Here's the Big Difference That Makes It Possible

REVOLUTIONARY "SINGLE UNIT" CONSTRUCTION, PIONEERED BY AMERICAN MOTORS, MAKES RAMBLER, HUDSON, NASH AND METROPOLITAN THE STRONGEST, SAFEST, BEST ALL-AROUND CARS ON THE ROAD

PRIMITIVE OCCASION THESE BUILT WITH FLAT WOODEN-BEAM FRAMES AXLES AND WHEELS WERE ADJUSTED BELOW A FLOOR OR BOX WAS PUT ON TOP OF THE BUSBY WAGON AND "HORSELESS CARRIAGE" USED SIMILAR FLAT FRAMES AND ATTACHED BODIES

EVEN TODAY, MOST CARS HAVE SEPARATE FLAT FRAMES WITH SEPARATE BODIES BOLTED TO THE

ONLY AMERICAN MOTORS BUILDS CARS ON THE "SINGLE UNIT" PRINCIPLE. BODY AND FRAME ARE WELDED INTO A TOUGH, SUPER-STROKING "SINGLE UNIT". RESULT: PERFORMANCE AT LESS COST...GREATER COMFORT...MORE INSIDE ROOM...EASIER PARKING...SUPERIOR HANDLING AND CORNERING...ELIMINATION OF BODY SQUEAKS AND RATTLES...DOUBLE SAFETY...TOP RESALE VALUE

Bennett Cerf Interviews George Romney

Noted publisher, columnist and television personality gets inside story of revolutionary advance in car construction from the President of American Motors.

CERF: Mr. Romney, why do you offer a total of $25,000 insurance with your new cars?

ROMNEY: It backs our claim that "single unit" construction makes the strongest, safest, most modern cars.

CERF: Is there really that much difference between the way you and other manufacturers make cars?

ROMNEY: All the difference between yesterday's railway coach and today's streamliner. Other cars still use a principal old as the oxcart: A flat frame bolted under a separate body. In our cars, frame and body are welded as a "single unit". It's the biggest stride since the all-steel body.

CERF: And this makes a safer car?

ROMNEY: Twice as safe. Instead of a flat frame underfoot, our frame is a steel, box-girder enclosure as big as the car. It gives you "wrap-around" protection in front, rear, sides and top.

CERF: That sounds like real protection.

ROMNEY: That's not all. Flat frames others use are stiff, so they transmit collision force throughout the car. Our big steel box-girders up front absorb most of the impact. They take the brunt of the punishment instead of passengers.

CERF: What about performance?

ROMNEY: That's a real plus. "Single unit" construction gives a better power-weight ratio. It's stronger and safer, but eliminates useless weight and bulk. Our cars have set many racing records.

CERF: And economy?

ROMNEY: They're tops. Rambler holds the gas mileage record in Mobilgas Economy Runs. Again, because our "hard-muscled" single unit avoids dead weight.

CERF: I like room and comfort.

Why a total of $25,000 Personal Automobile Accident Insurance is given at No Extra Cost!

We back our confidence that American Motors cars are stronger, safer, more modern than others by giving each buyer of a new Rambler, Nash, Hudson or Metropolitan a total of $25,000 Personal Automobile Accident Insurance at no extra cost—divided equally between husband and wife.

This insurance provides for the payment of $12,500 to beneficiary or estate of either you or your spouse (if a member of your household at time of purchase)—thus providing the total of $25,000—if either or both should be fatally injured while driving or riding (either separately or together) in your new private passenger American Motors car anywhere in the world. Both are insured for the entire first year of ownership.

Covers fatality resulting within 100 days after date of accident. Applies to privately-owned cars purchased in the continental United States and Alaska where state insurance regulations permit.

Don't buy any new car until you get the facts about the priceless protection only American Motors cars can give you! See your Nash dealer! See your Hudson dealer!

Senator Says Administration Stand Needed

WASHINGTON — UP — Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson suggested Tuesday that the administration take a stand on the new version of the Bricker amendment before the Senate tackles the controversial proposal.

