GOP 'Truth Squad' To Trail Truman

WASHINGTON (UP)—Former President Truman whirled through a series of political chats today, shrugging off the threat that GOP "truth squad" would trail him during the fall campaign.

Mr. Truman told newsmen when he arrived at National Airport shortly before midnight Thursday night that if the Republicans follow him they "will learn something."

Jovial and smiling he waved at a crowd of banner-waving young Democrats and tourists. One sign said "Joe Smith welcomes HST."

Mr. Truman also was greeted by members of the American Political Science Foundation. He will make what he called a "non-partisan" speech to the association's convention tonight.

A Busy Schedule

He planned to lunch with members of his former White House staff. He said he also had "many" other appointments.

Democratic vice presidential nominee Estes Kefauver arrived at National Airport a few minutes after Mr. Truman had left for his suite at the Mayflower Hotel. Asked about the "truth squad," he said "the Republicans don't like the truth—but we'll tell it whether they like it or not."

The young Democrats stayed on to welcome Kefauver. They covered the former President's name on the placards with Kefauver's.

GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall announced Thursday that "truth squads" would follow Mr. Truman and possibly other Democrats during the campaign. The GOP used a similar tactic in 1952.

Mr. Truman arrived in the capital shortly after Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-SD) demanded that Democratic presidential nominee Adlai E. Stevenson state whether he agrees with Mr. Truman that convicted perjurer Alger Hiss was "not guilty."

"Red Herring" Query

In a telegram to Stevenson in care of the Democratic National Committee, Mundt also asked if Stevenson agreed with Mr. Truman "that statements Communists had penetrated our government constituted merely a 'red herring'?"

Mundt said he sent the telegram because he was chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities "at the time it obtained the information which sent Alger Hiss to jail."

Pampa Building Rate Is Still High

Building in Pampa continues at a phenomenal rate and the latest building permit issued for a business building was for the construction of a new Ideal Food Store on the corner of Ballard and Browning.

The permit calls for the construction of a 130 by 140 foot structure at an estimated cost of $160,000.

Preliminary work is underway with the arrangements being made with local utility companies for the moving of pipes and poles which are in the way of construction.

The construction superintendent, Bill Creathen, and other key construction personnel are on the scene and the excavation work is expected to begin next week.

Hugh Peoples, manager of Ideal's No. 1 store at Cuyler and Francis, stated today that he expects the new store to be open for business next April. The new store will replace the No. 1 store which will be closed with the opening of the one at Browning and Ballard.

The building now occupied by the No. 1 store is leased from the Fanny Lovett estate and the lease is about to run out. Peoples stated, however, the lease is being extended until the new store is completed.

Another large building permit issued since the first of the month was for the new Stephen F. Austin Elementary School at 1900 N. Duncan. The permit stated that the expected cost of the school is $412,000.

The new school, which is already under construction, was begun prior to the annexing of the land by the city.

The City Engineer's office also reported the totals of various classes of building permits issued during August.

New resident permits totaled $175,100 with permits for remodeling of residences totaling $13,000. New business permits accounted for $4,000 with permits for remodeling businesses totaling $14,300. In other classifications permits for new garages totaled $3,300, building move-in permits were $17,485 and miscellaneous permits added another $13,525.

The total permits issued for the month of August was $245,500.

Rushed Woman Okays Sentence

BEDFORD, Ind. (UP)—A mother of two children has revealed she "couldn't wait any longer" to get back to her youngsters and agreed to a jury decision of life imprisonment for a man.

Mrs. Helen Flinn said she felt there was insufficient evidence to convict Raymond Edwards, 48, Mitchell, Ind., at his trial on charges of raping an 11-year-old girl.

Mrs. Flinn said, however, that she agreed to the conviction so the jury could be discharged "because I knew I had those children at home and we could never get out of there if we tried to argue it out with the others."

Local Boys In Hospital After Mishap

Two local youths are in Highland General Hospital today receiving treatment for injuries they received when the car they were driving curbed on the road east of the Pampa County Club at approximately 2 a.m. today.

Injured are Walter F. Miller, 16, 850 S. Sumner, and E. L. Wickeser, 18, Davis Hotel. Hospital authorities reported this morning that Miller possibly has a fractured hip and received bruises and lacerations. They reported that Wickeser received only minor bruises and lacerations.

Reports received stated that the Miller boy reported he attempted to make the turn and lost control of the car. When the car hit an embankment he was thrown clear and the car, in rolling back down the embankment, passed over his hip.

The youths remained near the car and slept until daylight when they went to a nearby house and were taken to the hospital.

No investigation of the accident had been made late this morning.

Court Justice Retires

WASHINGTON (UP)—Associate Justice Sherman Minton today announced his retirement from the Supreme Court.

Minton said he is retiring because of poor health, effective Oct. 15.

Minton announced his intentions in a letter to President Eisenhower this morning. He said that because of a circulatory condition in his legs he did not feel he could carry out "the exacting duties" of his office.

Later he told a reporter "there was a time when they waited on an elderly justice and told him he wasn't doing his work right. I don't want that to happen to me."

Minton, who will be 66 on Oct. 20, has been obliged, for the past year, to use a cane and appears to walk with difficulty.

Former Circuit Judge

"I think this is best for me and best for the court," he said. "But it is not an easy place to leave. I love it. I hate to go."

Minton, a former Democratic senator from Indiana, succeeded Justice Wiley B. Rutledge on the high court in October, 1949. He was appointed by President Truman. He had previously served on the Seventh U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago. He will retire at full pension of $35,000 a year—his regular salary—under the law which allows justices to retire at 65 after 15 years on the federal bench.

The court now is made up of six Democrats and three Republicans. The Republicans are Chief Justice Earl Warren, Justice John Marshall Harlan, and Justice Harold H. Burton. The other two Republicans were named by President Eisenhower.

Minton was last in the news late in August when he was quoted as saying he hoped for Adlai E. Stevenson's election in November.

Minton said his future plans are not definite but that he will return to his New Albany, Ind., home, where he customarily spends his summers as a justice. He departed from court this summer by touring Europe with Mrs. Minton.

Minton's appointment to the bench in September, 1949, came as a surprise to just about everyone—including Minton himself. Big reason: He had joined the much-criticized but vain fight to enlarge the membership of the Supreme Court in 1937.

Canal Group Meets To Head Off Disaster

'Hooky' Used As Tool Against Integration

By UNITED PRESS

National Guardsmen moved in with fixed bayonets to break up a near riot against school integration at Sturgis, Ky., Thursday but elsewhere in the troubled South-land hoodoo became the chief weapon today against mixed classrooms.

A white citizens council was quickly formed in Sturgis at a big rally Thursday night. The council made plans to petition local officials today with a demand that the National Guard "pack up and get out" of town.

Kentucky White Citizens Council President Millard Grubbs, of Louisville, and the group's state secretary, James Dumas, rushed to Sturgis to address the some 600 white persons at the rally and to form a Sturgis council.

Nine Negro students broke the color barrier at Sturgis High School Thursday, but Kentucky guardsmen were forced to hold off at bayonet point an angry crowd of more than 500 persons who shouted their objections.

The nine Negroes failed to return to classes at Sturgis today as another mob of 500 crowded the school grounds. The children's parents said they would be back Monday.

While mob violence had vanished at most other points along the integration front—stretching from Texas to Maryland, a boycott movement against classroom integration appeared to be growing.

At Clinton, Tenn., where guardsmen were called in earlier to quell a dangerous demonstration, more than half of the mixed high school's 800 white students remained away from classes.

At Matoaka, W. Va., officials said that four out of every five white students were still playing hooky from the recently integrated high school, and the boycott movement was spreading to at least two other southwest Virginia schools.

In Denver, Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, charged in a speech that President Eisenhower "contributed little to the cause of law and order" by his integration statements Wednesday.

The President had said that the federal government would not intervene in the situation unless state and local governments were unable to maintain law and order.

Wilkins, in an address to the National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., said "the newspapers, radio and television are full of riot accounts . . . governors have called out troops. Men have been hung in effigy. A guardsman has been stabbed. All the nation is watching in shocked horror at men making war upon children and upon the Supreme Court of the United States, upon the bedrock of the constitutional protection of every citizen—and from the White House not a mumbering word."

Comment by another NAACP leader touched off a hot statement by Texas Atty. Gen. John Ben Shepperd. Shepperd accused Thurgood Marshall, chief counsel for the NAACP, of trying "to stir up hatred among the people of Texas who have lived side by side in peace for many years."

Marshall had said that Texas Gov. Allan Shivers was guilty of action "above the law" in directing that white and Negro students could be barred from the Mansfield, Tex., high school if their presence might stir up further strife. Integration attempts at Mansfield High had touched off earlier demonstrations.

Orders Bring Quiet

Mansfield was quiet following Shivers' orders and the same "peace and order" has been restored in many other integration hot spots where violence broke out earlier.

In other integration developments:

At Knoxville, Tenn., Federal Judge Robert Taylor made permanent a temporary injunction prohibiting interference with integration at Clinton High School as a safeguard against further outbreaks.

Taylor also rejected an appeal for a new trial for John Kasper, the Washington, D.C., segregation leader who was sentenced to a year in prison for violating Taylor's injunction.

The Vatican City newspaper Osservatore Romano wrote an editorial concerning the integration violence and called racial discrimination in this country a "sin against the nature of Christianity."

Citizens Council Is Formed

STURGIS, Ky. (UP)—A newly formed white citizens council planned today to petition local officials to ask the Kentucky National Guard and state police "to pack up and get out" of this town which is seething with racial unrest.

The National Guard and state troopers moved into the town on orders of Gov. A. B. Chandler Wednesday after a mob prevented a group of Negro children from entering the formerly all-white Sturgis High School where they had enrolled the previous Friday.

The Negroes attended classes Thursday under National Guard protection.

Kentucky White Citizens Council President Millard Grubbs, Louisville, Ky., and James Dumas, the state secretary of the group, rushed to Sturgis Thursday to address a meeting of some 600 white persons from a platform in the American Legion Park Thursday night.

No police or National Guardsmen were seen at the park, but two National Guard jeeps, each manned by two soldiers, patrolled the town throughout the night. They made frequent trips to the Negro East Side of town where telephone threats were received by many during the afternoon.

Two-man patrols also trudged through the vacant streets surrounding the high school during the night. The remainder of the 200 Guardsmen were bivouacked in pup tents behind the school.

