Convention Fight Set By Loyalists

By O. B. LLOYD JR.
United Press Staff Correspondent
FORT WORTH (UP)—Liberal-loyalist Democrats, seeking to control Tuesday's state convention pledged an all-out fight today for the seating of their delegations from at least nine counties.

These nine counties are Bexar, El Paso, Nolan, Harris, Wichita, Jefferson, Hidalgo, Schleicher and Bee. Together, they represent 497 votes of the 1,888 total votes of the convention.

A majority and control of the convention would be 945 votes.

A credentials committee went to work on these and any other contested delegations today to decide whether conservative or liberal-loyalist Democrats should be seated.

Also starting this morning was a meeting of the Gov. Allan Shivers committee which will be replaced by a new committee at Tuesday's convention.

The liberals, supporters of Ralph Yarborough in the gubernatorial primary, were claiming 1,370 votes Sunday night. This total included all of the nine counties in the contest, so control of the convention could be decided by the credentials committee.

The liberals have voiced fears the conservatives would "steal" the convention by barring enough of their delegations to swing a majority of the 1,888 convention votes.

Sen. Price Daniel, who won the gubernatorial nomination over Yarborough in the runoff primary by a scant 3,348 votes, balked Sunday night at pledging unqualified support of the national Democratic nominees.

"I'll make an unqualified expression at such time as I am sure no complications are going to arise," Daniel told newsmen.

But Daniel said repeatedly he knew of no reason why he could not support Adlai Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver, the Democratic nominees for president and vice president.

"It is so near definite, I'm not worrying about it, they people are worrying about it. The only thing is, I would be terribly embarrassed if I came out with a definite statement of support as some people now are for and then something changed," he explained.

The other three teenagers were reported to be in fair condition with only minor injuries.

The pickup is reported to have turned over as Daberry was driving. The cause of the accident has not been determined.

The Daberry youth was a senior at Kellon High School and was active in FFA and 4-H Club activities. He was a member of the Wheeler County Sheriff's posse.

He was born Dec. 2, 1935, in Shamrock and had been a resident of Wheeler County all of his life. He was a member of the Kellon Baptist Church.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Daberry of Kellon; one sister, Norma Jean of Kellon; and a grandfather, F. D. Brown of Borger.

Funeral services will be held in the Kellon Baptist Church at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday. Rev. A. G. Robert, pastor, will officiate assisted by Rev. William Lewis, pastor of the Adrian Baptist Church.

Burial will be in the Shamrock cemetery under the direction of the Clay Funeral Home.

One Killed In Accident Near Twitty

SEAMROCK — (Special) — One teenager was killed and five others were injured when the pickup truck in which they were riding overturned approximately two miles west of Twitty Sunday at 4 p.m.

Killed was Jack D. Daberry, 17, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack D. Daberry of Kellon.

The injured, all in Shamrock hospital, are Jacky and Mickey Reeves, 14 and 15, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Reeves of Twitty; George G. Harris, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harris of Kellon; Wayne Sanders, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Sanders of Texola, Okla.; and Donna Gayle Marshall, 15, who lives with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Allen of Shamrock.

Mrs. Mickey Reeves, who received a brain concussion, and Sanders, who received a broken leg and back injuries, were reported in serious condition this morning by the attending physician.

The other three teenagers were reported to be in fair condition with only minor injuries.

The pickup is reported to have turned over as Daberry was driving. The cause of the accident has not been determined.

Writer's Turn To Answer

NEW YORK (UP)—Confidential magazine publisher Robert Harrison, shot in a Dominican Republic jungle last week, was back home today to give his wife the confidential story on how a sexy blonde singer happened to be with him at the time of the accident.

Harrison was met at the airport Sunday by his wife, June. They embraced warmly. But at the mere mention of the name of Gene Courtney, who was missing with Harrison for several hours in the jungle following the shooting, icy bars started flying.

The scandal magazine publisher, who carried his wounded arm in a sling, said he didn't feel like discussing the accidental shooting, but volunteered the information he plans to return to the Dominican Republic.

From the other side of the airport press room, Mrs. Harrison said with a snap: "Take your wife with you next time."

That's when talk got around to Miss Courtney, a curvaceous singer who was performing in a Cidra Trujillo night club. She was hospitalized from exposure and shock after police found her in the jungle with the wounded Harrison.

"I wish she would stay away from my darling husband," Mrs. Harrison said of Miss Courtney. Harrison didn't say anything.

Big-game hunter Richard Wely had admitted that last Tuesday he accidentally shot and wounded Harrison. The publisher has said that it was, indeed, an accident. They had argued over a story in the current Confidential magazine issue concerning Wely, his ex-wife Pilar Palette, and Miss Palette's current husband, actor John Wayne.

Friends of Mrs. Harrison persuaded her to save most of her wrath for her husband until she could talk to him privately. She took their advice and went over to him at the airport and snuggled up. They left together, with Mrs. Harrison keeping a firm grip on his arm.

British, French Study War Over Suez Crisis

Menzies Committee Returns To London

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON —UP— Leaders of the British and French governments meet here today to decide whether to go to war over the "very, very grave" Suez Canal crisis.

The five-nation committee headed by Australian Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies failed to win Egypt's agreement to international control of the canal and was returning to London with empty hands.

The situation was so serious that French Premier Guy Mollet and Foreign Minister Christian Pineau called a meeting for today with Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden and his cabinet leaders.

The Menzies committee itself, including U.S. Deputy Undersecretary of State Loy W. Henderson and Swedish Foreign Minister Oesten Unden, were expected back in London later today. The Iranian and Ethiopian members flew straight home.

May Appeal To U.N.
Some Britons called today's Anglo-French meeting an "agonizing reappraisal" of their Middle East policies. There were unconfirmed reports Secretary of State John Foster Dulles might fly to London for further crisis talks.

The general belief in diplomatic circles in London was that both France and Britain would take the Suez problem first to the United Nations, but newspapers again revived the talk of war "as a last resort." Big "war" headlines were frequent.

Eden was facing the gravest crisis of his postwar political career. He had only two days to work out a face-saving formula to save Suez before Parliament meets in emergency session on Wednesday. It was believed he would announce recourse to the United Nations then.

But he must also quell a growing revolt in his own party by declaring that Britain and France will reserve the right to use force as a "last resort" to keep the canal running regardless of the U.N. actions and a possible Soviet veto in the security council.

Dulles Seeks New Plan
In Washington, the State Department refused to confirm or deny reports Dulles would fly to London. Spokesman said only he was seeking a new face-saving plan to resolve the crisis in the face of the growing war talk in London.

Egypt already was taking new measures against Britain, France and the United States which froze all or some Egyptian assets following Nasser's nationalization of the old Suez company on July 26. It banned all imports from the three countries and began a new series of trade talks today with Communist China.

The initiative was in Western hands and it appeared the next move—a very grave one—might come from the canal zone itself. Many British and French pilots hinted they would resign if the Menzies mission failed. Their walkout would paralyze the canal.

British Reject Bid For New Negotiations

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP)—Britain flatly rejected today Egypt's call for new international negotiations to end the Suez crisis.

The rejection came shortly before the heads of the British and French governments met to discuss peace or war in the "very, very grave" situation.

"The Egyptian statement does not appear to suggest any basis for negotiation," the Foreign Office announced.

It was the first official Western rejection to Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's suggestion earlier today that a new international conference be called to settle the controversy over the vital waterway.

