Texas Oil Industry Spends Nearly Billion On Drilling

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — UP — The Texas oil industry spent nearly a billion dollars in 1955 on well drilling alone, a vice president of Gulf Oil Corp. said Tuesday night.

E. D. Brockett, the oil executive, also said that the industry provided almost half of all funds to support the state's public schools, spent a billion dollars meeting payrolls, made royalty payments of another half billion, and paid out $100 million in rentals to landowners.

Brockett spoke before a special session of the fourth annual executive development course at Texas A&M College. He said the future of the Southwest and the security of our nation are linked intimately with the health of the petroleum industry.

— Paid $175 Million Taxes —

Texas produced 2.9 billion barrels of oil in 1955, or 43 per cent of the nation's total production, Brockett said. In addition, the industry paid $175 million in state taxes to qualify as Texas' biggest single taxpayer.

More scientific methods of secondary recovery and the growth of new petro-chemical industry point to a role of greater economic importance in the near future for the oil industry, he said.

— The petro-chemical industry is an infant, only a few years old, Brockett said. Yet it has invested already more than a billion dollars in the Gulf Coast area... and pours more than 13 million dollars a month into the area in payrolls alone.

Get More Oil Out
He added that the "hell-for-leather, swashbuckling oil business of the 20s" has given way before the scientific approach. This includes development of new fields, he said.

"Through efficient spacing of wells and orderly and effective production techniques, today's fields are producing more oil percentage-wise than was possible through the quicker, but wasteful, flush production of yesterday," he said.

He used the East Texas field as an example. When oil was first struck there, he said, experts figured it would produce a billion barrels. Efficient production has produced three billion, he said, and there are indications it will produce three billion more.

E. J. Pafford Dies On Wednesday

E. J. Pafford, 48, long time resident of Lefors, died last night about 7 o'clock in Sanatorium, after a lengthy illness.

Mr. Pafford had lived in Lefors approximately 25 years, where he worked both as a carpenter and for Champlain Oil Company. He was a former trustee of the Elks Lodge in Pampa.

Survivors include his wife, Gladys; one son, Joe B.; two daughters, Marilyn and Lee Ann; all of Lefors; two brothers, John of Borger and Charles of Dallas; and a mother and sister in California.

A Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home ambulance will return the body to Pampa tonight. Funeral arrangements will be announced tomorrow.

Russian Sub Is Identified

SUVA, Fiji — UP — The government announced Thursday that a mystery craft sighted lurking off Suva Feb. 3 has been identified as a long-range heavily-armed Russian submarine.

The announcement said the identification was made by military officials here from sketches drawn by Capt. Tanieli Kupa, a Fijian skipper. Kupa spotted the submarine when it surfaced off this British colony island.

According to the announcement, the craft was recognized as a K-class Soviet submarine, which is equipped with 20 torpedoes and four guns.

The mysterious disappearance of two inter-island traders, coupled with recurrent submarine-sighting reports, has caused considerable concern here. The hulk of the Joyita, one of the missing ships, was recovered but no trace has yet been found of the 25 persons it carried.

One Accident Reported Here

One automobile collision occurred yesterday morning on Wilks St., 20 feet east of Hobart, resulting in vehicle damages estimated at $90.

A '55 Oldsmobile, driven by Mrs. Octonia Bell Chambliss, Pampa, was in collision with a '55 Buick being driven by Charles Guy Goodwin, of 125 N. Nelson. The Oldsmobile met with estimated damages of $50 and the Buick encountered damages of about $40.

North Africa Seethes With Unrest

ALGIERS, Algeria — UP — French North Africa seethes with unrest Thursday in the wake of a day of clashes in which reports said at least 110 persons were killed. The 24-hour death toll was one of the highest since violence first erupted in the territories.

The reports said an additional 51 persons were wounded in the clashes between French security forces and rebel bands in Algeria and Morocco, and between rival native political factions in Tunisia.

The biggest action took place in Algeria where a band of more than 150 "army of Allah" rebels engaged a heavy detachment of security forces in an eight-hour battle in the Nememcha mountains, 96 miles south of Constantine.

The French said at least 42 rebels were killed in what they described as a "major" action. French losses were eight dead and 20 wounded.

American sub-machineguns and Italian and British rifles were found on the battlefield after the rebel force was routed, the reports said.

Says Farmers Paid Wages Hike
Farmers and ranchers, he said, "cannot pay whatever price may be quoted for equipment and supplies—or whatever wage rate, at whatever level, by whomever dictated, and pass on or pass back the cost to someone else."

He said a $50 million annual wage boost granted by the packing industry last August was not absorbed by the packers. The wage boost, he said, "was more than the total net earnings of the meat packing industry in the previous year. Yet packers have not operated with lower earnings since the increase was granted."

Benson said supply and demand conditions for meat did not permit the full increase to be passed on to consumers.

"The evidence is that most of that wage increase was paid for it by taking lower prices for meat animals," Benson said.

Swanson Says Dior Should Hide Bosom

By GLORIA SWANSON
Written for United Press

ROME — UP — I am sure there are a lot of red-blooded "he-men" who wish Dior would succeed in being away with the bosom, at least for a while.

I once had a passion for peanut butter, but I've got my fill of it. I've practically got to that stage, "oo, about a perfectly normal appendage to the female form and I'm certain a lot of men have also."

I swear the ad men must have run out of ideas because anatomical or cheesecake art work appears in too much advertising. My friends tell me it is a delusion that I have seen it on breakfast food packages, but I'm not sure. The female form seems to show up on book jackets no matter what the contents.

I feel sorry for the youngsters wanting careers, who are led astray by cheap advisers to pose for these ads. Some think it will get them in the movies, little knowing that the longest and most successful careers were built on a combination of talent and personality.

Does anybody remember Garbo from the neck down? I was always busy looking at her beautiful face, as were millions of others.

What I don't remember whether she was a size 32 or 38—or zero. And I'm sure every male in the audience didn't care either.

Now with France's Dior and America's Grace Kelly leading the flat-chested brigade, leaving behind the Turners, the Russells, the Dymars and all the other sweater girls, I hope it won't be long before Italy's overgrown divas will be the last contestants in the International Miss Communist Chest contest.

To me there is nothing more beautiful than the human form but only when it is shrouded with dignity and mystery.

REV. JERRY SPEERS
... new pastor

Barrett Chapel Sets Revival

Rev. Jerry Speer, new pastor of the Barrett Chapel will do the preaching in the revival meeting in the Chapel beginning Friday, February 17. Services will begin each evening at 7:30 p.m. Mr. H. S. Hultender will direct the singing. Miss Exie Seright will be the pianist.

Rev. Speer began his service as pastor of the Chapel on January 29, coming from the First Baptist Church of Elmer, Oklahoma. Former pastorates include churches at Crystal Falls and Paducah, Texas. His home is in Breckenridge, Texas, and his wife, the former Dorothy Sorell, was secretary of the First Baptist Church in Breckenridge at the time of their marriage.

The public is invited to all services, and the Nursery will be open. The Barrett Chapel is a Mission of the First Baptist Church.

Jerry Speer attended high school at Holliday. He served in the armed forces from 1944 to 1946. He attended Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene from 1947 to 1951.

Gas Bill Veto May Bring Interposition

AUSTIN —UP— Attorney General John Ben Shepperd will ask Gov. Allan Shivers to call a special session of the Legislature to adopt a resolution on interposition if President Eisenhower vetoes the Harris natural gas bill.

Interposition is a seldom-used legal maneuver by which a state seeks to overturn an act of the federal government for the purpose of maintaining state rights. Shepperd announced his intentions late Wednesday.

He sent a telegram to President Eisenhower asking that he sign the bill, a controversial measure which cleared Congress last week. It would exempt natural gas producers from federal price regulation.

The right of a state to regulate its own resources is basically the issue. Shepperd wired the President, Texas eat Maine lobster and Wisconsin cranberries, he said.

But Texas doesn't ask for federal price control and regulation of cranberries and lobster, he said. By the same reasoning, oil and gas producing states are better in position to regulate their own resources, he added.

A bond election to pay for a water and sewage system is slated soon. That's the reason city officials were elected Wednesday in the first place.

Solons Say Reds Got British Copper

WASHINGTON —UP— Senate investigators charged Wednesday that Britain has shipped highly strategic copper, produced with U.S. foreign aid funds, to Russia.

Jerome S. Adlerman, assistant counsel of the Senate investigating subcommittee, testified that Russia desperately needs copper and would be "tremendously short" of it if war came.

Adlerman was the first witness as the subcommittee launched public hearings on the flow of strategic materials to iron curtain countries. Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) accused the administration of refusing to cooperate in the inquiry.

Adlerman testified that the United States loaned money to build power plants in Rhodesia, a British possession, to increase the production of copper mines. He said $22.4 million was loaned to the Rhodesian Congo Water Power Co. and $124 million to another firm, the Chibuluna Co.

Since international export controls were relaxed in August, 1954, Britain has sent 200 million pounds of copper wire to the Soviet bloc, Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.), a subcommittee member, said.

Adlerman said that "no doubt" some of this was Rhodesian copper, produced with American aid.

He said Russia needs copper badly for generating and transmitting electricity which could be used to produce aluminum and magnesium for warplanes.

