Anglo-French Paratroopers Drop Into Egypt; One Force Wiped Out

Soviets Clamp Iron Rule On Hungary

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent

VIENNA —UP— Soviet troops clamped an iron rule on Hungary today. They imposed a curfew and demanded that all Hungarians lay down their arms by noon or face Soviet court martial. The Russians installed Janos Kadar, faithful follower of the Moscow party line, as premier. He replaced Imre Nagy who attempted to organize a coalition government. Nagy and most of his cabinet are prisoners of the Russians.

The last message from the U.S. legation in Budapest said Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, primate of Hungary, had taken refuge there.

There was no word from a convoy of wives and children of American legation families trying for the third time to reach the Austrian border past the Soviet roadblocks. Two attempts to get through failed.

Appeal For Action
Hungarian refugees who reached Vienna appealed to the world to act swiftly before the Soviets can wreak vengeance on the rebels. There were reports the Russians already had begun rounding up the male population and herding the men to railroad stations.

The Soviets struck in the early morning hours Sunday while members of the Nagy cabinet were negotiating the "withdrawal" of the Red armies in belief the 12-day old revolt against Communist rule had been successful.

The Russians controlled Budapest radio, but they were not broadcasting much news. Instead they were playing popular music, including "Black Magic" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Lightly armed students of the University of Sopron, three miles inside Hungary on a main road from Vienna, held off the Russians for 10 hours while refugees and Hungarian army troops escaped to freedom. No one knew the fate of the students.

Hardly A Shot Fired
An account of the fall of Budapest came from a 24-year-old Hungarian physician who made his way to Vienna.

"Budapest fell to the Russians with hardly a shot fired in its defense," he said. "I was surprised the Russians were in. They came so fast that any resistance would have been useless."

"In the hours of darkness, thousands of tanks must have invaded my city. I counted what appeared to be 400 as I rode to the west in an ambulance. Artillery and infantry filled the streets."

Award Goes To Draft Board Clerk

Mrs. Kathleen E. Zmotony, clerk of the local selective service board (Local Board No. 52), will receive an award from Colonel Monte E. Schwart, state director, Wednesday.

Mrs. Zmotony will receive the award for an employee suggestion which she suggested in May of this year and which has been adopted by the state system.

Mrs. Zmotony suggested that Selective Service administration would be improved if a chart would be prepared for the guidance of clerks in connection with the prompt and efficient submission of Selective Service reports. It was considered that efficiency and economy would result from the adoption of Mrs. Zmotony's suggestion.

"The Selective Service System Certificate of Award is being given her as formal recognition of her exceptional devotion to her job and the job of everyone in this system in the state of Texas," William B. Sinclair, chief in the system's administration division wrote The News today.

Colonel Schwartz, state director of Selective Service, will also be here to talk to Local Board No. 52, which has jurisdiction over Gray, Roberts, Donley and Wheeler Counties.

Colonel Schwartz will make the presentation about 3 p.m. Wednesday.

Election Preparations Made

County Voting Places Unchanged

Final preparations were being made today for the general election in Gray County tomorrow. Election materials and boxes were being delivered this morning by deputy sheriffs to the various polling places and voting booths were being placed in the polling places also.

Bruce Parker, county judge, announced this morning that W. A. Rankin would act as election judge of Precinct 19 at the Court House in the absence of D. E. Holt who is unable to hold the election. Rankin will also act as judge for the precinct for the special amendment election on Nov. 13.

A total of 421 absentee votes have been received by the county clerk's office, Charlie Thut reported this morning. Of this number 263 persons have voted in person at the clerk's office and 158 have been mailed in. A total of 26 ballots have not been received in the mail but if they bear a postmark prior to mid-night last Friday and are received prior to 3 p.m. tomorrow they will be counted. Thut reported.

Counting of the absentee ballots will begin at 1 p.m. tomorrow in the county clerk's office with Aaron Meek, Bill Ragsdale, Mack Hiatt and Mrs. Jim Hopkins making the tally.

Judge Parker reported that all residents of Gray County would vote at the polling places where they have been casting their ballots in other elections this year. The changes in voting precincts which resulted in the consolidation of some precincts will not go into effect until after the first of the year, he reported.

Voting will take place at the following places in Gray County: Pct. 1 — Letors Community Hall; Pct. 2 — Baker School, 300 E. Tule; Pct. 3 — Grandview school, 18 miles southwest of Pampa; Pct. 4 — Alanreed school in Alanreed; Pct. 5 — McLean City Hall; Pct. 6 — Laketon school at Laketon; Pct. 7 — Farrington in the home of Clyde Carruth; Pct. 8 — Hopkins school; Pct. 9 — Woodrow Wilson School, 801 E. Browning; Pct. 10 — Gray County Court House; Pct. 11 — Kingsmill, scale-house on Highway 60; Pct. 12 — Oddfellows Hall, 210 W. Brown; Pct. 13 — Phillips Camp, eight miles south of Pampa; Pct. 14 — Horace Mann School, 400 N. Banks; Pct. 15 — Carpenters Hall, 705 W. Foster; Pct. 16 — Tom Ross Motor Co., 121 N. Ballard; Pct. 17 — McLean, Ford Motor Co.; and Pct. 18 — Webb's residence, 10 miles south of Letors.

At the noon luncheon meeting of the New Hotel Executive Committee in the Palm Room today the members of the committee reported on progress made in obtaining advance stock subscriptions.

They also discussed names of other persons and firms who they thought would be able to purchase stock in the amount of $1,000 and over and various members took names of additional prospective subscribers.

W. J. Smith, legal council, reported that the permit for the sale of stock has not been received yet but it is expected to be issued some time this week.

The general sales campaign force will meet at 5 p.m. today in the Palm Room for an instructional meeting. The group was to discuss the subscription form with emphasis on the fact that it was a legal form.

This was the first of several instructional meetings the group will hold prior to the opening of the general sales campaign on Nov. 16.

The general sales force will contact all persons or firms who are on list prepared by the executive committee in the $100 to $1,000 range.

Stock purchases can be paid for in 10 installments. The first payment of 10 per cent will be made when the stock is purchased with the next payment of 10 per cent due on Jan. 1 and ten per cent due on the first of each month following until the stock is paid for.

