Snow Begins Falling Again In Panhandle

Bitter Cold Grips Area; Storms Hit Rest Of State

By United Press
It started snowing again Wednesday in the Panhandle, still white from the remnants of last week end's historic blizzard.

Dahart, at the top of the Panhandle, reported snow and Amarillo had freezing drizzle. Forecasters said the drizzle will soon turn into snow.

One to three inches of snow still lay on the ground in the Panhandle and parts of the South Plains from the blizzard that piled up 10 foot drifts.

Forecasters said, however, that they did not expect the present snow to be heavy. It was bitterly cold. The wind shifted into the north at 2 a. m. in Amarillo.

By daybreak, the temperature was 21 degrees and it was not expected to get above 30 during the day.

Get Badly-Needed Rain
The Air Force ended Operation Haylift in the Amarillo area after two days. Two C-119 Flying Boxcars dropped hay to 4,500 cattle who were cut off from food by the weekend blizzard.

Badly needed rains fell over the eastern two-thirds of the state and some points, including Dallas, in northeast Texas, reported thunderstorms.

Small craft warnings were posted along Gulf Coast from Galveston to Florida. The warning said southerly winds will whip the coast at 20 to 30 miles an hour Wednesday and shift to northerly Wednesday night.

An early report that 5.50 inches of rain fell at the Mineral Wells airport east of the city caused some excitement, until it was learned that a decimal point had been misplaced in transmission of the report.

The Mineral Wells airport actually measured .55 of an inch from 2 a. m. to 5 a. m.

But numerous points reported from one to one and one-half inches. (See SNOW, Page 3)

COD Racket Increasing

The Solicitors Review Board of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce recently received a letter from the Post Office Department telling them of recent increase in the racket in which swindlers send unnumbered "C. O. D." parcels addressed to recently deceased persons.

In releasing the information to Pampa Citizens, the board quoted from the letter which quoted Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield.

In part, the letter said, "The C.O.D. articles—often inexpensive Bibles, religious articles and the like—are sent at exorbitant prices, because the operators of this racket know the bereaved family usually will accept them believing they were ordered by the deceased."

In the letter Summerfield explained, "The operators of this ghoulish racket scan obituary notices, publications containing death notices and the like to find the names and addresses of deceased persons. They then mail the C.O.D. for a big price."

The letter said, "In some recent operations, some of the unnumbered merchandise is being sent by Railway Express, rather than through the mails. However, the C. O. D. payments to sender are sent through the mails, and this places the matter under the jurisdiction of the Post Office Department."

County Drys Set Meeting Saturday

Rev. O. F. Dingler, associate executive secretary of Texas Alcohol Narcotic Education, Inc., will spearhead a drive for a dry county at a mass meeting to be held at the First Baptist Church next Saturday at 7:30 p. m.

The dry rally is called for purpose of electing officers and setting up an organization, with the view of a Local Option election in 1956.

More than 30 churches of several faiths in Gray County have been represented in preliminary meetings, leading up to the mass meeting next Saturday night. The movement is a cooperative one, with practically all denominations participating.

Rev. Dingler, a native of Arkansas, received his education in the Baptist school of Texas and at the University of Texas. For 25 years he served as pastor of Baptist Churches in the state, including Congress Ave. in Austin and Calvary Baptist of Beaumont. His chief responsibility, as associate executive secretary, is in the field of public relations and legislative work. He maintains an office in Austin and keeps in close touch with all legislation relating to liquor traffic.

Speaking before a mass meeting held in Borger on Jan. 16, Rev. Dingler suggested that the prohibition group set Saturday, May 13, as the date for the wet-dry election.

"We've got to dry up the fountain," he said. (See MEETING, Page 3)

University Won't Admit Negro Girl

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. —UP— The University of Alabama Wednesday headed for a showdown in the violent controversy raging around the exclusion of its first Negro student.

University authorities refused to budge from the stand the Autherine Lucy, the student, was barred from classes in a move to prevent further violence that might cause injury to students, faculty and the woman herself.

But Arthur Shores, Miss Lucy's attorney, warned Tuesday that she must be permitted to return to classes or he will ask that the board of trustees be cited for contempt of court for authorizing her exclusion.

NAACP Asks Federal Action
In New York, Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, called on Attorney General Herbert Brownell to take criminal action against "any and all persons" who are preventing the woman from attending classes.

Miss Lucy said in a special dispatch prepared for the United Press that she believed the majority of students wanted her to return to classes.

"Some of the students were very friendly toward me," she wrote. "Others were hostile. But I feel the majority is for me."

Another student, Leonard Wilson, said he believed Miss Lucy should not be permitted to return because "the demonstrations show beyond a reasonable doubt that integration will not work."

"For the safety of herself and of all the other students, she should not be admitted," Wilson said.

Faculty members Tuesday night tabled a motion that classes be suspended if further rioting breaks out over the woman's admission.

But the student government association unanimously adopted a resolution condemning the violence.

The school trustees relied on their "police power" to bar the girl from further classes "until further notice" in view of the rioting which included shouted threats and barrages of rocks and eggs hurled at the girl and at officials who tried to break up the mob.

Ike Decision May Be Made This Month

By MERRIMAN SMITH
WASHINGTON —UP— President Eisenhower told a news conference Wednesday that he thought he would be able to announce his decision on a second term by the end of this month.

Mr. Eisenhower was asked a series of questions about the possible availability of Chief Justice Earl Warren as a Republican presidential candidate. He said there were many ways Warren could be a candidate and the Chief Justice would encounter no opposition from Mr. Eisenhower.

Mr. Eisenhower said, however, that he did not think it would be appropriate for him in case he decides not to run again, to ask any other Republican to make the race.

To do so, the President said, would imply that he could win the election for another man.

Other news highlights at Mr. Eisenhower's meeting with reporters:

1. The recent riots involving a Negro student at the University of Alabama are deplorable.

2. He conceded that Russia might be ahead of this country in some aspects of the development of guided missiles, but he thought the United States is ahead in other areas. He said he thought this country's guided missile program represents the best possible effort of American scientists.

3. He has not yet completed his reply to the latest letter from Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin. He wants to continue the exchange of correspondence with the Russian leader on the theory that this country should never take the position of blocking any available avenue to peace, no matter how long.

4. He will do everything within his constitutional powers to prevent an outbreak of hostilities in the Middle East.

5. As far as he knows, his brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State University, has no political ambitions.

Senate Opens Probe Into Red Activity

WASHINGTON —UP— The Senate Internal Security subcommittee Wednesday opened a broad investigation into Soviet activities in the United States.

