Shivers Will Support Ike

By UNITED PRESS

The positions of Gov. Allan Shivers and U.S. Sen. Price Daniel, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, were clear-cut today in regard to the presidential race. Shivers will again support Dwight D. Eisenhower, but Daniel will back the Democratic nominee, Adlai Stevenson.

The two announcements came within a short while of each other Tuesday. Daniel's was a reversal of his stand in 1952, when he also voted for Mr. Eisenhower, as did Shivers, when Stevenson refused to back Texas' claim to its tidelands.

Stevenson's statement in Washington Monday that he considers the tidelands issue "ended" and his stand in regard to use of force in carrying out the Supreme Court's segregation decision brought Daniel over to his side. Daniel made his announcement after Stevenson mailed him statements about his stand on these two questions.

Held Up Support
Daniel had consistently refused to throw his unqualified support previously to Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver, the vice presidential nominee.

His endorsement of Stevenson was read in a telegram Tuesday night to a big Democratic rally in Greenville at which Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee was the principal speaker.

When Daniel's name was first mentioned, a boo was heard from one person in the audience variously estimated at from 5,500 to 7,000. But after the telegram was read, the crowd applauded vigorously and there were no boos.

The Greenville rally, in House Speaker Sam Rayburn's home district, kicked off the Texas campaign to elect the national Democratic nominees. Clement assailed the Republicans, especially Vice President Richard M. Nixon, in a ringing speech.

Shivers, in announcing his support of Mr. Eisenhower, said: "Four years ago, I supported him because he promised to return our tidelands, and because I felt that he would find a way to stop the Korean War and restore integrity in the Washington government."

"If for no other reason, a sense of gratitude would compel me to vote for President Eisenhower again."

Daniel's gubernatorial opponent, Ralph Yarborough, who was also at the rally, said: "I congratulate him on his decision and welcome him back into the Democratic party. I urge all Texans to support the Democratic party and help us win in November."

In another major political development, the Constitution Party tried to place Mrs. W. Lee O'Daniel on the November ballot as its gubernatorial candidate. But Secretary of State Tom Reavley barred her from the ballot because she voted in the August Democratic runoff for governor.

The Constitution Party previously nominated her husband, the former governor and U.S. senator, for governor. But the Supreme Court refused to let him run. The court ruled that he had disqualified himself by running third in the July Democratic primary.

Power To Divert Traffic 'Necessary'

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles asked the second London Suez conference today to appoint a Western shipping "czar" with powers to divert traffic from the Suez Canal if this proves "necessary."

Dulles put the new Suez users union proposal before the 18 nation conference after British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd warned there would be "no compromise" on international control of the waterway.

But Lloyd, elected chairman of the conference, said "we want to proceed by peaceful means."

"We do not want to settle the dispute by force," Lloyd said. "There has never been any doubt in the minds of her majesty's government to go before the (UN) Security Council at some stage."

Prime Minister Anthony Eden told Commons during the Suez debate last week that he would seek Security Council action if Egypt blocked pilots of the association from moving ship convoys through the canal.

The U.S. secretary of state was given the job of "selling" the association, to the participating nations, divided among themselves.

Management Meeting In Second Day

The 26th Management Conference of Cabot's Southwestern Division got into its second day at 9:30 a.m. today when the management representatives took up discussions on carbon black.

The first day's sessions included reports from the various departments in the division, including oil, gas and gasoline; carbon black; research and development; Cabot Shops, including Franks; and a report on the general Cabot Southwestern Division picture by Buck Burdette, the division's general manager.

Following the reports, the group, approximately 60 strong, adjourned to the Pampa Hotel for lunch.

They then reconvened in the Cabot auditorium in the Hughes Building for an address on the "Middle East Problem" by Dr. M. L. Wardell of the University of Oklahoma.

Following the address, an open forum was held and election of a chairman and setting of a date for the next meeting.

This morning the carbon black men met with Bill Lovin in the Cabot auditorium for discussions on plant operation, purchasing, shipping and storing, costs, safety, personnel relations, etc.

The meeting will end tomorrow after discussions by oil, gas and gasoline men, led by Gene Green. The conference was originally scheduled to run just two days but was continued when the latter discussion was postponed.

Dr. Wardell, who gave yesterday afternoon's address, is a historian on the faculty at Oklahoma University. He is a popular speaker who makes several hundred appearances each year before Southwestern organizations. His address on the "Middle East Problem" was highly enjoyed by the management representatives.

The objectives of the conference, held semi-annually, are to hear what and how the company is doing; to discuss and attempt to solve mutual management problems; to bring thinking together on policies, procedures, etc.; and to facilitate communications up and down the supervisory line.

MOSCOW (UP) — Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin said in an interview released today he is willing to join a summit conference of the Big Four plus India and Egypt to settle the Suez dispute.

and taunted by Egypt that the meeting was "absurd" and "doomed to failure."

Diplomats reported the Western Big three differing on strategy and three of the Dulles plan nations — Iran, Sweden and Spain — immediately called for new negotiations with Egypt.

Dulles introduced a tentative blueprint for the users association at the morning session. It called for:

1. A "small operating staff."
2. An expert "administrative agent" to head it.
3. A "small governing board."

Texas Campaign To Elect Adlai Gets Rousing Sendoff

GREENVILLE, Tex. (UP) — The Texas campaign to elect Adlai Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver got off to a rousing start Tuesday night as Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee denounced the Republicans on all fronts.

