain the tie with Milwaukee for first place if skinny Roger Craig (winless since Aug. 22) can beat Friend while Tom Poholsky of the Cardinals out-pitches Buhl for his third win over Milwaukee this year.

Redleg Chances Slight If the Braves and Dodgers both win — Milwaukee would remain one game ahead and be one day nearer the finish line. The only real tie would be to wipe out the mathematical hope of the third place Cincinnati Redlegs.

Alston predicted the Dodgers will sweep their final three games from the pesky Pirates, who beset them three out of four early this week. He refused to criticize Sandy Amoros, whose fly ball muffed to the Dodgers' costly 7-3 loss to the Phillies Wednesday.

Sugar Ray And Fullmer Sign For Title Go

NEW YORK (UP)—Another hot potato was shoved closer to Jir Norris' lap today as a result of his signing the Sugar Ray Robinson title fight under terms dictated by Robinson.

Sugar Ray will defend his 161 pound crown against Fullmer at Utah at Madison Square Garden, Dec. 12 — instead of Nov. 14, the date Norris wanted.

And now Norris is trying to match Archie Moore and young Floyd Patterson to fight for the vacant heavyweight crown at Chicago Stadium, Nov. 30 — instead of in December, which he preferred.

That shortens the time for bringing Patterson to terms or for attempting to substitute Tomm (Hurricane) Jackson as the heavy weight title opponent for an older Moore.

ay Texas, California Spend No Funds To Promote New Business

By EVERETT R. IRWIN
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO (UP)—Every state in the nation with the exception of Texas and California is in the business of bringing new businesses and industries within its borders.

They are scrapping for bigger and better slices of an economic pie that has been swelling for years—and shows every promise of getting even bigger.

A United Press survey shows that only Texas and California spend no state funds for such promotional purposes. They leave the job to chambers of commerce, private development groups or local governments.

But the other 46 are openly competing with one another. Arkansas, Illinois, Wisconsin, Florida, Idaho and Nevada have established industrial agencies within the last 18 months.

Rewards in Billion

The size of the prize they are after is shown by the Department of Commerce survey of current business. It reported that in the first six months of this year more than 16½ billion dollars was spent on new plants, plant expansion and equipment in all industries.

A department official said that despite this summer's steel strike it appears 1956 will surpass the record industrial expansion year of 1953. That year plant and equipment expenditures totaled 28 billion.

All around the country, yawning excavations and rising walls of brick and mortar testify to the industrial boom.

Marquardt Aviation Co. broke ground in July for a 5 million-plus jet engine plant near Ogdon, Utah.

Chrysler Motor Co. is building an 85 million plant near Akron, Ohio, and Olin Mathieson Corp. is constructing a 94 million aluminum plant near Muskegon, Mich.

Reynolds Metals has a 145-million expansion near Muskegon, Mich., on the Tennessee River in Alabama.

American Oil's 25-million refinery is scheduled to go into operation next winter near Yorktown, Va.

Omaha, Neb., captured a new Western Electric plant which will cost 80 million and employ more than 4,000 workers.

Acme Steel Co. recently announced plans to build steel-making facilities near Chicago's new world port.

Steel companies are investing more than a billion dollars in Minnesota's taconite.

A new tractor plant for Aurora, Ill.; an auto part plant at Dyersburg, Tenn.; an aircraft factory at St. Petersburg, Fla.

New factories mean more jobs. More jobs mean greater tax receipts to build highways and schools, more money in consumers' pocketbooks. The swelling consumer market creates a demand for more industries.

MOST OF IT'S INSIDE HIM—Peter Der Stepanian, 9, of Belleville, Mich., finds that pie-eating without hands is messy, but well worth the effort. He managed to get enough of the gooey berry creation inside him to win the pie-eating contest at the Michigan State Fair.

Highway Workers Get New Set Of Wage Rates

AUSTIN (UP)—A state-wide field survey has resulted in the state highway commission establishing a new set of wage rates for workers on Texas highway construction jobs.

Contractors will be required to pay not less than the specified rates to workers employed in execution of the highway contracts.

State Highway Engineer Dewitt C. Greer said that, in general, the survey showed wages now being paid over the state are 15 to 20 per cent higher than determined by the department's last survey, about one year ago.

The new wage rates cover about 100 different crafts and will be effective with the November letting for construction contracts.

Greer said the highest general wage established was in Harris and Jefferson counties, with Dallas, Tarrant, Bexar and Travis counties following closely.

The commission said it made provision for minor adjustments which may be necessary to coordinate with findings of the U.S. Department of Labor on highway projects.

Ike Expands His Campaign Work

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said yesterday he has expanded his election campaign activities at the earnest request of Republican associates. But he said he still will not burn storm or whistlestop.

