Daniel Backers Fail To Get Box Hearing In Scandal

FORT WORTH (UP)—Backers of Sen. Price Daniel failed today, at least temporarily, to get a public hearing in the box 120 election scandal. "There will be no court of inquiry at this time," Dist. Atty. Howard Fender said after he conferred with two members of his staff. Gen. John Ben Shepperd's staff, Attorney Homa Hill, a captain of the Daniel forces, suggested the court of inquiry "so that the people might know all the facts." A court of inquiry is an open hearing which Fender and Shepperd's aides could conduct under state election laws. They would question witnesses and examine evidence in public. County grand jurors have been investigating the scandal. But state laws require the jurors to work behind closed doors. Fender said he "neither promoted nor squelched" the idea of a public hearing when he conferred with Asst. Atty. Gen. Will Davis and Davis Grant, who flew in from Austin to offer their help in the investigation. The district attorney left the

Motorists Take To Highways

CHICAGO (UP)—John Q. Motorists took to the nation's highways today with their families for a last summer holiday fling. Hundreds of thousands of Americans were expected to jam roads, railroads and air lines to observe the three-day Labor Day holiday. For most it meant an end to summer vacations, the return to school or college, a final picnic or a last dip at a favorite swimming spot. But while the nation observed a festive spirit, enforcement officers of the country's highway laws became grim as they prepared to grapple with holiday traffic and accidents. The National Safety Council estimated 480 persons would die in traffic mishaps during the three-day weekend, 35 above the total of 45 persons who lost their lives during the 1955 Labor Day week end. If the council's estimate is realized, it would break the previous record of 453 deaths during Labor Day in 1951. The council also has revealed some sobering statistics for motorists about the nation's highway toll this year. It said a record 21,370 persons died in traffic mishaps during the first seven months of 1956, topping the previous mark of 20,739 in 1957. A new record total of highway deaths, 3,570, also was set in July, exceeding the previous high mark of 3,419, also set in 1957. "July was the 17th consecutive month of traffic death increases," said Ned H. Dearborn, council president. "It should make people think before they take chances in Labor Day traffic this weekend."

Fire Burns Two Sections Of Grass

A fire which spread from a summer destroyed approximately 20 sections of grass land on the Pampa Ranch, 11 miles north of Pampa, Thursday afternoon. The fire started at approximately 12:30 p.m. as the spider crew was preparing to melt rabbit over flame from a gas line. The strong west wind spread the flame to the nearby grass and quickly spread. Workmen on the well and on a near by drilling rig fought the fire and thought they had it out when it jumped a canyon and got out of control. The fire was finally put out at 7:30 p.m. after the Lefors fire truck, two fire trucks from McLean and two units from Pampa, along with road maintainers and approximately 50 volunteers from nearby ranches and oil field firms, pitched in and fought the blaze. The road maintainers were used to scrape fireguards in advance of the fire and with the aid of water carried by the fire trucks the fire was put out. After the main grass fire was out, the firemen went back along burned-out area and extinguished fires which were burning on several fence posts. The fire destroyed rangeland along a line approximately three miles in length and 800 yards wide at the widest point. It came within 20 yards of the drilling rig which was located 100 yards west of the spider where the fire originated. The land is owned by James E. Parker and has been leased to Billy Davis for grazing purposes. In addition to helping put out the grass fire, the Pampa fire department answered five other alarms Thursday. The first of the alarms was at 10:55 a.m. to a grass fire in the 1000 block of S. Finley. No damage was reported to any structures in the area. At 1:20 p.m. the firemen answered a call to a residence located at 700 S. Somerville where a short in the electrical wiring resulted in a fire. The firemen reported no damage to the house. Paint remover on fire in the Home Builders Supply at 312 W. Foster resulted in a call at 4:50 p.m. Once again no damage was reported. Oil tires on fire at 801 Varmon Dr. sent the fire trucks rolling at 6:17 p.m. and the firemen were able to keep the fire confined to the tires. The final alarm came in at 8:10 p.m. when a fire of unknown origin caused heavy damage to a plumbing shop located on the rear of the J. S. McBride property at 925 Barnard.