The play in today's contract made a difference of 200 points. This is not as much as the difference between making a contract and being defeated, but it's worth knowing about.

West would have made game and rubber at four spades, but the sacrifice at five diamonds was too costly. West opened the eight of hearts, and East took the king and ace. East then returned the jack of hearts for his partner to ruff, selecting this high card to show that his entry was in a high suit (spades) rather than in a low suit.

West ruffed and planned to get to his partner's hand with a spade in order to get another heart led. He couldn't lead a low spade at once, however, for that would cost a trick. East would take the ace of spades and lead another heart, whereupon South would discard the queen of spades. West would make a second trump trick, but lose a spade trick in the process.

The important play was to cash the king of spades immediately after ruffing the third round of hearts, then lead a low spade to East's ace. When the fourth round of hearts now came through declarer, he couldn't make a useful discard.

South made a good try, by ruffing with the king of diamonds. He then finessed the queen of clubs to enter dummy and led a diamond. East stepped up with the ace of diamonds and led a fifth heart, assuring West a trick with the jack of diamonds.

County Demos In Apparent Revolt

SAN ANTONIO —UP— A total of 28 members of the Democratic Women of Bexar county were in apparent revolt Thursday against the county's Democratic leadership.

The 28 resigned and walked out of a meeting Wednesday, protesting what they called "dictatorial methods" of the leaders. They said the leaders favor accepting Gov. Allan Shivers in 1952 and 1954.

Mrs. Ruth Halworth, chairman of the membership committee, said most of those who resigned were precinct workers and active workers during elections.

Mrs. Kathleen Voigt, secretary of the State Democratic Advisory Committee, denied the charge that members have been ordered to work with those who backed Shivers.

Khrushchev Would Ban H-Bomb Tests

MOSCOW —UP— A study of the text of Nikita Khrushchev's massive speech on world communism showed Wednesday that the Soviet leader proposed a global ban on H-bomb tests and curtailment of atomic weapons.

Specifically, he suggested an end to the hydrogen weapon tests even before East-West agreement on disarmament, an end to equipment of troops in Germany with atomic weapons and a reduction of military budgets.

Western observers interpreted these proposals as intended to back up his declaration that "war is not inevitable" between capitalism and communism—a major revision of previous Communist doctrine.

While the 1,500-odd delegates to the 20th Communist party congress discussed Tuesday's seven-hour speech by Khrushchev at Wednesday's second session, the vast volume of his belatedly-recorded words poured out over Radio Moscow.

They gave observers an opportunity to study the text in detail, and to note major points skimmed over in the rush of initial delivery.

One of these points showed the Soviet Communist party secretary's call for the worldwide ban on H-bomb tests.

The Soviet Union, which recently tested a hydrogen weapon in a high air burst, had called previously for discussions with the United States and Britain on the question of banning further "nuclear" tests because of radiation dangers.

Actor's Wife To Star In TV Show

By WILLIAM EWALD
NEW YORK — UP — Jessica Tandy, an actress who frequently works in tandem with her husband, will disentangle herself this week to solo in the part of an old maid.

Miss Tandy, in real life the wife of actor Hume Cronyn, will star in an NBC-TV star stage epic, "The Scholmists," this Friday night. She'll essay the role of a teacher who believes, in Miss Tandy's words, "that children should be taught to have an inquiring mind instead of being spoon-fed."

For many years now, Miss Tandy and Cronyn have worked so often together that they have come to be identified as the sort of ham and eggs of the thespian world. However, Miss Tandy, working over a lunch Wednesday, pointed out that this sort of pigeon-holing has its pitfalls.

"Ham and eggs?" she asked. "Which of us then would call the ham?"

It is true, however, that she and Cronyn do work pretty regularly in harness, Miss Tandy confessed. "You see, there's a tremendous advantage to it," she said. "You have a head start when you approach a part — you start at a point where most relationships leave off."

"The spark is already there for us — we don't have to spend time looking for it."

Perhaps their most successful venture together was "The Fourposter" in which the pair were the sole players. Out of it grew a 26-week radio series, "The Marriage," and a seven-week TV series which went under the same handle back in 1954.

"We've just finished a new pilot film of the series," Miss Tandy said, "and we hope it will go on TV again. It's a situation comedy but it isn't the kind of situation comedy in which father gets pie-in-the-face, if you know what I mean. It's sort of like 'The Fourposter' only it takes place today instead of then."

Expected about Friday this will happen, Dr. Orr said, Friday or Saturday when the sun's rotation (360 degrees in 28 days) aims the center of the new sun spots at earth.

Sun Storms Likely To Foul TV, Radio, Wire Reception

CLIMAX, Colo. — UP — Huge, hellishly hot storms now churning up the sun's surface probably will produce "ghosts" on television sets and foul up radio and wire communications late this week.

And in two weeks' time, the weather on earth may turn stormy because of the giant magnetic storms on the sun.

These predictions were made Tuesday by Dr. Walter Orr Roberts, directors of the University of Colorado's high-altitude-observatory here in the Rocky Mountains near Denver.

Dr. Orr said observatory instruments first detected new "spots" on the sun last Thursday. On Friday the U. S. Bureau of Standards picked up a strong surge of radio noise from the sun with radio telescopes at Boulder, near the main campus.

Now Has New Instruments
"For the first time since the current sun spot cycle began in 1954," Dr. Orr said, "we've got a big solar disturbance to work on with newly designed and perfected instruments."

He said 61 big sun spots, three of them large enough to swallow the earth, have been detected. They are as hot as seven million degrees Fahrenheit, he said, and are throwing off "solar flares" — vast eruptions of glowing gas far above the sun's surface.

A sun spot is an immense, magnetic storm on the unimaginably hot, gaseous surface of the sun. Dr. Orr believes a definite correlation between these storms and weather conditions on earth exists.

Sun spots are known to produce interference with radio and telegraph communications on earth, and to bring about the weird displays of light in the northern skies, when the earth's ionosphere is bombarded by ultra-violet and X-ray radiation from sun spots.

Expected About Friday
This will happen, Dr. Orr said, Friday or Saturday when the sun's rotation (360 degrees in 28 days) aims the center of the new sun spots at earth.

"That means magnetic storms, disrupting radio and possibly even wire communications and the likelihood of brilliant displays of the aurora borealis in the night sky as far south as this latitude," he predicted.

"There may be freakish long-distance television ghosts, too. After that, if the weather pattern lives up to expectations, we can expect new storms and increased precipitation in the Rocky Mountains some in to 15 days later—say around March 2. By that date, the present enormous increase of charged particles from the sun should have time to reach our upper atmosphere and cause changes in weather."

Dr. Orr predicts weather changes only for the Rocky Mountain area.

Could Apply Elsewhere
No previous records of sun spots have been checked out against weather behavior elsewhere, al-

HOUSTON — UP — The Constitution party of Texas has selected Indiana Sen. William E. Jenner and Utah Gov. J. Bracken Lee as candidates for nomination of President and Vice President in the coming national election. The nominations were made at a two-day state convention here.

around the globe.
Dr. Orr noted that a magnetic storm was detected on the sun last Jan. 10 and 11, and its aftermath reached earth Jan. 19.
Since then, heavy snow has fallen in Colorado—more than twice the normal amount for this time of year.
The high altitude observatory at Climax is working closely with the Harvard University observatory at Sacramento Peak, N.M., in the current effort to gather information on sun spots. But short wave communication between the observatories already has been disrupted by the big solar storm, and immediate comparison of data has not been possible continuously.

Admission That Diplomats In Russia May Remain Mystery

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst
Soviet Russia's reason for admitting, after nearly five years, that Britain's two missing diplomats are in Moscow is likely to remain a mystery.

Experts on Soviet policy have suggested a dozen conflicting reasons why the admission should have been made at this particular time.

All that is certain is that the Kremlin had a definite reason and thought it was making a smart move.

Donald MacLean and Guy De M. Burgess disappeared from London on May 15, 1951. They made their first public appearance in Moscow, at a strangely staged press conference last Saturday. It had been known beyond reasonable doubt for more than one year that the two men were in Russia. But as recently as two weeks ago, high Soviet leaders denied any knowledge of them.

It seems probable, then, that two weeks ago the Kremlin had no intention of making an early admission of the presence of MacLean and Burgess.

Here are a few of the reasons the experts suggest for the apparent change of mind:

It was to cause a split between the United States and Britain by spotlighting Britain's lax security precautions. It was to smooth the way for the visit Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin and Nikita S. Khrushchev are to make to London in April. It was a prelude to the Communist party Congress which opened in Moscow Tuesday.

Some experts suggest that MacLean, at least, helped to write the two letters Bulganin recently sent to President Eisenhower. Others suggest MacLean and Burgess were "unveiled" because the Kremlin had no more use for them, and saw no reason to keep them under cover any longer.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd mentioned two possible reasons. 1. That "it was to forestall awkward questions" during the forthcoming Bulganin-Khrushchev visit. 2. It was to "create distrust and drive a wedge" between the United States and Britain after the close accord reached when Prime Minister Anthony Eden and Selwyn Lloyd visited Washington early this month.

"If this is the explanation, they will not succeed," Lloyd said.

Crop prospects in the plains country, particularly south of the Canadian River, have been "greatly improved," the USDA said.

North of the Canadian River, where snow tapered off and drifted heavily, additional moisture is urgently needed.

