Solon Breaks With Ike On Controversial Farm Issue

WASHINGTON — UP — Sen. Frank Carlson, usually one of President Eisenhower's staunchest supporters in Congress, broke with the administration Wednesday on the farm issue. The Kansas Republican told the United Press that he favors price supports at 90 per cent of parity for wheat this year and a two-price system for the crop starting next year.

Paper Says Lawman Is Crime Group Head

LAREDO, Tex. — UP — The Laredo Times charged in an editorial Wednesday that a syndicate, headed by a "state law enforcement officer" in Dallas, collects payoffs from vice in Fort Worth. The editorial, which charged that some of the payoffs go to Austin, said: "We have been making a close check of Fort Worth and Tarrant county, which are considered by most people to be on a par with Galveston and Austin, as far as total corruption is concerned, which helps to give Texas the dubious honor of being the most corrupt of the 48 states."

Southwest, located off the Weatherford-Fort Worth highway. "The principal bookmaker layout is in north Fort Worth and involves horse racing, football and various rackets, and the policy racket is operated in the colored section of the city, with all of these gambling joints paying in to the politicians; and one of these politicians has stated he only takes his cut because he wants to be in the race for lieutenant governor. "As we have said before, it would be impossible for Texas to reach the No. 1 spot as the most corrupt if the newspapers were one-tenth as interested in clean government as they are in big buildings, big plants and increased advertising income. And naturally, the Texas Bar Association must share part of the shame that has been heaped upon Texas.... "The insurance scandal, which has been a fact for many years, seems to have afforded great many politicians a source of pay-offs. None of this could exist with proper and honest reporting by the newspapers, and diligence and integrity by the bar associations. Yes, it would be quite different from what one of the respected (See PAPER, Page 3)

Life Insurance Prexy To Speak

Ben F. Atkinson, C.L.U., president of the American General Life Insurance Co., will speak before a joint meeting of the Texas Association of Life Underwriters Friday in the main dining room of the Pampa Hotel at 8 p.m. The Life Underwriters of Amarillo will meet with those of Pampa to hear Atkinson speak on "How the Present Situation is Affecting Life Insurance Sales." Ladies might wish to observe with a social hour at 7 p.m., and the public is invited to attend the luncheon. Atkinson will address the Kiwanis Club at noon Friday, speaking on the "Present Life Insurance Situation in the State."

The new cars have everything built in except caution and courage.

Gas Bill Veto Seen

WASHINGTON — UP — Sen. George D. Aiken said Wednesday that President Eisenhower may veto the natural gas bill because of the furor over a $2,500 campaign contribution which developed during Senate debate on the measure. The Vermont Republican, an outspoken opponent of the bill, said there was a "50-50 chance" that Mr. Eisenhower would disapprove in view of the controversy over the campaign gift offered to, but rejected by, Sen. Francis Case (R-S. D.). A federal grand jury continued an inquiry Wednesday into the contribution offer, and three Senate committees were interested in various phases of the matter. Aiken stressed that he had no private information on the President's intentions and was basing his belief on a general knowledge of Mr. Eisenhower himself. Numerous reports circulated in Washington that the President had decided definitely to veto the bill. One such report came from a representative of the gas producing industry itself, which had hoped strongly for presidential approval. The bill would exempt independent natural gas producers from direct federal price control. The President has until Sunday to act on it or it becomes law without his signature. A Senate source close to developments said the President was under pressure from influential White House advisers to veto the measure, but the source said he was convinced Mr. Eisenhower still had not made up his mind. The White House had no comment. The President told his news conference last week that in studying the bill he was trying to balance considerations of promoting free enterprise in the gas industry against protecting the rights of "captive" gas customers.

Miss Patricia Broyles... new agent

Demonstration Agent Is Named

Miss Patricia Broyles of Muleshoe began her duties today as the new assistant county home demonstration agent. County Judge Bruce Parker has announced. She is replacing Mrs. Jim Terrell, who resigned recently. Miss Broyles graduated in January from Texas Technological College, Lubbock, where she studied applied arts in the home economics division. She attended Baylor University for her first two years of college. A former 4-H Club member herself, Miss Broyles will work mainly with 4-H girls although she will also assist Miss Helen Dunlap, county agent, with home demonstration work also. Miss Broyles arrived in Pampa Tuesday and spent the day visiting 4-H and Home Demonstration Clubs with Miss Dunlap.

Demos Reject Plea For A Road Tax Increase

WASHINGTON — UP — Two Democratic tax writers Wednesday rejected Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey's plea for a 60 per cent increase in the new taxes Democrats are proposing to finance expanded highways. Humphrey testified Tuesday that the Democratic plan to raise taxes on highway users an average of $800 million a year for 15 years would fall more than $500 million a year short of paying for the expanded road-building. He refused to recommend specific new taxes, telling the House Ways & Means committee, it's "up to you to figure out" how to raise more revenue. Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) accused the administration of refusing to co-operate with an investigating subcommittee of the Senate Permanent investigating subcommittee opened public hearings on whether "vital and strategic material" is being shipped by western nations to buyers behind the Iron Curtain. UN-AMERICAN Rep. Francis E. Walter said his House Un-American Activities committee expects to uncover "at least" 10 former Communist cells in the government. SCHOOLS Rep. Adam C. Powell Jr. (D-N.Y.) polled his colleagues on where they stand regarding his proposal to bar federal aid to segregated schools. Powell sent a letter to each member of the House. PLANES The Armed Services investigating subcommittee began an inquiry into profits made by military plane manufacturers. The subcommittee wants to know if the profits are excessive.

Facts On Wet-Dry Election In

If Gray County should remain wet in a county-wide election, the dry precincts would remain dry, according to a ruling received from the Attorney General's office by Don Cain, county attorney. If the county should vote dry, in a proposed election, the whole county would become dry and the precinct would have no authority to call and hold a local election. Such an election could not be held until after a county-wide election had carried in favor of the legal sale of alcohol. According to the ruling, where the county votes wet in the county-wide election, then a local option election may be held in a precinct earlier than one year from the date of the election to decide the status of that precinct. Charlie Thut, county clerk, has received 25 petitions to be circulated in order to call the election. All returns must be made within 30 days from the date of circulation. Ten qualified voters must indicate a need for the election before the petitions can be circulated.

Discussion On County Bill Set

Representatives of the J. W. Mansel Construction Co. of Amarillo were in Pampa today to discuss the problem of collecting a bill from Gray County for the construction of the foundation of the wash room at the county barn. The company two weeks ago submitted a bill for $2,073.90. The county contends the bill is higher than the price the company agreed to do the job for. County Judge Bruce Parker said today that the county had employed the firm to do the job for a price not to exceed $1,700. He explained that any price above $2,000 must be taken on the basis of competitive bids. He explained that when the bids for the job were submitted, they were all rejected as being too high. A representative of the Amarillo firm, the judge said, agreed to perform the task for a price not to exceed $1,700. When the original bid was submitted, it was $2,073.90. The county commissioners rejected the bill. At the last meeting of the commissioners, the bill was trimmed some, but was still more than $2,000 and it was rejected again. Judge Parker said the commissioners intended to pay only $1,700. If it comes from a Hardware Store, we have it Lewis Hardware.

Court Reporter Gets Salary Upped

Robert M. Baker, court reporter for the 31st District Court here, has received a $600 per year salary increase. Gray County, one of five counties in the jurisdiction of the court will pay $26.25 per month toward the salary increase. At present time, Gray County pays a larger share than any of the other counties in the district. The assessment for the county for Baker's new salary is $288.75. Wheeler County pays $149.38; Hemphill pays $30.71; Lipscomb pays $45.49 and Roberts pays $15.51 for a total of $550 per month.

No Medical Reason To Bar Him From Running

By RAYMOND LAHR WASHINGTON — (UP) — President Eisenhower's second term go-ahead from his doctors sent Republican hopes soaring Wednesday to their highest levels since the President's heart attack. The second term decision was still to be made by Mr. Eisenhower, who has said he will trust his "own feelings" more than his doctors' reports. But the doctors have told him that there is no medical reason to bar him from serving another four years in the White House. The President has indicated repeatedly that his physical fitness would be the most important factor influencing his decision. Republican leaders quickly cheered the report as "a green light" and "the best news yet" to encourage their hopes for a second Eisenhower administration. Martin Says He Will Run Disclaiming inside information, House GOP Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. told a Hagerstown, Md., audience Tuesday night: "Come March 1, the President will say, 'I accept the nomination.'" After a series of examinations which started last Saturday, the President's physicians gave him and the public Tuesday their report on Mr. Eisenhower's "good recovery" from his heart attack at Denver last Sept. 24. Dr. Paul Dudley White, the famed heart specialist and Maj. Gen. Howard Snyder, White House physician, did the talking for a group of six doctors at Tuesday's news conference. "We believe that he can serve four or five years or longer in a very active position of great responsibility," Snyder said. "Fully aware of the hazards and uncertainties that lie ahead," White said, "we believe that medically the chances are that the President should be able to carry on an active life satisfactorily for another five to 10 years. . . . but the (second term) choice is his, not ours. . . . Emphasizing that by "active life" he meant as President, White said: "we thought he should be able to carry on as active a life as he is leading now on the full job for that length of time." What was the President's reaction to this news? "He will make (See DOCTORS, Page 3)

Europe In 3rd Week Of Cold

LONDON — UP — Men and machine fought Wednesday to ease the plight of suffering thousands in Europe, locked in the third week of an unprecedented cold wave that has taken 900 lives. A country-by-country breakdown of the death toll since the first icy front swept down from Siberia Feb. 1 showed: France, 129; Italy, 105; Yugoslavia, 58; Germany, 52; Britain, 29; Denmark, 29; Portugal, 20; Greece, 17; Sweden, 15; Switzerland, 14; Holland, 12; and Austria 10. The toll is expected to go even higher when hundreds of communities, cut off by snow for days, restore communications. Towing ice jams on the Rhine River near the famed Lorelei rocks added floods to other weather miseries triggered by the cold wave. A solid ice dam across the narrow Rhine channel formed a 15-mile backwater. Water surged 25 feet above normal at the village of Lorch and bankside homes were evacuated. Giant C-119 "Flying Boxcars" roared over the Alps from Germany to Italy with thousands of pounds of warm clothing and food for Italians suffering under the impact of the worst winter in a century. The supplies were loaded on trains for distribution in the hardest-hit regions of southern Italy. Helicopters and small planes maintained a steady airdrop to isolated towns and villages. "Mercy" shipments of food, fuel and clothing were being distributed by plane, truck and volunteer rescue ski squads in France and Greece. In Scandinavia, the Kattegat, between the Danish isle of Jutland and Sweden, was frozen 25 feet deep in places. Hundreds of the small islands that make up Denmark were locked in ice.