Final Play Performance Is Tonight

James Thurber's "The Male Animal" opened last night for a two-night stand at the Senior High School Auditorium in Pampa, and was well received by a small, but enthusiastic audience. The performance was run off smoothly with the continuity of the "Animal" nearly perfect. This was an admirable achievement considering the fact that three or four members of the cast were on stage for the first time. They all performed like seasoned veterans. Two curtain calls showed the audience's approval of the production. In addition to the local audience, a group of visitors from Canada came over and thoroughly enjoyed the performance. Jim Terrell, director of the show, was pleased with his first venture and spoke highly of his entire cast and staff. Although plans are unsettled at this time as to what productions will be staged in the future, it is certain that plans will be made for at least (See FINAL PLAY, Page 3)

Red-Egypt Defense Alignment Indicated

Nasser Has Russian Backing In Monday Talks

By K. C. THALER
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON—UP—Diplomatic dispatches from Moscow today reported mounting indications of Soviet preparation for "some form of defense alignment" with Egypt in the Suez canal crisis. The dispatches said that after a period of fence straddling Russia appears to have reached the conclusion that the chance of cashing in on the present trouble and expanding the Soviet foothold in the Middle East is too good to be missed. Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser already has Soviet backing in his talks next Monday with the five-nation Suez canal committee headed by Australian Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies. The new Soviet moves could stiffen his hand. Menzies leaves Sunday. The Nasser mission leaves London Sunday, its task made far more difficult by steadily deteriorating relations between Egypt and France and Britain. The situation was complicated by Egyptian charges of espionage against British diplomats; the expulsion of two Egyptian diplomats from Britain in retaliation for such an Egyptian act against two British officials; the big Anglo-French military buildup and indications neither Britain nor Egypt would budge in negotiations on the canal. Here were the major developments in the fast-moving situation: Paris—The French cabinet called a meeting to hear Defense Minister Maurice Bouges-Maunory outline further plans for sending French troops into the Mediterranean. Nicosia, Cyprus—A battalion of France's 7th rapid mechanized division and a company of the 10th parachute division landed Thursday and Thursday night, advance units of big French reinforcements to the eastern end of the Mediterranean. Washington—U.S. officials were unhappy over France's decision to send troops to the British base and said the state department had no advance notice. They said this was not in line with the American-urged policy of moderation. Cairo—Informed sources said Indian representative V. K. Krishna Menon had put Nasser in a negotiating mood and won him over to a "reasonable compromise" approach by convincing him Menzies wants the forthcoming talks to be held in a conciliatory atmosphere. Cairo—Nasser called in outgoing U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade Thursday evening and expressed "regrets" at a statement by President Eisenhower referring to the Suez canal as "international."

Ike Announces Reds Set Off Atomic Blast

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower announced today that the Russians set off another large atomic explosion in southwest Siberia Thursday morning. Mr. Eisenhower told a news conference that the test was larger than the one conducted in the same area last Friday. The American government said last week's test had a yield of less than a megaton (1 million tons TNT equivalent). Thursday's test produced a yield of greater than a megaton. Mr. Eisenhower said an answer must await further evaluation of information by the atomic energy commission. In his first meeting with reporters since his renomination for the presidency, Mr. Eisenhower covered a broad range of topics. There were a number of political questions but he declined to outline specific campaign plans. High spots of the conference: 1. He thought this government and Egypt were talking in cross purposes in discussing the treaty of 1888 concerning the Suez canal. Mr. Eisenhower said the treaty gave other nations the right to use the canal but not to own it. 2. He repeated his firm intention not to barnstorm or whistle-stop in the coming campaign, but he said this did not rule out his appearance in any area where he deemed it timely and necessary to make a major political speech. Shrug Off 1948 Fear 3. Asked whether he would go into such specific areas as the Pacific northwest or the Midwest farm belt, he said the entire campaign strategy was still in a state of planning. He added that it would be foolish to say he would or would not do anything specific, because circumstances might change. 4. He shrugged off the endorsement of his Democratic opponent Adlai E. Stevenson by the CIO-AFL executive council, saying the same thing happened in 1952. 5. Told of some Republican fear that he might conduct a campaign of such high level that the 1948 GOP disaster would be repeated, the President said he would make sure that the good record of his administration would be made forcefully clear to the people. He said there would be no lack of candor in bringing out every item of truth, but he would not indulge in petty name-calling to which he objects strenuously. The Suez crisis has taken more of Mr. Eisenhower's time than any other one problem since he returned to the White House Tuesday night from the west coast. For the third time in two days, the President late Thursday talked over the Suez crisis with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. The White House insisted there was no emergency, but there was no blinking the fact that the administration was keeping an extremely close watch on the Suez and new signs that Britain and France may use force if the crisis deepens. On the political side, the President has been reported stung by attacks made on his administration during and since the Democratic national convention. He likewise is reported anxious to get into the campaign to present the Republican side of the cause, although he is not expected to officially launch his campaign until about Sept. 15. Early campaigning by the top men on the Democratic ticket — Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver — has given Mr. Eisenhower plenty of criticisms to answer directly or indirectly as he desires.