Egyptian Action Hit
The last action of the Egyptian government has been the unqualified refusal of the proposal put forward as a basis for negotiation by the Menzies mission on behalf of 18 nations, the foreign office said.

The proposal was the so-called Dulles plan for international control of the canal.

Britain's stand was made known in a two-sentence statement issued during a meeting of Prime Minister Anthony Eden and key cabinet ministers.

The firm tone of the statement indicated Eden had not wavered. (See BRITISH, Page 3)

At Segregation Hot Spots

Troop Reinforcements Move Into Positions

By UNITED PRESS
Troop reinforcements moved into position today at western Kentucky trouble spots where Negro pupils planned to make new attempts to attend classes at previously all-white schools.

A Kentucky National Guard battalion equipped with carbines and tanks armed with machine guns got ready to prevent possible mob action when five Negro teenagers arrived for classes at strife-torn Sturgis, Ky.

State police also were mustered for any renewed violence at nearby Clay, Ky., where a Negro mother planned to try to enter her two children at the elementary school.

A week of violence or tension at schools scattered in so-called southern border spots from West Virginia to Texas held the attention of 12 Southern governors in an atomic conference at White Mountain, N.C. (See TROOP, Page 3)

Crowd Turns Back Negroes At College

TEXARKANA, Tex. (UP)—Two Negroes who planned to enter all-white Texarkana Junior College were turned back today by a jeering crowd of several hundred persons and a chalked sign saying "the nigger who crosses this line will die."

Neither attempted to enter the school itself, although both started to walk around the picket line in front of the college before the crowd closed around them.

At least eight peace officers, including four Texas Rangers, were on hand, but there was no violence and the officers did not interfere.

About 50 pickets formed a line in front of the school early this morning. A crowd of 300 or more persons, including many older residents of this community on the Texas-Arkansas border, soon joined them.

Someone had drawn a line on the sidewalk in front of the college. It was along this line that the chalked death warning was written.

The pickets carried signs saying "Nigger, Go North," "Go Home Nigger," "No Mixed Classes," and "No NAACP Goons."

Two Negro girls had passed entrance examinations for the college, but only one showed up when classes began at 8:30 a.m. today. She was Jessalyn Yvonne Gray, 18, of Texarkana.

She was accompanied in a taxicab by Steve Foster, 17-year-old Negro who told reporters he had taken the entrance examinations and came back this morning to see if he passed. He said he intended to register if he was eligible.

The two stood by the waiting taxicab for awhile and talked to reporters. At 8:30, when classes were due to begin, the two walked down the street in an apparent attempt to go around the end of the picket line.

But the crowd followed them, many keeping between the Negroes and the college. The crowd jeered the two and one youth yelled "I dare you to come out for football."

Others yelled "go home, nigger."

After walking about 40 yards, the two saw they would not be

Near-Fisticuffs Break Out As Schools In Houston Open

HOUSTON (UP)—Three Negro children tried to register in an elementary school as Houston's public schools opened today, and a white man swung at a Negro man but missed.

The white man, unidentified, also tried to scuffle with newspaper photographers but didn't attempt to strike any of them. He refused to give his name.

The target of the man's blow was George Nelson, a Negro barber and a director of the Houston branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Nelson did not attempt to hit back.

Nelson escaped the intended blow as he emerged from Sherman elementary school after trying to register three Negro children, Charles Ray McDade, 7; George McDade Jr., 5; and Dolores Ross, 9, who live two blocks from the all-white school.

Mrs. Geneva Davis, school secretary, told Nelson, "We are not allowed to accept these pupils."

Nelson explained that the children otherwise would have to walk 14 blocks from their home to the nearest Negro school.

Nelson thanked Mrs. Davis and left with the children. He ducked the blow from the white man as he emerged from the school door.

Today was registration day also at Texas Southern University, one of the South's largest Negro colleges, and TSU officials expected some white students to enroll, but the freshman dean said no white students showed up for a pre-registration freshman orientation program.

ADLAI STUMPS NEW ENGLAND

By TOM NELSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson carried his campaign into New England today and warned that the Republicans cannot take a single state "for granted" in the November election.

The Democratic presidential nominee said in a talk prepared for delivery to a regional party conference that he finds "wide spread and sober concern" about the policies of the Eisenhower administration, and "a warm response" to the vote appeals he has made.

"On the basis of our experience so far, I do not believe that there is a single state which the Republicans can take for granted in this election," Stevenson said.

The candidate arrived here from New York City, where he spent the night after attacking the GOP administration in a New Jersey speech for "misconduct and corruption."

Stevenson told New Jersey Democrats of scandals he said occurred under Republicans in the New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Illinois state governments, and said the same thing "has marked the Eisenhower administration from start to finish."

Stevenson gave as his only example the resignation of Air Force Secretary Harold Talbot last year, after Talbot was criticized for soliciting government business for his management consultant firm.

Operation Santa Set

Members of the Pampa fire department announced today that they would repair toys to be given needy children at Christmas.

It is the plan of the firemen to begin repair work on the toys about Nov. 1 and they request persons wishing to donate old toys hold them until after that date as they do not have a place to store the toys at this time.

Each year, in addition to their regular duties, the firemen repair many toys and make them usable so they can be given to children that would not normally receive toys at Christmas.

South Will Be Land Of Turmoil Over Desegregation

By AL DUTNER
United Press Staff Correspondent
ATLANTA (UP)—These past few weeks have proved, in case anyone had any doubts, that the South will be a land of turmoil over desegregation for many years to come.

It took the National Guard to enforce integration at Clinton, Tenn., and at Sturgis, Dy. It took the Texas rangers to protect lives when unsuccessful efforts were made to enroll Negroes in a school at Mansfield, Tex.

At scattered spots throughout Dixie, from the Atlantic Coast to the Mexican border, there was trouble wherever integration was attempted. Rare datelines such as Elloroe, S. C., Matoska, W.Va., and Long-Hill, N. C., were added to the list of towns where the problem came alive.

Even unfounded rumors that Negroes would attempt registration at white schools brought out protesting and menacing crowds in other towns. Absenteeism of white pupils reached the boycott stage in many schools that admitted Negroes.

No Major Casualties
Although there was violence aplenty to usher in the new school term—the third since the Supreme Court's school desegregation decision—strangely enough there were no major casualties. Some bruised chins, torn clothing and one minor shooting about totals up the physical damage.

In the light of this new friction, there are some things that should be remembered about the race picture in the South.

Practically all of the conflict in recent days has been between white segregationists and constitutional, abrogated classes were the law or the custom in 17 states.

By the fall term of 1956 there were an estimated 134,000 Negro children attending mixed schools in those formerly segregated states and the District of Columbia. Almost half the total was in Washington, D. C., which had been segregated in the past.

An estimated 300,000 Negroes entered newly integrated public schools this fall, all in the "border" states. There were school districts trying integration for the first time in West Virginia, Delaware, Missouri, Kentucky, Texas, Oklahoma, Maryland and Tennessee. All of the states had started the process last fall.

The transition this year was mostly peaceful. The exceptions made the headlines.

In the fight against desegregation, some state legislatures have been holding extraordinary sessions and special elections have been held this year to make racial bars even stronger.

Alabama voters recently approved by a big majority constitutional changes that strip the basic law of guaranteed public school education and remove other clauses that might be used as a wedge to enforce public school integration.

