

Britain, France May Use Force In The Suez Crisis

Diplomacy, Action Question Arises

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON — UP — Britain and France wavered today between the use of diplomacy or force to solve the Suez Canal crisis.

Britain speeded a precautionary buildup of forces in the Middle East while agreeing with the United States and France to call an international conference on the problem, possibly within ten days.

France continued to hurl angry epithets at Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser but appeared to be coming around to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' viewpoint that force should be used only as a desperate last resort.

Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau were pinning their hopes on success of the international conference to which they were expected to invite both Egypt and Russia. The Big Three foreign ministers hoped to find a solution at their meeting today, in time to issue the formal call for a global conference by tonight. They met till shortly before midnight Wednesday night and advisers worked right through to dawn.

Authoritative sources said the foreign ministers had not yet agreed what course to take if Egypt refuses to attend the proposed conference — and if it ultimately rejects internationalization.

There were strong indications Egypt would refuse to attend a meeting aimed at putting the canal under international control, Nasser, in an angry speech Wednesday night at Alexandria, said Egypt would "fight to the last drop of blood" to hold the Suez.

Moscow radio gave the Russian position. It warned Britain to use "common sense" and leave Egypt alone rather than attempt to undo the nationalization of the Suez Canal.

The American position was still not clear. The United States was reported reluctant to attend such a conference because of its own concern with the Panama Canal. Any move that would permit the United States to stay out would let Russia and possibly Communist Hungary in.

This would involve convoking a meeting of the nations that signed the 1888 Treaty of Constantinople which guaranteed the canal's freedom. Signatory nations included Czarist Russia and the Austro-Hungarian empire, now Austria and Hungary.

Youth Activity Survey Ends

The special youth activities committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, headed by Cliff Whitney, has completed a comprehensive report on youth activities and interests in Pampa Junior High School and Pampa High School.

The survey was conducted by interviews, through questionnaires, and more than 1,000 students answered the questionnaires designed to obtain factual information about the extent of participation in various activities and to determine leisure-time interests of the youth groups.

A report on the survey, the results of which have not been released, will be made to the board of directors of the chamber at a meeting of the group on Aug. 13. Whitney will make the report.

The survey will be made available to any organization in the city after the report by Whitney to the directors.

Whitney was high in his praise for the Continental Carbon Company of Amarillo (which helped obtain paper for the report), Texas Printing Company of Pampa (which printed the report), Pampa Public School system, Celanese, the Ministerial Alliance, Pampa civic groups, and the Wisconsin State Department of Public Welfare (whose similar reports were used as a guide) for their cooperation on the survey.

Spelling Bee The Doom Of Rustler

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.—UP — Poor spelling trapped an accused cattle rustler Wednesday. Edmund Smith, 26, of Arrowsmith, Ill., told to write the names of early American presidents, misspelled the first one, Washington as Watington. Smith admitted stealing three Angus cattle from his employer when informed the same misspelling was found on a sales ticket used to sell the cattle.

Security Bill Is Signed

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower Wednesday signed the Social Security bill liberalizing benefits for nearly six million women, disabled workers and needy persons.

Shortly before signing the bill, Mr. Eisenhower told a news conference some of the bill's provisions are "unwise." He said the Social Security system was being saddled with "something I don't think should be there."

The measure lowers the 65-year retirement age for women to 62 and permits permanently disabled workers to start drawing benefits at the age of 50. The administration opposed both these provisions while the bill was in Congress.

To finance the extra benefits, Social Security payroll taxes for 63 million workers, employers and self-employed persons will be boosted by about $50 million annually starting next Jan. 1.

Mr. Eisenhower also signed a bill setting up new government accounting procedures. He included a statement saying he will ask for further improvements next year.

The Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report hailed the President's signing of the accounting bill as "a long stride toward complete modernization of financial management in the federal government."

Other bills signed by the President authorize: Bringing all servicemen under full Social Security coverage on the same basis as civilians as of Jan. 1.

Flight training in the Army, Navy and Air Force reserve officers' training corps programs. Increased borrowing authority for the Commodity Credit Corp. from $12 to $14.5 billion to support prices of this year's farm crops and finance the first year of the soil bank. Also makes it a criminal offense to steal, sell, or use farm crops under price support loans.

Cutrate Clergy Tickets Giving reduced airline rates or free rides to bona fide ministers of religion as already permitted on railroads and interurban buses.

Acceptance by the Farmers Home Administration of second mortgages to finance farmers who are unable to meet present debts and can't refinance loans through commercial banks. Also authorizes FHA to make loans for the first time to part-time farmers.

Adlai May Get Nod

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UP) — Adlai E. Stevenson's first ballot strength climbed toward the 500 mark today and potentially 500 more early ballot votes could be seen for him among favorite son and uncommitted delegations.

To win the Democratic presidential nomination, Stevenson or the man who beats him must poll at least 686 2/3 votes at the Democratic National Convention.

The withdrawal of Sen. Estes Kefauver Tuesday in favor of Stevenson gave the Stevenson campaign its biggest lift since the California primary.

Gov. Averell Harriman's managers still talked of getting a substantial bloc of the Kefauver votes, but a handwagon swing to Stevenson seemed to be under way. Former Democratic National Chairman Frank McKinney, a Harriman supporter, predicted the New Yorker will poll 450 first ballot votes.

A United Press tabulation of known first ballot preferences showed Stevenson with 485 1/2 votes against 166 1/2 for Harriman.

A still-incomplete survey of the Kefauver delegates shifted at least 20 of the 26 Indiana votes from Kefauver to Stevenson and all 18 of those from Maryland. Kefauver had won both delegations in uncontested primaries.

In Minnesota, where Kefauver defeated Stevenson in a March primary, Harriman picked up 8 1/2 of Kefauver's 26 votes and Stevenson 6 1/2 with the remainder undecided.

Ten and one-half scattered Kefauver votes in other states were transferred to Harriman and 16 1/2 to Stevenson.

More than half of the 28 Kefauver votes from Wisconsin were expected to jump to Stevenson. The Tennessee also won those in an uncontested primary.

The Kefauver withdrawal looked like the move which could throw the nomination to Stevenson if the party does not tear itself apart at Chicago in its quadrennial fight over a civil rights plank in the platform. Much of Stevenson's strength lies in the South, which can still explode over the racial issue in the platform.

The chairmen of the Senate and House GOP congressional campaigns predicted today Vice President Richard M. Nixon "will be renominated by acclamation" at the convention "despite the irresponsible actions of Harold E. Stassen."

The chairmen made their prediction in a joint statement which dealt another strong blow to Stassen's "dump Nixon" drive. It came only a few hours before Stassen formally opened Washington headquarters for his campaign to put Massachusetts Gov. Christian A. Herter rather than Nixon in the No. 2 spot on the GOP presidential ticket.

The chairmen of the Senate and House GOP congressional campaign committees predicted Nixon "will be renominated by acclamation" on the first ballot at the Republican national convention.

Stassen Assailed They said Nixon's renomination will occur "despite the irresponsible actions of Harold E. Stassen."

Steel Strike May End

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP) — Agreement between U.S. Steel and the United Steelworkers union signalled an expected end to the crippling $2 billion steel strike today.

An authoritative source told the United Press Wednesday night that the steel corporation and the Steelworkers have agreed on all contract issues.

U.S. Steel traditionally sets the pattern for the rest of the industry and other companies are expected to fall in line and conclude formal contracts with the USW.

The strike, the third longest in the 20-year history of steel-labor negotiations, has idled 650,000 steel workers for 33 days.

Negotiators for the USW and the 12 leading steel producers have been conducting marathon talks since Wednesday in an effort to put the finishing touches on formal contracts.

Informed sources said there was "an excellent" chance the contracts would be signed today.

A back-to-work order hinged on the signing of formal contracts. The companies have indicated they will sign individual agreements with the union simultaneously or not at all. Only a last minute hitch in talks between the USW and the other companies can delay settlement.

All the economic issues in the draw-out dispute that has cost around $50 million a day were settled last Friday when the union and the industry signed an unprecedented three-year no-strike pact.

However, non-economic issues such as working conditions at individual plants had to be concluded before formal contracts could be signed.

The end of the strike will not mean a general back to work movement immediately. Because of the time required to get the plants back into production, the bulk of the strikers probably will not return to the mills until Monday.

Observers here said the post-Stalin "democratization" of Poland appears to have been stepped up rather than curtailed since Stassen.

No Effect "The events in Poland," Cyrankiewicz said in the interview, "will not have — and are not having — any effect upon the process of democratization of life in Poland which is under way."

"We shall further endeavor above all to develop democracy throughout industry, to increase the rights of workers in management and the influence of the workers in running the establishments," he said.

He said the post-war Oder-Neisse frontier with East Germany, which the Western powers do not recognize as final, "has been fixed once and for all. It is the lasting and immovable frontier between Poland and Germany."

Capitalistic Smoking The bald, heavy-jowled Cyrankiewicz chain-smoked Swiss cigarettes and sipped cold soda water as he talked. He was jovial and affable and spoke without notes.

Final Testimony In Trial Is Heard

By H. D. QUIGG

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (UP) — Lt. Gen. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller, "toughest Marine" in the corps, testified today that in his opinion S-Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon was following good military practice when he marched recruits at night into a creek where six men drowned.

After Puller's testimony the defense rested.

The acid-tongued general, now retired, was called as the final major defense witness for McKeon, charged with manslaughter and oppression of his men for the April 3 death march into Ribbon Creek on the Parris Island boot training depot.

Earlier a drill instructor and a former Marine testified at McKeon's court martial that they too had marched into the swamps near the depot to teach men discipline and boost their morale.

Speaking in a voice that was almost a roar before a courtroom packed with standees, Puller said: "In my opinion the reason that American troops made out so poorly in the Korean war was mostly due to lack of night training."

"If we are going to win the next war, in my opinion I'd say that from now on 50 per cent of the training time should be allotted to night training."