A $50 stock certificate and a $50 debenture will be sold as a package unit and stock can only be purchased in multiples of this amount.

The stock is non-assessable and purchasers of stock will not be liable for any amount other than the amount of stock they purchase, officers of the executive committee point out.

SECAUCUS, N.J. (UP) — President Eisenhower today received some last-minute support in his bid for reelection.

Henry B. Krajewski, a tavern owner and former pig farmer running for the presidency as the American Third Party candidate, withdrew Sunday in favor of the President.

Campaign Finale

Democrats Are Still Stumping

WASHINGTON (UP) — Democrats kept their troops in the field today in a last-minute drive for votes before Tuesday's presidential election. The available evidence indicated that they need all the votes they can still get — and probably more.

President Eisenhower and his Democratic opponent, Adlai E. Stevenson, along with their respective running mates, will make separate television appearances tonight for the official finale of the 1956 campaign. But while Mr. Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon were otherwise idle politically, Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver, Democratic vice presidential nominee, were still on the stump. Stevenson was in Minneapolis, Minn., for a final appearance this morning in that closely contested state. Kefauver moved into Ohio and even agreed to keep going Tuesday on an election day foray into Florida, another closely divided state.

Two Million Texans To Vote Tomorrow

Last-minute victory predictions came from all sides today, as two million Texans prepared to go to the polls Tuesday in what may be a record turnout. Weathermen said skies would be partly cloudy, with a chance for showers over some parts of the state during Tuesday's balloting.

The big question was whether President Eisenhower could repeat his Texas victory of 1952. The state's single Republican congressman, Bruce Alger of Dallas, also faced what observers believed would be an extremely close race. His opponent is Democrat Henry Wade, the Dallas county district attorney.

Sec'y. Dulles' Cancer Not Malignant

WASHINGTON (UP) — Doctors who operated on Secretary of State John Foster Dulles Saturday removed a cancer from the large intestine. They found no evidence that the malignancy had spread to any other organ.

The State Department disclosed this in a medical bulletin issued Sunday at Walter Reed Army Medical Center where Dulles underwent surgery.

The bulletin said the secretary's condition as of 3 p.m. EST Sunday was "good." A State Department spokesman said he still was standing by a previous prediction that Dulles will be back at his desk in about six weeks.

President Eisenhower paid a 15-minute call on Dulles Sunday afternoon and immediately made clear that he does not expect the operation to affect Dulles' place in the cabinet. Dulles is 68.

The President issued a special statement praising Dulles' conduct of foreign policy and announcing that Undersecretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr., would run the State Department until Dulles "can resume his full duties."

Arabs Blow Up Pipelines

LONDON —UP— British and French forces invaded Egypt at dawn today. Paratroopers with heavy equipment, including jeeps, radios and thousands of rounds of ammunition, jumped over Port Said at the northern end of the Suez Canal to clear the way for amphibious forces enroute from Cyprus.

The paratroopers spearheaded an invasion schedule whose immediate objectives were Port Said, Ismailia midway along the canal, and Suez, its southern terminus.

BULLETIN

LONDON —UP— Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden announced today that a cease fire had been ordered in Port Said, Egypt.

The Anglo-French command on Cyprus said the invasion "met some resistance," but that the operation was "going well." It added that all airborne troops had "been dropped according to plan" and that all planes taking part in the drop returned safely to their bases. One plane was damaged slightly on the return landing.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — (UP) — Britain and France today accepted United Nations plans for an international police force in the Middle East but said their military action in Egypt will continue until the Egyptians and Israelis also agree.

A Cairo broadcast claimed that Egyptian forces had "annihilated" one Anglo-French invasion force at Port Said and were mopping up a second landing force. Egyptian troops are still in control of Port Said, the broadcast said.

MOSCOW (UP) — Russia today urged the United Nations to give military and other aid to victims of aggression. It said it was ready to send air and naval forces to Egypt.

Bids To Be Taken By Commission

Bids for a new posting and billing machine to be used in the city water office will be opened by the city commission at 10 a.m. tomorrow; Fred Brook, city manager, stated this morning.

Bids on the new machine are expected from at least three companies. The new machine will replace an older machine in use at the water office, Brook reported, but the old machine will be kept by the city for use when the water department to use a second machine.

No other activity is scheduled for the meeting of the commissioners tomorrow morning in the City Commission room.

Brook reported that progress was made last week with details for the Hobart Street underpass when city officials and engineers met with engineers from the Amarillo office of the State Highway Department. He reported that the engineers want to include the Alcock and Hobart streets intersection in the construction work and reported that if the city had all of the right-of-way secured in the near future the bids for the underpass would be let about the first of the year.

The engineers reported no definite date or plans for the letting of bids but were only securing information from the city on when Pampa could begin its part of the work so the state would know when it could go ahead with the necessary plans, Brook concluded.

Report Egyptians Wipe Out Invaders

CAIRO (UP) — Egyptian units wiped out an Anglo-French paratroop force at Port Said today and moved against another invasion group in the same area, an official Egyptian communique announced.

Egyptian tanks, mortars and machine guns were reported to have taken a heavy toll of British and French paratroopers who jumped into the Suez Canal zone.

One Anglo-French airborne force attempting to capture El Gamil airport in the salt flats near Port Said was exterminated, the communique said.

Another paratroop force dropped in the same area but Egyptian forces were moving against its members, the communique said.

Anti-aircraft batteries blasted the planes carrying enemy paratroopers as they came into their drop zones, officials reported said.

These reports said seven aircraft were downed with all their airborne troops and equipment.

British and French planes continued to pound inland targets. Communiqués said eight of the attacking fighters and bombers were shot down in the Cairo area alone, bringing to 102 the total number of British and French planes claimed destroyed by Egypt since hostilities began.

(Cairo radio heard in Beirut, Lebanon, reported that Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser himself inspected defense positions in the canal zone during the day.)

(An Arab broadcast heard in Beirut said Egyptian and British naval units clashed in the Red Sea and the Egyptian naval command reported the sinking of one British destroyer. Earlier Egyptian communiques reported two British destroyers sunk and three drop zones, officials reported said.)