"The people are not going to cast a vote that will put Richard Milhous Nixon in line for the presidency of the United States," Clement said amid a rousing ovation.

Clement forecast "the greatest defection in the history of the Republican ranks just to avoid accelerating and promoting Nixon to a role of undeniable power."

He invited President Eisenhower to join the campaign, and said the Democrats are forcing the GOP to make a "frantic last minute revision of their campaign plans."

"One of the saddest days in the history of American politics is when a party goes before the nation and asks for re-election on the basis of absolute untruths," he said.

In reference to Mr. Eisenhower's campaigning, he said: "He can even bring along, if he wants to, the great hydramatic thinker of his administration, Secretary Charlie Wilson, and his great paralyzer of parity and prosperity on the farm, Secretary Ezra Benson."

Stevenson received his sharpest barbs for Nixon, whom he continually referred "to the delight of the crowd, as Richard Milhous Nixon, with the accent on the middle name."

Is He Really 167 Years Old?

MIAMI (UP) — A pint-sized Colombian Indian left for New York today to allow medical authorities to determine if he is really 167 years old.

Whether 167, 150, or 120, authorities believe Javier Pereira, of Monteria, Colombia, is the world's oldest living man.

Pereira, four-feet, four inches tall and weighing 75 pounds, spoofed with reporters and photographers here when he ate his first ice cream cone.

He arrived in Miami Tuesday night on the first leg of his long journey to the Cornell medical center where experts will try to determine Pereira's secret of longevity.

At Least 150
The "old man" already has undergone exhaustive medical examinations in South America which indicated he is at least 150 and possibly 167.

Pereira was met here by Douglas Storer, member of a syndicate which distributes a cartoon on oddities (Believe it or Not). Storer learned of Pereira during a visit to Colombia.

Storer said on 86-year-old woman in his native village remembers that when she was a child, Pereira was an "old, old man."

Pereira himself relates events of the early 1800's in a manner which indicates he was a young adult at the time.

Pereira, who speaks a Spanish-Indian dialect, told reporters through his interpreter, that he had no particular secret for his longevity. He said he drinks when he can get it, and loves to smoke.

Outlived Five Wives
He proudly said he had outlived five wives.

Although toothless, the Indian is in pretty good physical condition. His pulse beat is 76, his heart beat normal, and his blood pressure runs about 110.

Astonished doctors who examined Pereira in San Vicente de Paul hospital in Medellin, Colombia, found that while his wrists, joints and radial artery were those of an extremely old man, his blood circulation is that of a youngster.

His internal organs and skin were those of an ancient, while his blood pressure and heart action showed unusual vigor, the doctors said.

Ike Administration Not Content To Rest On Flat Plateau

By WARREN DUFFEE
United Press Staff Correspondent

ENROUTE WITH NIXON (UP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon said today that the Eisenhower administration is not content to rest on any flat plateau in the nation's economic prosperity.

In his first direct swipe at Adlai E. Stevenson, the barnstorming vice president belittled the Democratic presidential nominee's claim that Democratic administrations lifted the nation to a "new plateau of abundance."

Nixon said in remarks prepared for a Reno, Nev., audience that Westerners know "a plateau" is a tableland.

"It doesn't run downhill. It might even run downhill," Nixon said. "The Eisenhower administration is not content to rest on any flat plateau."

On a 32-State Swing
The 48-year-old vice president, carrying the main nod of this year's Eisenhower-Nixon campaign, concentrated on the far western states of Nevada and Oregon in the second day of his intense, 32-state campaign swing.

Labor Has Major Yardstick For Measuring Candidates

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Organized labor today had a major yardstick for measuring congressional candidates—a 10-year record of their votes on issues considered vital by the AFL-CIO.

The big labor organization distributed its pre-election analysis of the voting records of senators and representatives throughout the nation.

State and local AFL-CIO committees were certain to use the analysis as a major yardstick in deciding which congressional candidates to endorse in their areas.

The analysis said 14 senators—13 Democrats and one Republican—voted "right" between 1947 and 1956 on all 20 of the issues considered. It said six senators—all Republicans—cast no "right" votes on the 20 issues.

Seventy-eight Democratic House members, who were marked on the basis of 19 similar but not always identical issues, had perfect scores by the union's standards. No Republicans did.

The AFL-CIO scored 35 Republican House members as "wrong" on all the votes on which they were recorded. There were no Democrats in that category.

On Labor Issues
The union graded the lawmakers on some strictly labor issues like the Taft-Hartley Act and the minimum wage law. It also included some "general welfare" issues, including housing and unemployment compensation.

Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson had 6 "wrong" and 10 "right" votes. He missed four—two because he was absent and two because he was not yet a member of Congress.

Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) cast six votes "right" and was absent for 1 and missed 11 as speaker. His record would have been all "right" if he had not voted for the tidelands oil bill.

Pampan's Sister Hit By Sickness

The sleeping sickness disease, encephalitis, which has been prevalent only this summer, has struck Mrs. Bob Vier of Borger, sister of Mrs. Helen Brantley of 1700 Coffee street in Pampa.