Death Penalty Demanded For Three Britons

By PETER WEBB
United Press Staff Correspondent

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—Egypt's chief prosecutor will demand the death penalty for three Britons held on spying charges, the newspaper Al Akhbar reported today. The three Britons were arrested this week on espionage charges and government sources said they had plotted to overthrow the government of President Gamal Abdel Nasser. Two British diplomats that Egyptian officials said were implicated by the three men under arrest were expelled from Egypt as unwelcome. Britain expelled two Egyptian diplomats Thursday night. The arrests plugged Anglo-Egyptian relations to a low ebb even before Nasser could begin negotiations with the five-nation Suez committee on easing the Suez crisis. The men arrested were James Swinburn, business manager of an Arab news agency; Charles Piltuck, assistant manager of the Marconi Telegraph and Radio Company, and James Zarb, a British business man in Cairo.

Sullen Whites Guarding School

No De-Segregation Wanted

By PRESTON MCGRAW
United Press Staff Correspondent
MANSFIELD, Tex. (UP)—More than 400 sullen white townspeople guarded all approaches to the embattled Mansfield high school today to prevent six Negro students from entering. The Negroes are armed with a federal court order. But at last report none had tried to register. In fact, not a Negro could be seen anywhere in Mansfield. L. Clifford Davis, the NAACP attorney in Fort Worth, asked Gov. Allan Shivers Thursday night for help, but the only officer in sight today was a deputy sheriff. Guards were stationed all around the campus to prevent Negroes being slipped in by side entrances. Students who live outside the Mansfield city limits register today. If the Negroes register it will have to be today. No Trouble Yet Another Negro was hanged in effigy on the Mansfield school Thursday night. This makes four hanged in effigy in Mansfield and in Fort Worth, 18 miles away. A fifth dummy also was found. As the crowd, in shirt sleeves and big hats, waited silently, a school bus came up. "There comes a bus," a man shouted, "let's go." A knot of men detached itself from the crowd and ran toward the school bus. All of the students who got off were white and the men slowly walked back to where they had come from. School Supt. R. L. Huffman was within his office discussing registration problems with students. "So far, there has been no trouble of any kind," he said. "More Police" Asked Out - of - town students were registering in the elementary school, but the crowd apparently wasn't concerned with that. Huffman said that registration will total about 480 students at the elementary school and 275 at the high school. Davis tried to appeal to Gov. Shivers Thursday night for "more police" to help get the Negroes into the school, but he was told the governor was out of town. Davis then got in touch with Col. Homer P. Garrison, director of the department of public safety. Riot Guns Ready Garrison told him, Davis said, that he was "powerless to act on his own" unless he gets an appeal from local officers or is ordered by the governor himself. Sheriff Harlan Wright is not equipped to handle any mob violence, should any break out, Davis said. Wright told him this, and he believes Wright, Davis added. Six officers with submachine guns and shotguns guarded an entrance to the school. (See SULLEN, Page 3)

