ARENA

Japanese Upper House President Tsuruhei Matsuno, seated, has unidentified guard in his lap as guards seek to protect him from rampaging Socialists. Upper House of the Diet "became an arena for a common dog fight and plunged entire nation into a mire of disgrace," according to reports from Japan. Riot took place when Socialist Saburo Eda, not shown, refused to stop filibustering and Diet guards, on order of President Matsuno, sought to evict him. (NEA Telephoto)

British Hit Greek Homes

LONDON (UP)—Scotland Yard detectives raided the homes of Greeks living in London in their hunt for Cypriot gunmen plotting death to British officials, it was reported today.

The report coincided with a new Labor Party demand that Sir John Harding resign as governor of Cyprus.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said documents seized in the raids included money appeals signed in red ink by Archbishop Makarios, exiled leader of the Cypriot Greeks, for "victims of British aggression" in Cyprus.

Many owners of the raided homes belong to an organization called the "Greek Cypriot Christian Brotherhood in London."

Panos Tofarides, who runs the club, said British security men told them: "If there is any terrorism here we shall hold you responsible."

Scotland Yard's special branch has been searching for nearly a month for two or three pro-Greek Cypriots believed to be in London to kill British leaders or members of the royal family.

Tofarides said his organization supports the Cypriot pro-Greek underground (EOKA) because "it is a liberalizing movement. We cannot condemn it. It is a question of national feeling."

The Labor Party newspaper Daily Herald demanded that Harding be replaced because he "cannot now negotiate a peaceful settlement."

The new biast followed a personal conference between Harding and Labor Party leader Hugh Tattis.

The Daily Herald noted Harding's statement that he hopes to have EOKA under control in six months, "but with six months more of bankrupt political policy, hatred of Britain is likely to be so intense that it will never die."

Tito Scoffs At Aid Cut

By WHITMAN BASSOW
United Press Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW (UP)—Marshal Tito shrugged off as "not important" Wednesday night a congressional move to cut U.S. aid to Yugoslavia and hinted he would like to visit Washington.

The Yugoslav president also said he saw no reason why his current visit to the Soviet Union should impair his country's friendly relations with the United States.

Tito spoke to newsmen at a glittering Kremlin reception in his honor Wednesday night. After the reception, he left for Leningrad on the start of a 10-day tour of Soviet cities. Soviet Premier Nikozi Bulganin and newly-appointed Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov accompanied him on the train.

More than 2,000 guests attended the reception given by Soviet President Kliment E. Voroshilov. Tito was resplendent in a dove-grey marshall's uniform heavy with gold braid.

The reception gave newsmen their first opportunity to get close to Tito since he arrived here last Saturday from Belgrade for conferences with Soviet leaders.

Tito shrugged his shoulders carelessly at the clustered newsmen when asked what he thought of the move by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) to cut off American economic and military aid to Yugoslavia.

"That's not important," Tito said.

Friendship To Remain
He added that his relations with the United States "will not suffer" as a consequence of his visit to Moscow. "Our friendship will remain as before," Tito said.

In fact, Tito added, he believed his trip to Moscow "will contribute to better relations with the Soviet Union, with the United States and with all other countries."

The Yugoslav president, responding to another question, said he would like to go to Washington.

"If I am invited, why not?" he said, his eyes twinkling. "But first I must be invited."

Truce Teams To Leave

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The neutral nations truce inspection teams have bowed to a demand by the United Nations command that they get out of the Republic of Korea, it was announced today.

Maj. Gen. Robert Gard, senior U.N. delegate to the Military Armistice Commission, told newsmen the teams agreed to leave and were only waiting for the 16 United Nations that fought in Korea to set the date.

Gard made the statement after a meeting of the commission at which he rejected a compromise-pledged Communist offer to withdraw the teams from both North and South Korea and reaffirmed his decision to expel the truce inspectors.

Gard told the commission a week ago today the inspection teams would have to leave because of flagrant violation of the armistice by Communist North Korea — including the buildup of 4,400 to 500-plane air force — and because the Communist members had paralyzed work of the teams.

