SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—Albert H. Burns personally will rip up an old whittlers bench anchored in concrete at Tenaha, Tex., and bring it to San Antonio next month. And Burns, president of the Tenaha Business Association, also will bring along seven veteran "spit and whittlers" to occupy the bench and spin yarns during the Texas Folklife Festival.

Although just in its second year, the gathering of representatives of the state's 26 ethnic groups already is becoming one of the leading festivals in Texas. "We're going to have a lot of liars this time," said Mrs. Joan Garcia, an official of the Institute of Texan Cultures sponsoring the event at its HemisFair headquarters.

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — "I never saw a kid who didn't want to be a clown," said Robert Molnar.
Molnar, a clown, mime and dancer, was busy as he spoke making clown faces on four 6-year-olds from a summer day care center in New York.
"A clown face should be funny or sad. It should not be grotesque," he said, as he daubed away with brushes. "There is enough that is grotesque in today's world."
The occasion was Clown Week, the sixth event in a summer-long series of visitor participation programs at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts. The series, lasting through September 16, is called "Make It, Wear It, Share It, Dress Up!" and is sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts.

Children Clowns
The museum has assembled a wide variety of materials for the events—fabrics, feathers, leathers, buttons, laces, other materials for recycling to give adults and children a chance to express their ideas creatively with the help of the museum staff and other specialists.

Molnar was the specialist showing makeup and doing mime for Clown Week. No sooner had he set up mirrors, pots of makeup, brushes and other trappings than children from the Grant Day Care Center began to arrive—and dip in.

Molnar gave 6-year-old Raymond Banda the wide white mouth of a clown. A similar clown's face went on Tony Battle. Molnar gave Paul Jackson white face, red nose, and huge blue tears falling onto his cheeks—"When I tell what happened nobody will believe me," said the boy.

And Cheron Crayton, the girl in the foursome, got red polka dots on her cheeks and cat whisker eyelashes.

Kids Like Pantomime
The clown first made his own face up to look like a flower pot, the exaggerated red mouth the base, one eye done up as a red flower, the other a butterfly. Then he changed to the white face of a mime.

"I have a kind of dumb face," said Molnar. "I can change it very easily."
"A mime and a clown are about the same thing," he said when I asked him the difference. "It's just according to where they perform."

"Children love pantomime. They understand it. Mime is so basic, so free. You don't need words."

Molnar, who's married to a researcher at Time magazine, began his career as a child actor in his native Cincinnati.

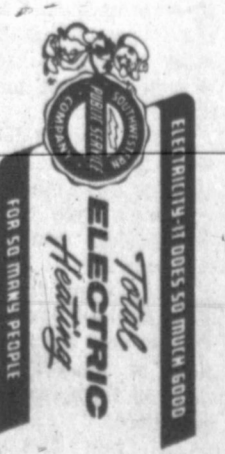

It was in 1937, he said, and the Depression "when a lot of actors and other people were hungry." He began with one of the government's WPA drama projects.

He recalled that his first role was in Sinclair Lewis' "It Can't Happen Here."

Later, he studied acting, design, lighting and dancing at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and went on to Ohio Northern University.

Butz Reveals Hike For Milk

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz announced an increase in price of milk for the rest of the year and repeated his stand that the freeze on beef prices should be lifted immediately.

Butz made the announcement of the milk hike here Tuesday at a news conference. The text of the order was made available in Washington, D.C.
Price supports for milk will be increased by 32 cents per hundredweight for the remainder of the marketing year which ends March 31, 1974.

The increase is effective immediately and goes from $5.29 to $5.61 per hundredweight. The previous support level was announced March 8.
Butz said in order to carry out the increases, buying prices of the Commodity Credit Corp., will be raised 3 cents for cheese and 3.9 cents a pound for non-fat dry milk. Butter buying prices will remain unchanged.

The increase is in accordance with the Agriculture and Consumers Protection Act of 1973 which President Nixon signed into law Aug. 10. The act requires that the support price for manufacturing milk be increased to 80 per cent of parity, effective the day of enactment and for the remainder of the 1973-74 marketing period.

"It's no secret that I've opposed these price ceilings from the start," he said. "If I had my druthers, I'd take this beef price ceiling off right now."

Dear Abby

Avoid a scene with a gentle swan song

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: At my age, I should be giving advice, not asking for it, but I just don't know how to handle this...

After my husband's death Charlie helped me in my grief and loneliness, and I transferred the love I had for my husband to him...

Every time I try to tell him I want to hold off marrying him, he gets a terrible attack of something...

How can I get out of marrying him without making him sick?

DEAR IN: Avoid a scene. Gently ease Charlie out of your life. See others and drop him gradually without telling him it's his swan song...

DEAR ABBY: I need help soon. My son is engaged to be married. I met his bride-to-be only once. She is a beautiful, rich society girl...

This is way out of my class. I wish I could say I have a headache at the last minute and ditch the whole thing...

I do janitor work in an office building at night, and I just won't fit in with these people.

How can I either learn fast or get out of it?

DEAR MOTHER: Be yourself, and you'll do just fine. Ask your son to find out what kind of gown the bride's mother is wearing...

DEAR ABBY: BUGGED IN THE BRONX, a secretary, complained because her husband called her at work several times daily to talk about nothing...

You advised her to keep cutting him shorter and shorter until he gets the message.

It won't work. Here's my advice: Tell him: "No calls at work unless the house is on fire or somebody drops dead..."

DEAR BEEN: If that's not "cutting him shorter and shorter until he gets the message"—what is?

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 89700, L. A., Calif. 90089.

Opening Up Education

The Classroom As a Learning Tool

By HELEN HENNESSY NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — There has been considerable flack coming from parents who learned their A, B, C's and one, two, three's the hard way and who believe that many new educational methods simply produce poor readers, dismal math students, and grammatical dunces.

But there are new methods of education and educational aids that are helpful and do work. These stimulate the child's interest and engage his mind. Years ago that was an achievement of teachers who were born and not made...

In view of the success of these superior teachers, many experiments and research programs have been investigated over the years. Some have dealt with individual subject areas such as beginning reading or beginning mathematics...

In mathematics, experiments utilizing various objects obtained from the child's surroundings enhanced comprehension of the subject. When concrete (i.e., real apples) replaced abstract, understanding of the abstract became easier.

Meanwhile, in other areas new teaching materials were becoming available. Books were supplemented with records, slide shows, films, and certain television programs. An important parallel development was the advent of learning games which stimulated participation and innovation by the child, thereby stimulating actual learning.

An interesting parallel discovery was that the traditional desk could be harmful to the physical development of the child...

covery was that the traditional desk could be harmful to the physical development of the child. According to a study by Dr. Darrell Boyd Harman which was conducted in Texas, eye difficulties and spinal curvature could be directly traced to the traditional desk and seating arrangement.

The culmination of these discoveries and developments led to a questioning of the traditional educational philosophy in all areas, including facilities as well as attitudes. New goals emerged emphasizing person-oriented education rather than object-oriented education...

As the curriculum became more flexible, it was observed that the involvement of other senses than sight and sound added measure-ably to learning. If the child could use his own resources, touch, smell, taste and really feel and manipulate, then learning not only became a part of him—but was created by him. Everything around him, from the snow in the yard to the hot plate in the teacher's room, became a learning tool.