300 At Hereford Breeders' Field Day

Approximately 300 persons attended the Annual Field Day of the Top O' Texas Hereford Breeders' Association in McLean Thursday. The field day was sponsored by the Top O' Texas group in cooperation with the Pampa Hereford Breeders' Association this year for the first time. The field day began Thursday with a show at the Hess Ranch located one mile south of McLean. As the crowd gathered they were served ice cold watermelon and drinks. The men discussed the merits of various Hereford bulls and cows and the problems encountered in raising registered Herefords. At 5:30 p.m. the group left the Hess farm and journeyed to the Tiger football field in McLean where they were served Bar-B-Que which was prepared by Ralph Thomas of Pampa, Flip Breedlove and Pete Land both of Clarendon. The meal, which was served by the McLean Lions Club, was donated by J. L. Hess and Son of McLean and Frank Carter of Pampa. At 7:30 p.m. the program for the day, with Jack Hess doing the master of ceremony chores, got underway at the field. Jack Roach of Amarillo, past president of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association, spoke on "What I Look for in Buying Range Bulls." Roach stated that if he could only see one end of a bull he would look at the head in choosing a bull. He stated that he believed that too much stress had been put upon obtaining a short bull. Roach stated that in his country they have rough terrain and that he has spent too much time getting the short legged bulls off the high centers. The main speaker of the evening was Dole Chambers, a professor in the animal husbandry department of Oklahoma A. and M. College. He spoke on Dwarfism in cattle. Chambers pointed out to the audience that in order for a dwarf to be produced a defective gene must be obtained from one of the parents. He told of various researches being carried on in an attempt to locate a method of determining those cattle that carry the genes which cause dwarfism in cattle. One of the methods is the X-Raying of the lumbar vertebrae. By the study of the various defects in dwarfs the researchers have learned that certain deformities are apparent in the vertebrae of those cattle carrying defective genes. Chambers reported. He also told of other methods under study, including insulin injections, checking head size, and the taking of a liver sample. In discussing the liver sample method he stated that it looked like we needed to equip the cattle with sippers. At the close of his talk, Chambers answered questions which were asked by various persons in the audience. If it comes from a Hardware Store, we have it. Lewis Hildebrand (Adv.)

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

WHO CAN BE SAVED?

"Whoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." —Roman 10:13

The Gospel of Mark records the story of Christ's interview with the "Rich Young Ruler," at the close of which Jesus said to His disciples: "How hard it is for them that trust in riches to enter into the Kingdom of God. It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to be saved." The disciples were astonished beyond measure, and asked, "Who then can be saved?"

Jesus went on to say that with men it is impossible, but with God all things are possible. And in Romans 10:13 the answer to the disciples' question is fully given: "Whoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

But what does it mean to "call upon the name of the Lord"? For one thing, it means to be conscious of one's own need and inadequacy. One calls for help from another only when he realizes his need and inability to meet a given situation. So, to call upon the name of the Lord means to realize our need and our inability to save ourselves. As Peter, helplessly floundering in the waters, called out "Lord, save me," so the sinner, conscious of need, must call upon the name of the Lord.

Of course it requires absolute honesty before God, also. It is not simply that one calls, in a moment of panic, for help, and then promptly forgets his helper. This "calling upon the name of the Lord" requires absolute honesty.

Calling upon the name of the Lord requires humility in one's approach to God, also, perfect submission to the one upon whom he calls. The unsubmitive, un-surrendered will of a man will make him incapable of receiving help from the Lord. For calling upon Him suggests perfect willingness for Him to have His way.

Finally, calling upon the name of the Lord requires faith, for "he that cometh to God must believe that He is and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek after Him."
"Who, then, can be saved?"
"Whoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

Shifting The Blame

There has been enough criticism of our government school system generally, to convince a great many people that something is radically wrong with the business of educating Johnny and Mary. The facts, as they appear, are even admitted by certain teachers and educators, point to a gross inadequacy in our schools. We agree. Our government schools are inadequate.

The next step in the critique is to fix the blame. And here a curious phenomenon has developed. The parents of many a non-reading, non-disciplined elementary school child declare stoutly that the schools are at fault.

But the representatives of the National Education Association, backed by innumerable tax-supported savants from the ivy coated league, say that the parents are to blame for the dismal picture. Practically any meeting of the PTA, the NEA or its state branches, will contain at least one period in which parents generally and specifically are reviled and abused and held up as the horrible example of how not to raise or educate children.

Now we don't want to whitewash parents. There is no doubt that many of them have not and perhaps will not perform their proper duties with respect to their offspring. But there is a good, sound reason for this. It was only a few years ago that these same parents were going through government schools themselves. Apparently, when they were students, little if anything was done to instill in them the correct sense of responsibility.

Thus we see a growing amount of irresponsibility being passed from one generation to the next. But the matrix for the shortcomings is in the government school system itself.

Of course there are any number of parents of fine children who went to government schools and who overcame their governmentally induced handicaps. But, obviously, some have been unable to do so. And there are even some who don't yet recognize the lack of a sound moral base on which to build their lives.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES Distributive Share Going To Wage Earners

In the last issue I was discussing how that is produced should be distributed, as set forth by Alfred P. Haake in his book, "Faith and Fact." Then he has a chapter on wages — the distributive shares that should go to wage earners.