Ike Not Heart Patient

By LYLE C. WILSON WASHINGTON — UP — President Eisenhower ceased being a heart patient Tuesday afternoon. As of Wednesday he looks like a second-term candidate. He's flying south with Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey to consider his future plans. Mr. Eisenhower will return a week or 10 days hence, and you cannot find many persons in Washington who do not now expect him to announce that he will run again. All of this hit Washington Tuesday like an unannounced hurricane. The doctors assembled at mid-day to examine the charts of Mr. Eisenhower's Saturday check-up at the Army's Walter Reed Medical Center and to confer with the patient. Press secretary James C. Hagerty produced his panel of specialists and physicians in ordinary for questioning by newsmen at 2:30 p.m. est. Decision Is President's Thirty minutes later the news was flashing around the world that there was no medical reason why Mr. Eisenhower should not continue his active life in the White House for another term. Dr. Paul Dudley White emphasized that he and his associates could not decide for the President. The decision must be his. A great many of Mr. Eisenhower's associates have been insisting that he would run again. They have had to qualify their confidence, however, with acknowledgment that the President's decision must be his. (See IKE, Page 3) Extra good fir 2x4 — 2x6 — 1-8 only $3.95 per 100 ft. ## Break-In Reported To Police Here

A break-in at the Royal Bar, 534 S. Cuyler, was reported at 9:05 this morning. Found missing were three cases of Jax beer and two cases of Lone Star beer. Sometime after midnight, a window was pried open and entry made. Nothing else was reported missing. In Scandinavia, the Kattegat, between the Danish isle of Jutland and Sweden, was frozen 25 feet deep in places. Hundreds of the small islands that make up Denmark were locked in ice.

TEEN TOPICS

By HELEN STEWARD

Four years in a row! That is what we are hoping it will be when the Harvesters meet Odessa, district championship for four years in a row.

If they play with as much spirit and determination as they showed at Canyon against Berger Monday night, we can probably say, "We've got it made." A team as red hot, as fast and sure as the one that beat the favored Bulldogs 67-58 just can't be beaten.

Then, as the PHS battle cry says, "On to STATE."

Two bus loads of Pampa students traveled to witness the exciting ball game in Canyon, and millions of loyal Pampa fans turned out and drove over. They saw a game that was all worth it, too. They saw a fast four quarters in which the Harvesters lead most of the way. They cheered and swarmed all over the court when final whistle that meant victory for the Green and Golders blew. They hugged each other and mounted five boys on their shoulders and carried them away.

And they all said, "We did it!" and hugged each other again.

Much credit is due each player. Credit is due Buddy Sharp who couldn't seem to miss from "way out" and Gene Brown whose magnificent guarding and all the points he marked up couldn't have been done with out, and Jerry Pope and everyone of the team. But the boys give the credit to their coach.

"That Coach—he's a magician," one of the boys was heard to say after the game.

With a team like that and a coach like that, how can we miss? So, on to state.

Next to winning the northern half district 1-4A crown, the biggest news in Pampa High is the new juke box in the cafeteria.

Just as Lee Ledrick promised, we got the juke box because we improved cafeteria conduct. It was well worth it, too. PHS has been wanting a juke box for ages. Finally, we earned it.

The box was installed Monday, and already it has a name. We call it Harvey in honor of the Senior Play, Harvey is really a great addition to our lunch room.

Music seems to add spirit to everything.

The records are the latest "pop" tunes. The first two are (you guessed it) by Elvis Presley.

Presentation of "Harvey, the first" had to be postponed a week because of the basketball game. It will be Feb. 20 and 21.

Don't miss it. The play will keep you in laughter all the while with Ted Swindle playing the part of Elwood P. Dowd and cracking his dry humor. Get your tickets right away before they are all gone. (At least the Senior Class hopes they will be all gone. Confidentially, the class budget is on the rocks and we are counting on play proceeds to revive it.)

Congratulations again to the Little Harvester staff. Again they braved ice and snow to get our ed all over the court when final whistle that meant victory for the Green and Golders blew. They hugged each other and mounted five boys on their shoulders and carried them away.

In English literature, Calvin Mayo was asked what a Friar (a priest of olden days) was.

"A two-pound chicken," he answered in fun.

Harvesterette A and B teams start competitive play next Monday with a game with Phillips. On Thursday they travel to Plainview for a tournament there.

Gook luck gals, we're rooting for you.

Twirl season is safely over and everything is back to normal in PHS. Boys carry their own books. So do the girls. Boys open doors for themselves. So do the girls. Etc. They say chivalry is dead. Maybe it is. It will ought to be; it's over five hundred years old.

Happy Ash Wednesday to all of you. It is today, you know.

Harvey will be seeing you in the auditorium Monday and Tuesday nights.

TV Award, 'Emmy' May Rival Hollywood's 'Oscar' This Year

By WILLIAM EWALD
NEW YORK —UP— Emmy, a young lady who sports a flowing robe, wings and a come-hither look, may come into her own this year.

She'll be eight years old and will celebrate her birthday on March 17th in New York and Hollywood. You'll see her on television.

Emmy is a gold statuette. She's awarded by the academy of television arts and sciences to TV performers adjudged the year's best.

Some observers have compared the Emmy award to the movies Oscar. However, until this year, this comparison has met with a singular lack of enthusiasm from many performers in the TV industry, notably the New York bunch.

The New Yorkers, led by Ed Sullivan, charged that past awards were weighted in favor of Hollywood shows. Their charge had some point — of the 1,000 active members in the academy, more than 800 were residents of Hollywood.

At one point, Sullivan suggested that the New York faction split away from the Pacific Coast chapter.

However, in recent weeks this hassle has been ironed out. Right now, the New York chapter, along with units in other large cities, is organizing a membership drive. There are about 500 members right now in New York.

This March, the academy will give out 41 awards, a rather unwieldy number that includes such curiosities as "best engineering technical achievement," "best commercial campaign" and "best art direction for a filmed series."

Last year, 34 Emmys were given out on a national scale. Some of the big winners were George Gobel as outstanding new personality, Danny Thomas and Loretta Young as best actor and actress in a series, Perry Como and Dinah Shore as best singers, and Robert Cummings and Judith Anderson as best actor and actress for a single performance.

Some of the programs that carried off Emmys were "Omnibus," "Lassie," "This Is Your Life," "Dragnet," "Disneyland" and "United States Steel Hour."

LONDON — Radio Moscow in WASHINGTON —UP— If Frankie Carle hadn't had a mind of his own at age 5, he might be banging cymbals and pounding drums today instead of ticking ivories.

The personal piano player told me the story of his musical beginnings during a chat at the Statter.

Way back there his uncle, a professor of music, caught the kid behind a stump in the woods trying out a pack of cigars he had found.

"Why don't you give up cigars," said the old professor, "and take up drums. They make a lot more noise than a cigar."

Frankie told his uncle that if he didn't mind he would rather do his racket-making on the piano, which isn't as noisy as drums and brass bangers. Piano playing is what he has been doing with considerable grace for a great many years.

In fact he wore out a lot of pianos, growing up to sell over seven million of his records and help write such lovely tunes as "Sunrise Serenade," and many another in the unique Carle manner.

"Incidentally," Frankie said "while we are at it, I would like to explode a myth that has followed me most of my professional life. I seldom have any arrangements on my rack, and that has led to the rumor that I play mostly by the ear. That's not true. I have a fine musical background. The rumors started, I suppose, because I memorize very fast. I not only can read the notes, but I can write them down."

Speaking of "Sunrise Serenade,"

Frankie tells the story in his own words:

"We were in a rooming house, this other guy and I hitting the keys and writing like crazy. It finally got around to five in the morning and some of the neighbors buzzed for a cop.

"An officer came in and listened to us for a while and asked what we were going to call it. I said 'Sun Coming Up.' The cop, who by that time had forgotten he was supposed to take us to the cooler, looked out the window, saw a new sun, and said, 'Bub, you oughta make it 'Sunrise Serenade.' And that, of course is what we did. I've dearly loved cops ever since."

The song - writers, by the way, had run out of paper by this time and the final version was written on the back of an old envelope.

Services Held For Pampan's Father

Joseph Edson Fortin, 62, of Ferndale, Mich., died Feb. 5 in the Veteran's Hospital in Dearborn, Mich., after being in failing health the last five years.

Mr. Fortin is the father of Pampan's Joe L. Fortin.

Mr. Fortin was born Sept. 4, 1893, in St. Louis, Mo., the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles (Catherine) Fortin. He was in maintenance in an airplane parts factory in Ferndale, an ex-professional baseball player, and member of American Legion Post 330 in Ferndale.

