President To Address Nation On Watergate

CAMP DAVID, MD. (UPI) — President Nixon goes on television and issues a kind of "white paper" tonight, at the lowest ebb of his public popularity, to counter allegations that he was any way involved in the Watergate scandal.

While expected once again to concede that he might have been more alert sooner to the fact that the scope of the Watergate burglary was wider than he first believed, Nixon was reported planning to make a vigorous defense of his role. The speech to the nation—his second on the subject—comes at 8 p.m. CDT on all major television and radio networks, from Nixon's desk in the White House Oval Office.

A new Gallup Poll made public today showed only 31 per cent of those polled Aug. 3-6 by the George Gallup organization approved of the way Nixon was doing his job.

That was the lowest approval rating of any President since Harry S. Truman's last month in office, January, 1953, according to the Gallup group.

Another poll conducted by the Oliver Quayle organization for the National Broadcasting Co. showed that Sen. George S. McGovern, victim of a Nixon landslide last fall, might win over Nixon if an election were held now.

The Quayle survey, conducted in the last week of July, gave McGovern a lead of 51 per cent to 49 per cent over Nixon when participants were asked which they would vote for if "another election were being held right now."

Gallup said 1,435 adults in more than 300 localities were polled in its latest survey. Quayle said its poll covered 1,255 persons in 300 localities.

Asked about the current public sentiment today, McGovern said Nixon's low popularity was due to Watergate as well as other factors including failure to "get on top of our economic problems."

McGovern said, "I think the shock of a landslide win followed quickly by the revelations of Watergate... may be what it took to awaken the American people to the peril we were in."

This will be Nixon's second broadcast speech on the Watergate and his third detailed public statement on the scandal. The first was a broadcast April 30; the second a 4,000-word written statement May 22. Both were strong denials of any knowledge on his part of the burglary of Democratic headquarters at the Watergate or of the cover-up later of high-level involvement of figures in his administration and in his campaign organization.

The President conceded that he possibly might have moved quicker to get to the bottom of the scandal, and indicated that he should not have relied so heavily on reports given him by aides.

The "white paper" to be issued in conjunction with the public speech by Nixon is expected to rebut specific allegations made against Nixon during the Senate Watergate hearings—particularly by his former counsel, John W. Dean.

Dean testified in June that he believed Nixon was aware as early as last September of efforts to cover up involvement in the scandal, and to limit it to seven persons then under indictment. A special grand jury has been frequently reported ready to indict several more persons.

McGovern said today on the CBS-TV Morning News program that "we are confronted with a constitutional crisis now" because of administration "wrong-doing."

Nixon spent much of last week at Camp David preparing his speech and statement, and was back there today putting the finishing touches on them.

Much as Nixon would like to leave Watergate behind him, he still will be accountable while the Senate panel, starting in September, conducts its probe of "dirty tricks" during his re-election campaign, and while Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox continues a federal grand jury investigation.

AS US PLANES LEAVE

Cambodians Set To Battle Alone

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — American warplanes left Cambodian skies for good at 11 a.m. today, Cambodia time, ending history's longest air war and leaving President Lon Nol's government to fend for itself against rebel forces lying in wait outside Phnom Penh's jungled defense perimeter.

As the bombs stopped falling, the U.S. Embassy in Phnom Penh imposed new, tough security precautions. All visitors, American, Cambodian or otherwise, were being frisked at the front entrance and required to sign in.

Four-foot concrete block blast walls had been erected along outside walkways in the embassy compound and closed-circuit television monitors were installed at key points.

The Cambodian government has acknowledged that an estimated 10,000 Khmer Rouge (Cambodian rebel) troops are on the outskirts of Phnom Penh. The rebels two weeks ago battled to within three miles of the capital and the tiny Cambodian air force must now take over from the Americans the task of blasting their emplacements.

U.S. bombing and other combat air support for forces of the government of Cambodia has ended.

$2.1 Billion Spent

To support the U.S. air campaign in Indochina that began in 1964, the United States has spent an estimated $2.1 billion, ordered more than 300,000 B52 strikes and some 1.8 million fighter bomber raids, and lost more than 800 fliers dead from hostile action.

NEWSPAPER REPORTS

Magruder Passes Lie Detector Test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Job Stuart Magruder, who testified that his former boss, John N. Mitchell, gave the go-ahead for the Watergate burglary, was reported today to have taken and passed a lie detector test.

The Washington Star-News quoted reliable sources as saying Magruder submitted to the test between the time he first went to federal prosecutors April 14 and May 2, when he appeared before the Watergate grand jury.

The test was applied by a polygraph expert for the prosecutors, the newspaper said.

Magruder was said to have implicated Mitchell directly before the grand jury and publicly did so during testimony before the Senate Watergate committee later.

Magruder, who was deputy director to the Committee for Re-election of the President, when Mitchell was director, testified that the plan for bugging and wiretapping the Democratic headquarters at the Watergate got Mitchell's approval March 30, 1972.

Mitchell testified later and denied Magruder's allegation.

Mitchell, President Nixon's former attorney general, was in Washington today for undisclosed reasons. His successor at the Justice Department, Richard G. Kleindienst, testified Tuesday before a newly impaneled federal grand jury investigating matters related to Watergate.

The new grand jury plans to look into a wide range of matters such as so-called "dirty tricks" in the 1972 presidential campaign, abuses in fundraising, and also possible perjury and obstruction of justice in connection with settlement of a government antitrust suit against International Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Magruder was reported to have planned to enter a guilty plea Thursday morning to a single charge of obstructing justice in connection with his Watergate role, but his lawyer said this was "not correct."

It had been disclosed previously that Magruder had agreed to plead guilty to a single charge in exchange for his cooperation with federal investigators, who agreed to drop a variety of other charges against him.

The Senate committee is in recess until Sept. 10 and there were some reports that members' mail was becoming more negative to the televised hearings. Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, suggested this in an appearance in Madison, Wis., Tuesday in criticizing the hearings.

Agnew Volunteers Financial Records

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has offered to turn over all his financial records and meet personally with federal prosecutors looking into allegations that he accepted kickbacks from government contractors.

His position was outlined in a letter Tuesday to U.S. Attorney George Beall in Baltimore.

Beall had informed Agnew Aug. 1 that he was under investigation for possible tax fraud, extortion, bribery and conspiracy violations during the period before he became vice president and asked that financial papers dating back to Jan. 1, 1967 be made available to investigators.

"I am prepared to do so immediately," said Agnew. A week ago he told a news conference that the allegations were "damned lies."

Post Quotes Sources The Washington Post, quoting informed sources, said today prosecutors in Baltimore have been told by several Maryland engineering contractors that they made regular cash payments personally to Agnew in return for, choice state contracts while Agnew was Maryland's governor.

The newspaper also said it had been told that since Agnew became vice president some funds collected from businessmen ostensibly as campaign donations had been used to influence the awarding of federal contracts.

Agnew files to Colorado today for two public appearances—to help dedicate a dam near Littleton and address a union meeting in Denver.

Agnew said that by volunteering the information sought by Beall he was not acknowledging that the prosecutors or any grand jury had a right to compel access to his records or even to investigate possible wrongdoing on the part of a vice president in office.

"These are difficult constitutional questions which need not at this moment be confronted," he said.

"As I advised you many months ago, I wish in no way to impede your investigation. I have done nothing wrong. I have nothing to hide. And I have no desire save that justice be done speedily and efficiently."

UNDER PHASE IV THAW

Businesses Increasing Prices

By United Press International Steel manufacturers have asked the government to allow price increases they announced last spring.

The nation's two biggest steel companies, U.S. Steel and Bethlehem, said Tuesday they had notified the Internal Revenue Service they plan to raise prices $8 to $12 a ton for sheet and strip steel prices. Under Phase IV rules, major companies must give 30 days notice before raising prices.

Other steel companies, Armco Steel, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Jones Laughlin, Wheeling-Pittsburgh and National Steel, filed for increases earlier.

Two more auto companies asked for increases Tuesday on the 1974 models. General Motors asked for an increase of $102, or 2.7 per cent. Ford Motor Co. requested an increase averaging $106, or 2.4 per cent.

GM and Ford both said government safety and emission requirements were a factor in the increases.

Two Asked Earlier Chrysler Corp. and American Motors asked for price increases a day earlier.

