Guerrilla Troops Renew Battle For Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Guerrilla troops battled government forces seven miles from Phnom Penh today in an apparent new Communist push against the Cambodian capital stripped of American air support.

Field reports said government and guerrilla forces clashed for 20 minutes today along the Bassac River near Svay Rolum, seven miles south of Phnom Penh.

The reports said six Communist soldiers were killed in the fighting, but their bodies were carried off by fellow guerrillas.

There were no reported government losses.

The Khmer Rouge guerrillas drove to within a half-dozen miles of Phnom Penh Monday, ambushing a column of government troops moving along Highway 3.

Field reports said the clash near Svay Rolum, six miles south of the capital, began at noon Monday and was still going on late in the afternoon.

In other fighting around the capital, guerrillas ambushed government troops at Sala Krouns, 15 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

Conspiracy Plans Discounted, President Calls It 'Ridiculous'

By United Press International
The Secret Service's disclosure of a "possible conspiracy" to assassinate President Nixon in New Orleans was generally discounted today by police for lack of evidence. The President himself called the episode "ridiculous."

The Secret Service made its announcement Monday an hour before Nixon left Florida for New Orleans to address the Veterans of Foreign Wars national convention. Nixon refused to call off the trip but agreed to switch his motorcade off famed Canal Street.

The disclosure was the first by the Secret Service during Nixon's presidency of a threat against his life. Only bare details were revealed by the Secret Service, which also asked New Orleans police to pick up a former policeman who tried to attack Nixon's limousine three years ago.

He was Edwin Michael Gaudet Jr., 30. He was accused in a federal warrant of making the threat last Wednesday in New Orleans. Gaudet, nicknamed "Punchy," was tracked down in New Mexico Monday night but fled from officers.

The Secret Service emphasized that Gaudet might not be involved in the "possible plot." Agents in Washington and New Orleans declined further comment today.

Security was extremely tight for Nixon's VFW appearance. There were no incidents and he flew after the 2-hour, 8-minute visit to the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif.

IN AGNEW CASE Judge Predicts 'Confrontations'

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A federal judge foresees the possibility of three legal "confrontations" if an attempt is made to indict Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Edward S. Northrop, chief judge of the Maryland U.S. District Court, said Monday if any of three possible issues are raised a court hearing would have to be held to settle the question before any indictment would be legal.

Northrop listed the three issues as executive privilege; separation of powers; "or whether you can indict a vice president."

There is a very grave question over what the courts can get from the executive branch," Northrop said.

Northrop said that if federal prosecutors were unable to voluntarily obtain records or other information from the vice president they might have a difficult time trying to compel compliance. He said executive privilege "might be a valid defense."

Beall raised the possibility Monday he may reject Agnew's offer for a private discussion of the allegations.

Agnew sent Beall a letter volunteering to meet the prosecutor privately in addition to turning over his financial records for inspection.

The (Agnew) letter raises the suggestion that such a meeting would be desirable from his standpoint," Beall said. "I can't say if the government sees it as desirable. Things have to be thought through."

In other developments:
—A spokesman for Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel said Agnew has asked Maryland officials to compile a list of the consulting engineering and architectural contracts awarded by the state between 1962 and 1972.

Charles "Bebe" Rebozo, the businessman who is a close friend of the President, either used or owned some of the banks. But committee sources said Monday there was "nothing at this point to involve" Rebozo.

The American Broadcasting Company (ABC) reported that the Senate committee staff already had questioned Franklin S. Deboer, an officer in Rebozo's Key Biscayne, Fla., Bank and Trust Co. ABC said Deboer is expected to be asked to appear before the committee when it resumes its hearings next month.

Deboer denied any wrongdoing. ABC reported. The network said Senate investigators also have questioned several of Rebozo's financial associates and former employees.

The network said the money under investigation was run through several gambling casinos in the Bahamas before being placed in several Miami banks, including Rebozo's.

Committee sources told UPI that records of former White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman had been subpoenaed in connection with the inquiry. The sources said transcripts of recordings and logs of activities of the two at Key Biscayne at the time the contributions allegedly were made were included.

"We have no firm data yet," one source said. "But our investigation has led us down this path, and we have subpoenaed the evidence that is essential in proving or disproving our case."

The source added that the laundering "reportedly involves around $2 million in contributions that were illegal, though we don't know for sure the source."

"Someone supposedly took the money to the Bahamas (and) ran it through these banks to launder it," the source said.

Ragsdale said the Texas Employment office, 823 W. Francis, currently is seeking applications to fill both permanent and temporary jobs in the following classifications:

Oilwell service floor hands, mechanical engineers, draftsmen, chemical plant operators, truck drivers, welders, machinists, plumbers, auto mechanics, cutting torch operators, pipeline labor, sandblasters, stock clerks, bottling plant labor, janitors.

Service station attendants, print shop labor, finance office trainees, secretaries, sewing machine operators, car hops, housekeepers, babysitters, oilfield roughnecks, construction labor, furniture movers, tractor drivers, hay haulers, ranch couples and general farm labor.

In addition to the 50 to 60 job openings in a score or more categories listed at the Texas Employment Commission office, Dale Greenhouse, manager of Marie Foundations plants in Pampa and McLean, said his company has immediate openings for 50 machine operators in Pampa and 20 at the McLean plant.

"Hopefully by the end of the year," Greenhouse said, "we expect production demands to be stepped up again to the point where still more employees will be needed."

IN PAMPA AREA Job Categories Need Employes

One thousand and 60 jobs have been filled in Pampa during the past four months and there are 50 to 60 jobs open right now in 27 different categories.

That in itself is a pretty good indication of the city's excellent economic condition, according to William J. Ragsdale, manager of the local branch of the Texas Employment Commission, and E. O. Wedgworth, Chamber of Commerce manager.

Ragsdale said today the local employment situation, insofar as being able to fill jobs is concerned, has been better during the past four months than at any time since 1969.

"Right now, though," Ragsdale said, "the job openings keep coming in, but the people to fill them don't."

There was a decline in the number of job applicants starting Monday of this week, Ragsdale said.

Banks Report Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A report that President Nixon's re-election committee "launched" $2 million in illegal contributions through banks in the Bahamas is being investigated by the Senate Watergate committee.

Laos Troops Searching For More Coup Plotters

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Government troops searched rice paddies outside Vientiane today for the last of the rebels in Monday's abortive coup and called on neighboring Thailand to seize any plotters managing to cross the border.

Government spokesmen said troops had captured 14 of the rebels, including Col. Pany Phouthitsavan, a deputy leader of the attempted rightist coup against Premier Souvanna Phouma's neutralist regime.

The government reported smashing the rebellion in seven hours Monday and said troops killed the leader, Thao Ma, a former air force commander who had been living in exile in Thailand.

A government announcement said today Vientiane sent Thailand a protest note after the unsuccessful coup asking how the rebels, all believed exiles, managed to cross into Laos from Thailand.

The note claimed the rebels had long been under the protection of Thailand's military-backed government and asked officials in Bangkok to extradite any plotters captured across the border.

Souvanna Phouma met today with Phoumi Vongvichit, chief negotiator for the Communist Pathet Lao, for previously scheduled talks to work out a new coalition government.

An official announcement said the Communist envoy congratulated the prime minister for putting down the coup attempt.

Loyalist artillerymen shot down the 41-year-old Ma's plane over Vientiane's Wattay Airport six and a half hours after the coup attempt and unofficial sources said troops summarily executed him when he attempted to flee the wreckage.

Life in Vientiane was back to normal today but troops in armored personnel carriers patrolled rice paddies outside the capital searching for any remaining rebels. The government announced in a communique its forces were in total control of Vientiane and the hunt for the holdouts was still in progress.

Some of the insurgents, the government said, reportedly commandeered an air force helicopter and fled across the nearby border into Thailand, where their drive on Vientiane began. Ma had been in exile in Thailand since 1966, when he led another abortive coup against Souvanna's regime.

Keo Vipakron, the Laotian ambassador to Thailand, said in Bangkok that about 60 men were involved in Monday's plot. He said a 7 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew had been ordered in Bangkok "for a few days in order to keep the situation under control."

The Thai government expressed shock at the incident and put its border outposts on full alert. Vientiane is less than half a mile from the Thai border across the Mekong River.

The monthly Consumer Price Index computes changes in about 120,000 consumer prices but only 80 per cent of these are collected each month. Thus, some increases recorded in the July index occurred prior to the price freeze.