Mr. Fortin is survived by his wife, Josephine; two children, Joe of Pampan, and Mrs. Jack L. Mary Ann Colling of Saginaw, Mich.; and five grandchildren.

Rosary was recited at 8:30 p.m. last Wednesday at the Wessels Funeral Home in Ferndale. Prayers at 8:30 a.m. last Thursday preceded the requiem mass at 9 in the St. James Church, Ferndale. Burial was in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, Detroit.

Exchange Club Hears Banker

Kenneth N. Sloan, vice-president and Trust Officer of the First National Bank of Amarillo, spoke on "Estate Planning as it is Generally Understood Today," before the Pampa Exchange Club last night.

Speaking on the relative advantages of will preparation in reference to Federal Income Taxes and Estate Taxes, as well, Sloan pointed out that drawing up a last will and testament is one of the most important documents that one can make.

Sloan stressed that this is an age of specialization in which the large estate planning concept is new to the Panhandle area. He continued by outlining the tax evaluation of property methods.

Following his introduction by Frank Fata, of Pampa Life Underwriters Association, Sloan said, "An expert is a man away from home without his briefcase."

He is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma Law School with an L.L.B. degree, Rutgers University with a G. S. B. degree, and author of several publications and a thesis.

Jim Hopkins, sophomore, Junior Exchange of the month, attended the meeting.

Mrs. Carter Honored By JC's

Mrs. Luez Carter was presented with a certificate of recognition and appreciation by the Junior Chamber of Commerce yesterday noon in acknowledgement of her work for the Pampa Youth and Community Center.

Later she was made an honorary member of the Jaycees by a motion presented by Charley Wilkerson, a member of the board of directors. Following the presentation of the certificate, she extended her thanks to the club and briefly outlined the purpose of the center.

She indicated that Waldon Moore architect, met with the board of directors of the Youth and Community Center recently and presented plans for the building. An architect's sketch will be presented by Moore next Friday evening.

"I don't know where we are going to get the money but we're going to try," Mrs. Carter said. Plans are underway for a 10-acre site, building and playground.

When the project is completed it will be the realization of a dream held by the Jaycees for years. They have plugged the youth center and donated $4,000 for the fund in 1954.

A Regional-1 Work Conference will be held at Poole's Drive Inn Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Jaycees from eight clubs in this region will attend the conference to coordinate activities on a region-wide scale. Publicity campaigns will be discussed and correlated. Clubs are expected to attend from Berger, Perryton, Dumas, Dalhart, Spearman, Amarillo, and Hereford.

Bob Carmichael, president, will present a trophy on behalf of the Jaycees to one of the five top winners in the Junior Livestock Show on Feb. 24.

The Jaycees Free Dental Clinic will open next week for underprivileged citizens of the county. The instruments have arrived and work is proceeding on the x-ray unit this week. Nine local dentists will operate the clinic, on a part time basis, on Wednesdays and alternate Thursdays.

Dale Lietzman of KPAT received his membership kit and was welcomed into the club yesterday.

Collision Is Reported Here

A city disposal truck was involved in an automobile collision yesterday on Lincoln St. and 150 feet west of Sumner at 4 p.m. The truck was not damaged in the mishap.

The truck was in collision with a '55 Chevrolet, belonging to B. C. Priest, 104 W. Browning. Driving the truck was James F. Webb, 412 N. Hobart. Damages to the Chevrolet were estimated at $44.

edgement of his physical condition. Most said it was too much to expect a man to kill himself in the line of duty.

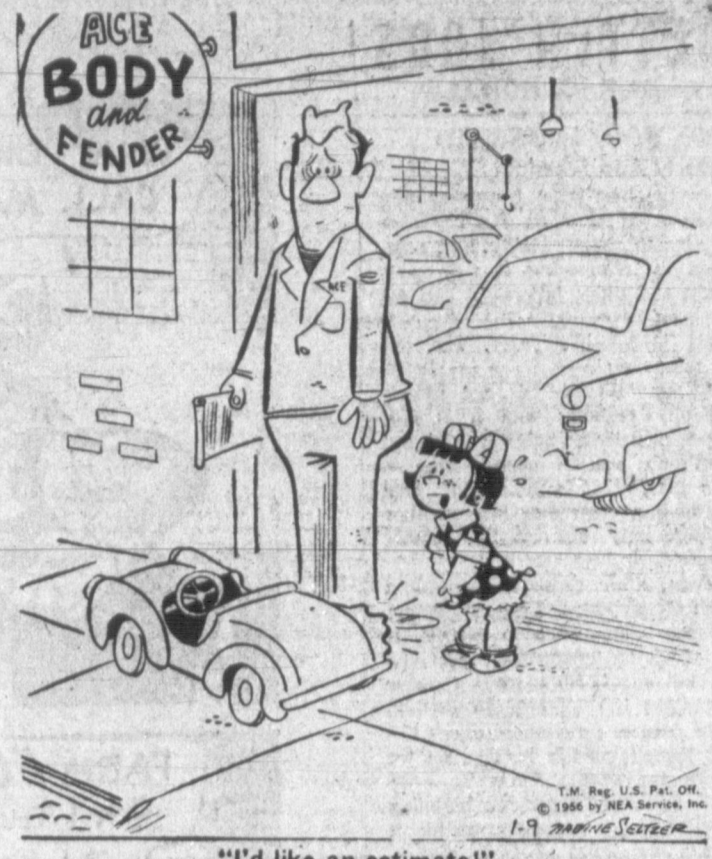

A few—and some close friends, at that—said they had good reason to know Mr. Eisenhower was not afraid to die or to take on a killing job. He did shrink from the idea of a physical collapse which would commit him to an invalid's chair or bed.

Misfortune Seems Remote

And, the President, himself, repeatedly has indicated his anxiety about death in office from the standpoint of how it would affect the government and people of the United States.

Dr. White's judgment, and Dr. Howard M. Snyder's, seems now to make the chance of such misfortune reasonably remote. The President's health, therefore, is now being counted a very much diminished factor in the decision which he intends to make during his vacation on Humphrey's Georgia plantation.

Weighting heavily on the opinion of those who believe now that Mr. Eisenhower will accept a second nomination are the facts of the presidential campaign as it has developed so far: Former President Truman, Adlai E. Stevenson Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, and others are getting rough. Mr. Eisenhower's administration of the peoples' business at home and abroad is being criticized and condemned, and he, with it.

Results Of Freedom

Count the number of government school buildings in this community.

Now, count the number of church buildings. Obviously, there are more churches than there are government schools.

Did the thought ever occur that there is a profound reason for the abundance of churches and the dearth of schools? The reason must be directly related to the different means employed by churches and schools to satisfy their housing requirements.

Churches depend upon God and upon free gifts of persons whose generosity is based on the principles of charity and whose money is derived from profits which occur in the free enterprise system. Government schools depend upon the force of government through the universal collection of taxation.

On the face of it, it might appear that the government school system has the better method. If one relies on compulsion, nothing is left to chance. All taxpayers, whether they like it or not, are compelled to provide money for government schools. Only those who wish to do so give money to churches. Surely it would appear that the construction program of churches must be haphazard and risky, while the construction of government schools must be certain and freed from any risk whatsoever.

But the results of the two systems used to collect money stand in sharp contrast. The haphazard, risky method employed by the churches has resulted in an abundance of churches. And today, on every hand a virtually universal wall is raised: "The government school system hasn't enough money. More force must be applied. Taxes must be raised. The school building funds are inadequate." It is apparent that the lacks are more prevalent when compulsion is used than when free choice is relied upon.

Let us look to the future. The Departments of Commerce and Labor have done a bit of prophesying. They say that within the next ten years 70,000 new churches will be built, plus 12,500 buildings devoted to religious education. This vast enlargement of the implements of religion will cost more than six billion dollars. Apparently there will be no lack of churches. And not one cent of that six billion is scheduled to be collected by coercion or by the application of force.

Free men, women and children will underwrite that tremendous sum of money. We probably won't even hear much about it. Publicity on a national scale simply won't be needed. Each church group, each little community will take care of its own requirements, simply, directly, honestly.

Further, there seems to be no question about the money. It will be there when it is needed.

There is unquestionably a vast shortage in our government school system. Yet it has relied upon what has seemed to it a surer way. One of the troubles with having government in the education business is that it is so woefully inadequate. Its arbitrary, universal exactions don't measure up to the freedom enjoyed by churches.

As an example, President Eisenhower wants to collect about a billion and a half dollars by exerting more federal pressure against the taxpayers. This money would be used over the next five years to help offset the dreadful inadequacy of the government school system.

Even if he succeeds in getting that money, which is doubtful, it won't accomplish its objective. It will only embitter the taxpayers, create greater resistance on the part of both pro-government and anti-government school supporters, embroil the nation, and reduce the general overall effectiveness of government education.

This should make clear that plans drawn up on paper can look mighty good, but can be pretty sad when put into effect. All the planning and the pressure instituted by government education, whether at federal or some other level of government, just won't do the job.

The practice of the voluntary way, which is the practice of the churches, does a splendid job. The reality of the practice is far more effective than the unscrupulous dreams of the government educator.

If we ever wish to solve our educational dilemma for our young people, we must get the government out of the education business and declare, as we wisely did in the matter of the church, that the schools and the state shall be separate.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR F. JORDAN, M. D.

A reader recently wrote that her 27-year-old brother who had never been sick before had been diagnosed as having Hodgkin's disease and she would like a discussion of this order.

Hodgkin's disease is a strange, but fortunately rather uncommon, disorder. It holds extraordinary interest to a person who acquires it and to his or her family and friends.

The disease is more common in young people than in older ones and more frequent in men than in women. It has been reported from every part of the world. It is not contagious and its cause is not known.

