

Strong Constitution Saves Accident Victim

SALT LAKE CITY (UP)—A 15-year-old girl who lay semi-conscious for nine days without food or water in the concealed wreckage of an automobile today began a slow recovery from her ordeal.

Doctors said only her "remarkable constitution" and several other factors enabled Jean Margels to survive the auto wreck that killed her fiancé. She still was in a semi-coma today but doctors said they believed she would recover.

The 110-pound Sunnyvale, Calif., girl was found Tuesday night beneath the fender of a wrecked car only 300 feet from busy U.S. Highway 40. The car could not be seen from the highway because of dense scrub oak at the bottom of the canyon where the auto lay.

Only five yards from the girl was the body of James B. Hixon, 2, of Salt Lake City. The couple had planned to marry in September and the search which finally found them got off to a slow start because it first was thought they had eloped.

Doctors planned to x-ray the girl today because of indications she had received a frontal skull fracture. But she suffered no internal injuries or broken bones, they said and her circulation appeared to be good.

Mrs. Lawrence R. Margeis, the girl's mother, said her five-foot, four-inch daughter had always been athletic and "the stamina she built this way must have saved her."

Doctors said the girl's "remarkable constitution" and her good physical condition apparently saved her life. They said contributing factors included the fact that she was in the shade and that she lay still.

The accident apparently happened the night of June 24 when the young couple was returning from a fishing trip. Jean's family had lived in Utah until moving to California two years ago and the girl returned here three weeks ago to attend a church wedding and prepare for her festival in the fall at the Latter-Day Saints Church Temple in Salt Lake City.

Billion Plus School Bill Threatened By Southern Filibuster

WASHINGTON (UP)—The $1.5 billion school construction bill will probably be called up for further action in the House today although supporters fear it may not be.

Even if the House should approve the measure with an anti-segregation amendment in it, supporters held little hope it would ever pass the Senate because of a threatened Southern filibuster.

Rep. Cleveland M. Bailey (D-W.Va.), a strong advocate of the bill, said tentative adoption of the amendment by the House Tuesday spelled death for the bill in the Senate.

Bailey also raised the possibility that the bill might not be called up today. He pointed out that Chairman Graham Barden (D-NC) of the House Education Committee could kill the bill for this year by simply failing to call it up.

It was likely, however, that a demand would be made for a roll call vote on the amendment. And Barden indicated Wednesday night he would call the legislation up for final House action.

Air Power: Leverett Saltonstall (Mass), senior Republican on the Armed Services Committee, took issue with Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) that further hearings must be held on the nation's air power because of "direct conflicts" in testimony between Defense Department officials. Saltonstall said the subcommittee investigating air power has "very full testimony" and that further hearings are unnecessary.

Housing: Rep. Jesse P. Wolcott (R-Mich), top Republican on the House Banking Committee, said Republicans will stand firm behind their drive to block a Democratic bill to boost public housing construction. House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Mass) said the GOP will have

According to the investigating officer Monday put the car back on the road and drove about two-tenths of a mile south before being stopped by the extensive damage to the car.

'He Kept Saying He Was Going To Kill Me'

EDITORS NOTE: Following is a first-person account by 25-year-old Katherine Hudgins of her 28-hour ordeal in the woods with a kidnaper who critically wounded her parents.

By KATHERINE HUDGINS

As Told to United Press

SHAWNEE, Okla. (UP)—I had gone to bed. It was between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning. I woke up and heard mother screaming. I ran into the next bedroom and Red (Moutaw) was beating mother and father with a lug wrench.

I grabbed the lug wrench and cried, "Red, don't hit them."

He grabbed me around the neck with one hand and choked me with the other. He dragged me out into the yard. He dragged me two more blocks to where his car was parked. Then he took me to Brooksville (about 10 miles southwest of Shawnee and five miles southwest of Mrs. Hudgins' home at Tecumseh.)

We went south and west out on a country road and stayed about three hours until daylight. He made me sleep with him. There was nothing I could do.

He said, "I told you I was going to get you. I'm going to kill you and then kill myself."

He kept saying over and over he was going to kill me.