Groups Talk Community Council

Representatives of Pampa area clubs and organizations were present last night at a meeting held in the Palm Room of City Hall, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

The purpose of the meeting was to report on the youth activity and interest survey made recently in the Pampa Junior and Senior High Schools, and to give recommendations arrived upon as a result.

The recommendation made was for the formation of a community council.

Such a council would be composed of representatives of interest groups and selected citizens who, through voluntary effort, would help solve the problems of the community. The main idea in regard to membership is to encourage participation rather than to limit it.

The most vital part of this council is to study the problems and needs in relation to the community, and to go along with the various organizations in accomplishing the endeavors undertaken as a result of that study. The prime concern is the elimination of the overlapping in such undertakings as now exist and to get community interest behind any organization that does take on a project of concern to the well being of the community.

In effect, a community council would be a fact finding and advisory committee comprised of members of all the clubs and organizations who could ask and receive its recommendations whenever they saw fit.

Shivers Defends Mansfield Action

AUSTIN (UP)—Gov. Allan Shivers Thursday defended his action for recent civil strife at Mansfield, but said the "quietness of the situation" shows he acted wisely in ordering Negro pupils transferred to a Fort Worth school.

"All's quiet at Mansfield—all's not quiet at Clinton (Tenn.)," Shivers said.

"It is the agitators—not the school kids nor the school boards—that are causing the trouble," he said.

Shivers charged that "unfortunately, in the NAACP there are some white people contributing and agitating—some very prominent in the so-called liberal Democratic circles of Texas—but you don't see them—they are in their plush offices."

"The agitators are the ones who ought to be put in jail," he said. "They are the ones I'd like to get a hold of."

The governor defended his action in ordering Rangers to bar any student, white or colored, at Mansfield, if their presence was likely to cause trouble.

'Organizing' Of Whites Is Reported

TEXARKANA (UP)—President H. W. Stilwell of Texarkana Junior College said today he had received a report that "some white citizens" of Texarkana were organizing to resist the enrollment of Negroes in the college.

Dr. Stilwell made the statement to newsmen as racial unrest spread after two Negro girls registered at the college on Wednesday under federal court orders.

Three Negro boys who showed up for registration Thursday were to take aptitude tests today prior to enrolling in the college.

Dr. Stilwell told a cheering White Citizens Council meeting Thursday night that "it is not only your right, but your duty to resist . . . integration."

"Integration will result in the lowering of educational standards," he told the some 300 persons at the segregation rally.

Another cross was burned, this time in front of the Texarkana, Tex., high school, Thursday night. In addition, police had several reports of shotguns being fired in the vicinity of a Negro church Thursday night while choir practice was going on.

Shivers Won't Run For The Senate

AUSTIN (UP)—Gov. Allan Shivers said Thursday he would not be a candidate for the U.S. Senate when he leaves office next January.

He indicated he would tell his future plans "within a few days"—probably on his return late next week from a southern governors' conference at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

The governor told newsmen with a smile that he and his family had been looking at houses in both Austin and Houston—but "found them" pretty expensive.

Shivers said he would like his family to make its home at Woodville, site of "Magnolia Hills," Tyler County farm home.

Mrs. Shivers and the children objected on grounds that Woodville is fine in the summer; but if they "live there the year around, they couldn't go there in the summer," he said.

He plans to take his two eldest sons, Bud, 10, and John, 18, bear hunting in Alaska in October. Summing it up, the governor said with a grin, "After January, I'm going to hunt and fish, enjoy my family and read a book."

Shivers Defends Mansfield Action

AUSTIN (UP)—Gov. Allan Shivers Thursday defended his action for recent civil strife at Mansfield, but said the "quietness of the situation" shows he acted wisely in ordering Negro pupils transferred to a Fort Worth school.

The governor defended his action in ordering Rangers to bar any student, white or colored, at Mansfield, if their presence was likely to cause trouble.

Filling Station Hit By Gunfire

TEXARKANA, Ark. (UP)—A filling station owned by a Negro integration leader was blasted by shotgun fire Thursday, the second outbreak of protest since two Negro girls were admitted to the junior college here Wednesday.

Wednesday night a Negro was hung in effigy and a fiery cross blazed on the college campus within hours after the two Negroes enrolled at the institution.

The filling station was peppered with buck shot and the plate glass window was shattered.

Marvin Marshall, co-owner of the filling station said he is not a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, but his partner, J.L. Montgomery, had "done some talking about getting Negro students in the college."

Failure Looms For Cairo Talks

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
United Press Staff Correspondent

CAIRO — UP — The five-power Suez committee headed by Australian Prime Minister R. G. Menzies met for more than three hours today in a desperate attempt to head off looming failure of the Cairo talks.

But it failed even to fix a new meeting date with Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser. Only a dramatic last-minute compromise now could save the talks.

Committee Spokesman Noel Deschamps said "in all probability" the committee would decide Saturday when to meet Nasser again. There was no meeting with him today because this is the Moslem Sabbath.

Deschamps added that the committee would not leave without seeing Nasser again—"if only for courtesy's sake."

Meanwhile, Egyptian newspapers attacked British Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden as a "criminal" bent on war in a sudden surge of pessimism over the outcome of the Suez Canal talks.

But the Cairo press prominently published London dispatches claiming Egypt has rejected the plan proposed by US Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and brought here by the Menzies committee. These dispatches said the Menzies group will return to London empty-handed.

Next Step Planned

Similar pessimism was reported in London, where diplomatic sources said Britain has started consultations with the United States and other allies on the "next step" to take if Nasser finally rejects the Dulles plan. The London dispatches said Britain's peace-or-war orders to the Suez expeditionary force in the Mediterranean will hinge on Menzies' personal report when he returns to Britain.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser left for Alexandria to spend the Moslem Sabbath with his family as Australian Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies called a private meeting of the committee to try to heal the breach within its ranks.

Informed sources said the United States backed by Iran wanted to reconvene the London Suez conference with Egyptian participation to work out some compromise solution. Sweden wanted to take the whole matter before the United Nations immediately.

Pressure On Nasser

Menzies was said to be insistent on wresting Nasser away from his unyielding position on Egyptian control over the canal so that a reconvened London conference would have something more than just a flat Egyptian rejection to work with.

Menzies, who heads the five-nation group, was reported willing only to report back to the London conference on the developments so far. He expected to meet Nasser again on Saturday and possibly Sunday but was reported determined to end his mission by late Sunday.

Conference sources said prospects for the five-nation committee settling its own differences at today's meeting were dim and that Thursday's balky developments (See CANAL, Page 3)

British To Hinge Action On Report

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP)—Britain's peace-or-war orders to the big Suez expeditionary force in the Mediterranean will hinge on the personal report of Australian Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies, informed sources said today.

Menzies, head of a five-nation committee in Cairo to negotiate a settlement of the Suez crisis with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, will report to Prime Minister Anthony Eden next week. The British decision will come then.

The sources said the 62-year-old Australian is serving as the eyes and ears of the British cabinet in its biggest decision since World War II and that any final decision on use of the task force will depend on his assessment of Nasser and his intentions.

These views emerged from an authoritative assessment of British policy after a cabinet meeting Thursday that decided to recall Parliament next Wednesday from its summer recess.

One of the most important developments in British policy was the growing move to place the whole Suez dispute before the United Nations.

This was new. Up till now Britain has emphasized its determination to keep the issue away from the United Nations—and a possible Russian veto—and opportunities for long drawn out delays.

France May Stand Alone In Crisis

PARIS (UP)—France reluctantly accepted the possibility today that it may stand alone in event of any military action in the Suez Canal zone.

Nearly 3,000 French troops arrived on Cyprus Thursday to bolster the joint Anglo-French Suez expeditionary force. However, French observers believed that Britain may back down from its early theory that the Suez crisis should be settled by armed might if no compromise agreement is reached with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

They said French leaders realize that the British government was highly impressed by Thursday's British trade union appeal to Prime Minister Anthony Eden to avoid war by all means.

A source close to the French foreign office said that even if Nasser flatly rejects the demand for international control of the canal, the refusal would "not invoke immediate military action."

In fact, some Paris observers said, France now realizes that Nasser has called its bluff, and the longer the Egyptian president can delay a settlement the more remote is the likelihood of military force on the part of France and Britain.

Committee Maps Reception Plans

The public relations committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce met this morning at 10 to map out complete details for a teachers reception honoring new teachers, to be held September 13.

The reception will be jointly sponsored by the public relations committee of the chamber and the Pampa Classroom Teachers Association.

Eastland To Investigate Javits' Denial

By HERBERT FOSTER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss) may decide today whether there are "inconsistencies" in New York Attorney General Jacob K. Javits' denial that Communists once gave him political support.
Eastland is chairman of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee. It was before this group that Javits, a candidate for the Republican Senate nomination in New York, appeared at his own request Wednesday to try to quash reports that he had Communist support when elected to Congress in 1946.
But Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind), top-ranking Republican on the subcommittee, said later in Bedford, Ind., that there were "clear inconsistencies" in Javits' testimony which left the situation "very unsatisfactory and far from resolved."
Subcommittee counsel Robert Morris told newsmen that Eastland might rule on whether to call for questioning witnesses whose testimony might conflict with Javits'.
Morris mentioned as possible witnesses Dr. Bella Dodd, a former Communist Party official; Murray Baron, Liberal Party chairman in New York; and Max Yergan, former director of the Council on African Affairs, described by Morris as a Communist-controlled organization.
Javits said Wednesday that he discussed his political future with Dr. Dodd in 1946 but swore he did not know she was then head of the Communist Party's political activities in New York state.
Morris also told the subcommittee that Yergan has said he discussed Africa with Javits in 1945 at the San Francisco home of Louise Branstetter—a site described in an FBI memo as a meeting place of Communists. Javits said he had no recollection of this.
Javits said his four terms in Congress showed an "effective anti-Communist struggle."
President Eisenhower told his news conference Wednesday, he thought Javits was a "loyal, fine American." He recalled that Javits was one of a group of congressmen who first urged him to run for the presidency.
"I think he's a nice enough fellow and I hope he's not in trouble, but I deplore the fact he's such a poor shot."
WASHINGTON—Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland of California replying to Adlai Stevenson's call for an end to the military draft:
"The Democratic candidate's speech... is a blatant attempt to get votes."