There is no point, Johnson told the United Press, of calling the amendment up for debate and "tossing the Senate in a knot" if the proposal does not have administration backing. The amendment, a point of controversy for some years, would limit the effectiveness of treaties as domestic law.

It was believed Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) would bring the matter up Tuesday at a meeting of GOP congressional leaders with President Eisenhower. Knowland has said he would support the revised amendment and hoped the administration would too.

The revised version of the amendment was approved last week by the Senate Judiciary committee. It is now up to the Senate Democratic Policy committee to decide whether to call it before the full Senate for debate.

The proposed amendment, as now drafted, would state: "A provision of a treaty or other international agreement which conflicts with any provision of this Constitution shall not be of any force or effect."

Council Of Clubs' Greenback Coffee Is Benefit For Refurnishing Project

ONE PRETTY DRESS plus one tiny matching jacket equals the newest twosome for spring. That's fashion arithmetic from the March "Seventeen" which says that dresses paired with rib-length and waist length jackets add up to an Easter look all season long. The magazine's dress-and-jacket collection—features crinolined and sheath dresses with long and short-sleeved jackets, in solid and print fabrics ranging from casual cotton to party taffeta.

A SLEEVELESS paper—white dress with pleated skirt, scoop-neck and red piping goes nautical with a waist-length double-breasted midshipman's jacket in traditional blue. A more formal pair is a bouffant-skirted blue rayon taffeta with lacy beribboned bib and a waist-hugging, fitted milkmaid jacket cut low to show the lace.

A rib-length, buttonless wool jersey jacket shows its affinity for short-sleeved, lace-trimmed rayon taffeta dress by flashing a lining of the same material. The dress is gaily striped and floats over a crinoline. An ensemble in a different mood is a city-date sheath and rib-length jacket in nubby beige silk and cotton. The jacket is long-sleeved, high-pocketed with a rounded collar.

THIS YEAR it's the narrower coat for the 7 to 14 girl. Restrained, slimline fullness is the widely accepted line throughout the coat market, in fitted as well as loose and boxy models, says Women's Wear Daily. The boy coat looks new in pastel, delicate tweed. Gray men's wear flannel, navy gabardine, worsted wool checks are among the classic fabrics in classic coat models.

Russian Schools

Dorothy Thompson, who has achieved fame as a writer for things other than her political consistency, has recently returned from Russia. While there she took occasion to have a good look at the Russian government schools. Her conclusions based on her own personal observations appear in the February Ladies' Home Journal.

It appears that the Russian idea of education is based on uniform discipline, rather than upon individual accomplishment. Of course, Miss Thompson reports solely on schools in Moscow, as the Soviet Commissars are still a little touchy about letting anyone look at the mess in the back country. But she reports that the Moscow school children apparently are a lot further along in their studies than their contemporaries in American government schools.

She says: "School meets six days a week. There is always homework — even in the first grade. All schools teach either English, German, French or Spanish from the fifth grade onward. Pupils receive six years of arithmetic, five years of algebra and geometry, two years of trigonometry, four years of physics and chemistry, four years of biology, ten years of Russian language and literature, five years of geography and seven years of Russian Eastern and Western history."

She points out that contrary to the American brand of compulsive education, in Russian schools the authority of the teacher over the pupil is established from the first day. Whatever else the child is to learn, he must learn to obey. And should he be expelled, especially for misconduct, he is branded for life. "There are no private schools to which his parents can send him. He is sentenced in effect to manual and ill-paid labor for the rest of his life."

After looking at the system she concludes that the Russian system is "basically one of training, rather than education. It greatly encourages individual effort, but it discourages individual thinking. It does not foster self-reliance but self-immolation. The best that can be said for Soviet training is that it is not an education for luxury and self-indulgence but for austerity and self-sacrifice. It does not produce great artists or the graces that mark a high and beautiful civilization."

We might point out that Russia, in this type of school, has achieved the ideal of compulsive training for youth. It was this same kind of school which Hitler favored, as the youth of Germany could be thus taught to make all manner of ridiculous sacrifices for the political hierarchy without the slightest intellectual qualms.

