LONDON -UP- A blonde little bundle from Texas is teaching the British that it isn't what you strip it's the way that you strip it.

And Lee Sharon's lessons have mers been so successful it looks as though the strip tease, American style, may replace the motionless nude, British style as the big girlie attraction of the night club and theater circuit.

The five-foot three-inch Dallas beauty said Monday she didn't come here as a missionary for the ger strip. She even asked the Club Mrs. Pigalle, London's newest and big. Charles gest, to bill her as an "interpretive dancer."

Long Time No See But word got around that this Charles phrase concealed a real 100 per Mamie Fuller, 530 Crawford cent American strip tease something the British haven't seen in sell many years - and the opening night audience was filled with show business people, performers and producers and bookers.

Said Miss Sharon: this: What can this girl do more startling than the complete nudity already permitted on the stage

Save Seven Billion

Would you like to have your Federal income tax reduced by 25 per cent? Could you use the money you'd save to pay off debts, remodel the kitchen, send a boy to college, make payments on a new car, or take a glamorous vacation trip?

Who wouldn't, and who couldn't?

If you're interested in how to go about it, there's a new book out, by Frank C. Hanighen, entitled "How to Save $7.5 Billion a Year." A condensation of the Hoover Reports, the book explains how that tremendous amount of money could be saved each year if the Hoover recommendations were taken to heart by the Federal government. And, the author points out, as Federal revenues from personal income taxes are about $30 billion a year, a saving of $7.5 billion could cut withholding taxes by 25 per cent.

How could such a staggering sum be saved? Eliminating waste and duplication in a thousand different Federal activities is part of the answer, according to "How to Save $7.5 Billion a Year." If that sounds too easy, as reported by Hanighen:

The Army has a 10.6 years' supply of women's wool serge taupe uniforms. The Navy has an 8.1 years' supply of blue trousers and enough jumpers to last for 9.3 years.

Random checks of supply items in common use and easily obtainable from manufacturers' showed that military depots stock many such items sufficient for a 20 and 30 years' supply and even in one case, a 128 years' supply.

"The warehouse problem is so stupendous and the inefficiency so great that the government doesn't know what it has in storage or where it is. Often one agency is selling at a few cents on the dollar something which another agency is buying - perhaps at a premium to obtain instant delivery.

Of even greater importance, from a standpoint of stopping the waste of tax revenues, are the Hoover Commission recommendations to reduce government competition with private business. "How to Save $7.5 Billion a Year" reveals, for example:

"The Department of Defense alone has an investment exceeding $15 billion in commercial industrial facilities ranging from shoe repair shops to clothing factories, from cement-mixing plants to sawmills, from chain stores to tree and garden nurseries."

One thousand of the business facilities operated by the Defense Department could be eliminated without endangering national defense, the Commission maintains.

"How to Save $7.5 Billion a Year" probably won't become a best seller. It isn't a do-it-yourself book, nor a racy tale about life in Hollywood's inner circles. Still, if its publishers put out a pocket-book edition with a lurid cover of a bewhiskered, tophatted gentleman taking a barrel away from a beautiful blonde taxpayer, it might help.

THE NATION'S PRESS

PAY-AS-YOU-GO IN NAME ONLY? (The Daily Oklahoman)

President Eisenhower has abandoned his bond proposal for financing the federal road program outside the budget.

Attention reverts now to the tax supported alternative which the Democrats are advancing as a way of getting the roads without adding their cost to the $280 billions public debt.

Chairman Fallon of the house roads subcommittee greeted the president's decision as "a big help to sponsors of pay-as-you-go road building." In opposing the president's bond financing plan the Democrats have referred to their own scheme as a "pay-as-you-go" way of avoiding an increase in the public debt. On fiscal grounds there's merit In the opposition to the discarded bond plan. The bonds wouldn't have been marketable on just the anticipated increase in road tax revenues growing out of wider highway use. Therefore it would have been necessary to back them with the government's full faith and credit. But that would have made them a treasury obligation and a part of the public debt regardless of any pretense to the

On the other hand it's by no means apparent that the increased road use taxes proposed by the Democrats will represent "pay-asyou-go" financing in practice. Misgivings occur in the fact that there are no dedicated taxes in the federal government's fiscal operations, and the supreme court has so ruled in allowing the social security act to stand.