One-Fourth Of World's Oil Cut Off By Middle East War

LONDON (UP) — One-fourth of the world's entire oil production was cut off or endangered today by the war in the Middle East. Furious Arab Nationalists were blowing up pipelines running across the deserts from oil fields to ports. A pall of smoke 10,000 feet high was reported in Syria over the pipeline of the British-controlled Iraq Oil Co.

Cairo radio said American-owned oil installations also had been destroyed or damaged. It said the Bahrain Petroleum Co., a subsidiary of the Caltex Co., had been set afire and destroyed. The pipelines of the Arabian American Oil Co. in Saudi Arabia were said to have been damaged in three places.

However, the New York office of Aramco reported Sunday that its pipeline running from Saudi Arabia to the Mediterranean, with a capacity of 315,000 barrels a day, is still open.

With the Suez Canal blocked, the world tanker fleet was woefully inadequate to supply Europe's needs. The journey around the African Cape is nearly twice as long as the Suez route and, even before the current trouble began, there was a shortage of tankers.

British gasoline stations today had a run on sales prompted by the belief that gasoline rationing may be near.

The cutting of oil pipelines was considered not so grave as the possibility that fanatics might set afire the oilfields themselves. The fields are spread over hundreds of thousands of square miles and dotted with widely spaced wells. While pipelines can be repaired, such fires would be extremely difficult to quench.

The flareup had placed in jeopardy billions of dollars of American, British, French and Dutch investments in the world's largest known ocean oil. The income from oil royalties is vital, too, to the Arab states. The wells bring $200 million annually to Saudi Arabia alone.

UF Contributions Total $20,942

Clinton Evans, head of the Pampa-Lefors United Fund campaign this year, announced this morning that $20,942 of the $51,500 goal set for the drive has either been pledged or received by the UF headquarters so far.

Evans urged all United Fund workers to secure their goal, in raising the money they are supposed to, because, "Someday the very people who are donating this money might need the help the organizations supported by this drive can offer."

UF solicitors were given cards last week with different names on them to contact for donations. This week, it is hoped that enough of the money will be received to close the campaign on a successful note.

MANY YOUNG COUPLES TODAY DESIRE elegance in home furnishings, but they often have limited budgets and must face the problems of compromise. How to make these compromises is suggested by Kroehler decorators in planning a tastefully decorated apartment for young marrieds on a budget.

COUPLE with this decorating problem preferred to make major investments in terms of ultimate use. Two items were felt to be most important in terms of the present and future: one was a sofa that would fit to their future contemporary styled home; the other, high fidelity equipment to enjoy both now and later.

A solution was worked around. Inexpensive, but interesting accessories that helped create the exact atmosphere for smart urban living. The problem was a three room urban apartment with a well-shaped but small living room, a tiny kitchen and bedroom. The occupants wanted an air of spaciousness.

The couple knew they would have to make compromises but didn't know where to begin.

First a sofa was selected to meet the requirements of contemporary elegance in both their present apartment and the larger home planned for the future. The "Cosmopolitan" sofa selected was a Valentine Seaver Original design by Kroehler. Satin brass legs are high enough to give a light look to the long but slimly styled piece.

A smooth fabric in a muted turquoise made the sofa the color focal of the room. The other major investment was dictated by the couple themselves. Music played an important part in their lives and they wished to include a music wall with high fidelity equipment in their apartment.

Following these two major purchases, decorators kept the decorating cost down by using imagination in accessories. To create the spaciousness desired, one entire wall was covered with white brick-like wall covering. This gave an outdoor airiness to the room.

An unfinished dining table and chairs were chosen for one end of the living room and a visual room divider was created by hanging three moderately priced Danish hanging lamps at a right angle to the wall. These dropped to 34" above a low table painted dull black, also at a right angle to the wall. The lamps illuminate the dining area and the sofa as well, thus eliminating space wasted on table or floor lamps. Tropical plants were grouped at one end of the table to give a color accent against the white brick wall. Unfinished cabinets were painted white and were used on the wall opposite the sofa to house the high fidelity equipment with space left for a television to be added later. Decorators placed two Valentine Seaver armless hostess chairs in front of the music wall. They are gracefully shaped and swivel easily to face any part of the room. Another clever but inexpensive touch of elegance was attained through the use of unframed prints fastened directly to the wall. Placed one above the other, they give dramatic height to the room. Such prints are available at nominal cost from many art institutes and mewsels and can be changed with the seasons.

Below the pictures on a low table, a reproduction of an ancient figure was placed to make an interesting conversation piece.

New Home Decorating "Menu" Delight Is Recipe For Making Picture Frames

BY KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

Is the collection of prints suitable for framing that you've clipped from calendars filed away, waiting for frames that will put it on the wall?

So is mine. I have a portfolio, good intentions and not much spare cash to spend on good, permanent framing.

Some of the prints, gay and pretty as they are, may not be ones I'd want to live with for years. But I could use them for the color they'd add to stairwell, bedroom or hallway.

THAT'S WHY I leaped like a trout at the suggestion from the Pida Washing Clinic for an inexpensive way of framing them that's both easy and fun to do. The main ingredients — a box of detergent, liquid laundry starch, cake icing decorator and card-board — are probably on hand in your home right now. So this makes a good spur-of-the-moment project to try when you're in need of a change of pace.

Mixing detergent and starch together in the proper proportions produces a grainy batter to start with. This is whipped to a creamy "frosting" which is spooned into the decorating gun and squirted onto a cardboard frame in plain or fancy scrolls. The firmness and the finished effect is much like that of rocco plaster frames.

I followed the following directions and the results were successful:

1. Cut your picture backing from cardboard (I used a heavy-weight cardboard). This should be size of the frame. Mount picture on this with paste.
2. Cut a mat from cardboard or heavy mat board to fit around picture, pasting outer edges of mat to cardboard backing. I used a razor to cut the mat to insure sharp, clean edges.
3. Cut a cardboard frame to fit around mat and paste down.
4. Shield picture with a piece of waxed paper.
5. Now, mix one cup of granulated detergent with six tablespoons of liquid starch until mixture resembles coarse cake batter.