The Virginia Legislature, in session now, is expected to pass a law to withhold state funds from integrated public schools. Georgia, South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana already have strict statutes along that line.

If it comes from a Hardware Store, we have it. Lewis Hyde. (Adv.)

The $5,000-a-year family in 1939 paid Uncle Sam $59 in taxes; kept $4,941. It now takes $10,883 to match this with the government collecting $1,511 and inflation taking a toll of $4,131.

For the couple earning $10,000 before the war, income today must be $22,428 to make up for a jump in taxes from $269 to $4,562 and a loss from inflation of $8,135, the board found.

In the higher brackets, the chart showed, even greater increases in earnings are required to maintain the status quo. For example, the $25,000-a-year family, who had $33,273 left after deduction in 1939, now needs $67,737 to adjust for a $19,466 depreciation the dollar and $24,998 current taxes.

Taxes Cut Wage Earner's $ Return

NEW YORK (UP)—A $3,000-a-year wage earner in 1939 must earn $6,122 annually today just to hold his own, the National Industrial Conference Board reported today in the latest of its "road maps of industry."

Incomes, the board noted, have had to move up a long way since 1939 simply to offset rising taxes and inflation.

The married couple with two children and a $3,000 income in 1939 paid only $30 in federal income and Social Security taxes, which left him $2,970. To end up with the equivalent today, he would have to gross $6,122 since taxes would take away $669 and loss from depreciation of the dollar would be $2,483, the chart showed.

Here's Look At Future Headlines

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Around the world look ahead at the news that will make the headlines.

Tactical Switch

The free-swinging, far-ranging campaigning of Adlai E. Stevenson and Estes Kefauver has forced a revision of Republican battle tactics. GOP plans for President Eisenhower to make only a handful of major speeches — and do little traveling — have gone down the drain. Mr. Eisenhower isn't eager to wage a harder campaign. But he is willing to do it if necessary, and his doctors say he is physically able to do more than he had planned. Also, the Democrats are providing him with an incentive by their attacks on his administration.

A Different Ball Game

British officials aren't even whispering it. But it's known that Britain is more worried about Russia than about Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser in the Suez situation. That explains the swift, massive British-French military build-up in the Suez area. British military chiefs feel they can tidily handle Egypt in the event that fighting breaks out. But if Russian "volunteers" started pouring into Egypt, as has been threatened, it would be a different ball game.

Crackdown Coming

Look for a government crackdown on the use of untested chemicals in the food you eat. Bills to give the Food and Drug Administration more power to police food "additives" failed to make the grade in Congress this year. But a lot of heat has been generated by recent reports that some dyes and preservatives may be poisonous, may even be potential causes of cancer. Insiders say a tough control law is sure to pass Congress next year.

Popsie Wopsie Trouble

Marilyn Monroe is having plenty of trouble with Britain's Sir Laurence Olivier. He's the boss — an exacting one — on the set of "The Sleeping Prince" film now in production in London. The studio has closed to newsmen. But this much has leaked out: Olivier just doesn't go for Marilyn's new "popsie wopsie," "popsie wopsie" by Arthur Miller walks on the set. Also, a stickler for detail, Olivier doesn't hesitate to show Marilyn how to act — even how to walk

Capitol Hill Roundup

WASHINGTON (UP) — Activity at the capitol this week reached the highest point since Congress adjourned earlier this year.

Six committees start new investigations or resume old ones. Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler and his Republican counterpart, Leonard W. Hall, will testify at the opening of an elections subcommittee inquiry today into campaign contribution expenditures.

Butler charged in prepared testimony before the committee that corporation executives have solicited in her scenes. She's been close to tears several times. But she's painfully carrying on — so far.

Missile Mystery

Allied intelligence experts are reported to be in a flurry about radar sightings of mysterious "objects" over the Baltic Sea. For three weeks, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization radar station on Denmark's Bornholm Island has been tracking the "objects" by night. Flying at speeds of 2,000 to 2,500 miles an hour, they are reported to be coming from the Peenemunde area of Russian-occupied East Germany. They fly from east to west, then turn back in a wide curve. The German wartime V1 and V2 rockets were developed at Peenemunde.

ted 1954 Republican campaign funds from their employees. He also charged corporation executives solicited GOP campaign money this year from "other persons dependent upon the corporation for their livelihood."

The House Committee on Un-American Activities will hear testimony today from a foreigner who is billed as "director of the largest resistance organization behind the Iron Curtain."

The witness—Ernst Tillich, director of "The Fighting Group Against Inhumanity"—was flown to Washington last week. He is the first of a series of overseas witnesses the committee plans to bring here in quest of data on "international Communist strategy and tactics."

Other congressional inquiries scheduled:

Lobbying: A special Senate committee set up to investigate lobbying will resume hearings today with testimony from representatives of oil companies. This group, headed by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), was created after Sen. Francis Case (R-SD) disclosed that he had been offered, and had rejected, a $2,500 campaign contribution in advance of his vote on the since-vetted natural gas bill.

Taxes: A House Ways and Means subcommittee meets behind closed doors today to chart the course of its inquiry into national tax policy and administration of tax laws. The group plans to lay out a program of staff work which can be undertaken while members are back home campaigning for re-election.

Bears Work Hard

WACO, Tex., Sept. 8 (UP)—Coach Sam Boyd's Baylor Bears confined their practice to an all-out two-hour scrimmage Saturday that alternated the matching of six different teams.

Five touchdowns were scored, including one on a run by halfback Bobby Peters, another on a pass from quarterback Bobby Jones to end Bill Anderson. Another by Jones, a pass from quarterback Kenny Helms to halfback Dick Clark, and a pass by Clark to halfback Gaylen Crain.

Generally speaking, hats go upward rather than outward this fall. And they're not worn way down to the nose.

The waistline has returned to suits this fall via belts. Once again, the suit has a feminine, elegant, pretty look.

Commerce subcommittee will resume hearings Tuesday on its investigation of the Grand Canyon plane collision which took 128 lives. The group, headed by Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), hopes to produce recommendations that will improve safety of air travel.

TV monopoly: The House Monopoly subcommittee will begin 10 days of public hearings at New York Tuesday in its investigation of possible "anti-trust and monopoly problems" in the television industry. This is a continuation of previous hearings conducted here last spring.

22 Persons Miss Death By Inches

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (UP)—Civil Aeronautics Administration officials today investigated a collision between a commercial airliner and light plane near here that placed 22 persons within inches of death.

A Continental Airlines DC-3, carrying 14 passengers and a crew of three, collided in flight Sunday with a Cessna 170 carrying five persons. The collision at 1,800 feet two miles east of here, caused heavy damage, but both planes landed safely at the Bartlesville airport.

The twin-engine airliner, on a flight from El Paso, Tex., to Kansas City, was descending for a landing here. The propeller of the smaller plane slashed into the airliner's right wing and whacked a three-foot section off the right elevator control in the DC-3's tail.

J. F. Folk, 31, welder from Carthage, Tex., said he had taken four children, age 8 to 16, for a joy ride from the airport at Dewey, Okla., four miles away. He said he was flying in clear skies along the east side of the airport when the larger plane came down over his craft from behind.

"We were going along and all of a sudden this DC-3 is on top of us. My prop hit its aileron and then the tip of the left elevator," Folk said. "The airliner went on ahead and turned into the wind and landed. I tried to slow down. My engine was vibrating awful. When I slowed it down it got worse. My propeller was bent. I throttled it up and went on in behind the other plane."

