Last Quarter UF Payments Being Made

"The first of the last quarterly payments to member organizations of the Pampa-Lefors' United Fund were made yesterday.

The United Fund makes quarterly payments to its members and this is one of the principal reasons why Clinton Evans, UF drive chairman, has urged contributors this year to give via payroll deduction or bank draft.

Evans said, "The payroll deduction or bank draft makes giving to the United Fund easier. We haven't as yet received the first of October payments and when we do we will have enough money to pay off the current budget in full."

A high percentage of pledges are paid each year in full, Evans said, a tribute to Pampans' faith in the organization.

The total payment for this last puarter was to total $10,721.25 and the organization yesterday paid $9,649.13, leaving a balance of $1, 072.12.

The United Fund board of directors will meet at 5 p.m. today in the Chamber of Commerce con ference room.

Purpose of the meeting is to make final plans for the drive this year, to be concentrated on Oct. 30. A short, hard-hitting campaign is planned by the organization this year.

Autumn Chill Calls For Warm Drinks

When you wake up one morning to find a blanket of frost spread over your neighbor's roof, and you notice that the sun bows out early in the evening leaving an unexpected chill in the air, it is safe to say that autumn has arrived. To brighten up those chilly evenings, prepare glasses of Hot Grape Juice for the family just before bed time. ### Pancake Plans - Election Day!

When election time draws near, you ought to have two simple plans: First, plan to vote; every good citizen knows that's his or her responsibility. Then, plan for an easy, but excellent supper; that's your responsibility toward your family. For such a supper, serve Pancake Sandwiches with plenty of maple-blended syrup. Here are several suggestions from which to choose . . . suitable both as main course and dessert. Add a salad and your menu plan's complete—nothing left for that day but to wait to hear the returns! And chances are there are so many other "busy" days in your life, that you'll have many opportunities to try these pancake variations

Sandwich Pancakes

Use your favorite pancake recipe or your pet prepared mix, or buy a container of the new prepared batter. Bake on a hot griddle (at table, if you have a grill). Allow about 1/3 cup of batter for each cake. Supply each hungry person with two pancakes and a variety of the following fillings and lo, pancake sandwiches will appear right before your eyes! Plenty of butter and Log Cabin Syrup are required "go-alongs" with each and every one. Suggested fillings:

- a. Any tart jelly plus a bowl of hot crumbled sausage meat. b. A bowl of hot, spiced applesauce . . . another bowl of chopped
- c. A bool of crushed or sliced canned, frozen or fresh fruit and a bool of whipped cream. Yummy for dessert with maple-blanded syrup poured on top!
  d. Softened cream cheese.

One of Texas' Five Most Consistent Newspapers

We believe that one truth is always consistent with another truth. We endeavor to be consistent with truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Kale, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Should we at any time, be inconsistent with these truths, we would appreciate anyone pointing out to us how we are inconsistent with these moral guides.

Human Energy

It is impossible for anyone to understand the true nature of economics unless he first understands the nature of the world in which we live.

On this unhappy planet, a struggle for life is the principal characteristic. All men, women and children must eat, must be clothed and sheltered, must be protected from disease, and from excesses in the climate. Survival is not possible without these things. And the more advanced the society becomes, the less are we satisfied with these fundamentals. In addition to these basics, we want pleasures and comforts, beauty and cleanliness. In fact, human desires are insatiable.

While these facts are readily apparent, any number of persons viewing them make a central error. They contend that there are more of the good things and the necessary things of life to go around than there are. They contend that there is always an ample supply of everything; that, unfortunately, this supply is in the hands of the few; and that for a world of peace and plenty our problem is to distribute everything more equitably.

If we look squarely at the facts we will see that human beings confront a hostile world that human beings will survive best if they cooperate with others of their species; and that they are unavoidably arrayed against the non-human things of this world, such as inclement weather, disease, famine, flood, drought, insects and wild animals.

If we refuse to face these facts squarely we must adopt the world of the social schemers who cause us to be arrayed, not against the non-human agencies, but against other humans. Our enemy becomes other men.

The hostile world is viewed unrealistically as a paradise, which it is not.

Instead of harnessing our best energies to make the world furnish us with our food, our clothing, our shelter and our pleasures and comforts in ever greater abundance, we are divided into segments with some men cast in the role of villains, others in the role of saviors.

Thus, while we must struggle for existence, we are diverted from our principal task. We struggle against sional investigating committees.