Bribe Case Opens In Washington

WASHINGTON (UP)—Two oil company attorneys pleaded innocent to bribe Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.) to vote for the natural gas bill. John M. Neff and Elmer Patman, attorneys for the Superior Oil Co., entered the plea before Chief Judge Bolitha Laws in federal district court. Laws fixed bond at $500 for each and set Nov. 19 as the tentative trial date. Neff, of Lexington, Neb., and Patman, of Austin, Tex., were specifically accused in a six-count indictment with conspiracy to violate the lobbying law and with offering a $2,500 bribe to Sen. Case during debate on the gas bill last February. Neff subsequently testified before Senate investigators that he offered the money as a campaign contribution from funds allegedly supplied by Patman. One count of the indictment charges that the money was part of the personal funds of Howard B. Keck, president of Superior Oil, another key figure in the probe. Case disclosed in a senate speech that the money had been offered him. The disclosure touched off a Senate investigation into the whole subject of lobbying. The measure passed by the Senate, but Case voted against it. It was later vetoed by President Eisenhower, who said in his veto message that he deplored the "arrogant" lobbying tactics used on behalf of the legislation. Judge Laws gave defense attorneys until Oct. 5 to file motions in the case. Justice department attorney J. Frank Cunningham, who will prosecute, had urged that the trial be set for the earliest possible date.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Oil company lawyers Elmer Patman and John M. Neff faced arraignment today on charges of trying to bribe Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.) to vote for the "now-vetoed" natural gas bill. Patman, lawyer for Superior Oil Co. of California, and Neff, an oil lobbyist he hired, were scheduled to be arraigned this morning in U.S. District Court. A federal grand jury after months of investigation indicted Neff, Patman and Superior Oil July 25 for conspiracy and bribery. The jury also indicted Patman and Neff on four counts of failing to register as lobbyists. Case rocked the Senate last February when he announced during debate on the natural gas bill that he rejected a $2,500 campaign contribution offered as an inducement to vote for the bill. Neff admitted making the offer. President Eisenhower vetoed the bill with a bias at the "arrogant" tactics of lobbyists supporting it.

Car Price Jump Seen In 1957

DETROIT (UP)—A Detroit statistical agency predicts the 1957 model low-priced cars will go up an average of $100-plus at the factory retail level. Ward's Automotive Reports said Thursday that "this prospect was unofficially confirmed by two of the Big Three car producers." The increase, which would be "more sizable" on higher-priced cars, Ward's said, "is more severe than those predicted following recent steel contract settlements and reflects the cost of radically new styling plus further increases in material and labor expense." Auto industry spokesmen refused comment on the prediction. They said prices of the new models

CANAL

(Continued from Page 1) had rendered the atmosphere grave and tense. Egyptian sources appeared confident of ultimate success of a second London conference where Egypt would be more prepared to give and take. Informed sources in Rome said Italian Ambassador Biavanti Formari called on Nasser Thursday and appealed to him to be more conciliatory in his negotiations. There was speculation they may have mentioned Italy's willingness to cooperate in such economic projects as the Aswan dam.) Talks Still Cordial Egyptians pointed out the talks were still continuing and said the atmosphere was still cordial. First and foremost, they said, the talks have relieved the tension prevailing during the London conference. Egyptian sources also said it was not the purpose of the Menzies mission to reach final agreement but to obtain Egypt's concessions which would meet the Dulles plan halfway and transmit these concessions to London. Egyptians believed Nasser had met the board at least halfway. He has remained firm on Egypt's retaining sovereignty over the canal but he has made two concessions he hoped would enable the London conference to meet again: 1. An international advisory board should be created to cooperate in a consultative capacity but with Egyptian authority running the canal. 2. Egyptian guarantees that the canal would remain a free waterway to all ships of all nations at all times.

Nasser After Amendment Informed sources said the Nasser plan envisaged a renewal and amendment of the 1888 Constantinople convention embodying new Egyptian pledges guaranteeing freedom of canal navigation.

Probe Of Aid Program To Start

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga.) will open a special Senate investigation of the foreign aid program before becoming special ambassador to NATO, his office said today. George, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is now in Europe. He is retiring from Congress this year, ending his 34-year career in the Senate. President Eisenhower named George his special ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization—the appointment to take effect on George's retirement.

His office said the six-man subcommittee will pass to Sen. Theodore F. Green (D-R.I.) when George retires. The group is scheduled to submit its report Jan. 31. The subcommittee's work may parallel that of a citizens' advisory committee appointed by President Eisenhower this week under the chairmanship of Benjamin F. Fairless, former board chairman of the U.S. Steel Corp.

The Senate last July created the aid program. George said he planned to study operation of the aid program during his six-week stay in Europe. "We want the hearings to get underway as promptly as possible," he said in a statement released through his office. Railroads carry 14 per cent of the freight in the United States, while waterways and pipelines share 11 per cent.

Officials Try To Find Cause Of Baby's Death

HAMDEN, Conn. (UP)—Feverish police activity hinted today at the possibility that six-week-old Cynthia Ruotolo may have been a victim of homicide rather than kidnapping. Vital organs of the infant found floating in a plastic potato bag in a reservoir have been sent to the FBI laboratory to determine the cause of death. The baby's mother, Mrs. Eleanor Ruotolo, 29, was questioned three times in ten hours Thursday. Sobbing and near collapse, she was escorted to her home by two policemen and a priest.

State's attorney Abraham Ullman, now in full charge of the case, refused any comment on possibility that the child was murdered before being thrown into Lake Whitney, a reservoir south of Hamden.

Ullman said today it would "take considerable time, maybe days," before he received a report of the laboratory analysis. He indicated there would be no new development in the case from an official standpoint, until the report arrived.

Three boys fishing along the shore of the lake found the body Thursday about one mile from the crowded department store where Cynthia was taken from her carriage last Saturday.

The body of the baby, believed dead several days, was viewed by both Mrs. Ruotolo and her husband, Stephen, 33, who made the identification. Detectives searched the Ruotolo house and yard Thursday. They disclosed they were trying to match a piece of wire which was used to close the top of the transparent cellophane bag in which the body was found. Ullman, after hours of interrogation with the leading figures in the case, conferred with the FBI, state police and local police late Thursday night.

The state's attorney said that no one has been arrested. "There was no evidence of sexual molestation in the case," Ullman told newsmen. "You have been told everything that can be told." He replied "No comment" to all other questions.

Ullman's office took official charge of the investigation today with the withdrawal of the FBI from the case.

Joseph J. Casper, FBI area chief, announced Thursday night: "In view of the identification (of the body) and the fact no interstate transportation is indicated, there appears to be no federal jurisdiction. Consequently the FBI is not empowered to conduct further investigation."

Coroner James J. Corrigan said he was "unable to fix the cause of death."

"The baby had a bruise on its forehead and some hemorrhaging, but no brain injury," Corrigan said. "The autopsy, which was concluded about 10:45 p.m. EDT, seemed to show that this bruise was not enough to cause death."

Police revealed that they are holding a Negro man in connection with the case. The Negro was picked up four or five days ago carrying a plastic bag and mumbling that he was receiving "brain waves." Police said the Negro carried marijuana cigarettes and had long black hair similar to that of the alleged kidnaper.

'The Male Animal'

Pampans were recently treated to the fine acting talents of our fellow townspeople through the medium of the Pampa Little Theatre's production of James Thurber's "The Male Animal."

Though we do not profess a unique talent in the art of dramatic criticism, it is our opinion that the participants did very well with their parts and the stage setting was definitely a finished product. As for Thurber's handiwork in the realm of plot substance and development, that is a different story.

For the benefit of those who did not see the performance, the setting is a typical American university and the plot is a combination of a confused marital situation with strong overtones of a childishly distorted reflection on the contemporary social picture from the angle of the modern day "liberal."

In this latter phase, the precocious editor of a student newspaper blasts the university trustees for their firing of some "liberal" professors for having been ACCUSED of being Communists. In the same editorial, it was announced that the professor-hero of the play was going to read the writing of an anarchist in his English class and since all this coincided with a homecoming football game, a university trustee was on hand to land right in the middle of things.

The university trustee is pictured as a prosperous, obnoxious, football-loving businessman who advocates firing any professor whose actions might in any way be linked with the CHARGE of Communism. Needless to say, this makes him a vulgar philistine and a "Fascist."

Our professor-hero, of course, does not succumb to "pressure" for he is now fighting for "a principle (sic)" and, in the course of events, it develops that the anarchist's prose which he planned to read was quite innocuous.

The conclusion of the play finds the professor-hero charging off to read his piece, the strain in marital relations reconciled and the prosperous and obnoxious businessman-villain going back to his "Fascist" world which is little elevated above the moral level of the Mau Mau.

The superficiality of this typical "social protest" which the "liberal" playwright brings to the contemporary American theatre is designed largely for the mentality of a college freshman majoring in sociology. Its premise is that there is a dragon which must be slain and, as is invariably the case, the dragon is either of paper or an illusion.

Our position is not that there isn't injustice in the world but that there are surely subjects other than the stereotyped "injustices" of the Americans for Democratic Action. For instance, we could suggest as a topic the daily threats and violence by the goons of organized labor who have literally thousands of individuals in fear for their personal safety at this very moment. Such a theme development will not come to pass, however, for by the strange code of the "liberal," only the conformists to the prevailing order of a diluted Marxism have "rights." Professors can be discharged for openly preaching Communism and the "liberal" establishment can see no social significance for comment via the legitimate theatre nor is there any social significance, for instance, to the "liberal" in the over 800 acts of violence against non-strikers in Kohler, Wis., for such acts must be merely interpreted as but facets of "labor democracy."

The "liberals" long ago became sterile in principle and imagination and hence ruthless distortion has become their defense as well as offense. The trumped-up and facile situations by their cult of "social protest" playwrights, put forward in the name of art, do not confuse the basic issues of the day for those who are not already confused.

Again, our best wishes to the future success of the Pampa Little Theatre for they have displayed a reservoir of local talent which will add much to community life as time goes on.

As for Mr. Thurber, well, we think he would be in excellent company discussing the great social problems of the day with Mr. Elvis Presley.

THE AMERICAN WAY

The Hocus-Pocus That Produces Cheap Public (Political) Power

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HONES

Beliefs Of Collectivists

One can pretty well tell whether a man is tinged with any form of collectivism by the way he attempts to accomplish things. Edmund A. Opitz, in his book, "The Case Studies of The Church in Politics," makes this statement: "The collectivist way of helping some people is by hurting other people."

