Runoff Canvass Scheduled Today

Nomination Of Daniels Expected To Be Confirmed

DALLAS (UP) — U. S. Sen. Price Daniel's nomination as governor was expected to be confirmed today when the various county Democratic executive committees canvass the returns from Saturday's runoff.

The Texas Election Bureau issued its complete but unofficial returns late Monday, showing that Daniel beat Austin attorney Ralph Yarborough by 3,547 votes.

Complete returns from all of the state's 254 counties gave Daniel 698,125 votes and Yarborough 694,578.

In the runoff for attorney general, former State Supreme Court Justice Will Wilson of Dallas got 803,740 votes to 815,119 for District Attorney Tom Moore Jr. of Waco. Moore conceded Saturday night.

Watchers on Hand

Both Daniel and Yarborough, who has refused to give up until the final figures are in, made plans to have watchers observe the official vote canvass today.

However, there probably will be little if any change of the vote count already made since the county executive committees have no authority to recount their votes. A recount cannot be made except by court order.

County committees canvass the vote by checking returns on the tally sheet as reported by the presiding judges. Poll lists are checked to determine the number of voters casting ballots, checking that number against the vote shown on the tally lists, if necessary, to determine if the report by presiding judges reflects the vote accurately.

Reports Are Mailed

County chairmen, under the law, are required to mail returns on state and district offices to the state Democratic executive committee in Austin within 24 hours after the county canvass.

Thus, the official canvass of the state will not be announced until next month when the state executive committee meets in Fort Worth. Daniel, if he has won the election, probably will announce his resignation from the U.S. Senate then.

Evidently, the only thing that can change the result now is the discovery of a big mistake somewhere in the counting.

Lead Drops, Then Rises

Daniel's lead in the bitterly-contested runoff was whittled to 2,523 votes Sunday night. But late reports, corrections and adjustments increased the Senator's lead Monday. The total vote in the runoff was 1,392,703.

Daniel has said Texas voters can choose his successor in a special election, and two newspapers suggested Monday that Yarborough be drafted for the post.

The Temple Telegram and Sherman Democrat, owned by Frank W. Mayborn of Temple, said in an editorial that unless Texas Democrats run Yarborough the Republicans may be able to win the seat.

Daniel considered himself elected and issued a victory statement in which he said that "despite the close race and the many things that were said and done against me, I shall try to be the governor for all the people of Texas."

Texas Republican May Seek Office

By O. B. LLOYD Jr.
United Press Staff Correspondent
CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UP) — Texas Republicans, meeting in state convention today, may call on a 40-year-old Houston attorney to carry their banner in either a race for governor or the U.S. Senate.

Thad Hutcheson, an impressive figure at the Republican national convention, was tagged in -top level talk as the man most likely to carry the GOP colors in either race.

He was to keynote today's convention and start the Republican offensive to carry Texas again for the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket.

Hutcheson, who served as co-chairman of a southern group of delegates that successfully nailed a moderate civil rights plank into the national Republican platform, seemed assured of gaining one of the GOP nominations.

Won't Oppose Daniel

He might run for the U.S. Senate — almost assuredly if Price Daniel wins the Democratic nomination for governor.

Republican National Committee member Jack Porter said a Daniel victory will mean that the GOP will switch its emphasis to the Senate race which Daniel has promised to leave open.

Informed Republicans predicted Hutcheson would withdraw from the governor's race and enter the Senate contest as an independent, if he is nominated for governor.

His successor in the race for governor would be named by the Republican executive committee, a group that would at the same time give full endorsement to Hutcheson.

Token Race Seen

Token opposition, at the most, will be offered Daniel who joined Gov. Allan Shivers in 1952 in backing the Republican candidacy of Dwight D. Eisenhower. Daniel has said that, barring unexpected developments, he will support Adlai Stevenson this November as the Democratic nominee.

He spurned Stevenson four years ago because Stevenson refused to back Texas' claim to the tidelands.

Porter has said Hutcheson would be a "fine candidate" for either the U.S. Senate or governor.

Hutcheson said Monday if it makes any race it will be an all-out attempt to win.

Sharp Cleavage Expected

He said in a race for governor it would be easier to develop the sharp cleavage of campaign issues against "a liberal Democratic candidate" than it would be against Daniel, a "conservative candidate."

"I am not and would not make a token race," he said, adding that if a race he was in developed into a token race, he would withdraw.

Hutcheson expressed confidence President Eisenhower will be re-elected in November and said, "I see no reason why he can't carry Texas."

However, he frankly admitted the job will call for "a great deal of hard work." But no harder, he added, than in 1952 when a majority of Texas Democrats voted with the GOP.

Nasser Rejects Plan For Control Of Suez Canal

Ike Returns To Capital

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent
P/BLE BEACH, Calif. (UP) — President Eisenhower took off at 9:30 a.m. today on his return trip to Washington sheding a five-day Monterey peninsula golfing vacation.

Accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower, the President stepped aboard the U.S. Air Force plane, Columbine III, after a slow ride from his lodge at the Cypress Point club to the Monterey naval air station 10 miles away.

Although it was early in the morning and there was a heavy fog, the streets were lined with spectators along the procession route.

It was generally believed the President and Mrs. Eisenhower would remain at this golfer's paradise through Wednesday. But sources close to the presidential family revealed two basic reasons for the early departure.

They were: 1. It was foggy and overcast along the Monterey Peninsula Monday, leaving Mrs. Eisenhower somewhat less than enthusiastic about staying longer; and 2. Mr. Eisenhower is anxious to huddle with GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall on plans to open his campaign for re-election Sept. 15.

At a press briefing Monday, Hagerty said the President's campaign plans would be announced "soon" after his return to the White House. This was taken to mean sometime next week because the President plans to drive to his Gettysburg farm on Friday for the weekend.

Upon his return to Washington, Hagerty said, Mr. Eisenhower plans to have an early huddle with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, probably Wednesday. Dulles has just returned from the London conference on the Suez Canal crisis.

Lightning Last Night Starts Fires

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Lightning struck in eight places Monday night in the Dosier, Samnorwood and McLean areas, setting eight fires. It was reported here, about 40 inch of rain was received from the storm.

One fire completely destroyed a hay barn, corral and 1100 bales of hay on the Cortez Barnett ranch at Dosier. Barnett stated he saw the lightning strike two miles north of his house.

Lightning struck on the Green ranch, setting three fires.

The biggest blaze was reported on the Hugh Grogan ranch, about a half mile from the Grogan home, and another fire was started on the west section of Grogan Ranch. Grogan and his son-in-law, James Martindale, who were spraying crops at the time, began to fight the blaze with wet sacks when a small shower put it out.

Grogan and Martindale stated they could see all eight fires from the Grogan ranch.