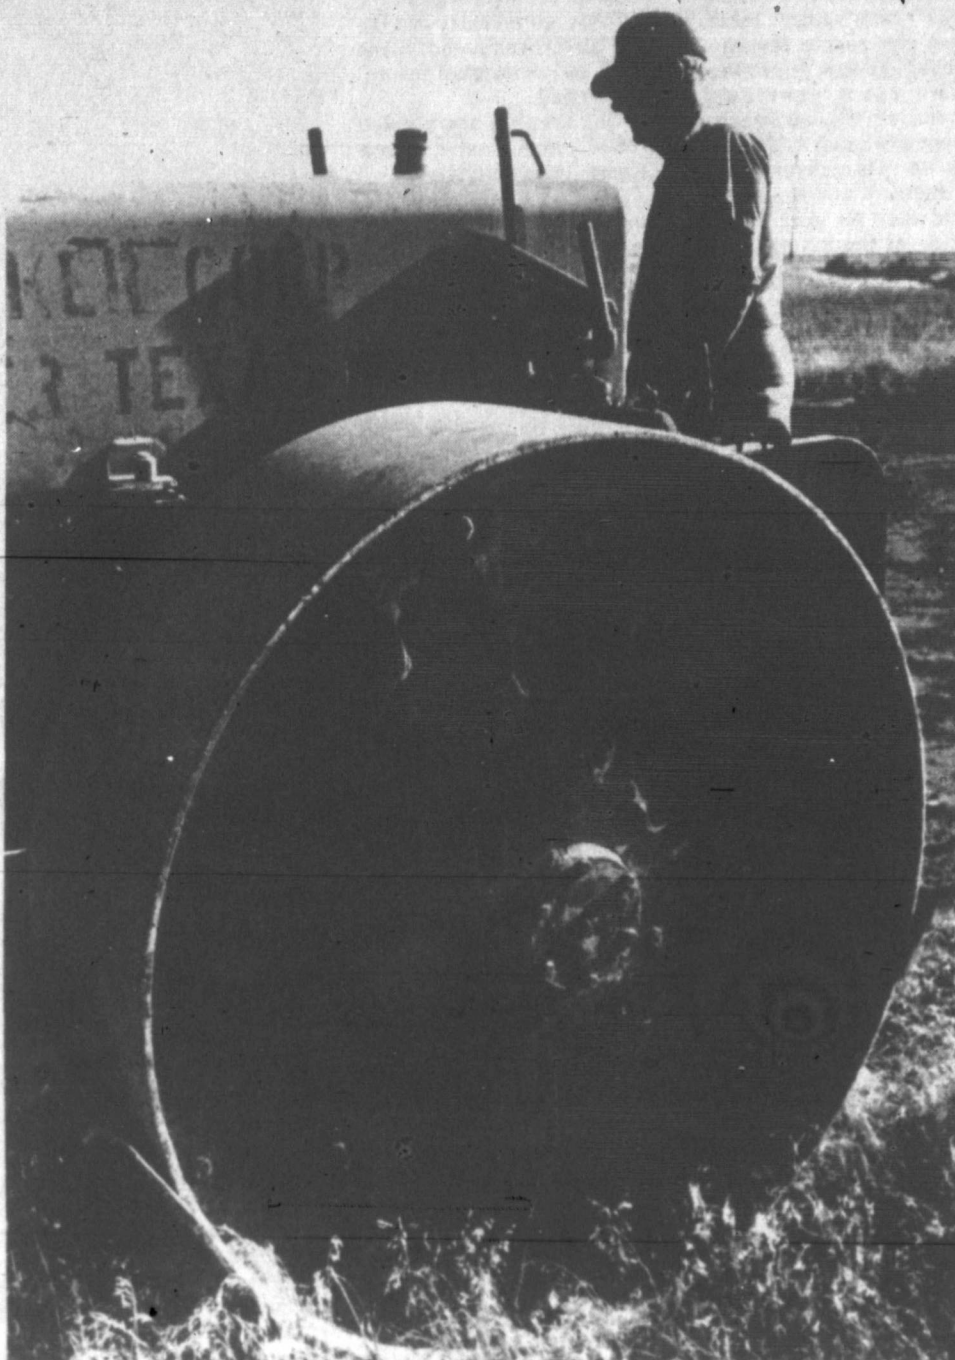

Charles Emeley, spokesman for the Cost of Living Council, said 20 to 25 companies had filed for price increases. Only companies with sales of $100 million or more a year must notify the government. Other companies can automatically raise prices, but by no more than the increase in their costs.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz repeated his desire for the freeze on beef prices to end immediately, instead of Sept. 12 as the administration has decided.

"It's no secret that I've opposed these price ceilings from the start," Butz said in a speech in Madison, Wis. "If I had my druthers, I'd take this beef price ceiling off right now."

Mark Kravitz, president of a group of steak restaurants in Connecticut, also called for an end to the beef freeze. He

FOR SADIST SLAYINGS

Jury Approves Murder Charges Against Youths

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Harris County grand jury Tuesday indicted Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18, for murder. The grand jury said the teen-agers took part in a three-year sex and sadism spree that led to the nation's worst mass murder of the 20th century.

Billy Ridinger, who walked to and from the grand jury room with a paper sack over his head, was the principal witness before the jury. Ridinger testified he barely escaped with his life from the torture chamber of Dean Allen Corll, 33.

Henley was indicted on three counts of murder, Brooks one. Each carried a $100,000 bond attached to it.

Henley and Brooks have implicated themselves in at least 27 murders, making their homosexual-death ring the nation's worst mass murder since 1894, when Chicago police entered a burned out building, found the remains of 200 corpses in the basement and connected Herman Webster Mudgett to the deaths. Mudgett was executed on May 7, 1896.

The suspects, who freely told police the locations of three burial grounds in Texas where the 27 bodies were recovered, have quit talking.

"They've been shut up giving anymore statements like they've been giving," Chambers County Sheriff Louis Otter said Tuesday. "They're on the silent list right now and aren't talking."

"That attorney they've gotten has put the hush on them. Of course, maybe they've already indicated all they know. Most of that was real good stuff, too. It led us right to the bodies."

A grand jury indicted the youths—Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18—on murder charges Tuesday.

Brooks was questioned by police Tuesday and his attorney, Ted Musick, was present during the interrogations.

"I have advised (Brooks) to keep quiet, not to make many statements," Musick said. "I want him to cooperate. I just want to be with him whenever he talks."

"He has been treated very well," the attorney said. "There has been no violence or abuse. I think he's been treated fairly." Attorney Percy Foreman, who has defended 1,200 capital police where the bodies were buried. Foreman has not been retained as counsel in the Henley-Brooks case.

Both Henley and Brooks have given police signed statements. They said they lured young boys with promises of sex, liquor and marijuana to the various homes of Corll who then sexually abused them, tortured them and killed them.

Henley said he took part in the torture and slayings. Brooks said he helped bury the victims but never killed anyone.

Henley shot Corll a week ago today. According to Henley, he, Corll, Ridinger and a 15-year-old girl were at one of Corll's homes sniffing paint. He said they passed out and when they awoke their nude bodies were tied to Corll's torture board. Corll, Henley said, was threatening to kill all of them, but Henley convinced Corll to set him free. He said he then shot Corll in self defense and called police, thus unraveling the bizarre tale that led to the uncovering of the 27 bodies.

It was later learned that the 15-year-old girl at Corll's home that night was Henley's fiancée and that he and the girl were planning to leave Houston within the next few weeks.

Ridinger gave his version of what happened that night to the grand jury in secret testimony Tuesday.

"I won't predict what the grand jury will do next," District Attorney Carol S. Vance said at the conclusion of the day long hearings. "There is a lot more to do. Officers are working very diligently. So is the medical examiner. This is a tremendous job. It will take a while to put all the pieces together."

cases but has only had one client executed, said the statements already volunteered by the defendants indicate they did not understand their constitutional rights. Foreman has not been retained as counsel in the Brooks-Henley case.

"The fact that they were out there at High Island helping dig up evidence against themselves, knowing that finding will result, suggests to me they can't possibly understand their rights or they wouldn't be there," Foreman said.

"Regardless of the fact they were taken before a magistrate and he has repeated the catechism of their rights, I don't think the young men understood their rights or they certainly would not be doing what they are doing... digging their own graves," Foreman said.

A MUMMICHOG MINNOW Astros Record 1st Space Birth

HOUSTON (UPI) — With the need for a possible rescue flight growing more remote, Skylab's astronauts today kept watch over an aquarium which recorded the first birth in spaceflight history—a minnow.

The space agency Tuesday reset the rescue launch—if required—to Sept. 24, two weeks later than previously announced. Skylab Program Director William C. Schneider said "there is no imminent need for rescue" and the setback would allow for more thorough testing of the Saturn IB and Apollo command ship at Cape Kennedy.

Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma favored the change.

"It looks like they've got a renewed burst of confidence down there," Bean said. "We feel that way up here."

Allende Threatens To Seize Trucks

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — The government of President Salvador Allende Tuesday gave striking truckers a tough ultimatum—end their 21-day walkout by midnight tonight or the armed forces will seize their idled vehicles.

The strike has virtually paralyzed parts of Chile's already precarious economy.

But even as the government delivered its ultimatum, the second in three days, leaders of Chile's 250,000 retailers and several medical associations said they would meet today to decide whether to join the walkout.

