United States Lifts Shipment Embargo

Ike Gives State Department O. K. To Lift Arms Embargo

By DONALD J. GONZALES
WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 — UP — The United States Saturday night lifted its embargo on arms shipments to the Middle East.

President Eisenhower authorized the State Department to cancel the 43-hour-old arms embargo.

The decision cleared the way for the immediate shipment of the 18 light M-41 tanks to Saudi Arabia, which brought about the embargo at 12:30 a.m. Friday morning.

"The suspension is now lifted," State Department press officer Lincoln White told reporters.

The action also is expected to improve Israel's chances of getting some additional military equipment, but White said Saturday night's action was not related to Israel's bid for up to $64 million in American arms.

The 4,000-word statement released by the State Department said the embargo was ordered to determine whether the tank shipment was being made in compliance with U.S. laws and policies "with respect to the maintenance of peace and stability in the area."

Acting Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. presided over a series of day-long meetings at the State Department which led up to reversal of the brief embargo. Hoover went to Capitol Hill during the afternoon to inform Chairman (See EMBARGO, Page 3)

Ike Gone Hunting Again

By MERRIMAN SMITH
THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 18 — UP — President Eisenhower went gunning for quail again Saturday, sharpening his shooting eye like a true sportsman and testing his stamina as a matter of practical politics.

In playing golf and spending long hours with a shotgun in the broom-sage fields of the Milestone plantation of Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, Mr. Eisenhower was accomplishing several purposes:

1. He was getting relaxation and forms of recreation denied him since his heart attack of last Sept. 24.

2. He was following the advice of his doctors by stepping up his rate of physical exertion to toughen him for more active days ahead in Washington.

3. He was finding out for himself just how much body endurance he has in the wake of a coronary thrombosis; finding out where to expect the point of undesired fatigue.

The President, who arrived here from Washington last Wednesday, conceivably pondered his second term decision as he rested and relaxed on the Humphrey estate. It was difficult to determine, however, when he has had much time for solitary thought.

Much has been made, outside Thomasville, about his "lonely decision," but for the most part since his arrival here, he has been with other people, except when sleeping or resting, and engaging in what seemed to be purely recreational activities—hunting, golfing, playing bridge and painting.

Mayor Proclaims Engineer Week

Engineers Week in Pampa was proclaimed by Mayor Lynn Boyd Friday in conjunction with National Engineers' Week to be observed on a nation-wide scale Feb. 19-25.

The week is being held in recognition and honor to the engineers and the engineering profession, now recognized as one of the basic professions.

Part of the proclamation reads "as much is owed by all of us to the comparatively few who make up this great profession, who have pioneered and brought to fruition many of the benefits of our economic and industrial well being, through the protection of life, health and property, by developing ways and means of providing transportation, communication, water, power, light, and sanitation, and beneficial use of our petroleum, mineral and other natural resources."

Livestock Show To Start Tomorrow

The annual Top O' Texas Stock Show gets underway here Monday with judging in the Junior Livestock division.

The twelfth annual Top O' Texas Hereford Breeders Association show will start with judging at Recreation Park on Tuesday, at 1 p.m., to be followed by the sale Wednesday at 1 p.m.

The junior livestock show judging will begin Monday and the sale will be held at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Reds May Lead U. S. In Some Missiles

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 — UP — Air Secretary Donald A. Quarles believes Russia may be ahead of the United States in "some few elements" of the guided missile race. But he also is convinced that no Russian weapon now in sight will "materially affect the balance of military power."

In guided missile development "as a whole," Quarles is confident the United States is "probably well ahead" of Russia.

The Air Force chief's analysis was given to the House Military Appropriations subcommittee, in secret testimony Feb. 10. The testimony was made public Saturday after some deletions for security purposes.

Some Democratic senators, notably Stuart Symington (Mo.) and Henry M. Jackson (Wash.), have warned recently that Russia is on the verge of perfecting an "intermediate" (1,500-mile) range missile. They have charged that U.S. missiles were lagging, and have demanded an all-out "crash program" to keep Russia from achieving a strategic advantage that would upset the balance of power.

Discounting these alarms, Quarles told the House subcommittee that:

- "In many aspects of the guided missile program, taken as a whole, we are probably well ahead of them, though in some few elements we may be behind. This is almost precisely the same view expressed by President Eisenhower at a recent news conference.
- The United States is working on long-range missiles with "all practical speed." The effort has "the highest priority" but is "not what we used to call a 'crash program'" because it does not involve "guessing and taking chances" as is done under such programs.
- America's long-range B-52 jet bombers "can do a better job of delivering A-bombs and H-bombs" for some time to come than anybody can hope to do with missiles of any kind." By five years from now, missiles may be important "supplementary" weapons, but bomber fleets would still be the decisive weapons of a global war fought in the early 1960's.
- Russia already has plenty of medium-range bombers that can deliver A-bombs in Europe with more precision than any missile now in sight. "Therefore, they know and we know that the mere addition to their arsenal of a 1,500-mile missile to do the same job would not materially affect the balance of military power between the two blocs."
- Even development of an intercontinental (5,000-mile) range missile of any accuracy that is likely to be possible within the next decade will be "only a marginal advantage" over present bombers, and will not be a completely new and revolutionary thing."

Negro Leader Killed Saturday

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 18 — UP — Dr. Thomas H. Braver, Negro physician who is a local NAACP leader and a member of Georgia's Republican state central committee, was shot to death Saturday night in a small department store.

Brewer was shot seven times in the F&B department store, located in a part of the city where the white and Negro residential areas meet, and was dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Police said they were holding Lucio Flowers, the white owner of the store, for investigation and questioning. It was not immediately known whether they planned to accuse Flowers of the shooting.

Grand Champion

G. O. P. To Back Probe Of Lobbying

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH
WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 — UP — Senate Republican Leader William Knowland Saturday pledged GOP support for a "full investigation" of the kind of lobbying which caused President Eisenhower to veto the natural gas bill.

But he questioned whether the Senate Elections subcommittee, now planning a general inquiry into lobbying and election campaign practices is the group to do the job. Knowland told reporters the subcommittee might "pigeon-hole" its primary responsibility of policing the primaries and election of 1956 if it takes on an extra task.

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okl.) said meantime that he believed President Eisenhower was laying the groundwork for a weaker GOP candidate to run for President when he vetoed the bill Friday.

Monroney, floor manager of the ill-fated bill, said the veto was "further indication that he (Mr. Eisenhower) won't run again" and is (See PROBE, Page 3)

Jr. Livestock Show Is A Success Here

The Pampa Lions Club Gray County Junior Livestock Show Saturday saw a total of 26 calves and 28 barrows exhibited by FFA and 4-H Club boys from McLean, White Deer, Groom and Pampa.

Winning top honors with his Grand Champion Barrow was Larry Smith from McLean and Jim Green, Gray County 4-H, won the Grand Champion Hereford calf award.

Ray Siegmund, judge from Wheeler, named the 212 pound barrow of the McLean 4-H boy as Grand Champion and the barrow exhibited by Robert Anderwald of White Deer as the Reserve Champion.

The Grand Champion Hereford calf weighed 1010 pounds, and placed first in the senior division. The Reserve Champion calf was shown by Alvin Dauter of the Pampa 4-H Club.

Superintendent of the show was Jack Douglas, work unit conservationist, assisted by A. B. Caruth.

The new wash racks at the show barn in Recreation Park were used for cleaning the animals before being shown in the ring.

Gray G. O. P. Head Hits Gas Bill Veto

The President's veto of the Harris-Fullbright natural gas bill has brought a definite hardship upon the wage earning people of Texas and all oil and gas producing states, according to the opinion of George B. Cree, Jr., who is Republican County Chairman.

Cree says that the President's veto of the bill indicates that he is considering running for re-election because "he picked the side that had the most votes." "It was quite a shock to find out that he had reversed himself," Cree said. Companies which have wildcat gas acreage prospects to be drilled are eliminating those prospects from their plans. This, in turn, eliminates a large amount of the drilling crew payroll and future production payrolls, Cree declared.

The many service companies and supply outlets necessary for the drilling and completion of wells will not realize income which would otherwise have been available, he states.

"Indirectly the economy of all Texas will suffer because of this foreseeable reduction in income for labor and services all of which is due directly to President Eisenhower's veto of the natural gas bill," concluded Cree.

Curtis Douglass, attorney for Cree Oil Company, states that the president's veto is a serious blow to our free enterprise system. "I am disappointed beyond expression in the matter," he said. "Every segment of our society will suffer. There is not one class in our society that will escape the hardship that will follow."

In a press release to The News, Douglass says, "I don't know what the outcome will be because things are certainly in a disastrous and chaotic condition. The oil and gas industry is one of the greatest contributors to our national economy and I am, indeed, fearful of the future."

He continues with, "It appears that another step toward national regimentation and complete socialism has been taken. The veto of this bill repudiates and voids all that President Eisenhower had led us to believe that he was fighting for — states rights."

"What shall it profit a man if he loseth his own soul and gaineth a vote?" he concludes.

3 Mishaps Are Reported

Two automobile collisions were reported within the city limits Saturday. Another mishap was reported Friday afternoon.

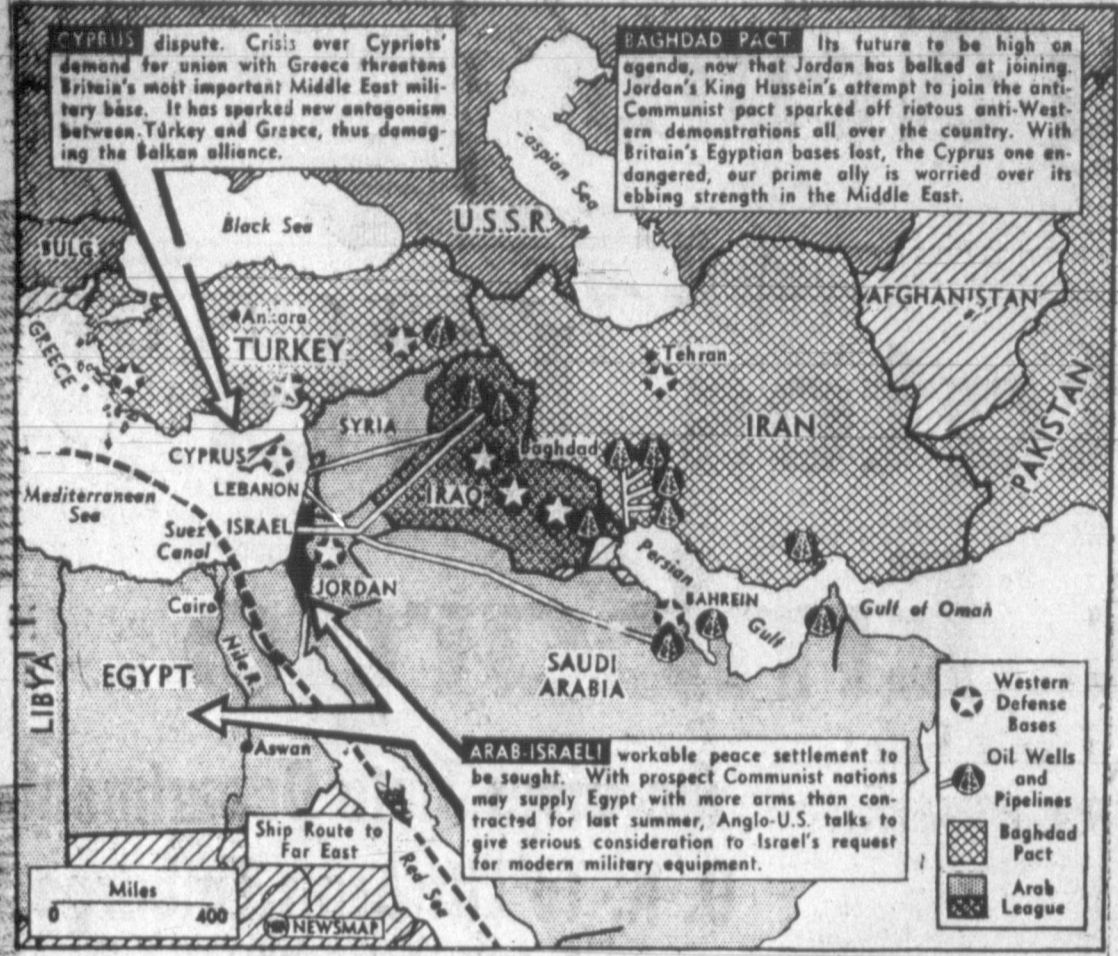

The first collision took place at the intersection of Browning and Cuyler at 5:27 p.m. Friday. Tommy S. Kidwell, 601 E. Browning, driving a '56 GMC pickup, was in collision with Jose J. Gattieres, Canadian, in a '47 Chevrolet. The pickup, belonging to Groniger and King Trucking Co. met with estimated damages of $30, and the Chevrolet encountered no damages.

Mrs. Wanda Smith, 35, 422 1-2 Crest, driving a '55 Studebaker, was in collision with a '53 Mercury driven by Landell W. Saulters, at the intersection of Ballard and Browning at 12:37 a.m. Saturday. The Studebaker met with damages of about $75 and the Mercury encountered damages estimated at $175.

In another collision Saturday morning, Mrs. Smith was in collision with a '55 Chevrolet, driven by Herbert William Gull of McLean, while driving a '53 Plymouth belonging to the Yellow Cab Co. The Chevrolet met with damages estimated at $145.

Khrushchev Discounts Talk He Would Be New Stalin

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst
Nikita S. Khrushchev seems to be going out of his way to discount talk that he wants to be a new Josef Stalin.

He put great emphasis, in his speech of the Communist party congress in Moscow Tuesday, on the official line that Soviet Russia is now under collective leadership.

Some experts have become convinced that Khrushchev has dictatorial ambitions, and that he is not far from his goal.

Others insist that leadership really is collective, and lies in the 11-man presidium of the Communist party.

Certainly Khrushchev is in a position of great power. He is the first secretary of the Communist party. In that capacity he controls the party machinery. It was as secretary general of the party—the same thing—that Stalin made himself supreme.

A Different Atmosphere

But there is a lot of difference between the atmosphere in Moscow now and that which existed for so many years when Stalin ruled.