The 0.2 per cent July increase compared with an average monthly rise of 0.6 per cent since the first of the year. The price index in July stood at 132.7 based on a 1967 average of 100, meaning that a market basket of retail goods and services that cost $10 six years ago cost $13.27 last month.

Although food prices slowed from the heady pace of the past few months, the July increase was still slightly higher than usual for the month, the BLS said.

Prices for fresh vegetables went up instead of down while fresh fruits, cereal and bakery products and poultry cost more than usual for this time of year.

Prices of beef, veal, pork and eggs were lower than usual for July while dairy products prices were unchanged on the average, the BLS said.

Sales of summer clothing as stores made room for new fall lines accounted for most of the July drop in the nonfood commodity index.

Textiles, home furnishings, tires and new cars also dropped in price in July but the decline for automobiles was less than usual for July.

Among service costs, mortgage interest rates rose sharply. Rents and charges for home repairs and hotel rooms also advanced. The cost of medical care made the smallest monthly increase of the year while transportation fares held steady.

Pampa, Lefors Students Named To 'Who's Who'

A Pampa boy and a Lefors girl have been added to the list of area students who have been informed of their inclusion in the 7th annual edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1972-73, the largest student award publication in the nation.

They are Jimmy D. Staus Jr., Pampa High School senior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Staus, 701 Lowry, and Kathy Sierman, Lefors High School senior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.M. Sierman of Lefors.

Staus has been active in the PHS Student Council and is a member of the Harvester football team.

Miss Sierman is a member of the National Honor Society, Future Homemakers of America, is active in the band and has served as a teacher's assistant.

Both are among the less than two per cent of the junior and senior class students from 18,000 public, private and parochial high schools throughout the country recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities or community service.

Staus and Miss Sierman will compete with the others for one of 10 $1,000 scholarships funded by the publishers. They will also be invited to participate in the firm's annual Survey of High Achievers later in the academic year.

Biographies of students selected for the national honor are published in the edition.

DOESN'T NEED IT Illinois Town Dropping All City Property Tax

MARION, Ill. (UPI) — The government of this southern Illinois town of 13,000 is making man-bites-dog-type news. Instead of raising its property taxes it is dropping them completely.

The City Council has resolved simply not to pass a tax levy ordinance this year, in effect wiping out the city property tax. To Mayor Robert L. Butler, the move seems only logical.

Since he came to office in 1964, property taxes in Marion have been cut in seven of the past nine years.

Marion's last property tax rate is just 31 cents per $100 assessed valuation, or $31 on assessments of $10,000. In Chicago, 300 miles to the north, it runs about $80 for every $10,000 of assessed valuation, but that helps support schools and other services not financed in Marion by city taxes.

It hardly suffered as it relinquished its property taxes. During these years, the city built a $122,000 brick clock tower in its downtown square and a $130,000 fire station, bought a $50,000 fire truck to put in it, and installed $24,000 worth of public toilets.

Most of the time it paid cash — including $200,000 for improvements that tripled the capacity of its city reservoir. With all this, the city currently enjoys a $250,000 surplus.

Butler's cash down policy is the same way he handles his own finances.

"Never in my life have I ever bought a car or a suit of clothes or even my home on credit," the 46-year-old attorney said in an interview. "I figured that if I couldn't afford to pay cash for it, I didn't need it."

Back in 1964, he said, Marion was $80,000 in the red and the property tax on a home assessed at $10,000 was $12.

Effort Must Be Made "The City Council determined that if the city could ever get out of the red, an effort must be made to reduce property taxes," Butler said. "It was a direct result of that determination that taxes were reduced seven out of nine years."

"Each year, the council has budgeted for expenditures less than the amount of anticipated revenue. We have adopted this as a way of being reasonably sure sufficient funds would be available to meet expenses in case the revenue didn't reach the expected level. More often than not, the revenue reached or surpassed the anticipated figure."

Surpluses began building up. Papadopoulos was inaugurated Sunday for a seven-year term as the first president of the new Greek Republic, formed July 29 by a referendum that approved a draft constitution divesting Greece of its monarchy.

The general amnesty, however, did not apply to Greeks abroad whose actions were considered violations of security and subversion laws. It also excluded royalist navy officers who defected to Italy in May after the government discovered an alleged munition plot.

A spokesman for the Justice Ministry, which will implement the decrees, said local prosecutors would issue orders to prisons in their areas for the release of detainees covered by the amnesty.

The latter decree wrote off all crimes committed by "lawyers defending political criminals" and "state organs executing their duties in connection with the arrest, interrogation and trial of all criminal cases until the publication of this decree."

There have been numerous allegations of torture and inhuman treatment of political prisoners by police and military officials since the April, 1967 military takeover.

A special decree pardoned Alexandros Panagoulis, 35, an army deserter who five years ago tried to blow up a car in which Papadopoulos was riding.

Reservations may be made by calling the Chamber office.

Consumer Prices Show Small Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer prices registered the smallest increase of any month this year in July, 0.2 per cent, the Labor Department reported today. But the slowdown was largely due to the now-expired price freeze.

The increase in the bureau's Consumer Price Index was the smallest monthly rise in the cost of living since last November.

The July rise was the same when computed for actual price increases and when adjusted for seasonal variations.

Retail prices across the board were down sharply in July from the increases of past months.

Retail food prices were up 0.8 per cent, high by historical standards but far less than the monthly jumps since January that have ranged between 1 and 2.6 per cent.

Prices of nonfood commodities actually declined 0.2 per cent last month while the cost of services edged up by the same rate.

Loyalist artillerymen shot down the 41-year-old Ma's plane over Vientiane's Wattay Airport six and a half hours after the coup attempt and unofficial sources said troops summarily executed him when he attempted to flee the wreckage.

Life in Vientiane was back to normal today but troops in armored personnel carriers patrolled rice paddies outside the capital searching for any remaining rebels. The government announced in a communique its forces were in total control of Vientiane and the hunt for the holdouts was still in progress.

Astronauts Hunt For New Leak

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 2 astronauts, who spent six hours Monday searching in vain for a leak in the workshop's dehumidifier, photographed volcanoes and geologic features in Bolivia today in hopes man can learn from the air what cannot be discovered on the ground.

Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma also aimed the spacecraft's solar telescopes at the sun to add to man's knowledge of his nearest star and planned to again test a one-man flying machine inside their work shop.

Garriott, used two highly sensitive cameras to photograph several inactive volcanoes, fault lines and other geological features in Bolivia from 270 miles above earth on the pilots' 25th day in orbit. He also planned to photograph the Great Barrier Reef off northeast Australia.

Ground controllers canceled two other picture-taking tasks—the Okovango Swamp in northern Botswana, Africa, and the Patagonia Desert in Argentina—to allow time to work on the station's stabilization gyros. Several of the nine gyros have given controllers problems and the astronauts may install a package of gyros during a spacewalk Friday.

Garriott also cleaned the web from spider Arabella's glass cage so it may be studied after the astronauts' return Sept. 25. Arabella and her backup, Anita, will be fed rare filet mignon steak Thursday and Anita will get her chance at weightless web spinning Saturday.

"I collected Arabella's web," Garriott reported. "She wasn't too happy about the whole idea."

Hurricane Threatens Freighter

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Brenda flung peak 100-mile-an-hour winds and flood tides at the lower Mexican Gulf Coast today and threatened 25 crewmen trapped aboard a sinking Greek freighter caught in the storm.

As the storm inched closer to the rural Mexican villages in the southern portions of the Gulf of Campeche, the U.S. Coast Guard reported the 441-foot Greek freighter "Yucatan" had radioed an SOS saying it was taking on water fast and was listing so badly it was unable to launch its life boats.

The Coast Guard said it had contacted Mexican authorities "and they will attempt to launch a rescue effort."

The National Hurricane Center, meanwhile, reported that Brenda was bearing down on the Mexican Gulf Coast from the south-southwest at about 5 m.p.h. "and is expected to cross the coast in the next few hours."

At 5 a.m., CDT, the storm centered about 35 miles west of Carmen, near latitude 18.9 north and longitude 92.3 west.

Forecasters said heavy rains along the coast and northern slopes of the interior Mexican mountains will produce dangerous flood conditions today.

Forecasters also warned residents of the Gulf of Campeche to expect flood tides of 5 to 10 feet above normal.

The hurricane, which has steadily strengthened since its emergence into the Gulf of Mexico from the Yucatan Peninsula Monday, had sustained winds of 90 m.p.h. with gusts exceeding 100 m.p.h.