Subcommittee chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) said the inquiry's results may lead to changes in the 1950 Communist control act.

He said the subcommittee wants to "determine to what extent Soviet power operates through the Communist party here."

The subcommittee also wants to learn the extent other groups may "have been divided to effectuate the purposes of Russia."

Other action in Congress:
IMMIGRATION
President Eisenhower sent to Congress a new plea to "liberalize" the Walter-McCarran immigration law. Informed sources said the President would propose the basis of the 1950 census instead of the 1920 census. They said he also wants to propose giving unused quotas to nations that could use them.

GENERALS
The House Armed Services committee opened a hearing on a proposal to appoint two retired generals assistant commissioners of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Rep. Robert H. Mollohan (D-W.Va.) protested the agency should not be "saddled with more retired generals."

The agency's chief—Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing—said the two generals are the only suitable men he could find.

SUGAR
The Senate moved toward a final vote on the domestic sugar bill. The bill would give domestic sugar growers 55 per cent and Cuban growers 35 per cent of an increase in the U.S. sugar market. Cuban growers now get 96 per cent, domestic growers none.

FLOODS
The House approved a $3 million appropriation for Northeast food projects.

APPROPRIATION
The House passed and sent to the Senate a $3,618,699,000 money bill—first regular money bill of the session. The funds are for running the Post Office and Treasury Departments and the U.S. tax court during fiscal 1957. More than $3 million was shaved from the President's original request.

Gas Bill Vote

Report Due Next Week On Influence Charges

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON —UP— Sen. Walter F. George said Wednesday he thinks his special committee can report next week on whether any improper influence was attempted to sway a Senate vote of Sen. Francis Case.

The Georgia Democrat said he hopes two days of hearings — on Friday and Saturday — will be enough to investigate the incident described by Case (R. S.D.) during debate on the natural gas bill. The committee has called seven witnesses.

Case told the Senate in the midst of the gas debate last Friday that an out-of-state attorney left him a $2,500 campaign contribution with a friend after ascertaining that Case was favorably inclined toward the bill.

Case voted against the bill after disclosing the incident and instructed that the money be returned, if possible, or given to charity.

In another outgrowth of the Case incident, Sen. Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D-Mo.) went before the Senate Rules Committee Wednesday for advice on whether he should bow out as chairman of the subcommittee on privileges and elections.

Another subcommittee member, Sen. Carl T. Curtis (R-Neb.), has objected that it is against committee precedents to have a candidate for re-election to the Senate as subcommittee chairman.

This question arose Tuesday during a tug-of-war between George's

"select" committee and Hennings' subcommittee over which should investigate the Case matter. Case was in the middle, but George's committee emerged as victor—temporarily at least.

Hennings got the Elections subcommittee off to a head start Tuesday by calling a morning meeting to discuss the Case matter. But the group had done nothing but discuss it when the Senate voted 90 to 0 shortly before noon to set up the "select" committee.

Case, invited to be at two Tuesday afternoon meetings at the same time, chose the seniority-packed special committee. As the Elections subcommittee waited for his testimony, the special committee "directed" Case not to discuss the campaign contribution before he testified at its Friday hearing.

The special subcommittee has subpoenaed John M. Neff, the Lexington, Neb., attorney who left the $25,000 bills for Case's campaign fund.

Last Night's Low Was 23 Degrees

Sleet and drizzle are forecast for the Pampa area through next Friday, but no snow is expected according to a late weather report from Station KPDM.

Yesterday's high was 39 degrees with a low last night of 23. Today's high will be in the mid 30's and the low tonight is expected to be about 6 degrees.

The cold front from the Pacific Coast rolled in over Pampa this morning producing cloudiness and low temperatures that are expected to extend through Friday.

Youth Calls Bulganin For Theme Quote

BARRINGTON, Ill.—UP— Charles Mee, 17, a high school senior decided to get some advice direct from Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin before he wrote a class term paper.

He placed a telephone call to the Kremlin. And 13 1/2 hours later, at a cost of $15, Mee had asked one question for his term paper, got an "I don't know" answer, and said goodbye.

"I couldn't think of anything else to say," Mee said Wednesday.

But he at least had satisfaction of talking to the top man in Russia—he thinks.

Said Bulganin on wire
Three friends of Mee, Royal Hartwig, Stephen Hoffman and James Condill, all 18, of Barrington, urged him to make the call as they discussed Mee's term paper Monday night.

They put in the call and Tuesday, the call went through. The long distance operator assured Mee that Bulganin was on the wire.

Mee was assured by the voice at the other end that he was speaking to the premier.

"I would like to ask you a question," Mee said. "I hope you will be able to answer."
"I will try," he was told.
"I Don't Know"
"Since the Russian has drafted a treaty of friendship which has been refused by the United States, what will be the next move on the part of the Kremlin will another attempt be made along this line?" Mee asked.

"No, no—I don't know," was the reply.

Static disrupted further attempts at conversation. Then Mee said "das-vi-dany." Mee said his history teacher told him that is Russian for "goodbye."

Mee said he heard a chuckle at the other end of the line. Then, "goodbye" said the Kremlin voice.

Mee still is wondering what to write about for his term paper.

MIAMI, Fla. —UP— A Texas "faith healer" said Wednesday he would continue to hold regular services despite charges filed against him that he caused injury to a three-year-old polio victim while allegedly practicing medicine without a license.

A peace justice ordered a preliminary hearing Feb. 17 of a "test case" to determine whether a minister has immunity from laws which require a license for practicing medicine.

Under Florida laws, immunity is granted to anyone "while engaged in the practice of the religious tenets of this state."

Evangelist Jack Coe of Dallas, Tex., was arrested Tuesday on a complaint by a young mother, Mrs. Ann Clark, who brought her tiny, crippled son, George, to be healed by Coe in his giant revival tent.

Boy Carried Home
She said the evangelist, who has been attempting to cure everything from cancer to a stiff neck, anointed the tot's head with oils and said:

"Jesus, heal this boy. Jesus, heal this boy."
He then told the mother to "throw away his braces and crutches" and have him walk without them for several days.

But the child's legs crumpled underneath him after the healing attempt and he had to be carried home, Mrs. Clark said.

"We decided maybe God couldn't heal George right away, so we took the minister's advice. But the day after we took off the braces, George's legs puffed up and his ankles turned sideways," she said tearfully.

Coe, nattily dressed in a dark suit, labelled the complaint "ridiculous."

Released on Bond
He was released on $5,000 bond after being booked at the county jail. He told reporters he intended to go ahead with his nightly "healing" sessions.