Stalin was a man of unbridled ambition. He trampled his way to the front over the bodies of men who had been his friends and colleagues. He trusted nobody. Bitterly vindictive, he never forgave a real or a fancied wrong. No Russian leader, however loyal, could feel safe as long as Stalin was the one-man Russian authority.

Unless all surface indications are wrong, Khrushchev is a man of another stamp. He seems to want to be liked. Where Stalin was secretive, Khrushchev is a mixer. He seems to enjoy himself thoroughly in public. His sociability seems to have helped him a lot on his way up.

Khrushchev seemed to be speaking of Stalin when he said Tuesday:

"The central committee (of the Communist party) decisively opposes the spirit of the personality cult, which is alien to Marxism and Leninism, which turns this or that leader into a heroic miracle performer... neither God nor czar will deliver us. We will achieve freedom by our own hands."

Henry Shapiro, the United Press chief Moscow correspondent, is one of those who believe collective leadership is a fact. Shapiro has spent more years in Moscow than any other American news man.

Shapiro wrote regarding the current congress that the crisis foreseen when Stalin died did not materialize. "The same men who voted to make George M. Malenkov premier—and voted to depose him—voted for Khrushchev as party secretary, Shapiro pointed out. Khrushchev and Malenkov seem to be working in harmony, he said.

"Malenkov men are 'Khrushchev' men," Shapiro wrote. "It is pointless for foreign commentators to explain every new appointment to a key position in terms of personal loyalty to this or that individual leader."

Whether that view is right or wrong, it certainly seems to be borne out in news dispatches from Moscow.

But whether Khrushchev is or is not the dictator type, whether or not he aspires to sole leadership, whether or not he is personally likable, does not alter one most important fact. He is a Communist and hates everything the free world stands for.

BOOK PATTERN

By RONALD WATERS
Pampa News Staff Writer

Guest Written This Week
By Mrs. Eleanor Waggoner
Science today is everybody's business.

"Science, Servant of Man," by Dr. Bernard Cohen, instructor in the history of science at Harvard, is a new kind of book about science for the layman. It tells of the scientist's search for basic, theoretical truths, wherever he may find them, and demonstrates that that search is more productive of results for the average citizen than efforts consciously directed toward "practical ends."

The book is a collection of so-called case histories of the development of penicillin, or sulfa drugs; or synthetic rubber and nylon. These stories are fascinating and significant in themselves, but a larger meaning lies beneath the chronological history of discoveries in science.

The need for money to carry on basic scientific research is causing scientists to examine more closely the attitude of the public toward science and research. It has been found that most citizens will support science through taxation or other means if they feel that there will be tangible results. For example, no one hesitates to support cancer or "polio" research, or atomic energy research.

The argument of the book is that all research, even when it seems only theoretical, is vitally important to scientific progress in our scientific age. Dr. Cohen shows by case - history example, again and again, how some of the most valuable discoveries could never have been made had basic, abstract research not been done.

A term which appears frequently throughout the book is "the total scientific situation." It is this factor which controls the "miracle discoveries" of science. For instance, had scientists of a hundred years ago been asked to devote their attention to the production of better artificial lighting, they would have studied fuels, lamp chimney designs, characteristics of wicks, and so on. It is unthinkable that any would have given serious thought to the action of acids on metals, of currents in wires, or any of the other phenomena which have given rise to the practical use of electricity in light bulbs.

So today, to ask a scientist to devote his time to any specific aspect of the sciences may be as unfruitful. No one can foresee the uses of research, or the paths into which one discovery may lead.

Any and all research which enlarges the "total scientific situation" is vital to the nation and to the world. Seemingly unrelated data may be "miraculously" drawn together by a great mind to produce a miracle discovery or even a whole new branch of science.

Dr. Cohen was chosen by a group of scientists to "interpret science to intelligent people who are not themselves scientists." He is the author of two other books on science history, "Science, Servant of Man" is successful in giving to the layman an overall picture of the meaning of scientific research, a vital subject for every thinking person of today. The book is available at the Lovett Memorial Library.

Rash Of Plane Crashes Hits U. S.

By UNITED PRESS
Three military plane crashes in less than 24 hours killed at least 40 persons and in a civilian crash 24 aboard an airliner said only the seat belts saved them from death.

A B-57 still was missing in one of the military crashes, but it was believed he had parachuted to safety.

The worst crash was near Niles, Calif., where 38 Marines died when their four-engine R4D transport plane smashed into a rocky ridge Friday afternoon.

Most Bound Overseas
Five of the dead were crew members, military authorities said. The others, except for a passenger en route to visit his parents in San Francisco, were Marines based at Camp Pendleton, Calif. They were bound for overseas duty.

The plane crashed in a drizzle and mist as it approached for a landing.

A Navy TV2 two-place jet crashed in a wooded area near Taft, Calif., Friday night. California Highway patrolmen said they found one of those who had been aboard in good condition. The other flier had parachuted to safety.

Other Also Jumped
The unidentified survivor said he thought his companion had bailed out safely.

An unidentified jet pilot died near Tower Hill, Ill., Friday when his craft believed to be an Air Force plane, plunged out of a heavy overcast into a rain-soaked field.

A Martin 404 Silver Falcon on an Eastern Airlines flight from Evansville, Ind., to Chicago, flipped over while landing at Owensboro, Ky., but the 21 passengers and three crew members all escaped serious injury.

The passengers said their seat belts saved them from death or serious injury. The plane came down to one side of the runway and observers said a wing tip scraped the ground, cartwheeling the two-engine plane, when the pilot tried to correct his approach.

Derailment Blame Fixed
NAPLES, Tex.—A broken wheel truck was blamed Tuesday for the derailment of 23 cars of an eastbound Cotton Belt railroad freight near Naples Monday. No one was hurt. The train was pulling 66 cars.

Yuba City To Celebrate Christmas

By EDWIN S. CAPPS
YUBA CITY, Calif.—Only seven more shopping days till Christmas in Yuba City.

Christmas will come on Feb. 25 for the 10,000 persons here who were cheated out of their regular Yuletide by a disastrous flood of the Feather River last Dec. 24.

It will be Christmas in every way, regardless of what the calendar says. There will be special church services, a community Christmas party, a visit from Santa Claus and toys for all the kids.

There will even be a last-minute Christmas shopping rush at the stores.

The Christmas in February will not be without its somber side, however. Families still are mourning the loss of 37 persons who are known to have died in the swiftrising flood waters. Others are still missing.

South of Yuba City, in the "peach bowl" agricultural area, flood waters only recently were drained from thousands of acres of orchard land. There may be permanent damage to the trees that represent the livelihood of hundreds of families.

But with the help of outsiders the Christmas spirit has been rekindled in Yuba City. The idea was born in four Southern California Lions clubs and spread rapidly throughout the state.

Lions at Lynwood, Huntington Park, South Gate and Compton, all in the Los Angeles area, began making plans for the event while the Christmas gifts, Yuba Cityans never had a chance to open were still floating in the flood waters around the town.

Youngsters who spent Dec. 25 in Youngsters' shelter in a scattered throughout Northern California, in many cases separated from their families, will have their Christmas party in a huge tent brought up from Hollywood. The San Francisco Lions will present a vaudeville show. Lions at Susanville arranged to truck in a load of Christmas trees.

Prices Of Homes Built Since 1940 Expected To Hold Up

By ROBERT F. MORISON
WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 — UP — Prices of homes built since 1940 are expected to hold up well in this year's market. Those of older vintage may continue to drop. But National Association of Real Estate Boards experts feel that current drives to improve individual homes and neighborhoods may buoy prices somewhat.

The most stable price bracket in the 12 million homes built since 1940 is $12,000-$20,000, an NAREB survey shows. Realtors reported that 66 per cent of the houses put on the market last year sold for as much or more than their original price.

Nothing appears on the horizon which might upset this pattern, NAREB officials say. The size and composition of a city was found to make a difference in the price movements.

Varies With Size of City
In the $12,000-$20,000 bracket, in cities of from 100,000-500,000, 82 per cent of these houses sold for the same price in 1955 as they did in 1954. In cities 500,000 and over, 30 per cent did. However, in the smallest population bracket only 12 per cent were found to have sold for more than they were priced at a year earlier while 22 per cent in the 500,000-and-over cities sold for more.

For the $20,000 and above houses, 11 per cent sold for more in 1955

Underwriter Head Makes Address Here

Ben P. Atkinson, president of the Texas Association of Life Underwriters, who has been instrumental in the passing of several bills in legislature, spoke on the "Insurance Situation in Texas" Friday night before a joint chapter meeting of the Amarillo and Pampa T.A.L.U. associations. Atkinson pointed out that the TALU is sponsoring a large number of LUTEC Life Underwriters Training Courses in the state. Texas ranks fourth in the number of classes and sixth in the number of students, he said, and has gained twice as many students during the past year. Speaking of the present insurance "mess," Atkinson said "what we have now is nothing, thank goodness, but the weeding out of the weak." "I say to you, frankly, let it come!" He indicated the weaknesses of certain contracts and insurance companies that have recently "folded," and suggested that legislative action should be taken to better affect relations between the policy holder and the company. The present situation has not affected reputable agents, he said, nor has it affected the agent's business. He concluded by saying that the Life Underwriters will be recognized for the good they have done. Wyford Wyatt introduced about 18 guests from Amarillo and Bob Hudson introduced the Pampa guests. Bennie-Waller was introduced as a new member of the Pampa Chapter. The speaker was introduced by Ott Shevemaker, who is regional representative for Region 7 and a member of the board of directors of TALU.

JACK BACK ... seeks reelection

Jack Back Runs For Re-Election

Jack Back, county tax assessor-collector, announced Saturday that he is seeking a second term in the office which he has held since 1953. Back has been deputy assessor-collector for 20 years, working in the tax office for about 25 years. He filled out the unexpired term of F. E. Leech, who died in 1953. As head of the office for collecting all state and county taxes, Back handles certificates of titles on vehicles, registrations, and poll tax returns. Issuing car licenses is now taking place, up till April 1. Back served in the U.S. Army in 1943-44 and saw service at Ft. Sill, Okla., and Camp Shelby, Miss. He worked in the inspection and supply department at the old Pampa AF base for two years. A member of the Lions Club for five years, he has served on the board of directors and the attendance committee. Back is also a member of the Chamber of Commerce, and the Knights of Pythias Lodge.
Balikpapan, Borneo's big oil center, handles 2.7 million tons of crude oil a year and employs 4,500 people.

EMBARGO

Walter F. George (D-Ga.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee of the decision. Hoover also contacted the President at Thomasville, Ga.
Affects U.S. Base
The embargo was clamped on after the United Press had reported that the 18 25-ton tanks were at the docks in Brooklyn, N.Y., ready to be loaded aboard the SS James Monroe for Saudi Arabia. The resulting embargo touched off an uproar in Congress and was bitterly protested by Israel, Saudi Arabia and other Arab states. The Eisenhower administration hoped that reversal of the embargo and quick shipment of the tanks to Saudi Arabia would boost American chances of obtaining rights to use the Dhahran Saudi Arabia air base until 1961.

The action also was taken in the fear that failure to deliver the tanks would result in a new Communist arms sale in the Middle East—this time to Saudi Arabia.
Minimum Price Set
The United Press was informed that Saudi Arabia let the United States know "months ago" that delivery of the 18 25-ton tanks was the "absolute minimum" price for continued American use of the vital Dhahran Air Base in Saudi Arabia. The present five-year agreement for the air base expires June 18. The bases are within striking range of Russia's rich Baku oil fields. Saudi Arabia has paid for the 18 tanks, valued at $135,000 each. They have been impounded in New York pending a decision on the arms ban. It was learned that Saudi Arabia in the past months also had negotiated for 18 additional U. S. tanks of the larger M-47 type.

New Business Opens In Pampa

The opening of Byers Vacuum and Machine Co., at 709 E. Frederic, will take place tomorrow under the management of Jack R. Caldwell. Formal opening of the new business will be observed about March 1. The business will carry seven or eight brands of sewing machines and vacuum cleaners and will specialize in rebuilding, service and sales and parts for all makes. For over 30 years, W. R. Byers, owner, has been in the sewing machine business. Caldwell has been selling sewing machines for about 10 years. W. R. Byers, owner, had a similar business in Amarillo for 17 years.

Man Fined On Driving Charge

Otis Eugene Bybee, 43, of Pratt, Kans., pleaded guilty Sat. morning in county court to a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was fined $100 and cost and sentenced to three days in jail. Bybee was involved in an automobile collision at the intersection of Frost and Francis Friday night. He collided with the rear end of a pickup being driven by H. G. Canady, 20, 506 1/2 N. Russell. Damage was negligible.

trying to build up strength for another candidate in the populous north and eastern states where the bill has been "smeared" as penalizing consumers. "It seems to me," Monroey said, "that the pressure for the veto must have come from the Republican national committee, sensing the weakness of a candidate other than Eisenhower to try to put their fences in order in the highly populous states in New England, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and so forth."
Knowland's statement questioning the election subcommittee's right to make the lobbying inquiry indicated a party line dispute may be shaping over which committee should handle the investigation. Although Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) has not formally endorsed the proposed inquiry by elections group the plan is assumed to have tacit support of Democratic leaders. Demands for the investigation grew out of Sen. Francis Case's disclosure that he rejected a $2,500 campaign contribution offered by John M. Neff, a lawyer for the Superior Oil Co., Los Angeles, who had sought his views on the legislation.