Jurist sees Constitution's future in doubt

By Ralph Novak

CHICAGO — (NEA) — The Watergate investigation has reached that level of permanence Americans usually attach only to such subjects as offensive football tactics, horror movies and civics. It is going to be the subject of a college course.

Philip B. Kurland, a University of Chicago law school professor, editor of the "Supreme Court Review" and one of the nation's best-known Constitutional authorities, is going to move into the university's undergraduate school to teach "Constitutional Aspects of Watergate" this fall.

One reason, he says, is that he wants "to teach these students what the law is really about, to dispel any notions of idealism they might have about it."

Another reason is Kurland's concern with distinguishing the Watergate crisis as it affects the country from the crisis as it affects the individual government officials involved.

"The Watergate affair and everything associated with it mark a watershed and we don't know yet in what direction we're going to move," he says. "It wouldn't make a helluva difference to our future if all these guys never are brought to trial as individuals. But we have to learn never to let power accumulate in one place as it has in the White House since the New Deal began."

"There are a lot of interrelated Constitutional questions involved: separation of powers, executive privilege, search and seizure, the function and scope of legislative inquiry, the president's power to set up his own investigative unit, among others.

"But the main question is whether the Constitution allows such centralization of authority."

Kurland believes the answer to that question is "no" and his sympathies clearly lie with the Senate Select Committee investigating the Watergate burglary and its geometrically expanding ramifications. He is a consultant to both the committee's chairman, Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., and the Judiciary subcommittee on separation of powers and a friend of the Watergate panel's chief counsel, Sam Dash.

But he is nevertheless highly critical of the committee's performance during the first round of public testimony in defining the relevant constitutional issues isolating them and collecting useful information about them.

"This is essentially a fox hunt and nobody likes a fox because he's a varmint," Kurland says. "That doesn't mean you have to like fox hunters."

PHILIP B. KURLAND: Not liking foxes doesn't mean you have to like fox hunters.

land says. "That doesn't mean you have to like fox hunters."

"The way the hearings were conducted, there was a danger that the American public would see them as a summer replacement for the soap operas and take them just as seriously."

"The committee overall has not shown itself to be exceptionally capable or bright. Nameplates of the Senate investigators go into storage for the hearings recess.

Now he is hopeful that President Nixon will appear before a joint session of Congress to discuss the Watergate crisis. And while he does not expect his University of Chicago class to come up with any revelations, he says the study of Constitutional history should lead his students to a better understanding of the essence of the problem.

"For democracy to work, the people have to have faith in their government but here now cynicism is the rule," Kurland says. "You assume that every act by a government official is a malevolent one and you find two sides in the political argument justifying their behavior by the behavior of the other side. The radicals say they have to be disruptive because the administration acts the way it does, the administration says it acts the way it does because the radicals are so disruptive."

"We just can't have any more of this ends-justifying-the-means business. We have to measure the means against some standards of morality and ethics."

"The Constitution and our laws are not just sets of written directions for specific occasions. They also concern the patterns of behavior condoned by society and in that sense Watergate is not strictly a legal matter at all."

"What we really have to do is find out exactly what the rules are."

"The Constitution and our laws are not just sets of written directions for specific occasions. They also concern the patterns of behavior condoned by society and in that sense Watergate is not strictly a legal matter at all."

WORRY CLINIC

Sweet Pea seemed to have a natural affinity for children, though she sometimes bit adults. At first we thought she disliked blondes but later she bit brunettes, too. I still have scars on my hands where she bit me in anger.

CASE X-592: Sweet Pea, aged 6, is the gibbon that Dr. Daniel brought home from Thailand to surprise his mother.

She became a member of the family for 5 years, so it was like losing a child when Dr. Dan and his mother took her to the Indianapolis Zoo.

But in the winter we had to keep her on a long leash in the basement and she obviously craved playmates.

For example, our daughter Judy took care of her a few weeks while Mrs. Crane joined me on a lengthy lecture tour.

Judy was ironing in her large basement, which had 4 lights suspended from the ceiling.

Judy let Sweet Pea roam around but Sweet Pea tried to coax Judy to play tag with her, for she'd run past and slap Judy; then dart away in great glee.

But Judy ignored her, so Sweet Pea finally sneaked up and pushed a large stack of neatly ironed clothes off the table.

Judy then scolded her verbally and tried to catch her, but Sweet Pea was too swift.

Neatly, Judy refolded the ironed clothes and stacked them as before.

But when Judy's back was turned, Sweet Pea again deliberately pushed them off the table and upon the floor.

Irritably, Judy chased Sweet Pea all over the basement with a broom, but to no avail.

Sweet Pea had turned off the lights; then waited till the bulbs cooled down, after which she unscrewed them and popped them.

As a college graduate, Judy began to grow very irate at this being outwitted by a mere ape, so she inserted new bulbs, then fastened them thoroughly with adhesive tape, after which she again pulled the light cords to let the bulbs glow and get hot.

But within 5 minutes, when she was upstairs, she again heard a "Pop," followed by a couple of extra "Pops."

Sweet Pea had turned off the lights; then taken off the tape, after which she had unscrewed the bulbs and popped them!

So Sweet Pea is one up on Judy, for Judy never won out.

As Sweet Pea grew older and was supposed to become more aggressive, zoo officials warned that she'd become more inclined to bite.

But Judy's little boy, a toddler, aged 15 months, went out on the back porch where Sweet Pea was perched on the railing.

Sweet Pea hopped down and stroked the baby in a very maternal fashion.

And when the baby leaned too far out, Sweet Pea actually put her arms around him, then pulled him back gently till she herself fell backwards on the porch floor with the baby still in her arms.

On other occasions, we noted that she seemed to have a natural affinity for children.

For 10-year-old Debby could romp and wrestle with her with complete immunity, whereas she bit me in anger on 3 occasions and drew blood in play at least 50 times!

IN ACCIDENT CASE RFK's Son Convicted Of Driving Negligently

NANTUCKET, Mass. (UPI) — Joseph P. Kennedy III, eldest son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was convicted Monday of a negligent driving charge resulting from an accident in which his brother and two teenage girls were injured. He was fined $100.

Judge George Anastas, in imposing sentence, told young Kennedy, "You had a great father and you have a great mother. Use your illustrious name as an asset instead of coming into court like this."

Kennedy, 21, who pleaded innocent, did not testify. The investigating policeman, Bill Calton, testified that Kennedy said "the accident was entirely his fault."

The 21-year-old Kennedy was accompanied to a crowded District Court courtroom by his mother Ethel and his uncle, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Judge George Anastas, counsel for the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy during the Senate McCarthy hearings of the early 1950s, presided over both the arraignment and trial.

One of Kennedy's two lawyers, Wayne Holmes, tried to establish that the accident happened when Kennedy swerved to avoid a collision with a car driven by Merrill Lingsay.

Kennedy, his brother David, 18, and five other persons were in a jeep which overturned one week ago at an intersection on this resort island. One of the injured girls was paralyzed, at least temporarily.

Davidson Hunting 'Star' Status

By VERNON SCOTT HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — John Davidson has been "almost a star" for nine years, an unenviable situation he hopes to change this fall when he costars with Sally Fields in a new television series, "The Girl With Something Extra."

Davidson could have used something extra himself in the past decade, an added dimension to give spark and excitement to his career. At 31 he is a trace too handsome. His manner is over-polished. In the day of the antihero he must overcome traditional leading-man virtues to attain his goal, stardom.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI) — Whither and whence, you may well ask, shall we derive our energy once present power resources are exhausted?

The answer, my friend, is blowing in the wind. Government experts tell us we shall obtain energy by harnessing the passing breeze.

And likewise from the golden-helmeted sun. Converting solar energy to practical uses above and beyond getting a good suntan looms large in current government planning.

Excellent! The sun and the wind—friends to man. But what of the falling rain?

Vast amounts of energy are expended by the gentle rain that droppeth from heaven. Could not the pitter-patter on the roof also become a power producer?

Time will tell. Meanwhile, employment of these natural forces in the tasks now performed by coal and oil is pleasant to contemplate.

Some Little Worries For the restless wind and the burnished sun surely beat digging up West Virginia and haggling with the Arabs. But some little worries intrude upon this gladsome prospect.

Will the technology for wind and solar energy be available in time to prevent power shortages?

To be on the safe side, additional incentives and inducements are needed to spur development in this field.

Toward that end, I should like to become the first to propose a sun depletion allowance.

Such doubts could be removed by amending the Internal Revenue Code to include a sun depletion allowance.

Under that provision, solar energy developers could write off a certain percentage of their taxes as compensation for investing in something which has a limited future.