If that be the real test of whether a man is collectivist, then most people are collectivists. The collectivist seems to believe that you can materially help some people by hurting other people, and they usually want to do it by making it legal. They seem to think that legal means do not need to be in harmony with moral law or justice. They evidently believe it is perfectly just and right and honest to use aggressive force by way of the state to take from one to give to another.

What the collectivists do not see is that in reality they are not even helping those very people they are trying to help; that they are hurting both the recipients of the help and those people they have deprived of the fruits of their labor. Especially is this true if we take into consideration the spiritual harm done to the recipient resulting from receiving stolen goods. It causes him to lose faith in himself and acquire beliefs and habits that take away from him the joy of doing his duty in being self-reliant. It makes him become an appendage of those who are "helping." It deprives him of the pleasure and habits that come from accomplishment. The transitory, material benefits that he receives are thus far outweighed by the harm that comes to him by losing his self-respect and his self-reliance.

Also Harms The Collectivist

Now what does it do to the collectivist who comes to believe that he has a right to use aggressive force to take from those he thinks have too much to give to those he thinks have too little? It does great harm to these collectivists because it exalts them. It exalts them by giving them political power, and all political power tends to corrupt and this political power to take from one to give to another corrupts absolutely. The collectivist who uses this means sets himself over and above other people. In fact, he sets himself over and above God, because God gives men the right to choose and he has willed that men should live by the sweat of his brow.

Thus, these collectivists waste their time and energy by deluding themselves into believing they are so wise that they know better than Providence how much each person should have of what is produced. Remember, Jesus said, "Who made me a divider over you?" Yet these collectivists—these know-it-alls—have persuaded themselves that they know more than all the people together as to how wealth should be divided. They seem to deny this law of life that each and every man should get all he produces.

In place of this eternal order they contend they can improve on the government and by way of taxation contend they can help some and not even hurt those they deprive of the fruits of their labor. But, as a matter of fact, they hurt both the recipient and the man they claim has too much.

This is an acid test of a collectivist, and if this is a proper test, then both the Republican and the Democratic parties are collectivists; then the labor unions are collectivists; then government schools are collectivists; then the believer in protective tariffs and immigration quotas are collectivists; then anybody, in short, who interferes with all people having the right to control themselves—no more, no less—are collectivists.

It is time we begin to recognize collectivists.

The Nation's Press

BROTHER'S KEEPER (Cases, Cas.)

What is meant by brother's keeper?

Does being one's brother's keeper mean getting someone else to look after him when he's sick, or in trouble, or does it mean we do it ourselves?

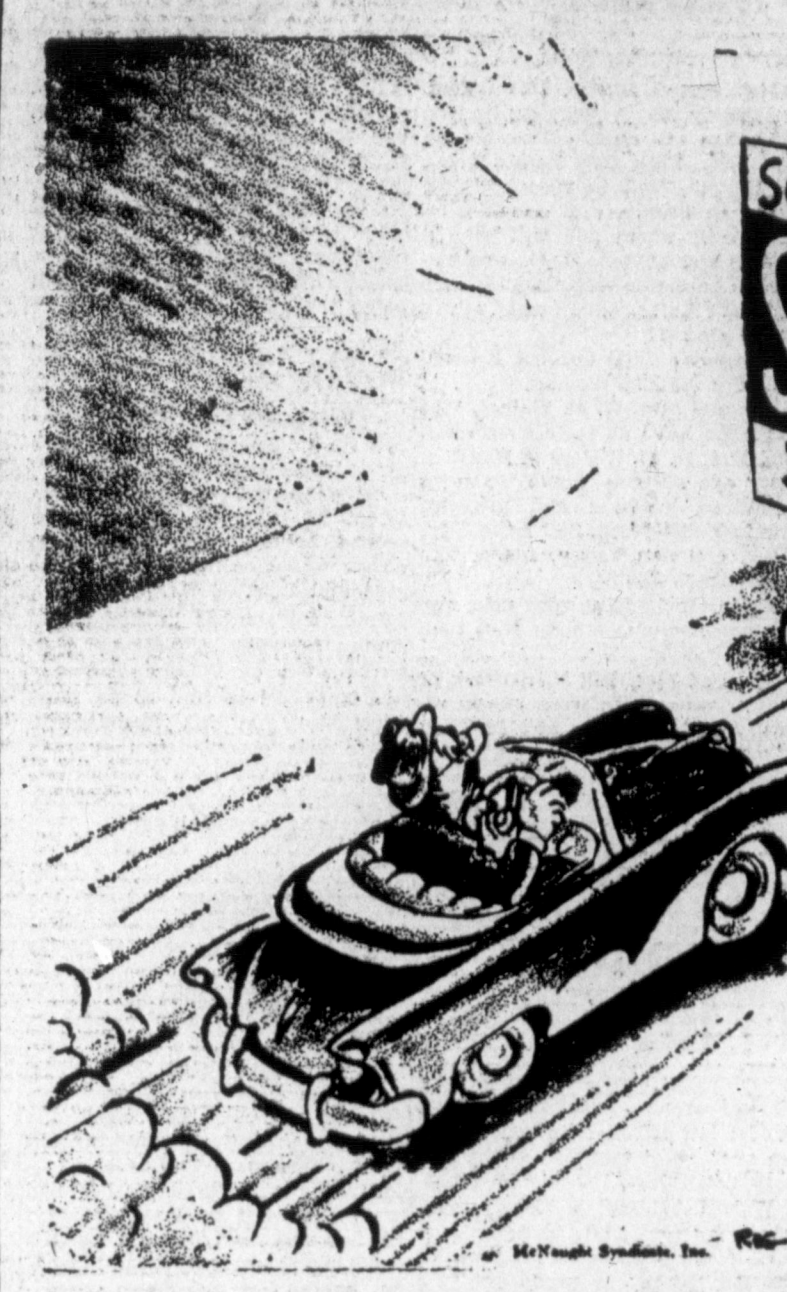

Does being one's brother's keeper mean that we try to regulate his life so that he or others will be compelled to contribute to our welfare? Does it mean forcing him to buy life insurance, fire insurance, sickness insurance, or does it mean that we, ourselves as individuals help him out when he is down and out?

Does it mean that we can develop a sanctimonious attitude because we go about organizing society to force individuals to contribute to it or that fund, government activity or social welfare scheme; or does it mean that unknown to others we carry out our duty towards our neighbor?

The truth is that the development of agencies outside and apart from the Church, except those of a voluntary nature, is the very antithesis of individual right and responsibility; especially is this true of government agencies. It is because the individual shirks his duty towards his neighbor, that he requests other agencies and more particularly the government to take over his responsibility, by the payment of money rather than by his own real contribution of a Christian nature.

Charity, the greatest of all virtues, cannot be reduced to a tax, to a financial basis, a service to be paid for like getting a radio repaired or shoes resoled.

First Sign Of Autumn

Fair Enough

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Henceforth, I Bait Red Baiters

SAN FRANCISCO — Since the Republican Convention, I have taken a trash look at my hand and decided to throw it in and draw another. Henceforth I bait Red-Baiters.

I used to bait Reds. I exposed Communists and hounded them, belling with the pack until just a few weeks ago when I hollered up Paul Hoffman's preference for Communists on his old European lawyer named Peter Hoguet, also of his staff, who had put the finger on them. Hoguet got fired and like Harry Dexter White and Doctor Peress, the Reds he fingered were promoted and lately, President Eisenhower and the senate put Hoffman into the United Nations as American delegate.

Or look at Whitaker Chambers and Elizabeth Bentley, who have peeled the skin off their very souls. Chambers is now rusticated on his farm near Ike's place at Gettysburg where he led Bob Stripling, the chief investigator of the House Committee, out into a field at dusk, pointed to a particular pumpkin and said "that is the one."

Chambers has had a heart attack and is gentling himself, along to stretch out his life for the happiness of his wife and children. To be sure he has made some money out of his confessional book, "Witness," but nobody who knows anything about writing would deny that is a superb work, worth to humanity a five-foot shelf of Hemingway, Farrell, O'Hara and all that posturing school. The poor fool dragged himself through hell in the two Alger Hiss trials and would up sick and feeble in a wilderness of hateful revilement while Hiss, convicted with plain implications of treason, was coddled by Benjamin Butterweiser, of Kuhn-Loeb, and his wife, who is Senator Lehman's niece, and recently lectured at Princeton with the sanction of President Dodds. Do you think neighbor Ike will ask his fellow card-poker for tea and crumpets?

Betty Bentley was stoned in the streets and faded into a quiet little job in a quiet little college for girls in the deep south, but Judith Coplon is free and gay. Stripling was grabbed in the draft although he was a "Pre-Pearl Harbor Father" and his heart-sock young wife and their baby had a bad time while Bob himself, with three years' military training, spent a year as an army yard-bird. Bob couldn't even make PFC and his military service consisted of gleaming cigarette butts with his fingers. The Reds did that to Bob. After the war, Bob high-tailed it for Midland, Tex., where, about a year ago, he couldn't count the money he had acquired through honest wild-catting. They tried to get him back to Washington for the new committee under Congressman Walter. He said to hell with them, meaning you and you and me.

Joe McCarthy poked Peress out from under the hen-house with the help of Maj. Gen. Kirk E. Lawton, commanding Fort Monmouth. Everything happened to Joe but nothing happened to Peress or Ike's friend, General Zwicker. Lawton was muzzled lest he blab the truth about the permeation of Monmouth by persons deemed to be security risks.

CRACKER BARREL

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Henceforth, I Bait Red Baiters

One afternoon when he was socially ill in Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, by order of Ike's Pentagon, he sat in New York with Dick O'Neill and Jimmy Walsh, Medal of Honor heroes of a bygone phase of American patriotism, and told them he was gagged. O'Neill said, "well, why don't you just talk anyway?" General Lawton asked, "should I throw away my pension after 34 years to give people Eisenhower wants to shield?"

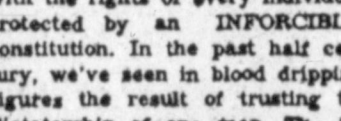

You hear little of McCarthy these days, but during the Republican convention there was ballyhoo for Maggie Smith, the Senator from Maine, who started the campaign to bury him. She was amenable to nomination for vice president.