Polish Premier Predicts More Democracy In Poland

Editors Note: United Press Staff Correspondent Anthony Cavendish secured the first exclusive interview by a Western correspondent with Communist Prime Minister Josef Cyrankiewicz since the June 28 Poznan uprising in which 32 persons were killed and more than 200 wounded. The trial of more than 200 alleged ringleaders of the riots is scheduled to open in Poznan in about a week.

WARSAW, Poland (UP) — Polish Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz said today the bloody Poznan uprising of June 28 would have no effect on a government program to grant more democracy in Poland.

But, he added, there was no place for an opposition political party because that would be an "attempt to turn back the clock."

The 45-year-old premier granted the United Press an exclusive interview in his office on Stalinec Alley, 24 hours after an announcement that the Polish United Workers (Communist) party had been "divorced" from the government in a continuing policy of liberalization.

Observers here said the post-Stalin "democratization" of Poland appears to have been stepped up rather than curtailed since Stassen.

No Effect "The events in Poland," Cyrankiewicz said in the interview, "will not have — and are not having — any effect upon the process of democratization of life in Poland which is under way."

"We shall further endeavor above all to develop democracy throughout industry, to increase the rights of workers in management and the influence of the workers in running the establishments," he said.

He said the post-war Oder-Neisse frontier with East Germany, which the Western powers do not recognize as final, "has been fixed once and for all. It is the lasting and immovable frontier between Poland and Germany."

Capitalistic Smoking The bald, heavy-jowled Cyrankiewicz chain-smoked Swiss cigarettes and sipped cold soda water as he talked. He was jovial and affable and spoke without notes.

Regarding the relation of church and state in predominantly Catholic Poland, the premier said such relations were "based on the principle of total freedom of conscience and respect for the religious beliefs and practices of the people."

Asked if there will be any revival of the Social Democratic party in Poland, Cyrankiewicz said "no."

"We have now been one party for eight years, and nobody anywhere would understand any attempt to turn back the clock," he declared.

The commission, a "voluntary, bi-racial organization for the promotion of racial goodwill," said it had received reports that a number of school districts plan to segregate this fall, including five in one Central Texas county.

"We trust that many others are making such plans to eliminate the unjust restrictions placed upon the education of Negroes," the commission said.

Crop Hopes Fade Throughout Texas

AUSTIN (UP)—Hopes for making a cotton or feed crop faded over a steadily-widening area of Texas as the critical drought continued this week, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reported Tuesday.

The USDA said the situation was most critical in central, southern and many western counties.

"In those parched areas, farmers were putting acreage in the soil bank reserve to the full extent regulations permitted and hoping fall rains provide moisture for planting winter grazing crops," the USDA said.

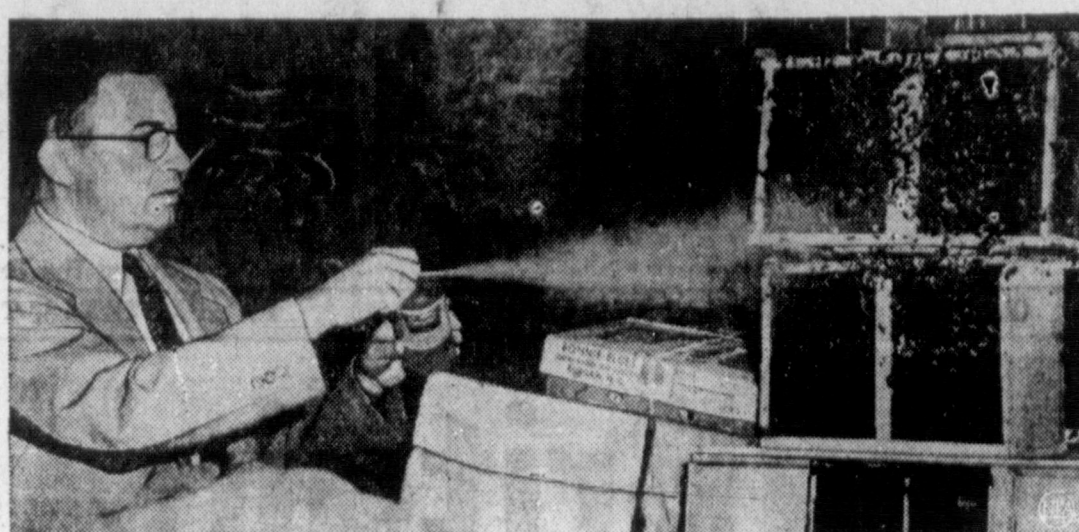

Scattered showers in southern and coastal counties were helpful but far short of needs. In parts of the high plains, particularly on the western side where earlier showers were heaviest, dry-land crops were suffering.

The USDA said an earlier-than-expected harvest continued as feed crops ripened rapidly. Combining sorghums neared completion as far north as Austin, and harvest of corn for grain gained momentum in early districts.

The cotton harvest continued at peak activity in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and coastal bend, and was getting well underway in the upper coastal and south-central counties. North Texas cotton deteriorated but could still benefit from good rains. Dry-land cotton in extreme northern low rolling plains and central high plains counties generally made good development.

Cattle, calves and sheep continued on the move to central markets and auction rings as widespread lack of feed and a shortage of stock water forced liquidations.

Medic Sent To Showers— On Trial To Be New Show

By ALINE MOSBY
 HOLLYWOOD (UP)—For two years television educated viewers with a real-life law case—from about diseases on "Medic" and first woman to be hanged in this country to modern day mayhem and murder.

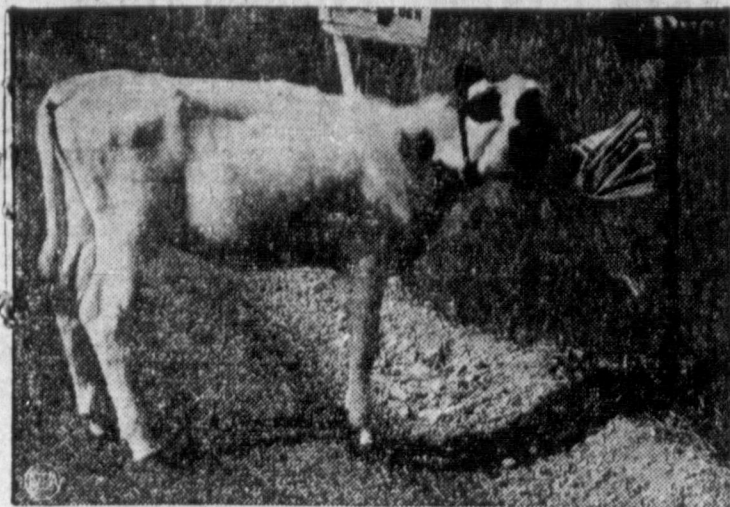

This "Medic"—with a briefcase will star Cotten in 10 of the 30 episodes and will introduce each a new filmed series on the network.

Producer Young and his writers have been digging into the files of the Los Angeles county law library for material. As Young says, "Every time we go there we come out with 82 stories. It's a problem to weed them out."

The yarns aren't selected only for melodrama. Each case "has some significance in the field of law or some effect upon humanity," Cotten said.

"One episode will tell about a case that questioned the jury system, whether a doctor should be judged by uneducated men," the actor said.

"In another case the judge arrested the jury for defying his orders, and the principle of freedom or a jury was set up. Before each episode I will explain what principle of justice the show is about."

Movie Filmed 28 Years Ago May Be Released Soon

By ALINE MOSBY
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 HOLLYWOOD (UP)—A movie in which a beautiful blonde paraded about in a transparent black lace negligee and a white cat on her shoulder finally may be released—28 years late.

The picture was the ill-fated "Queen Kelly," made in 1928. It starred Gloria Swanson, Walter Byron and the blonde—Sena Owen.

The colorful director, Eric Von Stroheim, began the film as a silent in 1928. Then sound came in and a new version was started. Numerous directors were hired and fired and the $1 million movie never made it to the theaters.

This "delayed action" record even beats Howard Hughes' "Jet Pilot," an air epic made six years ago with John Wayne and Janet Leigh that has never seen the light of the popcorn palaces.

But Miss Swanson, now in Paris, is considering making a new ending to "Queen Kelly" and releasing it a quarter of a century later. Recently she had second track down her original co-stars, Byron, now doing little theater work and living in nearby Long Beach, and Miss Owen, now a TV writer.

*Miss Swanson's representative phoned to know if I was available, but what could we do now? We'd all look a little different if she shot a new ending," laughed Miss Owen.

The movie, she said, took two years, off and on, to shoot. In those pre-union days Von Stroheim had the actors on the set at 7:30 a.m. and often didn't finish until 3 or 4 the next morning. But, then, he served real champagne in the drinking scenes.

Miss Owen remembers she was starred in a bathtub scene. And for many sequences she wore that black lace night dress with skin-colored tights underneath to give the impression she was nude.

"In one scene I was supposed to whip Gloria and the cat on my shoulder got frightened and scratched me," Miss Owen said. "So the director had white booties made for the cat to protect me."

Miss Owen recalls several directors were called in to finish the picture and finally Miss Swanson took over the production.

"They made several versions," she said. "In one I, as the mad queen, was killed off in the middle. I don't remember why they never finished the picture." She doesn't think modern censors will pale over this 1928 story of a country girl (Miss Swanson) in love with a wild price.

Grace Is Expecting!

MONACO (UP)—Princess Grace of Monaco is expecting a child in February, Prince Rainier announced today in a radio broadcast to his people.

Miss Kelly, beautiful American movie actress from Philadelphia, Pa., and Rainier, reigning prince of the tiny principality of Monaco, were married here last April. The civil ceremony took place April 18 and the lavish religious ceremony took place on April 19.

The proud Prince's announcement meant unbounded joy for this tiny land, where an heir to the throne means that Monegasques will continue to enjoy freedom from taxes and military service.