Water District Rules In Effect Now

Directors of the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District No. 3, south of Canadian River, met recently to canvass returns of the recent underground district water election, to designate the boundaries of the district, and to include all the land within the original boundary in Carson and Gray County in the water district. Newly elected officers are: A. L. Stovall, Sr., Panhandle, president; Raymond Durette, Panhandle, vice president; and Russell McConnell, White Deer, secretary. There was a vacancy declared existing because all of the territory in precinct No. 5 voted out of the district. The board elected Fred S. Vanderburg, Pampa, to fill the vacancy and redesignated the precinct lines to provide for a fifth director's district within the boundary of the district. The official office of the district was established in the First National Bank building in Panhandle, with A. J. Wise named manager. The rules of the district were adopted and published, as required by law, to go into effect as of Feb. 18, 1956. Application for a well permit must be made to the water board for the drilling of a well that produces more than 100,000 gallons of water per day. These permits can be obtained from the county committee-men of Gray and Carson Counties, who are: Jim McCray and H. R. Pugh of Panhandle; L. C. O'Neil of White Deer; Phil

CIVIL ENGINEER

The pioneer surveyor and civil engineer who can remember the laying of the first brick streets in Pampa, is Albert H. Doucette. He has surveyed a large area of the Panhandle, many sections for White Deer Land Co., and now serves as County Engineer. Doucette was assistant engineer for the laying of the first six inch pipeline from Old Spindletop in Texas. (News photo)

Doucette Honored As Civil Engineer

By RONALD WATERS Pampa News Staff Writer Albert H. Doucette, pioneer surveyor, celebrates his 50th year in Pampa as a civil engineer with White Deer Land Co. on April 9. He has won a special place of honor this week in conjunction with Engineer's Week, which is being held all over the nation. Doucette came to Pampa in 1906 when about 20 people lived here and started to work in a one-story frame building at the corner of S. Cuyler and Atchison (where the Magnolia service station now stands). He immediately set to work surveying the whole country, including sections of Gray, Hemp-hill, Carson, and Roberts Counties. Before he finished he had surveyed a total of 1,122 sections — and with 640 acres in a section — that's a lot of land. At that time the White Deer Land Co. owned 631,900 acres which they later sold except for areas around Pampa and Kings-mill. Ten years later the civil engineer moved into the new office, located at its present site. Winter of 1906 Doucette recalls driving from Le-fors up to Pampa during the winter of 1906. He was in a horse and buggy with C. F. Buckler and the snow was so deep that the running gear of the buggy would barely go over top of it. "I'd say it was at least 18 inches," he says, "when we got in that night, the thermometer stood at zero." That was the biggest snow he can remember. Even before he came to Pampa, Doucette had some interesting experiences. In 1902, after leaving Texas A & M at College Station, he started to work as an inspector for one of the first pipelines built in Texas. The "big" six-inch line ran all the way from Spindletop to Sabine Pass. This was just one year after the discovery of oil at Beaumont. He now holds unlimited capital stock in "one share of hap-piness", a souvenir certificate presented to him on the 50th anniversary of Old Spindletop. In 1902-03 he was assistant engineer for J. H. Kirby Tram railroads and Burrs Ferry, Brownell and Chester in East Texas. Here he drew up maps and plans for the tram railroad that carried timber to the lumber mills. Later he served as assistant engineer for Llano Grande Land and Irrigation Co. and J. D. Withers in Hidalgo County where he made land sur-veys.

engineer, a position he holds to this day (which, incidentally, is his 48th wedding anniversary). During the next four years he constructed Duncan St. north to the county line as part of the old Miami Highway. He engineered construction of the Borger Highway to the county line, and laid concrete pavement south to Le-fors. The original concrete of these streets and roads is still intact today. Doucette also drew up plans for several bridges in this area. The brick paving of Cuyler and other streets was completed in 1927 and Doucette recalls that an Indian laid the brick "up and down Cuyler St." with "about six men handing him brick." Since 1934 Doucette has surveyed land all over the Panhandle and engaged in incidental engineering jobs. He is a charter member of Pampa Rotary Club, a group that he helped to get started about 1926, a charter member of the Pampa Country Club, and former president of the Commercial Club, an organization set up before the Chamber of Commerce came into existence. Basically the work of the Commercial Club was the same as that promoted by the chamber today. During World War I, Doucette served as chairman of the Red Cross. He remembers the making of bandages to send overseas, the knitting of socks, and an auction sale to raise funds. He married Miss Vera LeFors, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry LeFors on Feb. 17, 1908, and celebrated his 48th anniversary last Friday. They have four boys and one girl. The oldest son, Albert F. Doucette, is credit manager for Southwestern Investment Co. here. LeFors Doucette is a public accountant in Amarillo. Berton is a mechanical engineer for Cabot Shops in Pampa, and Mrs. Walter E. Biery lives in Tulsa, Okla. Today — after over a half century in the field of engineering — Doucette is enthusiastic about the new opportunities offered to young men graduating from college. "There's quite a demand for engineers all over," he states, "in fact, there's a 20,000 shortage right now." What the country seems to need is more men with determination and skill, with foresight and intelligence, pioneers — who can plan for tomorrow, he says.

Engineering Projects Several incidental engineering projects were undertaken by Doucette after he started in surveying for White Deer Land Co. He made a preliminary survey of the inter- coastal canal from Fort Arthur to Galveston for the U.S. Engineers in 1908; he resurveyed and established the streets and sidewalk grades for the city of Canadian in 1911, and between 1917-1919 he served as county engineer of Roberts County. He drew up plans and specifications for construction work on roads in and out of Miami. Of the originally surveyed roads, three highways now run over the same land — FM road 282, a Farm - to - Market road south of Miami, and Highway 60 northeast to the county line. While working as city engineer, from 1922-23, he engineered Pampa's first water works and sewer system, surveying the lines and drawing up plans. County Engineer In 1927, Doucette became county

Amarillo Needs Police Applicants

The Amarillo Police Department is in need of ten or more young men who are qualified and have the desire to become policemen. Police work requires men of initiative, and particularly, moral integrity as officers are often subjected to temptation. While most new patrolmen serve some time on motorized patrol, there are opportunities for specialized work in traffic control, accident investigation, criminal investigation, juveniles work, police records and identification, and other specialized work in training and personnel. All applicants must be between the ages of 21 and 25, and must weigh at least 140 pounds, weight must be in proportion to height. They must have a high school education or its equivalent and also must pass a physical examination. The Amarillo Police Department now is under State Civil Service; therefore all applicants must pass a written police entrance examination and must make a suitable grade on a mental ability examination. Starting salary for a patrolman is $275.00 per month plus $10.00 clothing allowance. After six months of satisfactory service a patrolman's salary is raised to $290.00 plus $10.00 clothing allowance. Each man is given 21 days annual leave plus 15 days sick leave per year. Before a new employee is placed to work as an officer he is given two weeks training which includes interrogation, basic criminal law, traffic control, technicals of investigation, use of firearms, first aid, policies, rules and regulations, etc. Persons interested in police work or additional information, please contact Insp. Claude B. Evans, Amarillo Police Department, 609 Pierce.

Reds Blast Stalin Era

By HENRY SHAPIRO MOSCOW —UP—The Soviet Union Saturday condemned before its people and the world the one-man rule of the Josef Stalin era and denounced major political and economic writings of the late premier. Radio Moscow and all Soviet newspapers, including Pravda, organ of the Communist party, and Izvestia, the government paper, carried details of the attack on "the cult of the individual" and Stalin's published works on history and economics by First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan. Mikoyan's condemnation was made Thursday before the 20th Communist Party Congress but was not released publicly until Saturday. The veteran party leader scored historians, economists, jurists and philosophers of the Stalin era and referred to two victims of the purges of the 30's as "comrades." Stalin's history of communism came under fire and Stalin's last published work, "Economic Problems of Socialism in the USSR," was denounced as incorrect in the speech. Mikoyan assailed the negative and harmful role of certain histories which ascribed "alleged subversive activities to party leaders many years after the event." Some of those leaders were incorrectly assumed to be enemies of the people, Mikoyan said. He lauded the Lenin theory of "collective leadership" and said the cult of the individual which "reigned for 20 years" exerted a negative influence and isolated the Soviet Union from the rest of the world. The annexation of Eau Claire made Columbia, S. C., the second largest city in the Carolinas with an estimated population of 112,000. Only Charlotte, N. C., is larger.

CONSERVATION FARMER — Chosen as the outstanding farmer and rancher in the area by the Gray County Soil Conservation District is Lee R. Smith, of Laketon. He is being nominated for the award in the "Save the Soil and Save Texas" program sponsored by the Ft. Worth Press. (News Photo)

S.C.D. Honors A Laketon Farm Man

Lee R. Smith, Laketon, has been nominated by the Board of Supervisors of the Gray County Soil Conservation District as the outstanding farmer or rancher in the District to compete in the "Save the Soil and Save Texas Award Program" sponsored by the Ft. Worth Press.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith reside approximately 15 miles east of Pampa on a 3,600 acre farm. He came to this country in 1907 and later received a degree in law, working for the Government as an attorney for some 15 years. He returned to the farm in 1941 at which time the Panhandle was just emerging from the dust bowl era.

He found the farm in a badly eroded condition, both from wind and water. A lot of the land around the edges of the lakes had been broken out that was not suitable for cultivation. He immediately set out to plant this land back to grass.

Today, Smith practices stubble mulching on 1266 acres, contour farms 857 acres and seeds the range on 53 acres. He practices range improvement on 275 acres and deferred grazing on 275. Field diversions total 19,913 feet.

He is a firm believer in Diversification terraces and contour farming to control excessive runoff and has a complete system on his farm. His farm is completely on the contour to conserve the moisture where it falls and as a protection against wind.

He practices summer fallow tillage on the contour. In one year, summer fallow, in his estimation will increase production 30 per cent. On one 10 acre plot of land he summer fallowed five years. It produced 64 bushels and 10 pounds of wheat per acre. The remaining wheat on the farm produced 20 bu. per acre. When the soil is properly tilled and the stubble taken care of, it puts organic matter in the soil.

He does not graze his wheat in the winter as a precaution against wind erosion. He feels that he is taking rich organic matter which should be returned to the soil.

Smith has spent a lot of time and money in the eradication of Bindweed. He believes that the use of grasses for competition with the weed is 2-4-D will control this weed.

He is a firm believer in wildlife conservation, has planted cover and feed for the conservation of quail and encourages both their growth and reproduction.

His range is in excellent condition through proper stocking and deferred grazing practices.

Not only does Smith have a very good conservation plan on his own farm but his farm is a model to other farmers in the area.

To him, the soil is a priceless heritage. He made the statement that he believes that we have some of the best land in the world here. If we don't take care of it, it will wash and blow away. If we don't add organic matter back to the soil it will become unproductive.

AUSTIN — Surplus rice totaling 165 freight carloads is destined for shipment to overseas relief centers for distribution by Church World Service and the Christian Rural Overseas program, it was announced Saturday.

The rice, earmarked for Japan, India and Okinawa, constitutes the first shipment by CROP since the release of certain surplus commodities by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, an announcement from Christian Rural Overseas program said.

It was announced at the same time that 100 bales of Texas cotton are being shipped by the Texas CROP organization to Formosa and Korea. The cotton was contributed by individuals, churches and gins in 16 west Texas counties.

The CROP program is sponsored in Texas by the Texas Council of Churches.

Gray County Soil News

To the average farmer in the Gray County Soil Conservation District the thought might occur: What happens to the yearly rainfall that I receive? How might I prepare my farm to utilize the moisture that falls to a better advantage?

To begin with, suppose we receive 17 inches of rainfall yearly. Of the 17-inch rainfall, 5 fall in the form of showers and are not effective moisture. 2.2 inches is lost by runoff. 9.8 inches fall in the form of effective rains. Of the effective rains that fall 6.1 inch moisture is lost by evaporation. 37, inches of moisture is available for plant growth.

In experiment tests it has been proven that when the extra 2.2 inches runoff was saved it increased the production of Milo Maize 24 per cent. Let's ask this question: Could I by proper conservation practices conserve the 2.2 inches of rainfall that runs off each year?

The answer is "yes"; by utilizing a properly designed terrace system, contour farming, together with stubble mulch tillage. This will reduce runoff and slow down evaporation. It has been proven that the soil, when bare, hasn't the ability to soak up the water that it has when it has a cover over it.

When the soil is bare it is more likely to blow and has a tendency to seal over when the rain drops hit it causing excessive runoff and finally gulley erosion.

What you do to-day in regard to conserving your land will be felt in generations to come. "Any nation is just as rich as the soil it depends upon."

Americans Hold More Jobs In '55

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—UP— The Census Bureau reported Saturday that more Americans held full and part time jobs in 1955 than in any other year. The total was estimated at 75.3 million — 3.5 million more than in 1954.

The year-to-year increase was the greatest on record since World War II and contrasted with a rise of only about one million from 1953 to 1954.

Of the 3.5 million increase in the number of workers who actually were employed part or all of 1955, about two-thirds were women.

This brought the number of women who worked during 1955 to the all-time high of 27.7 million, compared with 25.5 million the year before. Men who worked during last year totaled 47.6 million, also a record, against 46.3 million in 1954.

The bureau found that 47.5 million persons, about 63 per cent of the total who worked, had jobs which lasted 50 weeks or more, with paid vacations and sick leave. That number in 1954 was 43.8 million, or 61 per cent.

It also learned for the first time that about 10 million persons had more than one job last year, with about one-quarter holding down two at the same time for at least part of the year.

The Farm Horses And Mules Are On Their Way Out Now

By GAYLORD P. GODWIN
WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 — UP — The farm horse and mule are on the way out.

The old nags and ornery mules once essential to farm work are being replaced by tractor and truck as rapidly as their high-stepping brothers and sisters of the surrey and buggy era bowed to the auto.

The Agriculture Department's Jan. 1 livestock inventory showed only 3,962,000 horses and mules on U. S. farms. This is 8 per cent below a year ago, and about two-thirds less than the 11,950,000 in the 1945 inventory.

Just as the peak population of 21,431,000 horses in 1915 was pulled down by the automobile, the top mule figure of 5,918,000 in 1925 has been reduced by mechanized agriculture. The department no longer gathers separate statistics on the animals. It began lumping them after the 1954 count showed about 3 million horses and fewer than 1.5 million mules.

Emmett B. Hanawald, the department's head livestock statistician, said many of the vanishing animals are slaughtered for dog food. Last year more than 196,000 horses and mules were slaughtered under federal inspection. In 1954, or $62.60 a head. The heaviest commercial corn crop will be supported on a national average of $1.40 a bushel — 81 per cent of parity. This compares with a 1955 support rate of $1.58, or 87 per cent of parity. The new rate was based on the Jan. 15 parity price for corn of $1.75.

World Corn Production — World corn production in 1955-56 now is estimated at a record 6.19 billion bushels. This is 175 million bushels more than the previous record in 1948 and 650 million more than 1954-55 production. Corn production in North America was estimated at 3.434 billion bushels, with 3.185 billion bushels produced by the United States.