Capt. E. M. Richards, 35, El Paso, Tex., pilot of the airliner, said the smaller plane ripped a hole in the wing and then tore a three-foot gash in the tail of the DC-3.

"It was quite a bump," Richards said, declining to discuss the accident in detail. Civil Aeronautics Administration investigators came here a few hours later to question the pilots.

Folk said his passengers were two children of his brother-in-law, G. R. Hendrickson, of Bartlesville and two of their friends. Folk said part of the engine cowling on his plane was ripped off by the impact.

In his determination for international control of the canal.

U. S. Weighs Proposal

In Washington, diplomatic sources said the United States will give serious consideration to Egypt's latest proposals for a new conference. But they refused to predict whether the United States will endorse the proposal.

Egypt's invitation went out to all nations using the canal and was made as the mission, headed by Australian Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies retreated from Cairo in failure.

Announcement of the Egyptian Menzies mission returned home in failure and Iranian Foreign Minister Aliquall Ardalan, a member of the Menzies mission, suggested United Nations action.

45-Nation Study

Egypt previously called for a 45-nation conference to study the Suez Canal crisis but the Western nations rejected it and held a 22-nation meeting in London. Egypt and Greece did not attend that meeting.

Ardalan made the suggestion as Australian Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies left for London to report failure to his mission and to deliver Egypt's stinging rejection of the Dulles plan.

"Peaceful negotiations are the only way out," Ardalan said in an airport statement before returning to Iran. "I don't think of any other way. Having been for five years in the United Nations, I think the matter should be presented to the UN."

Ethiopian Goes Home

Ardalan and Ethiopian Foreign Minister Akilou Habtewold returned to their own capitals. Menzies, U. S. Deputy Secretary of State Loy W. Henderson and Swedish Foreign Minister Oesten Unden left for London and talks with the British and French premiers.

Ardalan said the talks with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser had "clarified the situation" and said the need was for "tranquility and calm" in the Middle East.

"We have to work for this," he said. "We want peace and security."

Menzies, Henderson and Unden were seen off by the Cairo governor and the Egyptian chief of protocol, the same two relatively minor officials who received them a week ago.

Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Gov. A. B. Chandler was ready to issue a proclamation of martial law at a moment's notice, if requested by Adj. Gen. J. J. E. Williams. Williams predicted this would be a "test day."

The atmosphere of renewed crisis with the reopening of another school week was also reflected at Texarkana, Tex., where two Negro girls planned to try to enter a junior college, and also at Clinton, Tenn.

At Clinton, National Guard forces were trimmed to an elite corps of 50 after a quiet weekend. But a reappearance of two touring, anti-integration speakers raised speculation of new trouble.

In nearby Oliver Springs, where sentiment has become a sounding board for Clinton's troubles, local officers watched for more turmoil after a new visit by two outsider segregationists.

Sheriff Glad Woodward instructed the men, John Kasper and Ace (Ace) Carter, not to stop at Clinton on their visit Sunday, but they held a rally at Oliver Springs in an adjoining county.

Authorities at Clinton have blamed largely Kasper, 26, of Camden, N.J., and Carter, of Birmingham, Ala., for the rioting in both towns last week.

Kasper is under a $10,000 appeal bond made after his conviction for contempt of court in interfering with the court-order integration of the Clinton High School.

A boycott protesting against the enrollment of Negroes spread late last week to 700 pupils of schools at the community of Matoaka, W. Va., but one leader believed the strike was nearly over.

The Rev. Donald Spurlock, a Methodist minister who became the center of a segregation dispute in the town of 1,000 said he believed half the strikers would reappear at the Mercer County schools.

Cotton Down 140,000 Bales U. S. Ag. Dept. Reports

AUSTIN (UP)—Texas' 1956 cotton production was forecast today by the U. S. Department of Agriculture at 3.46 million bales, down 140,000 bales from the Aug. 1 estimate.

However, V. C. Childs, statistician for the USDA, said the per acre yield was estimated at 266 pounds, which would be the "highest yield since the turn of the century, except for 1955."

"That would probably appear a bit unusual to some folks, in the face of a long drought, but it reflects an increased proportion of Texas cotton grown under irrigation," Childs said.

The USDA said the lower indicated production was caused principally by reductions in the north-west Texas area, where dryland cotton failed to receive August rains, and dropped "pretty sharply."

Childs said another factor in the high yield, in addition to irrigation, was the removal of low-yielding cotton under the soil bank program, plus the plowing-up of acreage to get within allotment levels.

Total cotton acreage was estimated at 6.25 million acres, the smallest since 1946. The USDA reported 874,000 acres have been signed up under the soil bank program, and almost 250,000 acres have been removed to comply with acreage allotments.

Yield prospects were "extremely variable," with a sharp contrast between irrigated areas and dryland acreage. The drought took a heavy toll of dryland cotton, with South Central, southern blacklands, southern low rolling plains and adjacent counties being hardest hit.

The Lower Rio Grande Valley produced record high yields. Production in coastal and South Central counties, although reduced by drought, turned out a little above pre-harvest expectations.

Ginnings to Sept. 1 totaled 989, 118 running bales, 11 per cent above ginnings a year ago.

Commissioners' Agenda Told

A light agenda for the City Commission meeting Tuesday is expected, city officials reported today.

The only items which are scheduled for discussion are: estimates of paving work on city streets, a letter from the Board of City Development requesting the appointment of new members, and possibly a refund payment on the North Crest addition to Pampa.

The commissioners are studying the proposed city budget for '56-57 which was presented to them at their meeting last week. A public hearing on the budget is set for Tuesday, Sept. 25.

Woman Is Sought In Kidnaping

HAMDEN, Conn. (UP)—Authorities sought an unidentified woman in blue today for questioning in the kidnaping of a 6-week-old Cynthia Ruotolo.

Despite a curtain of silence drawn around the investigation in the baffling 10-day-old mystery, it was reliably learned that state police are putting together a composite portrait sketch of the woman suspect as an aid in the search.

State's Attorney Abraham S. Ullman, who is in full charge of the search, refused to comment on the portrait sketch. But he admitted, "We are looking for the woman."

Ullman expressed the opinion that "progress is being made in the case."

Suit Filed In Court Here

A suit was filed in the 31st District Court Sept. 7th against the Texas Employers Insurance Association by Robert Bradshaw of Gray County for injuries sustained while working with the Pampa Foundry Company, Inc. of Pampa.

Bradshaw's claim is that he injured his back and hips while he and a co-worker were lifting on a three hundred pound mold in the course of his duties at the foundry.

He is asking from the Texas Employers Insurance Association the sum of $25 a week for 401 consecutive weeks retroactive to May 9, 1956, at which time the accident allegedly occurred.

No date has been set yet for a hearing.

Crackup Injures Man

A two car collision this morning on the airport road, at the intersection near Memory Gardens, resulted in injuries to J. E. Gibson, 1704 Coffee.

According to the report of the investigating highway patrolman, Gibson was headed west in a '54 Ford and had entered the intersection when a '55 Ford, driven by Winston W. Bryant, 1145 Starbuck, ther, which was going north at the time, struck the Gibson automobile in the left side.

A witness to the accident reported that both men were thrown from their cars and that Gibson hit a fence near the intersection.

Gibson was reported to have undergone surgery at Highland General Hospital this morning but no reports on the extent of his injuries or condition was available.