Moisture also was needed in the low rolling plains where two to four inches of snow was helpful, but not enough to assure a good crop.

Eastward of a line running about through Austin and Fort Worth and southeastward to the coast, rains put "enough season in the ground to get spring row crops off to a good early start," the report said.

South of San Antonio, only "very light mist" was received.

Benson Would Rally Farmers
ST. PAUL, Minn. — UP — Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson tried Wednesday to rally Midwest farmers for a fight against Democratic amendments to the President's agriculture program.

He accused the Democrats of trying to sabotage the administration program with "quack remedies and discarded nostrums" in a blistering speech before 3,500 Republican leaders and farmers Tuesday night.

Confirming his campaign Wednesday, Benson attended a breakfast meeting with a group of farmers and visited dairy farms in the area. He was to leave later for California and another farm speech.

Benson also told Minnesotans they can look for high bidding for farm votes when Democrats Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver start campaigning in the state's presidential primary.

Apple Cake—A New Recipe

Want a new recipe for applesauce cake? Here's one from Crisco Kitchens that you'll make over and over. It's full of applesauce, chopped nuts and fragrant spices. And it's topped with brown sugar that becomes delicious and crusty in the baking. Try it. You'll like it.

Applesauce Coffecake Loaf

2 cups sifted enriched flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup granulated sugar
1/4 cup brown sugar, packed
1/3 cup Crisco
2 eggs
1 cup applesauce
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup brown sugar, packed
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon Crisco

Start heating oven to 350°F. With Crisco, thoroughly grease 9"x5"x3" loaf pan. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, and salt. Blend well granulated sugar, 1/4 cup brown sugar, 1/3 cup Crisco and eggs. Stir in applesauce then flour mixture. Blend in nuts. Turn into loaf pan.

Mix together until crumbly 1/4 cup brown sugar, cinnamon and 1 tablespoon Crisco. Sprinkle over dough in pan. Bake 50 to 60 minutes or until loaf tests done. Serve warm or cold in thick slices.

Washington's Day Mood Is Provided By Cherry Cobbler

Along comes February and with it many occasions for parties. If you've neglected these dates early in the month there is still time to plan a social gathering on Washington's birthday.

For this special function, Reba Staggs, home economist, suggests cherry cobbler as the finishing touch to typify this traditional date.

Whether it is in cakes, pies or cookies, lard is one of the most versatile of the shortenings. In the cobbler, notice the tender, flaky texture lard gives to the finished product.

Cherry Cobbler

2 cups sifted enriched flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
4 to 6 tablespoons lard
1-3 to 1/2 cup milk
1 No. 303 can pitted red cherries
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Cut in lard until mixture has fine, even crumbs, about the size of peas. Add enough milk to make a soft dough. Divide into two parts, one slightly larger than the other. Roll the larger part to 1/4 inch thickness and line an oiled pan. Mix cherries and almond extract and spread over dough. Sprinkle with sugar. Dot cherry mixture with butter or margarine. Roll remaining dough and place over cherries. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 30 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

Serve Veal, Lamb For Meal Variety

No doubt you serve beef and pork to your family most of the time, but how often do you serve them lamb or veal? These two delicately flavored meats make a nice change in the menu.

As lamb is a tender meat, most cuts are suitable for roasting and broiling. Shoulder roast, rib roast (brown) and leg of lamb all may be roasted. Breast of lamb, either stuffed or rolled, usually is braised (pot roasted). Lamb chops, restaurant specialties which are favorites at home, too, may be broiled or pan-broiled.

Veal, a lean meat, should not be

Pork Chops and Sauerkraut Time

Here's a dish that's designed for a February day. It's the old German twosome of pork chops and sauerkraut. For a flavorful change, the sauerkraut is teamed with tart apples and accompanied by tender, juicy braised pork chops.

Serve Cherry Meat Muffins This Month

The truth does prevail — at least that was the reasoning which George Washington used concerning the cherry tree.

Whether the story is fact or fiction, February is the perfect month to try this unusual recipe, Cherry Meat Muffins.

The preparation is easy and persons from seven to seventy, according to Reba Staggs, home economist, will not be able to resist this special Washington Day treat.

Cherry Meat Muffins
1 12-ounce can luncheon meat, ground
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 egg, well beaten
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
Combine ingredients in order given, mix thoroughly. Pack mixture into medium-size muffin pans, filling each 2-3 full. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for 30 to 45 minutes.

broiled. Veal chops, steaks and cutlets are best when prepared by braising (cooked in a covered skillet). As veal roasts lack fat, they should be covered with thin strips of salt pork or bacon before roasting. Veal roasts often are cooked as pot roasts, with herbs added.

Pork Chops And Sauerkraut Set Theme For Festive Washington's Birthday Meal

Spring may be just around the corner, but the weather still demands warm clothing on the outside and hearty, hot meals on the inside.

Reba Staggs, home economist, suggests a hearty twosome that just naturally belongs together; that's pork chops and sauerkraut. Plan this menu for a late February meal. You might even plan on having the next-door neighbors over for a gathering on Washington's birthday.

When preparing this pork dinner, the secret of successful pork cookery lies in a moderate temperature long enough to assure that the meat is well done to the very center. Pork should always be cooked to the well done stage.

Braised Pork Chops

6 rib or loin pork chops, cut 3-4 to 1 inch thick
Salt and pepper
Water

Brown the chops on both sides in heavy frying-pan. Season with salt and pepper. Add a small amount of water, approximately 1/4 cup. Cover tightly and cook at a low temperature until done, about 45 minutes to 1 hour.

Sauerkraut comes in for a bit of variation, too. Add grated raw apple to the kraut for an unusual flavor touch. Or generously sprinkle the kraut with caraway or dill seed.

Apple Sauerkraut

2 cups sauerkraut
1/4 cup lard or drippings
1/4 cup water
3 apples, cored and quartered
1 small onion, sliced
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon caraway seed

Add all ingredients and cook slowly until the apples are tender. Serve sauerkraut on a large platter. Now place the braised pork chops on top of the sauerkraut and your entree is ready for the table.

Don't forget to complete the menu with colorful cherry ice cream. Yield: 6 servings.

Sweaters that are properly washed and dried need no ironing. But a neat finish can be added by pressing button and buttonhole strips on cardigans. Work on wrong side, over turkish towel padding.

The lines and color of your winter coat pretty well dictate the lines of the other clothes in your wardrobe. Nothing looks sillier than a bouffant red taffeta party dress peeping out from under a straight-lined brown wool coat. If the lines of your coat are simple and straight, keep all other clothes (even party dresses) simple and straight, too.

New in the Venetian blind market are lacy-looking ones. Slats are of aluminum in neutral colors with a lace pattern. They come with plastic tape.

Husband Can Shine When Carving Roast

Every man is a dramatist at heart and it's natural for the head of the house to enjoy being in the limelight occasionally. One time a man can shine when he's called upon to perform the job of carving the dinner roast.

Of course, the art of carving doesn't come overnight; it requires a little basic know-how and some practice. Here are some ways to help make carving easier:

1. Ask the meat man to loosen the backbone of a pork loin roast or a rib roast of beef. (These are left on the roast during cooking but removed in the kitchen before bringing the roast to the table.) When carving a pork loin roast, cut between the ribs to make chop-size servings.

2. Let the roast cool for 15 minutes before starting to carve. This "sets" the juices and makes carving easier.

3. When carving T-bone or porterhouse steaks, give each person a piece of tenderloin, a piece of larger muscle and a piece of the "tail".

Yarborough To Make Address

AUSTIN —UP— Ralph Yarborough will be the principal speaker at the annual state convention of the League of Latin American Citizens Saturday in Corpus Christi, the office of the Austin attorney and potential gubernatorial candidate announced Wednesday.

A statement from Yarborough's office said the speech "will be non-political, in keeping with the LOLAC non-political tradition."

Just In Case
BOSTON —UP— Massachusetts' newest political club is called The Christian A. Herter-For-President-In-Case - Eisenhower-Doesn't-Run-Again Club.

Shivers Warns Of 'Quacks' In Politics

DALLAS —UP— Gov Allan Shivers warned Texas voters Wednesday to beware of "political quacks" offering a sure cure for the nation's ills.

He said this advice applied from the courthouse and to the White House level, and added: "Our people have resisted the call of soothsayers and easy money boys before. They will again. They will this year."

"A lot of political quacks are going to try to make us believe that they can make a political Salk vaccine from pink lemonade," the governor said in a speech prepared for delivery at a meeting of the American Society of Civil Engineers. "A lot of foolishness is going to be talked between now and November. A lot of complicated problems are going to be over-simplified and minimized," he continued.

"Products of Activity" The alternative to accepting easy solutions of "the quacks," is "hard work and clear thinking," the governor said.

"America does not have to kill free enterprise in order to solve its problems. America does not have to kill local responsibility in order to solve local problems. America does not have to hamstring future Henry Fords in order to build highways," he added.

Problems of Texas and the nation "are the products of activity, not of stagnation."

He said it is "the greatest folly to think that the problems brought on us by freedom of enterprise can be met by centralization and control. We have to meet the problems of freedom with the solutions of freedom."

Aid Brinks Controls
Increased federal aid, he said, is not the answer. "Federal aid brings with it controls," he warned. Solutions must be found on the local level.