A flexible environment was the natural outgrowth of this new approach to learning. The result was a movement in education variously called "the open classroom," "open education," "informal education" or "the open school," a concept developed in England and now coming into use in America...

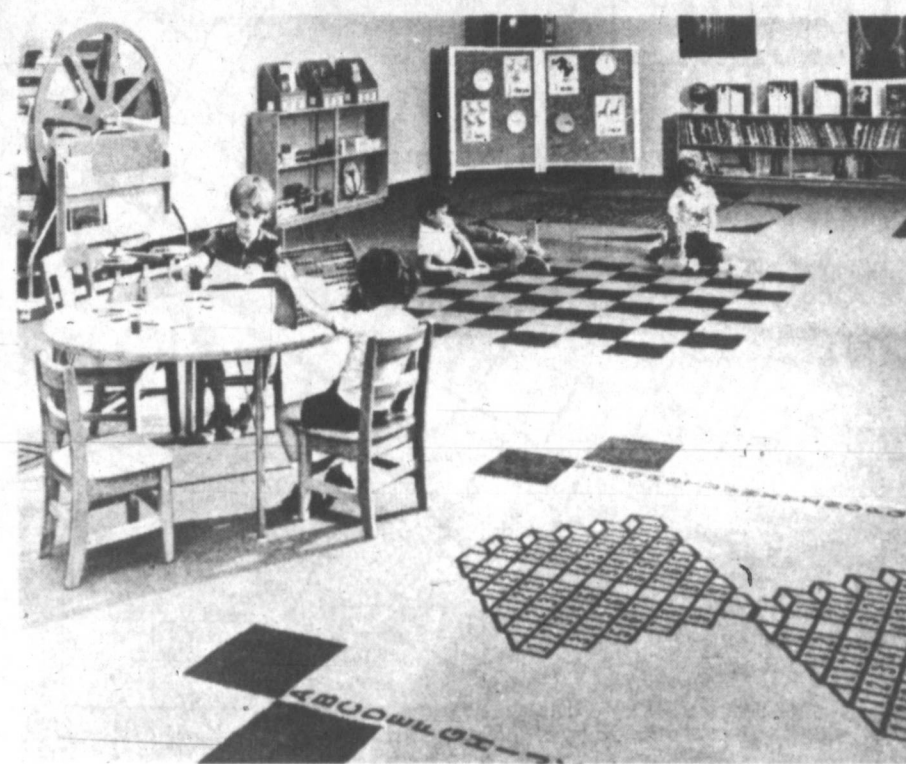

Other schools are experimenting with the open spaces such as corridors, playgrounds, and other areas for open learning in traditional buildings.

Along with this space flexibility, the open environment can be used as a motivating force. The floor on which the children stand, sit, work and play can serve as either a nondescript entity or it can become an integral part of the planned educational facility.

Carpeting becomes a major consideration in controlling sound generated by multiple activities in an open room. Studies show that carpeting reduces noise level. Environmental specialists have demonstrated that noise has an adverse effect on physical as well as psychological health.

(Next: Knowledge at their feet.)

Hunter College Elementary School serves as an initial site for the KinderKarpets system, the new learning carpet. The project contains several basic designs including a maze, letters and alphabet, semi-circles and a checkerboard grid.

Woven Fabrics Make A Comeback

COLLEGE STATION — Today's woven fabrics are rising on the fashion seasaw.

"One season a particular fabric or style is down in popularity while another is up," Mrs. Becky Culp, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, said.

Today's fashion seasaw includes knit versus woven fabrics, she continued. "Knit fabrics rose steadily to an overwhelming popularity during the late 1960's. Today, however, they're at midbar level — with woven fabrics rising rapidly in popularity."

"Also, knit fabrics are more closely resembling wovens, and wovens resembling knits. At first glance it may be difficult to distinguish one from the other."

"Traditionally woven fabrics — checks, corduroy, denims, tweeds and ginghams — have rocketed back into fashion popularity," Mrs. Culp noted. "Several factors influence this trend. Man's basic need and conditioning for change — with something new and different — may be the most important."

"Also, today's woven fabrics compete with knits for their prime advantage — comfort through stretch. 'Stretch wovens can give from 10 to 15 per cent either in one or both directions, the specialist explained."

Woven fabrics are popular for menswear — largely because they can be tailored more easily and quickly. "In addition, many men find them traditionally more appealing — especially since they're less likely to sag or bag than knits."

Utah females have a life expectancy of 76.4 years while the average for males is 69.3 years.

Reunion Held For Hemphill Family and their children, Michael and Deborah. Mrs. Harris is the former Ruth Hemphill. The eldest son, Roy Hemphill, his wife, Helen and daughter, Shirley, of Buena Park, Calif., also attended. Others attending were Evelyn Hemphill, Mrs. Pat Crump and children, Kevin and Teresa, Oklahoma City; The Dale Hemphill family, his wife, Ernestine and children, Ricky, Sharon, and Clifford, Garden Grove, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. David Watson of St. Louis, Mo.; and Stephen Harris and his bride-elect, Marjorie Farmer, Delta, Colo. WIN AT BRIDGE

A sudden turn for the worse

Bridge hand analysis table showing North, South, East, and West hands with cards and scores.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

North's jump to three spades was a slight overbid but South had plenty in reserve so the slam looked like a cinch.

He ruffed the second club and laid down the ace of trumps. He had every intention of drawing trumps and claiming, but West showed out on the first trump and all of a sudden things had taken a slightly nasty turn for the worse.

He could get to dummy with the ace of diamonds; finesse against the jack of trumps; draw the rest of them and depend on the hearts to romp home. But hearts might not break 3-3.

Or he could try to ruff a diamond in dummy, but it might get overruffed. Finally, South found a play that would work if hearts went around twice.

That had to be the best percentage, so he promptly cashed his king and queen of that suit. East followed and it was all over but the mopping up. He entered dummy with the ace of diamonds and led the ace of hearts. East could gain nothing by discarding because the pa-

Americans Are Trekking To Movies On Oriental Martial Arts

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Newest of the martial arts movies is a humdinger titled "Enter The Dragon," the first Hollywood picture focused on the Oriental version of the horse opera. Producers Fred Weintraub and Paul Heller grined broadly in their cluttered Warner Bros. office, sure in the knowledge they have a hit. "This is the first time a Chinese actor has ever been billied above the title," said Weintraub of the late Bruce Lee, the Chinese star who died of a heart attack last July, soon after the picture was completed. "We began working on this movie more than a year ago," Heller put in. "That was months before 'Five Fingers of Death' was released." Minimum of Blood Weintraub and Heller are capitalizing on the freaky popularity of Asian hand-to-hand combat known under the umbrella term as 'martial arts,' a style of fighting which includes karate, hapkido, kung fu and judo. Actor Lee popularized the violent sport in two movies. "Five Fingers of Death" was a runaway hit. The genre provides a maximum of brutality with a minimum of blood. "They've made about 200 of these films in Hong Kong," Weintraub said, "and about 20 of them have been released around the world. Most of them are terrible. "Americans like martial arts pictures because the hand-to-hand fighting is more personal than gun-fighting. Almost everyone has been struck or hit by another person, but few have had a gun pulled on them." Fantasy Is Factor Heller noted that the fantasy element is high for all the meek movie-goers who want to tee off on bullies twice their size. The martial arts allow a Casper Milquetoast to become an instant tiger no matter his size. "The big factor about our picture and all martial arts films is simplicity," Weintraub said. "We've gone back to a pure delineation between the good guy and the bad guy. There's none of this anti-hero baloney. "There's no equivocating. The hero is all good. The villain is all bad. Who needs a villain who might have a good side to him?" "The difference between this first American martial arts picture and the Chinese ones is story and production," Heller said. "Ours isn't a series of fights hung on a thin story line. "Our script is simplistic but it's based on a martial arts tournament involved in international intrigue and drug smuggling." James Bond With Fists Both men took the picture out for sneak previews which, they say, were outrageously successful. Warner Bros. delighted with the results, allotted more money for advertising than it did for production costs. "I like to think of the picture as sort of a James Bond film but with fists instead of pistols," Weintraub said. "But I see the martial arts films becoming a staple movie product like westerns and mysteries.

