

Personality Tour Continues

Ike Seeking Farm Votes

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

The Chief Executive spent the night here in the town where his wife was born 56 years ago, then planned to set out by motor about 11 a. m. EDT for the National Field Days, the Olympics of the Farm Belt held outside Newton, Iowa.

For nearly four hours, Mr. Eisenhower will walk, talk and eat with farmers and state Republican leaders. He will not make a formal speech as such, but will have some "remarks" for the huge agricultural contest audience this afternoon.

From the site of the National Field Days, formerly known as the National Plowing Contest, Mr. Eisenhower will drive to Des Moines. There he will join in a part of the city, then make another informal talk to a group of GOP county chairmen and about 200 Iowa weekly newspaper editors at the Des Moines Airport before taking off for Washington.

From some Republicans Thursday night, Mr. Eisenhower heard that the farmers would support him in this election year. But there were other voices, including that of Henry J. Steenhok, whose farm Mr. Eisenhower will have lunch and deliver his farm talk today.

Steenhok is proud to have Mr. Eisenhower on his farm. He is a life-long Republican, but unless the Chief Executive applies some super-charm today, the farmer intends to vote against the Republicans this fall.

Steenhok said it was not just a matter of voting for a single individual such as Mr. Eisenhower. He said he did not approve of some of Mr. Eisenhower's "attachments," particularly Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson.

Steenhok said the President should have fired Benson because Benson helped the meat packers more than he helped the farmer.

As for flexible price supports, the Republican farmer said, "they just don't work."

Steenhok's farm of 320 acres is one of three on which the huge farm show is being held. The others are the cross-draft of 240 acres with Ed Slung as tenant and the 167-acre farm of Walter Telfer.

The headquarters area where Mr. Eisenhower will eat and speak is on the Steenhok farm.

Not that Steenhok's position was necessarily representative but Mr. Eisenhower was certain to hear more of the same kind of talk outside Newton during the day. Whether he would attempt to counter opposition to Benson and administration policies in his talk remained to be seen.

Extra Session On Suez Indicated By Conference

Pakistan Opposed To 'Users' Plan

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON — UP — Pakistan announced its unalterable opposition to the Suez Users Association plan today and it appeared the London Suez conference would be forced into an extra peace-making session.

Legal experts of most of the 18 nations at the London conference began work today on a further compromise on when and how the Suez Canal dispute should be placed before the United Nations.

Despite the experts' efforts to narrow differences between the Big Three and the neutral nations, a spokesman for the Pakistani delegation said the users plan was the "wrong approach" and Pakistan would not accept it regardless of concessions.

Foreign Minister Feroz Khan Noon, who took office two weeks ago after the resignation of Western Premier Mohammed Ali, planned to put his rejection into the official record at the final session, the spokesman said.

Informed sources said Noon had a counter plan of his own—a proposal that all the canal user nations approach Egypt "as a body" rather than delegate the approach to a users association.

If Egypt refuses to negotiate with the users on this basis, Noon would put the case before the UN.

Informed sources said Noon would "comment it to conference" in a parliamentary style maneuver to bring a vote on his idea and the users plan introduced by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Both Iran and Pakistan boycotted today's meetings but Iranian officials refused to indicate whether Iran would join Pakistan in a final and flat rejection of the conference.

Position of the West also was weakened by an announcement that Egypt would increase traffic on the waterway, Egypt said "three convoys would use the canal each day instead of the current two."

Sweden, Denmark, Pakistan and Iran were opposed to the Western Big Three plan outlined before the current Suez conference of 18 nations to make U.N. action secondary to association efforts to end the dispute. Japan was undecided.

Legal Experts Meet
A committee of legal experts from 16 of the nations met today to try for a compromise stand on U.N. action that would not cripple the users plan further. Iran and Pakistan did not even attend the meeting.

The legal experts were ordered to report back to the full 18-nation conference by 4 p. m. today. (See SUEZ, Page 3)

Architecture In Mile-High Building Told

Editor's Note: Architect Frank Lloyd Wright has announced plans for a mile-high skyscraper. The United Press sent a reporter to interview Wright, and the following is the first detailed description of the architect's almost unbelievable proposal.

By ALFRED LEECH
United Press Staff Correspondent
SPRING GREEN, Wis. (UP)—Architect Frank Lloyd Wright today disclosed details of his proposed mile-high skyscraper, which would "rise like a rapier in the sky" above Chicago's lakefront.

"It would be the eighth wonder of the world," he said. "But it would be as simple as ABC."

The controversial, 87-year-old architect was interviewed at Talliesin, his rambling, weatherbeaten home on a wooded hill in the Wisconsin countryside.

Wright said his skyscraper would be built of stainless steel and glass. Elevators would have their own individual motors powered by nuclear energy. They would rise on cogged tracks at a mile a minute.

The building would be a cantilever structure with a "taproot" foundation extending 1,000 feet beneath the surface. The 110 or so would extend outward from a central steel and concrete core, like limbs from a tree trunk.

Thus, Wright said, the building would be extremely light in weight and low in cost, for there would be no ponderous, rectangular steel skeleton.

All this might sound visionary to the layman, and some people think Wright is indulging in an intellectual prank and pulling the public's leg.

Board Tours New Hospital Addition

A tour of the new addition to Highland General Hospital was the main item of business at the meeting of the board of directors of the hospital yesterday.

The directors checked on the progress being made on the construction and the arrangement of the rooms. They also checked on the type of materials that were being used in the construction.

The architect for the addition, B. R. Cantrell, explained the arrangement in each of the 40 private rooms in the addition. He pointed out that the rooms would each have private restrooms with six of the rooms on each floor to have private baths. The remaining 14 rooms on each floor will use central bath facilities.

Cantrell explained to the directors that each room would have an intercom system whereby the patient could talk to the nurse at the desk on each floor. This would speed up the service and save many steps for the nurses, he pointed out.

Following the tour of the new addition the directors discussed the air conditioning system in the new wing with Cantrell. They decided to have him check with the contractors that made the original bids on the equipment and installation.

The air conditioning equipment was bid as an alternate in the original bids for the addition but the directors decided to wait until a later date to approve the installation.

A plaque with the name of the person or group that furnished the room will be placed on the door and these need to be ordered as soon as possible.

This Is Where Harry Drew Bead On Dewey

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower is prospecting for votes today in the general area where Harry S. Truman drew a 1948 bead on Thomas E. Dewey—and dropped him in his tracks.

That was in 1948 when Les Biffle toured the farm belt disguised as an egg-and-chicken peddler to discover that Dewey and the Republican Party were in deep trouble.

Biffle then and for years past was an officer of the U.S. Senate or of the Senate Democratic caucus.

Biffle, one or two politics of organized labor and Mr. Truman were among the few who saw the farm rebellion coming as the presidential campaign developed eight years ago. Biffle got much of his information of the state of the public mind among some of the seven grouped states which variously are washed by the Great Lakes or the Mississippi and Ohio rivers.

They are changing states, barring Indiana which hasn't gone Democratic since 1936. The others are Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin. With Indiana, those states represent 118 electoral votes and the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket must get most of them on election day—or else.

Wendell L. Willkie got three of the seven in 1940 when he bucked FDR. They were Indiana, Iowa and Michigan. Dewey took Indiana, Iowa, Ohio and Wisconsin in 1944. Four years later against Mr. Truman, Dewey took Indiana and Michigan. Mr. Eisenhower, of course, won all seven in 1952.

Adlai E. Stevenson four years ago gained a lone state outside the South — West Virginia — and cropped four Southern states to the Republicans: Florida, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

The key to the 1956 presidential election probably lies, as in 1948, among that cluster of seven states and, especially, in Iowa. If there is sufficient farm discontent this year to swing Iowa again to the Democrats, there probably will be new faces in the White House next year.

Farm, Labor Hold Balance
If farm discontent combines with the efforts of organized labor to swing Indiana from its firm political moorings, the Republicans would be wise to save their campaign money for a better year, 1960 maybe or 1964.

Commissioners Talk Road Money

The Gray County Commissioners Court was to meet at 2 p. m. today to discuss where to place this year's farm-to-market money.

Two years ago, the money was spent on construction of roads in the Grandview area. Last year it was assigned for construction of a straightaway modern road from Lefors to Bowers City. However, this plan now seems questionable as a result of the refusal of the Phillips Company to lower its own pipelines.

At this time, the possible locations would seem to be in precinct 4, McLean, or precinct 2, Pampa. Since the underpass is due to be started soon at the Hobart Street railroad crossing, another possibility for the use of the funds would be the reconstruction of a stretch from four corners to Highway 60.