This was also the type of schooling which Lysander Sparta favored, in which the bee swarm was held up as the highest possible example toward which humanity could strive. Efforts in these United States toward the same type of dreary conformity, regardless of the admitted effective discipline such a system provides, will end by destroying this nation.

America is nothing if the people are not free. And while we favor discipline and the control of students, first by their parents and second by their teachers, we cannot subscribe to any kind of government school, in which such discipline is based on obvious political and military objectives.

Human beings are not bees. They do not exist merely for the perpetuation of the swarm. To accept this concept is to accept the old world order and to fly in the face of the achievements we have made as an independent free people.

It occurs to us that under the Russian system a Thomas Edison would have no chance at all. He was expelled from government school while in the grades, simply because he refused to go along with the regimentation. How we have all benefited by the freedom of his mind. And Abraham Lincoln would never have learned that soaring logic of his writings and speech making, had he been forced into the same mold along with his playmates. Government schools could never bring us the mind of an Elizabeth Patterson, the genius of a thousand industrialists who persevered despite their handicap of less than a grade school education.

We are faced with world-wide competition for the finest and best minds that can be produced. The Russian compulsive method, even if emulated here, will not give us the daring intellects we need today. It may produce a high degree of uniformity. But this is of greater value to the bee swarm than to a free society of individuals.

In the final analysis we will excel by individual effort rather than by controls and regimentation. We should refuse to compete with Russia on her terms. We should strike out for free schools, rather than compulsive slave schools (government controlled schools).

Freedom in education must be based on independent schools which operate in the free market. If we would be supreme in intellectual pursuits we must avoid political compulsion, both as to collecting money and as to curriculum. The government and the schools must go their separate ways. Only in individualism can America win the race.

The Rights Of Property—
A Refutation Of Socialism
And Communism

Under the chapter of "On the Universality of Property," Adolphe Thiers, in his great book, "The Rights of Property; A Refutation of Communism and Socialism," makes these observations:
"The method of observation being recognized as the only good one for the moral as well as for the physical sciences, I examine, firstly, human nature in every country, in every age, in all states of civilization, and everywhere. I find property as a general, universal fact, without any exception.

"The publicists of the last century, desirous of making a distinction between the natural and the civil state, imagined an epoch when 'wild in woods the naked savage ran,' obeying no fixed law, and another epoch in which he had assembled with his fellows and submitted to the restraint of contracts entitled laws. The supposed conditions of the first state were termed natural right; the real and known conditions of the second were styled civil right. This is a mere hypothesis, for man has nowhere and at no time been found isolated, not even among the untutored savages of America or of the islands of the Pacific. As among animals there are some which, guided by instinct, live in bodies, such as herbivorous animals, which graze in company, while carnivorous animals live isolated that they may chase without a rival, so man has always been observed to live in society. Instinct, that first and oldest of laws, draws him towards his fellows, and constitutes him a social animal. Were it otherwise, what would he do with that intelligent look with which he questions and replies before he can speak? What would he do with that mind which conceives, generalizes, qualifies things, with that voice which thinks them out by sounds; with that speech, the instrument of thought, the very bond and chain of society? A being so nobly organized, feeling the want and having the means of communicating with his like, could not be made for isolation. Those wretched inhabitants of Oceania, more nearly resembling the monkey tribe than any others to be met with, occupied with fishing, the least instructive of every kind of existence, have been found drawn near each other, living together, and communicating with one another by harsh and savage sounds.

"Man, born to create and to brave the cannon's mouth, instead of flying, as do most animals, seizes his weapons, be they more or less perfect, takes up a pole, to the end of which he fixes a sharp stone, and armed with this rude lance, unites with his neighbor, opposes the enemy, resists or yields in turn, according to the orders he receives from the most skilful or the most daring member of the tribe.

"All these acts are accomplished by instinct, before anything has been written either on laws or acts, before any contract has been thought of. The instinctive rules of this primitive state, rules the most rudimentary, general, and necessary of all, may well be called natural right. Now property exists from this moment; for it has never been seen that, in this state, man had not his hut or his tent, his wife, his children, with a few accumulations of the produce of his fishing or hunting, or of his flocks, in the shape of provisions for his family. And if a neighbor, having a precocious instinct of iniquity, should seek to wrest from him some of the simple goods constituting his possessions, he applies to that chief at whose side he has been accustomed to stand during the fight, calls upon him for redress and protection, and the latter decides according to the notions of justice developed among the tribe.