THE FIRST SIGN is usually (but not always) enlargement of the lymph glands in the neck. The swollen glands are not painful.

After a while — perhaps after months or years — glands in other parts of the body may become enlarged.

It does not interfere with general well-being for a long time, but gradually anemia tends to develop. Low fever is often present and the patient slowly loses weight.

The lymph glands and the spleen which are affected in Hodgkin's disease are part of a chain or group of tissues called the reticuloendothelial system.

The fact that this system is attacked has raised the question of some infection being at fault. So far, however, no germ or virus has been proved as the cause.

THE PATIENT with Hodgkin's disease usually goes through periods of remarkable improvement. The enlarged lymph glands may disappear almost completely and the general condition may improve for long periods of time.

X-rays have been used in treatment for many years. They often cause improvement lasting for months at a time. Treatment with drugs has not been particularly successful.

THERE HAVE BEEN several favorable reports on the treatment of patients who have Hodgkin's disease with preparations called "nitrogen mustards." These substances seem to be quite helpful for some patients and are used extensively. Actually, there is a good deal of research on Hodgkin's disease going on and new drugs are being tried so that eventually we can hope for further improvements in methods of treatment.

Rose Wilder Lane Defines Liberty And Freedom

In the last issue I was quoting from a letter from Rose Wilder Lane explaining liberty and freedom by comparing it with eyesight and light; how sight can not be transferred from the owner of eyes to another party. She put it this way:

"Your eyesight is not affected by darkness; and it is still your own inalienable 'eyesight,' that only you — nobody else — can use, that you cannot give to anyone else, and that another person may destroy — but cannot take."

Then, after comparing eyesight with liberty, Mrs. Lane continues: "Now come back to liberty. If liberty is an 'endowment' received by 'all men' from their Creator (as sight is), if it is an inalienable natural function of every living person, as life is, how do we define the word, 'liberty'?"

"I think the American meaning of 'liberty,' is self-government; it is the individual person's government of his own actions (including of course speech, which is an action). I think it is inalienable because a person's action is a use of energy, a use of his own combined 'physical-spiritual' life-energy (as seeing is) and because the control of any energy is inseparable, from that energy's action."

"It is obvious that a man in jail controls his own acts and speech, is so far as he acts or speaks at all. Nobody else controls them, or CAN control them. As nobody else can use a blindfolded man's eyesight."

"But, in jail, a prisoner cannot use his liberty fully. He has been put in an environment that prevents his full use of his liberty. He can control his action — for example, his walking — only within the limits set by that environment."

"To use your eyesight fully, you must have an environment named 'light.' To use your liberty — your control of your actions — fully, you need an environment, that needs a name expressing a distinct and defined and generally understood meaning: a word meaning, 'the environment in which human beings fully use their liberty,' just as 'light' means, an environment in which human beings fully use their eyesight."

"Without these two words, two names for two things as different as 'eyesight' and 'light,' rational thinking about the American concept of the nature of man is impossible. At present, 'liberty,' 'freedom,' and 'liberties' and 'freedoms' are chattered about in thoughtless, not to say mindless, confusion. Nobody knows what they mean. The talk is as intelligent as that of a Bab-el after the 'confusion of tongues' stopped the tower-building."

"IN THE POWER in THE PEOPLE, Felix Morley adopted the use of 'liberty' as the name of the inalienable natural function, and 'freedom' as the name of the environment in which liberty can be fully used. This usage gives us two rational definitions:

"Liberty: the individual person's natural, inalienable function of the control of his own actions (including speech), entailing his responsibility for his actions."

"Freedom: the environment, in which no use of physical force prevents, impedes, or stops the individual's full exercise of his liberty."

"Using these definitions, you have no difficulty about the man in jail. He has liberty but only a narrowly limited freedom, whose limits impede his full use of his liberty."

"Add: Observe that neither liberty nor freedom have any connection with relationships-between-persons, which are called 'society.'"

"Any living person is endowed by his Creator with liberty, whether he be in a New York City subway rush or solitary on a desert island. His environment is freedom, if nothing in it physically prevents his full use of his liberty."

In New York City the pressure of the crowd, or a policeman's handcuffs, or the subway train's locked doors, may diminish his environmental freedom. On the desert island, a tree may fall on him, pin him down, and be an environment of no freedom whatever. He will then have liberty as long as he lives but he will not live long, because the maintenance of human life on his planet depends upon man's use of their liberty."

I think Mrs. Lane explains the inalienable part of liberty by her comparison with eyesight as clearly as any explanation I have ever read.

I am deeply indebted to Mrs. Lane.

Enforcement Of Anti-Trust Laws Has Vast Significance

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower Administration's vigorous enforcement of antitrust laws against great corporations with Republican backgrounds and leanings has vast political significance, whether so designed or not. But Attorney General Herbert G. Brownell, Jr., is no tyro in law or politics or economics.

Indeed, his antitrust prosecutions, including those achieved or contemplated by his bulky champion in this field, Assistant Attorney General Stanley N. Barnes of California, shock "Madison Avenue hucksters" and pro-Eisenhower advertising agencies.

Now, he has revived an antitrust suit against 10 of the largest petroleum firms, asserting that they overcharged Marshall Plan beneficiaries for the crude product. Whereas his predecessors sought only $10,000,000 in damages, he may ask for $20,000,000. He plans Bethlehem and Youngstown Steel.

Finally, and most unconventionally, he threatens an antitrust suit against the automobile "big three" — General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. Although they have gained their market supremacy by admittedly legal and legitimate methods, he regards their alleged 98.5 percent of sales as "undue concentration."

Many lawyers doubt whether Uncle Sam could win such an unprecedented action. But its mere filing before November 6 would help the Republican cause enormously.

The Democrats themselves have eliminated another major issue, and with the blessing of the Rayburn-Johnson leadership on Capitol Hill. They did so when they forced through over northern Democrats' protests the bill freeing natural gas producers of maximum Federal regulation.

With the Rayburn-Johnson faction also responsible for returning the oil tidelands to the states — principally California, Texas and Louisiana — the opposition cancelled their liberal colleagues' repeated charges that the Administration has "given away" priceless natural resources.

In both instances, the more influential Democrats agreed with one of Ike's major tenets — a minimum of Federal controls and a maximum of private enterprise and development.

Without the Rayburn-Johnson influence, which swayed the votes of numerous on-the-fence Democrats, neither the release of gas and tideland oil producers from bureaucratic domination could have been accomplished. It was a bipartisan achievement.

Liberal Democrats will, of course, raise this issue in the Presidential and Congressional battles, including even the "moderate" Stevenson. The public ownership faction — Truman, Kefauver, Lehman, Morse, Humphrey, Neuberger — will hammer at it in shrill speeches.

But the Republicans can answer the mirth and angry words from the lips of the Democratic

Players Paid Dearly In World Series Scandal

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Sport reporters of the day disagreed on the innocence or guilt of Buck Weaver, the third baseman of the White Sox in the faked World Series of 1919, but no humane person will deny that the baseball industry punished him and others with brutal cruelty. Weaver never was convicted of complicity in the conspiracy of Arnold Rothstein and other New York and Philadelphia gangsters to bribe the White Sox to throw the series to the Cincinnati Reds. But 38 years later he went to his grave still dishonored and despised.

Weaver was one of seven White Sox, later known as the Black Sox, who were totally ostracized for life. Admittedly, he had not received any of the money which, in some cases, was to have been hidden in the pillow-cases of Chicago players in their hotel rooms in Cincinnati. There was never a clear determination of the amounts actually paid as bribes. But Weaver and a St. Louis player, a nice kid with promise of a good career, were ruled out forever because they admitted that they heard rumors and failed to report them to their club executives.

However, the attitude of Charley Comiskey, the owner of the White Sox, when he first heard the news, was so hostile to the informants that Weaver was on good ground in claiming that Comiskey would have whispered him out of all organized baseball. The St. Louis player actually had no obligation to report anything to anyone. The season was over, the Browns were disbanded and he was never accused of betting on the strength of the rumors. Nevertheless he went down and out in disgrace, slightly less cruel in his case only because he was not well known and was apart from the main group in the Chicago club.

Comiskey had a sport-page reputation as an open-handed sport, but he was insulting, stingy and heartless to his players. There was a group of politicians and baseball writers calling themselves the Woodland Bards, informally attached to the White Sox. They had a boozing room in the grandstand where Comiskey kept a caak of bourbon on the bar and a colored chef sliced succulent hams and enormous roasts of beef oozing blood. They sang raucously when drunk and the press toasted Comiskey as the noblest Roman of them all because he had a Roman nose and was always affable with the sport reporters.

Comiskey drank his bourbon neat and solemnly admonished effete young squirts not to mix bourbon with soda because soda contained caustic which would eat their guts.

Hugh S. Fullerton, then of the New York Evening Mail, wrote just after the Series ended that a number of the White Sox would never play in organized baseball again. But Ring Lardner, himself not long plucked from the press box by the Saturday Evening Post, must have known something because after the first two games in Cincinnati, he went through the press train bound for Chicago, singing "I'm Forever Throwing Ballgames," a parody on a popular song of the moment. However, Lardner didn't mention a fix in his pieces and the rest of us were so stupid that nobody did any real digging.

We were rained out on a Sunday in Chicago and that gloomy afternoon in the club-room of the Woodland Bards, Kid Gleason, the manager of the White Sox twice made a remark which should have brought our ears up but didn't. The kid said, "I don't know what is wrong out there but I know the best team ain't winning." I recalled later that he used the word "wrong" and tried to convince myself that if he had said this as a tip and gone to work, I was faintly conscious of a suspicion when Eddie Cicotte, a great pitcher but determined to lose this game, cut off a beautiful throw to nail a runner at the plate. The ball would have cut off the run but Cicotte's interception and relay made the difference and the runner scored.