Rumors widespread

Rumors have been current for weeks that the princess was pregnant. It finally drew an angry announcement from the Prince that when, as and if his wife expected a baby, he would be the first to disclose it to his people.

He kept that pledge with his broadcast today.

Under the terms of a 1918 treaty with France, Monaco would become a French protectorate subject to French taxes if a ruler died without producing an heir. If that had happened, Rainier's subjects would have come under French law and been subject to the payment of taxes and military requirements.

Today's news was announced to local reporters at the palace and simultaneously telephoned to newspapers and international press agencies in Paris.

The communique was issued by Emile Cornet, the Prince's press attaché. Cornet said the smiling Prince told him the news "only this morning."

The communique said: "His serene highness Prince Rainier III, prince sovereign of Monaco, announced today in a broadcast message to his people that his serene highness Princess Grace is expecting a baby to be born in the month of February."

India's Nehru May Enter Suez Canal Dispute

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India may play a big part in the Suez Canal dispute. Nehru is in a better position than any other statesman of world rank to make himself a mediating influence. He is a friend of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, and

Britain and France hardly can be doubted. Meantime, it is quite likely that Nehru may urge Nasser privately not to mortgage Egypt's future by continuing his present course. Nasser is talking big. As dictator of a backward, poverty-stricken country of 20 million people he is challenging the big three Western Allies to a fight to the finish. He also is antagonizing other countries all over the world, from Canada to Australia, to which an open Suez Canal is of great importance. Premier Mohammed Mossadegh of Iran tried the course which Nasser is taking now. He plunged his country into bankruptcy and landed up in prison, charged with treason. Nasser Loses Head It seems that Nasser has lost his head, acting not on logic but in the heat of blind rage. He can cause a lot of trouble. But he can not get away with it. Nasser must have noted that Egyptian Industrial shares slumped alarmingly on the Cairo stock exchange Monday. Losses ranged up to 15 per cent. The price of cotton — the backbone of Egypt's economy — also dropped sharply. Nasser can not be expected to retreat right now. But it may not be long before he realizes that he is taking on more than he can handle.

18th Year
THE PAMPA DAILY NEWS
THURSDAY, AUGUST 2, 1956
When that time comes, Nasser is likely to look to Nehru for some help in getting himself out of trouble. A Moderating Force Nehru increasingly regards himself — with some justification — as a moderating force in world affairs. Though many people have questioned his policies, nobody has cast doubt on his honesty or on his abhorrence of such international disputes as that over the Suez Canal. He had a good deal to do, as a man of good will, in arranging details of the Korean armistice and helping to carry it out. He has offered a compromise on the Algerian situation which is being considered. If he can offer something to ease the canal dispute, he will be a very popular man.

TIME TO HIDE—Dishwashers, above, are too proficient for their own good. Every hausfrau in Germany will be looking for them. Participating in a dishwashing contest in Frankfurt, they raced the clock for sudsy honors. Winner Walter Heppes, sink at right, cleaned 14 dishes in 47 seconds.

What's New Around Nation's Capitol

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — What's new in Washington:
Iris Blitch, the lady Democratic law maker from Georgia, is miffed about the portable TV cameras they are going to try out at the party's Chicago convention. She calls them "peepers—next to wire tappers the worst invasion of a woman's privacy!"
Mrs. Blitch points out the little cameras give off no warning signal like the big ones do.
"You won't know when you are going to be shot," she said. "What if a garter string is hanging or you're busy reddening your lips? You're trapped. I'll bet this new gimmick won't last long enough to worry the Republicans in San Francisco."
The newspaper on Capitol Hill, "Roll Call," plays no favorites. On the front page is a story written by Sen. William F. Knowland, Republican floor leader of the Senate. Opposite is an item signed by Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the Democratic leader.
The headline on the Knowland story says "Dams Thwarted Ike's Domestic Program." Johnson's essay is headed "solid achievement marked 84th Congress."
Mrs. Alec Martin called the other day to report that she has been having trouble getting mustache wax. She uses the stuff to slick up her eye brows and blinkers. She asked her druggist how about the shortage? He told her straight. Mothers are buying the wax, he said, to spruce up the "butch" and "flat top" haircuts of their sons.
The officers club at the military headquarters for "Operation Alert" had a little entertainment arranged for the brass and the press.
The brass wasn't much interested and most of them evaporated for the week-end. While the wheels were away, the staybehinds played and worked. There was dancing and food and levity.
The reporters, committed to a work budget, let out the word that some cogs were missing. It prompted one wag to remark: "The brass must read the papers. I got word from my paper that all of them are on their way back."
Margaret Moran, food editor of the United Mine Workers Journal, is forever fascinating. Discussing picnics, she advises:

DONKEY SERENADE — Gathering about the traditional symbol of their party, Democratic congresswomen pose at the National Headquarters in Washington. They will be featured speakers on a special women's program at the party convention in Chicago. Left to right, they are: Representatives Edna Kelly (NY), Leonor Sullivan (Mo), Edith Green (Ore), Coys Knutson (Minn), Gracie Pfoef (Idaho), and Martha Griffiths (Mich).

KRAUT SALAD RELISH is just the thing to serve with the makings for sandwiches. This taste treat is from Shiocton, Wis.

COOK'S NOOK

Kraut Relishes Dress Up Summer Sandwich Fare

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor
In Shiocton, Wisconsin, the summer temperature often hovers around 85 degrees. Heavy, hot meals are not much in demand. Alden Smith, a kraut canner who lives there, gave us a few hints for cool, do-it-yourself dinner sandwiches.

The makings are satisfying: slices of corned beef, several kinds of cheese, chilled kraut and kraut relish, deviled ham, pickle and an assortment of breads with a dash of whipped butter for easy spreading.

Chilled kraut just as it comes out of the can adds a nice touch to almost any sandwich. Equally delicious is either one of these kraut relishes.

KRAUT SALAD RELISH
(About 1 cup)
One cup drained canned sauerkraut; 1/2 cup sour cream, 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper, 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt.

Chop kraut, combine kraut, sour cream, onion, green pepper and garlic salt; mix well and chill.

ROSY KRAUT RELISH
(About 2 cups)
One cup drained canned sauerkraut; 1 cup drained canned sauerbeets, finely chopped, 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 1 teaspoon prepared horseradish, 2 tablespoons salad dressing.

Chop kraut. Combine kraut, beets and onion. Combine horseradish and salad dressing; mix well and add to kraut-beet mixture. Blend well and chill.

Punchy Paragraphs

BEEF - MUSHROOM SANDWICH
This sandwich idea, ideal for summer, is sure to please. Mix 1 pound ground beef, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper and 1 3-ounce can button mushrooms. Toast 4 slices of bread on one side, then butter the untoasted side. Spread beef-mushroom mixture over untoasted side of bread slice, dot with butter. Place under broiler until browned to taste. Yield is sufficient for family of 4 persons.

LAMB CHOPS - NEW ORLEANS
To serve your family a luscious lamb chop dinner, try this unusual combination. Brown 5 lamb shoulder chops cut 1 inch thick in 1 tablespoon melted lard or drippings. Season with 1 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon pepper. Now add 1 1/2 cups tomato juice, 1/4 cup chopped green pepper and 2 small onions, chopped. Cover and simmer for 45 minutes or until tender.

Hot Weather Pie

Did you ever bake a pie on top of the stove? Well, you can! No need to deny your family this favorite dessert because you don't want to use the oven in hot weather. Baked in your Dutch oven on top of the stove, a pie will be just as deliciously flaky, just as golden brown and have the same good baked taste as one baked in the more usual way. Place a trivet or small cake rack on the bottom of the Dutch oven, direct the Crisco Kitchens, and put your pie pan on that. Cover and bake. If you use a glass cover you can check its doneness as it bakes. Try it with this recipe. Using this vegetable shortening and this method you'll have a failure-proof crust, and everyone knows a flaky crust is the real test of a good pie.

CHERRY PIE
(8 inch-2 crust pie)
Pastry: 2 cups sifted enriched flour, 3/4 cup Crisco, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons water.

With pastry blender or two knives, cut Crisco into flour and salt until mixture is fine and evenly mixed—the size of coarse corn meal.

Sprinkle water over mixture, a spoonful at a time, tossing with a fork until it begins to hold into a ball. With hands, work pastry until all particles hold together and leave bowl clean. Divide pastry into two parts. On lightly floured surface, using light, short strokes, roll dough into circle. Line pie plate with pastry and trim even with plate.

Cherry Filling: 4 cups fresh pitted cherries, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Combine cherries with sugar, flour, cornstarch, salt and lemon juice. Place in pastry lined plate. Top with pastry which has had small steam vents pricked in the top. Trim edges to 1/2 inch beyond the edge of plate. Fold edge under, seal and flute with fingers or a fork.

Place pie on trivet or small cake rack in Dutch oven over medium heat. Cover, and bake 1 hour and 15 minutes or until done.

A Fresh Fruit Ring Is Great Treat For Both The Eye And The Palate

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Spoon into the center of the molded fresh summer fruit salad ring.

For your notebook — Russian Cole Slaw

Because static electricity attracts dirt and dust into the louvers vents of air conditioning units, it's a smart idea to mop them with a sponge dipped in thick soap or detergent suds and wrung almost dry. The sponge will pick up the collected lint and soil and keep it from soiling window draperies. Furthermore, a clean unit works more efficiently to keep the air purified.

COOLAS-MINT ICE CREAM
Use basic Sugar-Sweet Vanilla Ice Cream recipe. Substitute 1 teaspoon peppermint flavoring for vanilla. Tint ice cream with green food coloring to desired mint shade after addition of whipped cream. When ice cream has hardened add 4 tablespoons candy mint leaves which have been cut into small pieces. Return ice cream to freezing compartment and continue to freeze according to basic recipe directions.

Backyard Treat Is A Lamb Chop Meal

With outdoor eating gaining in popularity throughout the country, here's an ideal terrace dish!