"Among every people, then, how rude soever they may be, we find property, at first as a fact and then as an idea — an idea more or less clear according to the degree of civilization they have attained, but always invariably settled. Thus the savage hunter has at least the property of his bow, his arrows, and of the game he has killed. The nomad, who is a shepherd, has at least the property of his tents, and of his flocks and herds. He has not as yet admitted that of the soil, because as yet he has not thought fit to exert his faculties upon it. But the Arab who has raised numerous herds clearly understands that he is the proprietor of them, and exchanges his produce for the corn which another Arab, already fixed to the soil, has grown elsewhere. He measures with accuracy the value of the object he gives against the value of that which is offered him; he clearly understands that he is the owner (proprietor) of the one before the bargain is struck, and of the other after. To him as yet immovable property has no existence. At times, however, he may be seen, during two or three months of the year, fixing on land which belongs to nobody, tilling it rudely, casting in the seed, gathering it when ripe, and then removing to some other place. But during the time that he is employed in tilling and sowing this land and in harvesting the crop, the nomad feels that he is the owner of it, and would risk his arms against any who should dispute its fruits. His property endures in proportion to his labour. By degrees, however, the wanderer of the desert settles and becomes a husbandman; for it is in the heart of man to have his home, as a bird has his nest, and

Mac To Write Book On How To Wash Bulldog

By HENRY McEMORE

In their books, neither Edwards nor Culpepper comes right out and says where the best place is to bathe a bulldog. They straddle the fence with such suggestions as "the most convenient place" and "the most satisfactory place." But I would say Lake Erie is the best place, if you live anywhere in that neighborhood.

Not living near Lake Erie, I have found that an enclosed stall shower is the next best thing. Both bulldog and bulldog bather must strip and get in. There is always you-know-what to pay at first. Bulldogs — and this is particularly true on clear, sunny days — do not like to have a stream of water suddenly descend on their heads. They believe that they have been caught outdoors in a thunderstorm and always try to make a break for it.

No matter what soap or shampoo you use, calm the bulldog by first lathering yourself from head to foot. This tends to build a camaraderie that helps when slipping and all but floundering, you start to wash him. When he yelps because he has gotten soap in his eyes, you can yelp back on the level, because you, too, have soap in your eyes.

Do not try to dry the dog inside the shower. Pay no attention to your wife if she insists you do that. Just open the shower door, throw wide the bathroom door, and let him run through the house shaking, rolling and barking. The fine mist a shaking dog throws off will not harm the daintiest of fabrics.

Bulldogs are likely to hold a grudge against the man who brushes them. It makes me look pretty silly under a shower, but I always wear a false moustache and tweed cap when I bathe Dilly. Once I take them off the never associates me with her tormentor. How about a grant, you Guggenheim fellows?

Gene Brown Is Hustling Harvester

HUSTLING HARVESTER — Clifton McNeely spoke words of praise for several minutes and then named Gene Brown, Sr. forward as the boy most deserving of the 1955-56 "Hustling Harvester Award." He is shown here as he made the presentation last night during the annual Harvester Basketball banquet sponsored by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. (News Photo)

Carol Henry Named Queen At Annual Cager Banquet

By TOMMIE ELLIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

Gene Brown, recipient of the 1955-56 "Hustling Harvester Award," seemed to be the most surprised person in the audience last night after Coach Clifton McNeely named him as the boy most deserving of the honor. Gene, who had evidently been wondering who would get him by his beloved coach and teammates.

The selection, as last year, was made by members of the Harvester squad and is a reflection of the work and patient endeavor he has put out during the past season. Coach McNeely agreed that the coaches couldn't have selected a boy more deserving.

Brown was not the top scorer during the district competition but he did set a single game scoring record for the Harvesters this season. He didn't make the first team of the northern half of the district 1-AAAA but he was probably more respected by his teammates than any of the boys.