He took me to Brooksville to try to get some whisky. He couldn't get any. Then he bought some groceries at a country store (at McComb) and drove down to this bushy place. Later he went into Red (Moutaw) and one of Red's friends told him the law was looking for him. So we went back to the same spot and waited until the law came.

I was sure glad to see the sheriff.

Here's Look At Future Headlines

By CHARLES M. MCCANN

around the world look ahead at the news that will make the headlines.

Second Term
The guessing at Gettysburg is that President Eisenhower will make no statement on running for a second term until he returns to the White House from his farm about July 19. This would give him time to test himself physically and make up his mind whether to change his February 29 decision to run. The President said at that time that he would report any change of mind to the people. His recent illness makes a new statement, to run or not to run, essential. The statement, like the previous one, could best be made from the White House.

Middle Huddle
Watch for reports that Nikita S. Khrushchev has summoned leaders of the Communist satellite countries to a secret meeting on the Stalin debunking situation. Satellite governments are jittery over the way things are getting out of hand. There are signs that anti-Red riots in Czechoslovakia and East Germany may follow those in Poland. Khrushchev started the debunking. It's up to him now to talk his way out of the middle he made and suggest how to get things under control. If he calls the meeting, it probably will be held in a satellite capital, not in Moscow.

The Popular Mrs. Miller
Mrs. Arthur Miller — Marilyn Monroe — hasn't seen anything yet. London reports that she will walk into a riotous welcome when she arrives in Britain in mid-month to make a film with Sir Laurence Olivier. The supposedly reserved British male thinks a Monroe is terrific. It will be no surprise in London if the men stage a bobby-soxer type of riot in her honor.

Polio Outlook
Look for an important report from the Public Health Service (possibly late today) on the polio vaccination program. It will disclose a new vaccine production record for May — about 17 million shots — and predict a rosy supply outlook for the rest of the year.

Atoms For Peace
Washington insiders expect congressional leaders to schedule action before adjournment on the $400 million program for government-owned atom power plants. Supporters believe chances for passage are good, despite administration opposition, on the ground that development of atomic power for peaceful purposes must be speeded up.

Sports Outlook
There's likely to be a change in the method of selecting squads for the annual major league All-Star baseball game. Reason: This year, when the fans picked the starting players—except for pitchers—for the game to be played in Washington July 10, the ballot boxes were stuffed. Out of 172,266 votes which Tony Temple of the Redlegs received for second base, 111,368 came from one Cincinnati radio station. Such officials as President William Harridge of the American League, Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs and young Chuck Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox prefer the old method, under which league managers selected their squads. But Commissioner Ford Frick would still like to see some sort of fan participation.

The bidding of today's hand was a bit peculiar. North knew that he wanted to get to game, but he didn't know which contract to aim for. When North marked time with a cue-bid of four hearts, South tried the four-card spade suit in the hope that he would strike four-card support in the North hand. As it happened, North had only three-card support for spades, but he couldn't be sure that four no-trump, five diamonds, or five clubs would be better. He therefore passed four spades and hoped for the best. Since Harry Fishbein was playing the South hand, the best was good indeed.

West opened the singleton diamonds and returned the suit, allowing West to ruff with the ten of spades. West next shifted to the king of hearts, and dummy won with the ace. Fishbein ruffed a low heart and led the queen of clubs for a finesse. East had to follow suit with the seven of clubs, whereupon Fishbein realized exactly what the club situation was.

Fishbein continued with the jack of clubs, and West played low again. This play picked up the ten of clubs from East. Declare next led a trump to dummy, capturing West's jack. By this time the whole hand might just as well have been put on the table face up.

Fishbein ruffed dummy's last heart, cashed two high diamonds, and led the ace of clubs. By this time East was reduced to three trumps. He had to ruff the ace of clubs and return a trump up to dummy's ace-nine, thus giving declarer his ninth and tenth tricks.

Dozen States Hold Key To Adlai's Bid

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Democratic national convention delegates from about a dozen states hold the key to whether Adlai E. Stevenson can try to win the presidential nomination on the second ballot.

Some of these states are known reservoirs of Stevenson strength, but the course to be followed by others is still uncertain. Perhaps the biggest enigma is Texas' 56-vote delegation, which—if thrown to Stevenson at a critical time—could start a stampede.