He suggested his listeners look upon candidates offering easy solutions to problems "with the same doubtful and pragmatic eye that you would fix on any other alchemist promising to turn brass into gold."

"This applies all the way from the local to the national level," he said.

"We cannot afford these charlatans and their easy 'cure nostrums' in the court house, the state house or the White House," he added.

IT'S THE LAW IN TEXAS

"They ought to pass a law. . . . You have heard that said many times. But did you know that much of our law was never 'passed' by any legislative body?"

Actually there are several kinds of law which control our lives. Perhaps the following definitions will help explain the differences:

Statute law is an enactment of the state legislature or the Congress. It is the written law, setting forth a system of principles and rules of conduct.

Common law consists of those principles and rules of action which derive their authority from usage and custom, and from the decrees of our courts affirming such rules. It may be written or unwritten, and much of it we derived from the ancient unwritten law of England.

Parts of the statute and common law sometimes further described:

Substantive law is that part of the law which creates, defines and regulates rights. It is the law the courts are established to administer, as opposed to the rules of procedure by which it is administered.

Adjective law is made up of our rules of procedure and practice. It is the manners and methods by which we enforce our rights or obtain redress for their invasion.

Criminal law is that branch of the law which defines and prohibits the various crimes and establishes their punishments.

Administrative law is that vast body of law and practice concerning the public boards, commissions and agencies which have power to make rules, orders or regulations having the force of law.

You also hear of various fields of law, such as admiralty law, patent law, corporation law, municipal law and many others. These are branches or special fields of law.

Perhaps you find all this slightly confusing. But these matters are just as important to you as to the lawyer, because it is on the vast body of law that your rights and privileges, your government, and your way of life are based.

This column, based on Texas law, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts because the facts may change the application of the law.)

Stools Fly In French Assembly

PARIS —UP— Communist and right-wing Poujadist deputies hurled first insults and then wooden stools Wednesday in a free-for-all in the red-plush chamber of the French National Assembly.

For the second time in as many days, speaker Andre Le Troquer ordered the chamber cleared of newsmen and public.

Two Poujadist deputies jumped onto the speaker's stand when Le Troquer put to a voice vote a Communist motion to unseat another Poujadist deputy.

The Communists leaped from their seats to give Le Troquer—who is a Socialist and not a Communist—some unsolicited help. They stormed the stand in an attempt to throw off the Poujadists. The little wooden stools around the speaker's stand flew through the air.

Political Pot Was Boiling 100 Years Ago As It Is Today

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON—UP—A century ago the political pot was boiling, even as it is today. Fur was flying. President Franklin Pierce looked back at his record with one eye and with the other looked toward his native New Hampshire. He didn't much give a hoot what happened. He and his wife Jane Appleton Pierce, always allowed that they hadn't wanted to be the top people in the nation, anyhow.

Pierce's regime was unfortunate. He had alienated the North, by stern enforcement of the fugitive slave act, a hot issue. Turned out, on account of the President's pressure, that abolitionists and pro-slavery immigrants rolled into Kansas and crossed flintlocks. Considerable blood was spilled.

Pierce had but a few months to linger on the scene here and was wearing a sort of what-is-heck look. So James Buchanan got the nomination on the Democratic side. He like Pierce, was what the politics of the day called a "dough face." That tag was put upon northern politicians who had a chest full of sympathy for the South.

James Buchanan's opponent was John C. Fremont, the first man ever to seek the presidency under the Republican banner.

Buchanan had tried for 12 years to get a nod for the Democratic party. This time his record stood him good—the Pennsylvania state legislature, time in Congress, a U.S. senator, minister to Russia and Great Britain, secretary of state. Also the fact he had been out of the country long enough to keep from getting singled politically.

Apparently, Fremont didn't make much of a campaign. James Buchanan beat him good. The end result was:

Buchanan, 1,927,995 popular votes, 174 electoral votes. Fremont, 1,391,355 popular votes, 114 electoral votes.

Buchanan, who of course didn't get into the White House until March, 1857, didn't cotton to the looks of the big mansion on Pennsylvania Avenue.

It was heated by fireplaces, for one thing, and that reminded the new leader of his boyhood days in a log cabin back in Pennsylvania. So he ordered a furnace put in the cellar.

Buchanan was the only bachelor ever to live in the White House. In Buchanan's day a lot of interesting things happened. One was the opening of the first trans-Atlantic cable. On that notable occasion Queen Victoria sent him a

Shoemaker's Cars In Bargain Sale

HOUSTON—UP—Auto bargain hunters had a field day Wednesday at the first sale of 42 new and used cars owned by the U.S. Automotive Service Co., part of A. B. Shoemaker's defunct insurance empire.

The cars—37 used ones and five new ones—were offered on a first-come-first served basis. They have been in storage pending sale by state liquidator J. D. Wheeler since Shoemaker's U.S. Trust & Guaranty Co. went broke last December.

A sample of the bargains: A 1945 Oldsmobile, clean but a mite cantankerous, went for $50. A new 1955 Dodge, with air-conditioning and only 12 miles on the speedometer, drew $1,985. It listed for more than $3,000.

The money realized from sale of the cars went into the pot to be divided among creditors of the firm.

The firm, which went into receivership Jan. 31, was reported to have other cars at Beaumont, 33 at Lubbock, 43 at Tyler, 32 at Corpus Christi and four in Dallas.

"bless you." He thought it was a joke and refused stoutly to acknowledge it until the message was confirmed. It was unfortunate that right after that the cable busted and was not spliced for another eight years.

Ginger Rogers' Hubby Wants To Be An Individual Actor

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD—UP—Jacques Bergerac confesses he's waved goodbye to a quarter of a million dollars' worth of acting jobs—all because he's determined not to be known as Ginger Rogers' husband.

The handsome, young Frenchman wed the blonde film star three years ago and launched his own acting career. Not much of a splash has been heard from his corner. But Jacques revealed that's because he is determined "to make it on my own."

"I just refused a TV series because it was for the two of us," he said. "It would have meant a great deal of money. She was willing, but I refused to do it."

"We also have been offered two big TV spectaculars, one play on Broadway and two movies. I react alone until he is "established." He even refused to pose for CBS-TV publicity photographs with Ginger.

"Of course, I want to do another picture with my wife, but only after I have established my career on my own," he said.

Jacques is a mature, intelligent, masculine-type actor—a refreshing switch from some of the new heartthrobs around town. But having a French accent has been another hurdle to stardom, he said.

"After you're established, an accent can be offset and charming, but in the beginning it has some limitations," he said.

"Then, too, you have to get away from those prejudices producers have about French men. They think a French actor must be hand-kissing, weak. I've refused three pictures based on that type. I think I am far different."

Apex Of Success

As one reviews the histories of the various civilizations which have graced this planet, there is at least one easily drawn conclusion. It is this: A nation has greater difficulty surviving if it is highly successful than if it is not highly successful.

Parado or no, it is ahistoric fact. Babylon was never in such danger as when it dominated the Middle East. Its wealth and power was virtually unrivaled.

Grecian culture held sway over the Mediterranean cradle of civilization until at the height of Athenian refinement, the cracks in the superstructure widened and the edifice tumbled in ruin.

And ancient Rome, unrivaled both in military might and industrial genius, was never so distressed as when it was most successful. Mighty Julius and Augustus revelled in luxury beyond printable terms while the threads which knit the empire together unraveled and frayed apart.

It would appear that humanity can stand everything except success. The human race has survived famine, flood, pestilence, earthquake and disease. But its greatest trials come in the midst of its greatest achievements.

Without moralizing, might we suggest that the process could be compared to the actions necessary for both earning and spending money. When a person devotes his energies to earning, he has little time for spending.

At the outset there is a stoic, sometimes even grim, determination. Each individual relies on himself and his God. He expects neither security nor ease.

But let progress be made. Let the tasks become less arduous, the way make safe and comfort more certain, and it is almost a foregone conclusion that he will fall in his ease and take the nearest way.

Instead of cherishing his freedom and doing all things possible, he begins to cherish comfort and security and will do only those things which are absolutely imperative.

America has had a remarkable history. The United States has arisen from a savage wilderness to the mightiest, most productive nation of all time.

Can we find it in ourselves to practice stoic self-discipline and struggle ever onward and upward? Or will we merely emulate our ancestors and plummet to our destruction with a rush as great as the velocity with which we climbed?

Time will, of course, reveal all. But surely Mr. and Mrs. average citizen can take a lesson from the passing of history. We as Americans, must become immune to our success.

If we do not, our eyes will seek the ground to which we will giddily descend. History sometimes speaks in a strange tongue but her tones are stentorian. We should examine ourselves as individuals without delay.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M. D.

Nearly everyone has suffered from a sore throat at one time or another. Sore throats follow or are part of the common cold. Others are only tonsillitis or are infections which act on the throat without spreading up to the nose or down to the voice box and lower breathing tubes.

Occasionally sore throat is associated with diseases elsewhere in the body, like digestive upsets or gout. Sore throat usually precedes an attack of rheumatic fever.

BEFORE THE THROAT becomes thoroughly "sore" there is often a feeling of uneasiness, difficulty in swallowing, or tickling or dryness in the throat with a desire to cough and hawk. The person who has such symptoms would be wise to stay home in bed not only because this may shorten the course of the sore throat but also because it would avoid infecting others.