Assistant County Solicitor A. C. Bressler, who helped draft the charges against Coe, said the out-of-bounds.

"When he told the boy's parents to throw away the leg braces, he was no longer using a religious faith to heal," Bressler said. "He was engaged in the medical profession."

Coe has been the target of local ministers and a newspaper crusade since he set up his revival tent here five weeks ago.

Adult Education Dinner Cancelled

The Adult Education Banquet, originally scheduled for tomorrow night in the high school cafeteria, has been cancelled due to the weather conditions.

Dr. Morris Wallace, dean of education and philosophy at Texas Tech College, was unable to speak for the dinner due to road conditions between here and Lubbock.

The dinner has not been rescheduled. Ticket refunds can be made at Lovett Memorial Library.

IMAGINE GETTING A VALENTINE with an illegible signature! According to the Handwriting Foundation, lots of Valentines will be sent this year with loving care, but careless handwriting. The Foundation suggests that you add a handwritten message — legibly, of course.

NOTHING IS NICER than to be thought of on Valentine's Day, and nothing makes the day more meaningful than a friendly thought with a personal message.

You don't have to compete with the verse writers to say something nice. Even if the verse says exactly what you would like to say, it is more sentimental for you to add just a word or two.

Or perhaps you would like to write your own verse. Cards are available which leave blank space in which you can write. Whether or not the verse is professional doesn't matter. The fact that you took the time and thought to compose a verse is enough to tell what your real feelings are.

Not only with Valentine's Day cards, but with Mother's Day cards, birthdays, anniversaries, and other holidays, a few words hand-written with a good writing instrument, mean more than a thousand printed sentiments which you did not think up yourself.

The Foundation states that the art of penmanship too often has been ignored in recent years. Good form and good taste have been sacrificed to speed and office efficiency.

Hand-penned cards are ways of letting loved ones know that thoughtfulness has not slipped out.

The Handwriting Foundation recommends these other occasions when social etiquette calls for a penned note:

1. Thank You notes should still be penned personally. Nothing replaces the personal bread and butter note, well written on attractive "informals".

2. Good manners should be extended to household help, too. If you're a career woman, take care before scrawling your next hasty note to the maid. Don't come home to find she's washed the "doors" instead of the "floors".

3. Let your penmanship be an example to your child. A note from you to the teacher is sometimes the only link between home and the school. Written impressions count.

4. Be systematic in making up your household lists. A handy pad and pencil near the kitchen cabinet is useful. Watch your handwriting and don't send your husband to the supermarket with an illegible scrawl written on the back of an old letter.

Robin Williams And Gary Don Cummings Exchange Vows In Service In Panhandle

PANHANDLE—(Special)—Miss Robin June Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence C. Williams, and Gary Don Cummings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cummings, exchanged wedding vows at 7 p.m., Jan. 21, in the First Methodist Church, Panhandle.

Dr. Charles W. Garrett read the double-ring service before an arch of jade leaves over the communion table which held an open Bible and lighted cross. Completing the setting were floor baskets of white gladioli, flanked by seven branched candelabra holding cathedral tapers. Fews were marked with bouquets of white gladioli.

Mrs. Douglas Smith, organist, played traditional wedding music before the ceremony and the traditional wedding marches as a processional and recessional.

Miss Johnie Bruce of Dumas, soloist, sang "Indian Love Call" by Friml; "Whither Thou Goest" by Singer; and "Wedding Prayer" by Dunlap.

Candlelighters were Patsy Adcock, cousin of the bridegroom, and Monte Carl Bell. Miss Adcock wore a dress of white antique taffeta, with a fitted bodice, scalloped neckline and a waist-length skirt. Her headpiece was a flower-trimmed capulet of tulle and satin. She wore white taffeta and carried a bouquet of white roses.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor-length gown of chantilly lace over satin, styled with a chapel train. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a portrait neckline edged with iridescent sequins and pearls, and the long sleeves came to points over her hands. The skirt had lace panels in front and back with floral appliques accenting the tulle side panels. The appliques were outlined in sequin and pearls. Her veil of illusion fell from a half-profile — hat covered with pearls and sequins. She wore a silver heart locket, a gift of the bridegroom and carried a white lace handkerchief, carried by her mother in her wedding. She also carried a white Bible topped with a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, and white satin streamers.

Mrs. James Cummings of Amarillo, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was matron of honor, and Miss Kay Williams, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Evelyn Fulfer and Linda Luttrill, both of Borger; Miss Janet Bruce of Dumas; and Miss Shirley Weatherly of Panhandle. Miss Brenda Williams, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

All wore mauve-pink gowns of antique taffeta. The moulded bodices, accented with shirred insets in front and back, were styled with v-necklines and raglan sleeves that come to points over the shoulders. Their headpieces were taffeta bonnets with wine-tone roses in the peak, and they wore matching mitts. They carried colonial bouquets of wine-toned happiness roses.

Sheila Williams, sister of the bride, was flower girl. She was attired in a white dress of antique taffeta, fashioned with a fitted bodice, scalloped neckline and waist-length skirt. She carried a white satin basket.

Jesse Traylor, uncle of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Jimmie Don Mitchell, Delmer Tuggle, Dale Rossell, Aubrey Russell and Roger Williams, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Williams, mother of the bride, wore an aqua wool jersey dress with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Cummings, wore a mauve-pink silk dress with soft pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the War Memorial Building. The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth over satin. The cloth was edged with a tulle ruffle gathered with bells and ribbon streamers at the corners. The centerpiece was of white roses flanked by tall tapers in silver holders. The four-tiered wedding cake, decorated with white roses, was served by Mrs. Delmer Tuggle, with Miss Judy Price presiding at the punch bowl. Miss Joyce Bouquet registered the guests.

The couple is now at home in Canyon, where Mrs. Cummings will be a first semester junior at West Texas State College, majoring in primary education. For traveling she wore a black velvet suit with peacock-blue accessories and a white rose corsage.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Cummings are graduates of Panhandle High School.

Hot Bath In Cold Weather Is Good

Contrary to what grandmother thought, a good hot bath is a wonderful weapon against winter cold and the muscle kinks one gets from hunching against the wind.

It really doesn't matter if you want to defrost after coming in, or before going out. It's equally safe each way. The only difference is in the technique.

In any case, see that the bathroom is nice and warm for your bath. In many homes, this can be accomplished by shutting the door and letting the heat get bottled in. Or you may turn up the radiator or put the electric heater inside, but well away from the tub.