Some Stevenson supporters are talking of trying for a first ballot victory, but the prevailing view is that the big push will come on the second or third ballots.

Texas Pledged To Johnson

Texas is pledged to vote for Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, a favorite-son candidate, as long as his name is before the convention. Five other states have "favorite son" candidates and with Texas they will cast a total of 248 votes of the 3,372 at the convention.

Stevenson forces are confident of picking up a substantial majority on the second ballot from the delegations of two of these states. They are Massachusetts, which expects to give 40 first ballot votes to House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack, and New Mexico, which plans its first ballot votes for Sen. Clinton P. Anderson. Second in importance to Texas is the 54-vote Ohio delegation pledged to Gov. Frank J. Lausche. The word from Ohio is that a majority of these delegates want to jump to Stevenson as soon as they have fulfilled their favorite-son obligations to Lausche.

Symington A Dark Horse

Other favorite son states are Michigan, with 44 votes committed to Gov. G. Mennen Williams; and Missouri, with 38 for Sen. Stuart Symington, who may become a major dark horse contender if the Stevenson campaign collapses. In Kentucky, which has 32 convention votes, Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler hopes to be a favorite son candidate.

A United Press tabulation of first ballot strength for the three active Democratic candidates now gives Stevenson 368½ votes, Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee 163 and Gov. Averell Harriman of New York 137.

However, the Stevenson organization now claims 502 of the 686½ needed to nominate and Harriman's managers claim 190.

While the Stevenson claim was not in the form of a state-by-state breakdown, it was said to exclude some fairly sure Stevenson strengths. For example, it did not include New Jersey, where Stevenson now appears to have a majority of the 36-vote delegation for an early ballot, possibly the first.

More To Be Heard Of Solon's Charge On Ike

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Considerably more is to be heard of Sen. A. Willis Robertson's accusation that President Eisenhower is playing politics with the federal judiciary in connection with race relations.

Robertson charged that Mr. Eisenhower named a prominent Jewish lawyer to the federal bench in the South to obtain pressure group votes in northern states.

The lawyer is Simon E. Sobeloff, presently solicitor general of the United States and before that, chief judge of the Maryland Court of Appeals. Mr. Eisenhower nominated him to be judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit made up of five states: Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Sobeloff Integration Supporter

Robertson is a Virginia Democrat. He told the Senate Judiciary Committee last week that three of the five states comprising the Fourth Circuit did not want Sobeloff on their bench. There was no challenge to his legal ability nor any personal objection to Sobeloff.

Robertson argued only that Sobeloff was an enthusiastic supporter of the Supreme Court's ruling on racial integration, that he had said any state should be able in 90 days to come up with a program for effecting integration in its schools.

"I must object," Robertson told the committee, "to his being given the responsibility of deciding in the years ahead numerous cases of vital concern to these people (in Virginia and the Carolinas) who lack confidence in him and whose faith in public justice would be shaken by his presence on the bench.

"They object, first or all, because of the circumstances of his selection, which they feel was politically motivated. They recognize his as the choice, primarily, of an official who not only is the legal adviser to the President but also is the chief architect of his party's plans to win this year's elections and that he is backed by political pressure groups which claim control of enough votes to swing the balance of power in the Fourth Judicial Circuit."

Robertson was referring to Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. as the legal adviser and political

Reds Try To Use Fund For Republic To Further Cause

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—American Communists are trying to use the latest report of the Fund for the Republic to make the United States a little safer for fellow travelers.

The fund has just reported on a moving picture and television blacklist of show people who are believed to be Communists or Communist sympathizers.

"The Worker," a Communist Sunday newspaper published in New York, says in its current issue that the TV and movie industries are "hag-ridden" by fear, and continues:

"The 600-page fund report reveals that from Hollywood to Madison Avenue the smog of suspicion penetrates to all corners of the offices and stages of the movie and radio world."

Curtain Rose In '48

However that may be, the Communist pleaders in behalf of fellow travelers and party members avoid any factual reference about how all of this came about. The curtain rose in October, 1947, when the House Committee on Un-American Activities began an inquiry into the infiltration of the moving picture industry by Communists.