Probably most cases of sore throat are caught from other people. Germs, particularly streptococci, are usually responsible and are breathed in from someone else's throat as a result of sneezing, coughing or talking loudly in a confined space.

Rose Wilder Lane Defines Liberty And Freedom

I am indebted to Rose Wilder Lane for differentiating between the meaning of liberty and freedom.

I had written her telling that Ruth Alexander had said that a man that had been put in jail for murder was deprived of his freedom. I regarded freedom and liberty as the same. I defined them as the absence of the use of aggressive force or threats of same against an individual.

If this definition was correct, then the man that had been put in jail for murder had not had aggressive force used against him. Only defensive force had been used against him. And since my definition of liberty and freedom did not prevent the use of defensive force, it was my thought that he had not been deprived of his liberty or freedom.

I wrote to Rose Wilder Lane and asked her opinion as to whether the man put in jail for murder had been deprived of his liberty. I am grateful to her for her answer because she has made a profound study of liberty and freedom and can so clearly explain it as any person I know. Here is the way she puts it:

"Answering your question about the man in jail: 'The confusion arises from lack of an adequate vocabulary. As Lincoln said (more or less): 'Every one talks about liberty, nobody has ever defined it. The dictionary will tell you that liberty is freedom; look up freedom, and they tell you that freedom is liberty. How enlightening!'

Grant From Government

"In all past history and in most of the world, including Europe and the British Commonwealth, now, 'liberties' and 'freedoms' are specific grants from Governments to their subjects. The basis of this view is the ancient collectivist concept of the nature of man. In that concept, persons are hit of the 'body politic.' Government is the Head of that Body; the Head contains the Will that governs, controls the Whole. It gives a person a 'liberty'—to export goods, or print a newspaper, or even to criticize the Government itself; just as I give my fingers the freedom to strike typewriter keys.

New Concept of Man

"People here in the 18th century formed a new concept of the nature of man, but they had no new words which to express it. They said: 'All men are... endowed by their Creator...' with certain inalienable rights; among these are life, liberty, and ownership of property. (Virginia Declaration, June, 1776.)

"Now this says that liberty does not come from Government, but from the Creator of 'all men.' It says that liberty, like life, is inalienable; that is, that it is a natural function which cannot be transferred from one person to another person. It cannot be separated from a living person.

"Your man in jail, being alive, therefore possesses, inalienably, intrinsically, within himself as his life is within himself, liberty. Liberty in the sense in which the Virginia Declaration uses the word.

"But Ruth Alexander protests, correctly, that he is not free; he is in jail; he is not at liberty; to get out of jail. He is deprived of freedom.

"The difficulty in the reasoning is caused by our not having two words to designate symbols for two quite different things. 'Let's forget about liberty for the moment, and think about another natural, inalienable function of a living person. Take sight. A normal human being is endowed, by his Creator, with the function named 'sight.' Like all such functions, it is both 'physical' and 'spiritual'; that is, both tangible and intangible. The eye is a 'physical' mechanism, similar to that of a camera; it receives vibrations called rays of light, and transmits these vibrations mechanically to 'sees.' The combination of mechanical and intangible perceptiveness is a natural human function, called 'sight.'

"But in order to exercise this function, a person must be in a certain environment, which is named, 'light.' In total darkness, your function of sight remains exactly what it is in brightest light; but you cannot use it. Your 'eye-sight' is not affected by darkness; and it is still your own inalienable 'eyesight'; that only you—no one else—can use, that you cannot give to anyone else, and that another person may destroy but cannot take. So long as you have eyes and the intangible perceptiveness that sees eyes to 'see,' you have the function of sight. If someone else blinds you, all he does is to prevent your using that function; you still have it. He has only changed your environment; he has put you into an environment in which you cannot use your eyesight, or cannot use it fully—perhaps you can see a little under the edge of the blindfold.

Occasionally a chronic sore throat, or repeated attacks of sore throat, may follow an acute attack. This is especially common in someone who drinks alcohol in excess, smokes a great deal or who uses his or her voice often and hard.

In the treatment of this type of sore throat, the general health must be looked after. The particular cause which is keeping the sore throat from getting better should be investigated and corrected if possible.

For example, those sore throats which come from excessive use of the voice may merely require a fairly long period of silence. Gargles, sprays and the like may bring temporary relief. In chronic cases the removal of entrapped tonsils is often desirable.

Connie Knew More About Baseball Than Anyone Else

By HENRY McLEMORE

Mister Mack is gone and buried now, and as an old baseball writer, who new him, appreciated him, and admired him, I knew I had to write something about him.

So I sat down and tried to think of the nicest things I could write, and I finally decided to tell of an evening, not too many years ago, spent in the St. Francis Hotel, in San Francisco.

In the room were such nice people as Pat O'Brien, Jimmy Cagney, Lefty O'Doul, Grantland Rice, Tommy Laird and a few other assorted people who love baseball. We started talking baseball and Ty Cobb started the conversation.

When Ty Cobb, a rough, tough Georgian cries because Connie has died, then you have the answer to what kind of man Mister Mack was.

Don't let me forget to add this one line—in his heart his favorite player was Al Simmons. Simmons was probably the most ungrateful fielder who ever lived. He did a slow trip dance under an easily, but he caught it. When he came to bat it was wise to pull on your crash helmet.

I'd like Connie to know that he didn't have the respect of all the baseball writers, but there wasn't a baseball player who lived who didn't love him and didn't want to listen to him. God rest you, Mister Mack — you gave only fitness and decency to the game.

Father Braun Says Reds Could Win The Olympics

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

It is possible that a corps of robot athletes of the Soviet Union will achieve with glory this year its political duty of running faster, jumping higher and throwing a 56-pound-hitching-weight farther than a select posse of American amateurs.

The Rev. Leopold Braun, the American priest who assumed the order who served 15 years in Moscow as chaplain to one beleaguered colony of diplomats and journalist of varying degrees of patriotism, views the prospect with alarm.

Father Braun writes that 'There is no doubt that all American contestants are true amateurs' where he flings reckless defiance to a venerable truism of the sport business that an amateur is a guy who will not take a check. He probably had his own nose too deep in his books in his college days to permit himself to learn that the corruption in modern sport originated in the centers of high education and that in recent years, especially in New York, collegiate basketball has been a racket comparable to that scared institution of Labor.

The days of the tramp athlete ended with the final graduation of an ideal combination of triumphant meat-heads from Yale. But there ensued a more subtle scheme in which young masses of bone, hair and muscle from New England mill towns are invited and enabled to indulge a lust for ease and the intellectual mysteries unfolded by spelling-blocks at Fordham and New York U. The new type were closely scrutinized throughout the intercollegiate net work by a system of espionage which traced them back to their birth records and on down through kindergarten and high school so that college competition was strictly limited to three years against seven for Johnny Murrell and eight for Harry Wilson, both of West-Point-in-the-barbarian-age before reform.

Gus Sonnenberg, who later served a hitch as heavyweight champion wrestler, played at two lesser citadels of culture before he gave his all for Dartmouth. Selection now was substituted for a mild form of perpetuity and, though these grinning, docile blemishes got little money and Sonnenberg vowed that he lived mostly on apples at Hanover, they were, nevertheless official gladiators. They were sought out, formally engaged to play football and excused from all but minimal risk of brainfag in class. Murrell and Wilson were in slightly different case because the West Point curriculum is actually post-high school and a young man, even an athlete who has been exposed to the rigors of three or four years already will hardly fall if he can stay awake.

It may be, as Father Braun moodily apprehends, a terrible fate which confronts our beloved republic with innocent, ill-taught and in many cases, half-trained American athletes confronting dedicated agents of a Godless state who have been 'intensively trained' in every possible branch of competition all year around.

'Never,' says Father Braun, 'does it enter the mind of an American amateur to give up his job to devote seven or eight months a year to intensive sporting training as goes on in the USSR. I know for a fact that Soviet athletes in every branch are trained the year around and excused from the rigid laws of labor discipline with coaches tabulating their performances from month to month and sending the records to the Central Administration of Sports Activities. The cream of the crop, all living meawhole on state stipends, is carefully picked to compete with bona fide amateurs from other countries. The USSR has from 70 to 80 million youths to pick from in the vast Dynamo-Spartak and Lokomotiv sports organizations that government talent scouts are constantly inspecting. On the basis of my first-hand experience I hold that Olympic requirements are not being respected and that the Russians should be denounced.'

I dislike to admonish the Reverend Father and in matters within his professional purview I would drop my lids and nod. But he rushes in to territory strange to him and I glibly remind him of American tennis players of both genders who rode the cushions and sailed the seas for years on end, subsidized with expense accounts from the Florida Real Estate Promotions and California Resort Hotels, some of them with lucrative sidelines in journalism.

So perhaps, because we are a down-beat in amateur sport and our ideals are witted Russians will give our players their needs this time and raise their foul advice above the stars and stripes with agonizing frequency. On the other hand, if we should use the same system, our people probably would win as usual, but at the sacrifice of the pretense, at least, of amateurism, so seldom attended by the observance of the ideal. The Romans beat us to it but we made great strides in our own version of the gladiatorial form starting about the end of the Spanish-American War.