If you've just come indoors and your hands and feet are painfully cold, immerse them first in lukewarm water so they'll warm up gradually. Then step into the tub and give yourself a good soaping and scrubbing.

If you can spare the time, soak and relax. The soap will soak into the skin for extra cleansing and the warmth will get rid of muscle knots. After the soak, scaly spots may vanish with another scrubbing.

Your towels are meanwhile toasting over the radiator or near the heater. Warm towels are fun and they absorb water more rapidly.

If you're going to bed after the bath, make it warm, not hot, and soak for the few extra minutes. But if you're going out again, wind up the hot soak and sudsing with a cool or cold splash. It'll make you feel warmer in the long run and it'll pep you up.

Then wrap yourself in a gigantic towel. If your skin tends to chap, pet, rather than rub, it dry. Do a thorough job because damp skin is more likely to chap. Then use a cream or a lotion, if you need it.

Adlai Jr.'s Wife Would Be First Lady If Stevenson Should Become President

NEW YORK—UP—The White House official hostess since 1856 if Adlai E. Stevenson becomes president of the United States.

Mrs. Ernest Ives, the Democratic presidential candidate's only sister, who was ready to assume the first lady's duties four years ago, says the 22-year-old bride of Adlai Jr. would be the "logical choice" this time.

The former Nancy Anderson of Louisville, Ky., who married Stevenson's eldest son last June, would be the youngest woman to preside at White House parties since James Buchanan, a bachelor, became president 10 years ago. Buchanan asked his sister's daughter, Harriet Lane, to be mistress of the White House. Miss Lane was 23 at the time. Young

Mrs. Stevenson will be 23 next October.

"A number of things have changed since the last campaign," said Mrs. Ives, who is a chatty, informal woman and the co-author of a just-published book, "My Brother, Adlai."

"The boys have grown up a great deal in the past four years, and I know that Adlai talks very seriously to his sons about his decisions. I would help my brother in any way I could, but little Adlai's wife is a wonderful girl, and I think now she would be the logical choice to be hostess in the White House."

Special music will be presented by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Johnson.

Political Salvation

This being an election year, and all, there is a great hue and cry from one end of the country to the other for what is called "leadership." In fact, both major political parties, and the embryonic third party, confine their efforts largely to beating the bushes in an effort to scare up a LEADER. It seems to us that we rarely have seen so many willing followers.

Of course, there are certain very willing leaders. They are pretty well known: Eisenhower, Knowland, Nixon, Stevenson, Kefauver, Harriman. But there isn't a single one of these who could unite the country.

Eisenhower might be considered the most popular of the lot. But we don't think he quite has the cutting edge he had in 1952. And then he was only able to pull a mere five million more votes than Stevenson. So actually, then, there were millions lined up against him. And today, for cause, there are probably even more against him. So from the standpoint of leadership, we don't see anybody on the horizon that really has what it takes.

From our point of view, this is probably a good thing. Hasn't our difficulty in recent years stemmed from our dependence on leaders? What a lot of ballyhoo has gone out to tell us that if we vote for Mr. X, whoever he may be, the country will be saved. And what a lot of misplaced confidence this has engendered. First of all, mere popularity is no indication of ability. And secondly, presuming that ability did attach to the LEADER, what then?

Is there a leader in the political field anywhere who has the temerity to say, "This government is far too big; let us cut it down to size?" And then, having said it, see that it is done? Why, the political legions who place him in office so they could lap up the gravy would give such a man short shift. He probably could anticipate the fate of Garfield, McKinley and Lincoln.

Whoever gets the nod of popular acclaim is obviously representing only a few more than half of those who vote — at best a potential third of the country. In short, the successful campaigner can expect that at least two-thirds of the persons in the country will not approve of his candidacy enough to vote for him. So, about the only thing he can do is get HIS backers into positions of power and hang on like grim death. Can this lead to salvation of the nation? Rubbish!

We venture to say that whoever achieves the laurels come next November, will merely shore up his own job with his trusted workers and then pass laws and levy taxes calculated to help his followers and injure his non-followers. After about a year of this great disillusionment will come and the hue and cry will be raised once more: "Throw those rascals out! Let our rascals in!"

And thus with the whole political picture. We see no real health bestowed upon the body politic through these quadrennial patent medicine shows. Old Doc X's pain-killer may delude some for a time... but the morning after the gurgling at the polls, the same dull socialist headache returns.

We have an idea that "leadership" is not exactly the porage it is supposed to be. What this country needs is an INDIVIDUAL return to principles, an eagerness to solve our own problems independently of government, and a willingness to face the pangs and hardships of reality, rather than delude ourselves repeatedly that at last we have found Utopia via the ballot, the tax collector and the scheming political medicine men.

This is stern stuff. It isn't easy for a people who have been deluded by the grandiose promises of hucksters to realize that the promises can NEVER be fulfilled.

Of course we are not opposed to leadership when it manifests in other areas than government. Our natural leaders, men and women in science, industry, the arts, philosophy, religion and education, will automatically show us the way to a better world, if we stop hombering their efforts by repeated forays against their integrity with the phony plausibility of political salvation.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M. D.

Is there any cure for trichinosis, A. L. asks? She says she has been told there is no remedy. Unfortunately, she has been told correctly; there is no remedy. If the worm responsible for this disease could be recognized while still in the intestine and before becoming embedded in the muscle tissue, purgatives and other drugs would be useful. As a rule, however, the diagnosis of trichinosis is not made so early.

Since trichinosis is one of the most widespread diseases in the North American continent and treatment is so unsatisfactory, the attack on the disease is aimed at prevention. Trichinosis is preventable and could be entirely eliminated.

THE DISEASE strikes swine primarily. It is by eating pork or pork products containing the parasites in live form that human beings acquire the disease. The disease is kept alive in swine, in large part, as a result of the practice of feeding these animals with raw garbage. The control of trichinosis by means of proper garbage disposal can be accomplished either by making material infected with trichinae inaccessible to swine, by burning the garbage, or by burial or sanitary land-fill, or by killing the parasites in their larval form before the infected garbage is fed to the swine. These methods are entirely practicable and laws requiring suitable garbage disposal should be adopted by those communities which have not already done so. Those with satisfactory laws should enforce them.

THE DISEASE is caused by an animal parasite and some 250,000 people are believed to acquire new infections each year. Most of those infected do not show symptoms, but about 15,000 are likely to swallow enough parasites to produce disturbances, which could be identified although only a small number of these actually are pinned down. About one person in 20 of those who have infections with symptoms dies from the disease. This is no minor matter.