The Shamrock Fire Department, kept busy from 8:30 to 10 p.m., fought two blazes on the Dee Coleman ranch, southwest of McLean, after the McLean department reported it was tied up with the other fires.

Rain put out a blaze on the W. M. Davis place at Lone Mound after lightning struck in a pasture, it was reported.

'Saucer' Seen Over Morocco

TETUAN, Morocco (UP)—Hundreds of Moroccans reported an unidentified flying object which emitted a green light mingled with red flashes when it whizzed along the Moroccan coast Monday night.

"Flying saucers" have been reported swooping over the Bay of Tangiers for the past week. The Moroccan press attributed the reports to a "flying saucer psychosis."

The President planned no news conference for Wednesday, his usual day for meeting reporters, but Hagerty kept the door open for a conference later in the week.

Cyprus Truce Expires

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UP) — A 10-day unofficial truce between the British government and the anti-British EOKA underground expired at midnight, leaving this Mediterranean island in a new atmosphere of apprehension.

But there were no immediate reports of violence which authorities feared would erupt as soon as the EOKA lifted its ban against extremist activity.

Shortly after the deadline passed the government rushed five of the EOKA's toughest men to London under heavy guard for further questioning concerning captured documents indicating that extremist bands may have taken direct orders from Archbishop Makarios, now in exile in the Seychelle Islands.

British security forces Monday night raided the home of Nicosia Mayor Themistocles Dervis, and the municipal building, apparently in an attempt to gain more information on underground activities.

It was the first indication that Dervis, a prominent member of the island's Ethnarche Council and holder of the Order of the British Empire, might be suspected of being connected with anti-British violence.

Informed sources in London said Prime Minister Anthony Eden will delay a decision on filing criminal charges against Archbishop Makarios for two weeks. They said it would take that long to finish translating captured documents believed to identify the pro-Greek archbishop as the real leader behind the EOKA.

No Changes In Gray Vote Canvass

No vote totals were changed in Gray County as a result of today's canvass of the votes, J. E. Thompson, Gray County chairman said.

The votes were canvassed in County Democratic Secretary Bob Baker's office at 10 a.m. this morning and no discrepancies were found, he said.

Thompson mailed the official returns of the Democratic runoff election to the Chairman of the State Democratic Committee in Austin this morning.

As soon as the official returns are received from all of the 234 counties in Texas the Democratic headquarters in Austin will announce the official returns of the election.

Aviation Meet Set In Borger

On Friday, a group from the aviation committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce will meet in Borger for lunch with the aviation committee of the Borger Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of discussing mutual interests of the two towns relative to the establishment of airline service from the Pampa-Borger area to Dallas and Fort Worth.

A survey is now underway in Pampa to determine the potential of airline traffic that might be expected from such an undertaking.

Wedgeforth said that it is likely that a similar survey will be conducted in Borger following the meeting of the two groups.

Leon Pain, chairman of the aviation committee, expects the following to attend: C. R. Hoover, Frank Culbertson, Q. K. Gaylor, Ed Myatt (president of the Chamber of Commerce) and E. O. Wedgeworth (Chamber manager).

Agrees To Receive Committee In Cairo

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP)—Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser today rejected the Dulles plan for placing the Suez Canal under international control but agreed to talk things over with a five-nation Suez committee.

Nasser's reply came in a note to Australian Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies, chairman of the five-nation commission. It was delivered by Egyptian Ambassador Sami Aboul Fetouh.

Official sources said Nasser agreed to receive the committee in Cairo but made it clear he rejected the Dulles plan as a basis for settlement and that his willingness to talk did not commit him on a plan of action. He rejected suggestions the talks be held in neutral Geneva or Rome.

Might Start This Week
Egyptian sources indicated the talks might begin in Cairo late this week.

Nasser believed the plan for placing the canal under international control was "fundamentally unacceptable" and could never be used as a basis for negotiations, Egyptian sources said.

Cairo reports said he had agreed to listen to a full explanation of the Dulles plan but at the same time reaffirmed Egyptian sovereignty over the canal that he nationalized on July 26 and Egyptian determination to run it.

There were growing indications Egypt was running into difficulty now in keeping the flow of shipping up to par on the waterway that is the lifeline of Western Europe. Ships reported delays up to 24 hours.

Pilots May Leave
The administrative council of the Suez Canal Co. met in Paris to discuss the possible withdrawal of non-Egyptian canal pilots from Egypt. Such a move would cause a complete disruption of canal traffic.

The company prepared for this action Sunday when it said it could no longer be responsible for the safety of its non-Egyptian employees still in the canal zone. It was this statement that was believed to have delayed Nasser's reply.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Ruslan Abdullgan landed in Karachi, Pakistan, today from Cairo talks with Nasser and told newsmen the Egyptian leader was in a "conciliatory frame of mind" and that he was optimistic for success of the Nasser-committee talks.

U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles called his first news conference in Washington since his return from the London talks on the Suez crisis. Earlier, U.S. Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen said he doubted war would develop.

Police sources reported Monday night that two witnesses have "spilled their insides" to the special federal grand jury investigating the attack. Other "new" witnesses were scheduled for secret testimony today.

The grand jury disclosures were made as dozens of FBI agents and police detectives equipped with walkie-talkies searched a narrow sector of the lower East Side Monday for a mystery woman "closely associated" with one of the suspects already in custody.

Bond Rating Trip Is Okayed By City

Mayor Lynn Boyd and City Secretary Ed Vicars will leave this afternoon for New York where they will meet with representatives of Moody's Investor's Service, Standard and Poor, and Dun and Bradstreet.

The first meeting scheduled with the representatives of these firms is at 2 p.m. Thursday. The purpose of the meetings is to acquaint the firms with Pampa's growth and advancement so that the city's rating for bonding purposes will remain at an "A" rating or be classified at a higher rating.

The trip by the two city officials was approved at the meeting of the City Commission this morning and City Manager Fred Brook reported that the men making the trip would take all available information about the city.

The city has recently received several copies of a new prospectus on the city of Pampa which has

Four Killed As Airplane Crashes

SANFORD, Fla. (UP)—Four persons, including a 3-year-old girl, were killed Monday when a Navy attack bomber trying to make a crash landing smashed into two houses and exploded.

Three of the victims were the crewmen of the twin-engine "Savage" bomber. The other was Marilyn Sue Lowe, who was watching from her front porch when the plane roared in trailing smoke.

The pilot apparently tried to turn and avoid the houses, but hit a tree and veered into them. One house was destroyed and the other was badly burned by gasoline spewed over a wide area.

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Lowe, and their other child, 4-year old David, suffered second-degree burns and severe shock. They were found on the lawn of their burning residence, apparently blown there by the force of the blast.