It is safe to take a fearless stand against impersonal Communism and nobody will hurt you for attacking godless atheism, but look at the roster of those who baited individual Reds. So I throw in my hand. Henceforth I bait Red-Baiters. Deal the cards.

BID FOR A SMILE

By JACK MOFFITT

A renowned but absentminded educator was entertaining a friend in his home for dinner. While waiting for the main course, the guest asked, "Will you pass the nuts, Professor — Yes, I suppose so, but I really should flunk them."

When I heard the cuckoo, I started looking for the clock, and when I didn't find any I began to believe I was hearing things. Then I remembered that I was in the land of the cuckoo, where they live in the woods and not in wooden boxes on the wall.

I want to compliment the live cuckoo on its song. It sounds every bit as lifelike, every bit as musical, as the one emitted by the cuckoo that pokes its head out of a door every hour. Yes sir, the honest-to-goodness cuckoo has the song of the wooden one down pat.

The train from Salzburg is my favorite train, and I am sure it would be yours, too. One ride on it, and you know that the Super Chief and the Twentieth Century just aren't in it.

It's a whizzer! Although Salzburg is almost thirty miles away, the Salzburg Flyer, to give it a name, once covered the distance in three hours flat.

Of course, that was a special run, with notables like the Bad Ischl and St. Wolfgang burgomasters aboard, and is still a lively topic of conversation around the depot. The Flyer usually takes four to five hours, depending on the mood of the crew, and the whims of the cows that graze along the roadbed, their bells tinkling a stern warning to the train to slow down and watch out.

On fine days, the engineer and conductor like to stop to pick wildflowers, and, during the trout season, to cast for a rainbow or a brown in the rivers and lakes whose banks the train patiently follows.

The engine mustn't be worked too hard, either. It was built about the time that Franz Josef was born, and isn't too much larger than a watch fob. And it has its work cut out! G. O. P. Accepts Adlai's Challenge

WASHINGTON — The Republicans have accepted Adlai E. Stevenson's challenge to a hard, pitched "pre-cinct - to - pre-cinct" battle for the Presidency. In fact, the GOP had prepared for a down-to-earth, doorbell-ringing campaign even before the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket was renominated. Republican National Chairman "Len" Hall is the nearest thing to a "Jim" Farley that the Party ever possessed.

It is doubtful if any Presidential contest has ever been waged at such local political levels as the 1956 struggle will be conducted. More doorbells will be rung and hands shaken between now and November 6 than were chimed or grasped since "Andy" Jackson's day.

There are definite reasons for this sort of tactics. The Democrats figure that they are the majority Party on the basis of registration statistics, and that they can win, if only they can drag out the carless, the indifferent and the neglectful vote. They also believe that, through personal sales talks, they can convert several million people who voted for Ike in protest against "Trumanism."

As Stevenson himself has pointed out in his current pre-campaign conferences with regional leaders, a shift of only one million votes in 14 states would have landed him in the White House instead of Eisenhower. As a matter of fact, if Stevenson can carry the Southern and Border states, which he lost in 1952, he would need only to garner the electoral votes of New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio for a majority.

In the 1954 Congressional and gubernatorial election, as well as in local contests, all these states showed Democratic trends. According to Stevenson, it needs only to elevate their thinking and voting to the national level.

Although Chairman Hall is extremely confident, he confesses that he is "running scared," largely for the effect on precinct workers. There is nothing of that "It's in the bag" sentiment which contributed to Thomas E. Dewey's surprising defeat in 1948.

President Eisenhower is still a popular and admired figure, as his welcome on trips around the country indicates. But here halo has worn thin after four years in a necessarily controversial role. There is concern over his health and over Nixon's robustness health and behavior.

Now an avowed and professed Republican partisan, Ike may have cast away many liberals, independent and hero worshippers who voted for him in 1952. His plan to "liberalize" the GOP may have hurt him with conservatives.

The South may regard his Civil Rights plank as "iniquitous." Millions may give their ballot to a Stevenson unencumbered by the Truman "mess at Washington," or stay away from the polls.

In fear of such a prospect, GOP agents in automobiles are scouring the countryside, especially the four important states listed above. By interviewing politicians, newspaper editors, business men and local officials, as well as the "man on the street," they are fingering the weak spots, the popular and unpopular issues, the voters' worries and expectations and how to reach them in an appealing way. Never has there been such a study or search for votes, not even in "Jim" Farley's politicking.

On the basis of these detailed reports, a team of ghost writers at Washington and other key centers throughout the country will knock out speeches, radio and television interviews and statements for Congressional, state and local candidates. And every speech will carry the theme that "A vote for me is a vote for Eisenhower."

Bad Ischl Has Many Ways Of Waking Up

BAD ISCHL, AUSTRIA — There is no excuse for oversleeping in Bad Ischl.

If the cuckoo don't rouse you, then the arrival of the toy train from Salzburg will.

If both of these should fail, you are sure to come to life when the trout start jumping for breakfast in the Traun, which flows beside almost every house in this little village.

When I heard the cuckoo, I started looking for the clock, and when I didn't find any I began to believe I was hearing things. Then I remembered that I was in the land of the cuckoo, where they live in the woods and not in wooden boxes on the wall.

I want to compliment the live cuckoo on its song. It sounds every bit as lifelike, every bit as musical, as the one emitted by the cuckoo that pokes its head out of a door every hour. Yes sir, the honest-to-goodness cuckoo has the song of the wooden one down pat.

The train from Salzburg is my favorite train, and I am sure it would be yours, too. One ride on it, and you know that the Super Chief and the Twentieth Century just aren't in it.

It's a whizzer! Although Salzburg is almost thirty miles away, the Salzburg Flyer, to give it a name, once covered the distance in three hours flat.

Of course, that was a special run, with notables like the Bad Ischl and St. Wolfgang burgomasters aboard, and is still a lively topic of conversation around the depot. The Flyer usually takes four to five hours, depending on the mood of the crew, and the whims of the cows that graze along the roadbed, their bells tinkling a stern warning to the train to slow down and watch out.

On fine days, the engineer and conductor like to stop to pick wildflowers, and, during the trout season, to cast for a rainbow or a brown in the rivers and lakes whose banks the train patiently follows.

IT'S "DO-OVER" TIME! Now that lazy hammock days are past, it's time to take a brisk, fall look at your assets and defects and discover what you can do to make yourself prettier!

TO SPUR you on, the September "This is Your Life" issue of Seventeen Magazine features the before-and-after story of one determined girl who became a beauty under the magazine's guidance by improving her hair, figure, skin, make-up and clothes. The article suggests every girl tackle each of these five points, one at a time, until her good looks become an exciting before-and-after story, too!

HAIR — If you've been wearing the same hairdo for more than a year, or haven't received a compliment for more than a month — it's time for a change! Make a date with a hairdresser, have him restyle, shape and set your hair and teach you how to care for it. Choose a simple hairdo that will look well all the time and not only when you take special pains. If you have straight hair, but object to permanents, try an end permanent to give more body to your hairdo.

FIGURE — Take stock of your figure. Which aspect needs beautifying? Should you lose a few pounds? Don't put it off; see a doctor and start dieting. If your figure problems don't show on the scales, they may be due to poor posture; a bad, shuffling walk or a need for spot-reducing. Consult the local beauty salon for proper exercises for your particular problem.

SKIN — Is your skin oily, dry, or a perplexing combination? Scout the beauty counters for cosmetic preparations made especially for your skin type. And since pretty girls always come clean, try a morning and evening ritual with skin cleanser and skin freshener.

MAKE-UP — Experiment at the dressing table. Try a make-up base a shade lighter than your skin color, and a powder a shade lighter than that. Learn how to emphasize your eyes with proper tweezing, mascara, eyeshadow and eyelash curler. Test some new lipstick shades — a deep rose or an autumn-touched red. Use your lipstick as a fashion accessory, changing colors often to match your clothes.

CLOTHES — Be sure your wardrobe plays up the best aspects of your figure. For instance, if your waistline is a "tape-measure dream," don't hide it under a sloping Joe silhouette. Study yourself in each of the new fall silhouettes — from the drawingstring, bloused waistlines to the sheathed Empire

Lots of mature women really don't want to lose weight. This attitude is fine if the doctor approves and one pays scrupulous attention to grooming details. Picking a becoming hemline is important. Dresses that aren't right should be adjusted with the aid of a hem-marker (left). A sturdy foundation (top center) should be washed frequently, without rubbing, to keep it in good shape. Aching feet, which often cause lines in the face, can be eased with a footbath in lukewarm suds (bottom center). Size 8 or 38, all details should be checked before going out (right). Appropriateness, cleanliness and a good smile are important.

Rummage Sale Set By Opti-Mrs. Club

Plans for a rummage sale, to be held Saturday, beginning at 9 a.m. at 108 W. Foster, were made at a meeting of the Opti-Mrs. Club in the home of Mrs. Bill Garrette, in the home of Mrs. Bill Garrett.

Mrs. W. A. Gipson reported on plans for entertaining the women at the Optimist Club's zone meeting, to be held in Pampa in October. Members voted to submit an application for membership to the Council of Clubs.

Items for the Christmas Bazaar were collected, and Mrs. Clifford Dunham urged members to bring one or more items to each meeting.

Mrs. T. B. White was introduced as a new member. Others attending were Mrs. W. A. Gipson, John Schofield, James Lewis, Eddie Lowrance, S. B. Haralson, Nicholas Kadingo, Clifford Dunham, Clay Crossland, Newt Secrest, Bill Dodd and Bill Garrett.

Some Calorieless Aids For Big Women Who Like Mature Beauty Sans Dieting

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

There are many Junoesque women who take a peek at the latest diet and feel not a pang. They've added their allotted 10 pounds every 10 years and now that they feel they've reached the optimum age for enjoying life, they have no regret about being a fine figure of a woman. They like it, their doctors approve and so do their husbands. Why starve?

A splendid, attractive woman has every right to take pleasure in her appearance. And if she watches these few pointers, she can do it, even if she is substantial in size.

A well-fitted foundation is a must. A good-sized mature woman ought to have several One to wash, one to wear and one to spare. And since a well-fitted all-in-one is costly of time and money to buy, it deserves loving care. A good pretreating of soiled spots with a brush and thick suds, comes first. Then washing in fresh suds (no wringing or rubbing), rinsing, away from heat.