Perk up listless appetites—furnish plenty of fruits in family meals. Fresh pineapple usually makes a hit—and a two-pound fruit yields about six servings, according to Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"KNOW WHAT TO LOOK FOR WHEN YOU BUY TEXAS EGGS." Agriculture Commissioner John C. White says. With egg prices on the rise, the more a consumer knows about purchasing eggs the better buy she will make. Because size and grade or quality are not related, a Jumbo or a Medium egg may be Grade AA, A or B. According to information from the Texas Department of Agriculture, Grade AA eggs cover a small area with a thick, high white and a firm, high yolk. Grade A covers a moderate area. It has a reasonably high, thick white and firm, high yolk. Grade B covers a wide area with a small amount of thick white and a flattened, enlarged yolk. Grade B eggs are better for scrambling, baking and combining with other foods than for poaching, frying and cooking in the shell. Egg sizes include Jumbo, which weighs a minimum of 30 ounces a dozen; Extra Large, 27 ounces; Large, 24 ounces; Medium, 21 ounces, and Small, 18 ounces.

Pressure Canners

COLLEGE STATION — Pressure canners are needed to process foods low in acid content, a foods and nutrition specialist advised the increasing number of home canning "buffs" this week.

Karen Kreipke with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, warned that bacteria will not be killed unless low-acid foods are cooked for a long period of time at boiling temperatures.

"Cooking with a pressure canner raises the temperature used to kill these bacteria and takes only a fraction of the time

Food Safety At Home

COLLEGE STATION — Protect your family from foodborne illness through necessary precautions in home meal preparation, advises Frances Reasonover.

The foods and nutrition specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, offered some guidelines for safe meals and discussed several foodborne illnesses.

"When children help with meal preparation, insist they handle foods carefully and properly."

"At the same time, stress personal cleanliness of every family member.

"Also make sure dishes, cooking equipment, cabinets and other work surfaces are kept clean."

Unless foods are handled and prepared correctly along the way, homemakers are inviting trouble, the specialist emphasized.

"Store perishable items in the refrigerator and serve foods promptly after cooking."

"Preserve foods to be held for long periods — using proper methods and techniques."

Turning to foodborne illnesses, Miss Reasonover cited salmonellosis as one caused by bacterial infection. Although refrigeration inhibits

Platform Soled Shoes Has Created Accident Hazard

AUSTIN — The rising popularity of platform soled shoes has created a serious accident hazard at work and on the highways, according to Lloyd Palmer, general manager of the Texas Safety Association.

Clogs and platform shoes have resulted in a dramatic upswing in the number of women injured in falls, Palmer said.

New York designer Laura Tosato agrees: "With the speed of life what it is today, clogs are dangerous because they don't hang on."

Palmer explained that foot specialists are warning the girl in platform shoes runs a much increased risk of a twisted ankle.

One leading orthopedic surgeon in Texas noted most platform shoes are not as dangerous as the "spike heels" of the 1950's because they have a broader base of support.

He was quick to add however, that stability and sensitivity are diminished by platform shoes and clogs — indicators that the shoes can contribute to falls.

"The higher the soles of the shoes get, the more likely you are to misjudge your step. It is kind of like having a new pair of bi-focals," he said.

The doctor said also platform shoes with soles that slope sharply upward at the toe are a particular danger. Dr. Robert Morris of Irving, president, Texas Podiatry Association, supported that opinion, explaining the force with which the off-balance feeling such shoes create can be compounded.

"When we walk, our feet strike the floor with four times our weight. So, a 150-pound person makes a 600-pound impact on his foot with each step," said Dr. Morris.

Palmer cited the latest fashion footwear as a hazard to the driver also. The thicker soles make it more difficult to place the foot smoothly on the clutch, the brake or the accelerator. In an emergency, an error in switching from the accelerator to the brake could be particularly disastrous.

In addition, decreased sensitivity can make applying the brakes and accelerator "a guessing game," Palmer said.

One Pennsylvania safety expert may have found an answer to the problem.

"If car manufacturers must recall their autos for safety defects, it would seem logical for fashion designers to be similarly responsible," said Roy D. Hanshaw, safety director of the Keystone Auto Club of Philadelphia.

A more likely solution, according to Palmer, is to choose shoes to fit the wearer's activities, remembering stability and sensitivity problems of platform shoes.

Considering the recent high-rise in men's fashion footwear, males should recognize trouble afoot too, he noted.

"Then, if people must wear four or five inch soles, Texas Safety Association urges them to carry driving shoes to avoid an elevated accident potential on the road," Palmer said.

End Of Bombing Brings Stoicism In Phnom Penh

By United Press International

Most of the world's citizens, from the seats of power to ordinary men, applauded the end of American bombing of Cambodia Wednesday. But in Phnom Penh, where it counts most, the end of the bombing brought expressions of stoicism.

"We'll fight more, I guess," said a 22-year-old Cambodian veteran who lost a leg in the fighting.

Until he was asked for his reaction, the veteran had not known that America was ending its 4 1/2-year-old bombing campaign in his country.

"I'm a little man and they won't do anything to me," said a Cambodian refugee. "If it stops, I will be very happy to go back home and start farming."

VC Calls Halt Failure

A Viet Cong spokesman in Saigon said in a formal statement that the halt in the bombing indicated that American policy in Cambodia was "another failure of the policy of aggression of the Nixon clique."

"Nevertheless, nobody is under the illusion that they have renounced the scheme of intervening under any form in an attempt to maintain the Lon Nol regime as U.S. henchmen."

The Communist statement said it was "necessary to condemn all attempts of mobilizing the armed forces of Saigon and Bangkok to directly take part in the war against the Cambodian people."

That was in apparent reference to reports that Cambodian troops fighting in the South Vietnamese army might be sent in to aid the Phnom Penh government.

The bombing halt fell on the same day that Emperor Hirohito and Premier Kakuei Tanaka of Japan led ceremonies commemorating the end of fighting in World War II. Japanese reaction was notably vehement.

"It is high time they stop it. They should never have started in the first place. The Americans had no right to bomb anybody," an advertising executive said.

Soviet newspapers emphasized the last-minute intensity of bombing attacks. Trud, the trade union newspaper, said: "The U.S. press has not concealed the fact that in the remaining days before Aug. 15 the flow of American weapons and ammunition to Cambodia has increased."

Said a British Foreign Office spokesman: "We share with other governments the hope that peace will come in the area very soon."