The Navy dead were identified as Lt. Cmdr. O. D. Hall, 34, survived by his parents in Kansas City, Mo., and his wife in Sanford; Lt. (jg) G. M. O'Hara, 28, New York City, survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. O'Hara, Somerville, Mass., and Aviation Technician 1st Class W. V. Swigonski, 35, survived by his parents in Reynoldsville, Pa., and his wife and three children in Sanford.

What's New Around Nation's Capitol

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — What's new in Washington:

None of the wheels are around. He is off golfing. The Democratic whip, Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, is back home fishing and politics. Adlai Stevenson, who doesn't live here but wants to, is at Libertyville, Ill., gassing up for a village-by-city campaign to find the straightest trail to the nation's capital.

A hawker here was advertising old campaign buttons for sale. He had a few rare ones, like one with a "sniff-er" and "All London" in the middle. Also some Willie buttons. Business was not so good.

On the brighter side, the Navy announced that last year sailors were pretty hungry. Not counting Navy beans or sailors consumed over 70,000 tons of potatoes last year. That cost us tax payers over $4 million, but it probably was worth it. An unfed Navy is no Navy at all.

Rep. Iser L. Burkick, the Republican from North Dakota, told his fans in a newsletter that he hears that the ruse over the Suez Canal, "seized by Nasser" might run us into war. And the gentleman from North Dakota adds, "It will not unless we run to the defense of England like we did in World War I and World War II." The United States chamber of commerce says that Americans this month got a $20 million political education. That's what it cost the advertisers, says the C. of C. for radio and TV.

The National Geographic News Bulletin reports that Nags Head, N. C., is giving up a ghost by letting its century old lifeboat station give way to a radar post. The lore of Nags Head is legend. For instance, nobody ever found the answer to the question: What ever became of Theodosia Burr Alston, the perky daughter of Aaron Burr? Theodosia, wife of the governor of South Carolina, sailed out of Georgetown, S.C., in 1812 to visit her daddy in New York. Down went the ship and none aboard ever was heard from.

Back here, the Policeman's Association News is proud of a poem, author unknown, in which it pleads for more members. The poem: "The horse can't pull while kicking." "This fact I merely mention." "And he can't kick while pulling." "Which is my chief contention." "Let's imitate the good old horse." "And lead a life that's fitting." "Just pull an honest load and then." "There'll be no time for kicking."

The Texas and Pacific Railroad house organ called "Topics" has

Maureen O'Sullivan Tells About Her Work And Family

EDITOR'S NOTE: Aline Mosby is on vacation. Today's guest reveals how she can work as an actress and bring up seven children, too.

By MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN
HOLLYWOOD UP — The question I am asked most frequently is how I am able to successfully combine my married life — which includes bringing up seven youngsters — with a continuing career as an actress.

This does not take a superhuman effort or an exceptional personality. It takes just a great deal of good common sense and an adult viewpoint shared by both husband and wife.

It first is necessary to have a husband who does not consider it a blow to his pride that his wife has interests aside from her home life. Second, it is important that the career of the wife doesn't overshadow the husband's career. When this happens, watch out, the marital walls can tumble down very easily.

I most certainly do not recommend a career for a woman who has very small children. I abandoned my career for some years until I was certain my youngsters had matured enough.

Movie and TV work takes you away from your home for days at a time. For instance, I'm now working on location at Lone Pine, Calif., in a picture for Columbia, "The Captives." I would have turned down the part of a few years ago. The children were much too young.

I frankly admit that a career woman who spends eight hours a day away from home throughout the year has many more difficulties in keeping a proper balance. In my case, comparatively little time is taken from my role as Mrs. John Farrow. An occasional TV short or a movie role during a year is sufficient for me. I was an actress before I married and work before the cameras will always have a fascination for me.

Fortunately my husband understands this as he is a director and works with actors.

Last, but not least, it's essential that the actual business of running a home is not impaired when I leave for a film or TV role. I worked out a well-organized system which is put into high gear when I go off to the sound stages. This takes a great deal of effort. The butcher, the baker and the host of other people I deal with in order to run a well-organized home are dealt with well in advance. I keep my accounts in order. Thus my household does not suffer.

A woman who runs a household badly because of a career may pay a big price for her ambitions.

Pampa Makes Chess History In Tourney

Pampa made chess history during the Panhandle Open Chess Tournament, held here last Saturday and Sunday. It was the first time in the history of the United States Chess Federation that the Federation gave silver, bronze and gold medals to the different division winners. The tournament was divided into three classes: A, B, and C.

First place in the tournament was won by Robert Wright of Midland, who took home the revolving Amarillo News - Globe trophy which he will keep one year.

Wright won four and one-half games out of five, advancing his rating from 1891 to 1979, and capturing thirteen and one-half points. Dale Ruth of Midwest City, Okla. placed second with four and one-half wins and 13 points.

The Panhandle Amateur Championship, restricted to residents of the Panhandle and South Plains as far south as Lubbock, was won by Dr. E. S. Underwood of Lubbock. A trophy, donated by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce was given to Dr. Underwood. He also placed third in the over-all tournament.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret, of Amarillo; his mother, Mrs. N. R. Tisdal Sr. of Alhambra, Calif.; two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Giles of Alhambra, Calif., and Mrs. Josephine Bartholdia of Januel, Calif.; a half-sister, Mrs. James W. Worsham of Long Beach, Calif.; and one brother, Stuard R. Tisdal of Shamrock.

Winning first place in the class "B" division was Jerry Milburn of Lubbock. Second place was won by Gordon Springbett of Hutchinson, Kans. First and second places in class "C" were won by B. Hilburn of Plainview, and J. Showen of Midland. The highest ranking Pampa players were Ed Young and W. G. Waggoner.

Winner of the Junior Division trophy, donated by the Pampa Optimist Club, was Thomas Heidt of Albuquerque, N.M. He competed against eleven other junior chess players.

A total of fifty-four chess players from four states turned out for the fourth annual Panhandle Open. Three trophies, seven medals, and fourteen book prizes were awarded. George Koltanowski, international chess master, directed the event. The Panhandle Open is scheduled to be held in Plainview next year.

Plans will be made for the events of the coming fall roundup of new boys and for the district camporee.

Expected to attend are Bill Craig, chairman of organization and extension; W. A. Morgan, chairman of advancement; Dr. Harold Meador, finance chairman; Sheriff Rufe Jordan, health and safety chairman; C. C. TO CATCH A THIEF—making it easier to tag cars and harder for bandits to make off with autos is a tell-tale license plate device, invented by a Frankfurt, Germany, driver. The metal device locks over the auto tag and is not easily removed without the key. To pry it off, a would-be thief would need sufficient tools and would attract the attention of passersby if he attempted it. To drive the auto away with the device covering the license plate would be a sure signal to police and other motorists that the vehicle was stolen.

BIG HOMES AND LITTLE HOMES, all beautifully furnished and built for livability and comfort. Wandering around, poking into closets and having a wonderful time is the way Dorothy Sinise and I spent two hours Sunday afternoon at the Parade of Homes in Amarillo. I can't think of a better form of entertainment.