The commission has not indicated what action it will take to transfer the funds from the projected Lefors-Bowers City straightaway. The Phillips Company had previously asked for $37,000 from the county for the lowering of its

Fifty Attend First Senior Citizen Meet

Fifty of Pampa's senior citizens turned out for the inauguration of the Senior Citizens Center Thursday afternoon in Lovett Memorial Library, according to Mrs. Jack P. Foster, president of Altrusa Club, which is sponsoring the Center.

"We are pleased with the enthusiasm with which the Center was met," she explained.

The program included colored slides and a talk by Mrs. E. M. Keller on her recent trip to Europe.

The group was welcomed by Mrs. Jack P. Foster, and the suggested program material was outlined by Mr. W. A. York and Mrs. Frank Lard, co-chairmen of the project.

Following the program, the group voted to hold meetings from 2:30 to 4 p. m. each Thursday in the library. They also voted to invite people from Groom to take part in the Center.

Next meeting will be a games session, with materials for bridge, Canasta, "42," dominoes and Chinese checker being provided for the senior citizens, Mrs. Foster stated.

Transportation will be provided for each meeting by Altrusa members and Gray Ladies, she pointed out. Those wishing transportation should call Mrs. Foster, Mrs. York, Mrs. Lard or the Red Cross office.

McLean Doctor Resigns Post

Dr. Don Schultz, head doctor of the McLean Hospital and Clinic, has resigned from his position and has entered a hospital in central Texas for treatment, Ed Landers, McLean mayor, reported today.

The hospital and clinic will continue to be operated by his wife, Dr. Norma Schultz, until further arrangements are completed, Landers stated.

The clinic has been averaging approximately 50 patients per day in addition to the house calls and it is more than one doctor can take care of, Landers continued.

The McLean Hospital and Clinic is owned by Gray County and has been leased to the city of McLean for operation. The city government of McLean is in charge of all operations.

Landers concluded by stating "that definite word of the operation of the hospital will be made in the near future."

Man Jailed After Car Stolen Here

The police department was kept busy Thursday night with reports of two stolen cars and a break-in at a local bar.

One of the cars, a 1950 Mercury owned by Mrs. Jessye Stroup, 1344 Coffey, was stolen from in front of The Pampa News building at approximately 1 a. m. Friday, Mrs. Stroup is on vacation and had left the car with another employee who was working late at The News building.

The car was recovered, approximately 30 minutes after the theft was reported, by Ed Johnson, patrolman, when he noticed it pulling into an alley in the 300 block of W. Foster.

Delmar James Reynolds, 23, of Tulsa, Okla., was driving the car and was placed in the city jail pending the filing of auto theft charges. Jim Conner, chief of police, reported this morning.

The second car stolen was a 1954 Chevrolet owned by S. D. Hunt of 420 N. Ballard. The car which has a white top and a blue bottom was taken from in front of the Blue Bonnet Inn sometime between 9:30 and 10:30 p. m. Thursday.

The automobile has not been located and the police are checking all leads in an effort to recover the car. The car has 1956 Oklahoma plates with the numerals 66119 and anyone seeing this car is requested to contact the Pampa police department, Conner stated.

The break-in occurred sometime between midnight and 7:10 a. m. today when it was discovered by the owner. The break-in occurred at the Bellaire Bar at the corner of Foster and Somerville.

Carnival Gambling Element Is Ordered Out By Sheriff

The gambling element in a carnival which moved onto the square at Lefors yesterday was ordered to move on by Rufe Jordan, Gray County sheriff.

The carnival owner, Bob Shoebel, had informed the person he had entered into a contract with that there would be no games of chance but when equipment was being set up several Lefors citizens noticed gambling devices and notified Jordan.

The sheriff reported that he talked with the owner and stated that no games of chance would be allowed to operate in Gray County and that the carnival should move on.

Jordan, however, did agree to let the carnival operate its rides and other concessions but stated that the gambling booths could not operate.

The head of the Lefors volunteer fire department, P. V. Davis, reported this morning that the carnival operated the rides last night and that their plans are to continue operations through Saturday night. The fire department is the group which the carnival owner reported was backing the show.

Davis reported that the group that intended to operate the gambling devices was a separate group that had attached itself to the carnival and did not have a contract. He reported that they did not operate any of the gambling devices last night.

America In 'Greatest Religious Renaissance'

By LOUIS CASSELS
WASHINGTON (UP)—Evangelist Billy Graham said today "there is no doubt that we are experiencing the greatest religious renaissance in American history."

But he and other leading ministers warned that awakened public interest in religion must be translated into a deeper commitment to its teachings before the current back-to-church movement can be called a true spiritual revival.

Graham was one of six prominent clergymen who participated in a United Press symposium on the significance of the rapid growth in church membership recorded during the past few years. Other participants were theologian Reinhold Niebuhr; Dr. Norman Vincent Pease; Dr. Ralph

W. Sockman; Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam; and the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal bishop of Washington.

All based their comments on a recent report by the National Council of Churches showing that church membership in the United States has passed 100 million for the first time, and is continuing to grow at a rate that outstrips population gains by more than 50 percent.

Most of them agreed with Graham that a powerful religious movement is sweeping America, but they varied widely in their interpretations of it.

Graham, who took one of the most optimistic views, acknowledged that there is "little evidence" so far that increased interest in religion has been accompanied by higher standards of "personal morality" or by a more Christian approach to "basic social problems" such as race relations.

Other comments included:

Niebuhr — "I think it is questionable that it indicates a genuine spiritual revival. Certainly going to church is popular. Perhaps it is too popular — it has become the fashionable thing to do."

Pease — "I firmly believe that the increase in church membership is not a superficial salute to religion in general. It has happened because people are definitely looking for adequate solutions to personal problems and because the church has discovered how to make religion a daily source of guidance and inspiration."

LUNCH TIME FOR THE COUGARS—World's first seaplane tanker capable of handling a multiple refueling job provides "lunch" for four Grumman F-94-8 Cougar jets from Miramar, Calif., Naval air station at a rendezvous off La Jolla, Calif. The four-turboprop, dual-purpose transport-tanker has been designated as the Convair R3Y-2 "Tradewind." Already under delivery to the Navy, ships of her type carry enough fuel in wing tanks to service eight fighter planes. The Tradewind has been able to complete a four-unit refueling job in less than five minutes. When used as a transport, she can carry 25 tons of cargo or up to 103 passengers.

National Interests In Suez Problem Important Factor

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
Sharply conflicting national interests are becoming an increasingly important factor in the Suez Canal dispute.

The present tendency in world politics is for groups of countries to act in "blobs."

But the conflict of policies in individual countries of all groups—except the Communist group—is becoming plainer every day in the Suez situation.

The Western Big Three—the United States, Great Britain and France—view the dispute from divergent national aspects.

The same is true of the other members of what might be called the North Atlantic Treaty Organization bloc. It holds good for the Arab bloc, the Asia-Africa bloc, and the bloc of the Southeast Asian "neutralists."

Britain and France were ready to risk war to take drastic action against Egypt when President Gamal Abdel Nasser tried to seize the Suez Canal. The United States was not, and said so emphatically and publicly.

The three big Western Allies are far from seeing eye to eye in the present London conference. British newspapers are sharply criticizing Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Western Germany, Denmark and Norway, all members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, are critical of the Big Three plan to form an association of canal users even though they are expected to go along with it.

Aware Of Danger
The Arab nations have publicly expressed their support of Nasser. Privately, they are plainly becoming aware that his trigger-happy course is dangerous to them.

This is notably true of Saudi Arabia and Iraq, two of the great oil producing countries. King Faisal of Iraq is expected to visit King Saud of Saudi Arabia within the next few days. Undoubtedly they will discuss means of slowing Nasser down.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India, leader of the Southeast Asian neutralists, has come out in support of Nasser. But he is having some serious second thoughts.

V. K. Krishna Menon, Nehru's roving ambassador, is in Cairo now. It is known that he is trying urgently to get Nasser in a compromising mood.

Threat To India

The excellent reason for this is that a boycott of the canal by the Western countries—the ship-owning countries—would threaten India's economy disastrously. In fact, the official publication of Nehru's governmental congress party said on Tuesday that a boycott would be an economic "catastrophe" for India.

At least, in the Suez situation, the split in policy has not been confined to the Western Allies.

Guard Still In Strife-Torn Town

By UNITED PRESS A prospect of a possible quick court reversal of a ban on Negroes at the briefly integrated Sturgis, Ky., High School apparently kept National Guardsmen at the campus today.

U. S. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield kept Guardsmen garrisoned in this as a trouble spot in a move interpreted as an anticipation of a quick court order to integrate again.

Maj. Gen. J. J. B. Williams, state adjutant general, Thursday recommended that he be allowed to withdraw his troops, because the school has returned to normal with the eight Negro students gone.

But Waterfield, acting in the absence of Gov. A. B. Chandler from the state, refused on the ground that "there are other factors involved."