Featured dish — broiled lamb chops escorted by broiled pineapple rings and sprigs of parsley. Company is coming? Plan this meal, then see for yourself. It'll be a favorite of the young and old alike.

Lamb like all meats is a rich source of the food nutrients, protein, minerals and vitamins, which are essential to health and well being of the body.

Reba Stagg, meat expert, explains that the chops should be cut at least 1 inch thick. If the chops, either loin or rib chops, are cut less than 1 inch thick and broiled, the meat becomes too well done on the inside before it is browned on the outside.

Set the regulator to broil. Place the chops on the broiler rack. Insert broiler pan and rack—the top of 1-inch chops is 2 inches from the heat and the top of 2-inch chops is 3 inches from the heat. When one side is browned, season the chops with salt and pepper. Place pineapple slices on broiler until lamb chops are done and pineapple slices lightly browned.

Total broiling time required for chops cut 1 inch thick is 10 to 12 minutes. Chops cut 2 inches thick require 20 to 22 minutes.

Must Teach Children To Eat

ATLANTA, GEORGIA — Babies are people. Each child is an individual with likes and dislikes. And like most people, they change their minds from time to time. They learn through experience and while instinct provides children with many of the answers, they must be taught most of what they learn, and this includes how to eat.

So said Dr. Miriam E. Lowenberg, head of foods and nutrition in the School of Home Economics, Pennsylvania State College, in an address before the annual meeting of the Georgia Nutrition Council.

Dr. Lowenberg, one of the nation's leading nutritionists, said that food and the child's attitude towards food is the basis for much of the emotional as well as the physical development of the child.

"You never feed food alone — you feed attitudes," Dr. Lowenberg said. "Food provides the first experience the newborn child has with human beings."

The nutritionist pointed out that each child is an individual and that the child changes from one age to another. She pointed out that at an early age, the child likes to feel his food with his fingers. This is good. She says it means the child has a friendly attitude towards food. Even before the teeth come, the child goes through chewing motions. Dr.

Lowenberg suggests dry toast when this happens. Interviewed after the talk, Dr. Lowenberg stressed the fact that Americans today have the greatest variety of health-giving foods available in all our history. She cited the enrichment of bread, to provide a greater intake of B vitamins and iron, the fortification of margarine and the irradiation of milk as excellent examples of science, nutritionists and business combining effort to improve the health of the people.

Dr. Lowenberg said that three meals a day are not enough for most children. The four or five hour interval between meals is too long. However, she warned that between-meal snacks should be chosen with care.

Educating in the way to eat is necessary at all ages. Dr. Lowenberg said. This is of particular importance in the case of the child of four to six years of age. As the child becomes more independent and starts to school, there are more opportunities to eat outside the home and without proper supervision.

Foods that should be in the child's diet, the nutritionist said, include milk and milk products, meat, eggs, bread and cereals, whole grain and enriched, fruits and vegetables. Adequate amounts of basic foods should be included at each meal to insure proper diet.

The role of the parent, Dr. Lowenberg concluded, is to provide the right foods for the child and to assist the child in the process of learning to eat.

Share-A-Pizza Pie With Your Friends

Pizza Base:

3 cups sifted enriched flour
1 cup Quaker Enriched Corn Meal
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons salt
2 1/2 cup shortening
1 1/2 cups milk (about)

Pizza Topping:
1/2 cup olive oil
3 six-ounce cans tomato paste
1 1/2 cup water
1 pound pork sausage meat, cooked
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
1 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups grated sharp cheese

For pizza base, sift together dry ingredients. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add milk; stir lightly until ingredients are dampened. Knead gently on lightly floured board. Divide dough in 4 parts; roll each to fit in bottom of 8-inch greased pans.

Brush dough with olive oil. Combine tomato paste and water and spread over dough. Add pork sausage and garlic. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese, oregano and salt. Top with grated cheese. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

It never pays to wear a pair of nylon tights without sudsing them. Stockings never fit the legs well unless they have been laundered between wearings.

Cleaner H-Bombs Near Production

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission has indicated that new and "cleaner" H-bombs are approaching the production stage.

The indication, confirmed in official quarters, was contained in a cryptic section on "military application" of the AEC's 20th semi-annual report to Congress. The report also noted:

Rapid increases in the family of nuclear weapons, further development of nuclear missile warheads for defense as well as offense, and new record production of nuclear explosives, fuels, and raw materials.

The new H-bombs, on which development progress had previously been disclosed, would generate far less radioactivity than the super bombs now in the stockpile. In war they would poison smaller parts of the planet with deadly fallout.

Less Mass Destruction

Such an H-bomb, according to President Eisenhower, would be "more of a military weapon" and less an agent of "mass destruction" than its radiologically dirtier predecessors.

In today's report the AEC said its weapons laboratories at Los Alamos, N. M., and Livermore, Calif., are "working on new principles." It added that its weapon plants are being expanded "to facilitate early production" of new weapons already "conceived in the Livermore laboratory."

"The United States family of weapons in various stages of research, development, and production engineering is," the AEC said, "increasing rapidly."

The report did not specifically mention the "reduced fallout" weapon. But an informed official source said weapons scientists are moving toward perfection of "cleaner bomb" designs based on information obtained in the test series recently concluded at the Eniwetok-Bikini proving ground.

Other parts of the semi-annual report:

Underscored the division in the AEC between the majority headed by Chairman Lewis L. Strauss and a one-man minority in the person of Commissioner Thomas E. Murray. Murray refused to subscribe to sections of the report on nuclear reactor development, the civilian atomic power program, and radioactive strontium.

Disclosed that the second nuclear submarine, the USS Sea Wolf, is nearly completed, and work is progressing on new atomic engines for submarines, aircraft carriers, and aircraft.

Reactor Progress

Reported "notable progress" in the field of nuclear power reactors, with industry ready to spend

Jacoby On Bridge

It used to be said that there were only two good reasons for failing to return your partner's lead: not having any more cards in the suit; and sudden death. Modern players can think of many other good reasons, as today's hand shows.

West opened the four of diamonds. East put up the queen and South won with the ace. Declarer continued with the queen of spades, holding the trick, and led another spade. West discarded a club, dummy put up the ten, and East won with the ace of spades.

East didn't return his remaining diamond. He knew his partner had led fourth best and that he could have only one card lower than his opening lead. At most, therefore, West had started with five diamonds, and South with at least four diamonds. West could not be ready to run the rest of the diamonds unless his three best diamonds were K-J-10, in which case he might well have led the jack to begin with.

Reserving the diamond for later on, East returned the five of spades. Declarer won in dummy with the jack of spades and finessed the ten of hearts to West's jack.

Alert to the situation, West shifted to a club. Declarer finessed, losing to East's king. Now East returned the nine of diamonds, and West overtook with the ten to cash the king of diamonds and thus set the contract.

If East had returned the nine of diamonds at his first opportunity, West could not cash the king without giving South a second diamond trick. South would then make his contract with three spades and two tricks in each of the other suits. If West failed to cash the king of diamonds, the suit would be dead for the rest of the hand, and South would duck a heart to make sure of three hearts, three spades, one diamond, and two clubs.

210 million on atomic power plants "to which the government will make no financial contribution." Noted "enthusiastic and widening support" of President Eisenhower's atom-for-peace program "abroad and at home." This country has negotiated atomic cooperation pacts with 36 nations.

Canadian Woman's Rites Held

CANADIAN — (Special) — Funeral services for Mrs. Goldie Mabel McCleery, 73, were held in the First Methodist Church in Canadian at 3 p.m. Saturday. Mrs. McCleery died Thursday, July 26.

Rev. T. G. Craft, pastor of the Methodist Church, officiated. Arrangements are being directed by Slickley Funeral Home in Canadian.

Mrs. McCleery was born December 31, 1884, in St. Mary, Kans. She is survived by her husband, G. E. McCleery, Canadian; two daughters, Mrs. Elva Trueblood, Canadian, Mrs. Edna Mae Helton, Borger; a son, Harold, of Pampa; a sister, Mrs. Lew Ramsey, Canadian; and three brothers, Clarence Hoobler, Canadian; George, of Lincoln, Neb. and Frank of Broken Bow.

Palbearers were Lloyd Cole, Claude Cook, Bill Ramp, George Hand, Preston Hutton, and Ora Ournutt.

Transportation Facilities For Crude Purchased

TULSA (UP) — Service Pipe Line Co. of Tulsa, a transporter of crude oil, has acquired the crude oil transportation facilities of the Pan-Am Southern Corp. and assumed ownership today.

J. L. Burke, company president, said the acquisition was part of a plan announced last March by Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) to consolidate a number of subsidiary companies engaged in similar functions.

Pan-Am's crude oil pipe line system consists of about 285 miles of lines in southern Arkansas and northern Louisiana, and a gathering system in northwestern Louisiana, consisting of 52 miles of lines. The latter is known as the Pine Island system and is connected to the Interstate Oil Pipe Line Co.

The system delivers crude oil to the Pan-Am refinery at El Dorado, Ark. The system lies in Union, Columbia and Ouachita counties of Arkansas and Union and Claiborne parishes of Louisiana.

Burke said all of the Arkansas-Louisiana purchases would be added to Service Pipe Line Co.'s East Texas division.

About 70 employees are affected in the Pan-Am transaction and Burke said all of them would be offered employment by Service Pipe Line Co.

The principle of jet propulsion was understood and put into design form some 2,000 years ago by Hero, Alexandrian philosopher.

Brewery to Expand

HOUSTON — UP — The Fallstaff Brewing Co. plans to spend $3 million to rehabilitate and expand its new plant at Galveston, President Joseph Griesedieck announced. Fallstaff bought the Galveston plant from Southern Select Brewing Co. last February for $1.3 million.

Should we at any time, be inconsistent with these truths, we would appreciate anyone pointing out to us how we are inconsistent with these moral guides.