SINCE I didn't have a notebook along to take notes, all I can come up with are some general impressions, but it might give you an idea of some of the latest trends in home design and furnishings. Of course, if Dorothy and I had our drawers, we'd probably combine a few features, here and there, of each of the homes we visited. That's the way of women, I guess—never satisfied with things exactly as they are.

Several of the homes were of Early American design, furnished with the quaint furniture of that period. One parlor wall was adorned with a lovely lavabo, which has gained so much popularity in the last few years. Another had an antique china pitcher made into a lamp, and one was filled with charming antique figurines. One twin-lamp set we saw had featured Early American watchmen-type figurines as bases—very distinctive and unusual.

The "parade" was split into two sections—one with larger and more expensive homes and one with the smaller type. Most of the larger, featured built-in ovens, freezers—and, what I haven't seen before, built-in outlets for blenders, mixers and knife sharpeners. Almost all had family rooms and patios.

My fancy was caught by the great amount of brick as inside decor. The parlors would have ordinary-sized fireplaces with that whole wall made of brick. Extra storage space was provided in some by planter-room dividers with built-in shelves. Much of the thing and thing was caused by the sunken bathtub-shower in one home—and I do mean sunken. It had about three steps leading down to it. It especially caught my fancy, but Dorothy figured it would be impossible for bathing children, unless you especially enjoy lying on your stomach for that task.

The washer-dryer arrangements were varied. One home has a special utility room, also containing the food freezer. Several had the washers and dryers in the bathroom, with sliding doors to shut them off when not in use. And still others had them set in the kitchen. Dorothy was especially intrigued by the butterflies! Nearly every house had them in some form, either pressed in glass, in the decor or as a bathroom motif. Violins were much in evidence also, either in picture-form, wall-hanging form or as planters.

Other general features were very definite "parlors," used exclusively for formal entertaining, with the family rooms for the more casual living. Separate dining rooms look like they are making a come-back.

The furniture in the more formal rooms featured the tweedy-type coverings and cafe-curtains were in evidence in almost all the more informal rooms—family rooms, living and bedrooms. The boys' rooms were very masculine, and the girls' rooms very feminine. Most prominent colors were beige, greens and yellows, although several were decorated in pastel pinks and blues.

My favorite was the split-level home. There were three steps down to the living room and three up to the informal—entertaining room which was practically an extension of the kitchen. There were about five or six steps up to the three bedrooms and about the same amount down to an enormous family room, with its own bath. Off the family room and about two steps down was a large gameroom, complete with piano and ping-pong table.

In conclusion, probably the nicest feature of most of the houses was the large closets and ample storage space. No housewife could want more.

WHAT ABOUT OUR SCHOOL CHILDREN

J. H. Grenshaw, M. D., of St. Louis, Mo., made this statement: "Seventy-five per cent of the school children of St. Louis are afflicted with some form of spinal curvatures of spinal defect, and this is the cause of many grave and dangerous diseases later in life."

You are responsible for your child's present as well as future health. It is up to you to see that all is done that can be done to insure that. True, the child should have periodical examinations of eyes, ears, nose, throat and teeth. However, the cause of many of the troubles found in these tissues can be traced to the spine.

To be sure that your child's health program is complete, before school starts have a chiropractic physical examination made. Spinal defects can easily be corrected during their growing years.

Take Heed Of Clothing Tag Information When Shopping For Child's Schoolwear

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

The shocking discovery most homemakers are making this month is how much the children have grown since last year. Shopping lists for the children's back-to-school clothes lengthen as the little dears add inches and pounds.

And the woman who regards such shopping as a tedious expedition to be hurried through as rapidly as she can snatch up the needed garments is courting trouble.

In the long run, shopping as painstakingly for the children's clothing as she does for her own new fall ensemble pays off in greater satisfaction for everyone.

I've been examining my own shopping methods and reading up on various studies which will influence my approach this year.

Should the young grammar school students have a vote on what they'll be wearing? Definitely, say child development experts. As most mothers will agree, children develop preferences in clothes at an early age. Encouraging them to help make selections is a part of their growing up. Mama may know best but, within reasonable limits, it's advisable to go along with the youngster's strong preferences. (I also remind myself how hard it is to get a youngster to wear something she really dislikes.)

Whenever possible, the shopping foray goes more smoothly if you can take only one child at a time. Preliminary scouting by telephone or in person and a close watch on newspaper ads will help you decide when to schedule each trip.

It's time consuming and frustrating to be told by the saleswoman that the shipment of jackets in Junior's size isn't expected until next week.

Consider the use to which the garment will be put and the upkeep and care which will be required as well as the initial cost. With a bewildering array of fabrics in natural and man-made fibers, special-purpose fibers and finishes, it behooves us all to read any garment tags with concentration.

If, for example, the children will be walking or bicycling from school in the early winter dusk or if Junior has a newspaper route, you may have more than passing interest in the children's clothes woven with reflective yarn added to other fibers.

These yarns look the same as other fibers by daylight, but during dusk or dark they reflect mo-

Marriage Vows Exchanged In Canyon By Alice Wilkinson, Ted Falconer Jr.

SIAMROCK — (Special) — Marriage vows were exchanged in the Joseph A. Hill Chapel in Canyon Aug. 19, by Miss Alice Wilkinson of Shamrock and Ted W. Falconer Jr. of Austin. Rev. Sonny Shackelford, ministerial student at West Texas State College, Canyon, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Wilkinson of Shamrock, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted W. Falconer of Coos Bay, Ore.

The chapel was decorated with tall baskets of white gladioli and candelabra. Miss Shirley Peggram of Qall played a prelude of nuptial music and accompanied Grady Davis, who sang "Always" by Berlin, "Because" by Hardelot and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, William Guy Wilkinson, wore a white lace gown and lace gloves. Her finger-tip veil of illusion fell from a close-fitting pearl cap, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations over a white Bible. She carried out the tradition of "something old, new, borrowed and blue" and placed a penny in her shoe. Her "something old" was a handkerchief belonging to her grandmother.

Maid of honor was Miss Mary Frances Norman of Wichita Falls, and Miss Bobby Willis of Lubbock was bridesmaid. Both wore identical floor-length gowns of pink tulle with corsages of white carnations. Their headpieces were bandeaux accented with short illusion veils.

Bob Stemmer of Wheeler served as best man, and ushers were Gene Peggram of Quair and James McCoy of Canyon.

The reception following the ceremony was held in the lounge of Randall Hall. Miss Clara Nell Brown provided background music, and guests were registered by Miss Irene Ritchey.

The serving table was covered with a white lace cloth, centered with an arrangement of the bridesmaids' bouquets. Flanking the centerpiece were tall pink tapers. The heart-shaped, four-tiered wedding cake, decorated with pink rosebuds, white bells and lovebirds, was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Miss Lola Partain of Amarillo served the cake, and Miss Joyce Bewbren presided at the punch bowl.