Aides in the governor's office at Frankfort interpreted this as a reference to the prospect that Negro attorney James A. Crumlin may seek a court order for readmission of the Negroes, who were turned away by local school authorities two days ago.

Speeches Attack Integration The unsettled condition in western Kentucky was reflected in a heightened campaign of speech-making by segregationists against school integration movements.

At a rally Thursday night in Cleveland, Tenn., speakers attacked the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and Tennessee's Gov. Frank Clement for their roles in the integration controversy.

Arthur A. Canada, president of the Tennessee Society to Maintain Segregation, accused Clement of using "guns and tanks to force white children to go to school with Negroes" at Clinton, Tenn.

This was a reference to Clement's use of National Guardsmen to break up rioting which accompanied the beginning of integration at the Clinton High School. Canada said the "fight" at Clinton "has just begun."

Negroes Protest Probe Negroes protesting on the other hand against an investigation by Southern Democratic congressmen of school integration at the nation's capital received mollifying words from President Eisenhower, who sent word that he believed no harm would result.

Eugene Davidson, Washington NAACP leader, called the inquiry by the Southern-led House subcommittee a "scurrilous attack" on Negroes. Witnesses at the two-day hearing reported increases in sex delinquency and lowering of school standards since integration.

White House counsel Gerald D. Morgan sent Davidson and other Negroes protesting the hearing a telegram expressing the President's views.

Morgan said Mr. Eisenhower is "convinced that no hearings of the subcommittee can impair either desegregation in the District of Columbia or the good sense citizens of the district have shown in their manner of accomplishing desegregation."

Case To Be Reopened Here County Judge Bruce Parker has granted a motion put before him by the attorney for J. L. Cooper, Pampa, to reopen the case against Cooper, which previously resulted in his being found guilty on a charge of "driving under the influence of drugs."

Judge Parker granted the motion on the grounds of Cooper's attorney's plea that "he didn't realize the full implication of the charge."

Cooper originally entered a plea of guilty and was fined $50 plus costs. His trial will take place sometime after October 22 when jury trial begins in court. If found guilty a second time, the first verdict can be set aside in lieu of the second one. If found not guilty this time, his fine will be remitted.

Adlai Ready For Campaign Tour

By TOM NELSON United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson packed his bags today for another campaign tour, charging President Eisenhower told "only half the facts" about the outlook for peace and progress.

The Democratic presidential nominee, winding up a week of staff planning here, motored to suburban Silver Spring, Md., Thursday night to reply sharply to television talk.

Stevenson accused the President of making "misleading implications" when he talked about "and dismissed curtly" two Stevenson proposals.

One was that the United States explore ways of halting hydrogen bomb tests. The other was that this country consider whether the military draft might be ended.

Clergy Share Viewpoint Stevenson told a crowd of about 3,800 that when Mr. Eisenhower called the H-bomb proposal a "theatrical national gesture" he "indicated not only me but churchmen and political leaders the world over, who have made similar proposals."

The Democratic nominee said these leaders included Pope Pius XII, representatives of some Protestant churches, and others.

Aides said Stevenson might devote part of today to screening a few of the films he has made for television use in his campaign.

Also on his program were brief appearances late today at two party offices here.

The candidate will leave Saturday on a nine-day plane trip covering almost 7,000 miles. Stevenson was working today on the first speech of that tour, to be delivered Saturday at a plowing contest in Newton, Iowa.

Stevenson also said in his speech Thursday night that "if the President intends to foreclose debate on these proposals, I think he does the nation a disservice and I must dissent and persist in my efforts to invite public attention to matters of such grave concern as the hydrogen horror and national security."

Stevenson said "The President gave us a reassuring picture of progress and peace in the world today. I think it is unfortunate that he chose again to state only half the facts."

He said Mr. Eisenhower spoke of rolling back Communism in Viet Nam without mentioning that half of that country had been lost to the Communists.

He said the President talked of defending Formosa but "must have forgotten" that former President Truman sent the Seventh Fleet to defend the Chinese Nationalist island.

"When he said 'We have seen an end to the old pattern of tragedy,' he left out any reference to the ominous tensions which today mark Africa and the Middle East," Stevenson said.

Pampan's Father Dies In Dallas Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Folmar, west of Pampa, were called to Dallas yesterday on account of the death of Mr. E. R. Folmar, Folmar's father.

Mr. Folmar lived at 306 S. Rosemar in Dallas. The funeral is under direction of the Lamar and Smith Funeral home in Dallas and will be held Saturday.

New Fords To Be Longer, Lower, Higher DETROIT (UP)—The new 1957 Fords will be nine inches longer, 4 1/2 inches lower and $53 higher.

R. S. McNamara, company vice president and Ford division general manager, said today the new models "will represent the greatest change in Ford history" and "also will be equipped with the highest performing engines in their field."

W. T. C. C. Manager Here Ralph Duncan, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, was in Pampa this morning after a meeting with the board of directors of the Spearman Chamber of Commerce.

At the meeting a community clinic was held to develop a long range program of work for the Spearman chamber.

Clinic date is Oct. 18, at which time various groups of business men, agriculturists and civic leaders will meet with Don Floyd, chamber manager.

SUEZ (Continued from Page One) tion conference for what was expected to be the last meeting of the conference. Even then no final decision was expected.

Plans called for the conference to adopt a majority report setting up an association of canal users that would negotiate with Egypt, provide pilots for member ships and plan long range measures against Egyptian operation of the canal.

The report, including a rough "constitution" or working paper of the association would be sent back to the participating governments for a final decision. Western sources believed this could be done and the association formed within two weeks.

The price of majority approval was a steady watering down of the original plan which left it almost without teeth.

Toll Plan Dropped Britain and France apparently abandoned their earlier determination to use the association to deprive Egypt of income from canal tolls. That had to be abandoned as the price of unity.

Britain and France already are withholding tolls of their own ships and have proposed that other countries, notably the United States, West Germany, Italy and Norway, join the economic squeeze by paying tolls to the association.

In Cairo President Gamal Abdel Nasser was quoted that he was confident the canal would remain in operation even if Egypt collected only 20 per cent of the normal tolls and that European nations would hurt themselves more than Egypt if they boycotted the canal in favor of the twice-as-long Cape route.

Why Should Anyone

It may appear to the rank and file member of either of our two major political parties that the big issues faced by Americans this fall will be settled at the polls on November 6. Such is actually far from the case.
The Democratic-Socialists and the Republican-Socialists, both wielding controlling power in their respective vehicles, have little to offer in the way of either platform or personality which has much to do with issues about which the American people are at long last becoming aroused.
One might characterize the Democratic political machine as favoring big labor bosses, big foreign give-aways, big subsidies to farmers, et al, and, generally speaking, big government.
The Republican political machine, however, will favor the same things but not with the same fervor. In analysis it could be stated that the Democrats are frankly the American labor party and that the Republicans are the same with a little less frankness and forthrightness.
But the major issues remain. And across the nation these issues are creating a situation which, as we see it, is virtually without parallel in American politics.
At latest count there were something close to 350 organizations formed for the purpose of opposing one, several or all of the collectivist schemes fomented by the socialists who inhabit both of the major political mechanisms.
While having no political organization as such, these same groups are going to put into public view the names of perhaps half a dozen American stalwarts who are opposed on principle to the big tax, big spend, big goof-off of the current crop of politicians. Among the names being offered are those of General Douglas MacArthur, Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia, former Congressman Thomas Werdel of California, Governor J. Bracken Lee of Utah, former dean of Notre Dame Clarence Manion, and former head of the Internal Revenue Service T. Coleman Andrews. These men, with a stellar supporting cast which includes General Banner Fellers, Admiral William Standley, Archibald Roosevelt (conservative son of Theodore Roosevelt), Congressman Ralph Gwinn of New York, Senator William Jenner of Indiana, Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin, Senator John Bricker of Ohio, Senator William Knowland of California and a host of others make up the backfield of a most impressive squad of conservatives.
While some of the better known political figures in this association will not depart the party of their choice at this time, it is well known that they favor a drastic change in the direction of American policy as it relates to foreign affairs, taxing and subsidy.
What began a few years ago as a delicate whisper, scarce heard amid the thumping drums of our professional Sarazens, is now developing into a well defined breeze which will be the forerunner of a full sized political storm.
To state it bluntly, the productive segment of the United States — and this means the non-government supported wage earners, manufacturers, industrialists and business men — is up in arms over trends hatched by the socialists and implemented by both major parties.
Quite naturally, those who at present secure a large portion of their income directly or indirectly from the government will not favor the conservative element. But the productive element of the nation is large, consisting of at least one-third or more of the total population, and an even larger percentage of those who vote.
An Independent ticket is being hammered out in convention meetings in Memphis, Chicago, New York and San Francisco. While each of these meetings is small in itself, the total effect of such wholesale rejection of the major parties could engineer a ground swell of popular appeal which would mean much for the American people between now and November 6.
These independents and conservatives are taking on an enormous task. But, however large, the job is a worthy one and deserving of serious consideration and support.
The general theme of this surging political force is this: "We will not vote for the lesser of two evils." Well, after all, why should anyone?