BEAT WITH an egg beater to whipped-cream consistency. You can apply the mixture to cardboard with a table knife for a smooth effect, or it may be swirled on with a spoon. But I like beat the effect achieved when it's squeezed on with an icing gun.

Prepare only enough mixture for one frame at a time, as it dries rapidly. When dry, attach screw eyes and Rich-looking frames for those prints you've always wanted to hang can be fashioned from ingredients purchased on a modest budget. They're formed on cardboard bases from a detergent-and-starch mixture which can be applied with a cake-decorating gun.

Incidentally, if you are decorating a doll house for Christmas, you can make miniature frames for tiny pictures, using a toothpick to apply material around the cardboard backing. Some of the bird and-flower prints on stamps from the National Wildlife Federation are just the right size for doll-house walls.

IF YOU WANT COLOR, stir poster paint, gilt or ink into the batter. Or tip the scrolls with gilt after the frame is dry.

Another pretty variation is to spray the cardboard frame with gold before its pasted down and work in a lacy effect to let some of the gold shine through.

Who says dream cars never come true?

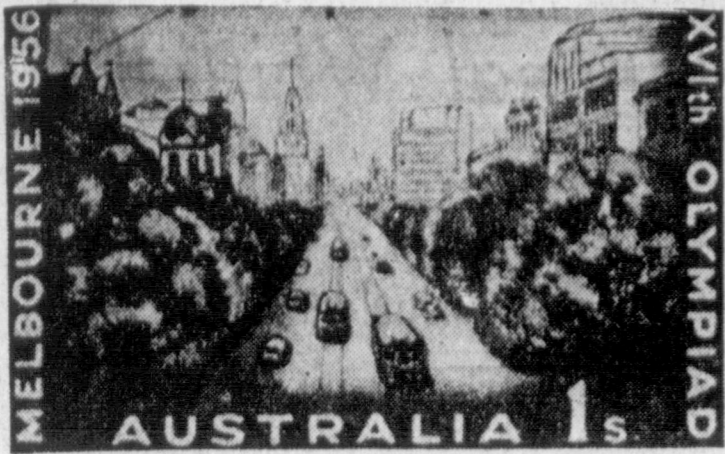

Dynamite from Detroit

Coming! America's first production dream car—it will influence the shape of cars for years to come.

The old Detroit rule was to introduce new features gradually, to make little changes each year. Sometimes a new grille, an engine improvement, or new colors and trim. We broke that rule. In fact, we broke all the rules. This is dynamite! For you are not the only one who has dreamed of a totally modern car, a car that has everything you find at automobile shows, in illustrations, and in custom-built experimental cars. Detroit has had that dream, too. And that's why the 1957 Mercury is the car that has honestly excited the most car-jaded, the most sophisticated of Detroit's automotive experts. When you see the new 1957 Mercury, you'll see America's first full-production dream car—a car that will influence the shape of cars for years to come.

Writer Gets Out In Nick Of Time

EDITORS — Herman Blumenfeld, Fox-Movietone correspondent based in Munich, was one of the lucky ones who made it out of Hungary just before the Russians clamped an iron grip on the strife-torn country. Here is his report.

By HERMAN BLUMENFELD

Written for United Press
MUNICH, Germany (UP) — I checked with our picture editor in Munich on Friday and he said everything looked quiet in Budapest and it seemed like the Russians were pulling out.

I had already been back and forth four or five times, so I said, "Okay, I'm going back and see." I was almost sorry I said that. My German cameraman and I headed back for Budapest from Vienna, through the border at Nickelsdorf and on to the capital. It took about three hours.

When we got to Budapest we noticed quite a number of people were leaving. Someone said the airfield was surrounded and occupied and that Russia had sent in reinforcements.

Bring in New Troops
Our legation checked the report and was told by the Russian embassy that new troops were being brought in as relief because Russia wanted to withdraw the other troops. There were no Russian soldiers in Budapest itself, but I knew how they usually move up at night and then go in just as soon as it's dawn.

Then that afternoon I heard they were getting closer around Budapest, and my cameraman said he thought it had been foolish for us to come back.

On Saturday morning I met a fellow at the U. S. embassy who said they were getting up a convoy. They had tried to send a convoy out of the country on Friday, but the Russians wouldn't let it through. The embassy sent the Russians a note advising them turn to Cyprus, said the operation was "a piece of cake (easy)."

Fighter Plane Cover
The troop-carrying planes went in with fighter plane cover and followed a route into the canal zone previously marked with naval zone previously marked with flares by a Pathfinder Canberra jet.

The paratroopers "landed smack in the middle of the airfield," one pilot said. As the paratroopers tumbled out of their transport planes over Port Said, Anglo-French jet fighters and bombers struck Al Maza Airfield outside Cairo. They were met with heavy anti-aircraft fire. A United Press reporter saw three of the attacking planes shot down. First official news of the invasion came in a communique from the British-French joint command on Cyprus. It was issued at 7:40 a.m. Cyprus time and read:

"British and French paratroopers have this morning landed on Egyptian soil."
No Preliminary Bombardment
Another communique, an hour later, identified Port Said as the first target and said the jump was carried out without preliminary bombardment "in order not to cause civilian casualties or damage to the town."

Days ago the British and French had named their primary targets and warned civilians away. Five days of round-the-clock aerial attacks preceded the invasion. On Sunday, the British and French bombers began their final round of "softening up." They struck at coastal batteries, radar installations, marshalling yards and armored concentrations.

Climaxes Tense Preparations
Then, just as the sun rose today, the paratroopers in their red berets, bulky with their heavy equipment, began climbing into their transports on three Cyprus airfields.

The paratroopers' take-off from Cyprus climaxed a tense 24 hours of urgent battle preparations, screened by a security blackout imposed at 7 p.m. Sunday, Cyprus time.

All day Sunday and on into the night, troops and equipment loaded and embarked from Cyprus aboard the biggest Mediterranean invasion fleet since the World War II strike at Sicily.

As the planes neared their targets, the radio "voice of Britain" on Cyprus stepped up its warnings to the Egyptian people.

Egypt Fights Back After Invasion

CAIRO (UP)—Egypt fought back today against a massive Anglo-French airborne invasion. A communique said Port Said anti-aircraft batteries had shot down seven plane-loads of British and French paratroopers.