Further Signs Indicate New French Tests

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — France has resumed a close weather watch over the Mururoa Atoll test site, a further indication that new blasts in its controversial 1973 nuclear test program may not be far off, observers said today.

A KC135 meteorological plane based on Tahiti resumed its weather information-gathering flights Monday, the observers noted, and the flight followed the departure from Papeete harbor of four French naval units—a sign in the past that new tests are imminent.

Walkout Generates Strikes

A truckers' walkout last October generated nationwide strikes by dozens of trade and professional groups which lasted 26 days and almost brought down the Allende administration.

Interior Minister Orlando Letelier said Allende was still undecided on another problem—whether to accept the resignation of Jaime Faivovich as under secretary of transport.

Faivovich had offered to resign Tuesday. Truckers accused him of brutality demanded his ouster as a condition for negotiations with the government.

Heroin Thefts Studied

NEW YORK (UPI) — State authorities say they know which New York City policemen, working on the inside, helped steal $73 million worth of heroin and cocaine from police vaults—but are unable to indict the suspected officers without further evidence.

"We know who did it and how it was done. We know the names of the police officers involved," special state prosecutor Maurice Nadjari said Tuesday. "Some of them are still on the job and some are not."

There's one problem to know who is involved, and another problem to provide evidence good enough for the grand jury," he said. "We are still gathering evidence."

The (New York) Daily News said it had learned that six detectives were involved in the 1971-1972 theft of drugs previously seized by police, which included 67 pounds of heroin confiscated in the famous "French Connection" case of 1967, later the basis of a novel and a motion picture.

Kidnapings Still Continue In Argentina, Total At 115

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A young woman political activist was kidnaped and tortured over the weekend, police said Tuesday, and four other persons were abducted—bringing the number of kidnapings in Argentina this year to 115.

Police in the western province of Mendoza said Teresa Jesus Guardia, 23, a member of the left-leaning Peronist Youth (JP) organization, was kidnaped Sunday night, beaten and tortured. Her wrists and ankles were bruised from being bound, they said.

On Monday, Mendoza JP leader Cirilo Heredia, 17, announced that he had been kidnaped, tortured twice and warned to stop his political activities.

Although both Miss Guardia and Heredia swear allegiance to former President Juan D. Peron, the leftist JP has been feuding with the more conservative, "orthodox Peronist" General Workers Confederation (CGT), a five-million-member organization that was the backbone of Peron's support during his 1946-1955 presidency.

Buenos Aires provincial police and other sources close to the investigation of abductions Tuesday reported the kidnaping of Alberto Grondona, 17; Juan Alberto de Carlo and his son-in-law, Jorge Alberto Monaco; and Jose Galla. All reportedly were Argentines.

There was evidence that the kidnaping epidemic is beginning to cause serious economic problems for Argentina.

Finance Minister Jose B. Gelbard, apparently trying to minimize the impact of the kidnapings, said reports that foreign businessmen are fleeing Argentina rather than face the threat of kidnaping were part of "a campaign aimed at disturbing the process of reconstruction of the country."

Income Shows Large Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Personal income of Americans rose $7.3 billion in July, the Commerce Department reported today. The gain in June was $7.9 billion.

Factory payrolls increased $1.2 billion in July, about half the June rise of $2.3. The largest increases last month were in primary metals, transportation equipment, electrical equipment, printing and chemical industries.

Wages and salaries in July gained $4.7 billion, compared to a $6.2 billion rise in June. The slowdown came in industries related to commodity production, the report said.

Personal income for the first seven months of the year rose 9.9 per cent over the comparable period for 1972.

The over-all personal income gain in July compared with a rise in July, 1972, of $8.2 billion.

Business Today

by LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI)—Selling American-made watches in Switzerland is akin to carrying coals to Newcastle, but it's being done.

The Swiss have bought a few American watches for years just because they are interested in watchmaking everywhere. No American manufacturer, however, ever made a serious effort to market watches in Switzerland, home of the world's biggest horological industry, until Bulova began doing so in the past year. More recently, Microma, Inc., of Cupertino, Calif., contracted to supply quartz watch movements to a Swiss firm.

Bulova is not looked on as a foreign company by the Swiss because it has maintained factories and a research laboratory in the Alpine country for years.

Under the leadership of President Harry Henshel, grandson of founder Joseph Bulova, the New York company has become a global operator. It makes jeweled watches abroad but manufactures Accutron and Accuquartz timepieces in the United States. These are being sold successfully to Swiss consumers in competition with the finest output of their own factories.

Dollar Drop Helps
 Economically, Bulova is able to make the Accutron and Accuquartz movements in the United States because, although all watchmaking is labor intensive, the advanced tuning fork and quartz watches require much less assembly labor than spring-powered jeweled timepieces.

Henshel told United Press International devaluation of the dollar has helped him market watches to the Swiss. The general price scale in Switzerland currently is one of the highest in the world. The Accutron at $95 and up and the Accuquartz at $200 and up probably don't look as expensive to the Swiss as to Americans.

Another factor has been the success achieved by Bulova's designers in slimming down battery powered watches so they can be styled for the feminine market. When first introduced, they were of sizes that appealed mainly to men. Bulova is offering the Accuquartz in 12 styles this year, all slimmed down.

Henshel says Bulova expects to join the parade to the solid-state watch with a digital time display between now and next April.

No Monopoly Expected
 "We've got to be the world's biggest watch company by marketing through jewelers and safeguarding their interests," he said. Talk by some of his competitors that future marketing and servicing of watches may have to be switched from the jewelers to retail electronics shops annoys Henshel.

More than 50 million pieces of information have been radioed back to earth by Mariner 9, the first spacecraft to orbit Mars.

Senator Inouye Accustomed To Racial Slurs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The rifle grenade that shattered the right arm of Sen. Daniel K. Inouye and dashed a ghetto youth's hopes of becoming a surgeon seemed years and years away as the Hawaii Democrat reflected on the recent "little Jap" slur.

Inouye smiled wryly as he leaned back in a leather easy chair in the quiet of his Senate office this week and joked, "Not all Orientals are inscrutable."

Inouye pokes fun at himself now with the ease of a man whose pride in his ancestry has overcome the "dirty Jap" slurs he heard as a youth, even before World War II.

"I don't get uptight about it," Inouye says softly. "I can show you letters that refer to 'Jap bastard' long before Watergate. And if I get too shook up by that I have no business serving in the Senate."

Letters Pour In
 Inouye says, however, he was gratified when Washington attorney John J. Wilson apologized for describing Inouye as "that little Jap."—a remark that prompted angry reaction from members of Congress and the public.

Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., defended his colleague on the Senate Watergate Committee as "one of the most gallant of all Americans" who lost an arm as a U.S. Army combat soldier in Italy fighting "not only for the liberty of our country but the liberty of the free world."

More than 4,500 letters and telegrams poured into Inouye's office during the week that followed Wilson's remarks to a UPI reporter during a recess in the Watergate hearings.

One letter came from Wilson himself, who said, "No insult was intended and I never dreamed of it as a 'racial slur'. If the word 'Jap' is a term of opprobrium, I did not realize it and did not intend it as such."

Enlisted in Army
 Inouye indicated in an interview he has a special understanding for impromptu remarks. He had been heard to mutter "What a liar" after questioning Wilson's client, former presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman.

"I'd like to see the person come forward who can say he has never said a bad word or hasn't cussed under his breath," said Inouye, an apparent reference to his own highly-publicized remark.

Name-calling is something Inouye, 48, has become used to. He was born in a Japanese ghetto in Honolulu to immigrant parents, and knew the procedures used in high school to subtly segregate students of Japanese ancestry.

He was enrolled in a pre-med course at the University of Hawaii when prejudice against Japanese Americans crested after Japan bombed Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941. Inouye enlisted in the U.S. Army when President Roosevelt announced formation of combat teams of "loyal American citizens of Japanese descent."

Wins DSC
 Inouye's hopes of becoming a surgeon ended on April 21, 1945, fighting against German troops in northern Italy. He was shot in the stomach, then had his right arm shattered by a rifle-launched grenade.

Inouye, his right arm useless, tossed his own grenade left-handed into a machinegun nest and won the Distinguished Service Cross, second only to the Medal of Honor, to go with other citations.

The war was a turning point. Inouye, forced to give up thoughts of medicine, turned to law.

But he still knew the sting of ethnic slurs. He was en route home from a Michigan hospital after the war, and a barber near San Francisco refused to serve him, saying "We don't cut Jap hair."

Sees Remarkable Change
 "I wanted to hit him," Inouye wrote in his autobiography. "I could see myself—it was as though I were standing in front of a mirror. There I stood, in full uniform, the new captain's bars on my shoulders, four rows of ribbons on my chest, the combat infantry badge, the distinguished unit citations—and a hook where my hand was supposed to be. And he didn't cut Jap hair. To think I had gone through a war to save his skin—and he didn't cut Jap hair."