Mrs. Vier was spending the week end in Chickasha, Okla., visiting some friends when she became sick, presumably with a virus. On her way back to Borger by car, she became very ill and when she and her party stopped at Sayre, Okla., a doctor was also having his car attended to at the same time.

Mrs. Vier fainted at the filling station, and the doctor administered a hypodermic to ease Mrs. Vier's nerves. He diagnosed the illness as a virus, but when she arrived in Borger and went to the hospital for further diagnosis, the doctors at the hospital immediately spotted the symptoms of encephalitis.

Mrs. Vier is doing as well as can be expected at this time, her sister has reported. She is being fed intravenously at present and is expected to recover.

Two Road Jobs Are Underway

The highway department is currently working on two road construction jobs in the county, senior resident engineer G. K. Reading said today.

One of the jobs is a 20-mile stretch from the Pampa city limits to the Hutchinson County line. It is a two lane road improvement on an already existing road, and will have passing lanes on all hills.

The second road improvement project currently being undertaken by the department is a 10 mile stretch of divided highway on route 66 from Jericho to Groom.

Both projects are improvements on already existing highways. They are being constructed of hot mixed asphaltic concrete which will be roughly 3 inches thick and will have paved shoulders of about eight feet on either side. Reading added.

One Collision Reported Here

Only one collision occurring within the city limits Tuesday was reported to the local police department.

The collision occurred at 7:35 p.m. on Foster, 65 feet north of Russell, Clarence L. Trussell, 310 N. Hazel, driving a '49 Chrysler, was in collision with a '56 Mercury belonging to L. R. Nichols, 1133 Huff Rd., which was properly parked at the curb. The Mercury was knocked into a '56 Ford, owned by Lynn Love, 1040 S. Banks, which was also parked at the curb.

Damages to the Chrysler and Mercury were estimated at $209 each and the Ford encountered damages estimated at $25.

Here's A Look At Future Headlines

By CHARLES M. MCGANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

United Press correspondents around the world look ahead at the news that will make the headlines.

Campus Campaign
Look for a big Democratic push on college campuses soon. The aim: To line up thousands of first-time voters for Stevenson and Kefauver. It's a project of the volunteers for Stevenson and Kefauver. Stevenson volunteers helped organize 115 college and university groups last spring in the pre-convention campaign. Now the Stevenson-Kefauver group reports letters pouring in from campuses all over the country asking for help in rounding up first-time voters in the big election drive. With the new school year just starting, the volunteers are getting ready to move in fast and hard.

Plain Talk
There'll be some plain talking when Secretary of State John Foster Dulles gets together in London with Prime Minister Anthony Eden this week. Eden was startled by Dulles' haste in announcing that the United States wouldn't "shoot its way" through the Suez Canal if Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser refused to cooperate with the proposed canal users' association. Eden is reported to feel that nobody expected the United States to do any shooting—but that it was bad poker for Dulles to encourage Nasser to reject the plan as soon as it was proposed.

Those Missiles
There may be headline news from Copenhagen this week on those mysterious "objects" which are streaking over the Baltic Sea by night. As reported in this column last week, allied intelligence agents believe they are Russian guided missiles. The firings have been stepped up in the last few days. New radar equipment in top-secret stations on Denmark's Bornholm Island shows they are streaking over the sea at altitudes of more than 18 miles at speeds of up to 2,500 miles an hour.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is reconciling himself to an admission that West Germans won't go for his plan for an 18-month draft term for his new army. Watch for this compromise: An 18-month term for skilled technicians only, 12 months for the rest.

The Coal Miners
Coal industry officials expect John L. Lewis to hold up his 1956 wage contract demands until his cooperative coal-export venture with producers and shippers is set to operate. The shipping company concerned, American Coal Shipping, Inc., is awaiting a Federal Maritime Board ruling on its request to use mothballed liberty ships to take coal to foreign countries. A maritime board examiner has recommended a favorable ruling.

Sailor Hits Lifeboats As Unsafe

(EDITORS NOTE: Two of the five survivors of the sinking of the American liberty ship Pelagia talked to reporters. Here is the tale of a "nightmare" at sea as told by Chief Steward Demetrius Hadjicostas, of Baltimore, and crewman Lawrence Redies, of Central City, Colo.)

HARDSTAD, Norway (UP) — "I have been shipwrecked twice before, but nothing compares to this nightmare."

Those were the words of Demetrius Hadjicostas of Baltimore, one of the five survivors of the ore-laden American liberty ship Pelagia which broke in two and sank off Norway.

Hadjicostas, chief steward on the ship, said the lifeboat on which the survivors got away was so poorly equipped it almost cost them their lives. His story was supported by another survivor, Lawrence T. Redies, of Central City, Colo.

"When we were wrecked during the war we had at least at that time modern and complete rescue equipment in our lifeboat," Hadjicostas said.

"There weren't even matches in the lifeboat," Redies said. "We had some rockets but most of them did not work. I believe they were outdated. I'm going to have my say on this when we get back to the United States."

"The hours in the lifeboat are something I want to forget. Tossing waves, icy winds, rain, the death of our comrade, Jean Lopez, Saturday night at six o'clock. It felt like we spent a lifetime in that lifeboat."