Nature has many remarkable ways of bringing about healing of scar tissue. A good many of us, for example, have scars of the skin following an accidental injury or an operation.
If the normal skin has been injured so severely or so deeply that it cannot be restored, nature comes along and fills the gap or the hole with a rather firm, slightly elastic, tissue which is generally whiter than the normal skin and which serves almost, though not quite, as well.
This scar does not contain sweat glands, oil glands, or hair cells but it does protect the underlying tissues reasonably well.
SIMILAR SCARS often form in the heart muscle after the normal tissue has been destroyed by a coronary thrombosis. Thus, in general, the ability of the body to produce scar tissue serves a useful purpose.
There are some differences between people in their ability to form this tissue. A similar tissue which is known as a "keloid" actually develops to the size of a tumor of the skin. A keloid may be tender or painful and tends to come back after surgical removal.
ANOTHER PROBLEM involving the undesirable formation of scarlike tissue is the problem of adhesions. The formation of adhesions is again an attempt by the body to heal some area which has been damaged by infection,

Case Study Of Church Politics
IV.
Under the chapter heading "Christian Socialism—The Un-easy Alliance" in Edmund A. Opitz' book, "The Powers That Be," he writes:
"Christian Socialism is a little more than a century old; under various labels and in different dilutions it is still very much with us. Nearly every major denomination maintains an official agency of political and social action—staffed by convinced collectivist—which tries to throw the weight of America's churches behind programs of progressive political intervention. Inter-denominational agencies do likewise.
"The church is an institution which proclaims love as the law of life and aims at saving the soul, the personality, the nature of man; but it is in cahoots with those who promise to improve man's material environment by political control of his economic life. Political control invariably involves the legal use or threat of violence; and no variety of collectivism or socialism—however noble its professed aims—can function without it. The fourth chapter of the Acts of the Apostles tells how the early Christian community at Jerusalem lived for a time on a share and share alike basis. This has often been described as a primitive form of socialism or communism. If one chooses he may so describe this early Christian community, but it should be perfectly clear that voluntary pooling and sharing of common goods is an utterly different kind of social arrangement than the political ownership and control of the means of production which is the essence of modern socialism, communism, and every other variety of collectivism. Modern collectivism means that some men will direct the productive energies of the vast majority of other men. This cannot be done unless the directors command the means of coercion, which in modern times is the apparatus of the state. Thus, Christian Socialism is a curious and sterile hybrid of love and violence.
"That such a union could occur at all is strange. Before the consummation took place a considerable accommodation had to be made on the religious side. The world view of the nineteenth century was not congenial to the traditional concerns of religion. Those who were infatuated with their simple-minded notions of science and its methods put their faith in a kind of practical materialism which had neither time nor place for the soul of man, or a spiritual realm, or for the Christian God. Laboratory methods did not provide the kind of net which could capture these aspects of reality, and those who believed that no other methods were available tended to ignore or deny the existence of that order of reality with which religion had claimed to put us in touch."
"The Social Reformers"
"Circumstances conspired to turn many churchmen of a century ago into social reformers. The other elements of religion may have appeared unreal, but no one could deny that society was full of wrongs to be righted. God, in the view of these churchmen, was an active agent within the social order, a quantifier of progress and the assurance of a steady movement in history toward a co-operative commonwealth. They accepted the concept of a social organism, from which it seems to follow that the salvation of the individual soul ceased to have meaning—there could be no salvation for the individual apart from that of 'society as a whole.'
"Whatever the grain of truth in this notion of social salvation, it does not square very well with the individualism of the Gospel ethic or the theology which that ethic implies. It is impossible to justify political control of some people by others in terms of the Gospel teaching; a secular utopia is not to be found therein. "It is because Christians think of their God as 'just in all his ways' that they can also believe that His purpose with them is to make them a new creation, not simply to let them loose on a new environment."
"It was in 1848 that F. D. Maurice, Charles Kingsley, and other English churchmen, launched a movement designed to vindicate for the Kingdom of Christ, as they put it, its 'true authority over the realms of industry and trade, (and) for Socialism its true character as the greatest Christian revolution of the 19th century.' This group sponsored co-operatives and founded a workingmen's college; and it provided an incentive for scores of later socialist organizations and journals in the churches of England and America. A slogan once popular among Christian Socialists sums up, rather too neatly, the rationale of their program: 'Christianity is the religion of which Socialism is the practice.'
"A counterparty movement in these United States, originating in the post-Civil War period, was called the 'social gospel.' C. H. Hopkins, in a sympathetic account of the rise of this one-sided interpretation of the Gospels, writes that "it involved a criticism of conventional Protestantism, a progressive theology and social philosophy, and an active program of propaganda and reform."

THE PRESSURE INCREASES
(Christian Economics)
Three years ago the Commodity Credit Corporation had authority to borrow $6,750,000,000. It is now asking permission from Congress to increase its borrowing power from $12 billion to $14 billion. Thus, it will have more than doubled in three years. The C. C. C. now has $11,400,000,000 in crop holdings, loans and losses, disposal operations, subsidies and other costs.
This condition will not improve, but will steadily grow worse as long as farmers are paid to produce crops which are not wanted at the prices offered. The remedy is to accelerate the process of shifting men and capital to more needed industries. This flexibility is achieved under freedom. It is drastically diminished by any type of government intervention.
The agricultural problem it to some extent paralleled in other segments of our economy. The situation will grow steadily worse until the people reverse the present trend and begin the process of reducing government intervention in their economic activities. The establishment of the free market will solve these problems, increase the production of more wanted goods, decrease the production of less wanted goods, restore balance and greatly enhance the welfare of our whole population.
NEW JERSEY PAYS
(Trenton, N. J., Trentonian)
As we have often observed, New Jersey would do better to adopt a "do it yourself" program rather than depend on federal grants in aid. It has been noted repeatedly that federal aid is high-cost aid, and now the New Jersey Taxpayers Assn. comes along with some more depressing statistics.
The NJTA points out that every dollar of federal "aid" cost New Jersey an estimated $2.36, the highest cost ratio of any state in the union.
The racketeers were not quite efficient enough but they did establish and the government acknowledged a power to sell job-licenses known as union memberships to all the 65 million Americans now employed.
All American workmen are as much alike as so many corn-flakes, all entitled to the same pay, the worst as much as the best.
So the open-shop laws are actually anti-monopoly laws to defeat the monopoly created by Roosevelt for his political ambition under cover of calculated confusion.

Fair Enough

Open Shop Laws Are Anti Monopoly Laws
By WESTBROOK PEGLER
The open-shop laws of 18 states are an anti-trust movement as virtuous as the Sherman Law forbidding monopoly in commerce. On the other hand, the two national laws fostering unions as protectors of the national government (first the Wagner Act and now the Taft-Hartley Law) have actively helped a few hundred individuals to build up a national job-monopoly. Many of these individuals are steeped in European socialism and reject the republican form of government provided for this country.
Sidney Hillman never quite mastered our American tongue and he was at best a left wing Marxist.
Many others are common, low-grade native American leaders who acquire sheets of paper called union charters. If eight buses gather in a hack room and get an ambulance-chaser to write a letter to the AFL-CIO applying for a federal charter for a brotherhood of gent's-room attendants, elect a president, secretary-treasurer and two or three vice presidents from among their own circle and fill in the blanks of a standard form of constitution, they are likely to get their charter with a gold seal in the lower right corner. They may then go out on the town and shake down saloons and restaurants, night clubs and hotels and the gent's-room employees thereof. They can throw picket-lines around such premises and, under perfect conditions, can blockade deliveries of food, laundry and baggage and even prevent the employees in other departments from going to work. Paydays ensue for them. A standard union contract provides that the employer must maintain "hygienic conditions." A picket line implies a probability of riots and constitutes bad hygiene.
I attended a meeting of the world-telegram chapter of the newspaper guild at which Heywood Brown and his Communist clique were trying to strike the paper, throwing 3,500 people out of work, because Roy Howard did not intend to renew his contract. Brown brought in a speaker named Brown from a combination of the mechanical unions who said any dirty rat, scab, fink who tried to go through the line would be mobbed. That line would be an unhygienic condition.
Eleanor Roosevelt refused to go through a picket line at a New York theatre which was 100 percent union because the racketeers of the musicians union demanded that the management pay to the union office a few blocks off, the equivalent of the wages of eight musicians in lieu of actual standbys for a phonograph which played a few bars of the Star Spangled Banner.
The slow soon closed and a lot of actors and other theatrical help were flat on the lot again.
The right-to-work laws are anti-monopoly laws.
When the Sherman Anti-Trust Law came up, the states had been reaching across many states. Obviously this was a job for federal

Why Britain And France Won't Trust The U.N.