The White Sox had almost played their 1920 schedule when the real story finally exploded. Seven regulars were banished and Comiskey led the grand public outburst of pious horror. But it came out later that the best ball-club in history down to then and possibly still the best was paid coolie wages under yellow dog contracts, the standard agreement in all organized baseball. The highest salary was $3,000 and Ray Cannon, a Milwaukee lawyer who later went to Congress, argued that the guiltiest players had committed no offense against the public and had no reason to yield loyalty to Comiskey.

In the spring of 1921, Dick Kerr, a wry-necked little Texan, "held out," as the term went, for a raise and was snubbed by Comiskey's son, Lou, who was in charge of the club on the training tour when he tried to plead his case. Lou refused to see him and Kerr never played major league ball again, although he had pitched the only two games the White Sox had won in 1919.

The public acted as though these ball-players had desecrated something holy. They were not even allowed to enter major league parks as cash customers. But Alger Hiss even after his conviction was entertained at the home of Mrs. Benjamin Bittensweiser, the niece of Senator Herbert Lehman, and the Ford Fund for the Republic has extended itself lavishly to redeem Prof. J. Robert Oppenheimer.

Some of you might think that my dream of Heaven is old-fashioned or a bit out of taste. ## Mrs. Bessie Johnson Talks On Mexico During Meet Of Pampa Altrusa Club

Mrs. Bessie K. Johnson of Mexico City, Mexico, international lecturer, was featured speaker at the meeting of the Pampa Altrusa Club Monday in the Lovett Memorial Library.

Mrs. Johnson's topic was "My Own Mexico." She stated she was supposed to speak on "My Own Country," but since she is originally from Brownsville, Texas, she decided she would change the title.

"I have absorbed Mexico as part of my country," she explained. "I read more in Spanish than I do in English. The Spanish language is something you should all learn because it is so beautiful to speak."

She pointed out that she tells students to whom she is teaching Spanish that "English is for business and Spanish is for love."

"I wish I could let you see Mexico as I know it," she advised, going on to tell of the beauty of the country. "Mexico is in two tones—address; the other is happy."

She told of the fiestas, with each one different from the other with the costumes different in each section of the country. She added that there is a fiesta somewhere in Mexico every week of the year.

The climate in Mexico is varied. Mrs. Johnson stated. She said in eight hours a person can reach the Gulf Coast from Mexico City. En route there is a high landland with a change of 40 degrees every 12 hours, she pointed out. And midway to the coast the climate is neither very hot nor very cold and is abundant in tropical plants and fruits.

"They (the Mexicans) always have trees and flowers wherever they go," she explained, adding that halfway to Vera Cruz is a spot that is the best place to see orchids.

"Of the people she stated: "You can always get someone to help you. If you are sick, they are with you day and night until you are well. They have much to teach to us and we have so much we can and should not—teach them. They have not forgotten how to be courteous, and they are kind."

Mrs. Johnson told of the architecture in Mexico, especially of the beautiful churches, which were built on "what were the temples of the Indians." She explained the Spanish built the churches on top of the pyramids to "show the Christian religion was stronger. She told the group the country is predominantly Catholic, with a mixture of the old and new.

She pointed out that symbols of ancient gods still appear in the Mexican basketry and other arts.

"Each (ancient) god represented one trait," she pointed out. "We've put all the traits into one God."

Mrs. Johnson stated the Mexicans have legends for everything, adding that they are "history," with each being based on some actual happening.

"Each place has its handiwork according to what they have to do with," she told the group. "And it is all done by hand. Each place has its own type of design of pottery. The wonder is the art they (the Indians) were able to do with nothing."

She told of a place near Lake Patzcuaro where there are some old ruins and where the Indians made "beautiful featherwork pictures" from hummingbird wings. Now the hummingbirds are gone, so they have to dye other feathers to make the pictures.

"Communism is very slight in Mexico," she pointed out, adding that the "Indians have been philosophers centuries before we were ever in this land."

She told of the beautiful gardens in Mexico and of the Bougainvillea that grows abundantly there, although it is a native plant of Brazil. She stated the plant from which cocoa comes is grown there as well as vanilla, which she said is "an orchid with roots in the ground."

In Cuernavaca is the famous Cortez palace and "a wonderful garden" done in 1700 by a Frenchman who also built "the great church in Taxco," Mrs. Johnson told the group.

"Mexico has music—wonderful music—and they have their own instruments if you let them play them," she stated.

She told of an Aztec chorus of over 3,000 persons that used to sing each week. If there was one discord, she advised, there was a severe punishment for that singer.

"See these people, know these people," she charged the group. "Meet them with a smile and you'll get two smiles back. There (Mexico) you can find whatever will attract you and the people are the greatest of attractions."

Mrs. Johnson was introduced by Mrs. Jack P. Foster, who assisted Mrs. J. Ray Martin, international relations chairman, with the arrangement for the program.

Prior to Mrs. Johnson's speech, refreshments of punch, minis, sandwiches and cake were served. Mrs. Frank Lord, president, presided at the punch bowl, and Mrs. Martin served the cake. The serving table was centered with a white cloth and was covered by the blue and white Altrusa emblem flanked by white tapers.

Mrs. Lord introduced Miss Wanda Guthrie, Pampa High School senior, who is the Altrusa girl-of-the-month for February.

Junior High PTA Sets Fathers' Night Meet For Thursday

Mrs. Bessie K. Johnson of Mexico City, Mexico, will be featured speaker for the fathers' night meeting of the Junior High School Parent-Teachers Association at 8 p.m. Thursday in the school auditorium, Mrs. Jack P. Foster, president, has announced.

Born in the United States, Mrs. Johnson now lives in Mexico City although she still maintains her home in Brownsville, Texas. Her husband was one of the founders of the Mexican Airlines and later was employed by Pan American Airlines when the Mexican airline was taken over by Pan American. Mrs. Johnson is now a personnel representative of Pan American. She also does landscaping of airports and did the landscaping of the first one in the United States at Brownsville.

A noted lecturer, she has a repertoire of 45 different subjects that she can lecture on for over an hour. She is also now in the process of writing two books. Refreshments for the meeting will follow a Mexican theme.

Jane Talk

By JANE KADINGO
Pampa News Women's Editor

NEW BOOKS seems to be the order-of-the-day today. Lincoln's birthday was Sunday, but I think this is still apropos. It's some interesting facts about a book on Lincoln that will interest housewives — make us realize that this is not the only period of high prices.

WHEN MRS. ABRAHAM LINCOLN made out her shopping list, in 1865, she had to contend with prices that were considered to be "a wartime outrage" by Capitol housewives, reports Jim Bishop in his dramatic narrative, "The Day Lincoln Was Shot". Published this week in a pocket-sized edition by Bantam Books, the book lists "fifteen butters at 30 cents a pound, coffee hard to get at 21 cents a pound, and salt at 50 cents a bushel. The highest priced meats were ham at 28 cents a pound and turkey at 30 cents. A barrel of Boston crackers, enough to last a season, cost $6.50."

Mrs. Lincoln's budget problems must have been eased somewhat, however, by her husband's eating habits. The President, it seems, was a lean eater who preferred a fairly uniform diet. His breakfast, according to Bishop consisted of one egg and one cup of coffee. His lunch, after a busy morning of conferences, was usually one biscuit, one glass of milk and one apple. His dinner was a little more varied, for he sometimes would drink some hot soup and almost always meat and potatoes. The only dessert he could be induced to eat was homemade apple pie.

Bishop's book, which presents an hour-by-hour account of the events that took place on the day of Lincoln's assassination is a thoroughgoing accurate and scholarly book that reads like a first-class mystery story, with suspense mounting until the final, tragic moment of his death.

MEMO TO MOTHERS: If you're looking for a cute and interesting book for your little girl, here is a review of a new book, to be released this month, written especially for girls from 4 to 7 years of age.

Grace Bishop's first book "on her own" is a delightful invasion of a small girl's world where life has its moments — good and bad. The eight small misses in "Prissy Missee" each lose their pretty names and become Measy Mary, Horrible Hannah, Crying Katie, Foolish Frances, Lazy Lucy, Selfish Sally, Silly Susie, and Fokey Polly. The book will be released Feb. 27, by The Steck Company of Austin, Texas.

Mrs. Bishop is the wife of Curtis Bishop, prolific author of 28 books and a number of television and screen plays. She has always been "more than a little help" to her husband, but her name did not appear on a book until two years ago when she collaborated with her husband on "Stout Rider."

"Prissy Missee" was written to satisfy Mrs. Bishop's daughter Barbee, who wanted a girl's book to compete with the many boys' books written by her father. It has been illustrated in color by Belay Warren, who has illustrated a number of books and is the author-artist of "The Donkey Sat Down."

Sharp Group Plans For CWF Banquet

The Sharp Group of the First Christian Church met Monday evening in the home of Mrs. L. H. Kerckendall, with Mrs. L. C. Wassell giving opening prayer.

The devotional was presented by Mrs. Arthur Crow, and Mrs. Wassell gave the history and activities of the Mexican Christian Institution in San Antonio, adopted by the group as its project for the year.

During the business session, the women selected and ordered greeting cards to be sold by members. Plans were made for the CWF covered dish banquet for which the group will be hostess. It is slated for 7 p.m. Feb. 23, in Fellowship Hall.

It was announced members are to make kindergarten aprons and bring kindergarten supplies for the Mexican Institute to the next meeting, slated for 7:30 p.m. Mar. 12, with Mrs. John Gill, 1613 Hamilton.

During the social period, refreshments of lemon freeze and coffee were served.

At the close of the meeting, the women rolled bandages for lepers.