In the circumstances there is no way of determing whether the proposed new taxes go actually to roads or in part to the Aswan dam in Egypt, to cite one example, Everything depends on the future trend of aggregate governmental expenditures.

In order for the Democratic road elan to be truly self - supporting the proposed new taxes would have to represent a net increase in governmental income over expenditures. But for that to happen total revenues would have a rise sharply and expenditures would have to be held at approximately the present levels. That's highly improbable in view of proposed income tax cuts, the vast range of new spending proposals now awaiting congress and the political exigencies of a campaign year. As a matter of fact federal expenditures already are rising in response mainly to higher defense costs. But in addition there are far-reaching programs involving increased aid to the farmers, to depressed areas and to the schools that have better

It's easily conceivable that the public debt could go right on rising while the people were paying a cent a gallon more for their gasoline. That's hardly a "pay-asyou-go" way of getting the roads.

THE INDIVIDUAL (Christian Economics)

Society everywhere is a conspiracy against the manhood of every one of its members... Society never advances; society develops only as man improves . . . The wise and just man will always feel that he imparts strength to the state, not receives security from it . . . The first rule of economy is that every man shall maintain himself . . . The less government we have, the better; the fewer laws and the less confided power. The antidote to this abuse of formal government is the influence of private character, the growth of the individual . . . In all my lectures, I taught one doctrine. namely, infinitude of the private

A Union Reader's

Comments On Labor Unions I want to continue to quote from a letter received from a union reader, Mr. F. W. Broyles, Jr. I have continued to number the paragraphs so they can be answered by numbers. Here are the statements made by Mr. Broyles.

3. "The majority of business people in this town are against union labor - but they are tickled to death to take part of your paycheck. Where else could they get money to keep open their businesses. Certainly not from one another. Large manufacturers can afford to give away millions on different gimmicks, and most of these plants employ union labor. Question. What makes them holler so loud when they are asked for a 10 cents an hour raise especially when their net profits have been steadily increasing?

4. "I agree with you that we should repeal all federal labor laws, state as well, so we could work 70 to 80 hours a week; children go to work for 75 cents a day - 12 to 15-hour day that is; there should be no minimum wage law - the whole family should have to work; we should even go back to having slaves, that is some of us. And of course labor unions stand in the way of progress, anyone can see that - living conditions are not near as good now as 15 to 20 years ago." 5, "Oh, ves. I didn't realize that there were so many unions in the 1930's, and that they were powerful enough to freeze wages and force the government to go of of the gold standard."

6. "One more thing before I close. I realize labor unions have a lot of faults but there is one thing I cannot understand. I seem to hear more complaints from 'would be politicians' than I do the employers I work for.

Sincerely yours. F. W. Broyles, Jr. "P.S. Why not let your readers read this?

My Answers

3. I presume the reader means that the business man is glad to accept paychecks in payment for his merchandise on which the business man makes a profit. But the worker that trades his paycheck for merchandise also makes a profit, or he would not trade for the things that he would rather have than the paycheck. Sure, the merchant gets his profit from trading just as every worker makes a profit by trading his labor for dollars. Business is nothing but a trade of labor where all parties make a profit. If men did not trade labor, exchange goods and services, and attempted to satisfy their own wants by their own personal efforts, most everyone would perish in a short time And those that survived would just merely subsist as lower animals do.

Anything that interferes with a free and unhampered division of labor and exchange of goods and services, as is the aim of all labor unions, hurts everybody. It keeps everybody poor and prevents wages and a high standard of living from rising as fast as they would on a free and unhampered

