Official End To Strike Is Expected

NEW YORK (UP) — The official end to the $1 billion steel strike is expected either Thursday or Friday.

Negotiators for major steel companies and the United Steelworkers Union have been hammering away for five days on the final contracts that will end the 32-day strike.

Top industry and union representatives said Tuesday night U.S. Steel was "very close" to an agreement covering all non-economic matters.

The economic issues of the dispute were settled last week when the union and leading steel companies signed an unprecedented three-year agreement. It calls for wages and benefits that will cost the industry more than $1.3 billion over the life of the pact.

However, the nation's 650,000 striking steelworkers cannot return to work until formal contracts are signed between the union and the companies.

Even if final agreements are signed later this week, top industry spokesmen said it will take a couple of days to get the mills "rolling again." A general back-to-work order was not expected until Monday at the earliest.

Tuesday Roger Blough, chairman of giant U.S. Steel Corp., said his firm hopes to resume its operations on Monday.

Blough told a news conference the strike had cost "Big Steel" about $2 million a day in out-of-pocket costs and upwards of $3.5 million in lost production.

Fata Speaks To Jaycees

Frank F. Fata spoke at the weekly meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce Tuesday in the City Hall on "Life Insurance and You." Fata is with the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

Fata first spoke on the benefits of social security and then explained how a person should choose their life insurance.

"Different types of insurance are beneficial to different situations," Fata said.

He went on to explain how different policies would benefit certain families.

Gene Hollars with Cantrell & Company Architects, Inc. was accepted as a new member. Visitors were Gerald Adams of the Amarillo Jaycees, Pat Carter, and Frank Jones. Mystery Jaycees was Charlie Wilkerson.

Former Canadian Girl's Rites Held

CANADIAN — (Special) — Funeral services for Andrea Lee King, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred King of Kansas City, were conducted here Sunday afternoon in the First Christian Church in Canadian.

Andrea Lee was electrocuted at her home in Kansas City, while shampooing her hair in the bathtub. An electric fan had been placed on the edge of the tub. The accident occurred Thursday evening, July 26.

The Kings are former residents of Canadian. Other survivors besides her parents are her brother, David 9; two sisters, Clarence, 9 and Kay, 2; her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Traylor of Canadian and Mr. and Mrs. Bud King of Amarillo.

Burial was under the direction of Buckley Funeral Home in Canadian.

Political Investigation Threatened

DETROIT (UP)—A confessed grafter's charges that gamblers paid certain suburban Detroit city officials more than $100,000 in protection money today threatened to lead to a state investigation of local politics throughout Wayne County.

The county's 18-member Circuit Court was expected to meet today to act on the state's request for a grand jury probe of alleged crime, corruption and bribery in Ecorse, Mich., a downriver Detroit suburb.

The long bubbling Ecorse political situation came to a head Tuesday night when William H. Monty, the city's former police and fire commissioner, told a secret press conference he worked two years as a grafter and payoff man for a gambling combine in Ecorse.

Monty was taken into protective custody at his own request on the orders of state attorney general Thomas M. Kavanagh. Kavanagh has joined Wayne County Prosecutor Gerald K. O'Brien in a move to impanel a grand jury to investigate both Ecorse politics and politics throughout the county.

Kavanagh said Monty told him: "I'd be a dead man if any of those people got to me."

Kavanagh ordered Monty placed under state police protection and taken to a secret hideout. At the press conference, Monty told newsmen he knew gambling had been going on in Ecorse for more than two years. He said he was paid $200 a month for his part in the conspiracy "and passed an additional $5,000 along to others in the deal."

He refused to tell where the money came from but said there were about 25 persons involved in the conspiracy, all of whom knew each other.

Monty said gambling was the only thing protected in Ecorse and consisted mainly of numbers, dice and the bar-bout game, although open gambling was not permitted.

McKeon admitted he knew there were some non-swimmers in the platoon but said he gave them explicit instructions to forestall any from wandering into water over their heads.

"I can't say what happened," he said when questioned about the panic. He said it was too sudden and bewildering to explain. But he told in detail what he did remember.