By RAY TUCKER
(Editor's Note: Once each week, Ray Tucker answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent to him at 7008 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.)
WASHINGTON — "Why are Britain and France," inquires F.T., of Los Angeles, Calif., "so unwilling to entrust the Suez Canal problem to the United Nations, in spite of Secretary Dulles' reported suggestions that they seek this avenue of relief? Wasn't the U.N. established to handle such threats to world peace?"
Answer: British and French diplomats, who are more hard-bolled and experienced than the American variety, in their opinion at least, do not trust the United Nations as now organized and conducted by its members. It has become a squabbling propaganda forum, they believe, rather than a force for international welfare.
Any solution which the Communists opposed would be vetoed by Russia or its satellites, if the crisis were handled in the Security Council. The U.N. gave us psychological support in Korea only because the Soviet representative had absented himself from the Council out of pique.
Although only the London and Paris statesmen seem to realize it, the expanded General Assembly is approaching the state where it may be packed against the Western democracies and the North Atlantic Nations. This results from the fact that, no matter its size or importance, each member nation has only one vote.
Under this arrangement, the Russian block is entitled to nine votes. The Arab-Asian faction will have 11 votes, when Morocco, Tunisia and the Sudan are admitted, probably at the session opening in New York on November 12. The Latin-American Republics have 20 votes.
The whole North Atlantic community, including the United States, Britain and France, enjoy less than one-third of the total of 79 votes. That will be the number after the new admissions.
Since a two-third vote is required on all important actions and decisions, it needs only 27 to block any agreement. Having 20 votes, the Communist and Arab-Asian combination must pick up only a few more, especially if there are absences and abstentions, for a majority against the West.
The 20 Latin-American delegates usually side with the West, but our relations with several of them are none too satisfactory, and they might join our enemies at any time. Our own Panama Canal docks are coming home to roost as a result of the Suez controversy. Thus, the U.N. could easily become a hostile rather than a friendly body from the West's standpoint.
"Recent profiles," writes A. A. F., of Springfield, Mass., "mention that Stevenson is an alumnus of Choate and Princeton, and one says that he obtained a law degree from Northwestern in 1926. I understand that he attended Harvard Law School for two years, and wonder why it is never mentioned. What is the full story of Stevenson's legal education?"
Answer: Here is Stevenson's education biography, as described in a pamphlet issued by the Democratic National Committee in 1952, and, of course, they obtained the facts from Stevenson himself:
"In 1918 he volunteered and served in the U.S. Naval Reserve as an apprentice seaman. After graduating from Princeton University in 1922, Stevenson and a classmate drove West. They were so pleased with ranch life that they decided to settle in Wyoming. But Stevenson's father persuaded him to return to school for the study of law.
"After a year at Harvard Law School, Stevenson served for a while as assistant managing editor of the Bloomington Daily Pantagraph, which his family has owned for several generations, and from which he still receives an income. Stevenson returned to law school at Northwestern University, and received his degree in 1926. He was admitted to the Illinois bar the same year."

I would not be completely satisfied with a picture I had taken if it started talking, of if it walked right off the print and spoke to me.
I am resentful of pedestrians who do not halt and patiently wait while I snap a sidewalk scene.
I do not hesitate to ask complete strangers to take my camera and take a picture of me in what I consider an interesting pose.
I dream of taking the most sensational picture of all time, one that will make me world famous, such as a giraffe nesting with robins and sharing their worms, or a laughing, golden-haired child blowing a soap bubble through which the Eiffel Tower can be dimly seen.
I laugh inwardly at people who are content to take a picture of nothing more than someone they know standing in front of a spot they want to remember.
I am dissatisfied with the way commercial firms develop and print film and long for a dark room of my own.
I am saving my money to buy a filter for all the heavenly bodies—sun, moon, Venus, and the Milky Way. Also for a gigantic shoulder case of crocodile, or some other

Answer: Here is Stevenson's education biography, as described in a pamphlet issued by the Democratic National Committee in 1952, and, of course, they obtained the facts from Stevenson himself:
"In 1918 he volunteered and served in the U.S. Naval Reserve as an apprentice seaman. After graduating from Princeton University in 1922, Stevenson and a classmate drove West. They were so pleased with ranch life that they decided to settle in Wyoming. But Stevenson's father persuaded him to return to school for the study of law.
"After a year at Harvard Law School, Stevenson served for a while as assistant managing editor of the Bloomington Daily Pantagraph, which his family has owned for several generations, and from which he still receives an income. Stevenson returned to law school at Northwestern University, and received his degree in 1926. He was admitted to the Illinois bar the same year."

June Talk

By JANE KADINGO

Pampa News Women's Editor

WE'RE ALL SKEPTICAL about trying something new — skeptical about what it claims to do — until we've been shown. And perhaps that is the best way, as we can't all keep up with every new product that comes out. However, I was told about a new product, a new hair lotion treatment, that I decided to try. And, I found it really does what it says.

THIS NEW lotion reportedly acts on the inner structure as well as the outside of the hair, penetrating into the shaft, lodging there so it cannot be washed out. It is supposed to give new radiance, new luster and new manageability to the hair. It is not a rinse, hair-dressing or conditioner, although it eliminates the need for any other rinses. It is neither oily nor greasy.

Those are the claims and I found them true. Since I've used it, my hair is much easier to manage, something that is important to me with my long hair.

It is supposed to keep your hair from snarling. The length of mine causes many snarls, especially in this windy area, but I found the lotion practically eliminates the snarls. It really is a relief to be able to run a comb through my hair after being out in the wind without coming to a dead halt with a snarl.

This new lotion, "Life," is easy to apply. You just rub in two tablespoons after each shampoo, and then rinse out with warm water. Nothing could be simpler. And it is economical. One bottle contains enough for a dozen treatments, costing about 10 cents a treatment.

It is recommended for sub-normal hair, which may deceptively appear normal, for dyed, bleached or sunbleached hair; hair that is dry, dull and brittle; hair weakened by permanents or damaged from some other cause.

DESTINED to change the whole look of hair this fall is the Little Puff by Michel of Helena Rubinstein. For it's not only a new hairstyle, it is also a new silhouette and a new short length.

Michel believes that short hair is best suited to the life, times and fashions of the American woman. He is not advocating mannish, "chopped off" hair but a short, workable, very feminine length ending just at the earlobes. . . a length that does the most for most women.

Taking this length as the basis, Michel has created the "Little Puff" coiffure, with controlled width, becomingly curved side fullness and a sleek, close back. There are many variations, yet the principle remains the same — a hairstyle that is young and softly brushed out yet controlled and sophisticated.

It creates the effect of a small, chic head. And it is perfectly attuned to the bigger romantic hats, the over-all "lady-like look" of incoming fashion. With the Little Puff, hair curves gently in a full and luxurious look that never appears bulky or unmanageable thanks to its new, short, deftly stepped length.

It appears in many forms, ranging from a coiffure with diagonal full bangs, slightly transparent and starting at an off-center part to a hairstyle in which the hair is treated like a bandeau to hug the face and move outward toward the back. Frequently its "All woman" feeling is emphasized with light streaks of soft beige or platinum rose. These flattering examples of the hair-tinter's art are currently the talk of the Parisian scene. And Michel, just returned from Paris where he introduced the Little Puff at the French collections, reports that light-colored streaks and tints are high fashion not to be ignored this season.

Hard Water Deters Proper Shampoo

Hardness of the water is detrimental to proper hair shampooing, says the Water Conditioning Research Council.

The soap curd caused by the union of the soap with the calcium and magnesium carbonates — the hardness elements — in the water leaves a hard, gummy coating on the hair. This coating gives the hair a dull, lifeless look. Rinsing and re-rinsing in hard water merely replaces one set of these hardness "coatings" with another.

Those who give permanents are familiar with the instructions: "Get all the soap out of the hair." This is necessary because hard water curd prevents uniform penetration of the waving lotion, and the success of the permanent depends upon the complete removal of this curd. This is impossible, says the Council, as long as there are hardness elements in the water that can join with soap.

The Council is a research and education body for the water conditioning industry and is coordinating agency for National Soft Water Week, September 15-23.

Manners
Make Friends
If there is no usher immediately available, the man precedes the girl down the theater aisle.

She may be honest enough with herself to admit why she isn't willing to give up her job. Or she may keep on making excuses for working, putting the day of quitting ahead, "until the children are educated," "until the house is paid for" or "until we have a certain sum in the savings account."

But they'll just be excuses. Even though she can fool herself, she will probably never fool her children.