Upon returning from a wedding trip to Austin, Corpus Christi and Monterrey, Mexico, the couple will reside in Austin where the bride will resume study for his master's degree.

The bride was graduated from Shamrock High School and West Texas State College, Canyon. She was a member of Phi Gamma Nu, Buffalo Gals, Alpha Chi, Future Teachers of America and the YWA.

The bridegroom was graduated from Marshfield High School of Coos Bay, Ore., and, with honors, from the University of Texas in Austin. He has served four years with the Navy.

Household Hints Put In Print By Johnny Carson

EDITOR'S NOTE: Aline Mosby is on vacation. Today's television column by comedian Johnny Carson might cause chaos if put on the women's page of this newspaper.

By JOHNNY CARSON
Written for the United Press ELLYWOOD (UP) — The remarkable success of the recent household hints feature on the television show I commit to CBS each weekday prompts me to immortalize in printed form some of the advice we have given.

I fear that unless they appear in printed form many of those domestic gems will be forgotten. Here, therefore, is a list of household shortcuts, fresh from "The Johnny Carson Show," wrapped in newspaper to preserve their rich, nutlike flavor.

Joe College Works For A Living

By KENNETH GILMORE
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The old man may boast loudly about how he worked his way through college, but he has nothing on today's crop of students.

From wealthy gray flannel boys to sweat shirt types to farm girls, American college kids display plenty of elbow grease on the campus. Thousands of them returning to classrooms this fall will be tackling a variety of jobs while they hit the books.

Over 60 per cent of students at public and private institutions of higher education earn on the average of $413 during the school year. This estimate is based on a recently completed U.S. Office of Education survey reported exclusively by NEA Service.

The figures were compiled by Dr. Ernest V. Hollis, Director of back yard, these decorative and picturesque nomads can be attracted by spraying the premises liberally with money.

8. To prevent bears from nesting in your basement, put a few caribou in it. It's well known that bears and caribou do not share the same basements.

9. If your child refuses to practice his penmanship, have a fresh concrete driveway put in and give the kid a twig. He'll get plenty of practice.

College and University Administration at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

For over a year he has been collecting data based on the budgets of 15,000 typical students at 140 colleges and universities in 40 states and the District of Columbia.

"The college student today is no slouch," says Hollis. "Just like his dad, he's willing to slug it out to stay in school."

"The jobs men and women in college undertake range from baby-sitting to bartending. They offer their services as maids, models and make-up artists."

As they have done for years in the past, students will sell sandwiches and run laundry concessions. Many will be paid directly by colleges to wash dishes, wait on tables, make beds, clean buildings and assist staff members in laboratories and offices.

Significantly, the study by Hollis shows that one-fifth of those students whose families have incomes of $25,000 or above take on jobs. They receive, on the average, $325.

On the other hand, two-thirds of the students from low income families report they have jobs which pay about $400.

Dr. Hollis points out, however, that the students from the wealthy family generally spend his money for luxury items such as a secondhand car or a hi-fi set. The poorer student must put his earnings towards room, board, books and tuition fees.

The study further indicates that two-thirds of the men at college have some kind of job and earn on the average of $488. Just over half the women reported they work, and their average pay for the school year comes to $285.

Citing one example, Dr. Hollis says that 90 per cent of the students at Stanford University in California have part-time jobs. As a result of this work, four per cent of them make enough to cover 70 to 100 per cent of their college expenses. Eleven per cent are able to earn 30 to 70 per cent of their costs.

Officials at the University of Maryland near here estimate that well over half the student body will be working during the school term.

"We know that 20 per cent of them are working on the campus," says Geary Eppley, Dean of Men. "Many more than that will be taking on off-campus jobs."

Southwestern Public Service Employees Set Safety Record

Employees of the Southwestern Public Service Company have established a new all-company safety record of working 3,020,404 man-hours without a lost-time accident.

The new record, exceeding the old company standard of 3,019,075 man-hours, set in 1954, was reached at the end of the working day last Friday. However, a check of working time of all employees was necessary to verify the new accomplishment, and that check has just been completed.

"We are proud of the fact that we have set this new record, and that we are still adding to it. But records, in themselves, are merely the statistics that measure the accomplishments of individuals. The important fact about safety is that our employees are enthusiastic about it, interested in it, and have made it an integral part of their work. Everyone gains from safe working habits, our customers, our employees, and their families," Mr. Watson said in announcing the safety accomplishment.

Southwestern Public Service Company employees have not had a disabling injury this year, the current accident-free period getting underway on November 3 of last year. Presently the company boasts the top safety record in the Southwest Personnel Exchange Group, made up of 14 electric light and power companies in the southwestern states.

The new safety record, and it continues unbroken and grows with the passing of every hour, is, in addition to being the company's best performance, the third longest accident-free period ever recorded by any electric light and power company.

There are eight safety groups within the company, made up of the five divisions, headquartered at Amarillo, Guymon, Plainview, Roswell, and Lubbock; the operating department, which includes all of the company's generating stations; the system construction department, which is responsible for transmission line and substation construction; and the employees of the general office in Amarillo.

Each of these safety groups is recognized for its individual safety accomplishments by the National Safety Council and the Edison Electric Institute, as well as the entire company group. However, an accident in any one of these units immediately brings a halt to the entire company record, while the other individual groups continue on with their accomplishments.

For example, two divisions, the Panhandle, headquartered in Amarillo, and the Pecos Valley, with Roswell for its headquarters, each completed a million man-hours without a disabling injury last week. It was the second time that the Panhandle group had reached the million mark.

Presently enjoying the longest individual unit standing within the company record is the Plains division, headquartered at Plainview, which has gone accident-free since January 16, 1953, and has recorded 1,568,994 hours without a lost-time accident.

Other individual records are: southern division, which has accumulated 512,856 hours since August 9, 1955; Oklahoma Division which has been without an accident since March 11, 1955, and has chalked up 389,828 accident-free hours; Operating Department, accident-free since November 2, 1955, and now up to 490,102 man-hours; system construction, which hasn't had a lost-time accident since April 7, 1955, giving them a total of 155,756 man-hours; and the general office employees who had their last disabling injury on April 27, 1955, and have accumulated 634,327 accident-free hours since that time.

As can be seen from the various lengths of time involved, the size of the safety unit is an important consideration in the amount of time necessary to accumulate large numbers of accident-free hours. A 300 employee group, for example, will work 1,000,000 man-hours in approximately one-tenth of that time that it will take a 30-man unit.

The fact that the smaller the group, the more difficult the accomplishment is an important consideration in Southwestern Public Service Company's effort to become the leader of the entire electric industry. Both of the companies which presently top Southwestern's record are considerably larger in employee numbers.