Business men "holler" against an increase in wage that is not warranted by an increase of production. They do this because they know that any increase in wage without an increase in production will decrease the real wages of the buyers of their products or it will decrease the real wages of efficiency or it will decrease the incentive for saving new capital. All of these retard the future well-being of all mankind. 4. Mr. Broyles is evidently sarcastic. I do not want wages to go down. I want them to go up as fast as possible. Since I am convinced that they can only go up with the accumulation of tools and since I believe that labor unions retard the accumulation of tools, I am afraid, as labor unions get control and eat up capital that should go into tools, people will be working long hours to just merely subsist. 5. Certainly the government should not have established any maximum wages. It was mismanagement of the government with banking and credit, by such laws as the Federal Reserve System, that caused the government to go off the Gold Standard. 6. Evidently Mr. Broyles is in error in his judgment of politicians. They have passed one union labor law after another that would not be passed by any person who believed that "Love thy neighbor as thyself" was a good guide of human relations. I thank Mr. Broyles for his interest in the very important question of how total wages or wage levels can be increased more rapidly and permanently.

Roosevelt hinted that at least 25 embers of the Federal Judiciary were so "mentally and physically incapacitated" - that is, senile - that they could not perform their duties. Former At-Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, the bill's promoter, had spent many weeks in digging up this information.

F.D.R.'s favorite and co-opera live columnists and writers pilloried sitting justices unmercifully, based on material supplied by White House "hatchet men" Thomas Corcoran, James Roosevelt, Benjamin Cohen, Joseph D.

These pundits labeled Justice Butler as a judicial spokesman for the railroads. Justice McReynolds for oil interests, Justice Van Devanter for the cattle, mineral and timber barons. Even Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes was branded as a "corporation lawyer from Board and Wall Street."

In rounding up votes for the court-packing bill, F.D.R. forced corrupt machine bosses to apply pressure on wavering Congressional cronies. The Kelly-Nash crowd in Chicago, Hague in New Jersey, Huey Long's in Louisiana, Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler's in Kentucky - all were importuned by the White House to turn on the heat. #### The Doctor Says By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

It is not surprising that many people are confused about blood groups and what they mean. One problem along this line is brought up in today's first inquiry.

Q-Can it be proved positively if a man is father of a child by blood type?-Reader.

A - It is not possible to prove that a given man is father of a particular child from examination of the blood types. The knowledge of the heredity of the blood types, however, does make it possible in some instances, to prove that a particular man cannot have been the father of a particular child. In other words, if one knows the blood group of the child and its mother, one can sometimes say that men with a certain type of blood group cannot have been the father of that particular child. Q-A short time ago you discussed the use of sleeping pills with particular reference to barbituates. Would you kindly say something about sodium amytal and whether this is in the same class?

A - Yes, sodium amytal is one of the barbiturates and must therefore be included under the remarks I previously made about try with black and white lists, barbiturates in general.

Q - I am 48 years old and have had an awful time the past year because I break out on my skin whenever it comes in contact with jewelry, which I love to wear. What can I do? - MRS.

A - There are a few people Votes enjoy the same worth as dollars, sometimes more, in Amerifew Congressmen who do not think first of whether a measure is popular with their constituents, and only secondarily of its effect on the public welfare. Like it or not, that's politics as it is practiced on Capitol Hill, in every State Legislature, and in every City Council.

Apparently the reason for this is that most such jewelry contains a certain amount of nickel and the skin sensitivity is due to this metal rather than to gold or silver. Proof of their success.

• Each DUST STOPPER is custom built to fit your windows, not a stock window fit with expanders as is the case with many storm windows on the market. The difference is as great as there is between dime store eye glasses and ones fitted by a specialist.

• Do not be fooled into buying storm windows that do not have weather stripping such as most Eastern types which you will recognize because of their half screens, as they will not keep out the dust and dirt FHA requires weatherstripping in all double hing windows for new construction whether they be made of wood, aluminum or steel. So why do you think a storm window without weather stripping will keep out dirt?

• All DUST STOPPERS are 100% weather-stripped.

All DUST STOPPERS are 100% weather-stripped, All DUST STOPPERS are 100% weather-stripped.

Installed by Factory trained Installation Crews, working direct out of Factory with the latest type equipment, and the experience of how to use it. We have turned down several prospective dealers as they wanted to install the Dust Stopper themselves but the not have proper experience or equipment necessary to do the type of an installation that we require.

The next time you think of storm windows, remember the above facts and let our trained engineers show you the difference. For free estimate call or write