The three teams in South Korea are made up of members of Sweden, Switzerland and Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia. All criticism was aimed against the Communist members who had been denounced by President Syngman Rhee as "spies."

Gard disclosed he had received a letter from the neutral nations supervisory commission (NNSC) agreeing to the "provisional withdrawal" of the teams but demanding that the teams "legal status" remain unchanged.

President Eisenhower Okays Visits If Reds Want Them

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—UP—President Eisenhower has opened the way to a series of high-level visits between U. S. and Soviet officials if the Russians want them.

Indications are the Soviet bosses would like nothing better. The result could be eventful visits to the United States by Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, Premier Nikozi Bulganin and Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

Mr. Eisenhower gave the green light to such exchanges when he told his news conference Wednesday that he would extend invitations to Soviet officials "on a completely reciprocal basis."

Be Ready Soon
That apparently means the United States will be ready soon to invite to this country the Russian counterpart of Air Force Chief of Staff Nathan F. Twining. Twining recently accepted an invitation to attend a Moscow air force show June 24.

The invitation apparently will go to Marshal V. D. Sokolovsky, chief of the Soviet chiefs of staff, who issued the invitation to Twining. However, the United States appeared to be waiting for the outcome of Twining's trip to see exactly what kind of a visit should be planned for the Soviet leader.

The President said he knew when he agreed to Twining's acceptance of the Russian invitation that he would be expected to reciprocate.

"Will 'Do Exactly That'?"
"I will do exactly that," he said. Mr. Eisenhower added that he would extend "the same courtesies, on the same conditions and conducted in the same way."

Asked if Zhukov, Russia's defense minister and an old wartime friend of the President's would be invited to the United States, Mr. Eisenhower repeated that the United States will act "on a completely reciprocal basis."

"If our defense secretary were asked," he said, "I would ask their defense secretary and the same kind of visit would be arranged for them as would be arranged for our people."

Steelmen And Steelworkers Negotiating

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—America's steel industry and the 650,000 men who make the steel so basic to our economic life negotiated amicably again today to see which side gets a half billion dollar plum for a prize.

Each side furnished four negotiators to hammer out a new steel wage contract to replace the one that expires at midnight June 20.

The half billion dollar plum is the difference between what the steel workers are asking and what top industry leaders feel the industry will be willing to grant.

The workers have asked for a package deal involving a form of guaranteed annual wage premium pay for weekend work and other fringes. The wage increase being sought is still a secret as far as the public is concerned.

99 Cents Estimated
But the steel experts outside the ranks of union and management have estimated that the union's package would cost 60 cents an hour per man. That would work out to $24 a week for each steel worker, or a gross of $800 million a year.

The hard-hearted experts calculated that what the steel companies will be willing to give the union is a package offer of 20 cents an hour. That would cost nearly $300 million.

The difference between the $800 million and the $300 million is the half billion dollar plan.

Today's negotiations followed more than four hours of secret bargaining talks Wednesday at which negotiators for both sides kicked off accelerated talks to reach a new wage pact before the strike deadline.

Both sides expressed hopes of reaching a new wage agreement before the present contract runs out.

Current negotiations involve the United Steelworkers of America and the industry's "Big Three"—U.S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, and Republic Steel corporations.

First In History
These joint negotiations are the first in the history of the steel industry. Even though the three companies emphasize they are negotiating for themselves, the final (See STEELMEN, Page 4)

Soil Bank To Pay For Disaster Loss

By BERNARD BRENNER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. W. R. Poage (D-Tex.) said today there is "no doubt at all" that the new farm law provides for soil bank payments to farmers who lost all or part of their 1956 crops to drought, floods or other disasters.

Poage thus sharply challenged Agriculture Department officials who said earlier that no soil bank payments would be made for crop reduction suffered from drought, flood or insects.

The acreage reserve section of the soil bank plan provides payments to farmers who reduce acreage of wheat, cotton, corn, peanuts, rice and tobacco below government acreage allotments.

Poage said it is "perfectly clear" that any farmer who wants to put allotted acreage of these 1956 crops into the soil bank may do so "regardless of the condition or lack of condition of the crop."