"This is a great safety team, ever-conscious of the fact that when you are free of accidents you are free of heartbreak and suffering, and morale and work-interest are high. Each of us is determined to set new standards, not for the mere purpose of accomplishing records, but for the satisfaction of knowing that the job done safely is the job done well," Mr. Watson concluded.

We believe that one truth is always consistent with another truth. We endeavor to be consistent with truths expressed in such great guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

The Bond Bubble

We have been reminded by the United States Treasury Department that 1956 is a banner year, so far as the department is concerned.

The reasoning, in their prepared propaganda, goes like this: "Fifteen years ago, in 1941, the U. S. Treasury tentatively began a program to raise money for national defense and as a brake against inflation by borrowing from as many persons as possible."

We don't know how the idea behind the sale of government bonds could be more succinctly stated. The word "borrowing" sums it up.

And we believe it is timely for us to remind ourselves that when we purchase government bonds we are doing an unconscionable thing. We are, without question, adding to the debt of the federal government. And with the debt we now have, how anyone would want to add to it, is beyond comprehension.

Right now, according to Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, more than 40 million Americans own with more than $40 billion in series E and H bonds.

Unfortunately for them, and for us all. For this money has been advanced to the government for safety and increase. But in point of fact, the money is spent as fast as it is received and the only possible increase comes only from additional borrowings and from an ever mounting tax burden. Little do the lenders dream that if and when they want their money back, that they themselves will have to provide it, plus the interest. Yet, that is precisely the case.

Some years back, an interesting character named Ponzi, hove into sight on the national scene. Ponzi had a get-rich-quick idea. It was simply this: He would collect, let us say, $100 from someone anxious to make a profit. He would promise to pay back that $100 plus an additional sum of money within a period of six months.

And he kept his promise! His scheme was successful after word got around that he actually would do as he said. People flocked to him with money. They didn't quite realize that he was paying the first lenders out of money he collected from later lenders. Yet, that is precisely what he was doing.

The Mississippi bubble, engineered by John Law in France and England, followed the same pattern. Early investors made plenty. Those who joined the scheme after the cream had been skimmed, lost their shirts.

The parallel is exact. The Treasury Department's program of promoting bond sales is another bubble being expanded with the hot water of hope for profits and the soft soap of political expediency. The day will come when this bubble, like any other, will burst.

Mr. Ponzi, as an outstandingly successful confidence man, got his come-uppance. He was shipped off to jail when it was learned just how he operated.

But who is there around who can ship the Treasury Department off to jail? The bond sale program of the Treasury is nothing in the world but the old con-game with the government doing the conning. Early purchasers of bonds are being paid off by money received from later purchasers.

And wherever the device fails, the taxing department of the Collector of Internal Revenue can be brought into the picture so that no one ever discovers just how fabulously foolish is the bond sale program.

The sale of bonds to the public is not a brake against inflation, it is the very act of inflation. From a business standpoint it is totally unsound. From an economic standpoint it is building up to the point where it can end as a national disaster.

The Social Security program of the government is engineered in the same manner and will, by itself, have the same results.

Our only worry is the apparent fact that thousands of Americans are being gulled out of their savings by this continuing process. They are apt to wake up too late with their savings gone and no remedy left except an enlarged program of aggressive predation against the American wage earner.

A Most Sensible Question

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOLES

Profit Motive
In the last issue I was commenting on a book, "Faith and Fact," by Alfred P. Haake. I was pointing out the errors in a church publication, a pamphlet issued by the Commission of Social Action of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, entitled "The Christian and the Profit Motive." The author is Elmer J. F. Arndt.

Mr. Arndt defines the profit-motive as "the desire for a reward beyond what is truly earned."

Then Mr. Haake comments: "The error of the author is to define the profit-motive incorrectly, and that error grows out of his mistaken conception of what profit is. Profit is not something above and beyond what a person deserves. It is something above and beyond what a person deserves. It is something above and beyond the cost of production, which is a very different thing."

***"Profit is payment for that risk."

"The profit motive is a desire for benefit, and that desire can be gratified by giving each party to an exchange a benefit above what he yields in the exchange. The fact that BOTH parties to an exchange benefit or profit by the exchange demonstrates that there can be profit without extending beyond what is earned or deserved, as Mr. Arndt has mistakenly claimed."

"There is a companion error in the pamphlet in the failure to see that no human impulse need be entirely good or entirely bad. Properly used, the human attributes can be blessings. Improperly used, or carried to extremes, the same attributes can become a curse. Thus, the spirit of acquisitiveness, the stem of an instinct, as I shall show a little later, is necessary to life itself. But, carried to extremes, it becomes the spirit of greed. Desire to benefit is necessary to life itself but it can be carried to the point of covetousness. And covetousness does not owe its origin or function to the profit and loss system, or to what Mr. Arndt calls mistakenly 'the profit system.' It can and will enter into ANY system with the human beings who operate within that system."

"To illustrate: the profit-motive is like unto the motor of an automobile. It will take you to church. The same motor will take you to a gambling den. The motor does not choose where the car is to go. It only furnishes power. It is the steering wheel that directs the course of the car. So, the profit-motive furnishes the power in economic life. Just as the motor in the automobile is guided in its direction by the steering wheel, so the profit-motive drives in the direction determined by the personal ethics or religion of the human being who is being propelled. What Mr. Arndt should examine is not the profit-motive which powers our economic system, but the philosophy of life or the religion of the people he believes guilty of taking bread out of the mouths of others, or of so misleading people as to lower the prospects of having bread at all."

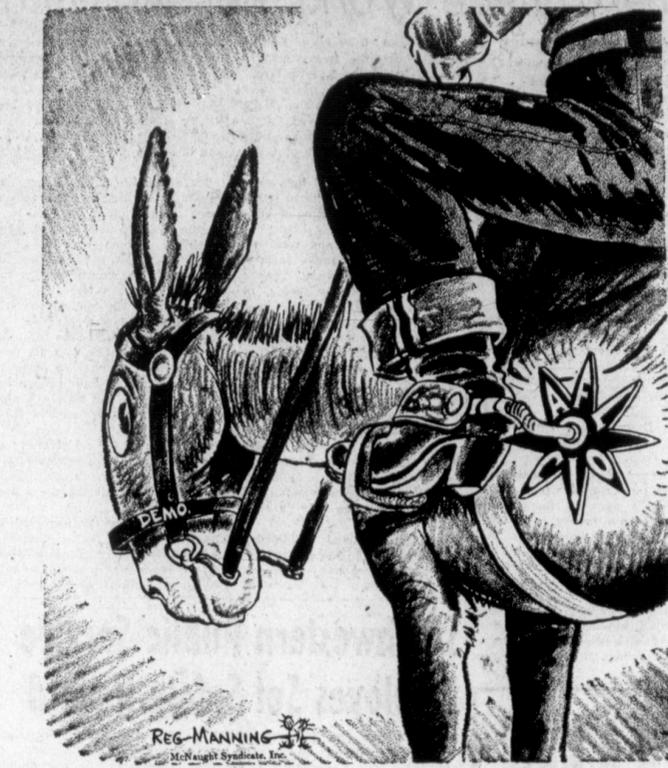

"If the profit-motive is contrary to Christian ethics and cannot be Christianized, then Jesus was guilty of violating His own teachings. The parable of the talents then loses its manifest and fullest significance. Jesus himself proclaimed that a man was foolish to give up his soul in exchange for the world, because there was no benefit or profit for the man in such an exchange. He even recommended casting into outer darkness the 'unprofitable servant,' who failed to return to his master something over and above what the master had entrusted to him."