And it does not follow, either, that the State will vanquish our pallid expendables. Hitler tried it with beautiful precision, discipline and spiritual exaltation but Der Fuehrer did 26 miles of roadwork that summer, fleeing the scene so that he would not have to stand and salute Jesse Owens, an American Negro.

Demos Think Nixon Will Be G.O.P.'s Candidate

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Top Democrats' personal, virulent and concentrated derision of Vice President Richard M. Nixon is inspired solely by the belief that the Californian will be the Republican Party's 1956 Presidential nominee. They seek to "tear him down" and "give him hell," to use Trumanesque vernacular, now because the lateness of the conventions will leave so little time for mudslinging.

Even if Ike does run, he has announced that he will do no "barnstorming." While he conducts a White House porch campaign and delivers several carefully planned television speeches, Nixon will tour the countryside with all the publicity and paraphernalia which normally accompany a President or a Presidential candidate. "Dick" will be the on-the-spot target.

Again, if Eisenhower should feel able to make the race, his health will inevitably focus unusual attention on the behavior and the qualifications of his running mate, Truman himself, as well as Senators Kerr and Neuberger, assured this strange twist with his statement that the American people will not "elect a regency or a part-time chairman of the board."

So, like a football team under orders of the coach to incapacitate the opponent's star halfback, the Democrats are out to "get" Nixon. There is no other explanation of their deliberate depreciation of a man who holds such a normally innocuous and inoffensive office.

This strategy brings them into direct conflict with the President. For, by aggrandizing the V.P.'s role more than any predecessor has been honored, Ike is obviously building up Nixon for a possible political crisis.

Nixon has attended almost every meeting of the Cabinet and the National Security Council, presiding in the absence of the President. He has been sent on extremely im-

GOOD DESCRIPTIVE LABELS give us the kind of information we need for best selection of grocery products to fit the needs of our families. They help us tell quality, save time and money, give directions for use, handling, storing, and often ingredient data.

ALL THE IMPORTANT facts about a product appear on a good descriptive label, not just a complicated "key" or chart. Paul S. Willis, President of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, tells us that the food processors are constantly doing research to determine as nearly as possible the type of information the consumer needs in order to select merchandise to fit his particular tastes, habits, and budget. The findings of the manufacturer's research are proudly presented under his brand name, on the labels designed to help sell his products. These labels are changed as often as necessary when new information is developed that may be of further aid to consumer.

When you find this good descriptive labeling on a can or package, then you can be the judge of whether the item will suit your purpose. For instance, with several children in the family who ladie out jams and jellies freely, your budget may suggest quantity — a large jar of jelly at a low price. Or, if it is used sparingly at your house, perhaps a tiny glass of pure fruit and sugar jam at a higher price would be your choice. To avoid waste, there are times when it is more economical, too, to open a small can or package.

Besides reference to ingredients, color, size, net contents, directions for use and storage, etc., a good label often tells the story of unusual nutritive values. A good descriptive label is well worth the reading. For menu suggestions, for a new note on how to serve, and perhaps for a new recipe.

Back in 1890 Grandma had none of these advantages. Labels identified a few favorite remedies for aches and pains, and perhaps her pet brand of soap. But she didn't need labels for most of her groceries, as there were practically no packaged or canned items on the grocery shelves. Distribution was pretty strictly local, and the homemaker had to rely on the kind of foods her neighbors chose to produce, or the kind that could be produced in the immediate area.

Modern labeling and packaging are two important steps in the long line of essential processes and services between the field and the family table, as food and other grocery products move along the Life Line of America!

Prayer Day Rite Planned By Guild

MATURE PARENT

"Within the last six weeks," writes the mother, "our 11-year-old girl's best friend has taken up with a youngster who has just moved into our neighborhood. Where she was in and out of our house all the time, Carol has to beg her to come over now. When she does come she leaves Carol so mopey nobody can get a word out of her. How can we make our child understand how foolish she is to let everyone see how hurt she is?"

Not hurt, I think. Just angry. If Carol's mother has been telling her she's "hurt," it might be well to change the word to "angry." Because by calling what a girl feels "hurt," we convey a certain Nice Nellie recoil from the hot, ugly, aggressive emotion almost inevitable in this situation.

Yet it may be the admission of anger that can free her from this objectionable dependence on her friend.

Carol's anger, fully left, can burn up her unrealistic hopes of other girls. In the heart of it, her belief in her friend as the Perfect One will have to crack — and with it, the expectation that this relationship is all she needs.

Out of her fully felt anger will come the realization that she can no longer rely on this other girl's energies to give her companionship — but must look to her own.

Gradually, the anger will cool into solid conviction — and then quite suddenly our mopey child will start fiddling social ideas so fast we won't be able to keep up with her.

But if we allow the anger we squeamishly call "hurt" to continue unadmitted and unfeared, the mopeiness may continue, too.

Instead of lavishing great sympathy on it, let's help Carol express her anger in direct accusation of her friend instead of martyrdom of herself.

Anger always has to accuse. If, like Carol, we are dependent on someone else's "niceness" to us, it's very hard to accuse him directly when he angers us. We don't want to risk any situation that would leave us alone without his support. And we don't want to try to soothe our anger into believing it's just "hurt."

It's not soothed. Denied direct accusation, it starts working on the indirect kind. It gets us to turn ourselves into pitiable objects. Somehow, we're going to get that label "brute" on him, even if we wreck ourselves to do it.

Mrs. J. B. Howe Speaks On Europe At Civic Culture Club Guest-Day Tea

Mrs. J. B. Howe of Panhandle told of her recent trip to Europe and showed colored slides she had taken during the guest-day tea of the Civic Culture Club Tuesday afternoon in the City Club Room.

Mrs. Howe was one of 350 women who attended the first convention of the International Federation of Women's Clubs in Geneva, Switzerland. She told the women the convention began in Philadelphia, Pa., and continued for two days in Geneva. She explained the group flew to Switzerland and was the largest group of women that has ever gone together by air.

Mrs. Howe pointed out that the convention included speakers and panel discussions on such subjects as international problems, family and home relations, children, working mothers and health.

The women visited approximately 150 countries, Mrs. Howe stated, with part taking an extra trip to the Scandinavian countries and another part, the group she accompanied, taking an extra trip to the Holy Land. She explained it was called an international good-will tour of the Federated Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Howe said the women toured Geneva and the area, went through the Alps into Austria, down the middle part of Italy to the Island of Capri, up the southern coast of Italy to the Riviera, into France to Paris and back to Brussels, Belgium, which had been their first stop enroute to Geneva after leaving Nova Scotia. From Brussels they went across the English channel to London from where they took side trips. They then flew back to Brussels from where they traveled to Cairo, Egypt, to Beirut, Lebanon, and then by car to Damascus, Jerusalem and into Israel where they visited the Sea of Galilee. They then went to Tel Aviv, to Athens, back to Brussels and "home."

Mrs. M. M. Moyer, president, presided for the meeting and led the introduction of guests. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Irvin Cole.

The serving table was covered with a red cloth decorated with white lace hearts and trimmed in white. The centerpiece was an arrangement of red carnations and white stock in a silver bowl, flanked by white tapers in silver holders.

Refreshments of cookies, spiced tea, nuts and gumdrops topped with red hearts were served. Mrs. M. M. Moyer, presided at the silver tea service.

Guests were registered by Mrs. Katie Vincent, and Miss Linda Skewes provided background piano music. In the receiving line were Mrs. Moyer, Mrs. D. W. Coffman, vice - president; and Mrs. Irvin Cole, fine arts chairman.

Hostesses were members of the social and special committees, including Mrs. A. D. Hills, Lloyd Kuniz, R. E. Dauer, and Ophelia Morris, social; and Mrs. John Brandon, H. G. Roberts, Henry Link and W. C. Scott, special.

Manners Make Friends

If you receive an invitation to a wedding and reception and can't go you should send a wedding gift to the bride, anyway. Whether or not you should send a gift doesn't depend on whether or not you can attend the wedding. If you are a friend of her or the groom or of either of their families and receive a wedding invitation it is proper to send a gift.

Even if the bride lives a thousand miles from you.

Women See Funny Side Of Difficulties More Often Than Males, Imogene Says

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY NEW YORK — UP — Wives see the funny side of their domestic difficulties more often than the general male public realizes, Imogene Coca has concluded in recent years.

Miss Coca decided this after reading hundreds of letters from women. To her surprise, when she was getting into hot water regularly as a housewife in comedy sketches with Sid Caesar on television, Miss Coca received scores of letters that stated: "You reminded me a great deal of myself."

The hectic household scenes which struck such responsive chords among women watchers showed Imogene trying to get out of some kind of a jam which she usually had brought on herself.

"Usually I created the problem," Miss Coca recalled, "but it finally came out so that I didn't have to suffer for it."

She described one such sketch where she had denied the family car fenders rather seriously and was trying to avoid telling her TV husband what she'd done. By the time the sketch ended she had made her husband so happy that she remembered to pay the car insurance premium he was completely unconcerned about the damage.

"I don't know why so many women seemed to identify themselves with me, but they did."

The committee discussed the 1956 plan as it pertained to "displaced" schools, Byers said, such as Iowa, a District 4 member located in District 5, Navy, a District 2 member located in District 3, and others in similar situations.