Considering that the sun is burning itself out at a continuous rate of 390 sextillion kilowatts of power, I would say a depletion deduction of 26 percent would be a fair allowance.

That way, most solar energy developers could amortize initial plant and equipment costs in about 25 years. Leaving them 4,999,999.975 years in which to turn a modest profit.

Questions upset childless couple

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem many others have, and if you answer me in your column, maybe others will benefit from it.

I have been married for nine years and am childless. Our first child was born so severely brain-damaged he had to be institutionalized. Then I had a miscarriage. (Twin boys.) A year later I miscarried a baby girl. After that, I had a hysterectomy.

We put in for adoption, and finally got a beautiful baby girl. At eleven months she died. Crib death! A beautiful, healthy child simply died for no apparent reason, leaving us heartbroken, frustrated, and filled with needless guilt.

Obviously, we have no children, and we probably never will have any. We both have been thru a great deal.

My problem: Well-meaning strangers ask upon meeting me: "Have you a family?" Or: "How many children have you?"

This question throws me into a state of depression. What do I say without going into my whole tragic history? I avoid going places where strangers may inquire about my "family."

Have you an answer, Abby? STILL TORTURED

DEAR STILL: Before you are asked, meet the expected question head on. Say: "We have no children, which is such an unhappy subject. I am not yet able to talk about it, so let's talk about something else." Then change the subject.

DEAR ABBY: I was one of 10 children in a very poor family so I had to quit school in the 6th grade. I always wanted to get a better education, but I never had the chance.

I feel so bad when my 8th grade son asks me to help with his homework, and I am too dumb to help him. My husband can't help him either, as he never got thru the 7th grade.

I asked around and found out there is a night school for grownups. I could go four nights a week from 6 to 8.

My husband laughed at me and said he never heard of a 32-year-old woman going back to school. My heart is broken. Please tell me what to do. WANTS TO LEARN

DEAR WANTS: Your husband should quit laughing long enough to learn a few things. Adult education has been a lifesaver to many who have decided to complete their educations in their forties, fifties, and sixties. You are to be commended.

DEAR ABBY: I have often been tempted to write to you in rebuttal to certain letters, but simply never found the time. Now I am so incensed, I must make the time. In reply to the self-righteous ex-reader signed "Believer in Buffalo," who states that: "God determines who shall die and when, not you or anybody else." Are the physicians who maintain a human body by needles, tubes, and machines long after the human being in that suffering body is gone, God? Having seen both my parents in this situation recently, I do not believe it is humane or even moral to allow it. When they finally died, they no longer even looked like human beings.

I do not believe that kind of suffering is the will of God. Furthermore, I believe those people who are so quick to tell you what God's will is are being very presumptuous. Thank you for taking a stand for the dignity of man in his final hours. Sign me.

"ALSO A BELIEVER IN NEW JERSEY"

CONFIDENTIAL TO M. N. IN LAKESIDE, ORE.: No, I am not encouraging permissiveness, but what has been done is done, so why carry a grudge for a lifetime? The past is but a bucket of ashes.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69780, L. A., Calif. 90089. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69780, Los Angeles, Cal. 90089, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Your Horoscope

The name Timothy is of Greek origin and means "God-fearing."

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 22

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Staying with your current program pays off now, but keep careful notes of alternatives for future reference. Sentimental considerations draw more support than commercial ideas.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: It's not so much what you say today but rather how you go about it. You can cut thru quite a bundle of red tape by careful thought about getting to the main issue, choice of approach.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Selection of available materials runs into delay, possible confusion. There will be a other time for larger deals; take samples, trial lots today. Home life is brighter, livelier.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Some of what you had thought "secret" turns out well-known. Do not assume all confidences have been exposed. Seek economy, practicality rather than ostentation. Home life is more peaceable.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Follow impulse in choosing what to do and where to do it. Travel is favored. Wear your brightest attire; cheer the world and yourself in so doing. Your phone is a gold mine of useful information.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: A streak of special insight is promised. Don't just talk; do something to follow it up. Delegating chores to others doesn't work for the moment. Pursue romantic and sentimental ventures.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Intelligent action is required. Your own efforts count tenfold more than whatever you may be able to provoke others to do. The finest persuasion of all is your good example. Set one!

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: The later the day rolls on, the happier the outlook. Keep talking, with lines of communication open in pursuit of the projects that really interest you. Find or give a modest but lively party.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Diversity is a normal order of the day; be ready to follow up fresh opportunity. Your friends are full of mystery, perhaps just to tease you, more likely having real secrets. Listen carefully for clues.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Your associates influence events, provoke a great deal of comment and social movement. Catch up on old or distant contacts. Be brief if you must do so by phone. Travel is well-favored.

Karen Snapp, George Mendoza Pledge Marriage Vows In Pampa

Miss Karen Faye Snapp became the bride of George Mendoza, 110 N. Faulkner, Saturday, July 28, at 7:30 p.m. in Highland Baptist Church.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. M.A. Snapp, 1805 N. Sumner, and Mrs. Dora Mendoza and the late Mr. Joe P. Mendoza, Roswell, N.M., are parents of the bridegroom.

THE CEREMONY
The bride's uncle, Ralph Horner, Gretna, Kan., officiated for the double-ring service, before a background of white carnations trimmed in blue, decorating the bridal arch and prayer bench. Pianist, Linda Reed, accompanied Dixie Bond as she sang, "A Time For Us," and "Speak Softly Love."

THE BRIDE
Presented in marriage by her father with the "her mother and I" avowal, the bride wore a floor length white gown covered with lace. The empire bodice was styled with a low, round neckline, and long lace puffed sleeves trimmed in silver. The gown was designed and created by the bride's mother. Her matching elbow length veil was enhanced by tiny seed pearls and silver trim.

Patter of Tiny Feet

ATTENDANTS
Ginger Kay Whitaker served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a pale blue floor length gown and carried a nosegay of blue and white carnations trimmed in white.

Manuel Rivera served as best man, and ushers were Allen Snapp, Donnie Snapp, and Bill Snapp, all brothers of the bride.

RECEPTION
The reception was held at the church, where the wedding cake, which was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, was served by Estelita Mendoza. Lynn Pierce assisted at the punch bowl and Ruth Ann Green registered wedding guests.

The couple will reside at 110 N. Faulkner.

AFFILIATIONS
The bride is a senior at Pampa High School and is employed by Worley Hospital. The bridegroom is employed by Lofland Bros. Drilling Co.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS
The bride was honored with a shower hosted by Lynn Pierce, Teddy Pyron, and Shelia McDonald, recently.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS
Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Dora Mendoza, Mrs. Sylvia Page, Mrs. George Mendoza, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Torrez, Lorena Zamora, Angie Tavez, Mrs. Torrez, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. George Snapp, and Mr. and Mrs. Dwane Hatfield.

Shoes For School

COLLEGE STATION—Only if the shoe fits, wear it—and keep a constant check on it when a child's foot is involved, one authority advises parents.

Fit, not durability, is the most important consideration when buying children's shoes, according to Marilyn Brown, consumer education - clothing and textiles specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Many adult foot ills can be traced to out-grown, hand-me-down and incorrectly shaped shoes that forced pliable, young feet out of shape," she said.

"On a visit to the shoe store, children will look for shoes similar to those their friends wear. They also like shiny new shoes that attract attention."

"Parents can help them select shoes that fit. When buying shoes, see that both feet are measured while the child is standing and while sitting. Straighten his toes to insure accurate measurement."

"When you find shoes the child likes, have him walk around the store in them. A correctly fitted shoe doesn't have to be broken in—either it fits, or it doesn't."

"Check shoe length. Have the child stand so his feet are supporting the weight of his body. Press the end of his shoe with your thumb. There should be one-half to three-fourths inch between his longest toe and the end of his shoe."

"When you buy larger shoes, be sure to check sock size. Socks should be at least a half inch longer than the longest toe."

Further emphasizing fit rather than durability, the specialist explained that most children outgrow shoes before they wear them out, because their feet grow so rapidly.

"A child's feet can grow as much as three sizes in just a few months."

She stressed the importance of keeping a check on fit. "Examine your child's feet and shoes regularly to be sure shoes fit properly and haven't been outgrown."

"Children don't always know when they outgrow shoes. "Because young feet are soft and pliable, children can force their feet into shoes that are several sizes too small."

Miss Brown listed definite signs on shoe or foot to indicate improper fit. Shoes don't fit when: —tip of toe is curled or excessively worn —soles are worn unevenly, especially if they show excessive wear on inner edge —heels run over —upper part of shoe bulges over the sole or is twisted —toes have worn pockets into the linings, and —heel counter is broken down.