Cairo radio had broadcast martial music throughout the night as the invasion neared and an announcer said Britain and France would regret their actions. "The British are strong in the air and at sea, but they are vulnerable on the land," an announcer said between numbers. "Egypt's best chance will come when the British set foot on Egyptian soil."

(One Cairo broadcast heard in Beirut said the Anglo-Egyptian attack on Port Said had failed and that Egyptian forces were in "complete control" of the situation.)

(The broadcast said the enemy was "trying to shell Port Said from the air following the failure of its attacks and is trying to save the remnants of its forces.")

Cairo itself was hit by low-level British and French air raids at dawn. They bombed Al Maza Airfield but were met with heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Egypt Sunday night reported the sinking of four British and French naval vessels, including a 7,000-ton French cruiser, during two days of pre-invasion naval activities.

An official communique listed 87 French, British and Israeli aircraft shot down by Egyptian forces since the start of hostilities.

Police Have No Clues In Mystery
ABILENE, Tex. (UP)—Police admitted today they had no clues in the disappearance last Thursday of a quiet, church-going brunette housewife who vanished after going out to seek a job.

The missing woman is Mrs. Ernestine Chamlee, 36. Her husband, James Chamlee, told officers she wanted to earn extra money for Christmas.

"She didn't really need the money," he said. "She's been in fine spirits. We don't know what could have happened."

The congregation of the First Church of the Nazarene, where she worshipped regularly with her husband and three children, put up a $500 reward Sunday night for information leading to Mrs. Chamlee's safe return.

Her 1950-model automobile was found Friday in front of a supermarket, but there was no trace of the woman, who walks with a slight limp due to a knee operation.

ful county-by-county survey." He said the President had a "substantial and growing lead" in the four big counties of Harris, Dallas, Bexar and Tarrant.

In addition, said Shivers, Mr. Eisenhower is "running much stronger in the smaller counties than the Stevenson forces ever dreamed he would."

But Warren Woodward, executive director of the Texas Democratic campaign, said a "final check" during the weekend showed "a Democratic majority on Tuesday in Texas of 150,000 votes."

Woodward said the check showed a "strong Democratic trend in the cities and metropolitan counties which had not been anticipated earlier in the campaign."

Carry North Texas
Still another prediction came from Hugh E. Prather Jr., the regional chairman of the Texas Democrats for Eisenhower in North Texas. He said Mr. Eisenhower would carry North Texas by five percentage points.

Lead Demo Campaign
Sen. Lyndon Johnson and House Speaker Sam Rayburn have helped lead the Stevenson campaign in Texas.

Johnson seized control of party machinery from Shivers by winning majorities in precinct and county conventions, and finally at the convention in Dallas.

Andrews For President

During the eleventh hour of the presidential campaign we would like to give those who fear ever encroaching government some good reasons why they should vote for T. Coleman Andrews for President and Thomas Werdel for Vice-President.

Those who are avowed Big Government advocates will find no solace in these words for these two men have nothing to promise but an effort to reduce the part government plays in the lives and fortunes of the individual.

The bare political fact facing every American today is that there is only a difference in degree between the socialistic policies of Eisenhower and Stevenson. Stevenson, of course, has a saving grace in that he admits to being dedicated fervently to the welfare state while Eisenhower promulgates what is pleasantly known as "dynamic conservatism" which, reduced to his more important actions, means the appointment of an outstanding New Dealer, Earl Warren, as Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, hearty opposition to the Bricker Amendment, and a program of federal aid to education.

To those who say Eisenhower is the friend of freedom because he has reduced the number of federal employees, favored the return of the tidelands to Texas and favored private power development of Hells Canyon — we say the evil which Warren, the lack of a Bricker Amendment and federal aid to education portend outweighs a hundred fold these minor retrenchments.

The sickness which permeates the Republican party is that it MUST win, seemingly, at any price and if that price means the adoption of the old New Deal under a new facade, then it will become another New Deal.

The sad part of the Eisenhower leadership is that the majority of Republicans in Congress feel obligated to go along with the administration's socialistic causes or else lose favor with the White House when, prior to the popularity-at-any-price psychology, the Republicans and Southern Democrats teamed up to kill a great deal of the mischief of Truman and Roosevelt. Hence, don't feel for a minute, you conservative Eisenhower supporters, that all is lost if your votes go to Andrews and Werdel and Stevenson is elected as a result. The prospect of a "liberal" president (Stevenson) opposed by a conservative congress is much preferred to the prospect of a "liberal" President (Eisenhower) with little or no opposition in congress.

As Willie Schlamm implies, Eisenhower isn't the first Republican elected President since 1928, he is the third New Dealer. If the Republican voter has any obligation today, it is to save the Republican party from Eisenhower and return it to a status of opposition to creeping socialism.

And now, gentle reader, let us get down to brass tacks and itemize the twelve basic points of the Andrews-Werdel ticket:

- 1. Abolish the federal income tax.
2. Curb the power of the Supreme Court.
3. Leave racial problems to the states.
4. Block federal aid to education.
5. Prohibit federal deficits, except in dire emergency.
6. Return federal lands to States or to private citizens.
7. Prohibit the "union shop."
8. "Desocialize" agriculture.
9. Limit the President's treaty making power.
10. Avoid world government, end foreign aid.
11. Reverse "the trend toward socialism."
12. Stop the draft.

If you subscribe to the above twelve points, don't hesitate to make your position known tomorrow by voting for Andrews and Werdel. Should you still be of the mind which thinks it is more important to win an election than to take a forthright stand, we commend to your reflective faculties that any success, not grounded on fixed principles is illusory. Tomorrow is your opportunity to be heard and, though the odds are against the freedom program taking the day, you can still have the satisfaction of a conscience that says, "I have tried to preserve a heritage of liberty for succeeding generations that they might know the glory of men who are free from oppressive government."