Contented Cows — Dairyman Earl Wright of Iowa State College reports that an excited cow at milking time withholds some of her milk which means a loss of butterfat. He concluded the loss withheld could mean enough butterfat loss to lower the milk test.

Cotton Futures Less Active

NEW YORK—UP—Cotton futures trading this week became less active while prices became more two-sided.

After rising three times in a row, prices took a split course, with near by months extending the rise to new highs while new crop months turned lower.

At Friday's close, the list ruled 34 points higher to 20 points lower or up $1.70 a bale to down $1.10 a bale compared with the preceding week.

Anticipating first notice day for the March contract—Feb. 23—and reflecting the steady shrinkage in the certificated stock, the spot month reached 35.80 cents a pound, establishing the highest price on the board in a little more than a year.

A tightening spot situation in the South, coming in the wake of heavy impoundings under the government loan, gave prices an additional lift.

Canine Scholars
WEST HAVEN Conn. — UP — The town dog warden has appealed to parents to keep dogs confined when their masters and mistresses leave for school. He said so many dogs are tagging along to school that they have begun to disrupt classroom work.

Weekly Grain Report

CHICAGO —UP— The Chicago grain futures markets for the week were quiet, adopting a standby attitude because of uncertainty over the farm bill being discussed in Washington.

Compared to Friday a week ago, wheat was 3/4 to 1 1/2 cents a bushel higher; corn unchanged to 1/4 higher; oats 1/4 to 1 1/2 lower; rye 1/4 to 3/4 higher; soybeans 1/4 to 5/8 higher; lard 7 to 35 points a 100 pounds higher.

The cash grain markets were mixed with wheat and corn advancing, oats going down, and soybeans up a shade from the previous week. Strength in soybean oil and cotton seed oil futures brought buying into soybeans throughout the period.

Buying of wheat futures was credited to mills and exporters, while nearby corn deliveries lagged because of selling due to larger than expected receipts in the cash market.

Demand for March wheat again was attributed to shorts who were concerned over the small deliverable stocks in the Chicago area. New crop wheat futures were hit by favorable crop and weather news from the southwest.

Cash Grains In Advance

PORT WORTH —UP— USDA— Weekly grain:

Most cash grains advanced this week at southwest markets, the Agricultural Marketing Service reported Saturday.

Milo went up 5c per 100 pounds, white corn 3c a bushel, yellow corn 1 to 2 1/2c a bushel and wheat 1c a bushel. Barley lost a penny a bushel and oats 1/4 to 3/8c a bushel.

These are net price changes from Friday through Friday, based on wholesale carlots, Texas common freight rate points.

The slight rise in wheat took prices to the highest level since July, 1955. This left quotations for No. 1 hard offerings at $2.40 1/2 to $2.50 1/2.

Milo closed Friday at $2.20 to $2.25. No. 2 white corn was quoted at $1.69 to $1.73 and No. 2 yellow at $1.61 1/2 to $1.63 1/2. No. 2 white oats brought 83 1/4 to 85 1/2c a bushel and barley $1.20 to $1.23.

Trade sources report very little movement this week of any grain. However, favorable new crop development as a result of general rains over much of the southwest and Midwest have a tendency to depress or restrain prices.

At Oklahoma country elevators, No. 1 hard wheat of ordinary protein content went up a cent a bushel. Prices closed like this: $2.01 at Guyton and Hooker, $2.04 at Frederick and Lawton, $2.05 at Blackwell, Hobart, Medford and Vici; $2.06 at Yukon, El Reno, Oklahoma City and Enid; and $2.07 at Bison and Hennessey.

Milo ranged from $1.62 per 100 lbs. at Guyton to $1.90 at Enid and Oklahoma City. Top price was $2 at Ada.

Atom Pact Signed

When you open with two of a suit, you assume responsibility for a game contract of some kind. Your partner may be forced to bid no-trump just to keep the bidding open, and you can't rely on such no-trump bids to show stoppers in the unbid suits.

In today's hand North had a doubtful two-♠ bid since he couldn't really feel confident about game if the hand had to play in clubs opposite a weak South hand. He should have felt even less confident about no-trump.

North discovered that his partner had a weak hand, since his first response was two no-trump. He next discovered that South didn't have four-card support for spades, since South couldn't raise that suit.

That's all North knew. He knew nothing about the hearts or diamonds. His pass at three no-trump was a sheer gamble. He should have bid four clubs, intending to play the hand at game in clubs unless South could come through with a belated diamond bid. If South bid four diamonds, North would raise to five in that suit.

There would have been far less guesswork if North had opened with only one club. South would respond with one diamond, and North would now jump to two spades. South would make a forced response of three clubs, whereupon North could show diamond support by bidding three diamonds. Now South could bid three spades, and North would have a good picture of the South hand: three-card spade support, three-card club support, some weak holding in diamonds, and no strength in hearts (because South consistently avoided bidding no-trump). North would therefore bid five clubs.

There was nothing to the play at three no-trump. The defenders took the first five heart tricks, setting the contract before South could get started.

New Road Taxes Would Add $410 Million To Budget

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—UP—New taxes proposed under the House Democrats' highway building program would add $410 million to the federal budget surplus in the fiscal year starting next July 1, it was disclosed Saturday.

This would be in addition to the $400 million surplus envisioned by President Eisenhower in his January budget message.

In preparing his budget, Mr. Eisenhower did not take into account stepped up spending that would be required by enactment of the long-range road-building program. Nor did he count any of the revenue House Democrats have proposed to raise through new taxes on highway users to help pay for the program.

A study of two charts submitted to the House Ways and Means committee by the Commerce and Treasury Departments reveals the new taxes in the first year or two would raise more than would be spent under the highway plan.

Would Show Surplus

For fiscal 1957 starting July 1, the charts show the effect on the Treasury would be: Additional tax revenue $640 million, additional spending $230 million, and budget surplus $410 million.

Treasury outlays under the big construction program would rise slowly but within a few years would catch up with and surpass the tax revenue, resulting in a net drain on the Treasury.

The taxes the committee is considering call for increase of one cent a gallon on gasoline, diesel fuel and special motor fuels, three-cents a pound on tires and re-tread rubber, and 2 per cent on the sale price of trucks, buses and truck-trailers.

Over a 15-year period the new taxes would raise an estimated $12 billion. Including spending already authorized, the program would increase total federal spending on highways over the 15 years to $38.3 billion, about $25 billion more than the present projected rate of spending.

No Special Recommendation

Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey has urged the committee to provide more revenue but he refused to make any specific recommendations. He asked the committee to provide an addition of $7.5 billion in revenue over the 15-year period to put the program on a "true pay-as-you-build basis."

Humphrey would "dedicate" to highway spending more than $18 billion in revenue that would be collected from the present two cents a gallon federal tax on gasoline and diesel fuel over the 15-year period.

Rep. Hale Boggs (D-La.), author of the tax bill, contends Humphrey's estimate of the deficit is greatly exaggerated. In addition to present fuel taxes, Boggs would count as highway revenue the anticipated 15-year yield of more than $2 billion from the present five-cent a pound tax on tires.

All sides agree the highway user now is paying far more in federal taxes than the government is spending on highways. But Boggs doesn't believe the committee will revamp the bill to provide much, if any, additional revenue. Adding to that prospect is the Eisenhower administration's refusal to recommend any specific tax levies.

Young Men 'Not Joining' Reserves

OKLAHOMA CITY — UP—Young men are not volunteering under the 1953 reserve forces act as fast as the Army needs them, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff, said Thursday.

Taylor, speaking to a luncheon sponsored by the chamber of commerce and honoring reservists, said the Army is seeking 100,000 pre-draft age young men for active training in the first year of the new law. It requires six months active training before assignment to hometown reserve units.

Taylor said the law, passed last August, means local Army reserve units must have better training facilities, and 20 new training centers are planned for the next fiscal year.

He described the law as a "definite step forward" but said, "I would not say that it is the ideal law."

"Although, frankly, we are not obtaining volunteers at the rate we require them, I will tolerate no defeatist attitude toward this act," Taylor said.

Taylor, who was to leave later Thursday for Fort Hood, Tex., arrived here Wednesday night and spent the night with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. M. Taylor of Oklahoma City.

The reserve program, he stated, is essential to a fast reaction in the event of aggression against the United States. The "pattern of reaction" after outbreak of the last two major world conflicts "is no longer possible in the world in which we live today," Taylor said.

The Chevrolet Motor Car Co. was formed at Detroit in 1911 and moved to Flint, Mich., in 1913.

Odessa Is First Southern Team To Take Cage Title

By TOMMIE ELLIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

ODESSA — For the first time in the history of the district, a southern team reigned as basketball champion of District 1-AAAA Saturday.

The Odessa Bronchos with a late spurt in the final period, overcame a four-point lead by Pampa and ended a three-year reign by the Harvesters as basketball kings. Odessa won the game 59 to 55.

It was the doing of a former Pampa boy, Pat Gibson, that gave the red-and-white clad Odessa five its first victory last Tuesday night in Pampa and he came up with 11 points above his scoring average Friday night to help add the second win to the Bronchos' streak in their bid for state honors.

The Pampa Harvesters, who are usually considered a second half club, trailed at the end of the first period by a single point, 15-14. They came back in the second quarter and had a 21-30 lead at half-time. They led 47-45 going into the home stretch and had a four-point lead with three minutes left to play.

Court mistakes then plagued the Green and Golders as they threw the ball away in an attempt to stall. Pat Gibson dumped in a field goal and the Harvesters led by only two points, Johnny Outbirth, who was held to two points for the night's work, then came through and tied up the contest with his lone basket.

The Harvesters, trying to work the ball in for a sure shot, lost control and Elmer Self sneaked through and intercepted a pass and went in for a layup which saw the Bronchos ahead for the first time in the last frame.

The Harvesters made an effort to score again and send the contest into overtime but were unable to hit the hoop. Odessa grabbed the ball off the backboards and went into a stall. Nelson Sander tried to move around Gene Brown but knocked him down. Brown was charged with blocking and Sander sank two free throws, his only score of the game. He hit only two of his five efforts of the night.

Jerry Gee fouled out late in the final frame and Jerry Pope came in but was unable to score in the short time. The Bronchos lost two of their starters during the course of the game. Warner Gambill fouled out early in the last frame and Sunny Henderson was injured in a scramble for the ball and had to sit it out also.

Gene Brown paced the Harvesters in the scoring department as he sank 27 points. Dicky Mauldin and Don Hitt tied for second place honors with 19 points each and Pat Gibson, who spent seven years in Pampa schools, was third with 15.

The officials for the contest were Bob Smith and George Lee of San Antonio.

The Bronchos will now meet the El Paso high quint in bi-district playoffs and the winner of the series will gain a berth in the state playoffs.

Reports Of Game Brawl Studied

GREENSBORO, N.C. — UP—Commissioner James Weaver of the Atlantic Coast Conference Saturday studied reports on the free-for-all at the end of Wednesday night's North Carolina-Wake Forest basketball game at Chapel Hill.

Weaver received reports Friday from the officials who worked the game and then conferred with players, coaches and athletic officials at both schools.

After his meetings at Chapel Hill and Wake Forest, Weaver declined to comment on the progress of the investigation. Weaver did not indicate when he would make a report on the investigation but it probably will not come for several days.

The brawl, involving players from both teams and hundreds of fans, broke out just at the end of the crucial conference game, which North Carolina won 77-73. The victory moved the Tar Heels into sole possession of first place in the ACC standings.

Ramirez drew a bye in the first round of competition, and outpointed the taller Trujillo Friday night.

FORT WORTH — UP—Twenty-nine bouts were reeled off in the 20th annual Texas Golden Gloves tournament Friday night, advancing the winners into Saturday night's quarterfinals.

Jake Martinez, the only defending champion from the 1955 tournament, made his debut a successful one Friday night by winning a decision over Victor Graftio of Beaumont in a lightweight bout.

Martinez, of El Paso, was none too impressive in beating the South Texan. In fact, two lightweights showed to better advantage than Martinez. They were Dickie Don Wood, of Wichita Falls, and Arlen Fair of Houston.

Wood, a tall talented boxer with a respectable punch, scored a TKO over hard-hitting Buddy Mote of Odessa in the third round when Mote suffered a gashed eyebrow.

Fair decided Roy Donaldson of Corpus Christi in a good bout.

The only former Chicago champion in the flyweight Pete Mendez of El Paso—won his second fight of the tournament by decisioning Billy Joe Butler of Beaumont.

In one of the night's best fights, southpaw Bill McFarland of Amarillo decided Jack Flores of El Paso in the welterweight division.

Tag Team Match Set Wednesday

A world championship tag team match will be staged at the Top of Texas Sportsman Club Wednesday at 8 p.m. Wrestling fan favorite Dory Funk teamed with Raymond Torres will be going all out to win the belt.

For the second week in a row a World Championship bout will be seen at the Sportsman Club.

This week's defending champs will be Al Nelson and Rip Rogers. The bout will be a 90 minute, two out of three fall affair. The fans are acquainted with all these men with the possible exception of Raymond Torres.

This was a grudge affair as the contenders have been beaten by the champs, so Dory Funk and Raymond Torres will pull everything out of the bag trying to win this one.

For the second main event the club tried to get the same tag team that was here last week, when all the fans were upset over the refereeing.

This was unsuccessful, but officials are trying to sign Tokio Joe and Mike Clancy, and if successful the announcement will be made as soon as possible.

BOBCAT AND HIS MEAL — Above a Bobcat is caught by the camera as he was feeding on the carcass of a deer. Cats can kill many small deer during the winter.

PANHANDLE OUTDOORS

By S. V. WHITEHORN
According to A. S. Jackson, wildlife biologist of Canadian, "the reproductive potential of the bobcat is great enough to stock the range as fast as it improves."

Bearing this thought in mind, you can imagine what a few well-placed shelter areas, plus a few travel lanes constructed by some enthusiastic conservationist, would do to increase the overall population of these birds. Food, water and cover are the essential factors in any quail range.

This is simple enough at first thought but arranging these so that the birds can fully utilize them is another problem. If there is an ample supply of these, but they are not close enough together, the birds will feed the hawks during the year.