"Also, pink or red on a child's foot may mean his shoe is too narrow, too tight, too short or has wrinkles or torn linings, of Sensation

WIN AT BRIDGE

Caution of an expert's play

His next play would be the second high heart. Then he would ruff his last heart with dummy's queen of trumps just to guard against the possibility of an overruff.

Then he would draw trumps and go about the business of leading diamonds toward dummy and clubs toward his own hand.

Why did South open with one spade, not one no-trump? Because his hand is too big for a no-trump opening. He has 18 high card points that include a strong five-card suit and such hands represent too much trick taking potential for a one no-trump opening.

QUALITY AND CONVENIENCE—Gibson's Discount Pharmacy has a selection of approximately 15,000 medicines to help their customers get the service they need. Three registered pharmacists are available to fill prescriptions efficiently and promptly.

Gibson's Discount Pharmacy Offers Convenient Service

Realizing that illness hits most people at sometime in their lives, Gibson's Discount Pharmacy strives to maintain a high quality standard of service and yet provide the medicines inexpensively.

A full staff of registered pharmacists are always on hand to aid the customer in filling his prescription needs as they arise.

And this service is available even outside of normal store hours. At least one pharmacist is ready 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to help the customer obtain medicines that may be needed quickly to combat sickness.

Several clerks are on hand to take orders and to help provide fast and efficient service for the customer. This eliminates some of the time a pharmacist would have to spend on paper work, freeing him to spend more time with filling the prescriptions.

Dean Copeland, pharmacist in charge, says all the personnel in the pharmacy work together in an effort to give the customer the fast and efficient service that has become a trademark of Gibson's. And yet the low prices are maintained.

Working with Copeland are David Burns, who has been a member of the Gibson staff for over a year, and Dick Wilson, who joined Gibson's Discount Pharmacy last year.

Filling prescriptions for the customers, all three work promptly to keep the prices down without sacrificing any of the service. And only any of the service. And only any of the service. And only any of the service.

The medicines are obtained from reputable pharmacy companies at less cost and without the high overhead encountered by many smaller pharmacies.

Gibson's Discount Pharmacy carries approximately 15,000 medicines to more than meet the needs of most illnesses.

Another special feature of the pharmacy is the stock of vitamins they keep in supply. Many doctors believe many illnesses could be avoided or at least cut down if vitamins were used to supplement the regular diet.

Gibson's keeps an outstanding supply, whether its for children or for adults or for special diets.

And with the season for colds and sniffles just around the corner, vitamins should be a part of the regular diet.

Customers suffering from allergies can also find a complete line of medicines to help control difficulties. For people with sensitive skin, a full line of Allercream cosmetics are in stock.

A registered pharmacist since 1957, Copland invites customers to come by and check Gibson's Discount Pharmacy and compare for quality and service at low prices.

Pampan Wins Award

DALLAS—Pampa resident Charles L. Blount, Box 974, an insurance representative with Combined American Insurance Company, Dallas, has received an award for outstanding sales and service to the public.

John Keefe, regional sales manager, said Blount won the Pearl Award in the W. Clement Stone International Sales and Management Achievement Club. The international club is named after the company's founder and board chairman.

Combined American is a subsidiary of the Combined Insurance Company of America and specializes in accident and health income - protection and life insurance. Last year the group paid benefits in excess of $93,000,000.

The group is unusual in that the needs of customers are under constant review, with representatives calling personally on policyholders at least every six months to provide individual service. Blount, in September, 1971, became associated with Combined American as a representative and his work in service to policyholders earned him his award.

Realtors Announce Adoption In Code

PAMPA—Adoption of a Code for Equal Opportunity in housing by the Pampa Board of Realtors was announced Saturday by Norma Shackelford, president, formalizing the Board's policy to offer equal service to all clients and prospects without regard to race, color, religion or national origin.

Coincident with the adoption of the Code, the Board established a Committee of Equal Opportunity that will undertake an educational program to familiarize board members and associations and public with the terms of local and federal laws prohibiting discrimination in the sale or purchase of real property. William G. Harvey is chairman of the committee, and other members are Mary Lea Garrett and Norma Shackelford.

The committee also will consider complaints which may be registered with the board. Any member found guilty of violating the spirit or any provision of the Code will be subject to disciplinary action.

The Code for Equal Opportunity was adopted by the National Association of Realtors in 1972 for submission to its 1,600 local boards for their acceptance of a voluntary basis. It has the approval of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which permits Realtors to display a special poster containing the Code and HUD's equal housing opportunity regulations, in lieu of the required HUD poster.

The Code for Equal Opportunity reads as follows: "The Pampa Board of Realtors subscribes to the policy that equal opportunity in the acquisition of housing can best be accomplished through leadership, example, education, and the mutual cooperation of the real estate industry and the public. In the spirit of this endeavor, this board proclaims the following provisions of its Code for Equal Opportunity to which each member is obligated to adhere.

"1. In the sale, purchase, exchange, rental, or lease of real property, realtors and their sales associates have the responsibility to offer equal services to all clients and prospects without regard to race, color, religion, or national origin. This encompasses:

"A. Standing ready to enter broker-client relationships or to show property equally to members of all racial, creedal, or ethnic groups.

"B. Receiving all formal written offers and communicating them to the owner.

"C. Exerting their best efforts to conclude all transactions.

"D. Maintaining equal opportunity employment practices.

"2. Members, individually and collectively, in performing their agency functions, have no right or responsibility to volunteer information regarding the racial, creedal, or ethnic composition of any neighborhood or any part thereof.

"3. Member shall not engage in any activity which has the purpose of inducing panic selling.

"4. Members shall not print, display, or circulate any statement or advertisement with respect to the sale of rental of a dwelling that indicates any preference, limitations, or discrimination based on race, color, religion, or ethnic background.

"5. Members who violate the spirit of any provision of this Code for Equal Opportunity shall be subject to disciplinary action."

CUSTOM-FITTED SEAT COVERS are one of the many goods and services offered to you at Hall Tire Company, 700 W. Foster in Pampa. Here Leonard Hall puts the finishing touches on a set of seat covers for one of the firm's many satisfied customers.

Hall Tire Company Offers Custom-Fitted Seat Covers

Want a custom-fitted job on those seat covers for your car?

Hall Tire Co., 700 W. Foster, offers one of the more complete lines of ready-made seat covers in the area.

But they also offer a custom trim service, even for those ready-made covers.

Seat covers can be custom fitted with one-day service on most jobs at Hall Tire, with over 27 years of business to back it.

In addition to seat-covering and re-upholstering, Hall Tire Co. also features stereo components and accessories for both the home and car, with one of the largest and most complete stocks in the area.

The firm has one of the largest stocks of stereo tapes with a complete price range for eight-track players for both home and automobiles.

Hall Tire specializes in custom installation of the stereo equipment, with components and accessories by Channel Master and Audiovox.

In addition, the company also offers other services for the automobile.

If the auto is in need of rubber, the firm offers a full line of automobile and truck tires, with a complete line of glass belted tires at the most popular prices.

The company services everything it sells.

A main specialty of Hall Tire Co. is that it balances wheels electronically. This type of balancing is an expensive and complicated process, with only three or four shops in town offering it, Hall said.

The procedure requires a well-trained man who must have had several months of training to use the machine correctly.

Hall, although he was not born in Pampa, has lived here most of his life and has been in business for better than 27 years.

Visit Hall Tire Company at 700 W. Foster and see for yourself what real service is like.

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI)—The emotions he felt while watching Richard M. Nixon's inauguration Jan. 20 may have helped bring on former President Lyndon B. Johnson's fatal heart attack two days later, a Menninger Foundation psychologist suggests.

Dr. Sylvia Ginsparg drew that conclusion in an article in Menninger Perspective, the foundation's bimonthly magazine in which she discussed how psychological stress causes heart attacks.

"Although he (Johnson) had a history of progressively closing valves and a damaged colon, the emotional experience of that weekend, plus the recent death of his close friend and the only other surviving former president, Harry S. Truman, may well have played a role in the fatal coronary attack on that day," Dr. Ginsparg wrote.

"This illustration is not a singular occurrence," she said. "Similar losses occur every day."

Socially Sanctioned Suicide
Examples she listed included a 47-year-old chemist stricken with a fatal heart attack after an auto accident in which he was unharmed but his wife died, and a 56-year-old financier found dead of a heart attack shortly after being eased out as head of his firm after profits had dropped.