Inouye told him: "I'm sorry."

Several women on Inouye's staff burst into tears when the remark was reported on television and the Senator said, "I told them just wait. The people of the United States will respond in a very generous and warm fashion."

Dear Abby

Is intermarriage foe prejudiced?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I was brought up [and I brought my own children up] to "be friends with everybody, but to marry your own kind."

Would you consider this prejudice? I have respect for all religions and colors, and have friends of all denominations, but I do not condone or believe in intermarriage. I try to find the good in the individual, regardless of color, creed or origin. Marriage is difficult enough without the problems intermarriage presents. Would you please give me your opinion?

NOT PREJUDICED

DEAR NOT: I agree, marriage is difficult, and marrying one's "own kind" may possibly reduce the number of problems. [It may not.] But I believe in the right of every adult to marry whomever he wants. Were you to bring your children to try to find the good in the individual, regardless of color, creed or origin, and respect his right to make his own choice, then I would say you were not prejudiced.

DEAR ABBY: I wish you could tell me how to solve a problem which has been bothering me for a long time, but has gotten worse lately.

I am over 65 years old, and my eyesight is growing dim, even with eyeglasses. I do all my own housekeeping, cooking, washing, etc. My daughter in law comes here quite often, and she always points out a speck of dust I missed in a corner, or a few crumbs I overlooked on the table, or some fingerprints on my refrigerator.

I am not a careless housekeeper, Abby, but I just can't see as well as I used to, and her constantly finding something I overlooked makes me feel bad. Is there some way I can let her know how much this bothers me? When I know she's coming I look for these little things she might find, but my heart grows heavy because she always finds something I missed. Help me.

HURT

DEAR HURT: The next time "The Inspector" visits, greet her with: "If you should see a speck of dust, a crumb, or a fingerprint I overlooked, please don't mention it as I do the best I can, but my eyes aren't what they used to be." And if she forgets, remind her as often as necessary.

DEAR ABBY: I am desperately in need of someone to confide in. I am an 18-year-old girl whose parents were divorced two years ago. I am living with my father who has recently started dating an attractive young girl. She is 21, and my father is 41.

My problem is that this girl has been making passes at my boy friend when my father is not around. She is so obvious. I have noticed it myself.

My father is very much in love with this girl and is even contemplating marriage. He is very wealthy, and it is my gut feeling that this girl is just after his money.

How can I warn my father without destroying his ego? NAMELESS IN TORRENCE

DEAR NAMELESS: You can't. Love is voluntarily blind. If your suspicions are correct, you can only hope your father catches on before he gets hooked.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90060. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90060.

The Kids Have Done It Again

Hats Are Fall Fashion Headliners

By Helen Hennessy
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Hats are back. This time it's fact and no longer just a milliner's wishful thinking.

For Fall '73 hats are the accessory that changed the whole picture. The new clothes cry out for them as the final touch of chic.

There is euphoria in the millinery industry which has suffered badly since the World War II era when defense jobs made feminine frippery seem foolish.

"I'm having a wonderful season," designer Thomas Hann said.

"In 1972 there were 14 million hats sold — an accurate figure based on union labels made to go into hats. And the industry expects that this year there will be a 20 per cent increase to about 16 million," the designer said.

"Another amazing thing," he added, "is the number of stores now opening up millinery departments. Boutique shops, too, are adding a lot of hats to their stock."

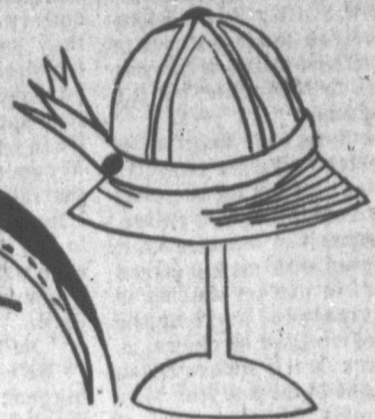

Hann said that in Woodstock, N.Y. (the home of the historic rock concert) some of the kids pay as high as $75 for leather hats and then wear them with hand-painted jeans.

In London the kids are wearing "costume" hats, exaggeratedly bedecked. In Paris they're buying old clothes and old hats. It's a fad, of course, but it sure keeps the hat right in sight. And at the Paris ready-to-wear collections, great-looking soft hats were featured — hats that will easily sell here.

"I do well with my suede and leather," Hann said. But this year I'm using fake leather because the price of the real thing is prohibitive now.

He believes that making personal appearances in the various stores that sell his line is important. "When I go to Philadelphia," he said, "I even do a morning talk show. And meeting and talking with the women is one way to learn what they want to wear.

These sketches by designer Thomas Hann show the type of hats that are popular with fashions for Fall '73. Ultra suede pale pink cloche (left) has

"One sure indication that hats are big with kids," he said, "many who never wore a hat before, is that my two nieces — about 13 years old — wrote me for panama hats to wear while riding. They never asked me for a hat before even though they could have them for nothing. They just didn't want them."

This designer believes that women used to feel they looked old when they wore hats. But now that the youngsters are wearing them mom will wear them as well.

"It's a good sign," he said.

In explanation of the bidding, South was Sir Lancelot, the peerless knight and bridge player. North was Sir Dinadan, the least adept knight and worst bridge player.

Dinadan's bidding was usually sound, so after the opening two-bid Sir Lancelot used the convention just invented by Sir Easley of the ebony wood to check for aces and went right to seven no-trump.

The wily Mordred opened the three of spades. Lancelot checked dummy quickly. He saw that Dinadan would have had a reasonable play at seven spades if he would know enough to try a ruffing finesse in clubs, but that seven no-trump could only succeed if both missing kings were in the same hand.

Lancelot ran off six spades and four hearts without any fanfare. His own discards were the three and queen of clubs and seven-eight-nine of diamonds.

Sir Greeth, sitting East, had no discarding problems and Lancelot decided that Mordred did hold both kings. Mordred's discards in order were the 3-6 diamonds, deuce of clubs, 10 of diamonds and finally a slig s painful 10 of clubs.

Which king was now unguarded? If Gawaine had been West there would have been no problem. The club king would be all alone. Against Mordred it probably was the reverse so Lancelot led a diamond to his ace; dropped the king and had won another victory.

Public Not Certain Of Attorney's Role

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of a series of five articles dealing with a public opinion survey on criminal justice in Texas, in connection with a 30-month, four-state study called Project STAR. The findings will be used in developing education and training programs for criminal justice personnel. This article deals with public attitudes toward prosecutors and court-appointed defense attorneys.

AUSTIN — Some Texas feel prosecutors are excessively concerned with obtaining convictions at the expense of justice and, like judges, to be a bit too prone to use their office for furthering their political aims.

Defense attorneys, on the other hand, play a role little

Nader Hits AEC Coverup Of Problems

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader charges Tuesday the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) has practiced "a massive coverup of most urgent reactor safety problems" for years.

Nader, leadoff witness at a Pennsylvania State Insurance Department hearing into the insurance risk posed by nuclear power plants, said a major accident in a nuclear power plant could create a disaster area "equal to that of the state of Pennsylvania."

Nader said his charge stemmed from a secret AEC study done in 1965.

Nader and the Union of Concerned Scientists, of Cambridge, Mass., said they had hundreds of AEC internal documents relating to nuclear power plant safety.

"These voluminous internal files demonstrate that a massive coverup of most urgent reactor safety problems has been practiced by the AEC for years," Nader said.

Nader said the AEC "is licensing reactors in the face of overwhelming scientific evidence that the safety of these complex machines has not been proven."

He said that "if nuclear power plants were safe, they would be insurable."

Utilities and insurance companies will not take the financial risk of nuclear power plant accidents.

"But the public is exposed, for the most part without their knowledge or consent, to the enormous safety hazards of nuclear power plants," Nader said.

Dr. Henry Kendall, a professor of physics at MIT and the hearing's second witness, said a typical nuclear power plant contains radioactive material "equivalent to the fallout from several thousand Hiroshima nuclear weapons."

Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner Herbert Denenberg, who is conducting the hearing, Monday made public an AEC report which he said indicated a nuclear power plant accident could claim a maximum of 45,000 lives and cause 100,000 injuries.

understood by the public, which believes the defenders are wrong to defend their clients to the best of their ability when the client is known to be guilty. Thus defense counsel often is considered to have greater concern for his client's freedom than for the cause of justice.

These findings emerge from the report of a statewide public opinion survey conducted by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Officer Standards and Education with funding assistance by Gov. Dolph Briscoe's Criminal Justice Council.

Understanding of the role of both defense and prosecution is indicated by the cross-section sampling of 759 Texans. The survey found only 73 per cent offering an opinion on the job performance of prosecutors, only 60 per cent on court-appointed defense attorneys.