Producers Jack L. Warner, Sam Wood and Louis B. Mayer testified to the presence and activity in the industry of Communists, fellow travelers or un-American persons. Actor Adolph Menjou supported their testimony in general.

John Charles Moffitt, Esquire film critic, testified that 44 of 100 plays produced on Broadway during 1936-44 used "material to further the Communist Party line."

The late Rupert Hughes named John Howard Lawson as the man who was trying to convert the Screen Writers Guild into "an instrument of Communist power."

"The Hollywood Ten"

From this beginning came the investigation of a parcel of movie people who came to be known as "the Hollywood ten." Lawson was No. 1 in all respects with a party line and Communist front record as long as your arm. Moffitt told the committee Lawson had been sent to Hollywood years before by the Communist Party to organize the movies.

The committee had spotted Lawson back there in 1944, and in a report on revolutionary theater operations, it had said this about Communist penetration:

"The first manifestation, the Workers Drama League, was founded in 1926 in New York. Among its chief sponsors were Michael Gold, Daily Worker columnist, and John Howard Lawson, All-Star game player, whose opinions have been frankly proclaimed as follows:

"As for myself, I do not hesitate to say that it was my aim to present the Communist position."

Lawson and his nine Hollywood friends refused to answer committee questions. Their employers fired them. They were indicted on charges of contempt of Congress and, finally, served time after two unsuccessful appeals to the Supreme Court.

Stalin Blasts May Be Expected Soon

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

The Kremlin's denouncing of Joseph Stalin may be expanded soon to include some of Russia's failures in post-war foreign policy. Stalin has been blamed for his crimes in Russia itself and for some of Russia's troubles in World War II.

Undoubtedly it would help the Soviet government's new sweetness-and-light campaign if Stalin were held responsible for some embarrassing events which followed the war.

Russia's successes in aggressive foreign policy usually are emphasized. But Russia has suffered a number of defeats.

Japanese Occupation Right
For instance, Russia right after Japan's surrender was supposed to get the right to send some occupation troops to Japan.

That would have given Russia a foothold in Hokkaido, the northernmost of the main Japanese islands.

It would have created a dangerous situation for the United States and its allies.

As it happened, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's American forces mushroomed out through Japan and occupied Hokkaido themselves.

Other Allied troops were sent, by agreement, to join in the occupation. But no Russians.

Then there came the Iranian situation in 1946. Great Britain and Russia had occupied Iran in 1941, to keep it out of Germany's hands.

Britain withdrew its troops after the war. The Russian troops remained. Stalin refused repeated Iranian requests to remove them.

Reds Ousted From Iran
Iran appealed to the United Nations. There was a bitter fight for months in the U.N. Security Council. In the end, Russia was compelled to withdraw. That was a monumental defeat for Stalin. Had the U.N. failed, it is doubtful whether it could have long survived.

Next came the big Berlin blockade of 1948 and 1949. Russia and Stalin was Mr. Russia then—tried to force the United States, Britain and France out of the city, which was under joint Big Four occupation.

Russia established a blockade of West Berlin, which the Western Allies held. The retort was the great airlift.

There was a 110-mile belt of Soviet-occupied territory between Berlin and West Germany. In a period of 11 months Allied planes flew 2,343,315 tons of supplies across that belt to Berlin. Russia abandoned the blockade.

U.N. In Korean War
Next came the Korean War. Under Russian direction, Communist North Korea invaded United States-protected South Korea on June 25, 1950. The United States decided to fight. It took the situation to the U.N. In the end, 14

U.N. countries sent military aid to help. Stalin got Communist China to intervene.

There is still a lot of argument as to who won the war. One thing is certain: Russia, the Chinese Reds and the North Koreans lost it. The Chinese suffered upwards of 1,000,000 casualties. On June 23, 1951, Jacob Malik, chief Soviet U.N. delegate, suggested a cease-fire.

Of course, to blame Stalin for these failures would be an admission that they really were failures. But that is no secret to anybody.

Texas Pilot Killed
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UP)—An investigation was under way today to learn the cause of the crash of a B-24 Superfortress jet which took the life of Ensign George H. Rowe, 24, of Austin, Tex. Rowe was approaching for a landing after a routine flight Sunday night when the crash occurred. His next of kin was listed as Mrs. Joel B. Kirkpatrick of Austin, a sister.