"I'd rather have my mother at home than have all the pretty clothes she buys me out of her pay check and the big allowance she gives me," one teen-age girl recently confessed in a letter to this column.

But she never will have her mother at home if her mother long ago decided that she could take being a homemaker only in small doses.

GIRL SCOUT TRAINING SESSION

Miss Gay Sheppard, field representative from the national Girl Scout branch office in Dallas, was in Pampa this week to conduct a three-day training conference for the board of directors, board committee chairmen and neighborhood chairmen. Miss Sheppard, standing, is shown instructing the neighborhood chairmen who are, left to right, Mmes. Bob Andis, James Scholl, J. M. Brown, James S. Hall, J. B. Blakemore, Dean Payne, Johnny Miller. At the right is Johnny Blakemore. (News photo)

RUTH MILLETT

"I was sure glad to get back to work this morning," said the fortyish beauty shop operator who is the mother of three children.

"I don't think I could have stood the confusion at home another day," she confessed, "with the kids arguing with each other and wanting to go somewhere all the time."

"After two weeks of that, being able to work in peace and quiet seems like heaven."

As more and more married women work, more and more of them are getting a masculine attitude toward home life.

They think it is fine for a few hours a day but they don't want too much of it.

Many of them are also developing such a taste for shop and office routines that in comparison homemaking seems like an inferior job.

If her family can possibly get along without her pay check any married woman with children ought to quit her job the first time she finds herself dreading a weekend or looking forward to Monday and the peace and quiet of an office.

Refreshments of lemonade and cookies were served. Guests, other than club members, were Mmes. W. H. Snellgrove and Goldie Gordon, and Misses Sally Cowan, Laverta Harrison, Joan Pruitt, Glenna Patten and Lovella Patten.

Strict Cleanliness Is Best Skin Care

In combating the skin problems of teen-agers, doctors almost unanimously uphold strict cleanliness as a primary requirement. They emphasize the physical benefits thus gained, but also stress the psychological value of the self-confidence it gives.

Expanding on this theme during Soft Water Week, September 15-23, the Water Conditioning Research Council brings to light a relatively unknown fact about the value of soft water in teen-age skin care.

If the water is soft, the soap lather can cleanse thoroughly without irritating the skin. Even more important, pores do not become clogged with soft water, for it is the insoluble soap curd which is formed by the union of soap and the hardness elements of water which causes the clogging of pores.

It is possible in addition that this curd can be carrying bacteria. A rinse in soft water, the Council adds, completely carries off all dirt loosened by washcloth and soap.

Guild Meets In Miami First Methodist Church

MIAMI — (Special) — Members of the Wesleyan Service Guilds in the Pampa District met in the First Methodist Church in Miami Sunday afternoon for a business meeting and review of the studies to be taken this year.

A salad luncheon was served to the group by the Miami Unit.

Mrs. Vel Gillespie of Borger, district secretary, conducted the business session. Mrs. Clyde Magee of McLean, Mrs. Wm. E. O'Loughlin of Miami, and Mrs. Elsie Hood of Shamrock were elected to the finance committee. Mrs. Esther Holly of Borger, Mrs. R. J. Bean of Miami, and Mrs. Ed Schaffner of Shamrock were elected to the nominating committee.

The finance committee proposed that the money in the treasurer be used to buy Mrs. Gillespie an honorary life membership pin. Thus putting the money to use on missionary work. This proposal was accepted.

Mrs. Frank Gracy and Mrs. Joe Cunningham of Miami played two selections as a piano and organ duo.

A review of each study for the coming year was given. "Mission U.S.A." was given by Mrs. Melvin Stephens of Pampa; "Youth, A

McLean Minister Dinner Speaker

Rev. Jack Riley, minister of the McLean Methodist Church, was the speaker for the first Methodist Men's Fellowship dinner of the Fall season at the First Methodist Church. Rev. Riley used as his theme, "We Have A Lot To Learn About God From Our Animal Friends." He pursued this topic by comparing the simple child-like trust of many animals to the hurried, worried life which we humans lead.

During the business session, Charles Shelton was elected as the new vice-president to replace Alan Wise, who has taken another position in the church. John Winters, president, conducted the business meeting and introduced the speaker. One guest, Mr. E. A. Teed of Birmingham, Ala., father of A. M. Teed, was introduced. Roy and Sue Johnson led the group singing.

The next Methodist Men's Fellowship meeting will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 17.

WOMEN IN THE CHURCH

By MARY FOWLER

Mrs. James D. Wyker of Mount Vernon, Ohio, one of the nation's leading churchwomen, has been named "minister-at-large" in the Department of Social Welfare, United Christian (Disciples) Missionary Society. An ordained minister of the Disciples of Christ church, she will be available as a speaker to churches of her denomination throughout the U.S. and Canada. Mrs. Wyker is a vice-president of the National Council of Churches, and was president of United Church Women 1950-55.

REV. M. S. HOUSTON ... guest speaker

When Dr. Marian B. Hall returns later this year with her doctor-husband, Dr. Sherwood Hall, to Madar Tuberculosis Sanatorium in India (after furthering in the U.S.A.), she will find awaiting her a maternity health clinic on wheels. For this she has been waiting many years. Equipped with a tent for examination, a portable X-ray unit and a refrigerator, the field car will be manned by Dr. Hall, an Indian woman doctor, an Indian nurse and a driver. "In an overpopulated, underdeveloped land such as India, which is making significant strides under government leadership toward social and economic uplift," says Dr. Hall, "a key factor is a population which can be supported adequately by available resources. Hence the need for planned parenthood, to help keep population size in accord with the ability of the land to support it."

Guest Evangelist To Hold Revival

Rev. Moses S. Houston, Evangelist of Lufkin, will be the guest speaker for the revival services to begin at the Macedonia Baptist Church, according to E. Felton Nelson, Minister. Services will begin Monday, Sept. 24 and end Oct. 3.

The following auxiliaries will be sponsors: Church School, the Training Union, the W.M.U., the Young Matrons, the Adult Choir, the Brotherhood, the Users Board, the Trustees Board, and the Deacon Board. Each group will sponsor a different night.

Services will be held daily at noon and 7:30 p.m. Mrs. Nelson will lead the singing.

St. Matthew's Activities

The sermon topic chosen by the Rev. William E. West will be "God's Availability To Men" based on St. Matthew 9:9. The children's sermon at the 11 o'clock service will be the same text and is entitled "He Missed The Party".

The Young People's Service League of the church will sponsor a Parish Dinner the evening of Sept. 23 in honor of St. Matthew's Holyday, the great new testament Christian leader after whom the church is named. The dinner is open to the public and will begin at 6 p.m.

The rector, Father West, will attend a clergy confere in Amarillo beginning on Monday Sept. 24. Due to the rector's absence there will not be a Holy Communion service on Wednesday. However, the Bishop Seaman Guild will meet at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 26 with Mrs. A. L. Metz giving the program on the "Faith and Practice of the Church." The Youth Choir will meet at 4 p.m. on Wednesday and the Adult Choir will meet on Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. The church school teachers will hold their meeting Thursday, Sept. 27, at 10 a.m. and will study "God's Mighty Acts of Redemption".

Lung Removal Film Here

A sound and color moving picture film showing an actual lung removal operation for cancer in the famed Oschner Clinic of New Orleans will be shown in Pampa on Sunday evening Sept. 23, C. Herbert Lowe has announced.

It will be shown at the big tent on E. Browning one half block east of Ballard, under the sponsorship of the Lighthall Evangelistic Company and the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

According to Lowe, pastor of the local church, upwards of 200 prints of the film entitled "One In 20,000" are in circulation and have been translated into many languages.

The admission is free, he said.

GOP 'Truth Squad' May Call Estes

MINNEAPOLIS (UP)—The Republican "truth squad" has indicated it may have Democratic vice presidential candidate Estes Kefauver subpoenaed to give testimony in the Dixon-Yates contract controversy.

Ohio Rep. Gordon Scherer made the indication Wednesday night shortly after the squad arrived here on the heels of the Tennessee senator. Scherer said the subpoena of Kefauver probably would come as a result of his remarks in a speech at St. Paul, Minn., Tuesday night.

The congressman, however, said he would wait until after the November election before deciding whether to seek a subpoena of Kefauver.

In his St. Paul speech, Kefauver said there may have been law violations by Eisenhower administration officials in handling the Dixon-Yates case. Kefauver also and President Eisenhower

St. Paul Banquet Set For October

Joe Gates, chairman of the commission on missions for St. Pauls Methodist Church has announced that the Missionary Banquet will be held on Oct. 15 at 7 p.m. The cost of the tickets will be $5 and all proceeds will go to the missions, Gates said.