Seventeen per cent rated prosecutors as doing a poor job, 12 per cent the defenders; 26 per cent rated prosecutor performance as good, with 19 per cent so rating the defense attorneys.

As with most segments of the criminal justice system, young people are more prone to criticize prosecutors, although persons with more education also tend to rate them less favorably.

Mexican Americans are less inclined to criticize them (12 per cent) than either blacks or Anglos (19 and 18 per cent).

The same general rule applies to defenders, who are not as well known as prosecutors. Prosecutors are felt to be somewhat lax in prosecuting offenses that they observe to be frequently violated by the public. They also are criticized for not taking advantage of opportunities to prevent crime.

Generally, the public feels more attention should be given to prosecuting sex offenses and those relating to pornography and gambling, with less attention to prosecuting marijuana offenses.

Defenders get higher marks for being able to recognize and deal with emotional orders than do prosecutors.

Watergate Uncovers Lawyers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the unexpected spinoffs of the Watergate affair was the education of the public on the soft-spoken group whose influence affects just about every American's daily life — the Washington lawyers.

In the Senate Watergate hearings, the lawyers tended occasionally to upstage their clients, but traditionally the Washington lawyer prefers a low profile.

Usually, his work is done out of range of the TV cameras, in the office of a congressman or a senator or a White House aide.

The reason is simple: basically, most Washington lawyers are lobbyists for corporate interests. They are paid for their ability to guide a client through the maze of the government bureaucracy.

Their critics argue that at times their skill verges on the immoral if not the illegal.

Revolving-door Syndrome

Ralph Nader, a Harvard-trained lawyer himself, once described the workings of Washington corporate lawyers who battled him on consumer interests this way:

"They are masters of the exparte contact, the private deals, and tradeoffs, the greasing of the corporate wheels, and the softening of the bureaucrats will."

The most frequent criticism of Washington lawyers is the "revolving door" the firms maintain with the government. Many of the most influential Washington lawyers have spent time in high government positions, or as advisers to officials — including Presidents.

Clark Clifford, one of the most prestigious Washington lawyers, was an adviser to Presidents Truman, Kennedy and Johnson, and in the final months of the Johnson administration, he served as secretary of defense.

Abel Fortas, a one-time partner in the influential firm of Arnold and Porter, was President Johnson's personal adviser. The late Dean Acheson, a former secretary of state, was a member of the largest law firm in Washington, Covington and Burling, which reportedly charges its blue ribbon clients up to $250 a hour for its legal work.

Role More Visible

This type of easy access into the ranks of government is convertible into influence once the lawyer returns to private practice, the critics argue.

On a lower level, it is not uncommon for a commissioner of a regulatory agency to finish his term and then appear before the agency in the role of a private lawyer representing a corporate client.

The reverse is equally common — a Washington lawyer specializing in corporate interests being appointed to a regulatory agency, and thus being called on to regulate corporate interests, possibly including some former clients.

In Congress, the Washington lawyer's role is more visible. As a lobbyist he provides a constant flow of information to the lawmakers on issues his clients either support or oppose.

In cases such as the fight over labeling cigarettes as a health hazard, or in the fierce fight over auto safety, critics argued that Washington lawyers put their clients' interests ahead of the public interest by opposing strict regulation.

Social Security Q & A

(Have you a question about social security? Address it to Howard L. Weatherly, Branch Manager, Social Security Administration, 1541 N. Hobart, Pampa, Texas 79065. You will receive an answer in this column or by mail.)

By HOWARD L. WEATHERLY Q. My daughter, who is blind, applied for social security disability benefits but was denied because she had not worked in the last six years. However, she had worked long enough to qualify for retirement benefits when she is 62. Have there been any changes whereby she might qualify for benefits now?

A. Yes. A person who is blind need not only be fully insured to qualify for disability benefits. You should contact the nearest social security office for further information.

Q. How long does a person have to wait before disability benefits are payable?

A. There is a five-month waiting period before disability benefits are payable. No payments can be made for this five-month waiting period.

Q. I am blind, age 42, and I have worked at odd jobs for about 15 years. I checked and I will be able to receive retirement benefits at age 62. Is there any benefit I can get now? A. Social security does pay a disability benefit. The law has been changed so that persons disabled by reason of blindness may qualify for disability benefits if they are fully insured only. You should contact your nearest social security office for additional information.

IN RUSSIAN GAMES

Athletes Set For Opening Festivities

MOSCOW (UPI) — Nearly 4,200 athletes will begin carrying the colors of 73 countries today at the opening ceremonies of the seventh edition of the World University Games, an event that the host Russians are calling "the greatest sports spectacular" in this country's history.

Eighteen-year-old Cathy Carr of Albuquerque, N.M., a two-time gold medal winner in the 1972 Summer Olympics at Munich, will carry the Stars and Stripes of the United States, which boasts the games' largest delegation—over 300 student-athletes.

There are nine different sports—with the U.S. entered in all—basketball, track and field, swimming, fencing, volleyball, water polo, gymnastics, wrestling and tennis.

Typically, the U.S. will bear its strongest aggregations in basketball (led by North Carolina State All America David Thompson), track and swimming (led by Miss Carr and AAU champions Mark Chaffield of Glendale, Calif., and Steve McFarland of Amarello, Tex.)

BENDING OVER FRONTWARDS to get ready for competition, Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox, left, and Nolan Ryan of the California Angels go through loosening-up rituals.

Cards End Skid With 9-5 Victory

By United Press International
The St. Louis Cardinals have learned to live with their mistakes and are a better team because of it.

Stretching their lead in the National League's Eastern Division to three games, the Cardinals snapped out of an eight-game losing streak Tuesday night with a 9-5 victory over the Houston Astros.

They have rebounded from adversity before. After dropping 12 of their first 13 games, the Cardinals went on a tear and finally took over first place on July 22 despite their horrendous start.

Manager Red Schoendienst wasn't about to shake up the St. Louis lineup after the latest string of defeats.

"There was no pressure, we were just losing," Schoendienst said. "It was a little bit of everything. We weren't playing good ball and we were playing good teams. There are no excuses about losing."

Junior Golf Low Gross To McIntire

Wiley McIntire fired a five-over-par 76 to capture low gross honors Tuesday in Pampa Country Club's annual Junior Golf Tournament.

Curt Beck carded a 79 and captured low-net honors for 18 holes with 70. Scott White was second low net with 71 and Dusty Hudson was third with 74.

In girls' six-hole play, Alice Kirby finished with a low-net 37, tying her with Diane Arthur. Miss Kirby won low-net honors on the first hole of sudden death. Amy McMullen was third low net with 44.

In American League games, Oakland edged Boston, 1-0. Kansas City tripped Cleveland, 8-5. New York downed slumped California, 7-2. Milwaukee downed Chicago, 5-4. Minnesota routed Detroit, 12-1, and Baltimore upended Texas, 12-10.

Ferguson Jenkins dropped his sixth game in his last seven decisions as the Braves handed the Cubs their ninth straight defeat. And after being taken out by Manager Whitey Lockman in a three-run fifth inning by the Braves, he displayed his feelings by throwing four bats, one at a time, onto the playing field from the dugout to indicate his disgust at being removed from the game after he walked three of the six batters he faced in the fifth inning and yielded a two-run single to Mike Lum.

FOR $725,000 Johnny Sues Colts

By United Press International
John Unitas hasn't forgiven the Colts for the treatment he received during his final season in Baltimore last year.

Unitas, traded to the San Diego Chargers after spending the last two-thirds of the 1972 season on the bench, Tuesday filed a $725,000 suit against the Colts for "malicious breach of a 10-year contract" and "publicly humiliating" him.

Unitas had a personal services contract with the Colts which called for a $30,000 front-office job after his career was over. Unitas, in the suit, said that General Manager Joe Thomas made it clear he did not want him with the Colts in any capacity.

Thomas was unavailable for comment and a Colt spokesman would say only that the case was being referred to attorneys.

Richardson Arrested
Elsewhere, Glover Richardson, veteran wide receiver of the Cleveland Browns, was arrested last weekend for a variety of traffic violations and for possession of marijuana, police said Tuesday. Richardson was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, driving without a license, driving while intoxicated and the drug charge. He was freed on a personal bond.

The Browns, meanwhile, acquired tight end Jan White—who announced his retirement from football two weeks ago—from Buffalo for a draft choice.

Joe Woolley, fired as head coach of the Ball High School team in Galveston, Tex., for altering transcripts of two Oklahoma freshmen, was hired as an assistant coach by the Houston Oilers. Woolley was hired by General Manager Sid Gillman as quality control coach, replacing Garland Boyette, who came out of retirement Monday to play linebacker again.