"Plain as Possible"
"The law is as plain as it is possible to write it," the Texan insisted. Poage is second-ranking Democratic member of the House Agriculture committee, and played a leading role in writing the farm bill.

Agriculture Department sources, meanwhile, indicated that top level officials were having second thoughts about their "tough" stand on soil bank payments for drought-damaged crops.

One official said he feels the department should pay only for crop reductions made as a result of soil bank contracts between farmers and the government, "but we will not submit the law."

Department attorneys are studying the act. They are expected to give Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson a formal opinion soon on the controversy over payments for crops damaged or destroyed before the new farm act took effect.

Wheat Involved
The controversy involves millions of acres of wheat in drought areas of the Southwest and Great Plains. It could also affect other sections where 1956 crops have been damaged by drought, flood, hail and other natural causes. There are no reliable estimates on the potential payments involved.

Poage maintains that under the law, farmers who do not produce a crop of 1956 allotted acreage are entitled to full-scale soil bank payments in almost all cases. The Texan said also that farmers whose potential harvest has been reduced by drought should, under the act, receive full-scale payments if they reduce acres by plowing under part of their crop.

Agriculture Department officials had taken the position that a farmer who plows up part of his crop for the soil bank should be paid on the basis of his actual reduction. If his crop was below normal, according to this thinking, the farmer would get only a partial payment.

CoC Committee Meeting Is Set

Art Teed, chairman, has announced a called meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Legislation and National Affairs Committee to be held at 10 a. m. June 8 in the Chamber of Commerce council room.

The meeting is being called to discuss bills that are pending before Congress and to decide whether to send wires to the congressmen and senators.

Bills to be discussed are the Federal School Construction Bill which concerns federal funds used for building schools, and the Retail and Service Store Minimum Wage Bill.

Adm. Joy Dies Of Leukemia

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (P)—Vice Adm. Charles Turner Joy, chief U.N. delegate to the Korean truce conference, died Wednesday of leukemia at the San Diego Naval Hospital. He was 61.

The soft-spoken admiral had been ill since he retired two years ago from active duty and last Monday entered the hospital in a final attempt to defeat the incurable disease.

Since his retirement in 1954, the four-star admiral had been living at nearby La Jolla, which overlooks the vast naval installations in and around San Diego Bay.

Although he spent most of his life at sea, Joy won his greatest fame for the months of exhausting negotiations with the Chinese Communists during the Korean peace talks. He served as chief U.S. negotiator in Korea from July 8, 1951 to May 22, 1952 when he was assigned to his last job as head of the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.

His experience during the Korean peace talks, inspired Joy's book, "How Communists Negotiate." Previously he served as Gen. Douglas MacArthur's commander of naval forces in the Far East taking command of ships from nine nations.

Joy was a native of St. Louis, Mo. He was graduated from Annapolis in 1916 after proving an all-around athlete while attending the school. His first assignment was as an ensign aboard the battleship SS Pennsylvania on which he served during World War I.

Besides his widow, the former Martha Ann Chess, of Pittsburgh, Joy leaves a daughter, Mary Martha, and two sons, Navy Lt. Charles Turner Joy Jr. and Army Capt. David Duncan Joy.

Sheriffs Having Troubles Kidnaped Beaten

ORANGE, Tex. —UP—Deputy Sheriff Tom Eddleman was kidnaped at gunpoint early today in Orange and taken on a wild 45-mile ride when he tried to arrest an ex-convict.

Eddleman was forced from his patrol car at Spurger, about 45 miles north of Orange, and the fugitive fled. The car was found abandoned about two miles from where the deputy was dumped out.

Eddleman had spotted the ex-convict, James E. Johnson, 31, on a street corner about 2:40 a. m. and tried to arrest him on a child desertion charge.

A large manhunt was organized and police brought bloodhounds into the area. Eddleman said Johnson vowed: "I'll never be taken alive."

The Orange county deputy was quoted as saying Johnson pulled an automatic pistol from his belt when the arrest attempt was made and told him: "You're not taking me. I'm taking you."