THE NATION'S PRESS

SOME GOOD QUESTIONS (Christian Economics)

To that portion of the Christian church which has become persuaded of the soundness of collectivistic principles in economic action the following questions should be put: If it is a good thing that the state should guide the economic experience of men, telling them what to do in order that they will be directed to doing that which is beneficial for all, why is it not likewise a good thing that the state should guide men in their religious experience, telling them what to do in order that they will be directed to doing that which is beneficial to all? Is not religious welfare as important to humanity as economic welfare? If therefore economic welfare requires social planning, why also does not religious welfare require social planning? If individual choice is bad in the economic realm, because it permits men to do evil, why is it not also bad in the religious realm, where it must also permit men to do evil? If the best results are achieved for men when they follow the planning of an official hierarchy in the task of making a living, why will not also the best results be achieved by their following the orders of an official hierarchy in the task of saving their souls? If submission to the orders of a few who make group plans is the right principle for human action in that portion of life which is economic, why is it not also the right principle for all of life, including that portion which is religious? In short, if the basic principle for six days in the week is to be that men shall do what they are told, why should it not also be the basic principle for the seventh day?

The answers to these questions are clear. Life is a unity, and the theory that denies liberty in one part of life must end by denying it in all parts. It is the religious community itself which should examine the trend of its thinking. When it has done so, will it not see that its acceptance of collectivistic theory, to the extent that such acceptance has occurred, is based upon principles whose application must lead to the loss of liberty in religion as well as elsewhere?

Progressive Education Is Reduction

The jacket of this book has the first three letters of "Reduction" in red. The book was written by Kitty Jones and Robert Olivier. On the last page of the jacket this introduction is made:

"Simultaneously a mother in New Jersey and a high school teacher in Louisiana were disturbed by the paradox of current 'education methods.' Independently they witnessed the sub-standard results of these methods and separately they questioned the wisdom of employing them.

"In their search for and their identification of the force which has changed the character, the quality and the direction of public education in America, Jones and Olivier came upon the most vital question of all: Are our children being undereducated DELIBERATELY? They are sure they now know the answer. It is Yes.

"In Washington, Louisiana, Mr. Olivier, having taught in the public schools for thirty years, took a vocal stand for sound American education and was promptly dismissed. His story, with its greater elements of courage, pathos and suspense, is the one the authors have elected to tell. In a hard-hitting, forthright manner, based on their vast reading and observation, they have presented their case against what they consider the greatest evil of our day."

In the "Foreword" this statement is made over the two authors' names:

"This book is written for, and dedicated to, the boards of education and the teachers of America. "It is a collaborative effort to tell the story of one schoolman who had the courage to stand up and be counted for God and country. It is an attempt to give the true facts of the Olivier case, to vindicate the victim of a grave injustice, and to serve as a general critique of progressive education. It is based on the determination that a moral question is involved and that there can be no middle of the road between freedom and slavery, literacy and illiteracy, right and wrong."

Chapter III is headed "Making Little Socialists."

I think Mr. Olivier presents a splendid case that government schools are bound to produce socialism because a socialistic means cannot produce a belief in liberty and private ownership of property.

The book seems to be written in the third person. I quote: "What Robert Olivier learned, upon reading everything he could put his hands on and talking with principals in various schools, started even Olivier. He knew it was evil when he began to study but he didn't know it was as bad as it was.

"One of the first books he digested was 'Quacker in the Public Schools' by Albert Lynd, a member of the Sharon (Massachusetts) School Board. In it he found a description of a Program for Seventh Grade pupils, a practical result of the theories of William H. Kilpatrick, of Teachers College, Columbia University. The program divides the work into six weeks of study of the school itself and thirty weeks on 'Home and Family Life' — hair-raising to parents who think that school is school and home is home. One section is on how a family may play together with games, outings and pets. Yes, and heading is on 'How Can My Home Be More Democratic?'

Yes, made democratic. "Olivier could picture these seventh graders trying to find out the ways in which their homes were not 'democratic' so they could run and tell teacher. They would, of course, have to be given cues. Does each member of the family have a vote on how the money is to be spent? Does the colored girl eat in the kitchen or with the family?"

"Most teachers, Olivier knew, would not elect this program for their students. Since the philosophy of 'progressive' education is based on 'pupil interest' and pupils selecting for themselves what they want to study, teachers are free to some extent to 'guide' the choice of topic that their cherubs are interested in pursuing. Fortunately, the influence of Kilpatrick and his ilk is not universal. Yet."

What Author Does Not See

The author seems to be horrified that government schools are advocating state socialism and collectivism. He has been a government school teacher for 30 years and so under the influence of government education that he does not see what government education is — the fifth plank of the Communist Manifesto. It can no more teach moral principles than an atheist can successfully teach people to believe in an anthropomorphic god.

This is true because no man can explain what he does not understand. And it is the law of nature that people reap exactly what they are sowing. When they are sowing collective action that takes away from an individual his right to choose how his energy should be used, it is impossible for the results to be other than collectivist or state socialism. (To be continued)

Fair Enough Professional Athletic Fans Can Rapture On Rapture

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

CHICAGO — The customers who support professional athletic shows in the Mid-West are a charming breed of lunatics whose rapture feeds on rapture. By strange hypnotic power exerted on the members they could become joyously and fiercely partisan to zero, hold rallies for zero and square off in saloons and fight for the honor and glory of zero.

A quorum of these runs to about 250 head, but a big Monday may bring out 400 and the great event of the ceremony is the period when the air grows blue with smoke and the coaches and players arise in turn to answer questions which their idolaters have written on blanks placed before them with the silverware concerning incidents in Sunday's game. The answers are considerate and usually to the point and the process, copied somewhat from the political press conference, gives all concerned a sense of superiority. The customers pay $4 for their seats on Sunday and turn out Monday to inflame their own devotion to the corporation organized with the profit motive, and this is the soul of Chicago pulsating in its harmless innocence.

The Chicago bears are a professional football team operated by George Halas, who is indigenous, corny, clever and constantly surprised at a freak of crowd psychology which has made him a millionaire. The substance of the football phase of his fortune (he is an oil millionaire, too) is no more substantial than air, idle thoughts or emotion. He began with a subsidized team described as semi-pro, meaning players whose earnings are no better than the wages of unskilled labor.

Mr. Halas moved his semi-pros into Chicago and really got his start when Red Grange quit Illinois abruptly after his senior season to barnstorming and reap a little profit on a reputation which up to then had drawn a hoard of money to the University of Illinois.