"Whatever the physical factors involved, in the development of a cardiovascular illness," Dr. Ginsparg said, "psychological forces are also an important contributing factor."

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—One business little affected by the ups and downs of the national economy is the perfume business.

A woman might look at the family budget and skip buying a new dress because it's a major expenditure. But she'll go right on pampering herself—and pleasing her man—with perfume or cologne because, comparatively, she's not wrecking the monthly bank balance.

Mrs. Henry (Anne) Kahn, whose job is sensing what women want in scents, says so.

There's another factor going for the industry now, she said. It's the new freedom women feel—"as women have become more conscious of themselves, they do more things to please themselves."

Business is Politics
This new consciousness doesn't mean that women forget about pleasing men too, she said.

"Just as she wears makeup to attract, she uses perfume. Liberation or not, there still are basic things between men and women. Today's woman wants it all," she said.

"I've no way of knowing, but I'll bet Betty Friedan wears perfume."

Mrs. Kahn, originally from Newport News, Va., started her career with a degree in political science from the University of Pennsylvania.

"A lot of business is politics," she said.

U.S. Finally Wins Gold Medals

MOSCOW (UPI) — Spurred by the yeoman effort of eight men, a disqualification and an upheld protest, the United States trackmen finally owned two gold medals today as the World University Games switched the focus to swimming and basketball.

Once again it was the host Soviet Union bringing in another boatload of gold medals—this time eight, bringing its overall total to 44, while Romania was a far-distant second with three golds.

The United States, meanwhile, picked up its first two golds the hard way—in the relays. In the 400-meter relay, the team of Thomas Wheatley of Alabama, Wardell Gilbreath of New Mexico J.C., Larry Brown of Lincoln College and Steve Riddick of Norfolk State sped to a new games' record of 39.1 seconds in edging the rival Russians.

Then came the game's first incident. Urchenko Disqualified As Soviet anchorman Simeon Kotcher overhauled Dennis Schultz of Oklahoma State down the stretch of the 1,600-meter relay, it appeared the Americans would have to settle for just one track and field gold for the entire competition. But a disqualification on the Russian's No. 2 man, Valery Urchenko, gave the Americans the gold after all.

"He (Urchenko) grabbed my foot as I was moving into position on the final turn," said Darwin Bond of Tennessee, the No. 2 U.S. runner. "I nearly fell over, but just the same, I never thought they'd have the guts to call it." The Russians later protested to no avail, but after waiting vainly at the awards stands for some sort of a decision, the U.S. foursome decided to make their "presentation" and, in unison, leaped to the first-place platform and shook their fists triumphantly to the dwindling number of spectators still left in the stadium.

The Russians, who finished with 17 of the 34 gold medals in track and field, added six more to their total Monday, including the 5,000 meters where Mikhail Zhelovoski out-kicked Glen Herold of the University of Wisconsin.

"I gave it everything I had," the dejected Herold said later. "I guess it just wasn't enough. I wanted it so bad too." Clement Wins Glamour Event The glamor 1,500-meters event, minus many of the world's glamor milers, went to Britain's Frank Clement, who outraced another two University of North Carolina men—5-foot-7 Reggie McAfee and Tony Waldrop—in 3:42.3.

"I gave him the race," said Waldrop who finished second. "I gave him too much leeway and let him get away. Look at me, I'm not even tired now." Despite the overall domination by the Russians and disappointment of the United States, the outstanding performer of the track competition quite possibly was a young lady from Finland with the memorable name of Mona-Lisa Pursiainen. Miss Pursiainen, who won the women's 100 meters Friday, came back to give her country its second gold medal with a 22.4 triumph in the 200-meter sprint. The United States, which has moved into third place in medal standings with three silvers and nine bronzes in addition to the two golds, was putting its unbeaten basketball team back in action today against Czechoslovakia. And with the swimming also

Foster To Defend Title Against Pierre Fourie

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — In a bout highlighting speed and power, light-heavyweight champion Bob Foster will defend his title here tonight for a record 11th time.

It will be Foster's power against South African challenger Pierre Fourie's speed. Foster, who has successfully defended his title 10 times since knocking out Dick Tiger in Madison Square Garden on May 4, 1968, said he was looking for a quick knockout.

"I'm not taking any chances," said the 34-year-old champion. "I'll knock him out in the first round if I can." Considered one of the hardest punchers in light-heavyweight history, Foster said he was not concerned with Fourie's speed, despite the challenger's No. 1 ranking.

"He's just another fighter. They name the opponents and I just fight them," said the champion. Fourie, who got his first look at television when he arrived in the United States to train, spent Monday relaxing in front of a TV set and reading.

More noted for his speed than his punching ability, Fourie said he thinks he can beat Foster if the bout goes the 15 rounds. "His age would work against him the longer the fight goes and the fact he's been off for so long will also hurt him," Fourie said.

The South African challenger will earn $10,000 while Foster has been guaranteed a minimum of $75,000.

OLD TIMER — Harry West of Canyon, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.S. West, 329 N. The red '37 Chevy is the result of over 1500 hours of work by West, his father, Bill West (his brother), Burton and Bob Doucette of Pampa, and Richard Taylor of Pampa, who painted the automobile.

Canadian Hoping For District Title For Second Straight Year

concerned, Hawthorne's Wildcats had a few of them: an impressive 7-2-1 district record, three all-district selections (halfback Kem Carr, linebacker Mac Purcell and defensive end Bob Dickinson) and a 30-6 trouncing of I-A rival White Deer, the first time the Bucks have lost to Canadian in 17 years.

Actually Canadian will be defending the district championship as the 'Cats tied Sanford-Fritch for the title. Canadian represented I-A against Clarendon by virtue of a 14-6 regular-season win over the Eagles. This year, Purcell's gone, and so are quarterbacks Ronnie Williams and Sam Schafer, tight end Donnie Morrow, tackle Pat Walker and Glenn Watson and guard Russell Ashley.

Carr and Dickinson are back. Carr, a 6-1, 170-pound senior, is the district's best running back. Last season he carried 157 times for 867 yards (5.5 average) and 10 touchdowns.

Carr also started in the defensive secondary and punted (32.2-yard average) for the Wildcats. He'll play all three positions again this season. Dickinson, a 5-8, 190-pound senior is also Canadian's fullback, last year rushing at a 3.8 clip, with 215 yards on 56 carries. Brothers Lonnie (5-9, 150) and Bill (5-9, 150) Hines will split quarterbacking duties in Canadian's wishbone.

"Both are good quarterbacks. Lonnie's a better thrower and Bill's the better passer," said Hawthorne. Neither has varsity experience.

Senior halfback David Wilson, 5-7 and 130, rounds out a much-better-than-average backfield. Wilson started last season, gaining 516 yards on 96 attempts for a 5.3 average.

Senior center Gary Tubbs, 5-10, 170, and senior tackle Ricky Wheeler, 6-3, 180, will bolster the offensive line, which is hurt by graduation and Canadian's biggest question mark.

Top guard prospects are senior Terry Carr, 5-11, 155, and Junior Ronnie Schmidt, 5-10, 175. The other tackle spot will probably be filled by Mitch Ashley, a 6-2, 150-pound senior, and tight end will most likely be junior Steve Whatley, a 5-10, 154-pounder.

Hawthorne expects senior transfer Terry Innis, 5-9 and 190, will see plenty of action at one guard spot. Defensively, Canadian will go into a Split-6.

Bobby Talley, tackle, Steve Schafer, fullback, and John Ortega, tackle, are the remaining Wildcats and are expected to be strong contenders for their respective positions.

What about I-A? "We've got to really think in terms of Stinnett, Sanford-Fritch and Sunray. Right now Stinnett's probably stronger than the rest of us," said Hawthorne, who added, "We're going to worry about Phillips for right now."

Canadian opens against Phillips' Blackhaws at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 7 in Phillips.

People may be too quick to write off Chiefs as powerhouse on the downside. Just remember, they haven't had losing season since '63 and finished '72 with three straight triumphs. They're still big enough physically to create lobby tremors when they tromp through. And have made a couple of moves offensively to stabilize attack.