Johnson and an unidentified man who was with him then forced the deputy at gunpoint to drive along a winding, desolate country road. Eddleman was dumped from the patrol car about 4:30 a. m. and hiked to the farm near Spurger, and spread the alarm.

Speedy Run Made By Ambulance

A routine ambulance run from Amarillo to Perryton became one of a race against time for an Amarillo ambulance driver and his two passengers about noon Wednesday.

The ambulance was taking a patient from Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo to Perryton when the patient began having chest pains near Kingsmill.

The ambulance driver used his police radio at 12:35 p. m. to contact the local police department. A local police car helped the ambulance through Pampa by providing an escort to help in clearing traffic.

While the police car was providing escort, the dispatcher at the police station was radioing the Perryton Sheriff's office and notifying them to have a doctor stand by at the hospital in Perryton.

It is reported that the ambulance made the run to Perryton at a top speed of 118 miles per hour.

The ambulance reached Perryton in record time and at latest report the patient was doing satisfactorily. (See PRISONERS, Page 4)

Sheriffs Having Troubles Kidnaped Beaten

BIG LAKE, Tex.—UP—A statewide alert was issued today for four men accused of badly beating Glasscock county Sheriff Buster Cox Wednesday night when Cox stopped them for speeding.

Cox told Texas Highway Patrolman Vic Atwood that he had been patrolling Garden City, Tex., his home town. He said a white and maroon 1956 - model Chevrolet roared through the city at high speed.

The sheriff reported he chased the car 37 miles at speeds of 100 miles an hour. He finally stopped the car at a point 17 miles north of Big Lake.

Cox said he ordered the driver to get into the sheriff's car and told the other three men to follow him back to Big Lake in the Chevrolet. While he was questioning the driver, Cox said, the other three men slipped up on him and pulled him out of his automobile.

The four began beating him, Cox said. He said he hit one of them on the head with his pistol before losing his grip on the gun. The sheriff was beaten into unconsciousness, but when he regained consciousness he drove into Big Lake and contacted the highway patrol.

Cox was treated at the hospital here. He was not believed critically hurt.

Officers said the automobile was believed headed for Mexico. The four occupants were charged in warrants issued at San Angelo, Tex., with "assault on a police officer in the performance of his duty."

Highway patrolmen said one of the four was believed to have a bloody head as a result of Cox's blow. The automobile, officers said, bore Texas license number BE-2612.

Prisoners Escape At Odessa

ODESSA, Tex. (UP)—Six prisoners, led by a three-time loser who faced a possible life term in prison as a habitual criminal, sawed their way out of the Ector county jail early today.

One of the men, Everett Spencer, 33, Waco, facing trial on a burglary charge, was recaptured two-and-a-half hours later near Midland when a truck driver with whom he hitched a ride tipped off police.

But at last reports, the other five remained at large and bloodhounds were used unsuccessfully to track them. (See PRISONERS, Page 4)

Swimming Classes Are Underway

Red Cross junior and senior life saving classes are in session each day at the Municipal Swimming Pool. Mrs. George Hofseas and Mrs. Bill Dow are instructors.

At the close of the training each of the 18 students enrolled will be tested, and those passing will receive their junior or senior life saving badge. "Following this," Mrs. Hofseas said, "we hope some of them will stay with us and take the special swimming instructor's aid training so they can help us with the coming swimming classes."

The number of beginners registered for the swimming classes is 208. 15 are adult beginners, 40 intermediates, and 4 adult intermediates.

The swimming classes will be held for two week sessions beginning June 18, July 2, and July 16. All classes are open for larger enrollment except the beginners. The only session open for beginners begins July 16. Registration is being held in the Red Cross office in the City Hall.

Red Cross instructors volunteering their services for these classes are Mrs. George Hofseas, Mrs. Bill Dow, Mrs. Jimmy Baird, Mrs. Carl Hills, Mrs. Marian Osborne, and Miss Marilyn McDaniel. The Red Cross gives the lessons free, but there is a one dollar charge for the swimming pool for each person taking a two-week course.

Polio Cases Are Below Last Year

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Public Health Service reported today that polio cases so far this year are running considerably behind 1955.