Withstanding The Labor Union Menace

If the labor unions are a fraud and a menace, then the question that confronts those who so believe is: how best to withstand this menace, how best to combat it? But first the individual must decide whether the labor unions are a menace or a blessing. Then he must publicly take a stand against this menace. He must be willing to be called reactionary, selfish, of the stone age, a scab, a thief and what not. But being called any of these names by people who will not answer questions should not embarrass him. Being so called does not make it so.

In order to take a public stand against this menace, one must not be advocating other menaces like protection, protective tariffs or special privileges of any kind. If he is, of course, he would be very much embarrassed and uncomfortable when the defender of labor unions called his attention to his inconsistencies.

When I use the words "labor unions" it means unions practicing seniority, collective bargaining that aims at preventing any worker from making a separate individual bargain.

One of the greatest preachers, Henry Ward Beecher, said that organized labor is the worst form of despotism ever devised by the human mind. Whether it is the worst is not the question. It is important to determine whether it degrades character and reduces production and thus keeps the general welfare of the public down. I am convinced, of course, that it does both of these. If he is true, then if we are to combat and withstand the labor union menace, we must decide the best approach to save ourselves and our fellow man from this menace.

A Policy That Has Failed

Some workers and employers seem to believe that the way to combat the labor-union menace is to try to pay as high a wage per unit of production as is established by the labor unions under duress, under the threats that if a wage is not met unions will simultaneously quit and attempt to prevent any other worker from taking the job and also try to prevent customers from buying the product.

Labor union bosses will lie and contend the employer that will not submit to a blackmail monopoly wage, is unfair to labor. While in fact he is trying his best to be fair to all labor, he refuses to be a party to a conspiracy to deprive certain workers from having an equal right to help establish wage rates.

The labor unions that are using the cast system and excluding people from having the right to compete, say that those excluded by seniority have an equal right to join the conspiracy. But, of course, this is not even true because they prevent him by seniority and limiting apprentices. Besides, it is about the same thing as telling a man that he has a right to join a group of bank robbers if he wants to improve his life.

Cannot Buy Loyalty to Principles

The trouble with trying to buy labor peace by meeting a blackmail monopoly extorted wage is that it is an attempt to buy loyalty to principles. But money will not assist the recipient to believe in a principle; to believe in a free and unhampered market; to believe that all men and not just members of the labor unions have an equal right to sell their services to the world's highest bidder and an equal right to buy from the world's lowest seller. Instead, this attempt to buy belief in principles diverts their attention from becoming informed on the only way fair wage rates can be established.

Wages arrived at on a free market basis is the American concept of justice. It is the Jewish and Christian concept of fair play and honesty. It is in harmony with the Golden Rule and the coveting and stealing commandments. When a man gets things by the threats of injuring another person, it is a form of stealing. So this method of attempting to combat one of the primary menaces, that if continued will further impoverish and enslave mankind, has not been successful. It has not prevented the labor union menace from getting one law after another passed that strengthens the tyranny of labor unions and cripples a free market. It has not prevented the labor unions from getting such laws passed as the Clayton Amendment, the Norris-LaGuardia Law, the Wagner Law, minimum wages, the 40-hour week, etc.

These laws are all the result of lack of understanding of the menace of labor unions. The pay-the-blackmail method of combatting the menace of labor unions is about the only way an employer has, who is not consistent in opposing all forms of collectivism; who does not have clean hands or does not know what a free market means.

The Only Way

The only way to really combat any form of menace is to try to get individuals to realize that honesty and dependability and self-reliance are more profitable to the individual in the long run, both materially and spiritually, than any form of tyranny and any form of legalized collectivism. Of course one first has to believe this in order to intelligently persuade another to believe in the dignity and the inalienable rights of every citizen.

Test of Enlightenment

So the best way to combat this menace is for more and more individuals to enlighten themselves on the subject. And one of the best ways of determining whether one is enlightened and understands the subject is to recognize that if any question about what he is advocating or opposing embarrasses him or causes him to evade an answer, then he does not know what he is talking about. And he better either become informed so that no question embarrasses him on what he advocates or he better change his position and advocate and oppose things that no question by any individual can embarrass him. And no labor leader dare attempt to answer questions without evasion on the ethics and justice and honesty and morality of the labor union movement, which is in reality, nothing but a cast system keeping the "ins" in and the "outs" out. The columns are open for questions on this very important menace to mankind.

Benson To Carry Fight To The Farm Front Now

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Secretary Ezra Taft Benson's visit to the Chicago stockyards, where he auctioned off a shipment of fine fat hogs at a loss to the producer, marks the opening of the Administration's attempt to appease an angry agricultural electorate. Instead of sitting in his paneled office, he means to carry the fight to the farm front henceforth.

In addition to pocketbook suffering from the fall in income, farmers resent the apparent indifference toward their difficulties at Washington. They have complained that Benson does not consult down-to-earth hog raisers about their "squeeze" between low receipts and high prices for what they buy. They think that he listens only to slide rule theorists. In short, they feel neglected by the agency created to safeguard their interests, as Sinclair Weeks labors for the business community, and James F. Mitchell for the employees.

Indeed, although Benson is a sincere and conscientious man, they think that they detect a certain smugness in the atmosphere and attitude at the Capital. It is a charge frequently directed against certain members of the Eisenhower entourage, although not against Benson. He still stands aloof from the controversies swirling around him.

Secretary Dulles gave support to this suspicion in his Life interview, in which he permitted himself to eulogize as one of our greatest statesmen, and the salvation of the West in three crises, Benson's endorsement of the Harper Magazine article, which depicted the farmer as a "selfish tyrant," aggravated the feeling of bitterness. It is hardly necessary to recall Secretary Wilson's remark that "What's good for General Motors is good for the U.S.A."

These may seem like trivial things, but it is often the human trivia which counts in politics. No recent politicians recognized that fact more than Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman. In contrast to the men around Ike, they inspired the belief that theirs was a warm and human regime, seeking only the betterment of mankind here and abroad.

F.D.R., for instance, obtained enactment of almost all his social and economic reforms in his first term, or before the 1939 outbreak of war. With our entry, he announced that he had switched from "Doctor New Deal" to "Doctor Win the War."

calling or opposing embarrasses him or causes him to evade an answer, then he does not know what he is talking about. And he better either become informed so that no question embarrasses him on what he advocates or he better change his position and advocate and oppose things that no question by any individual can embarrass him.

And no labor leader dare attempt to answer questions without evasion on the ethics and justice and honesty and morality of the labor union movement, which is in reality, nothing but a cast system keeping the "ins" in and the "outs" out. The columns are open for questions on this very important menace to mankind.