In other words, if quail have to travel over a great distance from water to food then over another great distance back to cover, the range is not ideal.

A few years back I wondered why, on an ideal range, feeders couldn't be placed around water and cover and not have thousands of birds on a small track of land. Liberate a few hundred pen-raised birds, if necessary.

The main reason this idea wouldn't pan out was the fact of what biologists call coyote tolerance. "One coyote simply won't tolerate another coyote on its home range." How much land do quail require to be satisfied? They must have as much as one acre to the bird.

At first this amount seems like a lot of ground for one quail but did you know that on some of the plantations of Alabama and Georgia, where experiments and research have been going on for more than half a century, they have found that one quail per acre is the maximum.

My guess is that on much of the Panhandle range we don't have one bird to the hundred acres.

Until recently there hasn't been a great deal of research conducted in the Panhandle, that is until the last few years. We could find out that, while this above factor holds true in Georgia and Alabama, it might not be correct in this area. One important factor worth considering is that the food here is probably charged with a considerably more amount of calories than food in the southeastern states.

Have you ever noticed cows and horses of that area? They can be standing in grass knee high and still be in very poor physical condition. I have heard cowmen say that a mouthful of grass here is worth more than a bellyful of grass from the Southeast. An eastern cowman, not knowing this

Short 'Hold Out' List Is Expected

By UNITED PRESS
With "show up" time at many major league training camps only days away, 11 more players returned signed contracts to their respective clubs Saturday, indicating the "hold out" list this spring will be very short.

Eight of the 11 signees are pitchers, headed by Billy Loes of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Marv Grissom of the New York Giants and Art Houtteman of the Cleveland Indians.

Loes, who sometimes appears as if he is bored with major league routine, compiled a 10-4 record in 1955, but had nine victories before

"all-star break. He made one in the World Series with the Yankees but was knocked out in a fourth-inning uprising. Loes' signing left only three Brooks out of the fold.

Grissom, a durable workhorse who made 55 appearances last season, became the 35th Giant to sign. The 27-year-old hurler compiled a 5-4 record in 1955, but he was involved in a number of games he saved for other pitchers.

Houtteman joined pitcher Cal McLish and outfielder Joe Caffe in returning contracts to the Indians, who now have 35 players signed. Houtteman, the winning man in Manager Al Lopez' pitching rotation last year, had a 10-6 record. McLish, formerly with the Dodgers and Chicago Cubs, won 17 and lost 12 with Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League. Caffe played at Syracuse and Indianapolis in 1955.

Lefty Rip Coleman, who won two and lost one as a late season addition to the New York Yankees, okayed his salary arrangement with the New York club. He was called up from the Denver farm club in the American Association.

Veteran hurler Dick Littlefield and rookie catcher Bill Hall came to terms with Pittsburgh, leaving only five Pirates unsigned. Littlefield, who hurled in the American League for several seasons, had a 5-12 record last year, while Hall, up from Hollywood, failed in a brief trial with the Pirates last season.

Senators Lack Five Names
Pitchers Truman Clevenger and Bob Chakales signed their contracts with the Washington Senators, who now have 37 of their 42-man squad signed. Clevenger, who came to the Senators in their off-season nine-player trade with the Boston Red Sox, had a 9-13 record with Louisville last season, while Chakales, used mostly in relief, won two and lost three for the Senators in 1955.

The Red Sox announced the signing of infielder Billy Conzolo, back from Oakland of the Pacific Coast League. He battled .227 with the Sox in 1954.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who got a jump on the other clubs, have an intra-squad game scheduled Saturday at their St. Petersburg, Fla., camp.

Over in Clearwater, Fla., Del Ennis, the strong man in the Philadelphia-Phillies lineup, put on a batting show for a group of rookies Friday. Ennis' propelled six balls out of the park and rattled several other drives off the fences.

La Vega School Has New Coach
LA VEGA, Tex. — UP — La Vega high school had a new head football coach Saturday in Jack Brewer, who has been assistant coach at Howard Payne for three seasons. Brewer replaces Paul Smith, who quit to go to Galena Park, Brewer, 28, lettered in football and baseball two years each at both Eastern Oklahoma and Northeastern Oklahoma.

Chisox Replace Secretary
CHICAGO — UP — Ed Short, director of public relations for the Chicago White Sox, took over Saturday as traveling secretary of the team, replacing Frank McMahon. McMahon announced his retirement Friday due to ill health from the job he assumed in 1944.

Cards Putting Lassetter At First Base

By UNITED PRESS
Spring is that time of year when young men who fancy themselves outfielders often wind up with a first baseman's glove.

That was exactly what was happening to hard-hitting D. N. Lassetter Friday in the St. Louis Cardinals rookie camp at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Lassetter, a former University of Georgia quarterback who has been an outfielder in the minors, has been given a first baseman's glove and placed under the guidance of Coach Johnny Hopp, a classy first sacker in his own right during his playing days.

Believed Lacked Ability
The change was recommended by Cardinal coaches because they felt Lassetter, a youngster with ample power at the plate, lacked the ability to become a big league outfielder.

The Cardinals were working on another conversion at the same time. It was decided that shortstop Bill Kunkle has an arm that will be put to better advantage at third base. So Kunkle has been shifted to third under the tutelage of Bill Jurges.

Over at Clearwater, Fla., the Phillies were heartened by the showing of southpaw Curt Simmons Thursday. Simmons, handicapped with a sore arm most of last year, threw about 15 minutes at three-quarter speed and reported his arm seemed sound again.

Even though Whittaw Wyatt, the Phils' pitching coach, said the left-hander's pitches were "swooping, rising and veering."

"His arm must be all right," Wyatt added. "But what I liked most was the ease with which he threw. I never saw him throw more smoothly."

Other Clubs Sign Players
Farther north, the big league clubs continued to sign their players.

Shortstop Johnny Logan, whom Manager Charlie Grimm describes "as the most under-rated player in the league," signed his contract with the Milwaukee Braves. Logan batted .297 in 154 games last year, driving in 83 runs and hitting 13 homers.

Relief pitcher Bill Henry, who won two games and lost four for Boston last season, signed with the Red Sox, while the Giants signed their "new" pitching hope, right-hander Steve Ridzik.

The 27-year-old Ridzik, just back from Santurce, P.R., where he compiled a 14-3 record, was drafted by the Giants last November from San Diego of the Pacific Coast League. He failed to win a game for either the Phils or the Redlegs in 1955 before he was sent to San Diego.

Pontiac Leading Industrial Loop
In two games in the Pampa Industrial basketball league this week, Stanolind beat Culbertson Chevrolet 106 to 69 and Noblitt Coffey Pontiac beat Panhandle Packing Co. 68-42.

The games closed the first round of play in the league with Noblitt-Coffey Pontiac holding first place and Stanolind second, Culbertson in third place.

'Babe' Lee Athletic Boss At K-State

MANHATTAN, Kan. — UP — H. B. (Babe) Lee, basketball coach at the University of Colorado since 1950, Friday was named athletic director at Kansas State College to succeed Larry (Moon) Mullins, who resigned.

Lee was expected to assume his new duties about April 1. Mullins resigned Jan. 21 to become athletic director at Marquette University.

Dr. James A. McCain, K-State president who announced Lee's appointment, said, "He was the unanimous and enthusiastic choice of the college athletic council."

"There is every indication that he has to an abundant degree the administrative and leadership ability and the integrity which the position calls for," McCain added.

Lee, 39, a native of Dallas, leaves a highly successful coaching record at Colorado. The Buffs were mired in the second division when he took over. Last year they won the Big Seven championship after tying Kansas for the crown in 1954.

During his college days, Lee played on three successive Pacific Coast Conference championship teams at Stanford. He was an assistant coach at Stanford for three years before becoming head coach at Utah State in 1941.

Lee stayed with Utah State three seasons, then went into private business for a year. He was head coach at Colorado A&M for one season before moving on to Colorado University.

Colorado President Ward Darley said that the university would miss Lee not only because of his record and the conference championship "but for even more... the teaching job he did in developing his players to their full capacity."

Santee Will Seek Hearing If Suspended

NEW YORK — UP — Wes Santee's attorney insists he will demand a public trial if the ace American miler is suspended on professionalism charges Sunday by the national AAU executive committee.

In addition, lawyer Charles P. Grimes has threatened a federal investigation of both the AAU and the U.S. Olympic committee to challenge their legality.

Grimes, insisting that Santee was "guilty of nothing," reiterated that the Marine lieutenant had been cleared of professionalism charges by the Missouri Valley AAU last November.

The AAU executive committee, which is investigating charges that Santee received excessive expenses, may make its decision on the lanky Kansan's suspension Sunday.

Should the committee suspend Santee permanently, Grimes said he would ask for a public trial. Santee's right to be confronted by his accusers, and the admission only of legal evidence "and not common report, hearsay and rumor."

The attorney, who questioned whether the AAU and the U.S. Olympic committee "are fit and legally entitled to run amateur athletics," said he would suggest to interested House and Senate committees a federal investigation of both organizations.

He pointed out the Olympic committee was not legally corporate because the organization as of last October had failed to file in the required number of states.

Grimes displayed a letter purportedly received from Seymour Lieberman, a Houston attorney he described as an AAU official. The letter said that the subcommittee investigating the Santee case should be dissolved and the case referred back to the Missouri Valley association.

"I dread to think what will happen if Santee must sue because there is no question in my mind that he would have to win," the letter said. "Santee definitely will have a cause for damages against those involved."

Walker's Friends Donate Library In His Memory
DALLAS — UP — Doak Walker's memory at Southern Methodist will be perpetuated through a special "Sports and Recreation Library" at his alma mater donated by his friends.

Alumni and friends of the former All-America and professional football star launched a drive to buy books, magazines and subscriptions to periodicals to set up the collection.

Some $360 had been raised this week when the library was officially started. A three-color bookplate with Walker's name and his famous "37" football number will be placed inside each book.

U.S. Hockey Team Wins
GOTHENBURG, Sweden — UP — William Cleary of Cambridge, Mass., led the United States Olympic hockey team to a 4-3 victory over a reinforced Gothenburg team Sunday by scoring a pair of goals. Gordon Christian of Warroad, Minn., and Kenneth Purpur of Grand Forks, N.D., scored the other U.S. goals.

SMU Coach Wants Time Limit Rule

By ED FITE
DALLAS — UP — E. O. (Doc) Hayes, coach of the nation's eighth-ranking Southern Methodist basketball team, is more firmly convinced than ever that the college game needs a time limit rule on putting the ball in play.

The worrisome, balding Hayes, a veteran of 39 years of coaching, has long been an advocate of such a rule similar to the pro game's 24-second limit.

But, the anxious sweating he endured Wednesday night while his own team beat fire in an out-stalling Texas Christian for a farcical 26-22 Southwest Conference victory added fresh fuel to the flames.

"It was a ridiculous thing for the fans to have to watch," Hayes said. "and I feel pretty sure the kids themselves didn't enjoy it. They'd much rather run and shoot."

Why Else Play?
"But, if you don't play the game for pleasure of the fans and the kids themselves, then what's the purpose of playing it at all?" he asked.

Hayes admitted he didn't like the idea of having his own team put on a 10-minute ball-freezing stall that had rival SMU and TCU players standing chatting with each other in apparent disregard of the game.

"But, the whole purpose of the stall is a desperation move brought on when you think you can't win any other way," he said. "And the way TCU was playing — feeding the ball off 23 or more times before even taking a crack at a wide open basket — it was a desperation move on our part once we got ahead. We had to play the game their way."

Like's Fast Break Style
Hayes' firebrand team, which had beaten TCU 106-64 earlier, relates the fast break style of play and is very adept at it, but the Mustangs have had several brushes already with zone defenses and still managed to come out on top. They've won eight straight loop games and boast an 18-2 season record.

"The rules makers better have their minds made up when they get to the next meeting to do something about it, with a time limit, or something," Hayes said. "I can't see how they can legislate the zone defense out of the game, since a switching man-to-man in tight can amount to practically the same thing under another name."

Hayes, whose team goes after its 18th straight triumph against Texas A&M at College Station tomorrow night, said, "we've got to do something or lose the game's crowd appeal—and I think we definitely need to keep that appeal."

Three Teams Win District Cage Titles

By UNITED PRESS
Odessa, Wichita Falls and Brownwood wrapped up their district basketball championships Friday night in complete the field for next week's Class AAAA and AAAA-B district playoff round.

Odessa defeated Pampa, north zone winner, 59-55 for the 1-AAAA title; Wichita Falls stopped Tyler 40-33 for the 5-AAAA crown and Brownwood defeated Austin Travis 71-44 to grab the 5-AAA championship.

While the two upper division brackets have been filled out, many of the AA, A and B berths remained undecided pending the games tonight, including ones which will determine whether Seminole, defending AA titlist, will stay in the running.

Seminole and Pecos wound up tied for the 6-AAA crown, and will meet at Kermit tonight in a sudden-death playoff.

Two other 1955 state champs, Buna, of A and Avoca, of B, already have clinched bi-district berths, but the other two—Dallas Tech of AAAA and Victoria of AAA—failed to win their districts.

Bi-district pairings in the best of three series which AAAA and AAA teams will play to determine the state tournament makeup include:

AAAA — Odessa vs. El Paso High, Fort Worth Poly vs. North Dallas, Wichita Falls vs. Laredo, Houston Milby vs. Port Arthur.

AAA — Amarillo Palo Duro vs. Grand Prairie, Marshall vs. Paris, Brownwood vs. Beaumont French, San Antonio Edison vs. Harlingen.

UNCLE SAM needs young men for his peacetime Army of Reservists. YOUNG MEN need what Uncle Sam has to offer.

Strong nations seldom are attacked. It is only when a nation becomes weak, when its military strength is at a low ebb... when its men are untrained for battle... that an enemy strikes. To keep peace — keep strong. For a nation to maintain military might it must have a large, well-trained Ready Reserve — well versed in the latest in military know how and equipment.

It is up to the young men of America to provide this manpower. Under the Reserve Forces Act of 1955 American youth may continue in school with a minimum of interruption, while serving in the U.S. Army Reserve.