"TWO-FIVE" IS COMING TO PAMPA
METROPOLITAN "2-LETTER, 5-NUMERAL" TELEPHONE NUMBERING SYSTEM TO BE INTRODUCED IN OCTOBER, 1956

PAMPA will get a new telephone numbering system in October, 1956, when the Metropolitan Telephone Numbering plan is put into operation.

At that time, all telephone numbers in Pampa will have two letters and five numerals. Most telephone numbers will retain the last five numerals they now have, and simply be preceded by the first two letters of a central office name and a number—"Mo hawk."

However, it will be necessary to change some numbers because of technical reasons. You will be notified of your new number well in advance of the change.

A new edition of the telephone directory—listing all the new numbers—will be delivered just before the metropolitan numbers go into use.

THE METROPOLITAN Telephone Numbering Plan will enlarge the telephone numbering system so we may add new telephones and continue to grow...and still assign numbers that are easy to remember and easy to dial.

The new system will be a part of a nationwide program for a uniform numbering plan designed to increase the speed and efficiency of your long distance telephone service.

Many large cities, such as New York, Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco already have changed to the new numbering plan. In Texas, such cities as Lubbock, Amarillo and Houston have changed to the new numbering plan. Eventually every dial telephone in the nation will have two letters and five numerals.

We will keep you informed about the progress of the numbering change as work moves ahead. And we will let you know what your new telephone number will be as early as possible.

If you or your business firm order stationery, cards, or other printed matter listing telephone numbers, please remember the coming change in numbers so you may avoid stocking more than will be needed before October, 1956.

Righteousness

A person or a nation that is righteous occupies an exalted position among his fellows or among other nations. The word righteous indicates a number of things. It speaks of choices and actions taken which are based on right rather than on wrong. It points out an abiding morality behind such right choices and actions. For right and righteousness both imply an action which is not only correct in the sense of accuracy but correct in terms of everlasting good.
By adding up a column of figures a man may attain a correct answer. But by governing his choices and actions according to fixed principles, a man may attain righteousness and consequently may be righteous in what he does.
But herein lies a personal trap for the unwary. For while righteousness is a noble attainment, self-righteousness could be classed as a cardinal sin. The ability to choose and act rightly is greatly to be desired. But to take pride in such ability is to destroy the very roots of the attainment. Any person or nation which falls into this trap is certain to reap evil consequences.

True righteousness moves hand in hand with humility. Vainglory is the mantle of the fool.

Those who truly believe in the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence must constantly be revolved by the spectacle which hypocrisy and self-righteousness provide for us in our bi-annual election campaigns. Those who seek public office, by the very nature of the mechanism they wish to dominate, must practice self-adoration before the multitudes. It is shocking to see a man of dignity and sense strutting and belittling before his fellows, filled with self-praise of whatever wisdom he has shown or believes he can show.

But one of the most pertinent notations any of us could make would be this. Let those of us who believe in the Golden Rule and in the great principles embodied in the Decalogue, take no credit nor glory for our benefits. Although such a belief, in itself, could well be called righteous, any self-adulation induced thereby must be a canker in the mouth of those who cannot share our convictions.

All men are human, and subject to the ills and errors of humanity. Not one of us is infallible, even though the principles we espouse well may be.

Thus, if we who call ourselves libertarians, are to achieve to that point of purity in our thought indicated by the principles we support, we must do so with humility and grace, removing our human personalities from the equation to the fullest extent possible.

It is not enough to practice what we teach. We must also recognize the futility of seeking to attain perfection in this imperfect world. We should guide ourselves by seeking to follow our principles, not claiming for ourselves the penultimate of such achievement. Our efforts should be bent toward encouraging others to embrace these principles for themselves, and not toward using us as the infallible example of righteousness.

In the war of ideas in which we are incontrovertibly joined, our effort must be aimed at destroying evil ideas, not at destroying the persons who hold to those ideas. Inevitably, great risks accrue in such a war. For men who love evil and clutch evil to their bosoms will not willingly part with their evil, if they believe their evil to be profitable to them.

To the degree that we can separate our personalities from our principles in our arguments will we be successful in separating evil from others. If we confuse our own limited and less-than-perfect actions with our principles, we must inevitably confuse evil with the men who hold to evil.
The pathway to righteousness is never easy.

Differing Freedoms

When Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt addressed the Democratic convention in Chicago she stated that it was her late husband's administration which had discovered that it is the duty of the state to provide for the nation's needs. By providing for these unfortunates we will keep them free and remain free ourselves; there will be no danger of our being enslaved by communism, she said.

What she failed to reveal to her listeners was the difference in our freedom and the enslavement in communist countries.

We all know who has provided the money for our government's welfare projects and we know how willingly we gave it up. If in the process of being forced to be generous we have remained free, then the definition of freedom has changed considerably since the nation was founded.

Now, why can we remain free while our government takes from those who have in order to give to those who have not, according to good Marxist practice, and citizens of communist countries subjected to the state treatment remain slaves; it is hard to understand.

But, Mrs. R. would say, we have many freedoms denied by communists in other parts of the world. This is only one small similarity.

Just one small similarity, just a faint track through the meadow — but let enough footsteps take that some direction and a road will be beaten through the meadow so deep that years will not erase it.

Let us turn those faint footsteps back now, even while they are still hard to see. Let us look for and find that trail to freedom marked for us by our founding fathers long ago.

Government Schools Corrupt Both Teacher And Pupil

The reason I am opposed to government schools is because I believe government schools first corrupt the teacher and then, naturally, corrupt the pupil.
Now why do I think the teacher is corrupted?

In the first place, he violates the First Commandment, "You shall have no other gods before me." He disobeys this commandment by getting permission from the state to get his salary and power on an involuntary basis, while God so forbids according to the Decalogue.
In the second place, he is corrupted because "Whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that humbles himself shall be exalted."
How? He has been taught and has come to believe that he has been set apart and above other men. He does not object to being called Master, Rabbi, Doctor, Teacher as Jesus warned. He thinks with his certificate he now does not need to answer questions by men without state certificates to see if his acts are in harmony with the Golden Rule and the Decalogue. He is so well satisfied with his exalted position that he seems to believe he is through learning more about justice and moral order.

Appendages
He has been granted by the state privileges that the state should not have the power or right to grant. He thus is corrupted by the state before he is permitted to teach. He has been granted the right to choose for others. Rights that God has given only to the individual. Rights to choose how others should be trained or educated. When a man cannot choose how and by whom his children are to be educated, then that man becomes an appendage to those who have the power. In most states in the United States the age limit of monopoly in professional education is 16 years for the youth. In Russia it is 18 years.

The teacher is thus put above others by these man-made laws that are incompatible with God's laws.

The teacher has been so corrupted that he believes he has the right to have his agents use aggressive force to make his appendages pay for what they do not want or use. His subjects of appendages are obliged to get what they want without initiating force.

Thus we establish a master-servant status. Then man ceases to be master of his fate; he then is not the captain of his soul; then others are master of his fate and the fate of his children.

His corruption is a result of what Lord Acton said, namely, "All (political) power tends to corrupt. Absolute (political) power corrupts absolutely." And he has the political power of the state to force people to pay for his services though they do not want to use them. He is largely a product of emotion and environment rather than of reason.