Although it is too early to make any solid predictions, authorities admit they are now hopeful that this will be a relatively light polio year.

The health service said 120 cases were reported in the nation last week, less than half the number reported in the same week last year.

Petitions For Election Still Out

Petitions being circulated by interested citizens of Gray County for the purpose of calling a $450,000 county bond election for the purpose of rebuilding bridges and making needed repairs to roads were still out today. Plans call for the petitions to be presented to the Commissioners Court next Monday.

The election cannot be called until 30 days after the petitions are presented to the commissioners. Judge Bruce Parker stated this morning.

The request for the money was made recently by a group of citizens from the McLean area, who asked that bridges and roads damaged in their area by recent floods be repaired.

The commissioners stated at the time the request was made that the money for such work would have to be raised by either a bond issue or by using farm-to-market road funds for a two-year period. The delegation decided to ask for an election so that funds could be raised as soon as possible and the necessary road work could be undertaken in the near future.

It was pointed out that the use of state farm-to-market road funds would mean that the work being requested would be the only work in the county for the next two years if the state would approve the use of the funds for these projects.

The petitions, which have been in circulation for three days, require the signatures of at least 50 qualified taxpaying voters.

BEE-WITCHED, BOTHERED, BEE-WILDERED — That's what residents of Pittsburgh, Pa., were when a swarm of bees settled on the curb of a busy downtown street. But Betty Finocchi, left, and John W. Roberts don't seem to mind having the little stingers all over their hands and faces. Nobody knows where the honey-makers came from or why they came.

Andrews Sisters Team Again After A 2½-Year Feud

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD (UP) — After 2½ years of a family feud, the Andrews sisters are a team again—all because of unhappy fans who sat down and wrote letters. The famed singing trio — Maxene, Patty and Laverne, called it quits in 1953 over a squabble about who got how much money and other difficulties. Patty pulled out with the claim her older sisters treated her "like a baby."

But recently the girls got together to talk over a movie that will be made at MGM on the story of their life, with other actresses portraying them. After reminisc-ing with the script writer about their past glories, the girls talked themselves into going back into harness.

"It just wasn't wanting to slng together again, but the public never wanted us to break up," Laverne explained as the beaming singers celebrated their reunion at a party — complete with a cake sporting a buried hatchet.

"We have been getting as many as 2,000 letters a week from people asking us to get back together ever since we appeared on an anniversary program for 'a shower of stars' on television a couple of months ago."

The girls admit they also discovered, like Martin and Lewis, that a team is successful because it's a team. Patty was a good single in night clubs but her act didn't have the impact of the team. For months Maxene and Laverne conducted a talent search to replace Patty in their routine — but gave up because "we just couldn't find anybody." The two sisters toured Australia and re-

Used, as Maxene says, that "the crowds were disappointed. They wanted to see three of us."
 "I missed Patty," she added with a smile at her sister, "although I never wanted to admit it."
 "We sort of can't get each other out of each other's hair," grinned Patty. "Everything's been straightened out and everything's water under the bridge. I'll still do records of my own, and I have signed for four TV shows on CBS this year. Otherwise, we'll be together."
 The three sisters who did an $8 million business with 680 songs will open for business again at the Flamingo hotel in Las Vegas June 28. Patty's husband, composer Walter Wechsler, will not accompany the group — apparently solving one of their difficulties.

No Indictment On 'Big Story' Writer

HOUSTON, June 6 — UP — The Harris county grand jury declined Wednesday to indict Dan Cook, a San Antonio sports writer, on a charge of robbing two men in an attempt to break a "big story" about a $250,000 burglary police didn't know about.

At the same time, the grand jury "no billed" Jimmy Parks, a San Antonio prize fight promoter, who helped Cook, Cook, in San Antonio, announced that he was "very relieved... from a lot of pressure and tension" though he never expected to be indicted.

His boss, Ed Ray, executive editor of the San Antonio Express and News, suspended him on April 26. Ray and Cook discussed the suspension after the grand jury declined to indict Cook, but Ray said there won't be any decision Wednesday.