"I do not propose the profit-motive. I accept the profit-motive as given by God and implanted in the very vitals of the creature man. In the very nature of things the profit-motive is basic to life itself. Implanted at the very core of man, it is the basic urge to life, the instinct of self-preservation, expressed economically as the spirit of acquisition, the desire for benefit, or the profit-motive. It is this same profit-motive that is refined and made even more effective when Jesus orients it with the law of mutuality of interest as expressed in the Golden Rule.

"We know that struggle is the essence of existence. So long as there is movement there is life. When movement stops life has fled. But movement can continue only so long as energy is being released. And for life to continue, energy must be renewed in at least as great quantity as it is expended, for life is the continuing expenditure of energy by that which lives. If there is to be protection against unanticipated hazards, or if there is to be growth the intake of energy must be greater than the output. And it is from this surplus or excess of growth and development come. It is only so that a creature designated by God to subdue the earth and gain mastery over other creatures can fulfill his destiny.

"Even the seed that swells with moisture which it absorbs from the ground, and then bursts and sends a tiny shoot above ground while it builds a root below, has more than mere movement for its manifestation of life. It takes on life. It adds to itself or accretes. It grows through the process of accretion. It takes in more than it expends; there is a profit!"

Urge Of Hope And Peace Should Not Be Given Up

By WESTBROOKE PEGLER

Cow Palace, San Francisco — The Old Man appealed to the Republican Convention and to the people far beyond the Cow Palace not to give up hope of peace and honor under the Republic.

The one American who really deserves the title of Elder Statesman came along the aisle of the flying bridge on the convention platform, trembling slightly and with a faint smile on his pale, sunken features. His white hair merged into the frog-belly pallor of his face. His step was a little unsteady with his 82 years and Joe Martin, many years younger but himself an old politician, tactfully touched his elbow to steady Herbert Hoover one step up to the pulpit.

The Democratic Convention, in Chicago, with Harry Truman's raucous and abusive vulgarity and his final cheap repudiation of his own insulting remark to the ultimate nominee, had not the hopes of serious patriots. And the snarling jealousy of a mysterious Republican faction based in New York had further depressed them.

The dissolution of the very blood of the two American political parties by infections of Marx was manifest in ugly blotches on both bodies. And the pundits of journalism and radio were droning, over and over, that the Republicans had nothing to offer but a little more delay in the descent of the once great Republic into socialism.

No American knows more about politics than Herbert Hoover and many who know much less are disgusted and almost despondent. Jimmy Roosevelt, exposed in a monumental scandal of personal nastiness, had been elected with a hoop to represent a California district in Congress. The mother who raised this son and another who is now the fourth husband of his fourth wife, had appeared on the Democratic platform in Chicago to the sound of loud acclamations raised in part by citizens with children of their own. She was saluted there as First Lady of the world. The party bosses, true to an impudent tradition of the Roosevelt-Truman reign, had gone once more to the rostrum to denounce the Republican standard-bearer.

And, in the Republican Party and among its discouraged adherents, the attack on Vice President Nixon by Harold Stassen had been circumstantially exposed as reprisal for Nixon's exposures of communist traitors and their accomplices when he was hounding

BID FOR A SMILE

The clergyman was walking through the village when he met one of his parishioners.
Clergyman — How's your cold, Donald?
Donald — Verra obstinate, Clergyman — And how's your wife?
Donald — about the same.

This was a beautiful hope, a prayer breathed on the falling voice of a patient, dignified old man at a time when President Eisenhower's mysterious partiality to interlopers in the party and to Marxist heresies cribbed from Roosevelt had raised a degree of resentment close to personal hatred. He had embraced the adventurer Paul Hoffman and thus kicked in the teeth all those adherents of Senator Bob Taft who had helped elect Ike in 1952.

In both Chicago and San Francisco headquarters had been set up of angry, bewildered Republicans, including many who have come to hate foreigners and foreign countries without concealment or apology. Former Senator Chapman Revercomb of West Virginia, a good Republican, and Senator Pat McCarran, of Nevada, a great Democrat, both had been vilified, hounded and ridiculed for their "narrow nationalism" by secret forces fiercely loyal to alien interests and no less hostile to the interests of the United States.

So, as Mr. Hoover was now to point out in plain words which gave his thought simplicity and almost originality, "there are some members of both parties who are out of their proper spiritual home."

How long had it been since a leading politician had spoken to Americans without cant or smirk but reverently and sincerely about God, as this humble old man did toward the close of his counsel and his life — "My faith arises from the genius of our people, their devotion of personal liberty and their sustaining religious beliefs. I wish for all the guidance of almighty providence. May God bless you!"

Could that be the ultimate here, too? He did not say. He just reminded them.

The two-party system was "the only method by which change can be made by ballots instead of bullets."

He paid tribute to those men and women of the opposition party who have given their support to the president.

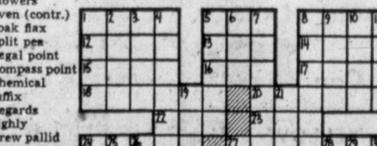

And, by contrast to Truman's slangy disdain for Adlai Stevenson as a candidate who wouldn't fight in the cheap sense of the term, Herbert Hoover exhorted his fellowmen to adopt a new and resounding declaration of principles of American life.

Both Parties Appeal For Minority Votes

WASHINGTON — An appeal for the vote of every possible and influential racial minority in the country is the outstanding characteristic of the two major parties on foreign affairs. Domestic political needs and pressures lie behind their pledges for "freedom" of satellite peoples, larger immigration quotas for Europeans and a continued flow of American money for both developed and underdeveloped countries.

The Democrats promise to press for freedom of Germans, Poles, Balkans and Slavic nationalities under the Kremlin heel. They do not dare to use John Foster Dulles' objectionable word on that subject — namely, "liberation" of the satellites. In fact, opposition orators have some times denounced his 1952 foreign policy plank as "fantastic," unless we are willing to go to war with Russia.