Other diplomats said they were not optimistic that the bombing halt would end the fighting in Cambodia.

The Voice Of Business Untangling The Traffic Jam

By ARCH BOOTH

WASHINGTON — Anyone who spends any time in a major traffic jam soon finds himself thinking: "There must be a better way to move people than this."

And there is, but first it's necessary to understand some often-overlooked facts about the urban traffic tangle:

1. The heart of the problem — excluding air pollution for the moment — is that private automobiles take up too much space for the number of people they carry. They carry an average of 1.4 people per car (possibly a high estimate in many areas).

2. Public transportation is ideally suited to moving large numbers of people over a small right-of-way in a short space of time: that is, rush-hour commuters.

It is not now — and probably never will be — suited to moving people from one point in the suburbs to another point in the suburbs, unless the two points happen to fall along a major commuter artery. So, we will not be able to get along entirely without the private automobile.

3. Technological breakthroughs are not needed to improve public transportation. A conventional high-speed rail system can carry 72,000 people per hour along one right-of-way.

There are very few corridors in the world that can take full advantage of such capacity. A bus-based system, operating on its own express right-of-way, can haul 54,000 per hour — and everybody gets a seat.

These figures may be compared with the standard rule-of-thumb for freeway capacity of 2,000 vehicles per lane per hour, or 2,800 people at the average occupancy rate.

The secret is the separate right-of-way. Put the bus or the train in regular traffic and they would both get bogged down in the regular traffic jams. Then capacity plummets. The local bus, operating in mixed traffic, hauls about 4,000 per hour.

Most of the "gee whizz" equipment that has been proposed — such as the famous monorail — offers no capacity advantage over conventional equipment. Further, these gadgets are often more expensive than conventional equipment, and they usually have unresolved technical problems.

Monorails, for example, are very difficult to switch. That's why most of the demonstration monorails either go back and forth on the same track, or around and around a circular track.

That's not to say conventional equipment cannot be made more attractive and more comfortable. Lord knows, it needs to be.

Assistance Essential

4. Public transportation needs public assistance. The most heavily traveled commuter routes can pay for themselves, in the peak hours.

But additional routes, longer hours of service, more frequent service — all these factors add to operating cost much faster than they add to revenue.

If the system must pay for itself, there are only two choices: Cut back service or charge the peak-hour riders enough to cover the deficit operations. But socking it to the rush-hour commuter tends to drive him right back to his automobile, which leaves us where we started.

Federal grants for the purchase of new equipment have been essential to staving off the total collapse of many of our transit systems. The program should probably be continued.

However, I agree with Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar that federal subsidies for operating deficits would be a mistake. Local voters should decide for themselves how much service they are willing to pay for. It would be unfair for one community — through its federal taxes — to be subsidizing for some other community a higher level of service than it enjoys.

University Of Texas At Austin Imposes Pay Increase

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A "drastic increase" in building use fees imposed by the University of Texas board of regents will force many students either to find new jobs or new schools, student vice president Cappy McGarr said today.

The regents applied the building use fee increase to three campuses — Austin, El Paso and Arlington — under terms of a bill passed by the 1973 legislature that was intended only to permit part-time students to pay lower fees.

Up to 5 per cent of the students may be excused from part or all of the building use fee if they can prove hardship. But McGarr said the number unable to pay the increase will be larger than that.

"I think it's going to cause an enrollment shortage this year and in years to come," he said. "It's just too drastic an increase for students at this time."

Students Protest

The student leaders protested the increase to the regents, and won a concession for the proposed fee hike to be dropped from $7.50 to $6 per semester hour — a 100 per cent increase rather than 140 per cent.

"We're out of options," McGarr said. "We've taken it before the board, we've taken it before the Cost of Living Council, and we're at a dead end street unless the cost of living council gives us an exception, and I don't see that."

Rep. Herman Adams, D-Silsbee, sponsor of the bill, said regents never mentioned to him that the measure allowing building fees to be based on a per-hour rate would be used to increase fees for full-time students.

Obviously irritated at the action, Adams said, "I'm sure some of us are going to run with a bill next session that will put a lid on some things."

Meanwhile, McGarr said, students returning to the Austin campus at the end of August expecting their building use fee to be $49 as it was last spring are in for a surprise.

The fee for a student taking 15 semester hours will now be $90, plus a $9 mandatory surcharge. Student service fee of $42.50 is also required.

"I hope most of the students around the state look at the increase and try to judge what their budgets will be for the year," McGarr said.

"Most of them got their jobs for the fall before they left for the summer, and made their tentative budgets around what the cost of tuition and fees would be and what their living expenses would be. When they come back and find the cost is more than they expected, they are going to have to either get another job, or not to go to the University of Texas."

Columbus 'Popped' Onto Discovery

If someone asked you to name something Columbus discovered and you answered the United States, you'd be wrong. If you said popcorn you'd be right.

Columbus was the first white man to see natives of the West Indies with corsage-like decorations that were made from exploded corn — today's popcorn, according to researchers for The Popcorn Institute and The World Book Encyclopedia.

In fact, popcorn, which found fame at the movies, was widely used as food and decoration in America long before Columbus arrived.

Archeologists have found evidence in the Bat Cave of western New Mexico that popcorn was known 5,000 years ago. Historians agree that the popcorn plant is the father of the plant that supplies Americans today with corn on the cob.

Probably the first method of popping corn was to place kernels on hot stones over a fire, or to toss kernels directly into the fire or hot ashes and allow them to pop out. Kernels could also be strewn on a cleared hot area near the fire, or covered lightly with hot sand to distribute heat evenly for popping.

English colonists in America were introduced to popcorn at the first Thanksgiving at Plymouth. Quadequina, brother of the Wampawaog chief Massasoit, brought a deerskin bag of popped popcorn to the feast as a gift. The Indians also brought popcorn snacks to meetings with the English colonists as a token of good will during the peace negotiations.

Colonial housewives quickly put popcorn to a practical use, serving it with dinner and also mixing it with sugar and cream for breakfast, the first "puffed" cereal.