"Worst of all, we saw several of the rescue boats pass us but they did not see us. I'll never forget the desperation that seized us when our rockets did not work."

"I don't know whether we really hoped we would be saved. We were numb and frozen."

"Things were supposed to be in that lifeboat, but they weren't. That's all there is to say," he reported.

Hadjicostas told United Press that he was uneasy from the start of the trip.

"We started from Narvik at 5 a.m. Saturday bound for Baltimore. We didn't like it at all. The weather was bad. A load of iron ore is not the safest thing in a liberty ship, and we knew that the rescue equipment aboard the Pelagia was not up to date."

"The ship started rolling shortly after leaving Narvik harbor. In an hour we had entered the worst storm I have ever experienced and at 9 a.m. I was told that the hatch on the bow hold was broken by the waves tossing over the ship."

All in Vain
"We started repair work, but it was all in vain. After some frantic hours fighting the sea we sent out distress signals at 1 p.m."

"An hour later the alarm bell sounded. We rushed for the lifeboats and six of us manned the first. Pelagia was tossed about by the waves and we hit the side of the ship several times before we succeeded in putting the lifeboat on the water."

Bandits Win Praise
CHICAGO (UP) — Bartender Joseph Plasiowski had a word of praise for the politeness of two bandits who robbed his tavern of $500 after lying up him and a customer. "They were nicer than some of my customers," he said.

Britain and France wanted to reject what they called a loaded offer. The United States was reported to consider it dangerous to turn down a possible opening for further concessions from Egypt. Previously Egypt said it would have nothing whatsoever to do with the association.

Ike To Be On TV Tonight

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower will carry his drive for reelection to the nation tonight in the first televised speech of his campaign.

The President planned to talk about peace — and what his administration has done to achieve it.

He also was expected to strike back at Democratic charges that his administration is losing the cold war to the Communists.

May Mention Suez

He may well say something about the Suez crisis. He undoubtedly will have received last minute reports from the new London Suez conference before speaking.

The President's 30-minute address — first of a series of major national TV and radio talks — will be carried (9:30 p.m. EDT) by the Columbia Broadcasting System. He will speak from Broadcast House here.

The Republican National Committee is paying the radio-TV bill. It is estimated at about $80,000.

First Campaign Speech

The President formally opened his campaign last week with a carnival-like picnic at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm for GOP leaders.

But the picnic was more of a family pep rally than a public affair. The President's speech tonight is his first major national address since he accepted the GOP presidential nomination in San Francisco last month.

The Democrats already have hit hard at GOP claims to cold war victories and maintenance of peace. Democratic presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson has charged that the President and his administration are being outmaneuvered and outsmarted by the Soviet Union in the cold war.

Stevenson Pledges Support For Conservation Programs

By TOM NELSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Adlai Stevenson today called on all conservationists to rally behind him, pledging support for conservation programs helping "the many instead of the privileged few."

Stevenson emerged from his suite Tuesday to announce the Democrats will conduct a $7 million election fund-raising drive to meet the "staggering expenses" of the campaign.

He announced that a series of fund-raising dinners will be held in leading cities on Oct. 20. He and other key Democratic leaders will speak to the party faithful over closed circuit television.

Stevenson planned more campaign staff conferences and meetings in his hotel suite throughout the day. He was scheduled to talk with, among others, two members of the old Truman cabinet and early supporters — former Postmaster Jesse M. Donaldson and former Secretary of Interior Oscar C. Chapman.

The Democratic nominee said conservation gains "built carefully and often against great odds, cannot and must not be allowed to be dissipated."

He said the nation "must return" the management of conservation "to a dedicated and responsible administration."

Stevenson promised that if elected he will follow "sound and progressive conservation policies and programs so that they will continually benefit the many instead of the privileged few."

It's The Law In Texas

UNORDERED MERCHANDISE
Suppose the mailman delivers to you a package containing a necktie — or a book, key-ring tags or a phonograph record — that you didn't order. Either with it, or by later mail, is a bill or request to remit the price.

What are your obligations, assuming you don't want the merchandise? Must you return it? Can you use it and not pay for it? Must you keep it, or can you throw it away?

Generally speaking, recipients of unordered merchandise are under no obligation (a) to return it; (b) to acknowledge its receipt; (c) to pay for it unless used; (d) to give it particular care; or (e) to keep it beyond a reasonable time.

You are obligated to surrender the merchandise if called for in person by the shipper or his agent within a reasonable time. But you can demand storage charges before surrendering the item. If you mail it back at your own expense, you very likely will stay on the sender's mailing list and will receive other shipments in the future.

There are no postal regulations governing unordered merchandise, except where fraud is involved.

Congress is trying to draft some legislation that will cover the situation. However, if you know what is in the envelope or package, you can write "REFUSED" across the face of the piece of mail and hand it back unopened to the mailman. No further explanation is required. You don't have to accept any class of mail. Further, your refusal probably will result in the sender having to pay return postage.

A ruling by the Federal Trade Commission holds it a violation of the Federal Trade Act for a sender of unordered merchandise to claim that "the receiver is under obligation... to pay for or return the merchandise." Hence, if you don't use the merchandise, you are within your rights in refusing to pay for it.

In summary, unless you want to use the item, in which case you should pay for it, you should keep it for awhile and then may throw it away.