Pete Hayes To Fill In For Godfrey

By WILLIAM EWALD
 NEW YORK — UP — The channel swim...
 Arthur Godfrey has asked Peter Lind Hayes to stand by again. Godfrey wants to take another two-week vacation beginning March 19. Pete will fill in for the redhead on the morning show.
 Fred Friendly, producer of Edward Murrow's "See It Now," says Ezra Benson, secretary of agriculture, saw a sample 10-minute film clip of Murrow's last show on the farm problem some eight days before the program went on. Friendly also reveals that the full script of the show was passed on to Benson five days before the show. Benson, who criticized the Murrow show, has been granted a 30-minute chunk of CBS-TV time to reply to the Murrow film.

Insiders at CBS are predicting that Murrow's March 15 study of the middle east situation will be the most explosive of his "See It Now" series. CBS execs are so enthusiastic about the show they have decided to squeeze it in on Tuesday night between "The Phil Silvers Show" and "The $64,000 Question."

NBC-TV is mulling over three "small" spectaculars for this summer. One, to be directed by Joe Cates of "The $64,000 Question" would feature music by Vern "April in Paris" Duke and lyrics by Ogden Nash.

Jackie Gleason has written a one-hour whimsical story, "The Tale of St. Emergency," which CBS-TV's "Studio One" hopes to showcase in late March. The story revolves around a couple of saints who try to save a wicked town that has only one honest man.

There's a good chance that the Metropolitan Opera will stage two 90-minute operas on ABC-TV this fall. One probably will be "Faust." And the latest gag along TV row: Seems the producers of "The $64,000 Question" now are trying to get Arturo Toscanini to appear on the show.
 His category—Shoemakers.

GOD BLESS THE ROUTINE PEOPLE
 God bless the routine people of the world;
 The meek ones who inherit from the earth
 What no one really wants — yet with their portion
 Purchase from life the limit of its worth.
 Those who play secret parts in the public play —
 Drawers of curtains, shifters of the scenes —
 All money raisers in all noble causes,
 And human bolts in every big machine.
 Chairmen of programs, scrubbers of public floors
 By night — that some may know the dawn's clear tread;
 Sellers of poppits down the day-long street;
 The cleaner-uppers when the crowd has fled.
 All water carriers at football games;
 Embroiderers of flour sacks for church bazaars;
 All brothers of a brother, and eyes that glow
 For having helped another reach the stars.
 The checkers-in and checkers-out of all the tickets;
 The also rans who had no place;
 And every sub-chairman of sub-committees —
 God bless them all, for their unsung grace,
 High moments poised upon a tip of time,
 And over their sure tracks great wheels run free —
 Without whose patient power each shaft of glory
 Flooding our eyes — might never, never be.

THE ABOVE POEM causes Peg to stop and ponder on how much praise the worker-behind-the-scenes should receive. For instance, the industrious Lions selling tickets for the Lions' minstrel... no tickets sold — no minstrel, of course... Of the diligent and dedicated ladies who have been meeting in a local church to tack quilts for needy folk... twelve tacked comforters have been completed and presented to local families... and now they have eight quilts ready to tack for Boys' Ranch... Since the first of the year, the ladies have completed 30 comforters... the youngsters who work so assiduously decorating for various parties of the Pampa Skating Club... and Peg could go on and on mentioning the worthy folk who work on various projects expecting no praise... Yet, our town would cease to function without the tasks performed by our routine people.

With pointed remarks I often agree — Provided they haven't been pointed at me. (Richard Armour)

HERE AND THERE... the Friendship Class of the First Christian Church held open house in the parsonage Monday to display new wall-to-wall carpeting in living room, dining room and hall... a gift from all church members, but the Friendship class was the instigator... SOMETHING NEW HAS BEEN ADDED to the water department of Pampa... a manager, no less... he is the genial W. L. Mrs. Charlotte Wade and husband plan to leave soon for Jacksonville, Miss., to visit their daughter and her husband... Understand Charlotte has picked out a luscious wardrobe for the vacation... Petite and attractive as she is, she'll do full justice to it!... Last Monday, Rev. THE CITY HALL attained the allure of a social club this past week... first, the Pampa Independent School District offices held open house Valentine's Day for City Hall personnel... And they have a right to be proud of their new, roomy office... refreshments of thin slices of banana nut bread, cherry nut cake, mixed nuts and coffee were served from a lace-covered table, graced with an arrangement of red carnations and white stercorium hearts in a gorgeous cut-glass bowl... Leona Woods, Noel Thompson and Sue Van Stekles took turns acting as hostesses... Peg saw there Homer Craig, J. Aaron Meek, H. A. Yoder, John Evans and Sam Begert... happened Peg barged into the affair when she dropped in to purchase basketball tickets... then Wednesday the police department had open house with everyone invited... doughnuts and coffee were served by Mrs. Marion Parks and Loretta Ritter... And, we understand, that Thursday the Adobe Walls Council (Boy Scouts) will have its open house to give everyone an opportunity to meet Yorel Harris, who is taking Paul Beisenherz's place.

MRS. HAZEL HAYWOOD HAS BEEN CONDUCTING a mother and baby care course in the Red Cross office... Mrs. O. B. Worley... Mrs. Libby Bernier... both of Pampa... and Mrs. Kathryn Nichols of Lefors have been taking the course... then they, in turn will go forth and teach the prospective mothers better child care... a most worthwhile project, you'll agree, I'm sure... speaking of the Red Cross office, Mrs. Z. H. Munday and Mrs. Claude Byrd have finished making two complete baby layettes and have sent them to the Austin Air Base military hospital through the Red Cross office here... Peg admires and envies these ladies who find so much time to devote to others.

POTPOURRI... Understand Dr. and Mrs. T. J. S. Tolbert ranch, half-way to town... about 5 1/2 miles from the mill... the Tolberts brought them to town... and the pickup is still at the mill, the last Peg's informant had heard... understand a group at the hospital made a cute and unusual Valentine arrangement for Mrs. Charles Hughes who is in Highland General hospital... a sort of tree affair with dollar bills as leaves, and Peg believes, little red hearts as flowers... sounds real cute... wish Peg could have seen it... plans are being made for the Council of Clubs greenback coffee... to be held in City Club Room Mar. 11... everyone who has ever and will ever use the room certainly should support the coffee in appreciation of the beauty of the re-furnished Club Room... understand Nina Spoonmore went home this week after undergoing surgery... one's friends really show up at a time like that... understand she hasn't had a minute to be lonely... her many friends have plied her with gifts and visits during her stay in the hospital.

It promotes good growth and color to your plants. Phosphorus promotes strong roots and assures crop maturity, while potash promotes general health of plants and strengthens the stems and increases the size of fruits. ## GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend
 I read your column every day and I hope you can help me as you do so many others.
 My son has gotten himself into trouble and has been sent to prison.
 He wants me to try to get him out on parole. But first I have to find him employment. I want to help him if possible as I have never been strong and he has had a tough time of it.
 My problem is I don't know how to go about it. Do you know if there is any way I could get help.
 M. W.
 Dear M. W.
 You don't say whether your son's parole has been granted or not. You probably know that the parole board will review his case in due course and will determine how much of his sentence will be spent in prison, how much on parole.
 To find out your son's status write to the Board of Prison Terms and Paroles, in care of the warden at the prison where he is serving his sentence. The board will tell you what to do to help your boy.
 As a general thing the promise of a job does not influence the matter but after the prisoner is paroled, his parole officer usually helps him find employment.
 Dear Grace Friend
 Until last summer I lived with my daughter in your city and both of us enjoyed your columns in the paper very much. In the past you have given lots of fine advice to a number of people and we hope, that you will keep up the good work, which proves of great help and interest to your readers.
 Now we would like to call on you for some help, a service which you have rendered many times. Since we now live out in the country, we would like for our girl to find some pen-pals. Would you have the names and addresses of service men, who are interested in a correspondence with a young girl?
 We certainly do appreciate your kind help and wish to thank you very much.

Couple Observes 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Hess of White Deer observed their golden wedding anniversary Feb. 11.
 Married in 1906, in Doans, Texas, near Vernon, the couple has lived in White Deer for 18 years, where Hess has been deputy sheriff for eight years. The couple has three children — two sons and one daughter. One son, Glenn, is a student at Oklahoma A&M College, Stillwater, and the other son, Loyd, resides in Amarillo. Their daughter, Mrs. Opal McPherson, lives in Hedley. The couple has seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.
 Soon after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Hess moved to Beaver County, Okla., where they farmed for five years. They then moved to Hedley where they lived for 27 years. They lived in McLean for six months after that, before moving to White Deer where Hess was a butcher until he became deputy sheriff.
 Because Mrs. Hess is a patient in the hospital, the couple did not celebrate the occasion with a party.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
 One afternoon Dave defied his mother, flatly refusing to go to the store for her. Instead of getting angry with him, she got ready to go herself.
 "When I get home, I'll have the eggs and cream I need to make a chocolate souffle for supper tonight. You will get none. Be prepared for that — and to tell Daddy why."
 This warning that she would not tattle on him to his father gave Dave one of the most instructive afternoons of his young life.
 It forced him to concern himself with his own explanation of his conduct instead of with his mother's. Unusually, he began to realize that his interest in a new comic book had not justified his refusal of a home obligation.
 At dessert time when his mother said, "Dave can tell you why" to his father's inevitable question, he was a pretty subdued boy. And was soon led to the admission that loss of his favorite dessert was a just consequence of his own action.
 This admission was accompanied by an outburst of tears — and new acceptance of responsibility toward home obligations.
 Generally, we gain nothing for ourselves or for children by tattling on them to their other parent.
 All it does is to expose our deficiency as well as the child's. It shows us up as a person who must have somebody else's support of his right to grievance. By tattling on children to their fathers, we mothers confess that we can't judge between us and them for ourselves — and must appeal to our husbands' authority to establish right judgment for us.
 As we carry most of the responsibility for discipline these days, we can't afford many such confessions. For the youngsters of tattling mothers, infected by their contempt for their judgment, begin to develop it, too — and are soon treating their parents' demands as lightly as they would the complaints of a brother or sister.
 Occasionally, it may seem necessary to interpret Dave's misbehavior to his father for him. Most of the time, we can avoid this form of overprotectiveness if we understand the value of encouraging Dave to think and speak for himself.
 We can see that by requiring him to account for his actions to his father, we force him to think about the actions. By leaving him the explanation of our conflict with him, we force him to express his true feelings about it.
 By encouraging him to explain himself to his other parent, we teach him to take responsibility for himself.

Showing Of American Summer Styles Features New "Back-To-Girlhood" Look

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
NEW YORK — A week in Manhattan:
 Summer fashion shows, now under way in the showrooms of hundreds of American manufacturers, reveal a back-to-girlhood look.
 Little girls love to copy mothers' clothes, but now mothers can dress up in full-skirted organdies and lace-edged cottons that hark back to their own little-girl wardrobes.
 Next summer's clothes allow women to show off their figures in a gown-up way, however. Those dainty white and pastel organdy dresses have full skirts and light waists. Belts are often wrap-around narrow ribbon sashes that trail little-girl streamers behind.
 Sheaths with ribbon-threaded can'tole necklines look youthful, yet cling to the figure and sometimes show off a little extra leg with sophisticated three-inch slits at the sides of the skirt.
 Girls interested in designing careers will have a new field open to them in the future — styling cars, not clothes.
 This prediction comes from George W. Walker, vice president and director of styling for the Ford Motor Co.
 "We would like to get more girls into our styling department," Walker said this week. "We hired our first three girls in the past six months."
 Women already have strongly influenced car design, Walker admitted, but as customers and not as designers. Now he feels it's time for the woman's touch at the source.
 "We want girls who have studied designing and are excellent artists," said Walker, whose own background includes fashions sketching as well as years of product designing. "We feel the girls will work out especially well in the fabrics division, but there is no reason they can't move into any phase of car design."
 Time by Zones
 Small world department: Now there is a wrist watch that tells you what time it is in other cities. The new men's wrist watch is for modern travelers who cross time zones as often as grandpa crossed the county line.
 The watch (Hamilton Time Zone Watch) shows the correct time in the four U.S. time zones with colored time zone markers on the dial and the correct Greenwich time with a "G" marker. A conventional gold hour hand shows the time in the wearer's own zone.
 Directions by Push Button
 Women will be able to push a button and hear a voice direct them to the grocery shelf they want in super markets of the future.
 Push button directories which resemble juke box instructions already have been installed in some 700 super markets in the East. Voice recordings answer any one of 80 push button questions.

TO BE MARRIED
 Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Gray, 1045 S. Hobart announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Bonnie, to Jim Gardner, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gardner of Meade, Kans. The wedding is planned for March 30, in the Church of the Nazarene. (Photo by Smith's Studio)

RUTH MILLETT

What kind of a welcome does your husband get when he comes home after a day of hard work?
 Is he greeted coolly if he is a little late and told in a martyred tone that the dinner has waited so long it won't be fit to eat?
 Is he met at the door with the news that the children have been emons, or that the washing machine is on the blink? Or is such news delayed until after he has had dinner and relaxed and is better able to cope with another set of problems?
 Does he walk into a house where a good dinner is ready to be set on the table? Or is he met with the news that Mama has had such a hard day with housecleaning or committees meetings or chauffeuring the children that it's a choice between a sandwich at home, or asking the whole family out to eat?
 Does he return from work to a who is screaming at the children or to one who has the situation in hand and has set the stage for a pleasant evening?
 Does he return from work to a wife who is full of depressing gossip or to a wife who has stored up a few incidents that will please or amuse him?
 Is the television set making such a blast in the living room that he has anything important to say he couldn't be heard? Or is the family more interested in what Papa has to say than in what is coming out of the "master"?
 Is there a job waiting for him to do? Or can he look forward to an evening of doing as he pleases?
 Does he really feel when he enters the door of his own home that he is the most welcome person who could have walked through that door? If he doesn't have that feeling then Mama is falling down on the job of making a man's home what it ought to be for him.

Tuna Fish Makes Tasty Casserole

Tuna is not a flying fish, but it soars high in the estimation of homemakers who consider all its food values.

Nutritionists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture say that canned tuna is a very concentrated food, rich in energy values, very high in protein and high in many of the minerals and vitamins.

Most of the tuna packed in the United States comes packed in oil while imported tuna is packed in brine. Nutritionists say that tuna packed in oil has more calories than tuna in brine.