Pope explained why he is corrupted. Remember he said, "Vice is a monster of so frightful mien as to be hated needs but to be seen. Yet seen too oft, familiar with her face, we first endure, then pity, then embrace."
The teacher has been told so often that the state can educate that he actually believes it can educate. He is like the men for thousands of years who believed in slavery. It was so generally practiced that most people believed in it. In this country only discarded it 90 years ago.

He has seen so much of government schools that he does not hate to see government schools — aggressive force. And he is long past the stage of enduring this aggressive force — this vice. Now he is embracing and contending that he has an exclusive property right to educate the youth of the land.

But he dare not even try to get the youth of the land to be trustworthy; to believe in individual duty and responsibility; to believe that a man should attempt to reap only what he sows; to believe in a definite limited government; to believe "thou shalt not covet." He dare not attempt to emphasize and promote these forms of integrity because he is violating all these forms of righteousness, and he would be uncomfortable and embarrassed if he even discussed these virtues.

He is corrupted if Jewish and Christian ethics are to be used as the standard of life that is not corrupted.

And what makes the problem so serious is that most teachers in schools are so corrupted that they do not even know they are corrupted and are corrupting their pupils.

In the next issue I want to explain how the corrupted teacher corrupts the pupils.

A woman inquired of a Negro porter the time of the train to Chicago. She then went to a white man and asked him.
The porter went to the white man afterwards and said, with a smile, "Perhaps she will believe it, now she has got it black and white."

Mac Is Closing In On Vienna

MELK, Austria — As you can see by the date line, I am closing in on Vienna. First Salzburg, then Bad Ischl, and now Melk.

This is no guarantee, however, that I will reach the city of the waltz and the Danube, because I am travelling by automobile. In Austria the best outfit for motoring is a respectable blue suit, a lily, and a typewritten epitaph.

This is not to say that the Austrians are the worst automobile drivers in the world. That honor belongs to the Portuguese, and has for a long time. You are never safe in Portugal, even if you are in a hotel on the fifth floor back. More than one Lisbon visitor has been hit while shaving in just such a room.

But the Portuguese had better not rest on their recklessly-worn laurels. The Austrians are out to oust them from first place, and after driving from Salzburg I am inclined to think their mad efforts will be crowned with success.

In a way, it would be a shame if the Austrians didn't achieve the distinction of being the world's worst drivers — they try so hard to be! It isn't easy to keep up a steady 75 miles per hour on narrow, winding roads, the sides of which are cluttered with pedestrians, bicyclists, motorcyclists, and farm wagons.

This calls for a lot of derring-do, and so does skidding around curves which are banked the wrong way, passing blind on every hill, and barreling through towns without a sign of a slow down. But the Austrians has what it takes to do this, and has enough left over to meet the challenge of rain, fog and hog-backed roads with an extra burst of speed.

Austrians drive much faster than Germans do, which is saying a lot. This feat is all the more admirable when one remembers that the Germans have magnificent Autobahns to whizz along on, while the Austrians have none. An Austrian Autobahn system was laid out by Hitler — he even had his engineers put in the supports for all the bridges — but nothing has been done about it since Hitler got too busy to worry about road-building.

Austrian roads are pretty bad. They look as if the Government had bought German detours and laid them down.

For the first 30 or 40 miles of this drive from Salzburg I enjoyed the scenery, which must be as lovely as any in the world. But when my hair began to turn gray, and my heart to jump a foot in the air from one narrow escape after another, I quit looking, and took up a cowering stance on the floor of the back seat.

Not once, but a dozen times, passing cars have nicked us, and not one has gone by us with a clearance of more than an inch. No matter how far you pull over on your side of the road, an Austrian will pursue you until you'd swear there was no hope.

The law of averages is working hard against us, and all of us in the car feel the way a crap-shooter does after five straight passes.

Oddly enough, Austrians consider themselves excellent drivers. A bit on the careful side, perhaps, but good all-around men behind the wheel. After every one of our narrow escapes, even when we had

C. After all, Washington is so used to raising ceilings — particularly debt ceilings — that a little thing like lifting a barn roof is just nothing at all — just nothing at all.

AFL-CIO Back Demos After Anguished Debate

WASHINGTON — Although the AFL-CIO organization has endorsed the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket after anguished debate and a relatively close vote among the bosses, labor leaders concede that President Eisenhower will get the greatest union vote ever given to a Republican candidate for the Presidency. They give him at least 40 per cent, possibly 50, of the workingmen's and their families' ballot. He carried almost every large industrial center in 1952.

The labor leaders who opposed any political commitment, realizing that they must maintain friendly relations with both parties at Capitol Hill and at the White House, control almost half of the full AFL-CIO membership. They represent the most well-knit, disciplined and wealthy organizations. Their willingness to go on record against the Democratic nominees marks a distinct Republican gain.

The fact is that there is no great enthusiasm among the rank and file for the Chicago lawyer and the Senator from Tennessee. Neither man packs the appeal which Franklin D. Roosevelt or Harry S. Truman made, with their strident clamor for union allegiance.

Oilers Lose 5-4; Play Home Tonite

EL PASO, Tex. Sept. 9 — A pinch hit single with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning by Rufus McNeal scored Texan outfielder Bill Sinton to give the El Paso Texans a 5-4 win over the Pampa Oilers and a 2-0 lead in their Southwestern League semi-final playoffs.

The two teams travelled all night to move into Pampa today to continue their series tonight at Miller Field, game time 7:30. Newlin, who pitched for the Oilers last night, is scheduled to hurl for the Oilers tonight.

The Texans scored their winning run with two outs in the bottom of the ninth. McNeal, batting for pitcher Mike Gazella, laced relief pitcher Hank Paszkiewicz, filling in for the injured Bob Cross, with a single to center field. Paszkiewicz, filling in for the injured Bob Cross, with two hits and looked real sharp in the field. All of the Oilers played as if this game had to be won or their fine playing manager A. B. Cross, listening to the game from his bedside in the El Paso hospital. But, as the old saying goes, when the ball is bouncing and it bounces bad, and that was the case last night.

El Paso got two runs back in the fourth inning and tied the score in the fifth. Then the Texans went ahead in their half of the fifth as they got a run.

Pampa got back into the ball game in the ninth when catcher Jim Martin poked a base hit with the down. After Bob Flores fled out, Frankie Kempa lined a single to left. Martin with a full head of steam, didn't stop at second and dug for third. The throw from Sinton was cut off by third baseman Hank Baylis, who saw that Martin had third made easily. He threw to second trying to cut the diving Kempa down, who had moved towards the keystone sack when Martin kept on moving. Baylis' throw sailed over the head of second baseman Hunter and Martin didn't stop until he hit the dugout steps. Bogan, who had come in to relieve starter Art Perina, aimed to end the inning.

El Paso opened the end of the ninth with Sinton blasting a "pitch or fight" field for a hit. Centerfielder Ervin Ford attempted to sacrifice, Bogan handled the chance, however, his throw to Paszkiewicz overflew and high and both runners were safe. With that accomplished, Grover Seitz came running out of the Pampa dugout and gave Bogan the bad news — that he was being derricked in favor of Hoyt Benedict. The next two batters, Osorio and Warren, were quickly disposed of by Benedict, who made it two out and the pitcher scheduled to hit. Gazella didn't hit and McLean did and that was the all game.

A collection was taken up during the game for Pampa manager Alvin Cross who suffered a broken leg in the first game of the playoffs at El Paso on Friday. No official count of the donations was taken, but collectors said it appeared that several hundred dollars was given to Cross, who is still in the El Paso hospital. Apparently, surgery on Cross' leg is scheduled Wednesday.