Postwar problems, as well as conservative opposition on Capitol Hill, prevented Truman from putting through any new reforms, or from expanding F.D.R.'s beginnings. But their legislative failures on behalf of important voting elements — their 15 barren years — did not keep them from talking and advocating things the people wanted to hear.

They showed a personal concern for the voters' problems. Eleanor Roosevelt preached the humanitarian gospel from weekly press conferences to the deepest coal mines, from Washington to Guadalcanal. Truman owed his 1948 victory over Dewey to his "whistle stop" tour. He talked an understandable political dialect, in his "give 'em hell" speeches.

Benson's language, as well as the reports of many Cabinet colleagues, has been technically correct in his analysis of the farm problem. But it has been cold, formal, detached. It has not reflected a real and deep concern for the farmer's present-day plight.

He points out, for instance, that the value of farmland is at a record high. He notes that farm debt has fallen to the lowest percentage, compared to assets, in many years. He emphasizes that three-fifths of the decline in farm income occurred during Truman's last few years, not on Ike's terms.

But these arithmetical rebuttals put no money in farmers' savings accounts. They buy no high-priced tractors, milking machines, fencing wire. They offer not even sympathy. Nor does it appear that the Administration's Nine-Point Program will become law in time to help the farmer before the November election.

But Ezra is learning, as his appearance at the Chicago stockyards in zero weather suggests. He is going out to meet the farm folks, and talk in terms they understand. Most importantly, as forecast here, he is finally attacking the problem of the prices and profits — the "spread" — on crops and commodities after they leave the farm.

In short, like F.D.R. and Truman, although he cannot solve their problems overnight, he will show that he is not a mug or complacent or indifferent. Other Cabinet members may — in fact, should — do likewise.

Mencken Never Alone As True Crusader Of The Press

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The idea that Henry L. Mencken was a daring crusader for reform is a myth as fleecy as the harmless superstitions which the joyless debunks in the comfort of a Pennsylvania chair-car commuting between Baltimore and Penn Station. He had a beautiful way with words, although the willowy style of Percy Hammond, the play reviewer, was far superior in grace. And his gamin impudence, though startling, delighted all of his limited public so he never lived an hour in the bitter loneliness of the true crusader of the press.

A strange freak practically retired little Helme from his painless campaigns against unpopular dignitaries and conditions. He unhesitated himself with the repeal of prohibition in Roosevelt's first term. The 18th amendment, its advocates and the bootleggers which it brought into being, was the character which he rode in perennial tilts against the windmill. He had revealed in his mischievous deviling of Bishop Cannon of the Methodist Church South, a leading hypocrite of the cause, done with such sparkling skill, however, that Cannon, a grim inquisitor — general, enjoyed civil little visits with him when they met by date or chance.

The last of these, probably, happened in the catacombs beneath the hall at the Democratic convention of 1936 when Mencken came upon Cannon and Heywood Brown. He joined them for a few words and passed along.

Returning to the hall, he announced that he had just encountered two polemical G.A.R.'s fighting the Battle of Shiloh over again unaware that he, himself, was now passe and would write very little more beside his memoirs, always the omen of retirement. This personal winsomeness was a natural gift as sweet as his turn of thought and phrase.

Again in Philadelphia, in the summer of 1948, when Henry Wallace held his convention of Communists in the Bellevue — Stratford, Mencken lunched with him and Mrs. Wallace before Bubblehead held a press conference at which he refused to answer any question by Pegler or any stooge of Pegler concerning his letters to his Oriental Guru. When Slapsy had laid that down, Mencken arose at his place and, softly wheedling, said that surely Mr. Wallace did not regard him as storage for anyone. Yet he, too, sincerely wanted some word from Bubbles on these glibsterish papers if only for his own guidance in the polling place, come fall.

Although Mencken brought to journalism a style his very own, like all dead-line producers he had to repeat his own clichés or, as someone wrote of Hemingway, to imitate himself. Thus, in the collections of Mencken's pieces now found between boards the tricks turn up so often that one is slightly sorry not to have settled for the memory of the original reading. He was so clever that he sometimes argued one way and, after a lapse of time, refuted himself with equal vehemence and triumphant scorn.

Mencken and W. O. McGeehan, the sport writer, were the despair of all others at the monkey trial in Dayton, Tenn., but only recently the truth came out that Mencken had holed up in a hotel in Chattanooga overnight and written his stuff in shorts.

McGeehan had established social relations with a doctor come down from the folds of the hills with a deck of medical prescription blanks while the lower orders of the fourth estate took their chances on the native moonshine, which, though nauseous, could put a man out of misery. The heat was horrible, the air dripped and one percent of the population, or persons, including Ray Clapper, were down of typhoid. For days on end there was no drinking water because the spring up the mountain, the source of the primitive public supply, was easily dried by seasonal storms.

Mencken drove the fundamentalist preachers mad with his ribald mockeries and one of them made a sorry show of his inferior knowledge and rhetoric in a series of pieces attempting to devastate a master who serenely ignored him but led him into difficulties more embarrassing day by day. McGeehan stuck to salty description and all on hand were obliged by the facts to give the decision to Clarence Darrow, the old jury-fixer, as William Jennings Bryan followed on the rack for his theology.

Mencken's book on his childhood, though gently painful in its merry longing, deals with a boy who was not "American" by the standards of the standard kid of his time. He was not even patient toward strenuous games and, in his writing years, his envy of those who could knock a little white ball 225 yards with a club-face of a few square inches was veiled in a pretense of intellectual contempt. There have been other such, including Shaw, who was not ashamed, however, to live on his mother's insufficient earnings during his youngling days on Fleet Street.

Mencken sometimes made merry at the expense of truth and conscience. His sweeping ridicule of all cops was safe but mean. It would have dulled his edge to stipulate for example that in the City of New York the police force, for all the occasional scandals, are the finest body of citizens by all standards, not necessarily excluding the clergy and certainly not literature, in the entire ten million who serenely look to them for security all the time and protection in critical danger.

A few days ago I was asked to be a contestant on the Groucho Marx TV show and I accepted the invitation. The acceptance has changed my whole life. When I walk down the street, I mutter such words as "tooth," "chair," "laugh," "spirits of turpentine," "furniture," and "light." I am trying to hit upon the secret word that sends the duck down with an extra hundred dollars.

I spend at least half the day trying to decide which category I will choose. Geography is out. General information is out. Rivers and creeks of the world is out. Cities in the United States is out. I have decided to ask for this category — a quiz for tired morons.