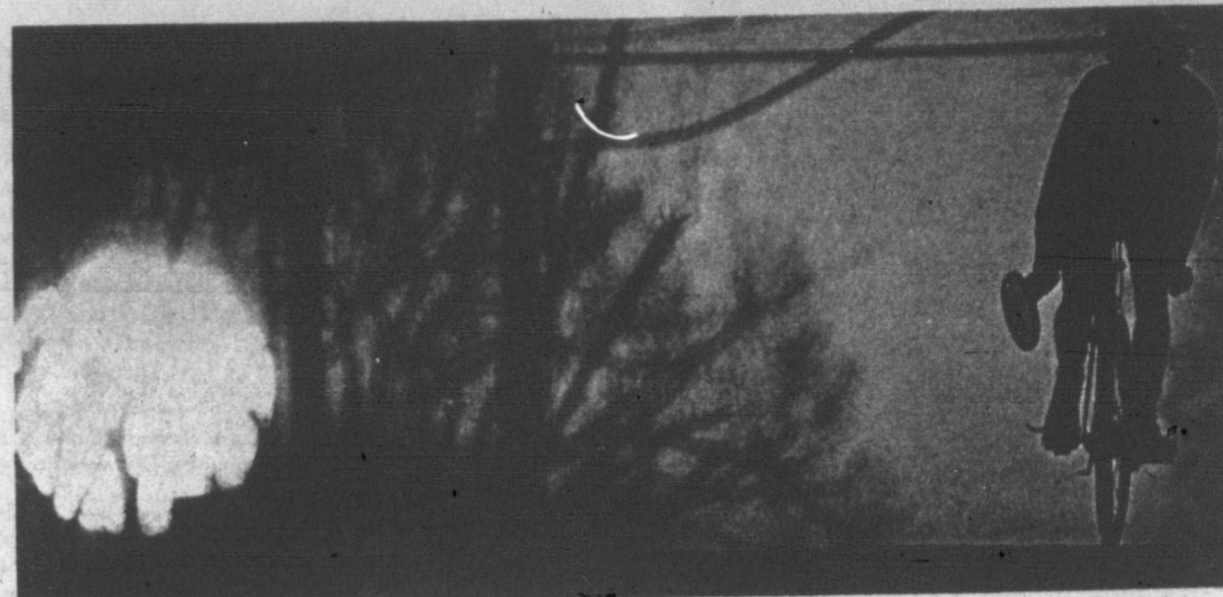

The colonists improved on Indian methods of corn popping. But until the late 19th century, popcorn remained primarily an at-home and home-grown treat.

The advent of county fairs, carnivals and circuses took popcorn out of the parlor and put it into colorful popcorn wagons. Electric corn poppers were used first around 1925, and popcorn and the movies grew up together as businesses.

Today over 372 million pounds of popcorn are sold annually in the United States. Theater sales, which account for only 30 per cent of the entire popcorn market, were approximately $197.7 million last year.

The official name of Washington, D.C.'s own orchestra, is the National Symphony.

"Fort Worth Five" Free After Nine Months In Prison

NEW YORK (UPI) — The "Fort Worth Five," free after nine months in a Texas prison for refusing to answer questions about gun-running to Northern Ireland, arrived home Tuesday to the skirl of bagpipes, the cheers of supporters and a telegram of congratulations from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

The Rockland Irish War Pipe Band broke into "Let Erin Remember" and "Wearing of the Green" as the five Irish-Americans, all from the New York area, stepped off an American Airlines plane from Fort Worth, Tex.

They were ordered released on bond by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas after being imprisoned for refusing to testify before a federal grand jury.

The Massachusetts senator sent the five a telegram reading:

"Welcome home. I send you my congratulations on your outstanding courage and your magnificent spirit, and I send you my prayers that this sorry chapter of grand jury abuse by the Department of Justice is now finally ended."

Kenneth Tierney, 46, of Yonkers, N.Y., spokesman for the five, emphatically denied any of them had participated in smuggling guns.

One of their attorneys, Paul O'Dwyer, praised Douglas for his order.

"But I think it is a sad commentary that only one man was willing to stand behind the Bill of Rights," O'Dwyer said.

O'Dwyer said the investigation should have been conducted by a federal grand jury in New York. "If these men were guilty, they should have been indicted and charged with a crime," O'Dwyer said.

They were held, he said, because "the British government made overtures to the American government to do what it could to snuff out all sentiment which Irish-Americans might hold for their brothers in Belfast and Derry."

Tierney said the detention in Texas was "one hell of an experience."

He said the Justice Department "acted for the British Crown," and the "Nixon administration and the British Tory Party were in cahoots in this affair."

Thomas Laffey, 35, another of the five, was introduced to his six-week-old son, Brian Patrick, who was born during his imprisonment.

"He looks lovely," Laffey said. "I feel very good to be home and I am looking forward to seeing more of my son."

Laffey's wife, Eileen, flew to Texas for her husband's release. The three other Laffey children, boys aged six, five and three, were at the airport to greet their father.

O'Dwyer said the five will press an appeal in the Fifth Circuit Court for their final release from custody.

In addition to Tierney and Laffey, the others are Mathias Reilly, 32, Daniel Crawford, 46, and Pascal Morahan, 28.

"Ill Wind"

When a shift in the wind gave a weather-bound shipmaster an opportunity to sail, he had to assemble his crew and ask, "Gentlemen, what think ye of this wind?" If they thought it an ill wind the ship did not sail.

Spaceman narrates HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Astronaut Ed Mitchell will be the on-camera host and narrator of "X Factor," a half-hour dramatic television series based on the psychic experiences of famous personalities.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The steep upward climb of interest rates has astonished even the most bearish market observers," says Bankers Trust's The Current Business Picture. Demands for bank credit continue to increase, the letter says, while the number of bond offerings are expected to expand in the months ahead. "Investors, meanwhile, are becoming more reluctant to take up new bond issues, anticipating higher yields," it adds.

Although price controls "serve as a topical anesthetic, dealing with symptoms not with causes," there are signs the "real medicine" of the Federal Reserve's tight money policy is beginning to work. The Spear Market Report says. Money is moving out of the banks to take advantage of high money rates and the Fed is curtailing the availability of new funds, the letter says. In the near future, "the growth of the money supply itself will slow—perhaps dramatically—and with it inflationary expectations as loan volume levels off," it adds.

The market has been besieged by the latest Watergate findings, the disclosure Vice President Spiro Agnew is under investigation, and astronomically high money rates, according to Alexander Hamilton Institute. Declines in production and new orders in July also have added to the Wall Street blues, it says. "Although the market will remain somewhat sensitive to the fast-breaking economic and political developments, there's too many good fundamental values for investors to bypass the market, the institute adds.

Break for non-smokers / BONN (UPI) — Non-smokers are to get a better deal in German trains. The Federal Railway Board has reserved an extra 20,000 seats in 478 trains for non-smokers. The standard distribution in a car is 40 seats for smokers and 24 for non-smokers.

By MARJORIE CRAIG

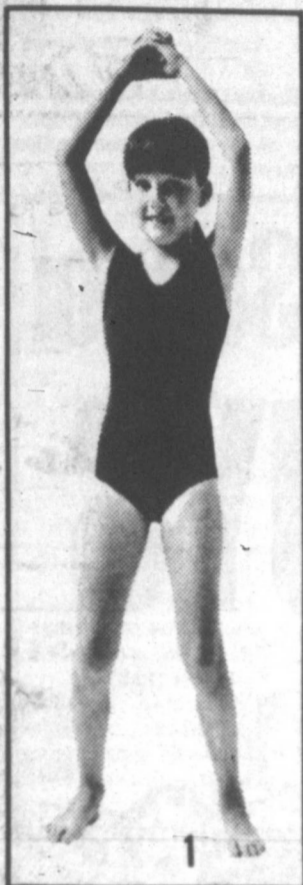

This good general exercise will help almost all the muscles of the body. You will be making a large circle with your arms in a continuous smooth movement.

Stand in the center of the room, legs apart, knees bent, hips tucked under.

Raise your arms over your head and clasp your hands.
Bending your knees as you bend, swing your arms first to your right toe.
Then swing your arms to your left toe.
Then swing your arms; way back over your head to the starting position.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Judy surprised me when she jumped up suddenly and danced a jig in front of the TV screen. For we men folks had been focussing on the pro Super Bowl football game. We thought she was dozing. Note what made her a football fanatic!

CASE X-588: Judy is the wife of my son Daniel, the dental surgeon.