TFWC Announces Austin Conference

Mrs. L. E. Dudley, Abilene president of The Texas Federation of Women's Clubs has announced a conference in Austin, Feb. 21, of organizations primarily in community improvement to select delegates to the National Conference on the Community, to be held in Washington, D. C., Hotel Statler, March 26-29.

The Washington Conference, arranged by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the National Council for Community Improvement, was set after several years of planning by both organizations. It has a two-fold purpose: (1) to impress upon the American people, through the publicity to be given to speeches by prominent Americans and the deliberations of those attending, the importance of community development in America today; (2) to assist those who attend to learn more about effective techniques of working with their communities. These purposes will be accomplished through general sessions and small workshops.

A portion of the expenses of several official delegates from each state will be financed by industries and foundations interested in

Bronchos Nip Harvesters, 75-73

Bronchos Take Lead With First-Game Win

By TOMMIE ELLIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

The Odessa Harvesters slipped up on the Pampa Bronchos last night in Harvester fieldhouse and took the first of a three-game series in the playoffs for the 1-AAAA district crown.

Odessa, with hustle all the way and shooting a good 500 from outside, dropped the Green and Golders, 75-73, in an overtime thriller before an almost capacity crowd.

The Harvesters, showing good form in the first period, grabbed an early lead and stretched it to 13-9 after the first eight minutes. The Bronchos, determined to show that the southern half of the district is not the weak sister, came back and pulled ahead of the McNeely cagers by halftime with a lead of 33-31.

Pampa's Gene Brown, was the only Harvester that was hot and he was "red hot" as he dumped in 39 points for the Pampa five. Dicky Mauldin, currently leading the McNeely quintet in the scoring department, counted for only seven points and sat on the bench for the first time of the season with the Harvesters behind.

The Bronchos, on the other hand, were hot as they shot an impressive 500 from the floor and counted for 27 of 31 from the gratis line. Don Hitt, who was averaging 16.5 going into the game racked up 19 while Pat Gibson, who was averaging 5, dumped in 14 points and four of them came from the foul line in the overtime.

Dicky Mauldin, with seconds left in regular play, pumped in a jump shot, his only two pointer of the night, to tie the game up at 70-70 and sent the teams into an extra three-minute overtime.

Pat Gibson, who scored only four two-pointers of the night, swished one through with 45 seconds left to give the Bronchos what looked like a 70-68 win but the Harvesters were not to be denied.

Buddy Sharp, with the pressure on and the Odessa five leading 68-67, got two shots from the free throw line. His first was good which tied the game and his second attempt failed but Pat Gibson was in the lane too fast Sharp's third shot bounced back also and the game was tied 68-68 with 1 minute left in regular play.

Odessa's Pat Gibson, who has averaged 5 points per game this season, sank two free tosses to give the Bronchos a 72-70 lead and Don Hitt who gave the Green and Golders a new lease on life by fouling, sank one gratis shot on a double foul. Jerry Pope, who was involved in the double foul, also sank one, which gave Bronchos a 73-71 lead.

Gene Brown then came back and dumped in a jump shot from 20 ft. after Gibson counted for two more free tosses. Brown's two-pointer made the score 75-73 with the Bronchos leading. The red-clad Odessa five then controlled the ball until time ran out.

Rice, Arkansas Tie For Second In SWC

By UNITED PRESS

Rice moved back into a second place Southwest Conference tie with Arkansas Wednesday by beating Baylor 68 to 58 in Houston Tuesday night.

Texas Tech convinced any skeptics that it can hold its own against SWC competition with an 84 to 62 victory over the University of Texas in a non-conference affair at Austin.

Wednesday night's schedule pits leading Southern Methodist against cellar-dwelling Texas Christian as the Mustangs are favored to snap an eight-year losing streak in Fort Worth.

Rice ace Temple Tucker was held to 13 points by a shifting man-to-man defense employed by Baylor, but forward Joe Durrenberger took up the scoring slack for the Owls by dropping in 24 points for high honors.

Lou Estes was deadly from the corner with a one-hand push shot in the second half to lead Baylor with 17 points. Jerry Mallett shook loose from his guard for only 11 points in the night to help spark the Bears.

But the combined Rice offensive was too much for sixth-place Baylor and the Owls took a 34-23 halftime lead and coasted the rest of the way. The Rice frosh beat the Baylor freshmen in a curtain-raiser 83-73, although it took an overtime period to do it.

Texas Tech, riding high in first place in the Border Conference and a solid bet to play the SWC winner for the right to go to the NCAA championships, went wild in the second half of its game with Texas to win handily after leading by only two points, 34 to 32, at halftime.

The score was tied nine times and the lead changed hands on half a dozen occasions in the first period, but the Red Raiders came back after the intermission to out-gun the Longhorns.

Raymond Downs of Texas and Jim Reed of Tech each had 24 points to pace their teams, but Downs fouled out midway through the second period and the Red Raiders cut loose with Downs set of action.

Both teams hit on approximately 40 per cent of their shots, but Tech hit seven more free throws than Texas and out-rebounded the Longhorns 54 to 40.

SMU puts its perfect 7-0 conference mark on the line against Texas Christian Wednesday night; but the Mustangs are heavy favorites to whip the Frogs with Jim Krebs, who broke the SWC scoring mark with 50 points against Texas last time out, back in top form.

The individual match between Krebs and TCU's one-man team Richard O'Neal is expected to be the highlight of the game. It was O'Neal's record of 49 points set last year, that Krebs topped last week.

LAST SECOND PRESS — The Pampa Harvesters made a last-minute effort to get back into the game with a full court press. The Harvesters' Jerry Gee, No. 33, tries to intercept Pat Gibson's pass as the other Harvesters, Dicky Mauldin, No. 42, and Gene Brown, No. 22, are covering other Bronchos. Lloyd Harper is the official shown here. Nelson Sanders, No. 44, is shown in the distance. (News photo)

Time Out With Tom

By TOMMIE ELLIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

We are not so full of "Whoopie" today after the Odessa Bronchos slipped up on our Harvesters last night. We refer now to the word "WE" as used in our paper yesterday. The reference was to the Harvesters as yours truly had nothing to do with winning from Borger.

We, here and now, want to congratulate the Harvesters and Coach Clifton McNeely on winning the northern half of the 1-AAAA district and we wish to encourage the boys not to be too confident as Odessa, who has already shown, can be a tough club to beat.

We think the Harvesters can take the district crown but we are not going to say that it will be smooth sailing as one scribe in our neighboring city so stated.

Sometimes we think Puit Powell is hoping for a Harvester defeat by the way he builds up their confidence. We predicted earlier in the season that the Green and Golders would have a "hard row to hoe" if they took the title of the district and the present they are in the same shape they were last year except they have two games to play on the Bronchos' home court.

The San Angelo Bobcats defeated the Harvesters in their first meeting of the district playoff. Pampa then came back to win the next two games but they were played on home ground.

Odessa, a surprise to almost all Pampa fans, slipped up on the overconfident Pampa Harvesters and won the first game, 75-73, in an overtime. Gene Brown piled up a record for the Pampa Harvesters this season and for many years to come when he dumped in 39 points in his effort to keep the Harvesters in the win column.

Dicky Mauldin, who had been leading the Green and Golders in district play, was held to seven points for his night's work. Dicky sat on the bench for the first time of the season with the Harvesters trailing. Well we suppose he can't be "red hot" every night. It's a better to be cold in one game of a three-game series than in a sudden death playoff.

Things should look different Friday night after the Pampa five gets some rest though. We feel sure the tremendous pressure the Harvesters underwent in defeating the Borger Bulldogs Monday night could have had some bearing on the outcome of the game last night. We hope so at least.

We heard one scribe say "I never saw the Harvesters look worse." We will have to agree with him fully as they didn't seem to be able to work the ball in for a shot. The Odessa Bronchos shot excellent ball last night and if they keep it up the Harvesters will have to bow their necks to win the district title. The final championship of the district rests with the next two games and if the McNeely cagers want a chance at the El Paso high Tigers they will have to work for it.

We had hoped to go to state with them but our hopes were jarred by the Broncho victory in the first contest of the three-game playoff. We remember though that the Harvesters have had bad luck at their home court previously this

Santee-AAU Fight May End In Court

NEW YORK —UP— The lines were clear Wednesday in the fight over Wes Santee's amateur standing with the national AAU apparently ready to suspend him forever and Santee set to fight back with a lawsuit.

Santee, the fastest miler in American history, frankly expects the AAU will suspend him in a special meeting here Sunday.

And that means a lawsuit. Santee's attorney, Charles P. Grimes made clear in a statement Tuesday. At stake would be the twin dreams of Santee's life—a chance to run in this year's Olympic games in Australia, and a chance to be the first American to run a four-minute mile.

Whether the AAU will suspend the Marine Corps star will be determined when a special "committee of seven" makes its report on the Santee case here Sunday. Key to the decision is some mysterious "new information" the committee claims to have. Whatever this evidence may be, Santee expects the AAU vote to go against him.

Grimes declared that the suspension of Santee would deprive the United States Olympic team of one of its best chances for a victory in the summer Olympics and might mean the American team would "perform at Melbourne in the same undistinguished manner in which it performed in the winter Olympic games."

"Many keen students of communism and Communist propaganda share my view that the prospective victory over the Soviet Union in the forthcoming Olympic games will be a propaganda triumph for the Communists which will be unmatched by any triumph of theirs short of actual warfare," Grimes said.

Santee's troubles stem from charges that he accepted too much expense money while competing in track meets in California last summer. He was suspended on these charges by the registration committee of the Missouri Valley AAU, his home district, last fall, but was reinstated a short time later by the board of managers of the same group. The national AAU voted in January to reopen the case and a special committee was appointed to do the investigation.