Harvesters Leave For Odessa; Prepare For Crucial 2nd Game

Harvesters Must Win Both Games To Win Championship

By TOMMIE ELLIS

The Pampa Harvesters left this morning at 8 for Odessa, the site of the crucial playoff contest for the Harvesters. The boys, 15 of them, and Coaches Clifton McNeely and Terry Culley, were going down by car and will be staying at the Lincoln Hotel.

Four of the Shockers will be making the trip for the second game of the three-game playoff for the championship of the 1-AAAA district. The Green and Golders will have their backs to the wall in this second game after falling to the red and white-clad Odessa Bronchos 75-73 in an overtime thriller.

Gene Brown dumped in two of his 39 points in the final seconds and Jerry Pope dumped in a free toss but the Bronchos still had a two-point lead as the extra three-minute period ended.

San Angelo defeated the Harvesters in San Angelo last year in the playoffs. The Pampa Harvesters then came back in the second and third games and won the title. San Angelo surprised the Green and Golders with a 54-48 licking in the opener.

Pampa came back the following night, and topped the Bobcats, 53-45, in the second game and trounced them again the third night by a humiliating 71-55 mark.

The Harvesters had the advantage last year as they played the two crucial contests on their home court after losing to the Bobcats in San Angelo.

The shoe is on the other foot this year as the Green and Golders lost their only home-played contest in an overtime period. Pampa led the Tuesday night game at the end of the first period but Odessa stretched out and came up with a two point lead at the halftime. The Bronchos had a five point lead with three and one-half minutes left but the Harvesters whittled away at it and tied the contest at 70-70 as time ran out.

Many fans and scribes feel the Green and Golders were in need of rest following the hard-fought contest with Berger but some think the over-confidence of the boys is what defeated them. Both could play major role in the outcome of a game.

The Harvesters have a tremendous task ahead, if they come from behind after losing their home game. The Odessa Bronchos showed their determination Tuesday and will be tough to stop at home.

The winner of the 1-AAA Adistrict will meet the El Paso High Tigers in bi-district playoff games.

The Tigers won the Border City loop and are awaiting the decision of the champions of this conference. The teams will play a two-of-three series just as Pampa and Odessa are doing this week.

The Pampa Harvesters defeated the Jefferson El Paso Foxes 68-43 in El Paso and came back to Pampa and won the second contest 77-56 to gain their third berth in the state finals in three years.

In the previous two years the Green and Golders went undefeated as they entered the championship contest in Austin. Last season they had a rough go of it as they lost one game to each of the teams they met in the playoffs.

They placed fourth in the state meet, bowing to the Waco Tigers, 67-61, in the semi-final contest and losing to the Beaumont Purple, 62-52, in the consolation contest.

"Has Coach Clifton McNeely's luck run out?" is a question many Panhandle sports fans are asking.

Defending Champ Of Figure Skating Opposed By Brother

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany — UP — Slim Hayes Alan Jenkins of Colorado Springs, Colo., found two fellow Americans his chief rivals, as usual, Thursday as he opened his bid for a fourth straight world figure skating championship.

The 22-year-old defending rink king was opposed by Robbin Robertson of Long Beach, Calif., and his brother, David Jenkins, who finished second and third behind him in the recent winter Olympics. Hayes is a heavy favorite to win the crown again in the four-day tournament opening here Thursday. But experts believed he will have to pile up a huge lead in Thursday's part of the competition, the school figures, in order to stave off Robertson's efforts in the free skating which concludes the event Friday.

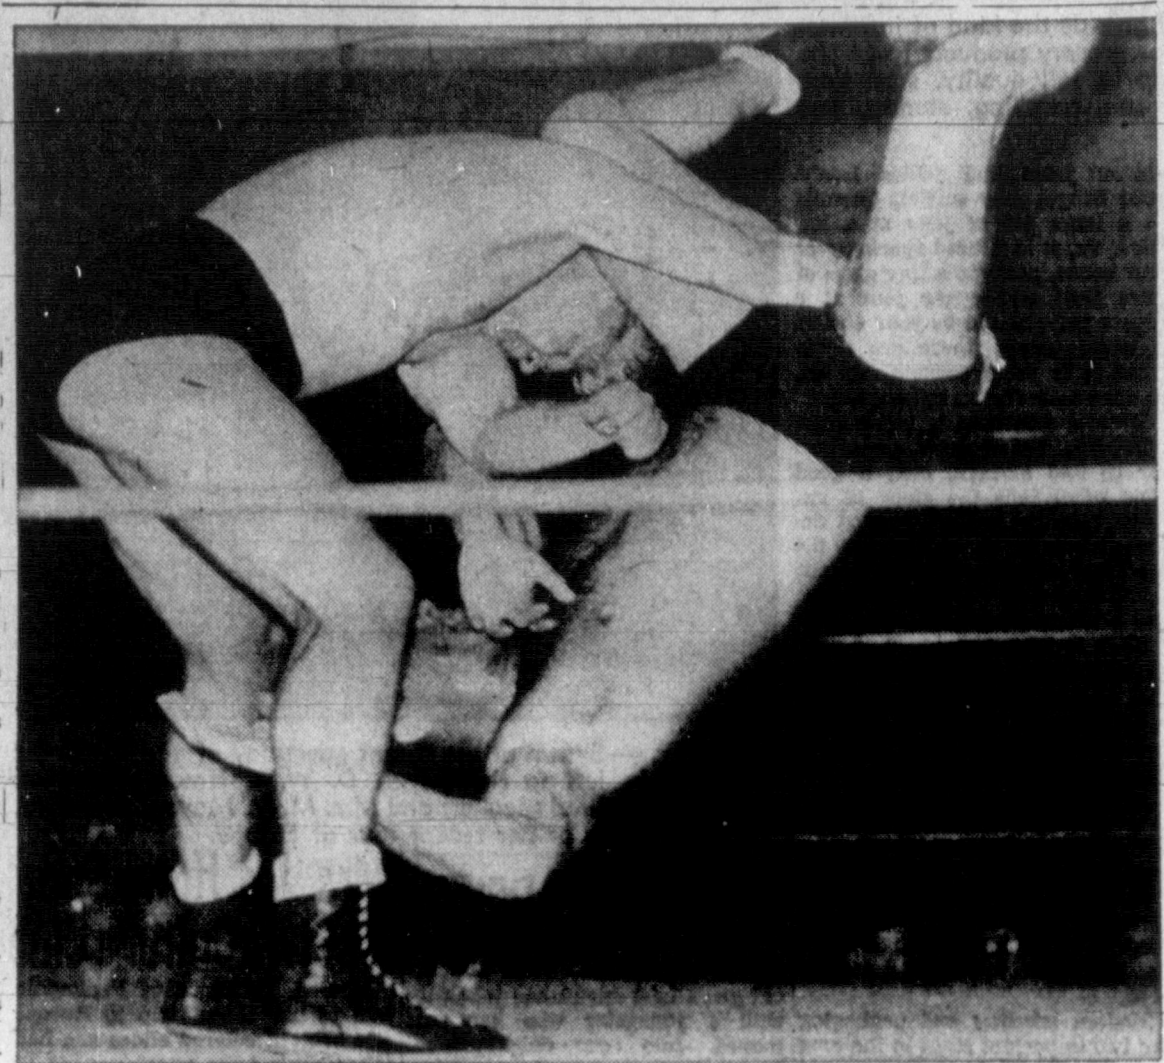

Experts do not see any chance at all that competitors from other nations will be able to break into the top three in the final placings. Alain Giletti of France, considered the world's best outside of the Americans, was unable to turn the trick in the Olympics and he is unable to compete here because of illness.

However, the story is different in the other event on Thursday's opening program—the pairs event. Here, the favorites are from Austria, Canada, and Germany.

Picked for the title in this event are Olympic champions Elisabeth Schwarz and Kurt Oppelt of Austria. The Canadian team of Frances Dufes and Norris Bowden is rated almost even, however, and will be going all out to avenge the loss in the Olympics. The German team of 12-year-old Marika Killu and Franz Ningel is picked for third, but given no chance to finish higher.

Twelve nations are represented in the different events: Australia, Britain, France, Holland, Italy, Canada, Austria, Switzerland, Spain, Czechoslovakia, the United States and Germany.

Competition in the women's event, in which Americans Tenley Albright of Newton, Mass., and Carol Heiss of Ozone Park, N.Y., are the favorites, will open Friday.

CHAMPIONSHIP ACTION — Gentleman Ed Francis is shown here as he slammed Big Bob Geigel to the canvas in the second fall of their Championship match last night. The Junior Heavyweight Championship of the world was at stake as Geigel and Francis tangled. The match ended in disqualification of both wrestlers and the "Belt" was retained by Francis. ## Tension Mounts As Cagers Near End Of 1956 Season

by UNITED PRESS
A near-riot in Chapel Hill, N.C., and a fantastic "slowdown" game in Fort Worth gave evidence of rapidly-mounting tension in college basketball Thursday as the conference races hit the homestretch.

Fists were swung by players and hundreds of fans in the closing minute of Wednesday night's thriller at Chapel Hill as North Carolina edged out a 77-73 triumph over Wake Forest to seize undoubted first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

And pennies were pitched on the Fort Worth court as Southern Methodist outlasted Texas Christian 26-22 to retain a 1-1-2 game lead in the Southwest Conference.