Careful attention to detail is mandatory for a big woman. A sagging hemline, an ill-fitted dress, a collar poorly attached, turn a potential Juno into a sack of meal. Hemlines should be picked to flatter. Every new dress should be fitted over the proper foundation and the hem adjusted correctly. Old dresses beginning to sag should be corrected.

Dark colors, the favorite of large women, call for sparkling accessories. Make the white gloves really white, the new collar set correctly and minus powder smears.

White or gray hair is another accessory that should sparkle in contrast to dark outfits. A shampoo should continue until the hair squeaks. A brightening rinse may be added, if one desires.

A big woman puts a load on her feet every step she takes. And feet that hurt can cause other aches, plus tired lines in a handsome face. Pick shoes with utmost care and baby the feet. A day that's seemed overlong can be finished off with a foot soak in lukewarm suds. Wiggling and stretching can stop feet from throbbing. A bath pillow on the bottom of the tub is for extra comfort.

Manners
Make Friends
A bread-and-butter letter should be written as soon as you return home from a visit. Putting it off a week or two will keep whatever you say from seeming as appreciative as though you had written promptly. The promptness of a bread-and-butter letter is more important than its length.

Don't wait to write until you can find time for a long letter.

Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Ralph's bedtime came at the same time as the climax of the TV movie he was watching. It was about a little boy pioneering West in a wagon train. He greatly admired its chief scout. But as the scout was rumored to be a notorious bandit, the little boy's pretty sister strongly disapproved of him. She was telling him to stop corrupting her little brother with gun lessons when an arrow struck the tree beside her — and warwhooping Indians burst down the hill to begin their circling massacre of the wagon train.

"Bedtime, son," called Ralph's mother from upstairs. Agonized for the scout and little boy, Ralph pretended not to hear. But his older sister who wanted his place on the sofa gave him a push, saying, "Go on, you heard Mother."

Desperately returning her shove, he shouted, "Leave me alone!" This attracted the attention of his father who looked up from his paper and said, "That'll do. Do as you're told. Go up to bed."

Weeping with rage, Ralph went. In the upstairs hall, he pushed so violently past his mother that she turned to stare after him. Then she followed him. At the door of his room, she said, "If you're allowed to stay up for the end of this movie, you must not expect to stay up for the ends of other movies."

Ralph said he wouldn't. She said, "Alright. Come downstairs with me and say to Daddy, 'If you let me finish seeing this movie, I'll remember it was just for this time.'"

Ralph obeyed with such gratitude, that he stopped fussing about bedtime for some days. The rules by which we control children are only as good as their exceptions.

The problem is, we don't have the moral certainty that it's right to break a rule. So when we're asked to break one, we get upset, not daring to say "No" lest we be unfair; not daring to say "Yes" lest the favor be abused.

We can make sure that it won't be abused if we ask Ralph to say, "Yes, I understand that this is a special privilege." Once he's committed to this, we have all the moral certainty we need to feel happy about granting it to him. For we have encouraged, not the disobedience we fear but the responsibility we want.

In Ralph's joy over his special bedtime is a new acceptance of ordinary bedtime. Making an exception to the rule wins better respect for the rule itself.

Prime Minister Post Menaced In Japan

By CHARLES M. MCCANN United Press Staff Correspondent Japan is likely to be looking around for a new prime minister and a new foreign minister before long.

The jobs of both Premier Ichiro Hatoyama and Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu are threatened because of the recent collapse of peace treaty negotiations with Russia.

The negotiations broke down because Russia refused to restore to Japan the little islands of Kunashiri and Etorofu off the coast of Hokkaido, the northernmost of the Japanese islands.

Hatoyama is considering whether to stake his own post by going to Moscow to try to get the Soviet government to change its mind.

If he goes, and fails in his mission, he undoubtedly will have to resign.

Shigemitsu is likely to be forced out anyway. He conducted the treaty negotiations in Moscow which broke down on August 22.

Religious Chamber

The kiva is the center of religious activity among the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico. It is an underground chamber, usually circular, equipped with an altar and decorated with mural paintings.

First practical barbed wire was developed by Joseph F. Glidden in 1873.

The all-yellow banana is at the best stage of ripeness for baby food and in baking.

Pretty Girls And Poodles Missing In East Germany

EDITOR'S NOTE: Joseph Fleming, UP Berlin bureau manager, has gone into Communist East Germany to attend the annual Leipzig trade fair. In the following dispatch, he reports on conditions there.

By JOSEPH FLEMING United Press Staff Correspondent LEIPZIG, E. Germany (UP) — Pretty girls and French poodles, two sure signs of prospering economy in Germany, are absent in the Soviet zone.

East Germany is still rationing beauty along with meat, fat, potatoes, sugar and milk. Visitors from the West to the 1956 fair trade fair here are struck immediately by the contrast between life in Communist East Germany and the West.

East Germany is another world — a drab, colorless antithesis. Shops display wooden wash tubs instead of electric washing machines. People line up to buy apples and peanuts.

hours to buy a television set, compared with 300 hours in West Germany and about 75 in the United States. It takes 45 hours work to buy a pair of men's shoes here compared with 17 in West Germany.

Pretty girls and poodles are not contained in the economic tables, but they particularly strike a visitor from Berlin. Germans love animals and in West Berlin there are almost as many dogs as people. Most of them are French poodles.

In Leipzig there is no need for a dog catcher. You can wander for hours and never see a poodle. There just isn't food enough to feed them.

Also, Berlin has some of the prettiest and best dressed women in Europe in the cafes and boulevards of the Western section. In East Germany they don't exist. Clothes are shabby and unfashionable. A pair of shoes costs a secretary more than a week's salary.

Leipzig still is the ruin it was at the end of the war. After 11 years of peace, the scars and rubble of war are still everywhere. But go to Frankfurt or Dusseldorf in West Germany and you would never know a war had hit them.

ME LIKUM IKE TOO—In San Francisco, the Republicans seem assured of at least one vote from among the Pueblo Indians. At the GOP convention, Andy Loretto, from the Pueblo Reservation in New Mexico, pins a "Young Republican" badge on New York State's Attorney General Jacob Javits. Javits is prominently mentioned as a possible gubernatorial candidate in his home state.