Grimes' chief argument made Tuesday was that the national group has no "authority" to reopen the case in view of the Missouri ruling. He called the Missouri Valley AAU "clearly the only association, which under the AAU constitution, by-laws and general rules has any jurisdiction over trials of charges of professionalism."

"We made that very plain when we invited Russia and its satellite countries to the games," Brig. Gen. William Bridgeford, chief executive officer of the Australian Olympic organizing committee disclosed. "That's the only way we'll have it and I anticipate no problems."

But he admitted the only word he has had from Russia is that the invitation to compete was accepted and that the Soviets will send 400 athletes and officials.

"That would make it the largest delegation for the games," Bridgeford said. "I understand the United States delegation will be the second largest—about 375."

This will be the second summer Olympics in which the Russians will compete. Their first was the 1952 games at Helsinki—only a stone's throw from Russia.

When the Russians arrived there with the athletes from the other "Iron Curtain" countries, they demanded and received their own housing village and other facilities.

But while the Russians and their "Iron Curtain" neighbors are welcome in Australia, the circumstances will not quite be the same. Australia and Russia broke off diplomatic relations after the existence of a Russian spy ring in Australia was disclosed.

All of the preparations and planning of the Australian officials has been on the theory that the Russians and their neighbors will live in the same housing development as the athletes and officials from all the other nations of the world.

Champion Bout Is Set For Tonight

The Pampa Shrine Club has a special treat for Pampa wrestling fans tonight. The first World's Junior Heavyweight Championship bout ever presented locally will take place at the Top of Texas Sportsman's Club tonight.

Prices will be advanced slightly in order to bring this match to the public. Ringside seats will be $1.75, reserved bleachers $1.50 and general admission will be $1.25.

Gentleman Ed Francis, present champion, will be betting his title that he can defeat "Big Bob Geigle when they tangle tonight in the main attraction.

Geigle, who was at one time the Southwest states champion, will be using every hold at his command tonight in order to wrest the belt from Francis. The match should be one of the best ever presented locally.

A 15-minute bout between Tokio Joe and Cowboy Carlson will be the first match of the night. Following the warm-up bout, Tokio Joe teams up with Dizzy Davis and goes against Mike Clancy and Cowboy Carlson in a tag-team match that should be a round-tumble event.

Tickets can be purchased at Modern-harmacy, phone 4-8256. All proceeds will go to the Pampa Shrine Club Crippled Children's fund.

Champ Sweikert To Enter 500-Mile Indianapolis Race

INDIANAPOLIS —UP— Defending champ Bob Sweikert will start in this year's 500-mile Indianapolis speedway auto race in a new car entered Wednesday by A. B. Lathrop for "racing associates" of Indianapolis.

Another Lathrop car also entered Wednesday is without a driver. The speedway said a third nomination, with Johnny Boyd, Fresno, Calif., in the cockpit of another car, brought the list of eligibles for the May 30 classic to 11.

Sweikert, the Californian who now makes Indianapolis his home, also is defending national big car driving champion. He finished fourth or better in all but two of 16 championship events in 1955.

Boyd was one of the drivers involved in a spectacular four-car crash in the 1955 classic which killed two-time winner Bill Vukobratovic at his home court previously this

Sticky Ball Introduced In Football

CHICAGO —UP— The coaches' dream, a sticky football, might be the hottest new item in sports equipment in 1956.

The ball, introduced in December, made its debut in four bowl games, the Rose Bowl, the Senior Bowl, the East-West and Blue-Gray games, and there was only one lost ball due to fumbling.

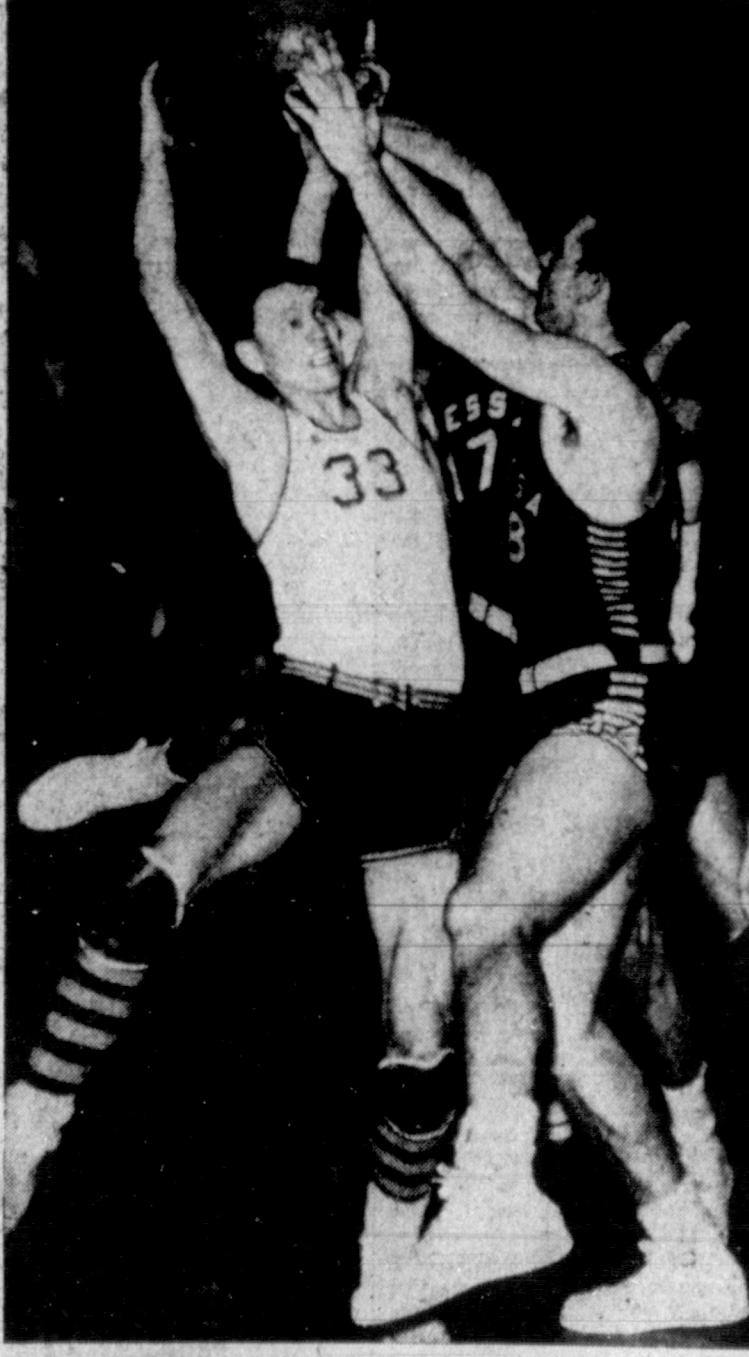

Recently sporting goods dealers got a look at the ball at the annual industry show. Before that the ball drew approval at the football coaches' convention and made such an impression on the National Football League that it was adopted as official for 1956.

The ball has a natural finish with no coating and the manufacturer displayed it on scales which measured the pull necessary to dislodge a football from the grip. The old ball slipped away with a pull of 1-2 or 3-4 of a pound. The new one required a 7-12 or 8 pounds pull.

In baseball equipment, the trickiest new glove is a Roy Campanella model which "feels like a first baseman's mitt." It has a huge pocket with double cut out padding to give flexibility. A companion Frank House model had only a single cut out in the palm laced padding. Campanella used his model during the 1955 season.

Another firm emphasized equipment for women, introducing pastel colors in golf clubs and tennis rackets. Women's woods come now in terra cotta pink and coral red, with pastel blue grips. The tennis rackets, Doris Hart model, have the same colors with smaller grips and lighter weight.

Along the football line, there was a new headgear of tenite, cut deeper at the back of the skull to furnish added protection, and with foam rubber padding attached to suspension which doesn't touch the outer lining.

GET THE BALL — Jerry Gee is trying to "get the ball" after a free toss try by Buddy Sharp bounces back. Pat Gibson, 71, and Don Hitt, 88, are making the same effort as the score is tied 68-68. Odessa won the game 75-73, in an overtime. (News photo)

ACTION ON A ROOFTOP—British soldiers capture a schoolboy rioter after a rooftop chase in Nicosia, Cyprus. The troops made their first entrance into the city's archbishopric to break up a disturbance protesting against the arrest of students during a riot the previous day in the same area. Outbreaks of violence continue to flare as Cypriots clamor for independence.

Prince Of Cambodia To Join Asia's 'Neutralist' Nations

By CHARLES M. McCANN United Press Foreign Analyst Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia has made up his mind to join the "neutralist" block of nations in Southeast Asia. Norodom left his capital of Phnom Penh Monday for Peiping to be the guest of Chinese Communist leaders Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-Lai. Before he left, he wrote a speech for delivery on his arrival in Can-

Family Life Roundtable Set Tonight

A roundtable on Youth and Family Life is being conducted tonight at 7:30 in Lovett Memorial Library by the Adult Education group and the Optimist Club. This discussion is one of 16 being held in West Texas towns on community problems this week. Problems of youth and family life are being discussed and results of the conference will be reported at a regional conference in Lubbock on Wednesday, Feb. 22, in the Tech Student Union Building. The meetings are part of a series of community problems conferences sponsored by the West Texas Council on Youth and Family Life. The roundtable will be held at the following towns: Brownfield, Odessa, Hereford, El Paso, Lubbock, Slalom, Plainview, Spur, Amarillo, Sweetwater, and San Angelo. Conferences are also being conducted on problems of the aged.