So, if you're using tuna fish as a main dish, you can get more energy with the oil packed tuna. Incidentally, processors use a vegetable oil to pack tuna.

This is one year when we have lots of tuna on hand, thanks to large catches last season. In fact, supplies are so great that canned tuna in oil is on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's plentiful foods list for this area.

When you want to serve tuna as a hot, main dish, try this simple recipe. You'll need 2 lbs. of tuna; 1 tablespoon of bacon drippings or lard; 2 cups chopped shallots including green tips; 1-2 cup chopped green pepper; 1/2 cup chopped pimiento; 1 can cream of mushroom soup.

Heat the fat in a skillet and then brown onions and green pepper. Pour diluted soup over onions and green pepper. Add pimientos. Shred tuna in baking dish. Pour mixture over tuna. Bake in moderate oven for 45 minutes. Top with cheese.

BABY

By BETSY WADE
NEA Staff Writer

Not all toy trains that daddy likes better than Baby does are electric. One wooden one has spools, blocks, logs and pegs that come off and can be rearranged in any number of ways. One father spent the holidays figuring out the mathematical possibilities.

These bindings on cardboard books don't last as long as the shelves. Get a shoemaker to insert spools along the edge and fit the pegs together with string or stout ribbon after Baby's demolished the binding.

One set of parents decided to battle Baby's impulses to pull books off the shelves by packing them in too tightly for this practice. Smart Baby simply pushes them backwards with all his weight until they pop loose and then pulls them off.

Never was a color or a hat or a shoe just because everybody has a best way to develop a fashion sense is to learn to pick things becoming to you and to have the courage to reject those that are not.

"How sick is sick enough for the doctor?" The inexperienced mother thinks she'll never learn about her Baby. But she will soon discover what kinds of cranky or droopy behavior mean illness and when a fever means nothing or something.

Mothers learn calm when it's worth it. A sitter for Baby may say how easy it is to get Baby to sleep when mother finds it's a hassle. And mother soon catches on to just how to say: "You really do a wonderful job" and mean it and appreciate it without feeling inadequate.

Baby is not deluded. He may not know what "Will you have a c-o-o-k-i-e?" means, but he'll surely come into the room to find out what all the spelling is about.

Extra cover-up for the winter sheath is the short black wool sweater trimmed in jet. Fine for air-conditioned spots in summer, too, when it's worn over black or white.

RUTH MILLETT

With two teen-agers at our house I have been learning the "art" of teen-age party giving.

The fad right now seems to be for spur-of-the-moment parties. A teen-ager calls home after a ball game or from another teen-ager's house where the idea for a party has suddenly hatched and says, "Can I have a few kids over for a party?"

It's a mistake to take that term "a few kids" at face value. The number may run anywhere from a dozen to 40. And it's foolish to think that if it is the time set for a party, eight o'clock is when the guests will start to arrive.

Teen-agers are impatient and before eight ever rolls around, the house will be full to overflowing. Food for a party is a simple matter. You load the kitchen sink with sacks of ice and soft drinks. You whip up everything in the cupboard into "dips" and lay in a supply of fancy crackers, potato chips, etc., for dunking purposes. You triple your best cookie recipes.

Then set everything out where the eating can start with the party. Have enough refills so it can last until the end.

Half of the arriving guests will be carrying their favorite records under their arms. When the record player gets turned up to full volume you wonder why they bothered. All their favorites sound alike.

Once the party is under way, all you have to do, as a parent, is make yourself scarce. You stick your head in only occasionally to make sure everything is going all right.

World Friendship Fund and were presented a program on manners, including greetings, introductions, and table manners. Mrs. H. E. Saum is leader and is assisted by Mmes. F. A. Word and J. D. Skaggs.

OES Past Matrons Of Perryton Meet

Canasta was played. Others present were Mmes. Allie Mae Dear, Violet Igou, Inez Sumpster, Pearl Chase, Glee Ballard, Thelma Carver, Ethel Keim, Annette McLasahan, Mable Bowen and Carleen McClung.

Out of laundry line space? Try this one: Set an open card table upside down on the floor and string a line of cord around the tops of the legs, hitching it at each corner. Crisscross for even more space. Spread newspapers to take up the drip.

How do your closets look? Clothes jammed into each other every which way? That's hard on fabrics. Give them room and air and if they're delicate fabrics, a padded hanger.

If you've provided enough food and kept out from under foot and made no embarrassing old-fashioned suggestions for games or singing around the piano, your teen-ager will reward you with "Gee, thanks, Mom, it was a swell party" as the last '39 or '42 model car is finally started, and is roaring down the drive.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Sauerkraut — they're calling it "kraut" these days — is a natural with apples and frankfurters. So we found a new recipe for a casserole combining these good foods all in one dish.

Stuffed Frankfurters and Kraut Casserole (Makes 4 servings)
Three medium-sized apples, pared and thinly sliced, 3 tablespoons brown sugar, 1/2 cup butter or margarine, 1 No. 2 can kraut, 4 frankfurters, 1 cup mashed sweet potatoes, melted butter or margarine.

Place half of apple slices in a greased 1 1/2-qt. casserole; sprinkle with half the brown sugar and dot with half the butter or margarine. Add a layer of half the kraut to the casserole. Repeat layers using remaining apples, brown sugar, butter or margarine and sauerkraut. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Split frankfurters and fill each with mashed sweet potatoes. Brush with melted butter or margarine and place on top of kraut. Return to oven and continue baking 15-20 minutes.

Pickle Ham Casserole (Makes 4-6 servings)

French Omelet With Lobster Sauce Is Ultimate In Elegance For Lenten Meals

Just the mention of the word lobster conjures up visions of something elegant in the way of eating — and doesn't French omelet with lobster sauce just about sound like the ultimate?

It's really nothing to frighten the cook either. The omelet is such an easy combination of eggs, salt and rich undiluted evaporated milk gently cooked to golden brownness in melted butter.

The sauce has all the richness that befits the lobster. Made with butter and evaporated milk it has a touch of lemon juice to bring out all the delicate lobster flavor, garlic and onion to sharpen it up further and just a suggestion of sherry stirred in as the final touch.

LOBSTER SAUCE
1 can lobster (7 oz.)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons butter
1 clove garlic
1 teaspoon grated onion
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 cup boiling water
1 cup evaporated milk
1 tablespoon dry sherry

Drain lobster and remove cartilage. Break into bite-size pieces and place in a small bowl. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Melt butter in saucepan. Add garlic clove and onion and cook gently for about 3 minutes. Remove garlic clove and discard. Stir in flour. Blend in boiling water, then the milk, and continue cooking until mixture is thickened. Add lobster and continue heating until mixture is heated through, about 3 minutes longer. Stir in sherry just before serving. Serve with French Omelet. Makes 4 servings.

FRENCH OMELET
6 eggs
1/2 cup evaporated milk
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter

Beat the eggs until light and foamy. Beat in the milk and salt. Melt butter in a fry pan over low heat. Pour in egg mixture. Cook slowly. With a spatula, lift up the cooked egg from sides of the pan and let uncooked egg run under. Continue cooking and lifting until omelet is set. Set in hot oven (400 degrees F.) or under broiler to brown top. With a spatula or pancake turner score omelet in half, fold, and slide onto a hot platter. Serve with lobster sauce. Makes 4 servings.

RUTH MILLETT

Mrs. R. recently was called out of town by the serious illness of her mother.

Mrs. R., being the mother of four young children, quite naturally was concerned about leaving home. But Mr. R. pooh-poohed her fears. He kidded her about all her last-minute instructions, "Don't forget Jimmy has a dental appointment next Thursday at two that will have to be canceled. And Margaret won't be able to get to her music lessons. So let her teacher know. Etc. Etc."

"We'll get along fine," Mr. R. said, reassuringly, as he put her on the train and then added, "After all, Clara Belle ought to be able to handle everything at home." Clara Belle was the R.'s part-time maid who had agreed to stay all day every day during Mrs. R. absence.

Well the R.'s HAVE gotten along. Clara Belle has kept the house running though she almost quit when Mr. R. came home for dinner an hour late one evening after he failed to let her know.

Mr. R.'s mother then promised to help look after the children.

Friends have pitched in to do the marketing, to invite the children over for an afternoon and to chauffeur.

Still, Mr. R. has had to take on so many responsibilities like buying children's shoes, rushing home from work when Tim fell out of a tree and going to school to see why Jack got two D's on his report card, that Mr. R. is looking mighty glum.

He dropped by to see friends the other evening. Plaintively, he complained, "There ought to be some kind of employment service in this town that specializes in temporary mothers."

Fabulous 'Whitey' Dahl Dies In Plane

HALIFAX, N. S.—A risky Arctic flight in a war-surplus plane has ended the career of pilot Harold "Whitey" Dahl, one of the last of the thinning group of international soldiers of fortune.

Whitey's luck ran out Tuesday. Rescue parties removed his body Friday from the twisted wreckage of the DC-3 which crashed in the frozen wilderness of northern Quebec.

Killed with Dahl was W. Givens of St. Jovite, Que. Eric Pearson, identified only as an American from California and co-owner of the DC-3, survived.

Pearson was found wandering dazed and shocked through the wreckage when a ski-equipped Royal Canadian Air Force plane landed to take the bodies and Pearson to Goose Bay, Labrador.

Dahl loved to take a chance and became world famous because of his luck. His swashbuckling career stretched through the Spanish civil war, the Ethiopian war, service with the Royal Canadian Air Force during World War II, South America and a couple of scrapes with the law.

His reputation as a seat-of-the-pants pilot was strengthened even in death. He took his last chance this week when he decided to fly out the twin-engine war surplus plane, which recently was damaged. The plane had been described as "salvage" and was purchased recently by Pearson and M. Landy of Aero Factors in Miami, Fla.

Stricken Girl Hopes For Miracle

PARIS—UP—Nancy Hamilton, a pretty 13-year-old girl from Santa Monica, Calif., arrived from New York by plane Saturday, hoping that a miracle at Lourdes will save her life.

Nancy already has lost both her legs to the ravages of an incurable rare blood disease. Now she is on the way to the Roman Catholic shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes in search of a miracle.

Nancy and her mother, Mrs. Marguerite Hamilton, 39, are making the trip with money collected from California television viewers after the little girl appeared on a Christmas Eve program and told of her wish to go to Lourdes.

Looking pale and frail after the plane trip across the Atlantic, Nancy immediately asked her mother if she could be driven through the streets of Paris to see its world-famous shops.

"One thing I would love to do before leaving Paris tonight," she added, "would be to go up the Eiffel Tower."

Nancy and her mother are recent converts to catholicism. Their trip to Lourdes, where the Blessed Mother appeared in 1858 to the peasant girl who became St. Bernadette, is one similar to many made by others seeking a miracle.

However, Nancy seems resigned to her fate.

K. L. FANCHER
It's drill day again for the members of Headquarters Battery, 474th Field Artillery Battalion. They are still hard at work, getting ready for the State Maintenance Inspection to be held Feb. 27, 28, 29. This inspection will be held by a State Inspection Team from Ft. Worth. Today's drill will put the finishing touches on the maintenance that has been done for the past several weeks.

This week marks an important date both in United States history, and as a milestone for the Texas National Guard. Wednesday, 22, Feb., is not only Washington's Birthday, it is also National Guard Muster Day in Texas. Muster Day is really a nation-wide event this year...all over the country, National Guard Units will be holding special events, having open house or furnishing information to any and everyone about the National Guard.

As you probably know, it is one of the main aims of the administration to build up our Armed Forces to the point that an aggressor would think twice before making any sort of attack. One of the methods of building up the Armed Forces is an increase in the size of the Reserve Components of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

The naming of National Guard Muster Day to tie in with Washington's birthday, is a logical thing, in that George Washington was not only our first president, he was also one of our first Guardsmen! As a matter of fact, Washington's army was the forerunner of the National Guard as we know it today, Washington, as you know, had a firm belief in the strength of our nation when defended by citizen soldiers. After all, it was the citizen soldier who gained this nation's independence in the first place, and has defended it in every war and skirmish since. Washington made a statement in a treatise called "Sentiments on the Peace Establishment", in which he said, a plan that will pervade all the "A peace establishment for the United States...may in my opinion be...a well organized militia; upon states, and introduce similarity in their establishment, exercise and arms." So you see why National Guard Muster Day has been set on Washington's Birthday.

You'll be seeing and hearing more about National Guard Muster Day as the 22nd approaches, but we wanted to give you a little insight into the matter before all of the publicity hit.

It is our hope, in the 474th, that anyone who is interested in the National Guard or in any Reserve Component, make an effort this Wednesday, to find out about the Guard. Here in Pampa, there will be men on duty at the National Guard Armory all day long to answer questions and explain the new reserve laws. There will also be qualified personnel at the local Chamber of Commerce Conference Room from ten a.m. to four p.m. for the same purpose.

You will probably see Guardsmen and National Guard Vehicles on the streets of Pampa during the day also. Their purpose is to follow the advice of Washington and others, who know it is a good idea to KEEP YOUR GUARD UP!

Ike's Veto

That self-professed antagonist of creeping socialism, President Dwight D. Eisenhower, seems to be laboring under the delusion that the way to resist said creeping socialism is to run headlong into its arms; or at least that is the only conclusion a rational individual can come to with the advent of his veto of the bill which would have freed natural gas producers from federal bureaucratic control.

One advantageous factor which should result from Ike's ignorance of the basic principles involved or his hypocrisy (take your pick) will be the awakening which should come to many of his bewitched worshippers who looked upon him as the knight-errant of free enterprise and, sad as it is to relate, Texas has had its share in this category. Indeed, Ike has now earned his place as the number three man in the holy socialist triumvirate of Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman.

The obvious has been so glaring so long that we wonder why many of the Ike cult need this veto action to awaken them. After opposing the Bricker Amendment, appointing a confirmed socialist as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and expanding the grandiose fraud of "social security," to name a few examples, the opening of the wedge of a system of federal price controls shouldn't be too much of a shocker.

In his veto statement, Ike implied resentment because a campaign contribution was offered Senator Case of South Dakota on the alleged basis that he favored passage of the bill. To an individual grounded in basics, the measure would have been considered in principle and that principle would be to the end of protecting the source of all freedom, the right of ownership in property.