Polio Shot Restrictions Removed

WASHINGTON (UP) — The government today ended federal allocation of Salk polio vaccine. It also will continue to receive geographical distribution reports from manufacturers and advise them of any imbalance between supply and demand.

Scheele reported that demand is much stronger in some areas than others. Vaccine also is more plentiful now.

The Public Health Service will continue to notify states of new batches of vaccine it approves. It also will continue to receive geographical distribution reports from manufacturers and advise them of any imbalance between supply and demand.

Scheele said he urged continuation of these functions "because we know there is still some distance to go before all children under 20 and expectant mothers in the United States have been given three injections."

He said the government allocation system can be reinstated if circumstances change.

AUSTIN (UP) — Removal by federal authorities Tuesday of all age restrictions on the commercial use of Salk polio vaccine marked the end of a long fight for Texas Health Officer Henry A. Hollis.

Hollis repeatedly had urged lifting of the limit on commercial use of the vaccine. Except for pregnant women, only persons under 20 had been eligible to receive the vaccine.

However, the age limit will still apply to use of vaccine administered through public health channels.

Hollis said in a telegram earlier Tuesday to U. S. Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele that 16 per cent of all cases of paralytic polio and 29 per cent of the polio deaths in Texas this year have occurred among persons above age 20.

"This older age deserves protection," the health officer said. Production techniques have now improved to the point where the vaccine is readily available in most sections of the country, including Texas.

Health authorities in Texas have maintained that lifting of the age restriction will allow commercial use of more vaccine in the state, and confer a higher level of protection against polio to a greater percentage of the state's total population.

21 Aluminum Plants Closed By Strike

PITTSBURGH (UP)—More than 28,000 aluminum workers walked off the job today paralyzing 50 per cent of the nation's vitally needed aluminum production.

The strike, which spread like wildfire across the nation at midnight, closed down 21 plants operated by Aluminum Company of America and Reynolds Metals Co., the two biggest producers.

Strikers set up picket lines and kicked off the first major aluminum strike in seven years shortly after midnight, when it became apparent contract talks between the companies and the United Steelworkers union had bogged down.

More Efforts Today
The union has a traditional policy of "no contract no work."

Federal mediators entered the picture at the 11th hour in an effort to head off the walkout which threatens to put a crimp in the nation's defense production.

Negotiators for the USW and the aluminum companies bargained past the midnight hour on a new contract for the 28,000 USW members employed at Alcoa and Reynolds plants in 13 states.

They were scheduled to meet again today in an effort to halt the walkout before its effects were felt throughout the industry.

Most aluminum consuming companies were believed to have sufficient inventories to enable them to weather a short strike.

When negotiations broke up around 1:30 a.m. today, top union officials said the companies had failed to come up with an acceptable offer.

Steel Match Sought
N. A. Zenarich, chief USW negotiator in the Alcoa talks, said the aluminum companies "failed to match the steel settlement of 45.6 cents an hour."

The companies retorted by saying that they offered the union a package increase about equal to that offered by the steel companies.

Some 28,000 USW members joined in the aluminum shutdown. Alcoa had 18,000 of the job at 12 installations. Reynolds had 10,000 on strike at nine plants.

How could South go down at four spades in today's hand? One card less play, of the kind that anybody might make, was enough to cost declarer game and rubber.

South won the first trick with the king of hearts and led the queen of spades for a finesse.

Marlin Fishing Sorts Big Boys From Little Ones

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

OCEAN CITY, Md. (UP)—Fishing for marlin sorts the big boys from little boys. On this trip I wound up in knickers.

It was Capt. Lev Raymond's idea, and I suppose he meant well. But unfortunately Lev, like most of us, has little control of the weather.

The sky over the Atlantic was foggy when we shoved off at 7 a.m. The water looked smooth enough, and the twin 200-horsepower diesels were feathered in a fitting manner on the 65-foot Lev-Lou.

We were about three minutes from home base when something with hurricane like winds hit something or other. The target must have been our old sea dog, the Lev-Lou.