The presentation of the award, as always, was the highlight of the annual Harvester basketball banquet held in the high school cafeteria last night but the speech by Melvin T. Munn held the second spot on the program.

Munn began his address with "and now in conclusion." The remark was directed to Fred Thompson, who had praised him for several minutes.

Munn, public relations man of Blue Cross and Blue Shield, held the audience spellbound for almost thirty minutes as he cracked jokes, recited poems and talked of the future of the youth being honored.

He stated that the boys were just beginning on their journey down through life and that he felt sure the guidance they had received from coaches Clifton McNeely, Terry Cullsey, P. A. Scoggins and Alex Swann would help them on their future journey.

He praised the coaches and boys for their efforts but for this season. "You weren't supposed to win a game according to early reports but you are now champions not only of the northern half of the district but in life."

"These honors belong to the parents of the boys as much as to the coaches and players. They had as much to do with the victories as anyone." He urged the boys to continue their efforts throughout the remainder of their lives and be sure they were directed in the path toward the betterment of the community and their own lives.

SMU Favored In First Round Of NCAA Tournament

WICHITA, Kan. — UP—Southern Methodist University Thursday was named a 10-point favorite to skim through its NCAA first round game and was expected to become the team to beat in the regional at Lawrence, Kan., starting Friday.

The Mustangs, probably the strongest team to come out of the Southwest Conference in years, meet Border Conference champion Texas Tech Tuesday night. Two all-star teams, Oklahoma City and Memphis State, meet later in the second game of the doubleheader. Oklahoma City was favored by eight.

Memphis (20-8) lost to Win Wilcox, 22.1 point average, and Forest Arnold, 21.2, because of eligibility rules. Tech (13-11) lost Jim Reed and Duwayne Blackshear, who packed their one-two punch, also because of eligibility.

Southern Methodist, ranked sixth nationally, is powered by 6-8 Jim Krebs, who averages 18.8 points. Guard Bobby Mills contributes 12.7 and forward Joel Korg 11.9. The Mustangs (22-2), were beaten only by Kansas and Big Ten champion Iowa in regular season.

Oklahoma City (18-6) has a pair of double figure scorers, 6-10 Hubert Reed, 20.1 and 6-5 Lyndon Lee, 14.0. It is the fifth straight year that the Chiefs have appeared in the NCAA event, a record for consecutive play.

Phillies' Simmons Stages Comeback In Spring Debut

By UNITED PRESS
Curt Simmons' spring debut was pronounced a smashing success Tuesday leading the Philadelphia Phillies to hope the one-time $65,000 bonus beauty will again form a brilliant 1-2 pitching punch with tireless Robin Roberts.

Simmons, who many feared might be washed up at the ripe age of 28, turned in a splendid performance Monday as the Phillies defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1. He whirled through the first three innings, yielding only two hits and not permitting a baserunner to advance past second base.

Roberts, who has won 20 games in each of the last six years, then pitched out the Pirates for the next three innings in his first outing of the spring.

But the big news for Manager Mayo Smith was Simmons' performance. The slender fireballer was troubled by arm trouble last season and finished with an 8-8 record. The Phillies were so dubious over his ability to stage a comeback that they have delayed offering him a contract until he proves himself.

Record Went Down
Simmons had a 17-8 record in 1950 when the Phillies won the National League pennant but then spent the 1951 campaign in the Army. He returned to post a 14-8 record in 1952 but then was 15-13, 14-15 and finally 8-8 as his arm troubles steadily worsened.

At Phoenix, Ariz., meanwhile, freshman Manager Billy Rigney was wandering if his New York Giants are the same team criticized so sharply a few weeks ago by Leo Durocher. The Giants followed up two weekend victories over the Cleveland Indians by making it three straight victories for the spring when they topped the Baltimore Orioles 9-5 Monday.

Outfielder Gil Coan struck the big blow for the Giants—a triple in the seventh inning, and rookie Joe Broglio flashed impressive stuff in his debut.