As of then, Red had patches on his pants and though he did haul in a fortune in the next few seasons, the fantastic follies of his manager and Svengali, the late cash and carry Pyle, consumed most of it. Their ventures in the Public Entertainment included a shy and highly domestic mulefaced lady who was constantly courted by roguish Johns with nose bags of oats at the stage door of Pyle's freak show at the Chicago World Fair and a proud policeman from India with a mustache eight feet long whose soul died when an enemy slipped it off as he slept. Mr. Pyle later reported that the wretched cop died of a broken heart on his way home and was buried at sea.

Mr. Halas and a partner, Dutch Sternaman, both college veterans, owned and coached the Bears in those days, but Dutch had a gasoline filling station which needed shoring up in the panic of '29 and he sold his equity in the Bears to get the money. Halas turned to and from his pillow, but the course was not too hard once the Chicago fan, which is contraction of fanatic, took the Bears into his sweaty, insensate, bawling embrace.

Here is a business institution whose customers have organized their own elite called the Quarterbacks' Club, a revolving roster of addicts who usually gather on Monday in the Sherman Hotel to hurry through the standard $2.50 chop, clipped beef or London broil with a nubbin of ice cream and coffee, and then gorge their souls on per-

Ike Should Win By A Virtual Landslide

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower should win tomorrow's election by a virtual landslide, according to the politicians' last-minute tabulations, although his electoral and popular majorities may not reach the 1952 proportions. In that year, the electoral tally was 442-89, and Ike's popular margin was 6,621,280.

It is estimated that Adlai E. Stevenson's maximum electoral figure could be 188, with 266 necessary to elect. But it could fall as low as 110, if states regarded as doubtful or leaning to the Democratic nominee should slip into the Republican column.

To roll up the 188 total, Stevenson must carry the following states that went for Ike four years ago: Virginia, Tennessee, Missouri, Michigan, Minnesota, Oklahoma and Texas. They have a total of 99 electoral votes.

But the only states in this group which seem certain for him are Missouri and Oklahoma. If he loses the other five, and there is a good chance of such an outcome, his electoral tally would fall to 110.

There is no expectation that Stevenson will carry enough of the electorally powerful commonwealths which he needs to win, or even to make a more respectable showing. These are New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and California, which have the massive electoral bloc of 161 ballots.

Top-level Republicans, including experts around the White House and at Republican National Headquarters, mention between 120 and 135 as Stevenson's most hopeful prospects. Several small states reportedly on the borderline — Rhode Island, Kentucky, Arizona, New Mexico — might go to the Chicago lawyer in a close finish. Ike won all in 1952 except Kentucky, which he lost by only 700. Texas is also a Stevenson possibility.

Despite Ike's certain victory, it has been the consensus of composite polls and checkups that the Democrats would hold Congress by today's margin of two in the Senate and about 30 in the House. Until recently, Ike's coattails did not appear to be broad or long.

BEFORE THE DISHES ARE DONE

THE INTEGRATION PROBLEM

Racial integration in our schools has been very much in the news of late. Near riots in Kentucky, Tennessee and Texas, followed by the equally disturbing pictures of an armed militia outside school doors, have horrified most Americans. Only the Communists can possibly be happy over such a potential opportunity to promote hatred, chaos and even bloodshed.

Southern authorities seem to have followed three different paths since the Supreme Court ruling that compulsory segregation is illegal: 1 — the path of delay, resistance and detour in much of the deep South, 2 — the path of immediate, compulsory integration, as in Washington, D. C. and 3 — the path of partial integration on a voluntary basis.

The leader of this third pathway, Dr. Omer Carmichael, Superintendent of Schools in Louisville, Kentucky, has acquired national attention. The peace and general harmony resulting from the Louisville method has even brought Dr. Carmichael to the White House, where he was publicly praised by the President.

Now we have had a chance to study Dr. Carmichael's integration method, and to learn his reasons for the approach he took. In essence, he has carefully planned and successfully promoted a compromise between compulsory segregation and compulsory integration by eliminating the former and offering integration on a voluntary basis, leaving freedom of choice in the hands of Louisville parents, both white and Negro.

The result of this "parental choice" method is that Louisville now has some schools which are integrated, some which are all white, and some which are all Negro. All of Louisville's children were assigned to certain schools last Spring, and parents were allowed to request transfers if they so desired. To the surprise of many, 45 per cent of the Negro parents requested that their children be allowed to transfer back to their all-Negro schools.

Dr. Carmichael cited this example: "Our Central High School for Negroes is distinctly the most expensive and best school plant in our school system. . . . There were roughly 1,500 pupils in the building. I think fewer than 25 of these pupils transferred out, although there were 300 or 400 of them, I would guess, who are traveling two miles or more to get there, when they could travel a much shorter distance to a white school. Several factors operate in this. There are a lot of contradictions in this thing if you want to dig in after them. The Central High School faculty members,

Big Cities Question In Election

WASHINGTON (UP)—The big cities provide one of the big question marks in Tuesday's presidential elections. Republicans are banking on holding or increasing the gains registered in 1952 to help reelect President Eisenhower. Democrats are hoping for a return to the normal voting pattern in these cities, which generally have been Democratic bastions. Of the 35 U. S. cities with populations above 300,000, Mr. Eisenhower carried 17 in 1952 and Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, won 18. The total population of these cities represents about 20 per cent of the national figure. Mr. Eisenhower's vote in the 1952 election was 47.3 per cent of the two-party vote compared to 42.5 for Thomas E. Dewey, the GOP candidate in the 1948 election. Dewey carried only four — Cincinnati, Indianapolis, San Diego, Calif., and Rochester, N. Y. Among the cities with population in excess of one million, Mr. Eisenhower carried only Los Angeles. Stevenson carried New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Detroit.