Dan is a football fanatic, having won 4 letters in football while at college in Michigan.

During the football season, the women in our house get very little chance to view anything on TV if a football game is scheduled!

During the Super Bowl last winter, we were all sitting in the living room.

"Wow!" exclaimed Judy, as she suddenly jumped up from the davenport and danced a jig around the room.

"He intercepted that pass! Hurrah!"

Well, I am a football devotee myself but I was surprised to see such avid interest displayed by Judy.

For normally she prefers TV movies and anything except the interminable athletic contests.

So I asked her why she was so excited by that pass interception.

"Oh, I win a new dress if my team wins! And that was one of the players on my team who caught that pass!"

"When did you start this system of winning dresses?" I inquired.

"Oh, we began it last Thanksgiving."

"And I have already won 3 new dresses from Dan."

"If I select the favorite team, he may insist that I give him 7 points or 10 points before I am entitled to a dress."

"Sometimes he takes the favorite, so then I don't have as much chance."

"But this winter I have been winning, even with the underdog teams!"

ATHLETIC WIDOWS

Many of you wives complain that you are "athletic widows" during the baseball or football seasons.

For your mates are glued to the TV screen and often will not come to the table to dine with you.

You may even serve them their meals on TV trays so they can munch on their hamburgers while watching the game.

But if you wish to motivate women toward football, imitate the deal that Dan makes with Judy.

For Judy is a slender girl, weighing about 115 and about 5'3" tall.

You wouldn't suppose she had much interest in the rugged game of football.

But with a new dress at stake, she is as wildly enthusiastic as her husband.

Her case merely shows that if you put the proper motivation on any subject, the interest of the workers or spectators zooms fast.

The same phenomenon occurs when you have a son playing on the team or some other relative or even a close friend.

For then you engage in what we psychologists call "empathy" and project yourself more vividly into the conflict.

Judy thus expended a lot of calories jumping up and down whenever her team made a first down or scored a field goal or touchdown.

She was almost as enthusiastic as if she were the coach of the team.

And she groaned when it looked for a time as if her team was going down to defeat; then screamed in delight when it suddenly went into the lead with a surprising last minute touchdown.

Husbands, help your wives develop more interest in your hobbies by adding a little zest like a new dress or even a box of candy.

And send for my "Tests for Husbands and Wives," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Blvd., Moline, Indiana 47118. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents in cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Aug. 27 Begins Legal Rights To 18-Year-Olds

AUSTIN (UPI) — Eight-hundred thousand young Texans will enter legal adulthood and another 850 will be freed from juvenile homes Aug. 27—the day the 18-year-old rights act becomes effective.

Attorney General John Hill said Tuesday the bill is constitutional.

The most controversial aspect of the new law—the right of 18-year-olds to purchase alcoholic beverages—was not mentioned in Hill's four opinions, leaving unchanged the plans of some of the youths to celebrate their new rights with trips to the tavern.

The only exception to full adult rights will allow the custodians of estates willed to persons under 21 years to retain custody of the estate until the heir reaches 21. However, the legal age for full inheritance in future estate filings will be 18.

The average annual rainfall in Alabama is 53.3 inches.

Bigmouth Rooster Wins Crowing Jamboree

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — "Windmill" didn't do very well in the Illinois State fair's poultry judging but when it came time for fowl play, he proved himself tops.

The funny-looking black and white bird won the fair's Rooster Crowing Jamboree Tuesday with 98 crows in 60 minutes—an average of 1.63 crows per minute.

What's more, "Windmill" performed the feat without any help from his owner and handler, Mike Wiesbrock, 18, Glen Ellyn, Ill.

The rooster didn't need help. Wiesbrock explained after the contest, because "he's just a bigmouth."

Both second and third place ribbons went to Vic Stirman of Prairie Du Rocher, Ill. Stirman's birds, "Worthless" and "Leadhead," crowed 85 and 80 times, respectively.

No Encouragement Given Chief Jamboree Judge Marion Nash of Murphysboro remarked that this year's owners generally allowed their roosters to crow freely, rather than resorting to encouragement.

The rules, set forth in detail in the fair's official premium book, specify that handlers "may use any method to get their exhibit to crow without touching the bird."

Nash said some entrants tape their roosters' beaks beforehand, storing up crows for the contest. Put their birds in darkness until the crowing begins to simulate the breaking of dawn; or training their roosters to crow in response to a given signal.

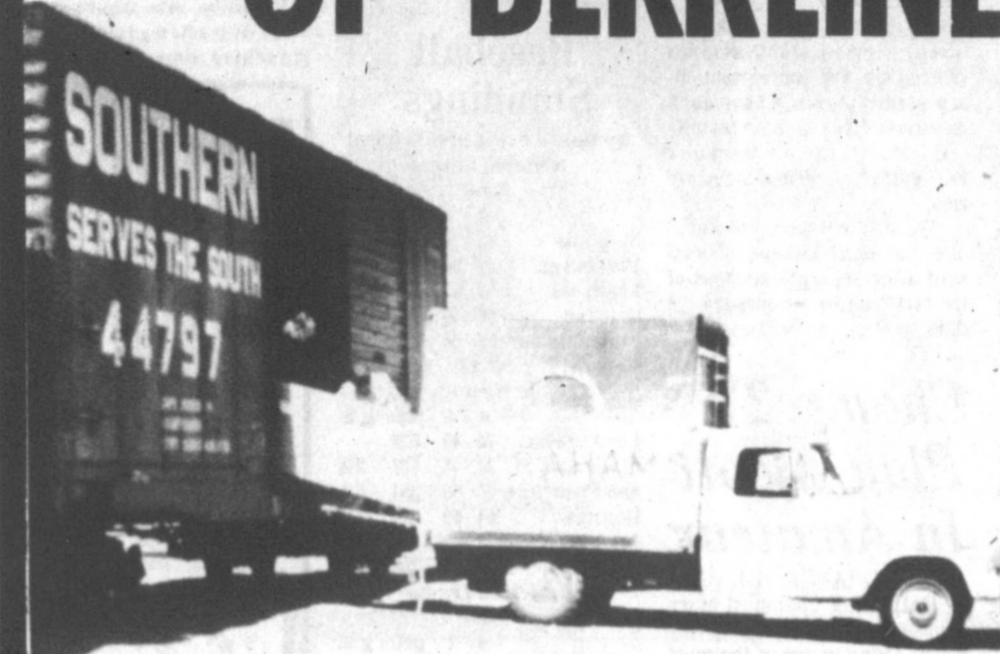

The last of those methods, Nash said, seldom works well since "a chicken is pretty dumb, really."

He Won All the Way Wiesbrock didn't need such techniques, since "Windmill" went into Tuesday's finals with a built-in lead. The bird had crowed 51 times during his half-hour of preliminary competition, giving him a two-crow lead over "Worthless." In the final event, defined in the premium book as a "Crow-Off" he outcrowed his rival, 47-36. Even that prodigious crowing didn't threaten the state fair record, however. The high-crow mark of 150 was set last year by "White Lightning," owned by Gordon Davis of Mount Zion, Ill. In this year's event, "White Lightning" refused to crow at all.

Teddy Roosevelt was the United States' youngest president at 42.

Babe Ruth-A Record, A Man, A Legend

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Legends die hard and the legend of Babe Ruth will live on even after Hank Aaron becomes baseball's new all-time home-run king.