He starts the chapter by stating that labor constitutes about 85 per cent. I think he should qualify this by saying that current labor constitutes about 85 per cent of production. But as a matter of fact, labor of one kind or another, present and past labor, constitutes 100 per cent or nearly so.

In searching for a fair basis and measure of the reward on payment for the services of labor, we face an apparent paradox. In order to lift the standard of living for the workers we want high wages. But, in order to enable the workers to buy more of the things that constitute that higher level of living we want the prices of commodities to be low.

Management The go-Between This problem is the more important when we realize that the entire economy is essentially a mechanism for exchanging the products of labor. To put it crudely, we all live by taking in each other's washing. The man who produces shoes, even though he sells those shoes for money, is really exchanging the shoes for bread and other things he needs for a living.

It could well be that all parents won't assume responsibility, even with the politicians out of the picture. Nonetheless, they will have the opportunity, and they will not be prevented from it by government force and coercion. Further, it will never be possible for parents to learn responsibility so long as there is a government agency to assume it for them.

As we see it, there is only one possible cure. The responsibility for the children must be assumed by the parents, not by any governmental agency. The only way to cause this accomplishment will be to eliminate the power of the government to meddle in the educational affairs of the students. This can be done by getting the government out of the education business.

There is no more necessity for the government to provide an education for every child of the compulsive expense of all the people, than it is necessary for the government to provide food, clothing, shelter, religious training and amusement for every child at the expense of the taxpayers.

Fair Enough

From An Ethical Point Of View By WESTBROOK PEGLER

SAN FRANCISCO — Harry Lundberg, the president of the anti-Communist sailors of the A.F. of L., is a fierce enemy of Joe Curran, the president of the C.I.O. Sailors' Union which was a Communist front.

Now Hall's regional union is a subsidiary of Lundberg's mother union which is chartered by the A.F. of L. as the Seamen's International Union. But the subsidiary, seven in all, have absolute autonomy. So, if Hall wants to cooperate with Curran in the east and south for whatever reason he can do so.

One of his national conventions in Cleveland, early in the war, Curran heaped terrible abuse on a rank-and-file sailor employed on an Army transport sailing the Atlantic coast, for offering a resolution denouncing Communism along with Nazi-Fascism.

After the war, Curran craftily sidled over to the anti-Communist fold. Recently he has had the benefit of propaganda depicting him as a brave defender of the east and gulf coasts against red infiltration. Lundberg flatly charged that this propaganda is bought, paid for and delivered through a corruption of the new phase of journalism which is referred to as "labor reporting."

FOR REFLECTION ...with JAMES C. INGEBRETSEN President, Spiritual Mobilization As Gerald Heald points out, in the English language, the word that designates man's will is the same word that indicates future tense.

The whole truth is that, as God wills, so will be the future; and this is true in a measure. But, he added, it is not completely true.

The Grumbling Within The Democratic Party

WASHINGTON — Post-convention conferences generate the suspicion among many important Democrats that they may have made a major blunder when they nominated Senator Estes Kefauver over Senator John F. Kennedy in a year when the Vice Presidential nominees of both parties will occupy an unusually glaring spot in the limelight.

Ironically, farm conditions began to show improvement almost on the eve of the Democratic convention. Prices for basic crops were moving up, and they may continue their climb right to Election Day, with several assists from Secretary Ezra Taft Benson.

Senator Kennedy would undoubtedly have won the second place spot, if it had not been for his ballot against high farm price supports. He voted his convictions, as he always does, because he felt that continued accumulation of unsalable surpluses was a blind and foolish policy.

Q — I am in a quandary. Five years ago a plastic surgeon attempted to correct a job done on my nose seven years before. Unfortunately, since then during cold weather my nose develops a severe irritation. I have consulted two plastic surgeons, one of whom advised an immediate operation to remove the metal and replace it with cartilage. The other advised against further surgery saying that the risk is too great in view of the scar tissue that has been formed by the previous two operations. How can I decide what to do? — Miss J.