If another person's mail is improperly delivered to you, do not open it, as such action might make you liable to severe legal penalties. Such mail should promptly be re-deposited in a postal box with an appropriate notation thereon, such as the proper address or "no. 14 South Brown Street," showing the address to which the mail had been delivered.

Red Cross First Aid Course Set

The Pampa chapter of the American Red Cross had its planning meeting last night in the Red Cross office.

Libby Shotwell, executive secretary, presided, and round table discussions were entered into by all First Aid instructors present.

It was decided however, that another week was needed to figure out the probable number of enrollments to be expected.

Actual enrollment for the First Aid course will be started Sept. 24 in the Red Cross office, and will last through the 28. The lessons will then begin on Oct. 1. Once an estimate of the number of students to expect is arrived at, proper measures, such as procurement of books, and classroom arrangements, will be made to accommodate them, Mrs. Shotwell said.

She added that anyone interested in taking the courses should contact the local office.

Those instructors present at last night's meeting were Eugene Dungan, Gordon S. Taylor, Jay Meador, K. L. Lewis, Elvis Duck, and Marion Osborne.

Pampan In Orchestra

James Goff, a senior at Pampa High School, was selected last night to become a member of the Amarillo Symphony Orchestra, a professional organization.

James, who is a drum major at Pampa High School, plays the flute. He has been on the All-State band for two years in a row.

He reported for tryouts two weeks ago and last night received an audition for a position in the orchestra and was selected to join the organization.

Industrial Relations Meet Set

The fourth annual Industrial Relations Conference sponsored by the Panhandle Personnel Association and the West Texas State College is set for Wednesday, Oct. 10, on the college campus at Canyon, Cliff Whitney, personnel manager of the Celanese Corporation announced today.

The Panhandle Personnel Association is an organization of personnel and industrial relations executives from the various firms throughout the Panhandle, and is actively engaged in an educational program directed toward better management — labor relations.

The one day meeting will feature an impressive panel of speakers who are considered leaders in the field of human relations, Whitney said.

Elmo Bonfield, assistant personnel manager of the J. M. Huber Corporation of Borger is the association president this year. O. C. Hampton, Industrial relations superintendent of the Cactus Plant, Phillips Petroleum Company at Dumas will be general chairman of the conference this year.

Celanese and Cabot are two of the participating companies from this area. All other Pampa concerns, who would be interested in participating at the conference are asked to contact either Bill Dowe or Cliff Whitney of Celanese and Jimmy McCune of the Cabot Corporation.

Car Thieves Apprehended

Two young boys who stole a car last week in Shamrock were apprehended yesterday in Vega. Now, in addition to their car theft charge in Shamrock, the two young thugs are being charged with armed robbery in Vega.

The car, a 1949 Chevrolet, was stolen last Thursday night from in front of the First Baptist Church in Shamrock. The next morning the car was found four miles west of Shamrock with the wires cut, the voltage regulator missing and a set of tools missing from the trunk. In addition, the seats of the car were missing.

In Vega yesterday, the two thugs robbed two women who had pulled off of route 66 to sleep. The robbery occurred between two and three in the morning and was committed at gun point with a .22 caliber rifle.

The two thugs ran out of gas on their way from the scene of the crime and were picked up by the Sheriff's office soon after. Sheriff Bus Dorman of Wheeler County heard the call on the radio and he immediately sent a deputy, Luke Henley, down to investigate and when Henley arrived, the boys confessed to the theft in Shamrock.

The youths, Phillip Wilson Truber, 17, and Kenneth Palmer Davies, also 17, are from Tulsa, Okla. They are on probation out of Tulsa and where they will be arraigned first is still a matter of contention.

Ever Present Enemy

As archeologists figure it, it wasn't long ago when Hernando Cortez invaded Mexico and brought the proud Aztec people to their knees.

To us, caught up as we are with all the problems of the 20th century, it seems as though the year 1519 was very remote in time. But the fact of the matter is that 400 years more or less is but a moment when we consider the history of the human race and the problems which beset it.

And one of the astonishing things to be kept in mind is that today's problems beset the inhabitants of this world at virtually every age. The problems are the same. It is time we recognized that fact and discovered better ways of solving these problems.

There is a lesson to be learned from the conquest of Mexico by Cortez. He headed an expeditionary force consisting of 600 foot soldiers, 10 horses and a few pieces of cumbersome artillery.

Historians, viewing his unprecedented military victories from the standpoint of the Spanish court, attributed his success to gunpowder, body armor and the superstition of the Mexican natives.

But one of the important factors in the equation of battle which is most frequently overlooked by the writers of that time, was that the Indians who opposed Cortez lacked in most instances the will to fight.

If ever total communism existed on this planet it occurred under the Aztec chiefs. Regeneration was cruel and complete. No one owned anything, except Montezuma. No wonder he had amassed such wealth.

As Cortez advanced into the interior he was joined by native Aztecs who would willingly grasp at straws in an effort to obtain even a little freedom. True, Cortez was viewed as a god by these simplehearted warriors.

The truth is that it was taxation, more than Cortez, that conquered Mexico. It is a demonstrable fact that once people are taxed beyond all reason, they tend to lose their patriotism.

Thus, patriotism was a living, breathing reality in this country. Naturally, men responded by loving the government which did not prevent them from being free, self sufficient, dignified and honest.