Rock and Roll

So she started to rock and roll and while she was rocking and rolling down from topside came a young man everybody called "Reds."

"Anybody for a slug of drama?" he asked. "If you think you are getting seasick, it will change your mind."

I was the first thinker and downed one of the little anti-sick pills. But as I leaned over the pitching side, I realized I had thought too late.

Actually, we didn't have one of the seven seas all to ourselves. Others were pitching and rolling, too. But Captain Lev was comforting.

"I can go anywhere in this tug," he said. "And almost any kind of weather. She was built to take it."

Eight Hours of It

And take it the Lev-Lou did. And those aboard could do nothing more than take it, either, for eight long hours.

The ship-to-ship radio was a little fuzzy, but the skipper learned that about 35 miles out the seas were behaving and the marlins were hungry. We pointed the bow of the 65-footer into a high wind and Lev was moved to remark that "if there are fish around we will raise 'em."

West discarded the seven of diamonds, and South saw that the finesse was not going to succeed.

Declarer saw no reason to play a losing finesse, so put up dummy's ace of spades to win the second trick. Then he returned a spade from dummy.

Have you seen the mistake? If not, look again.

South sealed his doom when he played the ace of spades from dummy at the second trick. East took the next trump trick with the king, cashed the king of diamonds, and led a diamond to his partner's ace. West led a third diamond, and East was able to over-lead dummy with the nine of spades, thus taking the setting trick.

The correct play is to let the queen of spades ride at the second trick, giving East the king of spades at once. Dummy's ace of spades can then be used to ruff the third round of diamonds, after which declarer can draw trumps and claim the rest.

Solons Speak On Congress' Work

EDITOR'S NOTE—What do the Democratic and Republican leaders of the Senate think of the achievements of the Democratic-controlled 84th Congress? They set forth their views in the following exclusive dispatches written for the United Press.

By Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson
WASHINGTON, July 31—UP—The 84th Congress can be summed up in four words—hard work and achievement.

In the 225 days of the session the senators worked day and night to shape the legislation needed by the American people. The results were impressive both in terms of quantity and quality.

More than 2,650 bills were passed by the Senate and 82,600 presidential nominations were confirmed. There is no previous record of so much accomplished in so brief a time.

Some of the bills were of major importance, some affected only a few people. Some represented pioneering work—such as the vast highway program; the social security bill; the great steps taken to conserve America's precious soil and water resources.

This was not a partisan Congress which sought to hamper and hamstring the President simply because he was a member of the Republican party and the Congress was controlled by the Democrats. As of July 21 action had been completed on 64 per cent of his recommendations and partial action had been taken on 13 per cent.

All of his recommendations received serious and deliberate consideration.

Basic to all the actions of Congress was a concern for people—a concern that overrode narrow partisan consideration and emerged in terms of help where help was needed.

Through the appropriation power a vast medical research program was launched which holds forth hope to those stricken by disease or infirmity. A soil bank and improved price supports were enacted to relieve the distress of farmers caught in the squeeze of rising costs and falling prices. The wage floor was increased to $1 an hour and disabled workers were granted retirement benefits at the age of 50. Air and water pollution control programs were launched. The upper Colorado basin program—which has been the dream of far-sighted men for decades—at last became a reality.

taxes on gasoline, a rural development program, an enlargement of the school milk program and easier credit facilities. All were Republican supported. Democrats supported many of the programs in whole or in part.

The Congress provided grants to states for a Salk vaccine program. This was an administration proposal. The Congress expanded the program for vocational rehabilitation, amended the social security act to follow up the recommendations and progress made in the previous Republican 83rd Congress. And it extended aid to schools in areas affected by federal activities.

Republicans supported veterans legislation, including extension of benefits for education, housing and assistance to dependents.

The 84th Congress increased minimum wages to $1.00 and hour. The administration supported increased railroad retirement benefits and additional benefits to the nation's longshoremen and Congress enacted the proposals.

A Two-Edged Sword
MUSKEGON, Mich. (UP)—John Hoos decided today mice were real sneaky creatures. The mouse he used to frighten several girls bit him instead.