It must be difficult for current fans to understand why Ruth, who died 25 years ago today, will remain the all-time home-run king in the minds of millions of Americans after Aaron surpasses his greatest record. Some of them undoubtedly are racists and others are professional old-timers who yearn for "the good old days of their youth."

But many others are average people who were awed by the sight of Ruthian majesty and have never been as emotionally affected by Aaron or any other athlete. Some of these aren't even baseball fans. They may be housewives who heard their husbands talk about Ruth and then saw him in a game or a railroad station and remember it as a shining moment when they saw a special kind of greatness.

Those who will continue to regard Ruth as the all-time home-run king can support their belief by showing the Babe averaged 8.5 homers for every 100 at-bats while Aaron has averaged 5.7 for every 100 at-bats. They also can point out that Ruth often hit more homers in a season than any team in baseball ... that as late as 1927 he was hitting 14 per cent of all the homers hit by American League players ... and that from 1920 through 1933 he hit a total of 637 homers or an average of 45.5 per season.

Such figures form the basis of the "case for the Babe" but statisticians don't create legends. Not like this one, anyway.

Babe Saves Baseball
Ruth was a man who lived the American dream beginning with his youth which was spent in St. Mary's Orphanage in stolen bases, bunts and hit-and-run plays before he appeared on the scene. He gave the game its new dimension of power—its essential element of excitement.

The United States was enjoying life on a scale the world may never have seen before and no one was enjoying it more than Ruth.

A Very Simple Man

Frank Graham, who traveled with Ruth as a sports writer for the New York Sun, described the Ruth of that era as follows:

"He was a very simple man, in some ways a primitive man. He had little education and little need for what he had. For it was as if his life had been ordered for him, so that he did not have to turn a page in a book or do sums in arithmetic to gain the knowledge he needed to become rich and famous.

"He traveled the world over, yet when his travels were done he could tell you nothing about the places he had been save the places where he had had fun. He literally walked with kings, yet he couldn't remember their names. He couldn't even tell you the names of all his teammates, although he had names of his own for them such as Chicken Neck, Flop Ears, Duck Eye, Horse Nose and Rubber Belly.

"His appetites were prodigious and as long as he was in robust health—and he was for almost all of his life—he made no effort to restrain them. The jug and the platter were as much a part of his existence as the bat and the ball. He had a fondness for automobiles which he drove at such terrific speeds as to wear them out or, in reckless moments, wrap them around telegraph poles.

"He was warm-hearted, fabulously generous, genuinely fond of children, greatly moved by the ills and trials of others, devoted to his family and his friends—and would not have known how to deal with an enemy for the simple reason that he never had one."

This was the Ruth my father took me to see when I was nine years old. My father was a Giant fan, who hated the Yankees and believed John McGraw was the greatest man in baseball history but he announced one day in 1934 that we were going to Yankee Stadium.

"I've never gone there before," he said. "But I want my son to be able to say he saw Babe Ruth play."

That son has only the vaguest recollection of seeing Ruth play in 1934 but in 1947, as a young sports writer, he saw him again. The occasion was one of the earliest of the Old-Timers Day promotions, the Yankees having asked a batch of the famous old heroes to take a bow. Ruth, of course, was the big attraction and I was in the Yankee clubhouse along with the players and other writers when the word came that Ruth had reached the stadium.

We had been sitting around talking about Ruth and the old days ... arguing whether, in fact, Ty Cobb or Honus Wagner or Wee Willie Keeler was a greater player ... remembering his exploits ... in short, talking baseball.

And then, suddenly, the door to the clubhouse flew open and there he was.

Every man in the room rose to his feet as Ruth stood in the doorway, thinner and paler than anyone had expected, but still an imposing figure. He hesitated a moment and then strode down the center of the clubhouse and with a wave of his arm called out, "Hiya kids. I never again had to ask whether he was, in fact, the best of them all."

And yet a teammate like Harry Hooper, who played in the American League from 1909 through 1925, admits it all seemed unbelievable.

He Couldn't Believe It
"You know, I saw it all

SPORTS

The Pampa Daily News

happen from beginning to end but sometimes I still can't believe what I saw." Hooper said many years later. "This 19-year old kid, crude, poorly educated, only lightly touched by the social veneer we call civilization, gradually transformed into the idol of American youth and the symbol of baseball the world over—a man loved by more people and with an intensity of feeling that perhaps has never been equaled before or since.

Ruth was an outstanding pitcher who had successive 18-8, 23-12 and 24-13 records from 1915 through 1917. He hit a total of nine homers in 351 at bats during those three seasons and in 1918 was used as a pitcher, first baseman and outfielder. He had a 13-7 record as a pitcher and tied for the league lead with 11 homers. He appeared in 130 games, but only 17 as a pitcher in 1919, and set a new major league record of 29 homers in one season.

At this point, Yankee club-owner Jacob Ruppert learned that Harry Frazee, who owned the Red Sox, was short of money. Ruppert offered Frazee $125,000 and Ruth became a Yankee. The man and the hour were at hand.

From 1920 through 1933, Ruth's season home run totals were 54, 59, 35, 41, 46, 25, 47, 60, 54, 46, 49, 48, 41 and 34. The figures are impressive enough today but in that era were awesome. He hit balls farther and higher than anyone dreamed possible. He hit more home runs than teams did. He made the fans forget the Black Sox. Yankee Stadium was constructed and called the House that Ruth Built.

He Found a Dynasty He founded the Yankee

dynasty that lasted 43 years until 1964. He combined power and consistency at the plate so that his lifetime average was .342. He called a home run in a World Series game. His once lean and arrogant face of youth became the jolly round face of an American folk hero. Years later, Japanese soldiers charging U.S. positions in the Southwest Pacific during World War II would cry out what they thought was the ultimate insult, "The hell with Babe Ruth."

The Yankees brought him back to a couple of old-timers games but he never filled Yankee Stadium in his life as he did in death. He died on a steaming hot Aug. 16, 1948 and there was, of course, only one place in New York big enough to hold the wake: Yankee Stadium.

They came—the people he had thrilled and awed—in long lines for three days and nights to pay their final respects, filing slowly past the bier in the rotunda of the huge stadium. He was buried from St. Patrick's Cathedral where Francis Cardinal Spellman delivered the eulogy.

As his former teammates, acting as pall bearers, carried the coffin down the center aisle of the cathedral, Joe Dugan turned to Waite Hoyt, wiped the sweat from his forehead with a handkerchief and said, "Boy, could I use a beer about now."

"So could the Babe," said Hoyt.
The Babe would have loved that one.

BABE RUTH was a young pitcher with the Boston Red Sox in 1918, left, baseball's dominant figure with the New York Yankees in 1927, center, and a dying man when he made his farewell appearance at Yankee Stadium in 1948, right.

LOU GEHRIG, left, and Babe Ruth gave the New York Yankees the best one-two batting punch in baseball history.