Come to Church

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

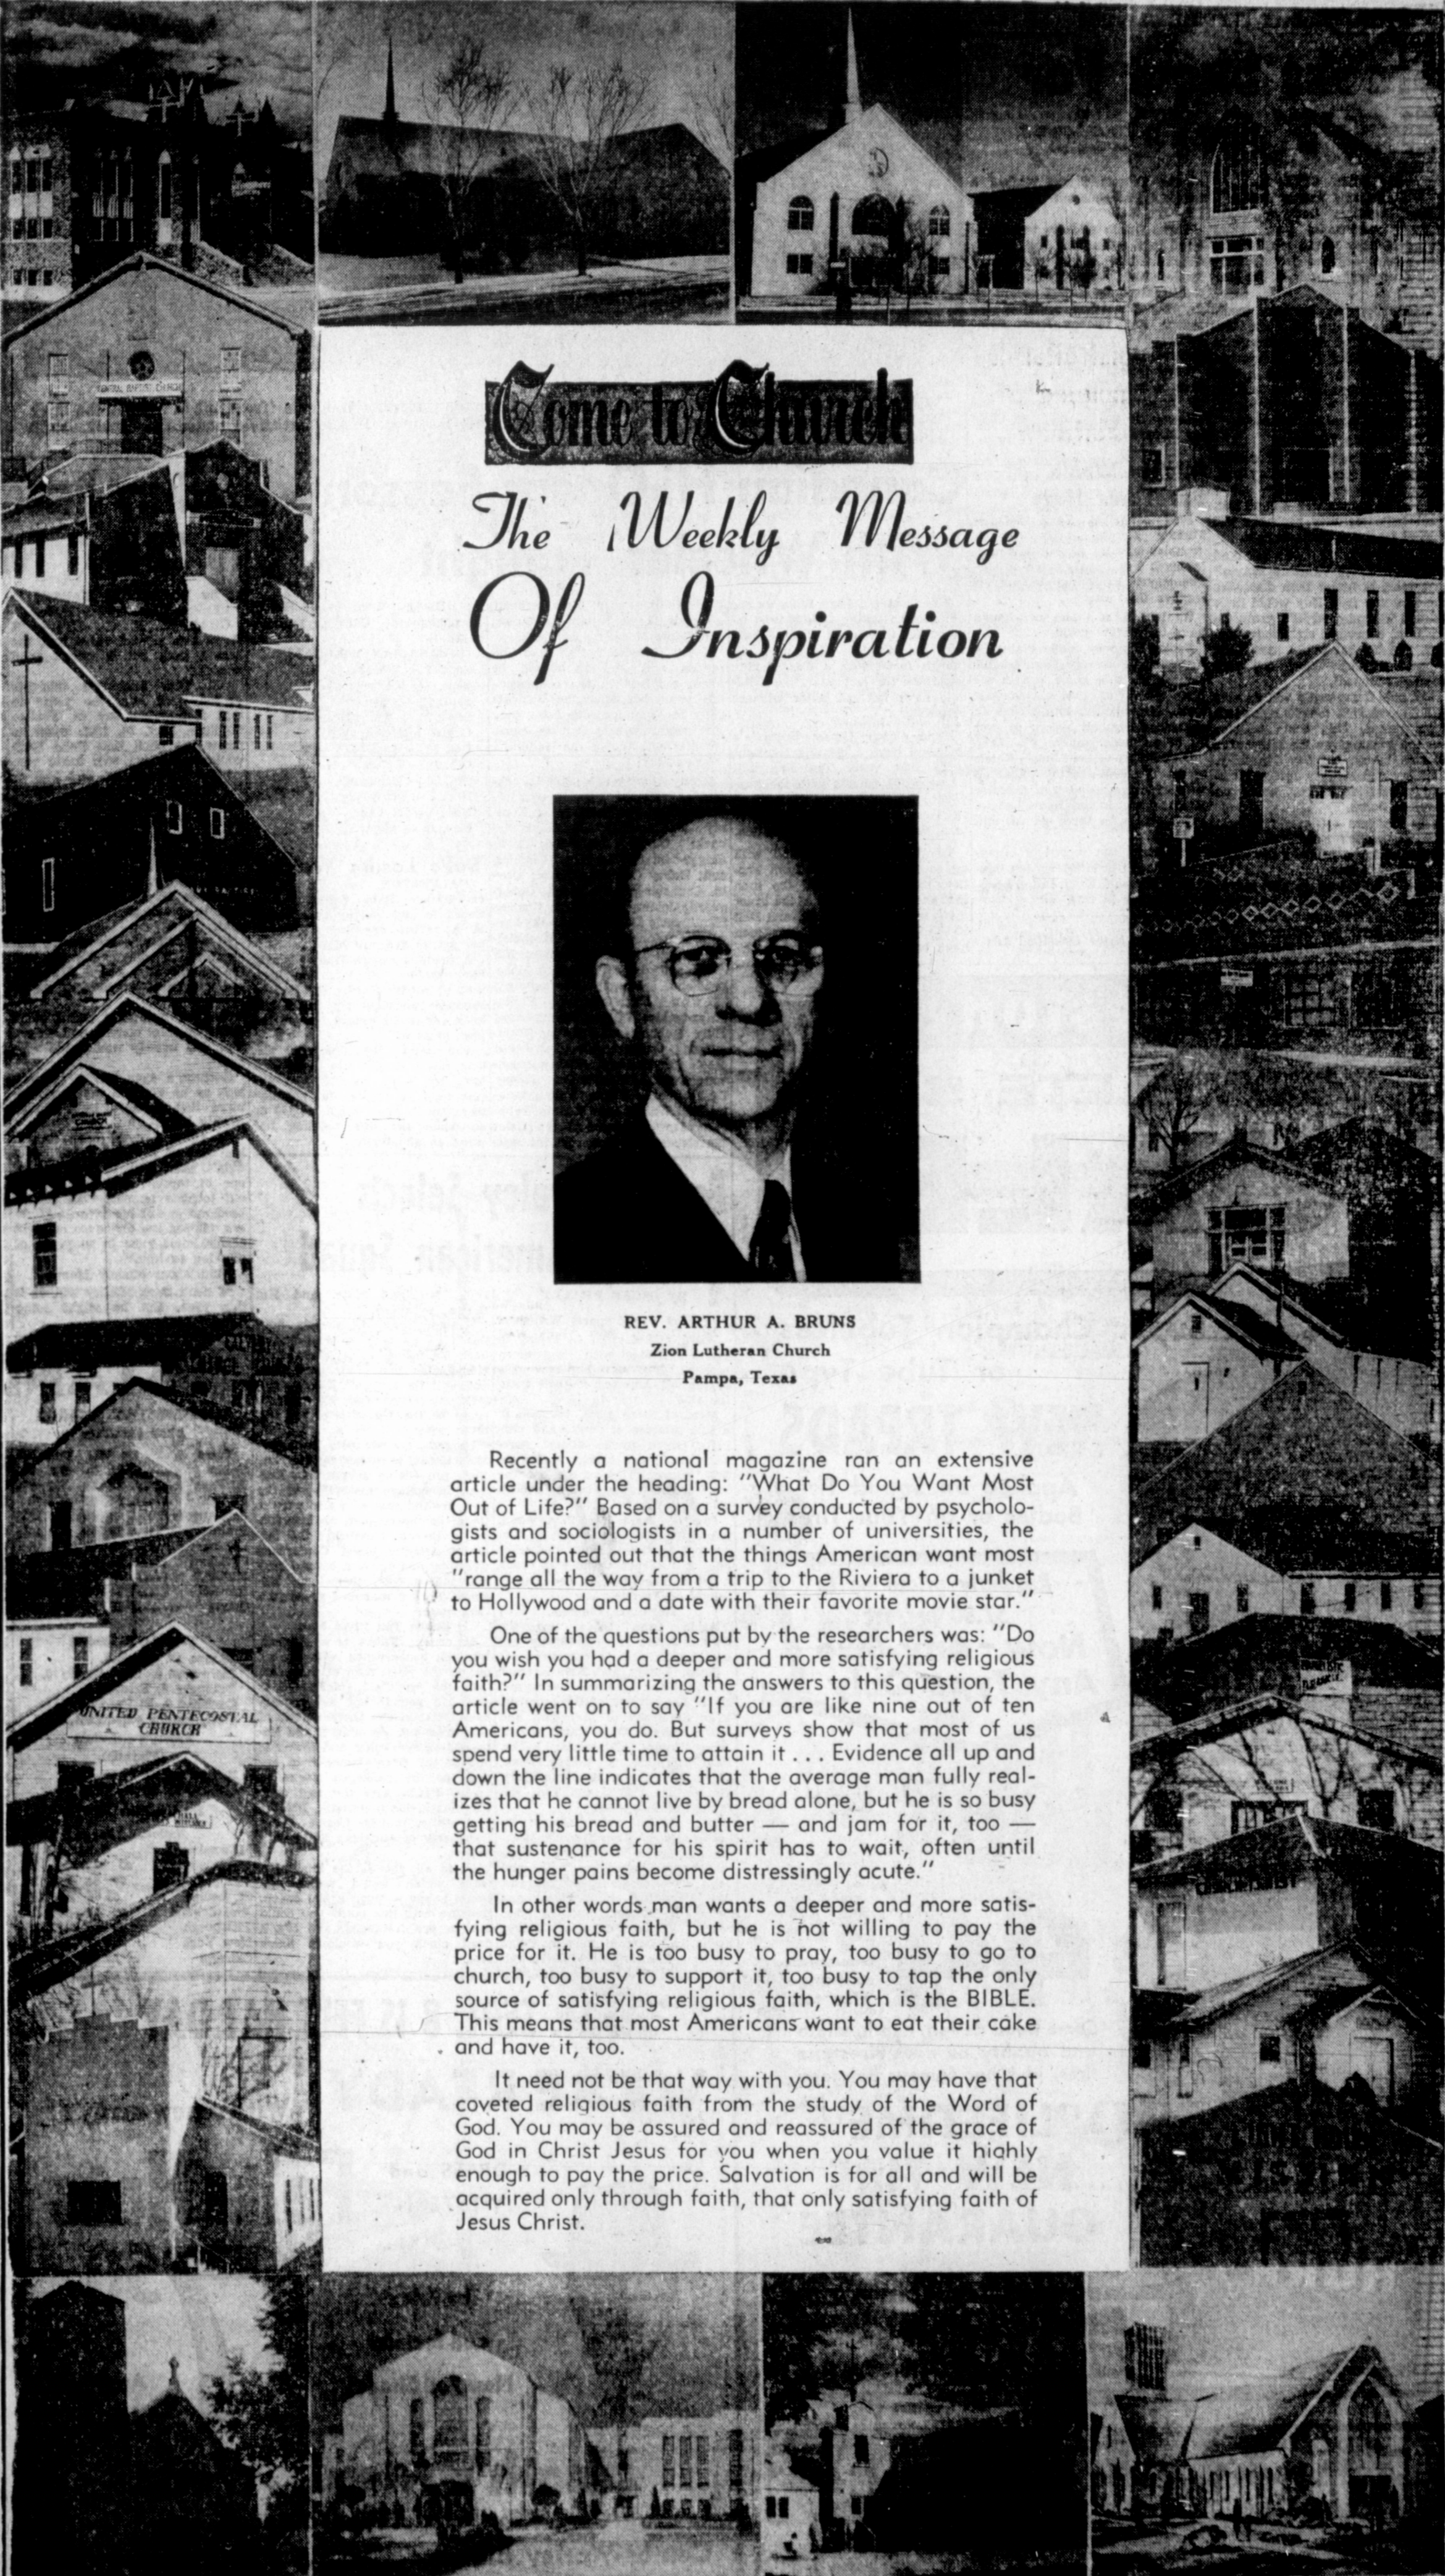

REV. ARTHUR A. BRUNS
 Zion Lutheran Church
 Pampa, Texas

Recently a national magazine ran an extensive article under the heading: "What Do You Want Most Out of Life?" Based on a survey conducted by psychologists and sociologists in a number of universities, the article pointed out that the things American want most "range all the way from a trip to the Riviera to a junket to Hollywood and a date with their favorite movie star."

One of the questions put by the researchers was: "Do you wish you had a deeper and more satisfying religious faith?" In summarizing the answers to this question, the article went on to say "If you are like nine out of ten Americans, you do. But surveys show that most of us spend very little time to attain it . . . Evidence all up and down the line indicates that the average man fully realizes that he cannot live by bread alone, but he is so busy getting his bread and butter — and jam for it, too — that sustenance for his spirit has to wait, often until the hunger pains become distressingly acute."

In other words man wants a deeper and more satisfying religious faith, but he is not willing to pay the price for it. He is too busy to pray, too busy to go to church, too busy to support it, too busy to top the only source of satisfying religious faith, which is the BIBLE. This means that most Americans want to eat their cake and have it, too.

It need not be that way with you. You may have that coveted religious faith from the study of the Word of God. You may be assured and reassured of the grace of God in Christ Jesus for you when you value it highly enough to pay the price. Salvation is for all and will be acquired only through faith, that only satisfying faith of Jesus Christ.

Brooks Shoot For First Place Today

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press Sports Writer
The Brooklyn Dodgers defied their "doubleheader jinx" today as they would gladly play games anytime just to have Roy Campanella back in the lineup.

Ordinarily, the Dodgers would be crying over the rain that washed out Thursday night's game against the New York Giants and forced them to schedule a two-night doubleheader for tonight. The Bums are a poor twin bill team, the record book insists. Here are the figures:

Mickey Won't But Three Have

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (UP) — Mickey Mantle is having his troubles with No. 60, but that magic mark has been clouted around like never before in the minor leagues this season.

Canadian Hi Opens Season With Wheeler Tonight

The Canadian High Wildcats are anxiously awaiting kickoff time tonight as they open their season with the Wheeler Mustangs. Although faced with a loss of nine letters for last year, the Wildcats have thirteen letter winners returning.

Zachary Remembers Pitch To "Babe" For 60th Homer

GRAHAM, N. C. (UP) — "I like Babe. He did it a way no other else can."

Mickey Two Behind

NEW YORK (UP) — Mickey Mantle, now two homers behind the immortal Babe Ruth in the race for the home run record, needs 14 homers in the last 20 games to break Ruth's mark of 60.

Pampa Wins Wild Battle

CLOVIS, Sept. 6 — Baseball fans saw everything here tonight as the Pampa Oilers downed the Clovis Pioneers, 15-9, in the finale of the Southwestern League season for both clubs.