North Carolina broke out of a three-way tie with Wake Forest and North Carolina State by this victory, but the Tar Heels didn't take command of the game until the closing seconds. The score had been tied 19 times and the lead had changed hands 14 times. At the final whistle, Jerry Vayda of the Tar Heels and Jim Gilley of the Deacons collided and started swinging.

Order Restored Quickly
Players and fans swarmed onto the court and began slugging and scuffling. Police and the coaches restored order quickly and, when the smoke cleared, Lemmie Rosenbluth had scoring honors for the game with 33 points.

At Fort Worth, Texas Christian Coach Byron Brannon sent his team on the court with orders to pass the ball at least 25 times before each shot. SMU, ranked No. 8 nationally by the United Press board of coaches, met stall with stall and the result was a half-time score of 12-11 in favor of TCU.

SMU was leading 25-20 with two minutes when Texas Christian suddenly started running in an effort for a wild finish in which they might grab victory. But the Frogs missed all their hurried shots and SMU moved its perfect league record to 8-0.

Things were exciting, but more normal at Peoria, Ill., where St. Louis downed Bradley 73-62 to tie idle Houston for first place in the Missouri Valley Conference. The Bills rallied from an early 10-point deficit to win as Grady Smith set the scoring pace with 22 points.

St. Francis of Brooklyn, ranking with San Francisco as the only major-college unbeaten teams in the nation, extended its record to 18-0 with a 94-74 rout of Brooklyn College. Danny Mannix scored 19 for the Terriers, who now are only three games from a perfect season before they go into the National Invitation Tournament.

In other leading games Temple, ranked No. 9 nationally, rallied from nine points down with 5-2 minutes to play to nip La Salle 40-37; Louisville, ranked No. 5, ran its record to 20-2 by drubbing Kentucky Wesleyan 84-74; Dayton, ranked No. 2, pushed its record to 19-1 by drubbing Memphis State 95-71; Yale whipped Pennsylvania 85-71; Tulsa beat Drake 76-61; Princeton crushed Harvard 93-61; Navy sank Gettysburg 73-44.

Knockouts Highlight State Bouts

FORT WORTH — UP — Three knockouts and two TKOs highlighted a 25-bout card as the 20th annual Texas Golden Gloves Tournament got underway Wednesday night at Will Rogers Memorial Coliseum.

Some 3,906 fans watched the action. A 26-bout card is set Thursday night.

The best fight of opening night was a slugfest between Donald Barnett of Wichita Falls and Bonifacio Aldaco of Abilene in the featherweight division. Barnett took the decision over his less-experienced foe but not until after a bloody three rounds.

Medalist Team Of Brown, Quast Go Into Semifinals

PALM BEACH, Fla. — UP — The medalist team of Anne Quast and Jay Walcott Brown marched into the semifinal round of the Palm Beach mixed foursome golf tournament, rapidly picking up support as a result of victories over "big name" players.

In one of Thursday's matches, Miss Quast, 18-year-old University of Washington student, and Brown, a 53-year-old Manassquan, N.J., banker, met Barbara Little of Milwaukee and W. B. Merry of West Palm Beach.

In the other, Jane Nelson of Indianapolis and William Hyndman of Philadelphia faced Beverly Gamon of St. Paul, Minn., and Robert Knowles of Aiken, S.C.

Miss Quast and Brown established themselves as definite title threats on Thursday when the defeated Barbara Romack and Dick Chapman, both former National Amateur champions, and Wednesday they followed that up by beating former National champion Willie Turnesa of Knoxville, N.C., and Mrs. Philip Cudons of Montclair, N.J., 3 and 1.

Texas Christian Scores SMU In 26-22 Tilt

By UNITED PRESS

Slow-motion basketball Wednesday night almost cost first place Southern Methodist its perfect Southwest Conference record, but the Mustangs finally outlasted Texas Christian 26 to 22 in the lowest scoring league game of this season.

TCU Coach Buster Brannon, frustrated by a previous 105-64 lacing by the Methodists, told his boys before the game to "pass the ball around at least 25 times before you shoot" in a deliberate offense calculated to give the Frogs the best chance of improving their 3-18 record. It almost worked, too, for his team held a 12-11 intermission lead.

But SMU countered with a cautious, "deep freeze" attack of its own that produced a final score that read more like a halftime result.

When it was over both Brannon and SMU Coach Doc Hayes seemed jovial enough, Brannon because his team had held SMU to its closest conference victory margin of the year and Hayes because his team led the loop by two full games over Rice and Arkansas with an 8-0 record.

Only Fans Unhappy
About the only unhappy persons in Fort Worth's public school gym were the fans who had come to

Not a single field goal was made during the last 13:10 of the game; but SMU hit on six free throws to two for the Frogs. Players would chat with each other out on the floor and Coach Hayes would pause between frequent trips to the water cooler to talk things over with Coach Brannon.

With two minutes left in the game and SMU leading 25 to 20, TCU suddenly broke out of their zone defense and tried to rush the Mustangs and win with a fast finish. All the Frogs could manage was two points on free throws and the Mustangs countered with a charity toss of their own to win by four points, the lowest scoring game since Arkansas beat Baylor 36 to 31 last week.

It was quite a contrast for the usually high-scoring Mustangs who set an all-time high total scoring record in their last game Tuesday a week ago with a 109 to 96 victory over the University of Tex-

Basilio, Saxton To Sign Contracts For Tile Bout Today

CHICAGO —UP— Formal contracts for a championship fight in the Chicago Stadium March 14 will be signed Thursday by welterweight king Carmen Basilio and challenger Johnny Saxton.

The bout originally had been scheduled for Wednesday night, but was postponed when Basilio got a virus infection that interrupted his training.

Which Pays More College Or Professional Football?

By HAL WOOD
SAN FRANCISCO —UP— Which pays more for its football players, teams in the national professional league, or the major universities?

Some of the club owners in the professional league are starting to wonder—and so are the fans. Look at recent developments:

Coach Chuck Taylor of Stanford reveals that his school's alumni have a fund that amounts to $85,000 annually, used to purchase scholarships for prospective athletes at Stanford.

in salaries while he was attending the University of Washington.

This same University of Washington is in trouble with the PCC over its so-called "slush fund" of many thousands of dollars to aid athletes through college.

Taylor says his fund is perfectly legal: "The Pacific Coast Conference allows 60 grants-in-aid for athletes," says Taylor. "But Stanford University officials won't give any. So our alumni band together and donate the money for the scholarships. Tuition at Stanford is $750 per year, so this $85,000 fund takes care of the tuition for about 110 athletes."

Floyd Leads Scoring

NEW YORK —UP— Furman's Darrell Floyd seized a huge lead in the national basketball scoring race Thursday over Robin Freeman of Ohio State, thanks to a tremendous defensive job done on Freeman by Illinois.

Freeman had been leading the race by a narrow margin but last Saturday was held to just 12 points, the lowest total of his three-year varsity career, as Illinois, the nation's No. 3 team in the rankings by the United Press board of coaches, trounced Ohio State 111-84.

As a result, official NCAA weekly statistics released Thursday show Floyd on top with 33.4 points per game and Freeman second with 32.2. A week ago, Freeman had a 33.9 mark to Floyd's 33.8.

The defensive job done on Freeman by the Illini was the best on a national scoring leader since Jan. 7, 1950, when Chet Gierman of William and Mary, then leading the country was held to 12 points by Washington and Lee.

The two top contestants for the title have a comfortable lead over their nearest rivals, making it a two-man race. Dan Swartz of Morehead State is third at 25.9 points per game, followed by Julius McCoy of Michigan State with 25.4 and Tom Heinsohn of Holy Cross with 26.1.

Joe Holup of George Washington, who finished second in last year's race for the basket shooting average title, is leading this year's race by a comfortable margin. He has canned 444 of his shots to .509 for Hal Greer of Marshall. Holup also leads the nation in rebounding, recovering 258 of the rebounds in the games his team has played to .240 for Jerry Harper of Alabama.

Vic Molodet of North Carolina State regained the lead in free throw shooting with an .868 average to .864 for Bob McCarty of Virginia.

Bandit Strikes Arizona Bank

TUCSON, Ariz. —UP— A lone bandit, believed carrying a nickel-plated toy pistol, held up the Southern Arizona Bank & Trust Co.'s Broadway Village branch office for $14,000 Wednesday.

The Tucson police department said the man walked into the bank at 10:36 a.m. and handed teller Eunice Dawson a note in a manila folder, reading "Put all cash in here. See that little girl. If you don't she'll get it."

Mrs. Dawson said she saw the little girl in the bank, but did not know who she was. Officers were unable to identify her.

The teller described the bandit as about 26 years old, wearing a blue-gray suit with a western bowtie, and black gloves. He was wearing a hat and dark glasses.

Unidentified Sub Reported

BANGKOK, Thailand, Thursday, —UP— American and British destroyers were reported Thursday to have sighted an unidentified submarine in the South China Sea Monday.

Robert Pierpont, a Columbia Broadcasting System newsman, said he learned of the incident from American naval officers in Bangkok.

Pierpont said British destroyers first picked up the undersea craft on their radarscopes. He said American naval officers told him that a U.S. destroyer picked up the same submarine on its own radar a few minutes after the British discovered it.

It was presumed the unidentified submarine was either Chinese Communist or Russian.