'Wobblers' To Resist Dry Movement

By ROBERT ZIMMERMAN NEW YORK—UP—Temperance leaders in America are making headway with a sort of "creeping prohibition"—local option election that dry up the countryside bit by bit—but the liquor people say they aren't worried. For one thing, the ladies of the WCTU have the "Wobblers" to contend with now. The Wobblers are ladies, too, but they are in favor of drinking. In moderation, of course. Their organization—the Women's Association of Allied Beverage Industries, Inc., or WAABI for short—is the female corps of the liquor industry's public relations force. The Wobblers are pledged to defend the reputation of the liquor industry and to resist those "dangerous outside forces" that would destroy it.

A Wobbler goes to PTA meetings and the like, ready to stick up for legalized liquor if the girls get talking on the subject. She may even give a speech. One of their problems is the local option campaigns that the Drys have been waging ever since repeal to outlaw liquor on a piecemeal basis. Of the 500 or so local option elections held every year in the 33 states that allow them. The Drys win more than they lose. The map is dotted with a growing number of counties, townships and precincts where liquor traffic is restricted or banned. Temperance workers say they detect a rising public sentiment against the use of alcohol. They believe publicity given to the problems of alcoholism and juvenile delinquency is working in their favor. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has been gaining in membership. It now claims 400,000 members in its 10,000 state and local unions. Against this the Wobblers are pretty outnumbered. They list 3,500 members in 42 chapters.

Headon Collision Injures 15 EL PASO—UP—A two-car head-on crash in El Paso left 15 persons injured Sunday, two seriously. Six ambulances were called to the wreck. Six Fort Bliss soldiers were in one car, and two families in the other.

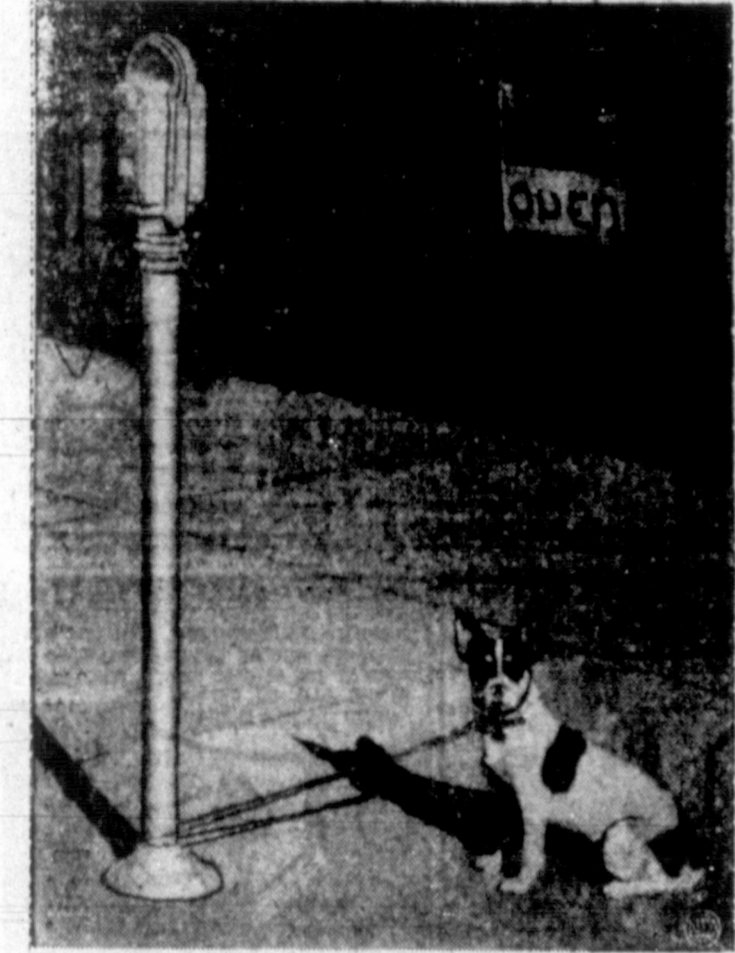

Miss Skyway Named NEW YORK—UP—A 22-year-old brunette Thursday won the title of "Miss Skyway" in a contest commemorating the 25th year of airline stewardess service. Miss Moffett Webb of Memphis, Tenn., now stationed in Dallas with Braniff Airways, competed with entries from 20 other lines. She is five-foot, seven-inches tall and measures 36-24-38.

Oil Production Shows Decrease

TULSA—UP—U.S. daily average crude oil production decreased 11,420 barrels last week from the previous week's all-time high, the Oil and Gas Journal reported Tuesday. Daily average output for the week ended Feb. 11 was 7,060,810 barrels. This brought the year's total output to 294,943,390 barrels, compared with 284,465,508 barrels during the same period last year. Oklahoma production declined 24,950 barrels; Kansas was down 83,800; Arkansas down 500; North Dakota down 4,300; Illinois down 2,800; Louisiana increased 3,775 New Mexico up 4,725; Utah up 1,000; Wyoming up 8,700; Colorado up 1,300 and Texas up 83,000. Texas' gain represented the state's first full week's operation under a higher allowable.

ton, in southern China, saying: "We are neutral, we belong neither to one bloc nor the other." By this Norodom meant that he would side with neither East nor West in the cold war. But it is predicted in Indo-China that he is likely to give at least partial recognition to the Chinese Red regime. In any event, his visit can bring nothing but bad news for the United States and its Allies. His People Follow

Norodom is both premier and dictator of Cambodia southernmost of the three states of Indo-China. His people will follow him in whatever he wants to do.

Until recently Norodom was firmly on the side of the Western Allies, and was firmly anti-Communist. But in recent months he has been inclining toward the "neutralist" policy. This neutralism carries with it cordiality toward Red China and coldness toward the West.

Piump, friendly highly-intelligent Norodom is quite a man. He is 33 years old.

He was elected king in 1941 by the Cambodian crown council in preference to his father, Norodom Suramarit. Norodom then was known as a fun-loving youth who led jazz sessions with his saxophone and maintained a troupe of 50 dancing girls.

One year ago, Norodom quit the throne, and turned it over to his father. He abdicated in protest against opposition of some Cambodian political groups to his pro-Western policy. He said then he would retire completely from public life.

But after some reflection, Norodom decided to enter politics. He arranged for an election. His hastily formed "Socialist people's community" party won 89 of the 91 seats in parliament.

Norodom was made premier. His first move was to cut all of Cambodia's remaining ties with France.

Flirting With 'Neutrality' Since then, Norodom has been flirting with the "neutralist" policy.

On leaving for Peiping Monday, Norodom recalled that he met Red Chinese Premier Chou at the big Asia-Africa conference in Indonesia last April. "Since then, I consider Chou a friend," he said. "I have the highest opinion of him as a statesman who is able, intelligent and sincere."

Cambodian officials insist that Norodom's visit does not mean that he will give full recognition to the Communists. At present, he recognizes neither the Communist nor the Chinese Nationalist regime.

But Allies sources believe that at least he is sure to establish "neutralist" co-operation with the Peiping government. They believe he may agree to permit Red Chinese political agents to go to Cambodia and establish contact with the country's 800,000 Chinese residents.

Certainly, his visit will not help the Allied position in Southeast Asia.

Bela 'Dracula' Lugosi Back In Hollywood For A Movie

By ALINE MOSBY HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—UP—Hollywood's top bogey men are making a super-colossal horror film, but behind the cameras is a real-life drama that's more startling. While the cameras rolled, a slender, old man watching out the sidelines said softly "I used to take five or six needles a day. And when I took the cure they took it all away from me... it was horrible, just horrible..." Bela (Dracula) Lugosi is back in the movies for the first time since he confessed he was a narcotics addict and committed himself to a state hospital.

In the old days Lugosi was the star, the mad scientist who stirred bubbling concoctions. But on this set Basil Rathbone is playing the loony doctor, Lou Chaney, John Carradine and Akim Tamiroff are in "The Black Sleep." Lugosi plays Rathbone's butler, a mute servant "who just lets people in and out."

"There is Basil playing my part," Lugosi said as we stood on the set. "I used to be the big cheese. Now I'm playing just a dumb part. I have no dialogue because I was a bit worried whether I could do justice to the expectations. I'm still recuperating."

On the gloomy set, Rathbone was reviving a man in the coffin. But I shivered more from the off-screen horror story Lugosi told me.

"I began using narcotics to kill the pain of sciatica," he said. "Finally the doctor said I used so much I would die in six months if I didn't stop.

"I couldn't afford the sanitarium. The only solution was to volunteer to enter the county hospital. There was no sense in trying to hide my problem.

"The cure was very painful, terrible. I was able to get out in three months because of the kind letters from all over the world. I even got a telephone call from Japan. It was hell, to go through what I went through, I didn't know I had so many friends—so many people who knew about me and gave a damn about my situation. They helped cure me."

I asked Lugosi what he thought of the controversial film about addicts, "The Man With the Golden Arm." The 73-year-old actor began to cry.

"The movie made it so easy for the dope victim to get out of it," he wept. "The youth of our country did not get the impression of what a terrible thing it is."

"Oh, if only the young people could see me, the result—"

Let's Go Shopping
One of these days I must go shopping. I am completely out of self-respect. I want to exchange the self-righteousness I picked up the other day for some humiliation which they are less expensive and wears longer. I want to look at some tolerance which is being used for wraps this season. Someone showed me some samples of peace. We are a lot on that and one can never have much of it. And by the way, I must try to match some patience that my neighbor wears. It is very becoming to her and I think it might look well on me. I might try on that little garment of long-suffering they are displaying. I never thought I wanted to wear it, but I feel myself coming to it. Also I must not forget to have my sense of appreciation mended and look around for some inexpensive everyday goodness. It is surprising how quickly one's stock of goodness is depleted.

"She threatened me! She says either we eat out or she fixes dinner!"