Got 'Several Offers'
 Cook said he'd gotten "several offers from various concerns," including one to make a motion picture. He said he couldn't consider the offers until the grand jury had considered his case, but now he will start considering them.

"The grand jury does not condone the action of these men (Cook and Parks)," grand jury foreman J. E. Holt said. "However, based on the evidence presented, we have no... billed them, which act is self-explanatory."

Cook and Parks, on the night of April 26, roughed up and robbed Edwin Hamlett, an ex-convict, and Jimmy Hicks, a used car dealer who once hired Hamlett as a salesman. Next morning Cook and Parks took $3,005 to Houston Police Chief Jack Heard.

Got Telephone Tip
 They told Heard what they had done and said it was all in the interest of breaking a story about a $250,000 burglary, so Cook would become a famous reporter and be offered a job on a newspaper in a big city.

Cook said he got wind of the burglary through an anonymous telephone caller, who didn't like cops and wanted Cook to get a "big story" on his own. The caller, according to Cook, said the burglary took place in Houston on April 22.

The victim, he said, was Paul Denny, a Houston baker owner. Denny had reported his safe burglarized, but had told police only $10,000 in cash and $130,000 in securities was missing. Cook said he and Parks first worked over Hamlett to get the truth.

Got $120,000 Cash
 Hamlett took them to the home of Hicks, whom they robbed of about $2,000 but who turned out to be innocent of any knowledge of the safe burglary. Hamlett, Harvey Marley of San Antonio and Arthur Eckert, a San Antonio used car dealer, were later charged with the safe burglary.

The same grand jury that "no-billed" Cook and Parks Wednesday also declined to indict Eckert. Hamlett, however, has confessed that he and Marley staged the burglary. It turned out that the safe contained $120,000 in cash, instead of the $10,000 reported.

Income tax agents started looking into the burglary and nearly all of the $120,000 in cash was recovered. The securities, however, were destroyed.

Hicks has filed a $120,000 suit against Cook, Parks and the San Antonio Express and News, charging that he was beaten and robbed with the "ratification, acquiescence and approval" of the newspapers.

Both Ray and Cook denied this. Ray said Cook "acted as an individual; his action was unauthorized."

Seaton Post Confirmed By Senate
WASHINGTON (UP) — The Senate Wednesday confirmed the appointment of Fred A. Seaton as Secretary of Interior.

Seaton, Nebraska publisher, was named by President Eisenhower to succeed Douglas McKay. He was approved by the Senate Interior committee Tuesday.

There was no debate preceding Senate action on the nomination and only a few senators were on the floor at the time.

Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson and GOP Leader William F. Knowland joined in praise of Seaton. Johnson said he was a man "very conscious of the obligations" of the office he undertakes and "I am happy to see him elevated."

Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.) said he believed Seaton to be "a man of good character." However, Neuberger said he felt "many cogent questions" asked Seaton by the Interior committee went unanswered.

Therefore, Neuberger said only "time will tell whether Fred Seaton will become another Douglas McKay or a Gifford Pinchot."

PRISONERS

(Continued from Page 1) in an effort to track them down, Sheriff Ernest Broughton said they may have armed themselves.

They were: Richard W. White, 26, Fort Worth, in jail charged with burglary; Buddy Wayne Richardson, 33, Odessa, charged with burglary; Billy Jo Sisk, 21, Odessa, felony theft and James Ray Parker, 21, Odessa, forgery.

Richardson is the three-time loser, Broughton said he was to be tried this time as an habitual criminal. Conviction on this charge carries with it an automatic sentence of life in prison.

Sheriff Broughton said the men saved through bars on their cells with hacksaw blades that somehow were smuggled to them. That let them out into a "walkaround" where they got a board and pried off bars to an outside window.

Then they crawled three stories down an ornamental, iron lattice-work to the ground. They were on the top floor of the jail, which is some 15 years old. There have been other escapes, but never any as spectacular, Broughton said.

Four trustees refused to go with them. But the men threatened with knives which, Broughton said, apparently was smuggled to them at the same time as the hacksaw blades, and the trustees remained quiet.

But when the men had gone out the outside window the trustees began to shout and police officers responded. When police got to the third floor, the six men had reached the ground. Three ran south, three ran north.