Chi-Cubs Collar 'Dem Bums' By 4-3

By JOHN GRIFFIN United Press Sports Writer The world champion Brooklyn Dodgers, growing about an 11-inning loss to the last-place Chicago Cubs on a "break hit," found themselves today at the start of a seven-games-in-four-days test that could wreck their pitching staff.

It was an agonizing loss for the champions, for it dropped them two full games behind the league-leading Milwaukee Braves, whose game against Pittsburgh was called because of rain after eight innings and ended in a 1-1 tie. But the schedule doesn't give them any chance to sit around and brood.

Roswell Rockets Win Squeaker, 4-3

The Roswell Rockets came from behind last night to throttle the Pampa Oilers' bid for their third win in a row by notching a 4-3 decision. Chunky left hander Dave Exter picked up his seventh win against four losses while Benedict suffered his eighth setback against fourteen victories. Both pitchers went all the way.

He Likes Ike!

ATLANTA (UP) — Henry A. Alexander is a man who believes in letting the people know where you stand — if it takes red, white and blue letters six feet high. Alexander, owner of a fashionable estate on Atlanta's famed Peachtree Road, chose the sidewalk edge of his clipped expanse of lawn to erect a 20-by-25 foot signboard proclaiming in brilliant colors: "Re-Elect Ike and Dick."

He's in hot water with city zoning authorities who say they don't care whether Alexander is a Democrat or a Republican; he just can't keep that sign up in a residential neighborhood without permission.

A hearing has been set for Sept. 6 to determine whether the sign must come down. Alexander is ready for a fight to the finish — or at least until the November elections.

"People have made fun of my sign. But this whole matter is deadly serious to me," Alexander said.

Reuther Wins Another Round In The Labor Politics Game

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — The Auto Worker's Walter P. Reuther has just won another round in the great game of labor politics. If you were to pick today the leader of organized labor to whom Adlai Stevenson owes the largest debt of gratitude, it would have to be this same Reuther.

Sen. Estes Kefauver is indebted to Reuther, to, but not so much. The immediate story probably begins back there in June when Reuther held a press conference here. For those who are not yet wholly aware of Reuther, he is lead man of the United Auto Workers and No. 2 man in the combined AFL-CIO — of which George Meany is president.

Reuther told the newsmen last June that he supported Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination. He didn't say it very loud or the reporters didn't hear him too distinctly, because the word failed to get around as it should.

Announces For Stevenson
Next Development? was when democrats assembled in Chicago for their nominating convention. Reuther announced again for Stevenson, and rang all bells. The bells rang, because Reuther, was backing his governor by then. Gov. G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams was counted among the stop-Stevenson group and had arranged to have the Michigan delegation pledged to himself as a favorite son.

Four times elected governor of Michigan, Williams could, and probably did, aspire to one place or another on the national ticket. He opposed Stevenson on charges that he was too moderate in his approach to public issues. When Reuther announced for Stevenson, the governor said, in effect, that he and the state's delegation were impressed.

Midway in the convention, however, the Michigan delegation met in emergency caucus and under Reuther's pressure, dumped Williams as a favorite son. Big Michigan threw its votes to Stevenson and at that point the candidacy of Gov. Averell Harriman for the Democratic presidential nomination began to brake toward a sudden stop.

Reuther More Powerful
From the outside looking in, Reuther would appear to be a better, smarter, more aggressive politician than four times Governor Williams. And he would seem to be more powerful than the governor in the councils of the Democratic Party in the state of Michigan.

Stevenson owes Reuther quite a chunk of thanks for the action of the Michigan caucus. He is further indebted to Reuther for the action of the AFL-CIO Executive Council in voting to endorse the Stevenson

Nation With Bases In Antarctic Could Control Shipping

SHEFFIELD (UP) — Any nation with strategic bases in the Antarctic could control world shipping in event of atomic war because the Suez and Panama canals would be destroyed, a leading British scientist said Wednesday night.

This is one of the reasons the world's leading powers are becoming increasingly interested in the great polar continent, Sir Raymond Priestley said in his presidential address to the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

"The strategic value of Antarctica, should world atomic war break out, with the consequent likelihood of the destruction of the Suez and Panama canals, will stem from the fact that all intercontinental seaborne traffic and much coastal traffic, as well, must proceed via the Cape of Good Hope and Cape Horn," he said.

Priestley, a member of two expeditions to the Antarctic, said that man may yet find a way to turn the southern polar regions into a seventh habitable continent.