Nothing changes. Lenny Dawson at 38 remains extension of Hank Stram on field. Mike Livingston keeps waiting to take over, though stock has slipped a little, and even Pete Beathard has returned. Good

Too much pressure on Otis Taylor, a nonpareil. Elmo Wright, injury-hobbled, was a major 72 disappointment. Now has to beat out Robert West for regular duty. Willie Frazier at tight end never maximizes ability, so rookie Gary Butler has shot. Fair

As with Taylor, Ed Podolak needs help to take the pressure off him. He's topnotch, versatile threat. Having Warren McVea back from knee injury will help. But biggest asset might be acquisition of Willie Ellison to relieve aging plugger Wendell Hayes. Good

It's big as usual and now it's deep with addition of Francis Peay at tackle behind 34-year-old Jim Tyrer, Ed Budde and Mo Moorman are still awesome pulling guards and Jack Rudnay's a quick, solid center. Sid Smith should start breaking into more action at tackle. Good

Measure Of Quackery

A friend once inquired of our opinion on a medical treatment. The treatment itself had been successful, but our friend had been made suspicious of the doctor who administered it. First, the practitioner had acted in an unprofessional manner. Second, our friend had been advised by a well known expert that the treatment was a fraud, although the expert's advice was mitigated somewhat, that many of his own patients had failed to recover after receiving a different treatment.

Our own unexpert reply was that if the quack's patients got well and the expert's patients had succumbed, that provided a pretty good measure as to which treatment was more to be relied on.

The thought recurred to us when we read that organized crime had moved into the meat business. By ruses such as feigned highjacking, short-weighting, false grading etc., the criminals were able to sidestep price curbs. As a consequence, a predictable black market had sprung up.

As this event was making headlines, we read in an adjacent column that the regular packing houses were closing down.

Well, we certainly don't want to be accused of saying a good word for criminal activity, no more than we would want to be caught commending medical quackery. The strict dictionary definition of "black market" is somewhat narrower than the popular conception. Strictly construed, a black market is not a traffic in stolen goods but rather a "violation of an official quota, price ceiling, rationing restriction, or other public regulation." Black marketing is a crime manufactured by legislation or executive decree. The late Spanish economist Faustino Ballve in "Essentials of Economics" stated the blackmarket is "in fact, the real market." No doubt, however, that some of the participants in the violation of the current "freeze" are real mafia types.

So we have a genuine comparison of the deeds of criminals and bureaucrats. The criminals, through the black market, are moving the meat to willing customers at a time when the government - rigged "legal" market can't even operate. Which side is doing the more for humanity, the criminals who are serving the meat - buying public or the authorities who are keeping them from being served?

The capacity of constituted authority to do harm is pretty well measured when it is seen to be greater than the damage that is done by organized crime.

Obscenity As Ruling

It's happened already - what a lot of people predicted would happen as a result of the Supreme Court's ruling permitting a king of local option on pornography.

A picture called "The Devil in Miss Jones," which was declared not obscene by a judge on the island of Manhattan two weeks previously, was ordered seized as obscene by a judge on the Bronx mainland.

In the latter principality, it would seem that prevailing community morality had been served - or at least the morality of those who made their voices the most prevalent. According to Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola, his office had received hundreds of written and telephoned complaints about the movie. When the action of the Manhattan judge was pointed out to him the D.A. replied:

"Obscenity is basically a person's opinion, anyway. I assume this will work its way up through the courts, possibly even to the Supreme Court." Here we go again.

Ralph Nader Of 1820

Heroes are made, not born, but a heck of a lot depends upon what era they are born into.

Take the case of Frederick Accum, one of the first pioneers in consumer protection.

In 1820, recalls Chemistry magazine, Accum published a book entitled: "A Treatise on the Adulterations of Food and Culinary Poisons. Exhibiting the Fraudulent Sophistications of Bread, Beer, Wine, Spirituous Liquors, Tea, Coffee, Cream, Confectionary, Vinegar, Mustard, Pepper, Cheese, Olive Oil, Pickles and Other Articles Employed in Domestic Economy, and Methods of Detecting Them." Among the "sophistications" Accum exposed were the use of red lead to color cheese, green copper salts to color pickles and sulfuric acid to intensify the acidic taste of vinegar - all common additives in the supposedly "natural" foods of a century and a half ago.

Far from winning him acclaim as an early Ralph Nader, however, publication of Accum's book, which listed irresponsible manufacturers and merchants, led to his disgrace, the loss of his business and friends and his exodus from his home in London.

Your Health

Health Magazine Is Not Reliable

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb - I heard something that doesn't make sense to me. I was told that a health magazine said if you had your own hens and have a rooster the eggs are not high in cholesterol. Is there anything to this?

Dear Reader - Absolutely nothing. It's complete nonsense. I wouldn't be too surprised to find that it was published in a "health" magazine. A good many of these that are available to the public are full of misinformation. This is because most of them do not have physicians or any medically trained individuals on their editorial board. Some of these should be called quack magazines and not health magazines.

From the amount of mail that I get citing misinformation in a number of health magazines, I am impressed that people don't realize that because something's being published doesn't necessarily mean it's true. Under our system of freedom of the press, almost anything can be published somewhere, whether it's true or not. Public responsibility should be exercised by ethical editorial boards, and the best safeguard to help see to it that they remain ethical is a well informed public.

Wild misinformation about health matters, including nutrition, fad diets and exotic cures for everything from quack cures for arthritis to impotence, flourishes because of a vacuum - a vacuum really created by ignorance. The best defense against these practices, therefore, is a good public education program that teaches people enough about health and all of its ramifications to help protect them from misinformation and fraudulent practices.

Dear Dr. Lamb - I am 52 years old and am allergic to milk. It makes my abdomen swell, and I have intense pain in that area when I drink it or eat any food containing it. Since I have omitted milk from my diet I am no longer plagued with this problem. Could you tell me what I can do to get the calcium I need.

Dear Reader - Unfortunately, most of the calcium in our diet comes from milk and milk products. Canned sardines and canned salmon are good sources of calcium, particularly if you eat the bones. Some of the milk substitutes can be used for people with your problem. These are usually made from soybeans and will have calcium added to them. You may have to get a milk substitute of this type from one of the health food stores. In some of the supermarkets you can find milk substitutes, usually made out of soybeans in the baby food department (for babies who do not tolerate lactose). Your doctor could prescribe some calcium tablets for you.

Mature bean seeds, such as navy beans or white beans, are a useful source for calcium and one of the better among the vegetable groups, but even so you'd have to eat a lot of mature bean seeds to meet your calcium requirements, if you have none from other sources. You might like to try some of the fish meal or flour products. Fish meal, particularly if it's ground up with the bones, is a rich source of both protein and calcium. It can be added to tomato juice and various foods.

Mechanized Horseshoes

"Soviet farms are highly touted as fully mechanized operations. Nonetheless," says BARRON'S, National Business and Financial Weekly, "state and collective farms complain of a shortage of horseshoes and horseshoe nails. A single horseshoe factory, dating from the late 19th Century, used to supply an inadequate number of horseshoes; it has now been closed. A new factory, planned for a number of years, has yet to start up, while the supply of nails seems to depend on the black market. The shortage is serious, since 'mechanized' Soviet farms still use seven million horses."

BRUCE BLOSSAT Houston case hits our way of life

By Bruce Blossat

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The horror of the murders in Houston of more than a score of young boys is special, not least because it connects with some other things in American life. And, in a strange way, ties into an observation about human behavior I heard recently in Puerto Rico.

The most baffling aspect of the Houston case, of course, is that - in prelude to the ghoulish outcome - no particular wonder was stirred when nine of the disappearances which the police styled as "runaways" occurred within a four-block area.

The authorities explain that, with more than 5,000 "runaways" a year in the nation's sixth largest city, it isn't possible to pursue individual cases very long. Nor does bunching of these in particular areas arouse the police to unusual curiosity. What a sense of helplessness this must now induce in the families of Houston "runaways," and perhaps countless others. For we can imagine the tens of thousands of such disappearances there must be in the whole nation each year.

Quickly, I put this together in my mind with another figure which popped into print not long ago. Some five million Americans 65 and over are destined to die alone and unattended - indeed, often unnoticed for days or weeks.

In this free society, committed ostensibly to the full dignity of the individual human, how can such absolutely stunning neglect occur?

Where, amid this celebrated affluence the world is supposed to envy, is the real sense of community, of family, and the caring and protection they are presumed to offer?

Here is the place where I find pertinent a comment made to me in Puerto Rico by worldly wise former Gov. Luis Munoz Marin.

I had asked him why Puerto Ricans generally are, as is truly the case, so warmly and acutely responsive to leadership (which for the most part they have had in good measure). The same cannot be said for people in many Latin lands.

Munoz's answer was at once simple and complex. "He said Puerto Ricans were responsive, and mostly free of bitterness even though many know poverty worse than any in mainland America, because they feel they live in a setting 'where no harm can come to them.'"