Tyranny By Unions

Another glaring example of the tyranny of unioneers is graphically told in the July issue of Reader's Digest.

An article by Lester Velie, "Tyranny on Main Street," tells the story of Local 138 of the International Union of Operating Engineers in Long Island. This union with 1,300 dues-paying drives of tractors, cranes and other heavy equipment used in construction is controlled by a father-son dictatorship which is not much different from other union locals across the nation.

The union has a new twist, however. Many employers who hire the local's men are themselves dues-paying members of the union, and company supervisors have held posts on the union's executive board and have sat in on contract-negotiating committees, bargaining from both sides of the table.

"From this setup," reports Velie, "union boss and employer get solid returns. The employer helps the union boss stay in power. The union boss helps the employer cut competition. The union, which controls hiring, will give the outside contractor the scrapings of the labor barrel. Incompetent men will smash his costly machinery, slow him down. Enforcement of union featherbedding rules will skyrocket his costs."

Velie tells how a few members of the union sought to clean out their union, with disastrous results to themselves. Pete Batalias and Bill Wilkins took the steps after William DeKoning Sr., the local's boss, went to jail for extorting from union members.

DeKoning had built a labor lyceum, then as landlord charged fat rentals to unions which met there. He installed a saloon and extorted kickbacks from members by ordering them to spend $8 weekly at a social night there.

DeKoning's son, Bill Jr., who was selected as president and business manager by his father, was discredited also. He pleaded guilty to coercion and was given a year's suspended sentence and was ordered to divorce himself from union leadership during that time.

Batalias and Wilkins organized a reform group in an effort to win the union back for its rank-and-file members. They called a meeting, elected one of their members as business agent. But at the next meeting, they found their efforts were for naught.

DeKoning cronies took over the meeting, with the front rows filled with husky 200-pounders to keep the members in line. Bill DeKoning Jr. — violating the court order to stay out of union affairs — was on hand. The secretary read the minutes of the last meeting, but there was not a word about election of the rank-and-file member as business agent. DeKoning officers had set aside the election, named their own man to the job.

Members who jumped to their feet to protest found the microphones had been turned off. In an attempt to get the minutes corrected by vote, they found the bosses were ready. The hall was packed with members favorable to the bosses, and the revolting workers were defeated.

Typically, the union bosses keep the voting members to a controllable figure, the article points out.

While there are 1,300 dues-payers in the union, only 550 can vote. The 550 are "engineers" who pay dues of $8 a month. Another 450 are called "apprentices." Some of these have been operating heavy equipment just like the "engineers" for 10 or more years. They also pay $8 monthly dues. But they are not permitted to vote. In addition, 300 who pay dues are called "branch men." They operate the same type of equipment, but work in sand pits and bricks yards. They can't vote either.

Thus the union bosses need only to control the vote of a majority of the 550 voting members. Velie says some 130 contractors and company supervisors hold cards and "always side with the union leaders for services rendered."

Later, Batalias and Wilkins tried to get an accounting of what was being done with union funds. The officers refused to publish a financial statement. Only after a newspaper entered the picture was a financial statement read to members. It was then that members discovered that Bill DeKoning, while in jail, was still on the union payroll for $150 a week salary and $150 for expenses.

The revolting members of the union next demanded an accounting of the local's welfare fund in which some $550,000 yearly is administered by a crosby of DeKoning Sr.

Because of the demands, early last year during a meeting, Batalias was seized by a group of six-footers, dragged to the back of the hall, mauled and kicked and thrown down a flight of stairs.

Batalias, Wilkins and other members who witnessed the beating pointed out their assailants in court, but the poons were acquitted on the defense that the assault was "part of a union brawl."

The union then tried Batalias, and Wilkins on a charge of "bringing the union into disrepute" by their testimony in court. They were banished from union meetings for five years and fined $100 each. They lost valuable weeks of work because the union would give them few assignments.

DeKoning Jr., his probation over, came back to the union and announced he was business manager and president again. The local's executive board had restored him to office, and he announced that the International Union had approved the return — without an election.

When Batalias and Wilkins appealed their five-year banishment from meetings, the international union turned them down.

Velie points out that the merged AFL-CIO constitution claims an important objective is "To protect the labor movement from any and all corrupt influence." Also, there is an Ethical Practices Committee empowered to hire attorneys and investigators "where there is reason to believe that an affiliate is dominated or controlled by corrupt influence."

He asks: "What is the AFL-CIO waiting for?" A lot of others have been asking: "What is the American public waiting for, when it sees these flagrant violations of the rights of individuals?"

Political Helplessness Of Business Hurts Everybody

In the last issue I was quoting from the General Electric News Letter to their management. The last quotation quoted said that they would attempt to discuss the causes, the implications for the future and what can or must be done about it. Then the News Letter continues:

"The Voter's View"

"It might seem logical, perhaps, to expect general agreement among the beneficiaries of the free enterprise system that a business is an estimable institution. Business, after all, is the principal source of the incomparably high standard of living we Americans enjoy. Business is not only the source of those material goods and physical services that can make lives richer and happier, but an instrument also of a rising level of rewarding spiritual living. A housewife freed by a machine from the drudgery of hand-washing of dishes or laundry can reach out for more humanly constructive things to do for others and for greater spiritual satisfactions from her own life."

It is a little hard for me to see how material prosperity is an instrument of rising level of rewarding spiritual living. It seems to me they are preaching Karl Marx' doctrine that spiritual goodness follows material well-being. Instead of spiritual living being improved by material things, it often has a tendency to deteriorate man from a spiritual standpoint. In other words, very few people can stand prosperity.

Then the Letter goes on to say that people know this, of course. They know, of course, that people can improve their material well-being because of business, but those people who will answer questions without evasion do not know that material prosperity improves spiritual living. Then the News Letter goes on:

"They know, too, that it is they—the customers of a business—who determine whether that business shall succeed or fail. They know that if a business provides a product or service they don't want, the business will fail. They know that the better a business can do what they want done at a price they'll pay, the more it prospers and grows. In short, the people know that a business succeeds only as it serves."

If people know this, as the General Electric Letter contends, they would not vote against business as they do. It is hard to see how General Electric can continue by saying:

"Yet at the polls, they are thought to vote in droves for the candidates who say the interests of business and the interests of the people are opposed."

They vote that way because they do not believe what General Electric says, that they know business is good for everybody. Too many people believe that business is like gambling — that men get rich not by serving their fellow-man but by robbing him. That's the reason they vote against business.

Behind "The Voter's View" Then the News Letter goes ahead to admit that there have been business men, and are business men, who have temporarily enriched themselves by unethical means. Then the Letter continues:

"As to big or successful business particularly, there's another explanation for widespread public suspicion. People feel — all other things being equal — that success begets power, and that power is too likely to be used for evil purposes. The more successfully a business manager to serve a need, please people, the bigger it grows and thus the more the public tends to suspect it."

"The little fellow, of course, is the darling. He's the politician's pet, because there are more of him who vote than there are big or successful fellows. Americans' hearts naturally go out to the underdog. But once the little fellow gets big, he's suddenly considered dangerous. And this is true even if his biggest stems from unusual ability and determination to do humbly what people want done in the way they want it done."

"Another reason why the businessman is in the doghouse is the quite logical one that a lot of smart and articulate people very profitably devote their lives to putting and keeping him there. These are the people who through ignorance or maliciousness dedicate their lives to convincing people that the welfare of the public and the welfare of business are incompatible. While these anti-business people try to take the credit for the good results flowing from our free enterprise system, they continue to seek to destroy it by creating a welfare state in which everyone would be a little man except for federal functionaries and themselves."

"These are the outright opponents of business, call them statisticians, socialists, collectivists, or at best, people just envious of other's usefulness and success. They're enormously effective in discrediting every success that business achieves through serving the public. They will continue to be so, as long as businessmen continue to sulk silently in their tents and don't give the public the facts not only of the good 'economic' merchandise they supply but also of the wonderful 'social' merchandise they throw in."

Jazz Bands Lose Senate Sponsors

WASHINGTON — Nonappreciative and nonjitterbugging Senate elders have curtailed a cultural program which has been credited with popularizing the United States among foreign peoples who enjoy no direct or immediate benefits from our billions in economic and military aid. It has been described as the single native American development which most appeals to them — namely, jazz and jazz bands.

"The committee," said the staid Senate Appropriations group, "disapproves the use of funds for jazz bands, ballet and dance groups, and strongly urges that greater emphasis be placed on choral groups and miscellaneous sport projects. The effectiveness of some of the musical groups heretofore sponsored appears questionable."

What the Senators do not realize, according to equally staid but more understanding experts at State, including John Foster Dulles, is that almost every other art form of expression — choral singing, opera, painting, the theater, symphony, poetry, literature and the Olympic Games — was born abroad long before Columbus discovered America.

As the foreign tours of so many swing bands have revealed, it is their infectious spontaneity and brave music which gave these people the idea that Americans are not merely a grasping, grubbing and materialistic race of barbarians.

Nevertheless, although the money asked for creating popular rather than official good will was only $2,500,000, the Capitol Hill kill-joys cut it to $1,500,000. Fifteen of our topflight bands could be sent singing around the world for the amount saved by an otherwise spendthrift Congress.

Strangely, the fight on the appropriation was led by Senator Allen Ellender, of New Orleans, one of the many birthplaces of this indigenous brand of music.

The success of the latest tour of this kind — Dizzy Gillespie's jazz band — was recently told in an issue of the Saturday Review of Literature. Sponsored by the State Department after a careful period of training, and at a cost of only $92,500, it made an unqualified hit and deep impression in eight Middle East and Balkan countries, while anti-American sentiment has been stimulated by Communist propaganda.

The Gillespie trouper were mobbed everywhere they played, by officials and so-called intellectuals as well as the more populous classes. They could not satisfy the hunter for their music. Local militia had to prevent audiences and street throngs from wearing out the musicians with demands for prolonged playing.