Speaker for the banquet will be Dr. H. C. Smith - Chairman of the Board of Missions, Northwest Texas Conference and pastor of the San Jacinto Methodist Church of Amarillo.

CRITIC HAS REAL BITE — Ben, two-year-old expert on felines, gives "Grinning Cat" his wholehearted attention at the Royal Institute Galleries in London, England. The work of a 10-year-old boy, "Grinning Cat," is an entry in the National Exhibition of Children's Art.

Ike Thumbs Down Red Proposal

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower has turned thumbs down on Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin's new plea for an unqualified ban on testing nuclear weapons.

The President told a national TV audience Wednesday night that international agreements on nuclear weapons must be supervised.

Bulganin told the President in a letter only last week that no "international agreement on control" of H-bomb tests is necessary because modern science can detect all such explosions.

"It is known that in itself the discontinuation of atomic and hydrogen weapon tests does not demand any international agreement on control because the present state of science and engineering explosion of an atomic or hydrogen bomb wherever it has been carried out," Bulganin said.

PADDLIN' PAPER BOY—An enterprising newsboy doesn't let flooded streets keep him from delivering the morning paper at Haddington, Scotland. He simply exchanged his bike for a boat and made his usual rounds.

AROUND THE SPORTS WORLD

BUCANEER HITS SECOND HOMER—Pirate players rushed to the front of the dugout to greet teammate, second baseman Bill Mazeroski, right, after he hit his second home run of the year. He made it during the New York-Pittsburgh game in New York with one man on in the second inning. Teammates Dick Cole and Bob Skinner are among those offering congratulations. New York won, 7-6.

LINE UP FOR NEEDLING—Some teen-age members of the championship American Legion baseball team in Buffalo, N. Y., are mighty cheerful at the prospect of "getting the needle." Dr. Antonio Barone, of the Erie County Health Department, was administering anti-polio vaccine and team members showed up at a clinic to encourage use of the Salk vaccine among teen-agers.

OLYMPIC SITE—Olympic Park, the multi-purpose sports center in Melbourne, Australia, is all set for the forthcoming Olympic Games, top photo. So far, 74 nations have announced participation. Below, two workmen are completing the cycling velodrome track. Cement will cover the thin planks.

FOR NIGHT GOLF—Lightly garbed Stephanie Fifield seems all set for some night golf on the grounds of a new luxury resort in Las Vegas, Nev. Night-lighted to provide dusk-to-dawn link action, the club will soon introduce its 1,100-yard nine and a second nine will open next winter. Golf architect Bob Baldoek, of Fresno, Calif., designed the course.

AIMS AT OLYMPICS—Chief Warrant Officer O'futt Pinion, USN, is shown displaying some of the marksmanship that won him first place in the final U.S. Olympic Pistol Team tryouts at Camp Perry, Ohio. Pinion will be representing the United States in the free pistol event at the forthcoming Olympic games to be held in Melbourne, Australia.

ATTEMPTED PICKOFF PLAY—Red Sox centerfielder Jimmy Piersall dives back onto first base on Yankee pitcher Don Larsen's pickoff throw to teammate Bill Skowron (14) during the New York-Boston game in New York. Red Sox coach Del Baker (32) is watching.

ROCKETING UP—As Lois Lichtenwald, left, and Julie O'Brien look on, 13-year-old Joseph Cembrola, of Brooklyn, is ready to send his toy rocket ship skyward in Monticello, N. Y. He uses the girls as retrievers when the rockets return.

NOT VERY EASY—Executing a difficult feat by water-skiing in reverse on one leg, the new European figure water ski champion, Jacqueline Keller of France, skims over Bagsvaerd Lake, near Copenhagen, Denmark. It was during the European Water Ski Championships, in which France won both men's and women's titles in this event.

TWO YANKEES—Mrs. Claire Ruth, widow of baseball's immortal "Babe," holds a picture of her husband, left, and one of Yankee slugger Mickey Mantle in her home in New York. Mrs. Ruth still attends Yankee games although her famed husband died eight years ago. Mantle's skill is threatening to surpass the "Babe's" home run record of 60.

DOUBLE ORDER—Bonnie Jean Snoddy and her horse, Pal, were out for a ride and they got thirsty. A drive-in restaurant along the highway near Topeka, Kans., supplied the answer to that problem. Bonnie pulled up beside parked cars, ordered two orangeades and she and Pal refreshed themselves.

FOOTIN' THE BALL—A member of a soccer team in Uganda, Africa, is showing how to handle the ball barefooted, as they play it at home, top photo. Below, up to their knees in the waters of Lake Victoria, world's second largest lake, the players still keep that ball going.

Heard Through The Barryl

By BARRY A. LITTMANN Pampa News Sports Editor

I took my usual Thursday night journey downward thirteen stories to the Green and Gold Grotto where the Crystal Ball makes its home. I'll have to admit that The Ball was in a state of flux what with the Brooklyn Dodgers and Milwaukee Braves in their terrible state of flux, but after some difficulty, I was able to perceive into the future and this is what I saw...

Wake Forest 19, William and Mary 14: This is purely an upset. Everyone likes W&M, but don't underestimate the Demon Deacons.

Clemson 42, Presbyterian 21: Tigers have plenty of strength. PC a good small college team but in Clemson's class, no.

Newberry 17 The Citadel 14: My Alma Mater lost a tough one last year to the Bulldogs. Hope they have enough to win this year.

Florida 7, Miss. State 8: Florida should have enough to whip Miss. State. The Staters haven't got a variety quarterback and that's bad.

Ole Miss 27, North Texas State 6: Paige Cotchen at fullback means nothing but trouble for the Denton lads.

Hardin Simmons 14 Arkansas 12: Kenneth (Model A) Ford runs like a top to pull the upset of the say.

Baylor 21, California 19: The Bears are loaded, and loaded just enough to whip Pappy Waldorf's boys.

TCU 41, Kansas 7: Swink and company will maul the Jayhawks badly, I Swink.

Notre Dame 27 SMU 7: Hornung, Lewis, Morse and Brennan's usually tough line will hurt the weak Mustangs very much.

Arizona 21 Wyoming 14: An upset is possible here-but Luppino is much more than the Cowboys can stand.

There are our selections for the week. We've tried to spot all the major games, and one for sentimental reasons. Next week the Big Ten opens their schedule, as does the Ivy League, Oklahoma and all of the tougher independents.

INCIDENTALLY AND BY THE WAY: Big time gamblers points East make Baylor 7 1/2 over Cal, a bit too much in this corner, Arkansas a huge 15 over Hardin-Simmons there's the biggest steal since the Louisiana Purchase, and powerful Georgia Tech a mere 8 over so-so Kentucky.

GOLF CLASS MEMBERS of the Golf Class, instructed by Pampa Country Club pro, Hart Warren. From these 28 men will come the crack Pampa High School team that was third in the state last year. Back from last year's team are Leslie Howard, Mel Chisum, Bill McLeod and Burt Watkins.

Irish-SMU Game Tops Football Card

By JOE SARGIS

UCLA, one of the schools punished by the Pacific Coast Conference for over-enthusiasm in procuring players, meets Utah tonight as the first full week of college football gets underway across the nation.

The Uclians, hurt as much by graduation as the punishment meted out by the PCC, still are regarded as formidable and they get a chance to prove it tonight against a Utah squad which is expected to improve slightly on its 4-1 record in the Skyline Conference in 1955.

Nine other games are on tap for tonight. None of them, however, involve major teams.

The big teams—Pittsburgh, Notre Dame, Maryland, Georgia Tech and Southern California—finally came in third in the state. They weren't favored in either event. In the district, that went to Amarillo, long a consistent winner. However, the team of Don Prigmore, Mel Chisum, Leslie Howard, Billy McLeod and Bert Watkins refused to let that stop them. They rolled up a command lead to win the district. In the regionals, Amarillo and Odessa were the co-favorites. That meant nothing to these fellows who went

Football Season? Not For All; Golfers Ready To Play

By UNITED PRESS

While everyone is talking about the football season that is on the scene right now, there are 28 young men currently enrolled at Pampa High School who have other ideas. These ideas center upon a little white ball and some 15 clubs that are used to hit this ball. Who are they?? Why, they're the golfers of Pampa High.

Of all the high schools in Texas there are just a couple that are practicing golf right now. Most of them are head over heels with a budding football season. Not down these parts. Besides being Harvesters happy, they are also woodchippers too.

Yesterday afternoon 28 boys were out at the Country Club getting some added tutelage from the personable pro out there, Hart Warren. This long lanky belter acts as instructor for the team while assistant football coach Weldon Trice serves as golf coach when the season rolls around.