"All I asked for was an opportunity," Woolley said. "I made a mistake. I admitted it. Now I want to get to work and prove myself."

The Denver Broncos obtained veteran linebacker Bill Laskey from the Colts for a draft choice and fullback Eddie Ray, who missed three weeks of practice with the Atlanta Falcons, was fined $2,100 when he finally reported Monday.

Johnson Will Play
The New York Giants said that star running back Ron Johnson, held out of the club's first two pre-season games, would play against the New York Jets Sunday. Joe Namath, used sparingly by the Jets thus far, is expected to see considerable action at quarterback Sunday in the battle for football supremacy in New York.

In pre-season action this week, Pittsburgh is at Philadelphia Thursday night and Washington is at Buffalo on Friday. In Saturday games, Baltimore plays Detroit at Memphis. St. Louis is at Denver. Houston takes on Green Bay at Milwaukee. Minnesota is at Kansas City. Chicago at Miami. New England at Atlanta. New Orleans at Dallas and Oakland plays Los Angeles at Berkeley, Calif.

ML Owners Meet Today To Discuss Inter-League Contests For Next Season

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Major league baseball owners met today to discuss a question that may have already been settled—will there be inter-league play next year?

The answer right now looks like no.

National League officials met for more than two hours Tuesday in a session that was supposed to have been secret and, when they came away, the majority still were opposed to the American League-backed proposal.

"The general feeling is that it would be best not to disturb the type of divisional play we have now," said Walter O'Malley, board chairman of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Nothing much was accomplished," said John McAlle, president of the Montreal Expos. "Everything is status quo."

That meant that when Allan H. "Bud" Selig, president of the Milwaukee Brewers, got up today to recommend strongly a plan by which American League clubs would oppose National League clubs in regular season play, he was already starting under a handicap.

Selig, American League President Joe Cronin, National League President Chub Feeney and Francis Dale, board chairman of the Cincinnati Reds, are members of the special inter-league committee.

Selig and Cronin favor inter-league games. Dale and Feeney oppose them.

The leagues were scheduled to meet in joint session this morning and then adjourn to separate rooms for individual meetings. While inter-league play was high on the agenda, the owners also were expected to attend to certain "housekeeping chores" and pay more than passing notice to the San Diego situation.

San Diego area officials were scheduled to go to the California Supreme Court today to seek an injunction against the sale and movement of the Padres to Washington. Similar requests have been turned down in two lower courts.

The population of the Caracas metropolitan area in Venezuela is over 2 million.

WTSU Deep In Backs But Need Signal Caller

(This is part of a series of stories on the 1973 West Texas State University football team — OFFENSIVE BACKS.)

CANYON — With their top seven rushers returning from 1972, West Texas State University's Buffaloes appear ready to explode on the ground in 1973. A proven senior college passer isn't in the group of offensive backs, but should one develop from among three candidates, a balanced attack will be had.

The Buffalo coaching staff spent considerable time during spring drills working on the passing game from the I formation. The Buffaloes led the Missouri Valley Conference in rushing yardage last fall — 260.3 yards per game.

Coach Gene Mayfield used the Wishbone - T offense last year, but it is hoped the I formation will provide a better balance between running and throwing.

Heading the list of backs returning to the fold is Billy Pritchett, who was named this summer to the Pro Football Weekly All - American first team for 1973.

The 6-4, 230-pound Van Vleck senior was also named this summer by the New York Jets scouts as the nation's top collegiate running back.

Pritchett rushed through 11 foes for 1,128 yards two years ago as a sophomore. He was injured last year and missed the final four and one-half games — limiting his rushing total to 436 yards. His 1,564 net yards in two years makes him the eighth leading rusher in the school's history.

Both Pritchett and junior Cole Fraley of Borger were named to the 1973 pre-season All-Missouri Valley Conference team. Fraley, a 205-pounder, led the team in rushing last fall with 794 yards. He was named to the second all-conference team, along with Pritchett, and was picked as the MVC's First Year Player of the Year.

Also returning is Jimmy Lisle, who ripped for 405 yards last fall. Rick Schleider, Clois Burgess, Mike Wartes and Mickey Matthews. Schleider, the stocky 175-pounder, raced for 341 yards in varsity games last fall as a freshman. He scored three touchdowns against New Mexico State and raced 59 yards to score against North Texas State.

Burgess, a former Amarillo Caprock player, started the season's final four games at fullback after Pritchett was injured and gained 275 yards. Wartes, who started most of the time last year at quarterback, had 125 net yards. Freshman Matthews was the seventh leading ground gainer with 62 net yards. He scored the winning touchdown against North Texas State in a 17-14 victory.

Pritchett underwent surgery before spring training and missed that session, but is expected to be running at full strength.

With Pritchett at full speed, the Buffalo coaching staff is presented with a rather nice problem — where to play the talented running backs. If Pritchett is at full strength he will probably play both fullback and tailback in the I formation.

Fraley and Lisle can both operate from the tailback position, as can the elusive Schleider. Any of that threesome could play wingback, as can Matthews. The 176-pound Matthews started at wingback during much of the spring practice.

The quarterback job is still up for grabs between Wartes, letterman Bob Sweat and junior college transfer Don Nava. Sweat started most of the spring, but had a shoulder operation in May and his right throwing arm has not been tested under fire since then.

Wartes, who had a standout spring game, was the regular Buff quarterback for most of last year. Nava threw 25 touchdown passes in two years of junior college football.

The Buffalo passers completed only 38 of 130 passes last fall and 15 of those attempts were intercepted. With the change of formation and addition emphasis placed on that phase of the game, it is hoped the passing game is improved as the Buffaloes attempt a run at the Missouri Valley Conference championship.

Superdupermart

Europeans may steal a march on the United States — a "hypermarkets," to be exact. According to international retail consultant, Paul K. Halstead, a hypermarket — the word can be roughly translated as "superdupermarket" — could whip any American shopping center in a face-to-face competition.

A hypermarket in a self-service, mass merchandising operation of about 100,000 square feet that combines a large supermarket and general merchandise under one roof.

What distinguishes a hypermarket from the American variety is an aggressive discounting policy and extensive use of containerized display to reduce handling costs. Also, with high volume and low overhead, management can afford to hire qualified store personnel.

There are more than 600 hypermarkets in Europe now, and within five years, predicts Halstead, the concept will be transplanted to the U.S. to compete with American shopping centers.

'Beep' Dollars Goodbye

For the first time in history, the rate the government spends money is being clocked, literally, by a "federal spending clock" located in the national headquarters of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Every 1.2 seconds a dial indicates the expenditure of another $10,000, the average annual income of an American family. Every 12.6 seconds a light flashes, indicating the spending of another $100,000. And every two minutes and six seconds, a "beep" is heard, signalling that the federal government has just dropped another million smackers.

The "beep," incidentally, goes off about 700 times a day. By the end of the current fiscal year, the rapidly changing digital figures on top of the clock will have registered a total of some $250 billion.

Meanwhile, over at the Census Bureau, there's another clock that records the arrival every few seconds of one more citizen who will spend most of his lifetime making the other clock run.

Nationalize Petroleum?

We never cease to be amazed at the working of the socialist mind. Try this on for size.

With governmental planners having created a gasoline shortage, some fuzzy thinker has sent us a bumper sticker screaming "Let's Nationalize Petroleum."

If that's not calling for more of the "hair of the dog that bit you," we don't know what would qualify. Drunks, alcoholic or the state-worshipping kind, never seem to learn.

That bumper sticker would make sense if it were modified to read: "Let's Nationalize Petroleum - Like We Nationalized the Postal Service - and With the Same Results."

No Merit In Fussy

A Washington lawyer managed to create a headline flap by referring to the distinguished gentleman from the far-out State of Hawaii as "that little Jap."

The implication was that a racial slur was intended. No one can read another's mind as to intent, but we do not think the word "Jap" conveys any stigma.

True, the word was in common use during World War II, but even when directed at a known enemy, it was — at worst — a neutral reference — a headline and communications convenience.

In a nation that includes many races, we find it heartening that Negroes do not resent being called "blacks," that an Irishman will no longer slug you when you call him "Mick," and that a $pude doesn't mind being addressed as such.

What Exercise Is Really Best?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — You often recommend exercise and proper diet. It is not difficult to find samples of adequate diets and proper foods to eat for good health, but what about quality and quantity of good exercise?

Do you advocate exercise routines such as the publicized Royal Canadian Air Force exercise plan of 11 minutes a day, or do you consider this amount of time to be insufficient? What distances of walking would you recommend for optimum benefits at what ages?

Dear Reader — The RCAF exercise plan (Five BX Plan for Men or Ten BX Plan for Women) has many attractive features. Almost anyone can crowd its short duration of exercise into a busy schedule. The gradual increase in the level of activity is important. Any exercise program should begin at a low level and be gradually increased to the desired level to maintain one's physical fitness. Crash programs and overdoing it are the usual causes of trouble during exercise programs.