Union talks with the other major steel producers are on a standby basis pending outcome of these talks with the "Big Three", which account for more than half the steel produced in this country.

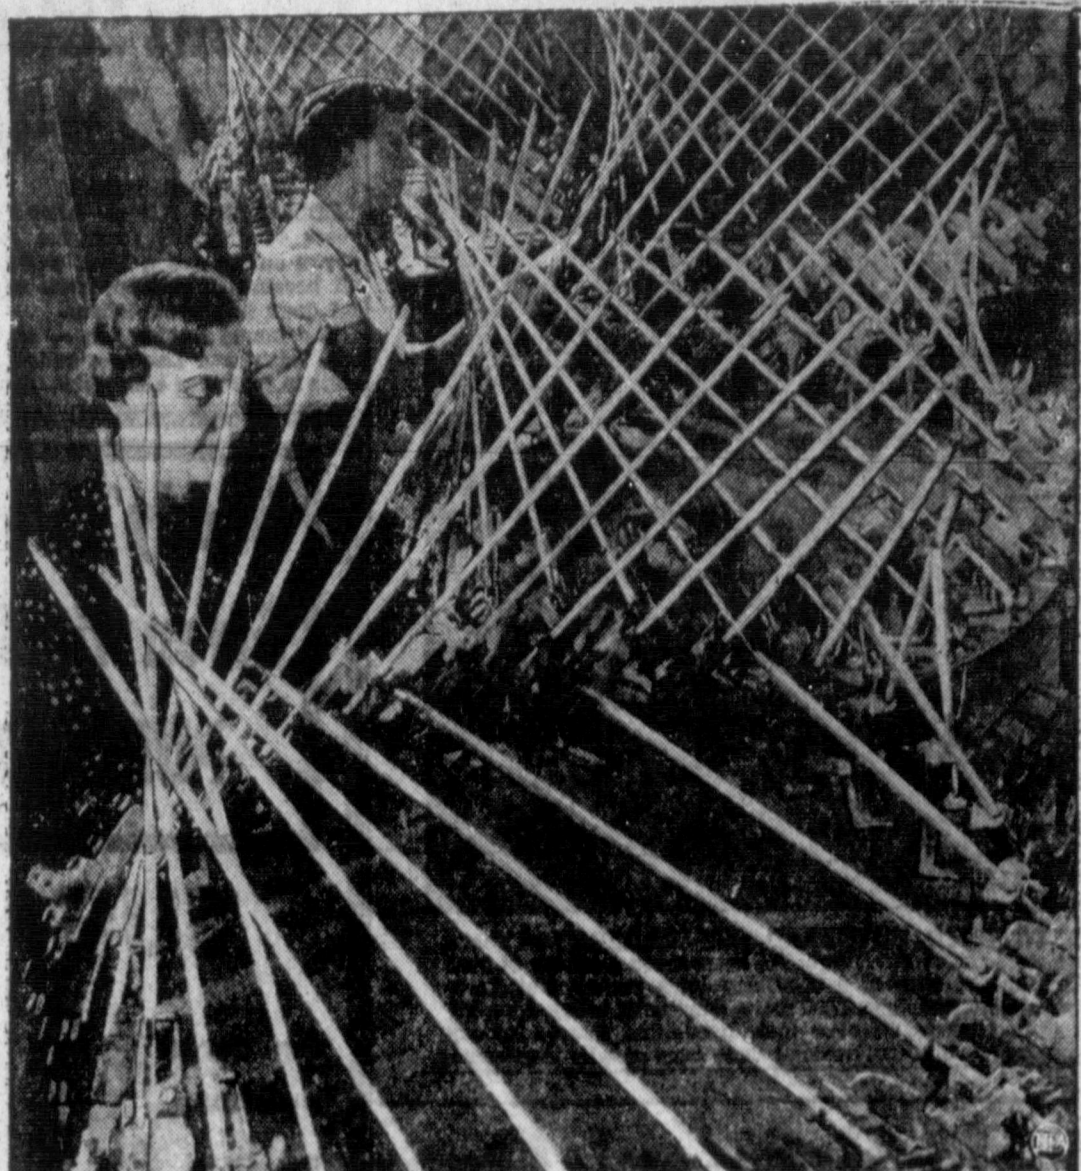

The steel talks — said to be one of the biggest economic developments May 28. After four days of talks in the nation's steelmaking center, negotiations were moved to New York Wednesday in the belief "neutral ground" would facilitate a quick settlement of union demands.