Last year the Pampa golfers won their district, the regional and finally came in third in the state. They weren't favored in either event. In the district, that went to Amarillo, long a consistent winner. However, the team of Don Prigmore, Mel Chisum, Leslie Howard, Billy McLeod and Bert Watkins refused to let that stop them. They rolled up a command lead to win the district. In the regionals, Amarillo and Odessa were the co-favorites. That meant nothing to these fellows who went straight games, meeting Midland and Wichita Falls on the road before they come back home to face Palo Duro. Kickoff time tonight is 8:00 p.m.

The Harvesters have worked hard all week in preparation for this game and a win tonight would certainly enhance their standing in the state Class AAAA race.

The same starting lineup that went against the Austin Panthers last week for a resounding 28-13 win will take the field at kickoff time tonight. The airstrike lineup which allowed but five first downs for the Panthers last weekend, coupled with four race horses in the person of Dick Mauldin, Bob by Dehls, who scored two touchdowns last week, Jesse Ring and Don Bigham, will be on hand to lead the attack tonight. The quartet mentioned above gained better than 300 yards on the ground against the Austin Panthers.

Tonight, the Redskins come in here smarting from a terrific 47-6 pasting inflicted upon them by the Amarillo Sandies last weekend. They are also without the benefit of spring practices, and with this obstacle they would naturally take another week or two to jail. Harvesters followers hope that this isn't the case tonight.

After tonight's game the Pampa lads go on the road for two

Major League Roundup

Braves Lose To Buccos, 2-1; Brooks One Game In Front

By JOHN GRIFFIN United Press Sports Writer Youth may be served someday, but it will have to stand aside tonight while the Brooklyn Dodgers and Milwaukee Braves put their hot pennant race in the hands of "old folks" pitchers Sal Maglie, 39, and Warren Spahn, 35.

Now that the Dodgers are leading by one full game as a result of Milwaukee's pressure-packed, 2-1, 10-inning loss to Pittsburgh Thursday both clubs know the flag could be riding on each pitch. The plain fact was that this defeat has put the Braves in a tough spot, even though Manager Fred Haney rightly insisted that his club has only "a bad cough" and isn't dead yet by a long shot. If the Braves win now, it will have to be uphill—the hard way.

That's because the Dodgers' lead is all in the vital "lost" column. Each team has won 88, but Brooklyn has lost only 57 to Milwaukee's 59.

The Challenge For Braves The Dodgers have nine left, the Braves seven, and this "if" table shows what the Braves must do from here out in order to tie for the pennant:

If Dodgers Win: Braves Must Win 9 of 9 Dodgers clinch 9 of 9 7 of 9 6 of 9

Friend choked off a Braves' two on, one-out threat in the top of the 10th and Pittsburgh got its winning run in the last half when Bill Mazeroski singled with one out, took second on Friend's sacrifice, and scored on Bob Clemente's single to center—a low liner Bill Bruton reached but couldn't hold.

Ray Crone, who pitched the 10th in relief of Bob Buhl, suffered the defeat.

Another top runner was second-string fullback Jackie Collum, who came off the bench to do a top-flight job.

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Frankie Albert, new head coach of the San Francisco Forty-Niners, predicted today his team would win at least half of its 12 games in the National Football League this year.

Borger Beats Reapers 13-2

The Pampa Reapers went down to defeat last night by the score of 13-2 at the hand of the Borger Bees. It was a ball game that saw the Reapers fumble seven times, losing the ball on four occasions, three of which were inside the Borger 10 yard line.

Marvin Cooper zipped 40 yards on a dash to the Borger five, but the attack got stalled there as the Reapers went offside and followed that penalty up with a fumble and loss of possession. That was pretty much the picture the whole first half as Borger took advantage of these breaks to roll up a 13-0 lead.

In the second half, the Reapers settled down and played some good defensive football. Harold Stokes and Jim Scott were line standouts and Marvin Cooper, both on offense and defense was tough.

Harvesters Face Capitol Hill 'Skins Tonight At 8

The Pampa Harvesters go after their second win in a row tonight against the visiting Capitol Hill Redskins from Oklahoma City.

The Harvesters have worked hard all week in preparation for this game and a win tonight would certainly enhance their standing in the state Class AAAA race.

The same starting lineup that went against the Austin Panthers last week for a resounding 28-13 win will take the field at kickoff time tonight. The airstrike lineup which allowed but five first downs for the Panthers last weekend, coupled with four race horses in the person of Dick Mauldin, Bob by Dehls, who scored two touchdowns last week, Jesse Ring and Don Bigham, will be on hand to lead the attack tonight.

Tonight, the Redskins come in here smarting from a terrific 47-6 pasting inflicted upon them by the Amarillo Sandies last weekend. They are also without the benefit of spring practices, and with this obstacle they would naturally take another week or two to jail. Harvesters followers hope that this isn't the case tonight.

Ike's Health Still Big Campaign Issue

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)— It was back there in July at the Panama conference that President Eisenhower told Senator Carmen H. Remon that he didn't have much strength but just kept on going. It was merely a casual remark to a well wisher, the sister of the late Jose Remon, a former president of Panama.

"You're looking fine," says she, or some such thing as that and back came Mr. Eisenhower with a comment about his physical condition which considerably jarred Republican Party strategists.

That casual remark and Mr. Eisenhower's hospitalization for surgery earlier this year have combined to renew the matter of his health as a prime issue in the 1956 presidential campaign. The President and his advisers evidently are aware of the political fact.

His televised and broadcast address Wednesday night from the White House properly can be described as the beginning of his personal appeal for re-election—a very important occasion. Mr. Eisenhower felt it was necessary to deal Wednesday night with the issue of his health before he could proceed to other discussion with the voters.

Says He Is Confident
This is what he said:
"Let me begin with a very personal matter. It is a personal kind of peace that I possess—granted to me by the mercy of the Almighty."

"It is this firm conviction: I am confident of my own physical strength to meet all the responsibilities of the presidency, today and in the years just ahead. If I were not so convinced, I would never have accepted renomination to this office."
"I hope this conviction—this peace of mind—may bring assurance to many others, as I stand ready to serve as your president for another four years, if this be your will."

Democratic strategy is not to challenge most of what Mr. Eisenhower told the voters Wednesday night about his health. Adlai E. Stevenson, Sen. Estes Kefauver and other top Democrats will hold it pressed—that Mr. Eisenhower will be around four years hence duffing away at golf, as usual.

To Attack Nixon
Top Democratic campaigners will tell you they profoundly hope so. After all, who could seriously wish a man to drop dead? The word in Mr. Eisenhower's statement on which the Democrats have their finger is "responsibilities." The Democrats hold that Mr. Eisenhower already is not much more than half a president.

"Part-time president" is the way the Democrats put it. And they regard as their clincher a repetition of the claim that Vice President Richard M. Nixon will be the big man in the Republican Party after election day if the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket wins.

A great many Democratic blue chips have been put down on the belief that millions of swing or independent voters will be voting against Nixon instead of for or against any other this year. The early Gallup polls seem not to support that belief, but only the election can make it official one way or the other.

Adlai Indicates Approach
Gov. Stevenson's approach to the Eisenhower health issue was indicated at this week's big Washington news conference.

Ed O'Brien of the St. Louis (Mo.) Globe-Democrat inquired what Stevenson meant when he said Mr. Eisenhower had shucked to others many of his important responsibilities partly by choice and partly by necessity.

"I was referring," Stevenson replied, "to what he said in his statement of last February that he was going to be a candidate again—that he would delegate many of his duties, many of the things that he had previously done, to others, to relieve his burdens."

This hard emphasis on his ability to do the work probably will compel Mr. Eisenhower to make a much more active campaign than he originally planned. Sufficient activity would be pretty good evidence that he could take it.

Off Year For Hurricanes

WASHINGTON (UP)— It's an off-year for hurricanes in this country so far.
The hurricane season is more than half gone and none has hit the United States.
Naturally, there is no assurance that a hurricane won't crash up the East Coast in the coming weeks. But the chief of the weather bureau's hurricane forecasting station is reported to be optimistic.

The United States hasn't had a hurricane-less year since 1939. Three of the big blow hits it last year and four in 1954.
The main reason generally given for this year's quiet is a shift in upper-air wind patterns. The "westerlies" are blowing their easterly course at a latitude farther south than in the past two years.

Gordon Dunn, chief forecaster at the weather bureau's Miami hurricane warning center, said recently there is a good possibility no hurricanes will hit the United States this year. But he stressed the point that he wasn't making a forecast.
Only two hurricanes—Anna and Betsy—have roared out of breeding grounds so far this year. Three more tropical storms won hurricane name tags—Carla, Dora and Ethel—when they threatened to be hurricanes, but they never made the grade.

Anna was just barely a hurricane and went to Mexico.
Betsy was a full-blown killer and spun a course through the lesser antilles and Puerto Rico and on up the East Coast about 200 miles off shore, missing the continental United States. In her wake she left more than 30 dead and about $20 million in damage.