Some doctors have criticized the back arching and bending and twisting exercises in the RCAF plan. Individuals who have any spine problems should have a careful examination before engaging in these types of exercises.

I am not enthusiastic about the RCAF plan's gradual increase in the speed of exercising. I prefer to have people exercise at a low or moderate level well below their maximum capacity, and then sustain this level of exercise for longer periods of time as their fitness is developed. It's better to walk three miles, if you can, than run in place at a rapid rate for one to five minutes.

For the general public at all ages, I recommend simple walking. Almost everyone in reasonably good health can walk 10 or 15 minutes at a comfortable rate. The walking period can be increased gradually. Most people should try to maintain a level of one-and-a-half miles a day for a minimal level — done daily without fail.

Before progressing to other exercises, one should gradually develop the ability to walk three miles in one hour. It may require several weeks to acquire this level of fitness. Individuals who can't achieve this level without difficulty should not engage in anything more strenuous without a medical evaluation. Individuals who tolerate this amount of exercise well can, if they wish, begin a jogging or running program in the middle of such an exercise effort.

About half way through a 30-minute walk, they may jog 100 steps counting when the left foot hits the ground. The number of steps can then be increased at a slow rate, say 10 steps a day until gradually the running or jogging program may reach as high as 15 minutes, or in young, healthy people may be extended. In this way, the amount of exercise can be increased gradually and safely.

Don't try to jog or run too fast. Jog within a rate of 50 to 100 steps a minute, counting as one step each time the left foot hits the ground or surface. Most of the people who get into trouble try to set speed records or compete against themselves or someone else. The increased speed can push the work of the heart beyond the safe level.

At the time Prince Sihanouk still ruled the country, it almost appears that he, the North Vietnamese and we had a gentlemen's agreement. They would not blow the whistle on our violations of Cambodian neutrality if we wouldn't complain too much about theirs.

This ended with the topping of Sihanouk by the army and President Nixon's decision to Province. From that base, they could easily wipe out targets in Japan, South Korea and Taiwan.

At the same time as Red China is pushing ahead with missile development, Soviet Russia is preparing to launch its first aircraft carrier. A 30,000-ton vessel with an 800-foot flight deck is being built at the Nikolayev Nesenke shipyard on the Black Sea. The vessel will probably be completed this year.

According to syndicated columnist Robert Allen, western military experts view this newest addition to Russia's growing sea power as compelling evidence "of the Kremlin's policy of extending its military might and influence far beyond its own borders."

Clearly neither the Soviet Union nor Red China is preparing for an "era of peace." Both governments are still bent on aggression and conquest.

COMMUNIST WEAPONS ADVANCES

Although U.S. experts had originally predicted that Red China would not develop its first operational intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) until 1975, all indications now are that Peking will test an ICBM this year. By 1975, they will almost certainly have a considerable number of ICBMs.

Communist China already has nuclear warheads for its missiles. These warheads have undergone a series of tests, the latest last March, and were also developed much more rapidly than expected.

Although Red China began weapons testing later than France, the Chinese quickly surpassed France in nuclear capability.

The Red Chinese have already deployed a number of nuclear-armed intermediate range ballistic missiles (IRBM). These missiles have a range of 800 miles and about 20 of them are deployed in Shensi knock out the Cambodian sanctuary in one fell blow.

We can see now, however, that all it accomplished was to seal the doom of Cambodia.

The situation finally came to a head this year when Congress, in a belated display of courage and conviction and exercise of its constitutional duties, ordered a bombing cut-off date of Aug. 15.

Already the administration is attempting to saddle Congress with the blame for the expected fall of the Lon Nol government — a government that did not, does not now and never would exist without the support of American bombers.

One hopes Congress' shoulders are strong enough to shoulder this responsibility.

One also hopes that the accidental obliteration of the town of Neak Luong by American bombers, one of the few towns in Cambodia not held by the Communists, is the last such tragedy in a decade of tragedies in Southeast Asia.

One hopes, finally, that we are reaching an end to the lying.

Open Gates Sought On Decisions

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Even apart from Watergate, the past three months at the White House have been a difficult period.

Since the resignations of H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Melvin Laird have made a series of moves to open the gates and bring more people in on decisions.

Haig sees that more men and women see the President and that he's briefed on a wider variety of news and commentary.

An effort has been made to decentralize decisions, get officials to do more on their own, not wait for orders from the top to get them started.

But President Nixon, while he sees a wider array of visitors, still likes to seclude himself.

Men on the White House staff used to taking explicit orders from Haldeman, Ehrlichman or Dean tend to wait to be told what to do. Rather than searching out and bring up proposals, or taking action they know is needed, they wait for orders more often than the new regime likes. As a result officials in close contact with the White House complain about a new lack of decision or direction.

Mr. Nixon himself has turned more cautious. Those near to the President remark on how very deeply he is feeling the hurt of these days and how carefully he goes about concealing his feelings. This trend has been noted also by those with White House connections who are not personally fond of the President. Intimates say this hurt has caused Mr. Nixon to seek even more seclusion than before.

There have been reports that the "old crew," the holdovers from the Haldeman-Ehrlichman era, have banded into a clique and are sabotaging the new Haig-Laird-Bryce Harlow regime. Insiders who bore no love for the old group say this is not so.

In some cases there has been some confusion because the old-timers aren't sure where they fit in or how they're supposed to operate under the change. And, as noted above, some are so used to taking orders under the old rigid system they're somewhat at a loss under the new.

But a goodly number of this group know and respected Haig when he was with Dr. Henry Kissinger — even during the worst of the Haldeman-Kissinger fights.

According to White House sources, Haig has taken over in a level-handed way. There are no longer a few favorites. He thinks of himself as a channel, not an arbiter.

Laird's influence also is running high, despite some rumors to the contrary. But it has been slower than expected in developing because of the amorphous situation at the White House and because of the difficulties he's having in developing an acceptable domestic program in this period of economic crisis. But Laird has already had his way in some crucial issues.

John Connally became unhappy because there was no clear-cut idea of what should be done and what he should do. He is a man who wants action — a great deal of action.

Prof. Philip Kurland: Parochial Aid Not Barred by First Amendment

Prof. Philip Kurland of the University of Chicago law school, one of the nation's outstanding constitutional lawyers, believes the Supreme Court has left the door open to public aid for private and religious schools. Among the primary areas of Prof. Kurland's expertise is that part of the First Amendment dealing with religion.

Q: The Washington Star-News recently reported that the Office of Economic Opportunity has shelved plans for a "school voucher" experiment in New Hampshire. Under the test, parents would have had a choice between public and private — including religious — schools.

The Star-News said both state and federal lawyers had decided that a series of Supreme Court decisions in June meant any government payment to parents of children attending parochial schools would be unconstitutional. Do you agree?

A: No. The Supreme Court decisions specifically left open the constitutionality of the G.I. Bill, and the New Hampshire voucher proposal was essentially the same as the G.I. Bill. In other words, you are given money to go to the school of your choice, without regard as to whether it's public or private, religious or non-religious.

Q: Do you think, then, that the Supreme Court would approve a voucher plan such as New Hampshire's?

A: Not necessarily. Some members of the Court seem to see a difference between aid to private elementary and secondary schools on the one hand, and assistance for colleges and universities on the other. A child is assumed to be more subject to the influence of his teacher than is a college or graduate student.

Most private elementary and secondary schools are religiously oriented. This is not true of most private colleges. So aid to all private schools much more clearly benefits religion than aid to all private colleges.

Q: But can't the same thing be said about fire protection for private schools? That is, the effect is to aid religion when it is given to religious schools.

And because of the large number of parochial primary and secondary schools, isn't there more actual aid to religion in their case than in the case of religious colleges and universities?

A: Yes. This is why I feel the Court does not yet have a satisfactory doctrinal basis underlying its decisions in the religion area.

Q: Didn't Thomas Jefferson once say there should be a wall of segregation between church and state?

A: Yes, but the Constitution doesn't say that. The Constitution says: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Q: What do you think is the correct interpretation of those words?

A: That there shall be no law using religion as a test or as a basis of classification, that nothing government does to help or hinder any individual or institution be done on the basis of the religious affiliation or belief or lack of it of the individual or institution.

Leftovers

Leftovers are such humble things, we would not serve them to a guest, and yet we serve them to our Lord, who deserves the very best. We give to Him leftover time, stray minutes here and there. Leftover cash we give to Him, such few coins as we can spare, we give our youth unto the world, to hatred, lust and strife; then in declining years we give to Him, the remnant of our life.

A Boy to His Dad

To get his goodnight kiss he stood beside my chair one night and raised an eager face to me, a face with love alight.