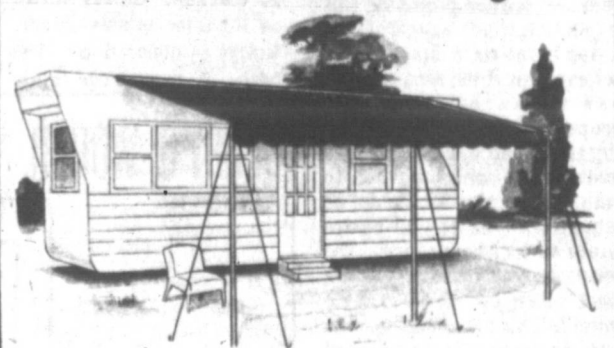

Baltimore, Md. He joined the Boston Red Sox in 1914, the year World War I started, and was acquired by the New York Yankees in 1920, the year after the Black Sox World Series scandal. The latter date is pivotal. Baseball's honor lay in the gutter as a result of the scandal and the Babe reached down with his 52-ounce bat and lifted it to the status of the national pastime.

This Ruth was not the overblown Ruth of 1930 with his 250-pound Santa Claus-like body supported by spindly legs. This was a lean and hard, 6-foot, 3-inch, 215-pound super athlete. These were the Roaring Twenties in the United States which had turned its thoughts to fun after having taken part in the "war to end wars."

It was an era of wonderful nonsense and Ruth strode through it like Everyman turned loose in the Garden of Fun. He was big and coarse ... tramping through life with a reckless abandon ... eating, drinking and brawling with astonishing appetite. His Ruthian power literally saved and transformed the game. Baseball was a game of pitching.

Follows tradition.
NEW YORK (UPI) — When Bobby Murcer clubbed four consecutive home runs in consecutive games in June, 1970, he was the fourth Yankee to turn the trick. Previous sluggers included Lou Gehrig, Johnny Blanchard and Mickey Mantle. Gehrig hit his four in one game.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN — Unless a homeowner has some sound knowledge of textiles, or knows just whom to turn to for expert advice, it can be extremely difficult to know how to purchase carpeting.

If you have decided that carpeting all or part of your home will give it that finishing touch, you are headed toward a major — and an expensive — step in home improvement.

But where do you go from there?

You may have formed some basic ideas about hue or color, and know whether you'll settle for shag or sheared type of carpeting. You may start watching carpet ads, and confusion can set in.

A similar type of carpeting may be advertised at various rates. You must check to see if the listed price is for the carpeting only, or whether it includes cost of installation — a substantial item. And, does the installation estimate also include the price of padding to put under the carpet?

This sort of variation in pricing is not necessarily an indication of misrepresentation of total cost. Since some flooring firms contract out their installation work, their only interest is in showing you the actual carpet cost. Others include it in a package.

The usual guide to carpeting cost is in terms of so many dollars per square yard. And while some volume sellers market carpet by the linear foot, for the do-it-yourselfer, most flooring specialists consider the per-square-yard estimate to be the consumer's easiest indication of expense, without unnecessary waste of material.

If you run across an offer of carpeting quoted by the cost per square foot, beware. This can be misleading.

The same holds true for the type of advertising which boasts that you can have "three rooms carpeted for as little as

Obviously, it would be impossible to cover three rooms containing a total of, say, 80 square yards, for the same price as another three rooms containing a total of only 60 square yards.

It was designed to give the Commissioner the tools with which to order an undesirable C.U. official fired, order an errant board replaced, and issue cease and desist orders to curb an improper practice.

Before June 14, the Commissioner's normal practice was to try to talk a credit union's management out of a practice which was looked upon as improper and a danger to depositors, or he could throw the association into liquidation. He lacked the authority, such as that of the banking commissioner, to help restore an association's solvency if it appeared to be in trouble.

One of the reform provisions requires that by July 1, 1975, the C.U. commissioner must promulgate rules requiring that all Texas credit unions provide for deposit insurance for all their members.

Reportedly, our state commission is looking into the feasibility of a multiple-state approach to deposit insurance, as well as other plans.

H.B. 1673 changed the rules for organizing a state-chartered credit union by requiring that the articles of incorporation include the names and addresses of the initial board of directors; increased the charter fee from $10 to $50; gave the C.U.

News as a teaching tool 'Newsread Series' aids poor readers

NEW YORK — (NEA) — To help combat the alarming rise in reading deficiency among the nation's students, the Reading Laboratory Inc., in cooperation with Newspaper Enterprise Association, has developed a supplemental reading program for students who are reading below their grade level.

The program, called "The Newsread Series," uses actual newspaper stories written by the NEA staff which have appeared in hundreds of newspapers throughout the country.

While most existing supplemental reading programs use specially prepared text material, "Newsread" edits adult newspaper articles for students who have a reading level of sixth grade or above. The articles, which are issued twice a year to maintain timeliness, are presented in combination with reading exercises for use by teachers and students.

The familiarity of a newspaper format provides the slow reader with interesting material from the world around him and gives him confidence he may lack when facing a more intimidating textbook.

The program focuses on vocabulary, reading comprehension, summarizing ability, and the ability to differentiate between fact and opinion. In addition to the printed material, the package includes cassette tapes to help students learn pronunciation, definition and word usage.

Michael Schall of The Reading Laboratory reports that NEA material was selected because of the diversity of its subject matter and because "the newspaper is a bridge between television and books." He adds that the writing style common to feature journalism more closely resembles the expository writing found in textbooks than do hard news articles.

The need for efficient supplemental reading programs in the United States is widely recognized.

— Approximately 75 per cent of schoolchildren in New York City are currently in some type of remedial reading program.

— A 1970 nationwide survey revealed that seven million children under the age of 16 are not reading at the expected level of their school grade.

— A full 90 per cent of the 700,000 students who drop out of school annually are classified as poor readers.

— 18½ million adults in America are functionally illiterate — they cannot fill out a job application nor read instruction manuals related to their work.

Many programs have been started on the national, state and local levels to answer the question, "Why can't Johnny read?"

In 1972, the federal government founded the Right to Read program to offer financial and educational assistance to schools. The program aims to overcome negative attitudes toward reading and promote reading in all subjects studied by the child. There are currently 244 Right to Read projects throughout the country, with material selection and teaching methods left largely to the discretion of individual schools and communities.

Pending in Congress is a bill written by Sens. J. Glenn Beall Jr. (R-Md.) and Peter H. Dominick (R-Colo.), which calls for increased subsidies to schools for reading programs in the primary grades and tighter requirements for reading teachers and more advanced reading specialists.

Ralph C. Staiger, executive secretary-treasurer of the International Reading Association, feels that newspapers are of great assistance in teaching children how to read. One of the IRA's publications, "Teaching Reading Skills Through the Newspaper," notes that "the newspaper can be used to develop virtually the entire range of reading skills." Further, understanding newspaper style can aid in "detecting the organization of ideas in reading," as well as teaching students to discern implications and make critical judgments.

"Newspaper Enterprise Association feature stories cover a wide range of subjects and we have been able to pass on this diversity to the students who will study 'Newsread,'" Schall comments. "Everything from sports, show business and acupuncture to foreign countries and social concerns such as poverty and the environment are covered in the program."

"By giving the student, — whether in junior high school or in adult education — interesting material which he can easily comprehend and relate to current interests and concerns," Schall says, "we hope to reinforce positively his existing skills and help develop new ones."

Teachers and school officials interested in obtaining samples of "The Newsread Series" may write to Michael Schall, The Reading Laboratory, Inc., 55 Day Street, South Norwalk, Conn., 06854. The name of the school and the grade level of the students should be included with all requests.