Miss Fry Women's Tennis Champion

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE
By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UP)—Pretty Shirley Fry stood at the top of the women's tennis world today because, as a champion must, she refused to give up on herself.

It took a bit of soul-searching for the newly-crowned U.S. tennis champion. Because, after 20 years of failure, she was about ready to quit just a year ago.

But Shirley discovered that the game she thought she disliked was a vital part of her life. Swiftly she missed it. And, bolstered by her new philosophy, she quickly swept to the heights.

The brown-haired Shirley was raised to play tennis. At the age of eight, she had a racket placed in her hand by her father back in her native Akron, Ohio. When she showed an almost instant talent for the game, her father engaged teachers and insisted on her practicing just as some parents plant their reluctant children in front of pianos or stick violins under unwilling little chins.

Always Missed Big Ones
Shirley began to fulfill her promise when at 14 she became the youngest starter in the U. S. Nationals. At 17 and 18 she won the National girls' championship. But although she swept on upward and became one of the top ranking players, never could she win one of the big ones.

She came just about as close as anyone could in 1951. That year she went to the finals both at Wimbledon and in the U.S. championships at Forest Hills. Both times she was beaten.

Last year she decided she "had it." Obtaining a job as a copy girl on a St. Petersburg, Fla., newspaper, she was prepared to lay aside her racket. But the ranking committee had seeded her number two in the nation and Shirley was stung by criticism based on the fact that she had been knocked out in the quarter finals of the Nationals. Also, she was beginning to miss the game already.

So, never really having been away, she started her "comeback."

Victories Rolled In
This was a new game she was playing now, one she really enjoyed. And the victories which had eluded her for 21 years started rolling in. She won the Dixie, Florida West Coast, Hollywood, Southern Florida, Puerto Rico, Colombia, Panama, Jamaica, Montego Bay and Northern England.

Then it was Wimbledon, with Althea Gibson rated as the new "spoiler" of a tremendous string of foreign victories. But Shirley beat Althea and cabled her Dad back home.

Next she won at Dusseldorf, came home to cop the U. S. clay court where she beat Althea again, and prepped for the Nationals by winning the Essex grass court.

And Sunday at Forest Hills all those childhood dreams finally came true as Shirley, playing as steady as a rock, defeated Althea in the finals, 6-3, 6-4, to cap a truly great year. It was her 16th trip to the Nationals — and at 29 she finally hit the top because she refused to give up on herself.

No Grand Slam For Hoad; Rosewall Wins National

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UP)—The world's best tennis player is either little Ken Rosewall or slugging Lew Hoad but as far as America's Davis Cup hopes are concerned what's the difference?

They're both Australians and, as Rosewall said after whipping Hoad in four sets Sunday for the 76th U.S. championship:
"It looks like we're at least a bit better than 50-50 to keep the cup, doesn't it?"

That's the understatement of the year from the under-sized Kenny, a five-foot, seven-inch 140-pounder who outrifed Hoad and thumped his countryman's bid for a grand slam of the Australian, French, Wimbledon and U.S. crowns, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Bums Beat Giants; Braves Win Pair

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer
The front-running Milwaukee Braves had the good pleasure today of counting the Cincinnati Redlegs as allies in their struggle to beat back the challenge of the world champion Brooklyn Dodgers.

This curious turn of events in the National League race resulted when the Braves beat the Chicago Cubs, 7-4, and 5-3, Sunday to go one game ahead of the Dodgers and three in front of the Redlegs. The Dodgers whipped the New York Giants, 6-1, while the Cardinals downed the Redlegs, 6-5, in 13 innings.

The Braves now look to a two-game series with the Dodgers Tuesday night and Wednesday afternoon at Ebbets Field where they've split eight games. In addition, they can reason that the Redlegs, who visit Ebbets Field next Sunday and Monday, will help the Braves more than themselves if they beat the Dodgers. The Redlegs, 5-3 at Ebbets Field, are the only team in the league with an edge in Brooklyn.

The Braves, 38-26 on the road this season, snatched a five-game losing streak when they overcame a four-run deficit in Sunday's opener and then beat the Cubs for the 11th time in 19 meetings in the nightcap.

Aaron Leads Attack
Hank Aaron shed out four innings to lead the Braves' 12-hit attack in the first game and also contributed a run-scoring single in the seventh inning of the second game. Shortstop Felix Mantilla had singled home Chuck Tanner to snap a 1-1 tie earlier in the frame. Gene Conley received credit for his eighth victory.

Don Drysdale, 26-year old rookie right-hander, pitched a three-hitter and hit his first big league homer to spark the Dodgers. Drysdale yielded a first-inning homer to Willie Mays but then checked the Giants easily the rest of the way.

Oklahoma's Need: More Opposition

(Second of a series.)
By DON FAURTO
Head Coach, Missouri

COLUMBIA, MO. — (NEA) — Honestly, the Oklahoma Sooners need to have one of those "dream" teams this year and should be unstoppable. Yet, when things look that good you can't help feeling that some other club might sneak up on them.

Out of their first three backfields, the Sooners lost only Bob Burris, the right halfback. They still have the veterans Jimmy Harris at quarterback and Bill Pricer at fullback, along with halfbacks Tommy McDonald and Clendon Thomas, who should be two of the finest running backs in the nation. Jerry Tubbs is popularly thought of as an All-American center.

It's difficult to define Colorado and Iowa State, Colorado, I understand, will be more of a T-formation team this year, and the Buffaloes have a fine pass catcher in end Frank Clark. Tackle Dick Stapp is also top flight. A return to form of fullback John Beyuk will mean much to their running attack.

Iowa State is still shaking up its material looking for a winning combination, with help coming from halfback Fred Rippl, whose service was curtailed in 1955 by a broken leg.

Here at Missouri we have a good group of holdover lettermen, 20, and draw from a fine, undefeated freshman team. Two 190-pound sophomores, Hank Kuhlmann and Charley James, figure to start at halfback for us, joining quarterback Jimmy Hunter and fullback Gene Ross.

If we can get a ten-game performance out of Hunter this year, we should have a decent season. In the line, guard Jim Martin, tackle Frank Caspia and sophomore Don Chadwick provide the nucleus of a fine defense.

We have a good opportunity this fall to redeem last year's dismal showing.

Oilers Open Wheeler Has 14 Vets Face Tigs Friday

By BARRY A. LITTMANN
Pampa News Sports Editor
This is it! Tonight may just about tell the story on the Oilers this season. And don't think that they won't be going with all barrels fully loaded. Ernie Bartolomei, fresh from a two day vacation, will twist tonight for the Seitz-men. The lean lefty is just about the best the Oilers have, not only in pitching, but at bat too. El Paso will try and make it three in a row as they send Hal Anderson to the hill to go against Bartolomei.

Last night, the Oilers lost a real heart-breaker 5-4. The winning run came after reliever Hoyt Benedict had disposed of two outs via harmless sky outs. Tonight, however, it will be a little different story. Playing before the home fans should give the Oilers a lot of the confidence that possibly they didn't have down El Paso way.

Unless acting manager Grover Seitz makes a last minute change in the lineup, it should be the same as it was last night. Len Tucker, unofficial batting champ this year with a .465 mark, clubbed a big three-run homer last night, and the return to the friendly confines of Oiler Park should give this fellow an added incentive.