Marshall W. Stearns, who accompanied the band, gave this explanation in a Saturday Review article for the wildly enthusiastic response of native audiences: "They definitely associated jazz with the cheerful, informal and generous life, and they were bowled over by its spontaneity and vitality. The stereotype notion that jazz is lowbrow never got in the way of their enjoyment... Their admiration for the United States (This was in Yugoslavia, Ed. note) was unbounded."

Many people, according to Stearns, said: "We are sick to death of propaganda about democracy — we want deeds and people, not words and theories. We are convinced that you have many bathtubs, skyscrapers and automobiles, but we have real doubts about your culture. Send us true examples."

Representative John J. Rooney, veteran New York member of the House Appropriations Committee in charge of State Department funds, confirms these impressions. After visiting a trade fair in Europe where American machinery was on display, he reported:

"Nobody was looking at the washing machines. They were all standing around a juke box from Chicago, listening to dance music."

After reducing the funds for exporting jazz music, the Ellender group gave Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks $3,000,000 to ship abroad more washing machines which the natives cannot afford to buy. Gillespie's music was free.

Foreign Food Intrigues Mac

By HENRY McLEMORE

ATHENS — Except for the air, which I find absolutely essential for breathing, nothing interests me more in a foreign country than its food.

The air in Greece I highly recommend. It is a bit bewildering to the traveler to whom Greek, both written and spoken, is as mysterious as sky writing in a hurricane, but once a man learns what to order, and, more important, how to order, Greek food is very good.

The deciphering of a Greek menu is a challenging task, and not one to be mastered at a sitting. I have often thought that tourists who sail right in on an uncharted foreign menu (and most of us do) are the unsung explorers of our day. There is in us the same spirit of daring that sent Columbus forth and prompted Livingstone to leave home and hearth.

THE NATION'S PRESS

RADFORD'S BOMBHELL

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, dismisses as "a mixture of fact and pure speculation" a drastic plan credited to him for reorganizing the nation's military establishment and cutting existing forces by 800,000 men. Nevertheless, he concedes that the joint chiefs have a continuing duty to restudy the nation's military needs and that the introduction of new weapons might make possible a reduction in man power.

The admiral is said to believe the United States will be the main base in launching attacks upon the enemy thru inter-continental bombers and guided missiles. Under this concept of "Fortress America," the United States would be less dependent on overseas bases and consequently would have less need to curry favor with other nations thru foreign aid. Some bases, however, would be required to refuel the big B-52 jet bombers on missions into the heart of Eurasia, and some would also be needed for the take-off of B-47 medium bombers, which don't have the range of the bigger plane.

Inasmuch as Mc-far mobilization) day and D-day, marking the start of hostilities, are expected to coincide, the Radford plan, as outlined, is predicated on the belief that action would be over before an army could be shipped overseas. Accordingly, the admiral proposes to cut the army by 450,000 men between now and 1960, reducing it from its present size of 1,030,000 men to 580,000.

Because the tactical air force is organized for close support of ground troops in battle, this arm of the air force would be cut by 150,000 men. Projected air force strength would then be 820,000 men.

The navy, with 662,774 men at present, and its amphibious arm, the marine corps, now at a strength of 201,000, would be called upon, in combination, to give up 200,000 men, so that their combined strength, after reorganization, would be 663,774 men. The navy's primary mission would be to provide anti-submarine defense. The principal strength of the Soviet union fleet is a huge fleet of submarines.

The national guard and army reserve would be employed on civil defense and home guard duties. The army forces now stationed overseas would be reduced to token forces which "would wave the flag." Five divisions are now in Europe under the North Atlantic Treaty organization command, two in South Korea, and one is in Japan.

The entire plan is said to have been drafted in support of the view that in a period of watchful waiting of indefinite duration, the principal preoccupation of the United States should be to maintain a sound and solvent economy. Instead of huge allocations of defense dollars to standing forces, the emphasis will be on research and the development of new weapons.

Now, what, in reality, is this plan? There have you heard it before? It is, in all essential particulars, the plan that has long been advocated by such men as former President Herbert Hoover, the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, Brig. Gen. Bonner Fellers, and also by The Chicago Tribune. It made sense to us long before it seems to have occurred to the chairman of the joint chiefs, who, in adopting it, has brought down upon himself the inevitable wrath of the joint chiefs, who know that its terms will cost them part of the man power they so jealously hoard.

Another consequence of the plan is that it will lead, in all likelihood, to the end of conscription, which can only be justified so long as masses of men are called for in the scheme of defense. The draft will die of disuse as the services come more and more to be manned by professional career specialists.

We can find not the slightest logical objection to such changes, except, perhaps, that they still leave the military establishment loaded with 600,000 more men than it had before the Korean war. Why delay in putting in execution a project which will save the country money, maintain and improve its security, relieve it of the risk of exposing garrison overseas, curtail the racket in foreign aid, release 800,000 men for useful civilian work, and relieve the nation of the curse of conscription?

THE FRAGILE LOOK OF SUMMER party dresses — like starched clouds, netlined shadows, moonlight-threaded tulle—calls for as fragile a look in make-up. And that, says Hollywood's Max Factor, Jr., the country's leading beauty expert, calls for an artist's touch and almost nothing but pastel colors on your make-up palette.

FACTOR likes the look of translucence in make-up. He says it's easy to achieve the effect of a glow, or light shining through. How is it come by? By (1) setting for flower-petal make-up shades to put skin in a creamy gardenia or a pink camellia dress. By (2) putting make-up colors on for a vell-like sheerness.

All set? Let's go by stroking your cream stick foundation sparingly on nose, forehead cheeks, chin. Now blend with a silken sponge from which all moisture has been wrung. As you finish blending, dot cream or fluid cheek rouge on to heighten the color of your cheeks. This way, says Factor, the sponge can carry off all excess color, and create perfect

Staying pale is what some women want to do in the summer. Even if they go to the beach. This young woman uses a cream designed to prevent tanning.

She's Staying Pale During The Summer

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor
Once it was only the fashion models who stayed pale in the summer and they did it because they were being photographed in winter clothes when the rest of the world was basking on the beach.

But these days lots of girls stay pale all summer from choice. Some are the kind of frail, pale beauties who look unlikely with a tan. Others find that the little tan they get isn't worth the work of peeling. Still others just don't want to get tan.

To assist the girls who want to look delicate all summer, a famous manufacturer has brought out a tan-preventive lotion. This product has the now traditional sunscreen element plus a waterproof compound that makes the lotion do its work even while the wearer swims.

It can be worn as a makeup base if work or gardening keeps one outdoors in the summer sufficiently to warrant it. The cream works well under makeup.

Staying pale at the beach or under other conditions of drastic exposure to the sun requires many layers of the cream, used liberally.

The cream is versatile in that it can be used, in a one-layer application, to promote a safe, slow tan.

This product comes in a spill-proof plastic squeeze bottle.

Texas' State Fair Fashion Contest To Feature Experts

Four nationally known fashion experts have been named as judges for the fourth annual Texas Fashion Roundup at the 1956 State Fair of Texas, Oct. 6-21.

The four judges are Bernard Sakowitz of Houston, Dorothy Stone and Gay Pauley of New York, and Mrs. Harold Volk of Dallas.

Mr. Sakowitz, who will represent the retail merchant's viewpoint of fashion, is the vice-president of Sakowitz Bros., a well-known Houston store.

Miss Stone, the editor of "Infants' and Children's Review" in New York City, and for 12 years executive director of the Infants', Children's and Teens' Wear Buyers Association, will help pick the winners in the roundup's fastest growing division, children's fashions.

Miss Pauley is the women's page editor for the United Press Association and attended the first show given by the Dallas Fashion Center. She was selected to bring the national fashion scene's viewpoint to the judging.

Mrs. Volk, chosen to represent consumer fashion opinions, gets her fashion knowhow from her husband, the owner of one of Dallas' fine retail stores.

The judges were selected by Dallas Fashion Arts, Inc., non-profit organization that promotes Texas fashion, and is sponsoring the Fashion Roundup with the State Fair Women's Department.

Judging will be held on Aug. 17 at the Women's Building and the winning Blue Ribbon Fashions will be modeled in a total of 34 free fashion shows during the fair. More than 300 Texas manufacturers have been invited to enter their creations in the competition.

Mrs. Keahey Hosts H. D. Club In Home

The Bell Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. H. H. Keahey, southwest of Pampa, with six members and three visitors attending. Visitors were Mrs. Joe Wheeley, Miss Olivia Ann Swain, and Miss Sandra Wheeley.

The meeting was presided over by president, Mrs. Ernest McKnight. The speaker was Miss Helen Dunlap who spoke on "Background in The Kitchen."

Miss Dunlap said that in decorating your kitchen, a person should pick out the large open spots in the room first. Such materials as plastic, cotton woven cloth, paint, and wall paper could be used in these places to make for a delightful kitchen. Panel material such as white ash, African Korina, soft pine, Philippine mahogany, and Moroccan leather, makes good covering for the cabinet, Miss Dunlap stated.

"A kitchen should have color in it," Miss Dunlap said. It is just as sanitary looking as white. Try to put your colors in the smaller spaces in the room, and remember to put the warm colors in the north rooms and cooler colors in the south rooms," she added.

Refreshments of home made ice cream and cake were served to the following members and visitors, Mmes. Carl Smith, Ernest McKnight, Roland Dauer, D. W. Dwan, Emmett Osburn, H. W. Keahey, Joe W. Wheeley, and Misses Olivia Ann Swain and Sandra Wheeley.

The club will not meet in August. The next meeting will be Sept. 7, with Mrs. Ernest McKnight.

Local Girl Attends Top Beauty Contest

Miss Grace Barber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Barber of Lefors, has just returned from a trip to the Miss Universe Contest held in Long Beach, Calif. Miss Barber attended Jackie Brown, Miss New Mexico and former Pampa, to the contest.