I hope the hundred dollar question will be: "Name the country in which you live and which has the initials U.S.A." I trust the $50 question will be to name the colors in the United States flag, an dith that the $20 question will be to identify Clark Gable either as (one) a poultry raiser, (two) a professional football star or, (three) a movie actor. If, by any chance, I were able to answer all three of the above questions and came up to the big one, I pray that it will be this: "What is your name?"

Of course, there is a chance that my female partner will save me from disgrace. By the luck of the draw from the studio audience I might conceivably get the president of some girl's university. She would be tall, poised, and know everything. In the hope that such women will be in the audience, I have sent wires to the deans of all women's colleges requesting them to be in NEC's studio the night I go on. In my wire I asked them to wear red dresses, red hats and to shoot off firecrackers — the men who select the attention of the studio to select

Everybody's talkin' about Grace Kelley's marriage. I'll bet she makes a wonderful wife and mother. I visited her on "The Swan" set out at Metro just before the holidays. She was all dressed up like a princess and she looked like an angel. And when I win I think she was doing? She was crocheting a pink hood and little socks for her brother's baby. And she had a tape measure to see that she got the sizes just so. JONATHAN YANK

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE
By OSCAR FRALEY
NEW YORK — UP — Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:

French And Swiss Challenge Austria

By FERDINAND WIMMER
CORTINA, Italy — UP — Switzerland and France have the best chance of challenging Austria's supremacy in Alpine skiing, a survey of the 1956 winter games results disclosed Wednesday.
Austria clearly headed the overall standing in the Olympic Alpine classification based on the 10-5-4 3-2-1 point score for from first to sixth places, respectively. However, Austria's clear lead was mostly due to the fantastic ability of one person unique in skiing history — triple gold medal winner Toni Sailer.

Host Of Players Holdout

By UNITED PRESS
The ball clubs don't like to talk about players who are dissatisfied with their contracts. They don't even call such players holdouts until March 1, but call 'em anything you like, here are some fellows who are unhappy with their contracts:
Billy Loes, Dodgers — Feels his 10-4 record warrants a raise.
Don Larsen, Yankees — Figures he is entitled to a raise, too, on the basis of his 9-2 record with the Yanks and 9-1 slate with Denver.

Some More Signings
Of course, various ball clubs in both leagues came up with some signings.
The Dodgers announced the signing of their relief ace Clem Labine, who won 18 and lost five last season in addition to sparkling in the World Series against the Yankees. He was given a raise.
Outfielder Lou Skizas signed with the Yankees. He comes up for a shot with them this spring after hitting .348 at Denver.

Maureen Connolly Drops Career As Player To Teach

CHICAGO — UP — Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly dropped from the ranks of the amateurs Tuesday and said she hoped to make a career as an instructor.
Miss Connolly was forced to drop out of competitive tennis after a July 20, 1954, accident in which she broke a leg while riding horseback.
"My playing days are completely over," she said. "I can't even play for recreation without the pain going down my leg."
However, she said she hopes to make a career with a sporting goods firm, conducting tennis clinics at high schools, playgrounds and colleges over the country "promoting tennis wherever I can."
"I want to pass on the things I have learned and teach as many kids as possible," she said.
Miss Connolly, thrice the winner at Wimbledon, won the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association message Monday, relinquishing her amateur status and thanking the association for its "support and help."
Miss Connolly, who began competition as a 10-year-old in 1945, reigned as the world's top woman player from 1952 through 1954. In 1953 she won the National, Wimbledon, French and Australian championships.

Neil Johnston Makes Effort To Keep Crown

By UNITED PRESS
Lanky, lantern-jawed Neil Johnston of the Philadelphia Warriors signaled the start of a desperate stretch drive to keep his National Basketball Association scoring crown Wednesday with a 41-point performance that helped to break a couple of records.
Johnston's spurge, his best this year, led the Warriors to a 128-95 victory over Syracuse in the first game of a twin bill at New York's Madison Square Garden Tuesday night. In the second game, New York downed Boston 113-102.
The Warriors' 128 points set a new single-team high for the Garden and their first-half bag of 70 points set another Garden record for one half.
Johnston has a long way to go to retain his scoring title, but Tuesday night's show gave him a season total of 1031. That's fourth best in the league.

Pluto Not True Planet

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis.—UP—Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper, research astronomer, said Friday the discovery that only eight planets exist instead of nine "throws considerable light on the origin of the planets."

Kuiper, of the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, said he learned in April and May of 1955 that Pluto is not a true planet.

He presented his findings to a national conference on geophysics at Washington Thursday night.

Kuiper, 50, said several factors substantiated the belief that Pluto is not a planet in the usual sense of the word.

He said Pluto was smaller, followed a different orbit and rotated slower than the planets.

"Pluto did not start out as a planet," he said. "It started out as one of the three moons of the planet Neptune. All three broke away, but Neptune recaptured two of them. Pluto, however, remained in a separate orbit."

Kuiper modestly refrained from placing more significance on his discovery, aided by the work of astronomers at Lowell observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz., and McDonald observatory near El Paso, Tex.

TEEN TOPICS

By HELEN STEWARD

IF WE IMPROVE cafeteria conduct, we will get the juke box - if we get the juke box, our conduct will improve.

This is the dilemma that was argued back and forth in assembly last week at PHS. Student council staged their weekly meeting before the student body with the meeting open to questions and discussion. Some one in the audience asked about the juke box and the dilemma followed.

Several months ago the announcement was made that plans to install a juke box in the cafeteria had been made and okayed, but the box never came. In the beginning the reason was that a juke box could not be obtained; then when there was one available, it seems that conduct in the cafeteria had reached a point where it was felt that we didn't deserve any favors. So no juke box came. Now, as a result of the assembly last week, our hopes of getting the music box are alive again. One week has been declared as a trial period; if the conduct is improved, we will get it.

And conduct has improved remarkably already - which only proves what results can be obtained from a democratic discussion and a democratic solution of a current problem, even in a high school.

Amarillo Lady Lost 20 Pounds With Barcetrate

Juanita Winsatt, 4309 Van Buren, Amarillo, Texas, writes us that she lost 20 pounds taking Barcetrate. She also states that she finds it a wonderful tonic.

Barcetrate is unique among reducing products. It is not a vitamin-pill or capsule (vitamins are excellent, but do not take off weight). Barcetrate is a liquid, taken with grapefruit juice. Over six and a quarter million bottles sold in Texas in 13 years.