But since the passage of the 16th Amendment, patriotism in this land has been on the wane. Too many people are finding it essential to fight against their own government for the mere privilege of retaining a portion of what they themselves earn.

In recent years, patriotism for America has come under a pall. It is now customary to refer to a patriot as a "flag waver."

When this notion exists in a world grown perilous, it is certainly time that our political leaders took a lesson from the Montezuma manual of defeat.

We could say, in fact, that the Egyptian Pharaoh had his Moses; George III, his colonies; Montezuma, his Cortez; and President Eisenhower could profit by these examples.

SUICIDE PROPOSAL FOR MILITARY PERSONNEL IS TWISTED THINKING

The twisted thinking that is prevalent in America today was well illustrated at the American Psychological Assn.'s convention in Chicago. Dr. James C. Miller, chief of the mental health research institute at the University of Michigan, had a startling suggestion for preserving military secrets in time of war.

The idea is startling to Americans, because it is so different from the kind of thinking we have had traditionally in this country. In the first place, we have looked upon our citizen-soldiers as human beings, rather than as machines to be sacrificed in war.

likely to be entrusted with "primary secrets." If we would stress courage and loyalty to our military personnel, citing American history to give them the reasons for defending this nation, it seems unlikely that brainwashing would wash any secrets out of their minds.

The suicide idea is not new, of course. It is well associated with two defeated nations, Germany and Japan. Hermann Goering took cyanide rather than stand trial, as Dr. Miller pointed out.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES Case Studies Of Church And Politics II.

In the last issue I quoted Ben Morell's foreword to Edmund A. Opitz, book, "Case Studies of the Church in Politics." There is not much question in the minds of those who have read some history that when the church aligns itself with the government, the individual is almost helpless.

This column recently pointed out that the National Council of Churches of Christ in U.S.A. sent committees of both parties, beseeching these parties to put in their platforms such things as federal government aid to schools, to housing, etc., and more and bigger donations to the aid of foreign governments.

"Our Government "But if politicized religion was a problem in former ages, when government seemed to belong to the emperor, the king or the oligarchy, it is much more of a problem in a democratic environment when the government seems to be 'ours'. If the government appears to be 'ours' so that we feel we can use it just as if it were another form of group activity — as the church and the charitable organization are group activities — then it is inevitable that some theologians will conclude that whereas in the past the state has joined forces with the church only to use it for political ends, such need not be the case in the present.

"I am proud to say I came by this window dishonestly," Mr. Fowler said. "A priest who is a friend of mine stole it from the wreckers and I stole it from him."

"If the ideal aim of government is justice, then the things which government may rightly do — as well as the spheres within which it is properly confined — are set by the moral law and not by majority rule. But if the notion that government is really 'ours' becomes a settled conviction, a mood is generated which seems to permit us to do whatever we please by means of political action just because we do it with what is our own. Our every political action is then deflected away from moral norms toward expediency because whatever we want to do can be justified by saying that 'we are doing it to ourselves' — although it is clear that the 'we' who are doing it are seldom the same people as the 'ourselves' to whom it is done."

"History seems to show," writes Dean Inge, "that the powers of evil have won their greatest triumphs by capturing the organizations which were formed to defeat them."

tion convention in Los Angeles, Democratic Presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson made a couple of remarks which sounded to us like doubletalk.

For one thing, Adlai charged that defense spending under President Eisenhower has averaged $15 billion a year more than under Truman, and added: "If our prosperity has ever been dependent on spending for war, it is right now."

Where Adlai got that figure, we don't know, unless he has already forgotten Truman's Korean War; and his Democratic pals have been charging Gen. Ike for months with spending too little on defense.

Adlai also said the administration isn't working hard enough for world disarmament, and "chose to casually dismiss (watch those split infinitives, bub) my proposal last spring to halt further testing of large nuclear devices, conditioned on adherence by other atomic powers to a similar policy."

These powers, said Adlai, had later announced intention to limit such tests.

He didn't say what powers they were, nor did he mention Soviet Russia's three big nuclear test shots in the last couple of weeks.

Frankly, we don't think Adlai's campaign is off the ground yet — or else it's 1,000 miles off.

Fair Enough

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Honesty Is The Best Fallacy LOS ANGELES — "Come in, come in," said a cheery voice and with a sense of awe I entered the study of Gene Fowler which clings to a hillside like a hornet's nest. A political museum cluttered with a property broadsword worn by Mary Pickford and a plug hat worn by Woodrow Wilson and W. C. Fields and adorned with a stained glass window from the chapel of the old Tombs in New York.

"I told them about the time we had that terrible explosion in Weehawken and our auditor phoned in from uptown and yelled, 'don't send Fowler to Jersey. He will buy a ferry boat.'"

"I asked: 'what in your opinion, is the most important essential of good journalism? Integrity, courage, honesty?'" "Stop, stop!" the old sage roared. "The most important essential of good journalism is the expense account. Back in 1928 when I was with King features, Moses Koenigsberg, our president, assigned me to present a gavel to Doctor Walter Williams, president of the University of Missouri, who had founded the School of Journalism. He was a terrible old quack, but a great politician. The worst reporter I ever knew came out of his school. Homer Crox was a Missouri man but he didn't graduate. He was too good. I saw they forced a diploma on Homer last spring. A great pity. He didn't deserve that."