Election Comes In Shadow Of War

By LYLE C. WILSON United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—For the fourth time in 40 years, the United States comes up to a presidential election in the shadow of armed conflict. The candidate who has had the peace issue going for him has always won, so far. Forty years ago it was Woodrow Wilson, Democrat, against Charles Evans Hughes, Republican. World War I had begun two years earlier in 1914, and some of Europe was a shell-torn wasteland. "He kept us out of war" was the campaign slogan or issue which seemed to do most for Mr. Wilson. He won by a nose. Franklin D. Roosevelt defeated Wendell L. Willkie in 1940. The most memorable statement of that presidential campaign was FDR's in Boston where he said: "I hate war." Apprehension Among Voters. There was apprehension among the voters in that campaign year that the span of a third term for Mr. Roosevelt would see the United States involved in what became World War II. And that's how it was. FDR, however, was a peace candidate and probably would have been set down hard if he had advocated any other policy in 1940. President Eisenhower defeated Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson in 1952, very much because the voters were persuaded he would get the United States out of a war. That was the Korean police action, begun mid-way in Mr. Truman's second term and ended after Mr. Eisenhower took office. The President has gone to the voters this time on a peace and prosperity platform. Polls and similar surveys of popular sentiment indicate that war weary voters and wearier veterans like the platform and the man who stands upon it. The experts are predicting Mr. Eisenhower's reelection in Tuesday's balloting. Believe It Will Win. "It's his to make" was the word passing today around the National Press Building where political experts are concentrated by the dozens. They do not believe, however, that the Republican tide reaches to the Congress. Mr. Eisenhower is reckoned more popular than his party—more popular than the Republican candidates for the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives. In many states the reelection chances of Republicans now members of Congress seem to depend almost entirely on how big a ride they can get on Mr. Eisenhower's coattails. Gov. Stevenson is in a position exactly the reverse of that in which Mr. Eisenhower finds himself. Local Democratic candidates appear to be more popular with the voters than is the Democratic candidate for president of the United States. It is Mr. Stevenson who must hitch a local coattail ride in some areas and his chance of winning seems to depend on his doing just that. Read The News Classified Ads

Buick Unveils 1957 Models

DETROIT (UP)—Buick, one of the few major automakers to retain 15-inch wheels, introduced today its 1957 models which are lower in height and higher in horsepower.

New V-8 engines generating 300 horsepower, an increase of 45 from the 1956 models, power the Roadmaster, Super and Century series. The lower-priced special series comes with 250-horsepower engines, compared with 220 this year.

Edward T. Rogsdale, General Motors vice president and Buick general manager, said at a press preview last month he saw "no real advantage" to reducing wheel diameter. Other producers which have switched to the smaller wheels this year claim it enables them to use fatter tires and "get more rubber on the road."

Rogsdale termed the 1957 line the "greatest value" Buick ever has offered to the motoring public.

last week were Mrs. Bernice Greenhill of Vaughn, N.M., sister of Wright, and Mrs. Ceall Roper, Milburn, Okla., sister of Mrs. Wright.

Women Can Pick The Winner

WASHINGTON (UP) — Women again can pick the winner in Tuesday's election if they follow through on their numerical advantage over male voters.

No matter what the ladies say privately about their age, some 561,000 more women than men are estimated to be of voting age this year.

Census bureau estimates show that 83,562,000 women and 49,091,000 men are potential voters for a total of 102,743,000. That compared with 81,298,000 women and 46,835,000 men in the 1952 total of 98,133,000 potential voters.

The figures show the candidates have not been wooing the petticoat vote as an idle gesture. Ever since 1940, the number of women eligible to cast ballots has been exceeding males by an ever-increasing edge.

Putting some uncertainty into the picture is just how the little woman uses her voting power.

International Police Force Is Rushed

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP) — The United Nations rushed today organization of an international police force for the Middle East.

Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld called in representatives of the smaller countries to discuss plans for the international force to which Canada, New Zealand, Colombia and Norway already had pledged troops.

The General Assembly, by a 57-0 vote with 19 abstentions, early today approved the projected force in a resolution proposed by Canadian External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson. Under plans drawn up by Hammarskjöld, troops from the Big Five powers would be excluded from the force whose purpose is to "secure and supervise the cessation of hostilities" in Egypt.

Sunday night, Pearson also suggested to the assembly that a similar police force might be usefully employed in Hungary.

International Police Force Is Rushed

He told the assembly Britain and France were ready to hand over a policing role to the U.N. in the Suez Canal Zone.

"Will the Soviet Union give us the same promise with respect to the military operations now going on in Hungary?" Pearson asked.

The assembly's emergency session, by a 50-8 vote with 15 abstentions, approved a United States resolution calling on Russia to end its attack against Hungary and withdraw its forces from the country.

The measure asked Hammarskjöld to appoint an investigating commission for a fact-finding mission to the country and appealed to the Soviet Union and its new puppet Hungarian government to admit such a U.N. delegation.

Ask Hungary's Needs
It also asked Hammarskjöld to ascertain Hungary's needs for food, medicines and similar supplies and called on all U.N. members to make them available.

Russia served notice in advance that it would "not sanction any intervention by the U.N. in Hungary."

Completing action on the Middle East police force and Hungarian items, the assembly ended its hectic weekend and adjourned with no plans for any meeting before tonight, at the earliest.

Britain, France and Israel refused a last midnight deadline to accept a cease-fire. The call was contained in a resolution sponsored by a number of the Afro-Asian bloc of nations and approved by the assembly early Sunday morning. Egypt accepted the cease-fire call on condition the others did likewise.

Brazil was the only South American country to enter World War I.

ARE THESE THE MEN YOU WANT TO SPEAK FOR TEXAS AT THE WHITE HOUSE?

Who will speak for Texas under a Republican Administration in the White House?

- ALLAN SHIVERS — ?
... the next ex-governor who didn't have enough influence with his Republican friends even to get the Harris-Fulbright Bill or the Farm Bill signed?
- JACK PORTER — ?
... boss of the unsavory Texas GOP administration already subjected to Congressional questioning?

ARE THESE THE MEN YOU WANT TO SPEAK FOR TEXAS AT THE WHITE HOUSE?

The Question is as Simple as that -

This is the TEXAS issue — this is the decision you must make with your vote Tuesday!

Let's give our DEMOCRATIC delegation in Congress a DEMOCRATIC Administration in the White House that will work with them and with Texas — not a Republican Administration that will work against them and remember Texas only every four years.