Get Barcetrate at your druggist. Mix and take as directed on label. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the way to take off ugly fat, without starvation diet, return the empty bottle for your money back.

Other business of that same meeting was the announcement that election of next year's student body president will be held Feb. 22. Nominations will be made Feb. 15 by the junior and sophomore classes. Only juniors may be nominated. Also announced was the fact that Borger High School will stage an exchange assembly here on April 18; February civic club guests are Ted Swindle, Junior Rotation; Johnnie Lee Smith, Lions Club Sweetheart; Jimmy Edwards, Junior Kiwanian; Wanda Guthrie, Atrusa Club Career Girl; and Jim Hopkins, Junior Exchangeite.

Rhona Finkelstein, social committee co-chairman, reported on TWIRP week and asked that students begin thinking about a theme for the prom. As Rhona says, "We want to have a real, real good prom" so be sure to turn all ideas in to Rhona.

New students of PHS attended the meeting and were introduced. They were Adrian Curry of Ardmore, Okla., Gary Sharp of Kansas and Clyde Smith of Illinois. New students always attend SC meetings their first week in PHS.

"Harvey" is in the very last stages of rehearsal this week because the play will be presented by the senior class Monday and Tuesday nights in the high school auditorium. Leads in the play are being played by Ted Swindle and Myrna Montgomery. Carol Henry is student director. The whole production is under the direction of Miss Helen Schafer.

Tickets can be obtained from any senior class member, so everyone come on out. You'll see a good play besides helping the senior class raise money needed for graduation exercises.

All because of the wonderful beautiful snow there was no school Thursday. This meant that the debate tournament scheduled in Pampa High between Perryton, Dalhart, Canadian, Guymon and Pampa for that day had to be postponed. March 13 has been chosen as the date for the meet.

TWIRP season is in full swing with two more days to go. With girls playing the gentleman's role the week has progressed nicely. Only a little more time to ask that fellow for a date, girls, better hurry. This is the chance of a lifetime.

ONE OF THE most popular singers of the day is Elvis Presley. "EP," as he is called, appeared on television the last two Saturday nights, and onst teenagers made it a point to be watching. Presley is a young singer, barely 20 years old and has a distinctly different style of singing. He really hit the top in popularity around Pampa teens.

Despite the snow and cancellation of school last Thursday the Little Harvester was distributed on schedule Friday morning. This means that some of its staff braved the storm to get the paper printed and folded on time. These are the kids who deserve the credit for publishing our Little Harvester, which is the best high school paper in the state according to the prizes it won at the state contests.

Virginia Irwin has been named new managing editor of the paper. Congratulations, Virginia.

It is old hat by now, but we just can't keep from talking about the magnificent game that the Pampa boys played in Borger last Friday night to even the score of the defeat they handed us on dedication night in our field house three years ago and even the race for northern half 1-4-A crown.

What a game it was! Even Joe Friday couldn't create such suspense as we felt while Dicky Mauldin's vital free toss whizzed up to the basket. Warren Hasse, who doesn't generally get over excited as he announced the play-by-play, was evidently sitting on pins just as were all of us sitting at home listening to him. But, then we knew they were going to win - they had to, didn't they?

By now, all those critics who said at the beginning of the season that Pampa wouldn't have anything this year must be ready to admit that they were wrong. The evidence all pointed to it, though. With only one returning starter, things didn't look too bright. But the critics forgot to consider that it was Harvesters they were talking about, and Harvesters traditionally play not only with skill and training, but with determination and heart and spirit and team work.

As E. Jay McIlvain said recently, when they are rated low, it only serves to make them try harder to show the critics. And show them they will, with only Borger

Shop Specializes In What Movie Star's Dogs Will Wear

By ALINE MUSBY

HOLLYWOOD — UP — When a movie star's dog complains he hasn't a thing to wear he is hustled off to a new Beverly Hills shop that specializes in dressing poodles.

The oddity of movietown is called Fido's, the Sy Devore's or Brooks Brothers of the dog world. Fido's has a ready-to-wear and custom-made clothes department for four-footed pets of such stars as Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh, Alan Young and Dolores Gray.

For rainy days, a smart poodle can wade through puddles in an imported English raincoat, complete with hood and galoshes, for $12.95.

In the "fitting rooms" of this swank shop I also saw a chic mink-trimmed sweater for a poodle — $15.95. Other sweaters for chilly canines are trimmed with rhinestones and pearls to match those of their mistresses.

"Oh, every poodle should be well dressed," explained Norma Cross, an English girl who started the shop with a dog show handler, Mitch Wooten.

"Many dogs go with their owners to cocktail parties, and they usually dress for those. Some outdoor restaurants allow dogs so they dress for lunch. Then their owners love to parade them around while shopping."

For shopping tours the well-dressed poodle wears a "rose coat" — a felt coat lined with checked wool and trimmed with a big rose.

Those poodles who go to cocktail parties can slip into little velvet coats studded with pearls and rhinestones. And, to help me, the canine couturieres also have designed a white fake fur coat ($14.95). Collars at Fido's are made of everything from silver lame to rhinestones.

Farm Chief Claims Props Are No Help

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — UP — The president of the American Farm Bureau Federation said Monday night government farm price programs have been no help to the farmer.

Charles B. Shuman also warned in a speech to farmers and members of the Rotary Club here that "it is possible to price farm products right off the market."

"He said a trend is developing which could cause a 50 per cent reduction in wheat production, for example" in the United States within a few years.

Shuman said action in Washington doesn't establish farm prices nor does it result in much favorable influence on farm prices. He said only the consumer "who accepts or rejects our products" sets the price.

The American farmer fails to share in nation-wide prosperity "primarily because of unwise government programs which we asked for and now can't get rid of," Shuman said. He added that it is not feasible to control efficiently specific crop production by acreage cuts.

Shuman said the "folks who produce have lots of votes and any congressman who wants to return to Congress won't vote to cut the crops."

"We have been looking to the great white father in Washington instead of the housewife at the corner grocery to set our prices and our income," Shuman said. "We need to reset our sights."

New Insurance Firm Goes Under

AUSTIN — UP — Texas Union County Mutual Insurance Co. of San Antonio was placed in temporary receivership Monday following a hearing at which the firm offered no protest.

Included with the state's petition to District Judge Charles O. Belts was a letter from the company's president, Robert T. St. John, asking appointment of a receiver to liquidate the assets.

The State Insurance Commission, in an order of Jan. 17 revoked the firm's license on allegations the company acted without authority in moving its home office from San Antonio to Raymondville, used delaying tactics in settling claims and failed to answer inquiries from the commission.