They have known a higher degree of self-government a longer time than most of their Latin brethren. They do not live in terror of jail and the dictator's lash.

Ironically, the "great United States" is given high credit for encouraging self-government even in the island's "colonial" phase, and for serving as "dramatic example."

Munoz and others there have more to say on why islanders feel freer of "harm" than many others. The family, meaning to them what Puerto Ricans call the "extended family" embracing cousins, aunts, uncles, etc., offers protection. Unemployment may be high, but the unemployed are cared for in personal ways many mainland Americans never experience.

In "big America" we have free-roaming space, consequent fabulous mobility, diversity despite leveling forces. Yet we are the land of the broken home, of the family shrunk and somehow less warming and rewarding, of diminished "community" sense, where rootless people flock together - only to see "runaways" join jobless, neglected elderly and others in the cold discomfort of empty tables of statistics.

SALUTE TO TEXAS RANGERS

The Texas Rangers, proud in tradition and accomplishment, celebrated their 150th anniversary recently. In a ceremony attended by many dignitaries, the Rangers turned earth for a new memorial building at Waco. There the memories and mementos of the famed law-enforcement agency will be enshrined.

The record of the Rangers is filled with many famous case histories and the names of many brave men who have made Texans feel a sense of security since the early days of the state when raids of marauding Indians and the violation of the southern border were commonplace.

The Ranger of today still wears a wide-brimmed hat and boots, but he is equipped with more than a pistol and horse. Past communications and rapid transportation help him bring to hand the modern criminal, be he a cattle thief or a bank hijacker. He pursues his trade like any well-trained detective.

Still, the towering presence of a Texas Ranger adds impetus to any investigation he enters. Local officers attest to the splendid cooperation of the Texas Ranger companies when they enter a case.

"One riot, one Ranger," the legends still surround the outstanding contributions of the Rangers, who form a special force within the Texas Department of Public Safety. Teamwork, however, is the word the modern-day Ranger emphasizes. Rangers know that law-enforcement teamwork is the key to the solving of crimes and the preventing of others.

I have been privileged to be named an honorary member of the association of former Rangers, and I join in saluting the Ranger force of today and paying homage to the tradition of Texas Rangers of other years.

PAUL HARVEY Is Women's Lib Really Progress?

By PAUL HARVEY

Women have more equal legal rights. More women are accepted in jobs heretofore reserved for men only. Women have stormed the swinging door.

But is it "progress"? Who wears the britches in the family has been decided. She does. Women in pantsuits, men in caftans, but still the world did not come to an end.

And I look at a centerfold featuring a male movie star and wonder if Women's Lib - intended to emancipate them - did not, in fact, free exhibitionist men to unsuppress some long dormant desires.

"Angel Lane," striptease dancer in London advertised as "the body divine," is male. Employment equality is not new. Pioneer women dug ditches, walked plows, chopped wood alongside their men. Doting males and consumerism freed women from most drudgery - then excluded them from it. Now many want back in

The Los Angeles City Council has approved a "unisex police force": no distinctions; women are on dangerous street patrol right alongside men.

Pennsylvania's courts decree any athletic code which discriminates is "unconstitutional." Pennsylvania women are herewith free professionally to "wrestle."

In 1900 slightly more than 5 million women were employed outside the home; today 31.6 million are.

Sister Jeanne Knoerle, president of St. Mary-of-the-Woods College, says "women are in the middle of a fantastic period of human history, one of the greatest periods of social change, but it is 'progress'?"

She says, "A majority of women have been basically happy until the shifting viewpoint made them feel guilty for feeling satisfied. Now they face at least a temporary disorientation of family life."

One of the world's most liberated women, Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, recently described Women's Lib as "those nuts that burn their undergarments and walk around disheveled and hate men."

But when man-haters have had their say and the zealots have exhausted their ammunition and the nit-pickers have turned us off, it will be seen that some desirable social change has been included in the mishmash.

Women who want to be policewomen now may be. Women, debased by a published proliferation of nude women with some "sauce for the gander," showing us our own unlovely selves naked in public, may help mature male lust.

With each sex escaping from the stereotype, the he-man image will not be obligatory and femininity will be less limiting, and yes, that is "progress."

The fashion of the time is to run to Government boards, commissions, and inspectors to set right everything which is wrong. No experience seems to damp the faith of our public in these instrumentalities.

Where They Stand

By Editors of The Washington Monthly

Sens. Harrison Williams, Lloyd Bentsen: Pension Reformers

When the Senate returns from its August recess, one of the first items on its legislative agenda will be pension reform. In recent years such companies as Studebaker have gone out of business without leaving enough money to pay their pension obligations to retired workers.

The Senate will be considering two different bills, each designed to prevent this sort of thing from happening again. One was introduced by Harrison Williams (D-N.J.), chairman of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, and the other by Lloyd Bentsen (D-Tex.), a member of the Senate Finance Committee.

for all the years he has previously worked for the company. The Williams bill doesn't have that provision.

Q: Do you see the bill as establishing model pension plans?

BENTSEN: No. This is just what we have to be careful of not doing. If we set the standards for pension plans too high, we will actually deter companies from establishing new pension programs.

Instead of trying to accomplish the ideal, what we try to do is set minimum standards for retirement plans and to stop abuses by those who are trying to do less than they ought to do.

Q: Exactly why is there a need for pension reform?

BENTSEN: Although most pension plans work extremely well, there are some rotten apples in every barrel. There have been instances of men being fired the day before they would be eligible for a company pension.

In other cases, workers have retired expecting a pension and then discovered their pension fund has been squandered. These are some of the reasons why we need pension reform.

WILLIAMS: I think the main problem is the funding and vesting (eligibility) schedules of the pension plans themselves. If these schedules are inadequate, they invite a less than completely honorable employer to manipulate them for his benefit.

Take what happened at the United Mine Workers.

Their pension system was set up so the worker would lose his benefits if there was a break in his employment record. Mining is one of those industries where economic slumps are common and men are out of work for long periods of time. This meant that these miners would never qualify for the pension program.

Q: Why has it taken the government so long to step in and try to regulate private pension plans?

WILLIAMS: A major reason is because this kind of pension coverage is relatively new. There were only a few dollars in pension assets in the whole country as late as the 1940s. Now there are more than $150 billion.

The wave of conglomerates and mergers, which have caused so many pension problems, is also relatively new. Who didn't think ten years ago that Studebaker would go on making cars forever?

Q: What are some of the key differences between the two bills?

BENTSEN: My bill is more generous in vesting provisions, allowing workers over 30 to begin to qualify for pension benefits in five years. The Williams plan starts vesting in eight years. We also give a worker who has just become eligible for a pension plan credit

Q: What will you tell a businessman who looks at this pension reform legislation as just some more government-inspired paper work?

BENTSEN: And there will be plenty who will tell me just that. If he is guilty of serious abuses in his pension plan, I would say to him that his objections don't concern me. If he is a man with a relatively good pension plan, I would tell him that this bill should cause him no problems.

Q: But won't every employer with a pension fund have to pay a yearly insurance premium to the government to guarantee his plan against failure?

BENTSEN: Yes, but this insurance would cost him only 50 cents per worker per year. That's a pretty small price to assure every workingman that his pension assets will be there when he needs them.

Q: Will this bill stimulate the creation of pension plans for all workers in this country?

BENTSEN: Not at all. No company will be forced to establish a plan. There are still a great number of people in this country without private pension plans. We are not trying to legislate for them, only to guarantee certain minimum standards for those who do have pension plans.

REVERSE RACISM

Racists in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have been giving the devil to Florida A & M University in Tallahassee, according to former football coach and retiring athletic director Jake Gaither. The administrators of the predominantly Negro school are taking heat from H.E.W. because they "have not integrated enough." Mr. Gaither remarks: "I don't want a white boy just to say I got one. We want blue-chip players. But HEW is putting on a lot of pressure from Washington. It is cruel."

Airborne tree farmers
NEW YORK (UPI) — Twenty-first century tree farmers are using helicopters to reforest the high slopes of the Cascade Mountains in Washington state.

Foresters with Burlington Northern Railroad, which uses aerial seeding to supplement its hand planting of more than 2 million trees each year in four western states, employ specially equipped helicopters to spread seeds over 1,000 to 2,000 mountain acres annually. There are about 40,000 Douglas fir seeds to a pound, and it takes about three-quarters of a pound to cover one acre.

Spidery project
BRANDON, England (UPI) — A 40-acre site near Brandon which is noted for its colonies of spiders has been bought by the Suffolk Trust for Nature Conservation as a permanent nature reserve.