We trust the President is pleased with the results of his action. The left-wingers are howling approval from coast to coast and the most obtuse Marxian Doctrineaires can smile with glee at the opportunities now before them for, as Ike knew, there is virtually no chance the bill can be passed over his veto. In light of this, Ike's statement about being "in accord with its basic objectives" proves to be damning by faint praise.

Then, too, there is that patently synthetic concern about the gas lobby when the goons of organized labor and the NEA operate a couple of the most blatant pressure groups to daily kick, push and bludgeon our national legislators one could imagine. Since these two outfits have been doing it for years, we assume it has become a "royal prerogative" in their case. Such, however, is the degradation of democracy.

We surmise that Ike and his retinue have already calculated how many votes will be forthcoming from the eastern metropolitan minority groups because of his action but then you don't have to be a wizard to realize they have more votes than the gas producers. And the vote is the politician's sole guide of virtue.

The late William Graham Sumner, a political science professor at Yale, a renowned sociologist and ordained clergyman, made the observation in 1910 that he didn't think the American Republic would live much after 1950 because of the grasping for power on the part of central government. Sumner, of course, didn't mean that the Republic would not exist in form but rather that it would be so enervated by government intervention that the chance for its continued life as a defender of freedom would be nil. Sad to relate, Sumner's pessimism was partially confirmed Friday with the Eisenhower veto.

The price for ignoring principle is high and posterity will be able to count January 17, 1956, as a stellar day in the forging of their shackles of servitude.

THE NATION'S PRESS

MCCARTHY AROUSED AMERICAN PEOPLE (Fort Lauderdale Daily News) We wonder today how many of the newspapers, editorial writers and radio and television commentators who took such a great delight a year or so ago in sticking their barbs into the hide of Sen. Joe McCarthy, paid much attention in this week to the perjury trial of a man by the name of Paul M. Hughes.

Hughes was tried by a New York federal court on a charge he filed to a grand jury investigating Harvey Lowrey, a former Communist who at one time was used as a government witness but who later recanted some of his testimony.

Hughes told the federal court jury that before being called before the grand jury he had posed as a secret investigator for the Senate Permanent subcommittee on Investigations. He also testified that in this guise he had prepared false documents and statements derogatory to Sen. McCarthy who was chairman of the subcommittee at that time.

In his testimony Hughes readily admitted that the documents were false, but he said he had been urged by Joseph L. Rauh Jr., Chairman of the National Committee for Democratic Action, and Clayton Fritchey, deputy chairman of the Democratic National Committee, to produce the anti-McCarthy material, whether it was true or not.

Rauh, while admitting he had had dealings with Hughes and had even "loaned" him $10,000 for his anti-McCarthy material, strongly denied he had told him to produce fraudulent material. Rauh further testified that his first knowledge of the falsity of the material came when he took it to a Washington newspaper and a check made by the newspaper determined it had been faked.

Fritchey also denied conspiring with Hughes to produce "faked" evidence against McCarthy. Fritchey declared on the witness

BETTER JOBS By R. C. HOILES

Why So Many Wishy-Washy Newspapers?

There is undoubtedly a reason why there are so very, very few newspapers that really have convictions and are willing to express them. This applies especially as to what acts by government are right and good and what acts by government are bad and harmful.

It occurs to me that the primary reason newspapers are so wishy-washy and do not take a stand on human relation problems is that the editor or publisher do not have an understanding and convictions against the use of aggressive force by government.

Most newspapers believe that the government has a right to do certain things but no individual has a right to do. And when they are advocating the government tax one man for the benefit of another or make laws that give one group special privileges over another, it would be rather embarrassing for them to take a public stand against other forms of plunder or corruption or special privileges. Thus when a newspaper or any employer or citizen is asking the government for laws that will give him or some group an advantage, he runs a great risk of being embarrassed if he takes his stand against other laws that take from one to give to another.

Just how could the Los Angeles Times, for instance, very consistently oppose in their paper labor unions or socialized medicine or zoning laws or any special privilege laws by government when they are, themselves, advocating prerogatives of oranges, protective tariffs and government schools that tax one man for the benefit of another. If they would start a crusade against all special privilege laws and open their columns to letters to the editor and publish them, they would have those inconsistencies pointed out. So they would have to hide behind the editorial chair and refuse to permit their ideas to be challenged or criticized.

The result would be that they would have to have wishy-washy editorials that never really take a stand for liberty and freedom and justice for all persons. They can hardly even take a stand against socialized medicine because they cannot answer the question that former Governor Warren used to ask in defending his socialized medicine idea.

What would be the answer to a man that believes in government schools to the statement that socialized medicine was based on the same theory as government schools—that if a man believes in government schools he should believe in socialized medicine? There is the answer to such a question. The man who believes in one and not the other has to be governed by his own personal whims and cannot use any principle as a standard to determine right from wrong. He can have no guide but whatever seems popular and expedient.

So these publishers that have to have wishy-washy editorials usually govern their policies by whatever is popular, whatever will get them subscribers and make their cash register tingle.

There's a rather more pathetic than to see a publisher or a business man who has accumulated a lot of money by catering to the fantasies of the crowd but has no real happiness. He devotes a great deal of time trying to find happiness but he doesn't seem to realize that happiness is a by-product of living in harmony with principles. That there can be no happiness when a man is afraid of public opinion.

Another thing that these wishy-washy publishers do not seem to be is that when they are not willing to speak out against all forms of tyranny and special privileges for fear they will be embarrassed they stop developing. They stop learning and there's nothing more tragic than a man with plenty of material means that doesn't get the happiness and pleasure that comes from gaining new understanding of the application of just and ethical laws.

Obviously the reason there are so many wishy-washy newspapers and business men is that they, themselves, do not really understand the blessings that come from liberty and freedom and they cannot explain what they do not understand. And there's little chance for them to learn and develop when they are afraid of taking a positive stand and opening their columns to have their errors pointed out.

A newspaper of this kind can't really be of very little spiritual or ethical service to its readers.

Dulles Soon To Be Off On Crucial Diplomatic Errand

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Salesman John Foster Dulles will soon set out on one of his grimmest, diplomatic missions, when he duplicates the Bulganan - Khrushchev pilgrimage to India, the Middle East and Southeast Asia. In fact, it may be the most important of all his post-war errands on behalf of the West's interest in these strategic countries.

Washington was never more concerned over the direction which an area of 600,000,000 population, stretching from Egypt to Indonesia, will take in the next few years of struggle with Moscow. In view of the Russians' recent and prospective gains here, and growing resentment of Anglo-American policy, Dulles has not the slightest expectation of winning them wholly to our side.

Even such Allies as Turkey, Greece and Pakistan are waverers in their allegiance, under pressure from the Nehru - Nasser - Tito bloc, which advocates an attitude of "positive neutrality."

Dulles will be fortunate if he can persuade them to remain fully and fairly "neutral" in the cold war. As a result of the gains which they have made by playing Washington against Moscow, he may succeed in this attempt. The fact is that the "little three" have ganged together against us with amazing diplomatic astuteness.

Although Nasser accepted arms from the Communists in his clash with Israel, we virtually begged to finance the Aswan Dam in Lower Egypt. Likewise, Nehru and Tito have worked both sides of the ideological boulevard to great advantage. It has become a habit and a policy with them.

Had they made these deals with the Reds several years ago, the Administration would have black-listed them from further aid. But now we cannot afford to leave this market of millions of minds open to Russia. Benevolence has had to supplant braggadocio, an indictment frequently leveled at us.

Partially responsible for this change is John Sherman Cooper, our Ambassador to New Delhi. Shocked at the Communists' successes and popularity there, he flew to Washington to brief President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles on the menace. He is understood to favor a $1 billion loan to India at 2 per cent — Russia's rate — over a five-year period.

Another possible transition in Anglo-American policy has been proposed by Dag Hammarskjold after a tour of India. The Secretary General of the United Nations suggests that loans or grants to backward peoples can be channeled through his organization. In that way, he believes, the money would be forthcoming with "no strings attached." It would refute the Russian charge that a "selfish and imperialistic" motivation lies behind this generosity.

Dulles' journey is also a recognition of the new strength of the Asian-African bloc in the U.N. With the recent election of new members, this group will have 24 votes in the Assembly, and 25 when the Sudan is admitted next spring. With the Communists and several dissident neutrals, they will match the West. Anglo-American domination will end.

TVA Gambling With Safety Of People In Their Area

By Thurman Sensing

NSE D 124L TVA GAMBLING The safety and welfare of the people in the Tennessee Valley area — even the people of the nation, due to the location in that area of certain vital defense products — is now being seriously endangered by a situation that has been brought about by the inefficiency and autocratic mismanagement of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

This fact, which is not generally known except to the inside management of the Authority itself, has been divulged by Justin Potter, of Nashville, Tennessee, a former large coal operator, who is no longer in the business and who is therefore not vulnerable to TVA reprisal and not afraid to give out the information.

The essence of the situation is that the TVA is not maintaining a sufficient coal reserve at its various plants to assure its users an ample supply of electric power for a reasonable length of time in case of some emergency. The normal coal reserve needed at all plant locations, recognized as imperative throughout the industry, is enough to last 80 to 120 days. This is considered sufficient to tide the plant over until any ordinary emergency is ended.

But what is the situation now at the various large TVA electric power plants? Instead of having coal reserve enough to last 80 to 120 days, the information disclosed is that, approximately: The Shawnee plant has enough for only 40 to 50 days; The Johnsonville plant has enough for only 15 to 25 days; The Widow's Creek plant has enough for only 15 days; The John Sevier plant has enough for only 15 days; The Kingston plant has enough for only 12 days; and The Watts Bar plant has enough for only 7 or 8 days.

This is indeed a dangerous situation. Suppose a coal strike were called; or a railroad strike. The American people will know John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers can disrupt the economy of the nation by an industry-wide strike. We all know that nothing can ruin our whole economy more quickly than shutting off our supply of electricity.

By maintaining such a low coal reserve the TVA is gambling with the welfare and economy of the people in the whole Tennessee Valley area. It is making the location of big industry in the Valley a calculated risk. The TVA is even now buying electric power from the efficiently managed private power companies all around its fringe in order to have sufficient electricity to supply its consumers.

The TVA public information office is trying to cover up this situation by saying that it is a temporary condition that will soon be corrected, placing part of the blame on the recent drought. Referring to the Kingston plant, which uses 14,000 tons daily, it says they have a 75 day reserve on hand. "All this," says Mr. Potter, "is deliberate deception and misstatement of facts. Drouth has nothing whatever to do with maintenance of an ample reserve. And as for the Kingston plant, the actual fact is that instead of a 75 day reserve, they have a reserve sufficient for only 12 days or less."

The background for this present situation — one that could be most disastrous — goes back to the very beginning of the TVA. The TVA bought out and forced out of business all privately operated power companies in its area. It became a monopoly — and worse than that, a government-owned, politically managed monopoly. It therefore became autocratic and dictatorial.

Being a monopoly and the only purchaser of coal in its area for the production of electricity, traditionally one of the largest users made of coal, the TVA could tell and did tell — the coal operators what it would pay for coal. The finally negotiated price was quite often below the actual cost of production, and this forced dozens of small operators in the territory into bankruptcy and out of business.

Now that industrial demand for coal has increased enormously, along with demand for coal from private power companies outside the area, the TVA can no longer dictate the price of coal. "It is still trying to do so, however," says Mr. Potter. "It is still trying by subterfuge and high-handed pressure to buy coal below the cost of production in order to save face and not increase its own cost of production — but the result has been to reduce their coal supply and to gamble with the welfare of the people."

If the people of the Tennessee Valley are interested in a stable economy and the future welfare of the area, they had better give some serious thought to this situation. The conditions described here are nothing more than are to be expected from a socialistic, politically managed enterprise, monopolistic in its operation. The people are entitled to facts instead of propaganda.

"This could even be," says Mr. Potter, "a deliberate, cold-blooded attempt of the part of TVA management to create an emergency which would give them an excuse for going into the coal business."

Big Oil Companies Have Set 1956 Wage-Increase Pattern

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 — UP — The big oil companies have set the 1956 wage-increase pattern in the petroleum industry, whether the AFL-CIO Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union likes it or not.

The union apparently does, with some reservations, even though its expansion drive probably will be slowed. It is signing contracts subject to approval of its wage bargaining board and has raised no objections other than to urge its locals to go after all they can get.

The new scale was offered without fanfare by two of the industry giants, Standard Oil (of New Jersey) and Standard of Indiana, and other companies followed suit. It calls for a 6 per cent across-the-board increase for hourly workers, which averages out to a minimum of 15 cents an hour and a maximum of about 18 cents. Salaried workers will receive no less than $26 a month.

Offered to Independent Unions
The companies and their affiliates offered the scale to their independent unions, which the OCAW has been trying to capture, and the OCAW before the latter settled on its own pattern.

The independents began falling into line quickly. The OCAW apparently was receptive because the best offers it had been able to get ranged from 2 to 4 per cent. The development could insure another year of labor peace, although some industry leaders foresee trouble spots. They doubt, for example, that small refiners can pay the new scale and operate profitably.

Industry sources voiced belief

there was more behind the Jersey-Indiana strategy than met the eye. They said OCAW President O. A. Knight's vigorous membership drive may have been blunted. He is shooting for a million-man union but has had little success in merger overtures with the independents.

His campaign suffered a setback last month when a majority of the more than 5,000 workers in Indiana Standard's big Whiting refinery voted to retain the Independent Petroleum Workers of America as their bargaining agent. The vote was 4,501 for the IPWA and 1,095 for the OCAW.

Promises for Future
But Knight has a strategy of his own. He is bombarding rival unions with glowing promises for the future. And he is successfully chipping away here and there even though the big independents continue to turn the cold shoulder.

His latest absorptions include Shell employees at a new Anacortes, Wash., refinery; General Petroleum refinery workers at Ferndale, Wash.; Regent Refining Co. Port Credit, Ontario, Canada; Husky Oil & Refining Co., Lloydminster, Alberta, Canada, and the Great Northern Refinery, Pine Bend, Minn.

The union news says the OCAW participated in 87 elections last year, won 51 representing 7,000 workers, and lost 36 involving 3,200.