And as I gathered in my arms the son God gave to me, I thanked the lad for being good, and hoped he'd always be.

His little arms crept 'round my neck, and then I heard him say four simple words I can't forget — four words that made me pray.

Then turned a mirror on my soul, on secrets no one knew. They startled me, I heard them yet; He said, "I'll be like you."

WORRY CLINIC

Luella's false notion about female sexuality led to her deep-seated jealousy. For she was not organically inadequate, so she didn't need to feel below par. Send for the sex booklet below and STOP these unnecessary upsets in marital harmony!

CASE X-587: Luella W., aged 27, is the insanely jealous wife who kept falsely accusing her mate of illicit affairs.

"Dr. Crane," she ruefully confessed, "I just know that Hal must be more interested in other women."

"For I am positive that I am deficient sexually."

"When we were first married, I never obtained that erotic thrill that I have heard other wives rave about."

"So I went to my physician and he decided I needed to be circumcised."

"But that didn't solve my problem."

"So I feel that since I am only a half-wife, then Hal must be more attracted to other women who can function as 100 percent sex partners!"

may begin to worry that she is anatomically deficient in her sexual make-up.

"Dr. Crane," Luella added, "I would have thought I might have an infantile uterus, except for the fact I have borne two children."

"So what could possibly be wrong with me?"

Nothing was wrong with Luella except her false notion about female sexuality, plus her husband's failure to use the proper medical technique.

Women are definitely NOT as passionate as men!

Compared to the normal male standard, all women are frigid!

"But, Dr. Crane," you may protest, "what about these 'call girls or prostitutes and nymphomaniacs who constantly seek sexual affairs with men?'"

The professionals are motivated chiefly by money; not because of any greater sexual libido than the usual placid wife.

And those nymphomaniacs are goaded by a secret inferiority complex into trying to prove that they are "all there as a woman."

In a wide counseling practice, where other Chicago physicians would refer their sex cases to me (since most doctors shun them as neurotics) I have never yet found a nymphomaniac who was highly sexed.

Always, they were motivated by fear of sterility, a crippled condition, amputated breast or some other organic defect!

And they freely confessed their enjoyment was above the eyes, namely, proving to themselves they could still attract a man.

A normal husband craves erotic indulgence far oftener than his wife, just as he also is hungrier for more dining room calories.

But wives do desire occasional complete satisfaction, which most of them rarely (if ever) receive, so I showed Hal how to relieve his wife's feeling of inadequacy by means of the medical advice below.

Send for that booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents and stabilize your happy home!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Midwest, Indiana 47308. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you need for one of his booklets.)

SEXUAL INFERIORITY

Many wives develop a sexual inferiority complex, due to amputation of a breast or womb, as for cancer.

Or because they can't get pregnant or may have lost an arm or leg in an auto accident.

But many other women are in the same boat with Luella, whose feeling of inadequacy is based on either false sex notions or lack of the proper sexual technique during marital relations.

For example, many women in modern times have been told that wives are just as passionate sexually as are husbands.

That's false!

But if a wife believes that statement and then finds that she isn't as ardent in the boudoir as her husband, she

Worst Mass Murderer?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Herman Webster Mudgett, a one time medical student, may have been the most infamous mass murderer of all.

Eighty years ago he was accused of killing more than 200 women and burying their bodies in his basement.

According to the recently published book "Bloodletters and Badmen," by Jay Robert Nash. Mudgett was born in Germantown, N.H., and studied medicine at Ann Arbor, Mich.

He was expelled for taking out insurance policies under various names and then stealing, disfiguring and burying cadavers from the university dissecting room and collecting insurance on them.

Mudgett moved to Chicago and changed his name to Harry Howard Holmes, according to Nash's book, where he became a confidence man and swindler, then bought a drugstore.

He later purchased a vacant lot across the street and erected a bizarre three-story building of turrets and towers, hidden rooms, concealed stairways, trap doors, false walls and ceilings.

Mudgett, according to the book, lured to the house scores of women, mostly young girls he had hired as "secretary-typists," got them to sign over their assets and insurance policies to him and then killed them with lethal gas.

In 1894, after the house had been burned and boarded up, Chicago police entered the building and found the remains of over 200 corpses in the basement, Nash said.

IN SAN ANTONIO SURBURB

Black Chief Watches Whites

SHAVANO PARK, Tex. (UPI) — Nathaniel Tyler, a black, is police chief of this posh, all-white suburb. But he can't afford to live where he works.

Homes sell for $50,000 to $150,000, so Tyler lives in south San Antonio. But he said race is not an issue.

"Out here they don't care if you're black, white or Latin American. Anybody that can afford it can move out here. But so far, there are no blacks."

The Shavano Park city council chose Tyler as police chief a year ago over five white applicants.

"Everybody was telling them if they wanted a chief, I'd make them a chief," said Tyler, a 10-year veteran of the Bexar County sheriff's department.

"But I told them if they were looking for a white fellow, I was black."

Tyler, who became police chief of Shavano Park Aug. 1, 1972, said he always wears his uniform.

"They might think I'm a burglar and I might get my head blown off," he said.

"I haven't had any racial problems whatsoever here," he said. "Everyone has invited me to their homes for coffee and they tell me what a good job I'm doing. Everybody out here is just as nice as can be. I thought I'd run into problems. But if there was any jealousy, I did not see it."

GROWING-UP EXERCISES NO. 8

"A better jumping jack

(Marjorie Craig is the author of Miss Craig's 21-Day Shape-up Program for Men and Women and Miss Craig's Face-Saving Exercises — both best-sellers. This exercise is for coordination and balance. Do the exercise 10 times until it's easy, then increase to 20 times.

Stand in the center of the room, with legs about 4 inches apart. Pull hips to a slight sitting position. Pull tummy in. Keep the back straight. Bend the knees slightly and turn them outward. Hold a wand with one hand at each end while doing exercise.

As you raise the arms up over the head, jump up at the same time. Land with legs far apart. When you land, knees should be bent and hips pulled under. (Never let your child land with stiff knees.)

Jump up again and land with legs closer together, only four inches apart. Bring arms down at the same time. Continue jumping, landing first

Jail Guard

But Tyler said he did not want to take an assignment as a subway officer and returned to Galveston. He later became a jail guard in San Antonio and worked his way up to a criminal investigator in the sheriff's office before taking the Shavano Park job as police chief.

During his career, Tyler has been run over by a car and was hospitalized and once had a man pull a gun and point it at him.

"A policeman shot and killed the guy. He had the gun right in my face," Tyler said. "It was an automatic. They hollered, 'Watch out, Nat. He's got a gun.' And they shot him."

Tyler has become a familiar sight to all lawmen in the area because anytime a lawman gives a distress signal, his Shavano Park patrol car is soon on the scene. He recently helped chase down some armed robbers who were finally cornered and shot at New Braunfels.

He took up the drums and

Burglaries Tapered Off

He said that during the past year under his tenure, burglaries, which used to be a big problem at the affluent homes in the area, "have tapered off."

Tyler got into law enforcement through an ironic chain of events that began when his mother made him quit playing football at Central High School in Galveston. She did not know then that her son would wind up doing something more dangerous.

"My aunt told my mother they were just using me for a punching bag so she made me quit," Tyler said. "I wanted to do something so I got in the high school band."

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fears generated by non-stop inflation and stampeding interest rates "stimulated some selling and profit-taking" on Wall Street last week as major averages dipped in comparatively light trading, says Merkin & Co. Inc.

"Investors are advised," the firm says, "to control any urge to buy, pending a possible intermediate decline in the fall." It adds traders might profit over the near term if they go into volatile glamors.

The market is edgy as a result of the spiraling prime rate and the persistent jump in savings certificates, especially after staging an 8 per cent recovery in July. Oil Statistic Bulletin says, The Babson Park, Mass. newsletter says despite investment nervousness, oil and gas issues show "firm price action." In the oil service industries, according to the letter, "the inexorable surge of a major long-term expansive business cycle seems likely to progress regardless of transitory money rate gyrations."

Although a majority of stocks appear to have discounted soaring interest rates, "the 9 per cent-plus returns available on Treasury bills and other top-quality fixed-income securities obviously present stiff competition for the stock market and other avenues of saving and investment," according to Standard & Poor's The Outlook.

Stock prices are not likely to gain substantial ground until interest rates stop rising, the letter says, but it predicts "by early fall a change in interest-rate trends will be exerting a positive influence on stocks."

Timings says "It is unrealistic to expect a major new bull market to emerge while quality growth stocks persist at such elevated levels." This year's stock market action somewhat parallels the market pattern in 1969, the letter says, which was "characterized by a monetary fallout. In that period, too, the price action of most stocks was quite unfavorable, but nonetheless the quality growth stocks thrived in that environment," it adds. The letter cautions investors to maintain a defensive investment posture including a 50 per cent cash position.