But when you boil all the words down, these fellows, who have represented "Our Town" so well all year long, have another big reason for showing well before the home folks tonight: A game little guy who has played some fine shortstop for the Oilers this year, and has been a pretty capable hand on the baseball diamond for the past few years. We mean, of course, A. B. Cross, who was injured so severely last Friday night in El Paso. He'll be listening to the game no doubt tonight, and one wouldn't take odds that an Oiler win wouldn't help spur this game guy on.

Wrestlers Go Tonight

Two fine preliminaries and a great feature head the wrestling card tonight at the Sportman Club. Rough Ray Clements wrestles just as rough and tough Tommy Phelps in a one fall or twenty minute match. The semi-final match pits Sonny Meyers, a great favorite here, against Ricki Starr.

Closing the evening, which begins at 8:30, a tag match between the team of Ray Clements and Dizzy Davis and the team of Shoulders Newman and Tommy Phelps.

Don Burns Becomes Member Of Davis Electric Company

INSPECTING STARTER BOX — Don Burns (left) and Bob Burns inspect an electric starter box they have repaired at Davis Electric Co., 119 W. Foster, 4-6211. Bob, your electrician in Pampa for almost 30 years, and Mrs. Burns have taken their son, Don, into the company. Don, a graduate of Coyne Electrical School, Chicago, Ill., has had several years' experience as an electrician. Since 1927 Davis Electric Co. has established an enviable reputation for dependable electric installations and repairs. To check and repair your home wiring, small appliances, electric motors, call Bob or Don Burns at Davis Electric.

There is a new member of the Davis Electric Co. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Burns, owners and operators, have brought in Don Burns, their son.

Don, a graduate of Coyne Electrical School, Chicago, Ill., has several years' experience as an electrician. He and his wife, the former Novella Stockton of Pampa, live with their daughter, 1 year old, at 811 Doucette.

Business men! Davis Electric can save you money on all your light bulbs! Don't be misled by a so-called guarantee on fluorescent tubes. The average life of any fluorescent tube is 7,500 hours. Call Davis Electric and let them show you how you can save money by buying in case lots.

At Davis Electric, 119 W. Foster, you will find complete stocks of bulbs, and fluorescent tubes in all sizes, kinds, and colors. Davis has been serving this area since 1927. He knows the electrical code and the wiring you need for best operation of all your appliances. He can help you plan for the appliances you will add to your home tomorrow.

You don't have to be an expert to tell whether your home is inadequately wired. Check these signs: Lights flickering or dimming when appliances are turned on, appliances which heat slowly or do not function as well as they should, fuses blowing too frequently, TV pictures which shrink when other appliances go into action.

It is quite possible that your house has outgrown its wiring. A house built 15 years ago was wired for the comparatively simple electrical job it was supposed to do in those days. Today that 15-year-old house probably contains many appliances for which it was not wired, and probably has the symptoms of inadequate wiring.

At Davis they have a wide selection of electrical fixtures for best home and office lighting and to harmonize in every home and office.

Call Bob Burns at 4-6211, or stop in at Davis Electric, 119 W. Foster. Make sure you enjoy complete, modern electrical wiring.

48th Year
Ike Opens Busy Week

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today opened a busy week dominated by politics and the Suez crisis.

The President has maintained continuing contact with developments in the struggle over the canal. He sent Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to London to take part in top-level Anglo-French talks immediately after Egypt seized the canal and has conferred with him repeatedly on action taken since then.

Mr. Eisenhower certainly faces questioning on the Suez crisis Tuesday at his weekly news conference.

To Hold Rally
He moved the conference up a day from its usual time because of the official opening Wednesday of his campaign for reelection at Gettysburg, Pa., farm.

The President will hold a rally at the farm for nearly 500 Republican leaders from throughout the nation.

Mr. Eisenhower flew to University Park, Pa., Sunday to take part in the dedication of a new chapel in memory of his late sister.

Sault Sainte Marie is French for "St. Mary's Leap."

SHADES OF ORVILLE AND WILBUR—The novel craft, above, is actually a new concept in light aircraft. The English-designed plane, called the M. L. Light Aircraft Mark I, is expected to solve the expensive problem of storing and operating planes. The wing, which is an inflated fabric envelope, can be deflated after flight, rolled up into a bag and packed into the body of the craft. The body is then towed by car and stored in the family garage. The plane can take off within 70 yards, cruises at 58 mph and has a maximum speed of 68 mph.

Maine Watched For Political Trend

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Party managers watched Maine election today for signs of a 1958 political trend.

Maine's state constitution provides for election of state officials and members of Congress on the first Monday in September. It will call its vote for president, however, on Nov. 6 along with the other 47 states, which also elect members of Congress on that date.

As far as its congressional delegation is concerned, Maine finished the job before a number of states held their early primaries to nominate House and Senate candidates. Those states will have primaries Tuesday and Wednesday.

The old adage, "as Maine goes so goes the nation," has long since been discarded because that state has not voted Democratic in a presidential election since 1912.

Democratic presidential candidates, meanwhile, have won national elections.

To Vote Any Change
But Republicans and Democrats will watch the balloting for the three Maine congressional seats and state officers to see if their percentage of the vote shows any significant change which may be expected to carry through to the rest of the country.

Even the procedures give no completely trustworthy sign of what to expect in November. In 1952, the GOP polled 63.1 per cent of the congressional vote in Maine in September against 37 per cent in the presidential contest two months later.

In 1952, the Republican vote for Maine House members was 67.1 per cent of the two-party total while President Eisenhower polled 58 per cent of the Maine vote in the presidential election.

States holding primaries this week include Arizona, Colorado, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Utah, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin and Georgia.

All of these states nominate candidates for the House and all but Minnesota nominate candidates for the Senate.

Wiley vs Davis
The Wisconsin GOP primary pits Sen. Alexander Wiley, who is fighting for a chance at a fourth year term, against Rep. Glenn Davis, who has the endorsement

'Shoe' Leads Hartack

MAYS LANDING, N.J. (UP)—Willie Shoemaker, who had two winners at Atlantic City Friday held a two victory lead over Willie Hartack today in their race for national riding honors. Shoemaker now has 278 victories. Hartack, in Cleveland to ride in the Buckeye Handicap at Randall Park, had one winner Friday.

Jacoby On Bridge

There seem to be 12 tricks for the taking in today's hand: four spades, four diamonds, two hearts, and two clubs. The trouble is that South can't reach both of dummy's tricks. He must either overtake the jack of spades or the king of clubs to reach the dummy, and either play costs a trick.

Strange as it seems, South's best play for 12 tricks is to overtake both of these cards.

South wins the first diamond, overtakes the king of clubs with dummy's ace, and leads the jack of clubs. East might cause trouble by refusing the trick, but South would still make the slam by careful play. Assume that East takes the queen of clubs and returns a diamond.

Declarer runs the diamonds, discarding a heart from dummy. He next cashes the ace and queen of spades, after which he overtakes the jack of spades, with dummy's king. He would be safe now if the spades were 3-3, since dummy's last spade would be good.

When the spades fall to drop, South cashes dummy's ten of clubs, hoping that the nine of clubs will fall. Once more South is disappointed, but not for long. The ten of clubs squeezes West.

West has already discarded one heart on the fourth diamond. If West discards another heart, South makes the last three tricks in his own hand. If West, instead, discards his last spade, dummy's lowly five of spades becomes good. Either way, South gets his all-important 12th trick.