The Indians scored their first triumph of the spring when they downed the Chicago Cubs 7-4 at Tucson, Ariz. The Cubs pulled a triple play to get out of one jam early in the game but rookie Earl Averill, son of the former Cleveland outfielder, climaxed a five-run eighth inning rally with a three-run homer. The rally was at the expense of Turk Lown.

Yankees Win First Game
The New York Yankees won their first grapefruit league game after two losses when they beat the Chicago White Sox 4-2, with the aid of Mickey Mantle's homer. Whitey Ford and Billy Pierce, the American League's ace southpaws, started against each other with Ford having much the better of it. He shut out the Sox for four innings.

Phillips Wins N.I.B.L. Title
BARTLESVILLE, Okla. — UP—The Phillips 66 basketball team won the National Industrial Basketball League title here Monday night, defeating the Akron Good-year squad 106 to 82.

Phillips finished with a season record of 18 wins and 8 losses. The Peoria Cats were second at 15-9. The Wichita Vickers can tie for second place in a game Wednesday night.

NC State Edged In 4-Overtimes In NCAA Tourney

By UNITED PRESS
A stunning four-overtime loss dealt to North Carolina State serving warning Tuesday that it's "open season on favorites" as the NCAA basketball tournament moved to complete its round of action with a slate of four games.

The experts feel that anything can happen now, after NC State—the nation's No. 2 team in the regular season—bowed to Canisius 79-78 in a first-rounder at Madison Square Garden, Monday night.

Other first-round victories were scored by Temple, Wayne University, Morehead State, and Seattle in play at three different sites. Those teams earned berths in regional tournaments starting Friday, and will be joined there by the winners of Tuesday night's four games.

Tuesday Night Favorites
Tuesday night's program: At New York — West Virginia (21-8) is favored over Dartmouth (16-9) on the shooting of "Hot Rod" Hundley; Manhattan (16-7) is favored over Connecticut (16-9) on the strength of an overtime win in the regular season.

At Wichita, Kan. — Southern Methodist (22-2) a 10-point choice over Texas Tech (13-11); Oklahoma City (18-6) an eight-point choice over Memphis State (20-9) because of its height.

Here's how Tuesday night's action will line up on the Friday night regional at Philadelphia, Temple vs Connecticut-Manhattan winner and Canisius vs Dartmouth - West Virginia winner; at Iowa City, Kentucky - Wayne and Iowa-Morehead; at Lawrence, Kan., Kansas State vs Memphis State - Oklahoma City winner and Houston, vs. SMU-Texas Tech winner; at Corvallis, Ore., UCLA-San Francisco and Utah Seattle.

But none of the favorites can feel safe after what happened to North Carolina State. The Wolfpack, regarded by many as a likely final-round rival for favorite San Francisco, was ousted by a shorter Canisius squad than out-hustled the Pack for rebounds.

In Monday night's other first-rounders:
Final Jump Shot Wins
At New York — Temple beat Holy Cross 74-73 in a game that ended in a wild uproar. Fred Cohen's jump shot with six seconds left put the Owls in front, but Tom Hainsohn of Holy Cross came back with a driving layup — that official ruled had come after the final buzzer. Several angry Crusader fans fought special police.

At Fort Wayne, Ind. — Morehead missed the tourney scoring mark by one point in beating Marshall 107-92 as the two-team total set a tourney record. Dan Swartz tied 39 points for the winning Eagles while Cabe Price led Marshall with 27.

Wayne, led by soph Clarence Straughn, handed DePaul an upset defeat 72-63. Wayne, leading 64-62 with 1:42 spurted to wrap up its 17th straight win and 18th in 19 games as Straughn led the firing with 27 points.

At Seattle — Seattle held on to beat Idaho State by a surprisingly close 68-66 score as a late Idaho State rally fell short.

CORONATION — Miss Carol Henry is shown here shortly after she was crowned "Queen" of the 1955-56 Harvester Basketball. She was escorted by Jerry Gee and Jimmy Enloe. Enloe placed the crown on her majesty's head and both boys kissed her to make it official. Her attendants were Misses Anita Wedgeworth and Carolyn Miller. (News photo)