'Hostess-With-The-Mostest' Finishes Hollywood Parties

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Perle Mesta, "the hostess-with-the-mostest," has finished her first whirl of Hollywood parties with the conclusion: Less food, less foreigners and less hats than at Washington parties.

Miss Mesta, former minister to Luxembourg whose career was portrayed in "Call Me Madam," stopped here for a week on her first visit to the movie colony.

Since the wealthy widow is also a famed Washington hostess, I cornered her before she took off for Washington to find out what she thought of the Hollywood variety.

Miss Mesta smiled, "Oh, parties are alike the world over." But on second thought she came up with a few differences.

"You see many more foreigners at Washington parties," she said. "And much more food. Oh, these parties in Europe where the buffet table was loaded with food and there was a special table for sweets."

One party she attended this week was an RKO soiree at Rom-anoff's for Helen Hayes and her son, James MacArthur, who is making his movie debut. That affair featured only four kinds of hors d'oeuvres and no sweet table.

At the party I noticed Miss Mesta was one of the few women wearing hats.

"Yes, they dress differently here than we do in the east," continued the motherly-looking hostess. Clothes are lighter in color here, more informal. Not many hats. They dress here like Americans in Hong Kong."

Miss Mesta attended "at least two or three parties" a day during her week in Hollywood. When I saw her in her hotel lobby she was en route to party No. 22 and holding up rather well.

"The movie people are lovely and very interesting," she said. "I love people who do things. And they have lovely homes."

"However," she added, "I don't care for modern. My Washington home is in 19th century French."

Parker Seller and Lynn Neal once bled from Los Angeles to New York in 25 days, six hours, and 20 minutes.

'New' Terry Moore Is Back In Hollywood For Another Film

By ALINE MOSBY
 HOLLYWOOD (UP) — The "new" Terry Moore, now a settled-down housewife in Panama, is back in Hollywood for her first post-marriage movie role with a new resolution: No more racy headlines.
 Terry kept us Hollywood reporters busy for years with startling doings, from wearing a white ermine bikini to Korea to getting involved in a fracas over a photograph of her in Istanbul, Turkey.
 But since she wed Panama insurance executive Eugene McGrath, Terry has graduated to a more mature glamour and older movie roles. From now on she wants to be known as Terry Moore, actress.
 "I never did have anything to do with those headlines, but I hope there aren't any more," said Terry. "I just hope I get good parts."
 Terry's affinity for front pages made it more surprising when she married McGrath between courses of a Las Vegas dinner party last New Year's Eve without even telling their dinner partners.

Groom Personals

By BARBARA TERBUSH
 Groom and the immediate vicinity received a welcome shower of rain late Sunday evening which brought an estimated one-half inch of precipitation. Amarillo, Claude, Childress, and Lubbock reported heavy showers of over one inch. The rain in the Groom area did not cover a wide area.
 Row crop land has been made ready for planting. Weeds have sprouted from the late May rains and have been plowed under. The community needs a good soaking rain for the planting of the maize crop.
 Born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kuehler, a daughter, Friday, June 15, 1956, at St. Anthony Hospital in Amarillo. The young lass has been named Martha Jean. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Leo Dettner of Panhandle and Mrs. Mary Kuehler of Groom. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kuehler have one other child, Mary, who is two years old.
 Among the patients at the Groom Osteopathic Hospital the past week:
 The pert actress paused to list the lavish gifts her handsome husband has given her, from solid gold handbags to a diamond cross on a chain.
 "Before I was married it was rumors about my dates, now it will be rumors I'm pregnant or divorcing," she said.
 "But no more of those headlines. Of course, I can't say I hope people stop talking about me," she added, with a giggle like the old Terry Moore.

IKE'S SPOT TO CONVALESCENCE?—A prophet who remains without honor because he insists on anonymity has queried Press Secretary Jim Hagerly on the "report" that the Chief Executive will convalesce at Martha's Vineyard, island summer colony off the coast of Massachusetts. Admitting that he initiated the report himself, he's the same scribe who proposed Key West as the place to recuperate after the President's heart-attack. Mr. Eisenhower went to Key West, Fla., for a short time.