The Democrats urge strengthening of NATO, which were advanced and organized during the Roosevelt — Truman era. They do not show the same interest and concern in Dulles' own SEATO and METO alliances. The Democrats regard them as mere "paper facts," as evidence of the "disintegration" of the so-called democracies.

A proposed plank on the delicate Arab-Israeli issue was watered down by the platform makers at Chicago. It was incorporated in a draft submitted by Ben Cohen, a key figure under F.D.R. and Truman. It urged weapons and security guarantee for Israel to "redress the dangerous imbalance in the Middle East," resulting from Russia's sale of arms to Egypt.

With the Suez Canal crisis boiling before their eyes, the committee turned out a plank for shipment of only "defensive" weapons to Tel Aviv.

From a draft presented by Dean Acheson, Truman's Secretary of State and F.D.R.'s Undersecretary of Treasury and State, the platform framers rejected an attack on Secretary Dulles for his "inexpert" statement that Goa, a tiny enclave in India, should remain in Portuguese hands. They did not want to offend the relatively few voters of Portuguese origin in New England.

Another rejected Cohen proposal was severe criticism of Senator "Joe" McCarthy's far-ranging, denunciation of the Foreign Service. The committee recognized that McCarthy's views are popular in many sections of the country, especially his opposition to trade with or recognition of China.

Even voters of Irish descent are courted by the Democrats, although they may not understand or appreciate the meaningless gesture. The plank declares in favor of self-determination on the basis of "geographical and ethnic integrity."

This is the argument advanced by South (Catholic) Ireland for union with North and Protestant Ireland, and reunification is a hot and popular question in some circles. It is also the plea offered by the Poles, Germans, Balts, Balkan and Slavic peoples who have been torn asunder by Russian conquest and absorption.

In fact, it is no exaggeration to suggest that there is more in the two planks for overseas peoples than for the American electorate. As usual, however, both planks on this important problem are recognized by foreign diplomats here as political rather than statesmanlike documents, as political bait rather than an outline of long-range policy. So will both President Eisenhower and Adlai E. Stevenson, who will develop their own and possibly different ideas in the campaign.

Mac Wants To Add Dueling Scar To Countenance

By HENRY McLEMORE

HEIDELBERG — Just why I want to add a Heidelberg dueling scar to my already dismal countenance I do not know, but I do, and I'm determined not to leave this old University city without one.

I have a college days scar — an appendicitis one — the result of an attack in my sophomore year. But thousands of people have a similar scar, and mine can't compare with a Heidelberg one for dash. Besides, a man can't go around pulling up his shirt and showing his stomach.

It's still possible to get a scar in Heidelberg, you know. Student dueling was outlawed many years ago, but it still flourishes among the University's famed fighting fraternities, which had their origin in the Crusader Order of Teutonic Knights.

The fraternities are: Alemannia (light red caps); Franconia (dark red); Vinet (blue); Rhenania (violet); Normania (white). When a fighting student has been sewn up he reports it as a "motor mishap" to the surgeon and authorities.

I discovered all of this, and a lot more, in Gault MacGowan's "Heidelberg Confidential," a pocket guide that sells for less than two Deutsche Marks. MacGowan, an old New York Sun man, and now a Heidelberg resident, sent a reporter on a hush-hush mission to the University and the investigation turned up some revealing facts.

The members of the fraternities live in medieval style taverns, and each has a favorite tavern and coffee house for dancing and singing. The dueling is not taken lightly by the members of the fraternities, and proof of that is the Swordsman's Code, which is rigidly adhered to. Here it is, in part: Weapons: Double-edged, razor-keen swords with long, thin blades and heavy hilts. Not to be confused with fencing foils.

Dress: Bare heads; eyes protected by goggles; necks wound with thick wrappings, body padded against injury from chin to ankle. No masks. Attack is against the skull and face.

They'll Do It Every Time By Jimmy Hatlo

Newsletter From Congressman Walter Rogers

The Secretary of Agriculture is now advertising that he is moving into the second phase of his soil bank program. Many are wondering what happened to the first phase. It reminds you of the story of the fellow who reported that he was now working on getting together his second million dollars. It seems he gave up on the first.

The second phase of the soil bank program, referred to by Benson, is that portion of the program providing for the laying out of land on a long term contract basis. The return from this land is relatively small, and there are requirements that it be planted in grass or trees. Very few farmers will be able to lay out very much land on a long term basis, unless they have an outside income. Strange as it may seem to some of the present day bureaucrats, very few farmers have an outside income. They must depend upon their land for a living. As the matter presently stands, they are barely able to eke out food and clothing in many instances on the acreage they now have available. If they cease to farm a portion of this, it simply means that their income will be proportionately reduced.

It is argued, by the present bureaucrats, that the trouble lies in "surpluses", and that the only way to reduce the surpluses is for the farmers to stop growing some of the products. A more fantastic argument could hardly be imagined. In the first place, the surpluses have no effect whatever on the price that must be paid by the farmer for the processed or manufactured products.

It is true that the surpluses have been used as a sorry excuse for fleecing the farmer. He has been led to believe that this terrible economic "satan", to wit, surpluses, must be done away with; that as soon as this is done, he, the farmer, can live in a land of milk and honey, and butter his bread on both sides. In other words, these heavy thinkers have figured out that, if they do away with the surpluses and reduce production, there will be a scarcity of food and the price of farm products will increase.

This may be true, but the stupidity of this approach lies in the fact that it will not solve the problem, but serve only to increase it. The present difficulty of the farmer has been caused by a measurable reduction in his income. On his present income he cannot buy the manufactured and processed articles that he and his family need to live and carry on farm operations. Therefore, the farmer must have an increase in his present income without an increase in the cost of those things that he must purchase to stay in business.

Under the Benson Plan, there are two glaring defects that seem to have been overlooked by the brainy boys.

In the first place, if a farmer has 100 acres of land under production, puts 25 acres in the soil bank, and is paid such amount of money as would equal the profit he would make off these 25 acres if he had planted them, his income will not be increased one cent. Therefore, he is in no better position, from an income standpoint, before or after the soil bank. The only benefit he receives from the soil bank is that it amounts to a sort of crop insurance on the land placed in the soil bank. He is assured of being paid on that acreage, even though he has a subsequent crop failure during the year.

In the second place, the increasing of the cost of farm products, by the creation of a scarcity in those particular commodities, will not serve to benefit the farmer, but will tend to harm him. Under such a plan, the increase in price going to the farmers will be reflected in the price tied to the end manufactured or processed product, and instead of solving the farm problem, there will be an additional problem of inflation.

The income of the American farmer has been allowed to get out of balance in our economic structure. This imbalance is transmitted to and sorely affects small businesses all over the nation — especially in the rural areas and the areas depending upon agriculture for subsistence.

Many of the economic ills of this country, in several segments of the economy, could be quickly solved by facing up to an doing something about the present farm tragedy.