"So I went down to Missouri and Williams asked me what the topic of my speech was. I said, 'expense accounts.' He said, 'Oh, do not be frivolous. These are serious young journalists.'"

"I said, the expense account is the most important thing in a reporter's life. I want to expound Fowler's law, honesty is the best fallacy. That has since been distorted by my enemies into honesty is the worst policy. Williams said he could not let me roam his school with this tom so I phoned Moe in New York. He said, 'oh give him the one about truth is mighty. Do not antagonize him because he is graduating a lot of editors and publishers and we want to sell them our comics.'"

"So I lectured 12 minutes on the dangerous tendency of editorial writers to confuse 'ingenious' with 'ingenious,' but afterward I rounded up six undergraduates in a speakeasy and gave them Fowler's law. I told them never to war a new suit into the office within two weeks after coming back from an out of town assignment. Shoes, okay, a city editor never looks at your shoes. I said when I go on an assignment I want to be a credit to William Randolph Hearst and live in luxurious dignity. If I have the misfortune to lose at poker I figure that I would not have lost if I had been at home. We have mirrors in our living room.

FOR REFLECTION

...with JAMES C. INGBRETTEN President, Subitral Mobilization Dr. Martin Lloyd-Jones, pastor of the independent Westminster Chapel of London, who recently paid a visit to this country, gave some encouraging views in regard to today's college students — at least those in England.

Perhaps this should not surprise us. It is when the Gospel is diluted, adulterated, prostituted, and perverted into "another gospel" which is not another" that it loses its drawing power. The cross of Christ is the greatest moral and spiritual magnet in the universe. When it is preached in its stark, but sublime, simplicity, it tends to draw all men unto it.

Ike's Idea Is Proving Itself

WASHINGTON — Do American farmers want to remain on a permanent Federal subsidy, whose terms and benefits will be subject always to the whims and calculations of politicians and bureaucrats at Washington? Or do they prefer to return to normal trading and a supply-and-demand market, with Uncle Sam intervening on their behalf only in a grave emergency or wartime?

These are the fundamental questions which President Eisenhower will ask when he starts his reelection campaign, with an invasion of the Middle West agricultural areas within a few weeks — a dozen states which could be the decisive factors in the November outcome.

Ike will make clear that he favors gradual reduction of price-depressing surpluses even at the cost of temporary losses, as against the continued accumulation of stocks which burden the market, and would keep the Government in the commodity business forever. The Democratic platform declares in favor of the high and rigid price supports which have resulted in the present $8 billion surplus.

President Eisenhower and Secretary Benson have implemented the disposal policy within the last few weeks. On September 4, they turned the full purchasing and exporting of wheat to private traders. Exporters now buy wheat for shipment abroad direct from the farmers instead of from the Commodity Credit Corporation, as in the past.

The exporters will be paid in kind — wheat — instead of receiving cash as a price subsidy, which has hitherto enabled them to meet world competition. It will then be up to them to dispose of this subsidy wheat overseas through private channels of commerce.

Even before this revision, more intensive marketing methods and crop failures abroad had combined to increase exports. The amount sold in July was 44,000,000 bushels, as against only 27,000,000 in time of war.

Poor Man's Boy Can Take Grand Tour

STUTTART, GERMANY — It wasn't too many years ago that only a handful of young Americans took what was nobly known as the "Grand Tour."

Their papas were loaded with money, because it cost a packet to send the youngsters abroad to see the wonders of the Continent. The trip set them apart, and for the rest of their lives they were recognized as men of the world. Things are a bit different today. Right here in Germany there are a quarter of a million young Americans, members of the United States Army in Europe, and most of them have travelled more extensively than did any millionaire's son a few years ago.

Thousands of them, taking advantage of their furloughs and the bargain rates offered the American in uniform, have explored Europe from its tallest peak to its smokiest basement night club. Boys who a year or so ago hadn't been out of their own counties at home, now could serve as guides in Rome, Amsterdam, London, Paris, Copenhagen and Brussels.

Men who once considered the blue plate special at the corner restaurant tops in good eating, now speak knowingly of their favorite restaurants in Naples, Salzburg, Berlin, and Luxembourg. They can tell you where to get the best snails, the choicest saddle of venison, and where the fettuccini is out of this world.

Weekly Newsletter From Congressman Walter Rogers

FEDERAL REGULATION OF GAS AT THE WELLHEAD To the People of the 18th Congressional District:

Most of you will recall the fight that was had last session on the gas bill. The bill finally passed both Houses of the Congress and was sent to the White House. President Eisenhower vetoed the bill even though he had previously expressed his opinion that federal regulation of the producers of gas at the wellhead was not in keeping with the best interests of this country or our form of government. Although he stated in his veto message that there was some indication of undue lobbying activities and based his veto on that reason, he did not impress me or others who were thoroughly familiar with the situation. I suspected at the time, and so pointed out in a news letter, that there was more politics in the veto than there was reasoning. The bill was either a good bill or a bad bill. If it was a good bill it should not have been vetoed, because somebody tried to pay somebody else some money in some lobbying activities. If the bill was a bad bill, it should never have passed the Congress, lobbying activities or no lobbying activities. The truth is that it was a good bill although I did not feel that it went far enough in freeing the producers from federal control. Very few bills in our legislative history have been the subject of more extensive hearings than were had on this gas bill. It was thoroughly debated in the House of Representatives and passed the House by a vote of 309 to 203. It then passed the Senate and went to the White House where it was vetoed. I thought the veto was wrong then, and I still think the same way.