Miss Barber first stayed in Albuquerque, N.M., with Jackie for three weeks in preparation for the contest, choosing clothes, etc.

The 10th of July she with Mrs. Brown and her husband, traveled to Long Beach where she stayed in the Pacific Coast Club. Mrs. Brown stayed in the Lafayette Hotel with the other contestants.

"While there I visited Grauman's Chinese Theatre, Disney Land, China Town, Dragnet Studios, Universal-International Studios, Farmer's Market, and many other exciting places," Miss Barber said.

The hotel was located on the beach so many hours were spent swimming and sun bathing.

"I had the time of my life and hope to go to the event again sometime," Miss Barber ended.

Mrs. Brown and Miss Barber have been friends for many years. Miss Barber is a 1956 graduate of Lefors High School where she was active in the pep club, class activities, and elected football sweetheart.

No Rules For Taste Are Unchangeable

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor
No woman was ever tarred and feathered for going without nail polish.

Starting out clean, be it to a picnic or a party, is never wrong. Clean hair, clean skin and clean clothes are always right.

Clothes, worn or new, should be in good repair. A mirror and her own sense of being well-dressed should be a woman's fashion helps.

There are few grown women who didn't remember the first dress bought on their own. Their mothers advised against it, but it was bought none the less. The lucky ones were persuaded out of it half an hour before the dance. The unlucky ones wore it. Most teen-agers cringe in embarrassment for the other girl who appears in the wrong kind of shoes, who wears an off-the-shoulder dress to the informal dance. Many teen-agers know how it feels to be that girl.

There are no rigid, overall rules of taste. To say better be under-dressed than overdressed can lead to disaster on occasion. Many women remember the night they met their future father-in-law natively dressed in slacks and sweater. There are only a couple of small rules that hold true. Perhaps they are a help.

Locals Split With Indians, 9-1, 1-2

MIDLAND — Although held to only three hits, the Midland Indians coasted to victory behind Hoyt Benedict's three hits. Benedict was near-perfect as he walked none and fanned five. The lone homer the Indians managed to scrap across was Don Domano's round tripper in the third. The Oilers picked up two in the second on three walks and a single, added two more in the third on Len Tucker's leadoff homer and singles by Jim Martin and Bob Flores, combined with an outfield error by the Indians. Pampa tallied four more times in the fourth on only two base hits assisted by two Midland errors and three bases on balls. Tom Pollett relieved Selbo to start off the fifth as he struck out six and allowed only three scattered singles in his stint. Pampa and Midland renew their tussle tonight at Oiler Park. Game time is 8 p.m.

Major League Roundup

Bums Move Up Edge Braves; Indians Bounce Yanks, 5-1

By FRED DOWN United Press Sports Writer An 85-foot pinch single enabled the Brooklyn Dodgers to claim their biggest victory of the year today and challenge the Milwaukee Braves to "stand up under the pressure of holding first place in a late-season pennant fight." "Now they've got to show they can do it," said Jackie Robinson after Dale Mitchell's "Baltimore chop" gave the Dodgers a 2-1 decision over the first-place Braves Wednesday night. "We went through it in 1931 but they haven't had the experience of fighting off a challenger in the stretch." "When a team gets six games ahead and starts losing it's bound to start feeling the pressure," Dodger Captain PeeWee Reese agreed. "Sometimes a team starts looking for ways to lose games when they have that experience." Moves Dodgers Up The victory moved the Dodgers to within three games of the Braves and to within one game of the second-place Cincinnati Redlegs, who suffered a 3-1 loss to the last-place New York Giants. It was the fourth loss in five games for the Braves, who only last Sunday held a 5 1/2 game margin on first place. The break in Wednesday night's brilliantly-played game came in the eighth inning when Mitchell-making his NL debut — batted for Clem Labine with two out and Robinson on third. Acquired from the Cleveland Indians only last Monday, Mitchell chopped a 1-2 pitch about 35 feet into the air between third base and the mound. Third-baseman Ed Mathews fielded it perfectly but his powerful throw was just too late to retire Mitchell and Robinson scooted home with the winning run. The Dodgers had scored in the fourth inning on Duke Snider's 26th homer of the year but the Braves tied the score in the eighth when Wes Covington crossed the plate on an error by catcher Roy Campanella. The win was Labine's ninth of the year and second in two nights against Milwaukee. Phils Beat Cubs Sal Maglie, also obtained from the Indians this year, held the Braves at bay for 6 1/3 innings before giving way to Labine. Ruben Gomez and Mavy Grissom yielded one hit each as the Giants made it two out of three over the Redlegs. Gomez doubled and scored the run that broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh but pulled a shoulder muscle and had to be relieved by Grissom. Robin Roberts picked up his 12th win in a relief role when Willie Jones' seventh-inning grand slam homer gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 10-8 triumph over the Chicago Cubs and Stan Musial's two-run seventh-inning triple helped the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-1, in other NL games. In the American League, Bob Lemon came back after being kayoed Monday night to pitch a six-hitter and give the Cleveland Indians a 5-1 win over the New York Yankees. Al Smith contributed two key doubles as Lemon won his 14th game and the Indians reduced the Yankees' first-place lead to eight games. Bosox Edge Tigers Ted Williams' three-run homer and a round-tripper by Jackie Jensen paced the Boston Red Sox to a 5-4 verdict over the Detroit Tigers. Tom Brewer raised his record to 15-3 although he needed relief help from Tom Hurd. Charley Maxwell hit his 20th homer for the Tigers. Whitley Hersog's double and a two-run single by Ed Fitzgerald sparked a four-run 10th inning that gave the Washington Senators and Chuck Stobbs a 6-3 win over the Chicago White Sox. Jim Wilson suffered his 10th loss for the White Sox, who have dropped 19 of their last 24 games. The Kansas City Athletics ended a six-game losing streak when they pounded out 13 hits to beat the Baltimore Orioles, 9-4, in the other AL game. Lou Kretlow, in his best showing in eight weeks, went seven innings to receive credit for his fourth win.

Lawrence Is Big Boost To Redleg Mound

By HARRY GRAYSON NEA Sports Editor NEW YORK — (NEA) — Brooks Lawrence returned from the minors to put and keep the Reds in the National League race and stir up all that excitement in Cincinnati. "Well, for one thing," replies Brooks Lawrence, "I got a lot of foolishness that is associated with pitching out of my head. I suddenly discovered that all a pitcher has to do to win is consistently get a piece of the plate with something on the ball. When he takes his mind off that, he's just plain nuts. "I believe I got the main idea while pitching for Caugas of the Puerto Rican League during the winter of 1935-36. The catcher was Wee Wee Lucas. He spoke no English. All I knew about Spanish was in a lamsale. There were runners on first and third with none out. Luis Marquez was on third. Marquez was as fast as most college sprinters and would break for the plate as quickly and with as little excuse as, say Jackie Robinson, when he first came around." With a right-hand batter up, Lawrence called the catcher half way to the mound. "If Marquez breaks for the plate," he told him, "I'll knock this hitter down, so you can tag him." "Wee Wee Lucas shook his head OK," he recalls the Rubin's current gripper, "but Marquez didn't go and I got the batter out. The next man was a left-hand batter, and I again called Wee Wee half way to the box. 'If Marquez breaks for the plate,' I told him, 'I'll pch out, so you can tag him.' I struck this fellow out and was out of trouble when the next batter popped out. "When we returned to the dug-out, one of the Puerto Rican players asked the catcher what we were talking about in our big conference. "That hardly encouraged me to go in for more pitching strategy," Frank Lane of the Cardinals last winter traded Lawrence and Sonny Senerchia, a pitcher now with Seattle, to the Redlegs for Jackie Cellum. "It looks like Gabe Paul stuck Lane on that one," beams Lawrence, an all-round athlete at Miami of Ohio for two years before answering the call to professional baseball. Lawrence professes not to know whether it was television or his pitching that killed so many minor leaguers. "Anyway, when I left them they were dead," he laughs. The D Ohio-Indians, A Central, and B Canadian-American, Inter-State and Piedmont Leagues folded after Lawrence served his apprenticeship in them. Lawrence attributes his decline after an excellent freshman season with the Cardinals to an attack of bleeding ulcers. "Doctors told me I was worrying, although I don't know what about," he recollects. "Maybe it was because I can't blow my stack. I keep everything within me. I had eight transfusions, lived on baby food for three months, was 13 pounds overweight and weak." The six-foot Brooks Lawrence now weighs a solid 207 pounds and isn't mad at anybody — except batters trying to knock the Reds out of a chance to take it all.

Hobbs Noses Out Roswell; Stays Seven Games Ahead

By UNITED PRESS Pampa pitchers Hoyt Benedict and Bill Shipman each twirled three-hitters at the Midland Indians Wednesday night, but could do no better than divide a Southwestern League twin bill. Benedict's mates took advantage of seven walks by Midland starter Glen Selbo to pile up an 8 to 1 lead in the first four innings and he coasted to a 9 to 1 victory. But Shipman was the victim of three straight sacrifices after issuing singles to Steve Hill and Leo Burkhalter in the third inning of the nightcap and Midland broke a seven-game home losing streak to 1. In other games, the leading Hobbs Sports nosed out Roswell 9 to 8 to stay seven games in front of El Paso, which beat Clovis 6 to 4 behind Bob Tucker's pitching his 24th. Plainview beat Carlsbad 11 to 9 in a game marked by five homers and Richard Jack's second relief loss in three days, and San Angelo stopped Ballinger 6 to 4 although Billy Bagwell was tagged for 12 hits to only eight his mates got off Ed McKay. Tonight the teams switch parks with Midland going to Pampa, Carlsbad to Plainview, El Paso to Clovis, Hobbs to Roswell and San Angelo to Ballinger.

Dodgers Wonder, "Does Lew Burdette Throw Spit-Ball?"