It was a game which saw the Pioneers use 14 players (everyone on the roster) and the Oilers parade eight pitchers to the mound. The Pioneers used five hurlers and lineup changes on both clubs were of the wholesale variety.

Carter Favored

NEW YORK (UP)—Harold Carter, a 22-year-old Sunday School teacher from Linden, N.J., is favored at 13-10 over Johnny Summerlin of Detroit in tonight's nationally televised fight at Madison Square Garden between well-rated heavyweight contenders. The fight will be both televised and broadcast at 10 p.m. EDT, over NBC networks. Carter rates as the favorite even though Summerlin won a decision over him when they last fought at Detroit on May 23. That was a grueling fight and Summerlin won it only by putting on a savage body attack in the late rounds.

Vet Pro-Tennis 'Ain't What It Used To Be'

By OSCAR FRALEY United Press Sports Writer FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UP)—White-haired Mercer Beasley, the Walter Hagen of tennis, took a modern look over 50 years in the game today and opined that "the old gray mare ain't what she used to be." "There was a time when tactics were all-important," Beasley said as he received the U. S. Lawn Tennis Writers' award for his contributions to tennis over the years. "But today it's merely the big service and a rush to the net." Beasley, observing his own diamond jubilee exactly at the same time as the 75th anniversary of the U. S. championships, richly deserved the award. He was the first of the professional coaches, the man who—like Hagen—opened up the clubhouse to the professionals and helped a stuffed-shirt sport become accepted by us of the masses. Hagen, the golf immortal, opened up the stuffy locker rooms of Great Britain and the United States to the golfing pros. Beasley did the same thing in tennis. "When I took my first pro job, at Wilmette, Ill., back after the time of World War I," he recalls, "They told me that I would have to eat in the basement, on oil-cloth covered tables, with the rest of the hired help." Beasley quickly told them what they could do with the job, the club and the oil-cloth covered tables. They preferred to keep Beasley, and the tennis pros were "in." When he moved on to take a post as the first tennis pro in Southern California, Beasley zoomed up to the front door in a snappy Stutz Bearcat—complete with polo coat and chamois gloves—and like the lord of the manor flipped the keys to a bowing attendant with the admonition: "Park it, son—and carefully." He taught Babe Ruth to play tennis, not even despairing when the Bambino growled "this is a helluva game where you have to keep the ball inside the park." He advised incognito Benny Leonard, then one of the great boxing champions, that "you have to have footwork, son, something like a boxer." What, you well may ask, can you do with a guy like that? There's snow on the Beasley roof now but, with his blue eyes gleaming, there ever is mellow sunshine in his heart and a young man's view of the future in his reasoning. "Tennis has to be one of the great games," he grins. "After all, Mickey Mantle of the Yankees learned to bat because his father threw tennis balls to him when he was eight years old." "All Macias has to do is win," says promoter Jackie Leonard "and we'll get him a shot here in the Legion."

Lot To Gain, Little To Lose

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Bantamweight Raton Macias risks only his reputation and not his NBA title tonight in his scheduled television 10-rounder at the Hollywood Legion with tough little Larry Bataan of The Philippines. But a victory could mean a shot at Italy's Mario D'Agata for the undisputed world 112-pound championship. "All Macias has to do is win," says promoter Jackie Leonard "and we'll get him a shot here in the Legion."

Charges Dismissed

LONDON (UP)—Mina Fononareva, Russia's 27-year-old champion discus thrower, may emerge from hiding today in time to hear that charges accusing her of petty shoplifting have been dismissed. Magistrate Clyde Wilson of Marlborough Street Magistrates Court was expected to dismiss the charges against the hefty woman athlete of stealing five 90-cent hairs from a London store.

Playoffs Open Tonight

By UNITED PRESS Third-place Pampa and second-place El Paso open the Southwestern League playoffs at El Paso tonight, but San Angelo and Hobbs will wait until Saturday night to get their series under way.

The season schedule rolled to a close with four games Thursday night and marked the first time in the city's four-year history in organized ball that Carlsbad failed to finish in the first division.

Carlsbad did close on a victorious note, however, by squeezing out a 2-1 victory over El Paso in the final inning. Pampa's Oilers kept their pitchers on the bench and let every regular except catcher Jim Martin hurl one inning as they beat Clovis 15-9 in a game highlighted by Jim Robinson's inside-the-park homer. Ballinger got its second straight two-hit pitching performance as lefty Bob Leach shutout Roswell 4-0.

Player Mixup Is Nervewracking

HOUSTON (UP)—Houston Coach Bill Meek admitted today a hassle about Claude King, a prized halfback from Vicksburg, Miss., was beginning to get on his nerves. "I'm just sick and tired of all this publicity they've been giving Claude," the Cougar coach said. "All this talk about schools 'pressuring' him has surely been over-emphasized as far as the University of Houston is concerned."

Oiler Tix On Sale

Grover Beltz, general manager of the Pampa Oilers, today announced that tickets for the playoff games with El Paso will be on sale at the Chamber of Commerce. Audit admission is $2.00 while children and students will be admitted for $1.25. Season box holders can pick up their tickets for $1 each in a three game strip. If there are only four games, the money will be refunded on the fifth ticket. The playoffs start here Monday night at 8 and continue through Wednesday.

Ham, Vic, Dick Play Aussies

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UP)—Ham Richardson, Vic Seixas and Dick Savitt carried America's last hopes in the quarter-finals of the U.S. tennis championship today against three of the five Australians who are threatening to create the first all-foreign final since 1933. Seixas has been playing under his usual form and was no better than an even choice against Aussie Ashley Cooper. Savitt insists he's not in shape to beat a cagey snarphooter like little Ken Rosewall and only Richardson appeared to have enough power to pull out a victory against south-

Estes Kefauver Is Secure In An Historical Niche

A Blonde Magazine Writer Is Secretary To Elvis Presley

By ALINE MOSBY
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 HOLLYWOOD (UP) — A blonde magazine writer today has the job thousands of American teen-agers would give their front teeth for—private secretary to Elvis Presley.

"The pelvis" has invaded the movies, an event to be viewed with delight or alarm, depending on what you think of the hip-swinging singer. Elvis' movie debut in "Love Me Tender" has caused more of a fuss at the 20th Century Fox studio than when blonde Marilyn Monroe was around. Excited young girls hang around the studio gates, letters weigh down mail sacks and telephones ring like crazy with calls from Presley fans.

Thus Vienna-born Trude Forshner had to be hired by Elvis to take care of the crush.

"I'm an acquaintance of Mr. Presley's manager, and he asked me to help out," explained the secretary as she sat at her desk.

"It's a fascinating job. Yesterday I got long distance calls from every state in the union from girls wanting to talk to Elvis. Of course, they can't as he is on location and doesn't return to the studio until after six.

"Then when word got out he's on the Ed Sullivan TV show Sunday, hundreds called wanting tickets, but CBS handles that."

The addition of "hundreds" of telephone calls for Elvis each day has jammed the studio switchboard.

Trude thinks Elvis is a "wonderful" boss. He is "polite, modest and easy to work with. He always

The secretary paused to usher in some visitors who were carrying sports shirts, bracelets and other items labeled "Elvis Presley."

"These are the merchandise men," Trude explained over the hubbub. "We're coming out with Presley shirts and so forth for his fans."

Another of Trude's duties is to take dictation from Elvis, but not on his lap. The secretary is happily married to an engineer who, she says, is "very proud" of her new job.

"My friends are sort of surprised though," she added.

November, but win or lose, he's secure in an historical niche.

The tall man from Tennessee was the first American politician to be wired for pictures as well as for sound. All politicians are so wired now. Kefauver's entry into national political prominence was electronically propelled.

Over a period of months in 1950-51, Kefauver directed and played a big role in a television serial which packed the drama of all the soap operas and big money giveaway programs combined. It was the Kefauver crime investigation, sponsored by the U.S. Senate.

Tobey's Contribution

The supporting cast included three U.S. senators, only one of whom could ham it sufficiently to make a real contribution to the show. He was the late Sen. Charles William Tobey, of New Hampshire, an aging Republican whose tearful, prayerful surprise and anguish at the underworld revelations to which he was exposed should have won him a TV Oscar.

Another effective member of the cast was counsel Rudolph Halley, a knife-sharp prosecutor with a drop of Spanish inquisitor's blood in his veins. The star of this group, the good guy of Kefauver's TV drama, was, of course, Kefauver.

The bad guys were the hoodlums, big and little, their molts and some of their political pals whom Kefauver subpoenaed by authority of the U.S. Senate to appear on his show. They came and, more often than not, they collapsed.

The senator had a nation watching and talking before he was done. About a year after his last close-up under the hot bright lights, Sen. Estes Kefauver, not yet 50 years old, was leading the 1952 field on two successive ballots in Chicago for the Democratic nomination for president of the United States.

He'd have got it, too, but for the enmity of Harry S. Truman of Independence, Mo. In parlaying his TV show into a bigger political career, Kefauver had filed in the early winter of 1952 in New Hampshire's kickoff presidential primary. Mr. Truman, then President of the United States, was the other Democratic entry.

To the considerable amazement of Mr. Truman and others, Kefauver licked Mr. Truman so badly that the sting was still in the seat of Mr. T's pants when the Democrats assembled again in national convention last month in Chicago.

Mr. Truman still does not care for Kefauver and the former President was the most prominent mourner when the senator took off with this year's vice presidential nomination. The only thing which could have made Mr. Truman feel worse would have been the nomination of Kefauver for president. Mr. Truman didn't want Adlai E. Stevenson, either, but he didn't want Kefauver a lot more.

Kefauver's crime show on TV had its big moments here and there. He barged into Mr. Truman's own Jackson county and tapped out a story of corruption which would have rung all bells but for the fact that the area was pure by then, compared with what went on there when old Tom Pendergast was boss.

The senator also played in Chicago and dug up enough police corruption to jinx the 1952 re-election campaign of Democratic Sen. Scott W. Lucas.

"Crazy Quilt"

The term "crazy quilt," describing one made of material of various sizes, shapes and colors, comes from the verb "craze," meaning "to break into pieces."

Ruth's Earnings

Babe Ruth was paid a total of $925,900 for the 25 seasons of baseball he played from 1914 to 1935, receiving $80,000 a year in 1930 and 1931.