The odd situation that has developed concerning the gas bill is simply this. Rumors around Washington are that some ardent supporters of the President are seeking the active and financial support of the oil and gas people for the fall campaign. The O and G people are supposed to have been told that if such support is forthcoming, the President will sign the gas bill as soon as it gets to the White House next year. I would advise the O and G people to be sure to read and understand exactly what is going on. In the first place, it should be pointed out that the phrase "as soon as it gets to the White House" is the tricky part of the language. In the second place, it must be remembered that the bill passed the House by a final vote of 209 to 208 -- A margin of only 6 votes. In the third place, it would not be difficult for several of the members who voted for the bill to change their votes in the next session and vote against the bill. It would only require a change of 4 votes to defeat the bill in the House. This would mean that the bill would never reach the White House. Therefore, the promise of the ardent supporters of the President that the bill would be signed "as soon as it reaches the White House" would not be broken, simply because the bill had not reached the White House.

The truth is there is a propaganda campaign going on today against the oil and gas industry. The present Senate lobbying hearings are furnishing a good stage from which to criticize the oil and gas people at the producer level. If this propaganda campaign is successful, it will hurt the economy of the Panhandle of Texas. The big utility companies in the East want to firm up their gas sources and fix it so that the producers and royalty owners must sell their gas into the pipelines for use in the East and Middle West.

They realize the possibility that many new discoveries for gas usage are highly probable, and that the value of gas as a natural resource will be measurably increased. These utility companies are willing to subject gas producers to federal control in order to protect their own sources of supply. These utility companies had better wake up. Because federal control of the gas at one end will simply open rates to be fixed at the consumer level, and these utility companies will find that such a policy as they now support, could easily result in nationalization of the fuel industry. Certainly no freethinking American would subscribe to that policy.

The propaganda campaign against the oil and gas people will not only hurt the economy of the oil and gas people themselves and the people who work at that particular field in the Panhandle of Texas, but it will hurt every business in our section of the country including the farmers and the ranchers.

What this country needs, and especially the Panhandle of Texas, is a stabilization of the segments of the economy that have been throttled in the last few years. I refer especially to the farmers and ranchers. Certainly we do not need any attacks on other segments of the economy in our District.

'Safety Car' Design Is Made Public

NEW YORK (UP)—The design of a "safety automobile" has been made public. It places the driver in the front center of the vehicle, eliminates steering wheel and column, and has a back-looking seat for one passenger.

The design resulted from four years of studying methods of "packaging" passengers safely into automobiles. The studies were made by the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory of Buffalo, N. Y., under the sponsorship of the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., underwriter of automobile casualties and liability.

The steering wheel is replaced by two yoked levers, one for each of the driver's hands, which steer the car on the push-pull principle. They are incorporated in a rigid harness that is recessed into the dashboard when the car isn't in use. The driver pulls this harness over himself. It locks into place, fixing him into his seat by a webbed belt across his lower abdomen.

Over the yoke of the steering lever is a well-padded cushion. In case of collision, the driver can't be thrown out of his seat; if his torso is thrown forward, it collides with the cushion. The steering wheel and column are prime sources of death and injury for drivers involved in head-on collisions. All six seats in the "safety automobile" are individual bucket seats. The driver's is flanked by two passenger seats which are a little lower and a little behind his. Back to back with the driver's seat is the seat for the backward-riding passenger, who faces two forward-looking passenger seats.

The two front seats are provided with harnesses like the driver's. The rear seats are equipped with conventional safety belts. There are no interior projections; if any strapped-in rider's torso is thrown forward in any kind of accident, there is nothing within range for his chest or head to smash against.

Rifle-Totin' Grandmother Ends Vigil

BLACKSTONE, Mass. (UP)—A rifle-totin' 72-year-old great-grandmother has agreed to a one-week truce after maintaining a three-day blockade of a road across her farm.

Mrs. Kornelia Zariczny, a widow, temporarily ended her rocking chair vigil in the middle of the road on the advice of her attorney.

The attorney, Norman T. Theault, said the one-woman fight involved a question of Mrs. Zariczny's status as an alien. She is a native of Poland.

Mrs. Zariczny had sat with an unloaded rifle across her lap in a chilly drizzle and defied authorities and motorists alike. She had said she would not go to court to settle her land dispute.

100 Mile Water Ski Ride Set

GALVESTON, Tex. (UP)—It's tough for many people just to stand up on water skis much less ride them 100 miles, but that's the prospect facing water ski expert Hubert Spradling.

Spradling and his seven-man "squadron" crew take off on water skis behind three boats Saturday on a five-hour marathon ski run from Orange, Tex., to Galveston.

They plan to arrive here about noon to stage water ski shows Saturday and Sunday during this island resort's "golden days" festival which inaugurates Galveston's fall water season.

A parade and selection of Miss Golden Days and Mr. Texas are other events on the program.