BETTER JOBS By R. C. HOILES Bread First

Edmund A. Optiz, in his interesting book, "Case Studies of the 'Church in Politics," under the chapter "For Whom the National Council of Churches Speaks." has a subhead "By Bread First." Then he explains the way the heads of the National Council® puts material things before spiritual things in this manner "Presumably, the effort to bring about drastic changes in the social order for reasons which are allegedly religious is an attempt to make the faith contemporary. But this attempt, which says in effect, 'As soon as all people are.

talk to them about the deep needs of the soul' is not only questionable religion, but poor economics and poor politics. Good economics and politics rest on a spiritual base, and unless man is squared away in this area - which is the immediate province of religion he will not better himself materially by direct action aimed at "This point - that moral and spiritual understanding must precede a sound approach to political matters - needs investigation; A noted British theologian, Christo-The Dawson, put it this way: "The true social function of religion is not to busy itself with economic or political reforms, but to save civilization from itself by revealing to men the true end of life and the true nature of reality." An equally noted economist, Ludwig von Mises, writing of the conditions of material progress, says, "The material changes are the outcome of the spiritual changes,' this is indeed the case, the National Council might be well advised to lift its ban from the discussion of theological questions and place it instead on social problems. This the Council is determined not to do, perhaps because its leadership has as little confidence in its theology as others have in its economics!

"Sound and Fury" "When the church or anyone else today speaks, modern science multiplies the sound till it is heard 'round the world. But the gadget which will multiply sense in like ratio has not yet been invented. 'The Church must speak' is the current rallying cry heard in the social actionist camps, and the ecclesiastical vocal chords are located in the National Council, So the churches pool their resources and make it possible for theologians to be free from the parochial duties that weigh down the average minister, and they place elaborate resources at the disposal of these men so that when they ourselves, after the manner of barbarians, unable to see that all energies we divert from conquering the nonhuman agencies of this world as we battle other human beings, must in the end deprive all of us of the very things we must have to survive.

Were we truly civilized we would see this point at once. We would recognize that, inadvertently, there are only two types of energies which can be employed on this planet. One is human energy, which, when multiplied by our tools and our brain power, can and will provide us with abundance. The other is non-human energy, which is every other type of energy imaginable, and which is arrayed against all human energy. It must be remembered that all non-human energy is hostile to man until man has harnessed or conquered it.

The curse of the human race is its propensity to align itself with the non-human energies in an effort to control all human energy. Government is the nearly universal mechanism which is adopted by some human beings to control all other human beings.

When this is done, human beings who are controlled are unable to use their own human energy to its fullest capacity. They are short-circuited into fighting against other human beings for the simple right to mind their own business and make the best use of their own energies against the non-human agencies.

The mechanism which functions best for the fullest use of human energy is the free market. When free market conditions manifest, human beings are free to employ their energies to the fullest extent possible. Whenever the government interfeces with the free market operation, the non-human energies are given a boost and the human energies blow a fuse.

For example, here is a man who decides that he wants to build a railroad. He must struggle to do so. He must, first of all, have a great deal of money so that he can hire men to do the building. He must be able to buy land, rails, ties, spikes, cars, engines, stations, and a multitude of other things.

In setting out his road he must conquer mountains against which he must struggle, distance against which he must struggle. These are the non-human things that must be conquered.

But, unfortunately, these tremendous obstacles are only the beginning of his effort. For in addition he must also struggle against his government which first penalizes him by making him buy a license, limits his ability to hire by deciding what he shall pay his help, tells him how much of what kind of steel he can buy for his rails, limits the amount he can purchase at a given time, tells him what he can charge for the use of his services once they are running, and then taxes him on top of everything else so that such, interferences with human energy can be continued indefinitely and on an expanding scale against all other human beings.

These interferences by some human beings against others, cause mountains to be bigger and more rugged than they would otherwise be, make swamps more swampy and distances greater.

While it takes much courage to tackle a big job calculated to overcome certain non-human agencies, it takes even greater courage to tackle and overcome the human agencies arrayed against such an enterpriser.

So long as we continue to struggle against ourselves In this manner, we will be no better than our barbarian ancestors. If we would make real progress, we must learn to be civilized, and to cooperate in the free market in our struggle against the non-human agencies of this world.

BROOKLYN, N. Y. -UP- The Brooklyn Dodgers, still riding the crest of their pennant victory and a four-game winning streak over the New York Yankees at Ebbets Field, went out today to take a 2-0 stranglehold on the 1956 World Series.

Manager Walt Alston nominated 27-game winner Don Newcombe to hurl for the Dodgers against erratic Don Larsen, an 11-5 pitcher during the regular American League campaign, as the odds on the series shifted close to "even money."

PORTLAND, Ore. (UP)- Carl (Bobo) Olson, washed up as a top- notch battler at 28, went into retirement today - convinced that he couldn't come back from the effects of knockouts at the hands of Archie Moore and Sugar Ray Robinson.

The balding Honolulu and San Francisco battler, king of the world's middleweights from Oct. 21, 1953, to Dec. 9, 1955, decided Wednesday that he was not a headliner any more.

Through his manager and friend, Sid Flaherty, Olson had to announce that he couldn't go through with a planned fight here tonight against Sammy Walker, New England middleweight cham-

During his 10-year career in the ring, Olson earned an estimated $750,000 in purses. He was in 74 professional fights, won 65 and lost nine.