BROOKLYN (UP)—One of the major league's hottest disputes—"does Lew Burdette throw spitballs?" — was reopened by the world champion Dodgers today in the wake of their clutch 2 to 1 triumph over the Milwaukee right-hander. "He has the best spitball I've ever seen," said Dodger Jackie Robinson. "Me?" said the wide-eyed Burdette without cracking a smile. "Why I don't even know how to throw it." Despite Burdette's protests of innocence the Dodgers believed they won Wednesday night's stirring game at Ebbets Field on a pair of his off Burdette's "what-is-it," and that made them doubly happy for a victory that put them squarely back in the pennant chase. The first hit was Duke Snider's 26th homer of the year into the left field stands in the fourth, a blow Snider said came off a pitch "that acted like a spitter." The second was Dale Mitchell's high chop infield single with two out in the eighth inning that scored Robinson from third base with the winning run. Burdette described the pitch the 34-year-old Cleveland castoff hit as a "sinker," and to the Dodgers that's just French for "spitter." He says it's a sinker, "Robinson argued. "But no man can make a ball sink like that. If it's a sinker, it's the best in the business." "I don't know," shrugged Wee Wee Lucas. "That hardly encouraged me to go in for more pitching strategy." Frank Lane of the Cardinals last winter traded Lawrence and Sonny Senerchia, a pitcher now with Seattle, to the Redlegs for Jackie Cellum. "It looks like Gabe Paul stuck Lane on that one," beams Lawrence, an all-round athlete at Miami of Ohio for two years before answering the call to professional baseball. The Stand-Up Guy Who Has Braves On Top In National

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — (NEA) — This is Fred Haney, the guy who stepped up from the coaching lines to put the Milwaukee Braves at the top of the National League race. He is a quiet-talking man who takes his glasses off when a photographer snaps his picture and then puts them back on as he lolls in the dugout and talks of baseball or a joke he played on a guy last week.

"I'm taking the job," Haney said. "But if anything happens and you go, then I'm going, too." So when the Braves were stumbling through a poor road trip in June, and Grimm was released as manager, Haney came up to him ready to keep his word. But Grimm told him, "I want you to take it. If you don't somebody else will. You got to take it."

MAN AT WORK — Here's Fred Haney before a ball game. The Braves' manager is a relaxed guy — despite the excitement.

Haney pulls up a leg and rests it on the dugout bench. "Look," he says, "nothing is as stale as yesterday's pastry. I always say that when somebody asks me about Pittsburgh. But at the same time I'm not going to forget Charley Grimm. I have to remember not to do or say one thing that will reflect on Charley. So I look at it this way: I was lucky enough to take over a good team that was in bad luck from a good manager and the inevitable a winning streak — happened. I'm taking credit for nothing."

"Not until I heard that from Grimm," Haney says, "would I take the job." It gives you an idea of what kind of a guy this Milwaukee manager is. By his own admission, the thing he wants the most is to be a part of a major league pennant winner — something that has eluded him through 33 years of baseball. Yet a word from Grimm would have placed him back home in Hollywood, instead of at the helm of a club which figured, right from the start, to be a strong contender.

When he managed the St. Louis Browns in 1949 and 1951, he had desperate pitching. Running the Pirates for Branch Rickey was a two-year nightmare of mistakes by kid players. With Milwaukee, it's different. Haney gives a sign. The move is carried out. But it doesn't excite him. "I make every move as soundly as I can," he says. "If they don't work out, I know I've done the best I can, so why kill yourself worrying?"

"Second guesses will do it. Like the game we had against the Phillies. Lew Burdette had a five-run lead when he got tagged for homers by Stan Lopata and Del Ennis. I had a left-hander, Taylor Phillips, warming up. But the Phillies had three right-handers coming up. So I went out and asked Burdette a right-hander, if he could get them. 'Yes,' he said. So I told him to get them, because he was through after the inning. "We got out of it and came to bat and got eight runs. Burdette came up to me in the dugout and said, 'Let me go. I can breeze with this lead.' "Look, I told him, 'I said you were out and you still are. I'm not going to put you in and leave myself open for second guesses. My first move sticks.'"

Watch Those Strokes

By JACKIE BURKE

If the shot appears to call for a five iron, also consider the four and six. If the four is obviously too much and the six not enough, use the five. But don't let your decision rest on the five until you are satisfied that something else might not serve better. Leave a margin for error. From the standpoint of percentage, it is often wiser to play short of or beyond the pin than to choose a club which will carry you directly to it. If the green is trapped to the rear, it pays to play to the front of it. If it is trapped to the front, it pays to play to the rear even at the cost of going over. Missing hazards is much more important than taking a chance on being close to the pin. While you may get close, you may nevertheless still miss your putt. Playing safe, you may make the putt anyway, probably get down in 2, at the most 3. A raised green has a bearing on the choice of clubs. Frequently the level of the green may be 10 feet higher than the spot of fairway

Former Fireballer Says Dust Ball Just Hurts The Pitcher

TODAY'S SPORTS TRAIT
By JOHN CARROLL
United Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (UP)—Lefty Joe Page, fireman emeritus of the New York Yankees, warned pitchers today to lay off the "duster" or they'll dust themselves right out of the big leagues. "Those rockheads who rely too much on the close stuff are hurting nobody but themselves," Page said in between chores at his tavern in nearby Irwin, Pa. "The guys they're throwing at will come right back and knock their heads off."

against the Red Sox, Page was thrust into a bases-loaded, no-out situation when an infielder fumbled the first batter to face him. Page's first three pitches to Rudy York were balls, but he steadied and struck out the hitter. The big lefty ran the count to 3 and 0 on Bobby Doerr, only to fire three more strikes for the second out. Page then got out of the jam when Ed Pellagrini hit an easy fly.

"The nicest way to win a ball game is to be nice to the other team. It also helps to be nice to the umpires, too," he joked. Big Joe, who operates a tavern appropriately called the "Bullpen," said if Robin Roberts of the Philadelphia Phillies ever turned "mean" he could win 25 to 30 games every year. "But Roberts is the kind of guy who will settle for 30 wins and keep his friends. Of course, you don't have to let a batter steal your bread and butter. But you can get by with your regular pitches. The man who goes for the duster too much is just asking for a fast tick to the side of the league," he said.

"At first when I started relieving, I'd get all tight inside. Once I got that first pitch over, though, I'd relax," he continued. "I knew I had a job to do. A starter can rely on help. A reliever has to produce himself. You can't imagine how I felt that May night in the stadium."

Speaking of relief pitchers, Page said little Elroy Face of the Pittsburgh Pirates is one of the best in the majors today. Then, he reminded that Face already has appeared in more than 40 games this year, he added: "Don't forget, you can go so far then boom goes the arm. When you've used that much you gotta learn to slow down and pace yourself. And if your arm huts, let them know about it. I didn't and look what happened to me. I was through before my time."

"But before he was 'through,' he did a lot of pitching for the Yankees and in 1949 won the Babe Ruth award as the outstanding World Series player for New York. "They said I was a pretty fair reliever," Page concluded, "but with a team like I had behind me how could I miss?"

Big Ten Loop Commissioner Answers 'Pussyfoot' Charge

CHICAGO (UP) — Kenneth L. Wilson, commissioner of the Big Ten Conference, today returned the fire of a magazine writer who accused him of "pussyfooting" around charges of irregularities in the conference. Wilson charged that Daniel D. Mich, editorial director of Look magazine, made the accusation in order to build sales of the magazine. "It's his job to build circulation for the magazine," Wilson said, when informed of Mich's statement. H. O. (Fritz) Crier, athletic director at the University of Michigan, also took issue with Mich and said that Mich's article had, in effect, made "liars" of members of the Michigan faculty. Crier said that "no questionable aid" had been given Ron Kramer, although the magazine reported that Kramer had received a grant-in-aid with the help of a loophole in conference rules. Wilson said the magazine had made him "responsible for the facts" in their article on aid received by conference athletes but failed to "point out that the aids listed are legal under Big Ten rules." He said he was surprised at the "furore" aroused by the article. "This may have resulted from the

IT'S THE LAW ★ IN TEXAS ★

Made your will? If not, the State of Texas may wind up as owner of your estate upon your death. Under our statutes, the estates of persons having no heirs who die intestate revert, or "escheat", to the State.

Such provisions have been carried over from the English common law. There, under such circumstances, the estate escheated to the British crown. The theory of the process is that the sovereign (or State), having been the original owner of all lands before they were parceled out to individuals, is entitled to a return of such lands when the possibilities of legal inheritance have been exhausted.

This idea has been expanded to include personal property as well as real estate. It also applies in the case of a person absent for a term of seven years and not known to exist who leaves no heirs and no will.

Presumably, there is hardly a person who does not have some individual or charity that he would prefer to have his estate, rather than have it go to the State by default, so to speak. Yet, surprisingly, estates worth many thousands of dollars escheat to the various states from time to time.

Now, before you shrug the matter off with the idea that these statutory provisions could not possibly apply to you, better think a minute. Suppose you and your spouse have no heirs besides each other and your children. Many people do fall into this category.

In event of a catastrophe resulting in death for you and your entire immediate family, no legal heirs would remain. Therefore if you had no will your property would go to the State. In preparing a will, it is possible to provide for such an eventuality.

In this hypothetical case, you would probably want to designate some friend as executor, to take care of all necessary arrangements and then distribute the estate according to your wishes.

On the other hand, if you have plenty of possible heirs, a will could be used to designate which of them shall participate in the division of the estate. And even if you wish your property to be distributed entirely in accordance with our statutes of descent and distribution as explained in previous columns, a will can perform useful functions. Among other uses, a will could provide for an orderly and economical partition of your property, preventing any waste of assets by heirs impatient for a settlement.

What happens to property which escheats to the State? Following certain required legal formalities and court proceedings, all escheated lands are set apart to the Permanent Free School Fund of the State, and may be leased and sold by the local sheriff under a court writ and the money received therefrom paid into the State Treasury.

(This column, based on Texas law, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)