Mr. Eisenhower told his news conference that when he originally spoke of making five or six major campaign speeches his plans for the campaign were not complete.

Since he blocked out his campaign plans in the early summer he said a lot of pressure has been brought to bear on him to expand his speaking program and he probably will make two or three additional major addresses.

Other news highlights of the President's news conference:

Shrugs Off Criticism

1. He shrugged off criticism by Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, that he is guilty of "consistent rejection of the positive responsibilities of leadership." Mr. Eisenhower said the United States is filled with people who have been associated with him and he preferred to call on them for an answer to Stevenson rather than discussing his own qualifications.

2. He fired back at Stevenson on the Democrat's criticism of his brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, for his relations with the now-deposed Peron government in Argentina. Mr. Eisenhower said that the $130-million loans by the government to Peron was executed by the Democrats before he took office in 1953. He also said his brother at no time had attempted to fix any U.S. policy regarding Latin America.

3. He said he believes there is some hope in the Suez Canal crisis. He said that if the 15 nations making up the tentative users association get together on a proper set of rules, he believes Egypt will see that her best interests lay in the same direction.

4. He said, in reply to a question, he has never been a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. This point was raised because Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Wednesday that he was an honorary member of the NAACP.

5. Mr. Eisenhower has renewed his invitation to Indian Prime Minister Nehru to visit this country this year. He had planned originally to visit Mr. Eisenhower in June, but the President's intestinal surgery forced a postponement. Mr. Eisenhower said he believes Nehru will visit this country some time this year, but not very soon.

6. He stood behind Nixon on the Vice President's forecast of an eventual four-day work week. He said this could not be accomplished by fiat but that his administration will continue efforts to establish an economic climate in which the worker receives the maximum reward for his efforts.

Dwelling for the moment on Nixon's forecast, Mr. Eisenhower said if the day can come when the United States can have a four-day work week he thinks it would be fine.

Public Records

7. He believes that some system ought to be worked out for making public an accounting of money spent by congressmen on trips abroad. He sees no reason why these records should be kept secret as they are at present.

8. He regards Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson as one of the finest and most dedicated public servants he has ever known. He believes Benson is thoroughly acquainted with every phase of agriculture and is putting his whole heart into working for the best interests of farmers. This statement was in response to a question whether he regards Benson as a "political millstone."

Mr. Eisenhower's meeting with reporters today was dominated by political questions. He opened his conference with a statement of regret on the death of Babe Didrikson Zaharias, the famed woman athlete. Then he went immediately to questions. The first was whether his health posed any limitation on an expanded campaign schedule.

Mr. Eisenhower, in a matter-of-fact manner, said that no health question was involved in any way in his campaign plans at present. He conceded that he did have to lead a more ordered life than he did before his heart attack, but that this did not affect his campaign operations to any degree.

Major Speech Planned

His announced campaign itinerary does not go beyond a major nationwide speech from Pittsburgh Oct. 8. The President said today he has at least one more definite commitment after Pittsburgh and believes there will be two or three other major speeches.

How should you play the South hand at four hearts? West opens the deuce of spades, and East puts up the king. Make your plan at this stage.

The actual declarer took the first trick with the ace of spades and ran dummy's three top clubs, discarding spades from his hand. East ruffed the third club and continued with the ace and nine of trumps.

South now had poor prospects. With the queen of diamonds in the East hand, South had to lose two diamonds tricks. With these two tricks went the game and rubber.

South was in too much of a hurry to get his club tricks. The best plan is to let East hold the first trick with the king of spades.

East cannot lead a diamond without giving you the contract. If

Hollywood Finally To Get Museum

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—After two false starts, Hollywood at last is going to get a museum where tourists can see such mementos as Boris Karloff's "Frankenstein" outfit and the first camera used for "Birth of a Nation."

This time the museum appears to be a certainty because the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, the film industry honorary group that hands out the Oscars, is building it.

Two other efforts have fizzled. One private group raised money for a museum two years ago but didn't raise enough. This year pioneer Mary Pickford threatened to leave her mementos to another city's museum unless Hollywood organized one. A group of easterners offered to promote a museum in filmtown—but that one is ending up on Long Island.

Director George Selznick, academy president, reveals that academy decided to step in and build the museum itself.

"We never tried to before because we didn't want to interfere with those other groups," Selznick explains. "A museum is long overdue in Hollywood."

"I saw a display being staged by the British Film Institute in London and it inspired me to get a permanent museum for Hollywood. We've appointed a committee to figure out how to raise the money. Everybody who comes to Hollywood wants to see a museum but there's nothing here for the tourists."

The academy already has a collection of priceless movie mementos to start the museum.

Stored away where the public never has had a chance to see them are such treasures as a