Failure to negotiate a new contract by June 30 could trigger a strike that eventually could cripple the nation's entire economy.

A source close to the negotiations said most of Wednesday's talks were spent "peeling off the excess from the union demands so negotiations can get down to brass tacks."

Important Developments Are Expected In Cyprus Situation

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

There may be some important developments soon in the Cyprus situation. Great Britain is now reviewing its policy on the Mediterranean island which it has made its principal military base in the Middle East.

It seems to be increasingly likely that out of the review will come new proposals for negotiations on the future of Cyprus.

These negotiations, it is indicated, would involve Britain, Greece, Turkey and the Greek Cypriot islanders who demand that Britain hand over Cyprus to Greece.

It is indicated also that the United States is invited to play a part as a friendly observer.

Negotiations on Cyprus have been suspended since early in March, when talks between British and Greek Orthodox Catholic Archbishop Makarios, the Cypriot Nationalist leader, broke down.

Force With Force
Since then Britain has embarked on a policy of meeting force with force.

Archbishop Makarios has been deported to the Seychelles Islands in the Indian Ocean, accused of direct complicity in Greek Cypriot violence. Two rebels have been hanged. But violence has continued.

Greece is bitterly angry over the deportation of Makarios and the execution of the rebels.

Greek Foreign Minister Spyros Theodoris has been forced to resign because of accusations that he took a lukewarm attitude toward the demand that Britain give up Cyprus.

There have been serious riots between Greek Cypriots, who make up 80 per cent of the island's 500,000 population, and Turkish Cypriots who make up the other 20 per cent.

Turkey is showing increasing interest in the situation. It says that the rights of the Turkish minority must be fully safeguarded in any settlement. It says also that if Britain gives up Cyprus, Turkey must have it. It seems prepared to back up its position with force if necessary.

It looks, on the surface, as if there is an almost hopeless stalemate.

Demands Policy Review
But for some weeks now, there have been growing demands in Britain, in which some of Prime Minister Anthony Eden's conservatives join, for a review of Cyprus policy.

That review got under way Monday in London. It involves Eden, Colonial Secretary Alan Lunn-Boyd, Field Marshal Sir John Harding, governor and commander in chief of Cyprus, and the British chiefs of staff.

The review seems to be what might be called a positive one. That is, that Eden intends to find a new approach to the whole situation.

There are strong indications that within the next two weeks Eden may make a most important declaration on Cyprus.

This declaration probably will include a new basis for negotiations much broader than those with Makarios.

This time, any negotiations most likely would involve directly the governments of the three countries concerned — Britain, Greece and Turkey.

Pink and Gold Deviled Mold

BRING SPRING TO YOUR TABLE with this colorful new recipe for a family lunch or party perk-up. Garnished with crisp salad greens and golden peach slices, the deviled ham mold rests in its own pink splendor. The bland sweetness of the fruit and the subtle spices of Underwood Deviled Ham blend into a new, delicious taste sensation, denying the fact that only minutes were spent in preparation.

PEACH AND HAM SALAD

1 envelope gelatin
2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 8-oz. container cottage cheese (1/2 pound)
1 tablespoon minced parsley

1 family size can Underwood Deviled Ham
4-5 black olives chopped
1 cup chopped drained cling peach slices
1/2 cup mayonnaise

Soften gelatin in combined water and lemon juice. Mix cottage cheese, deviled ham, parsley, olives and chopped peaches. Stir in dissolved gelatin and fold in mayonnaise. Turn mixture into 1 large (4 cup) oiled mold, or into individual molds. Chill until set. Unmold onto bed of lettuce and garnish with flowerlets of cling peach slices and sour cream dressing. Makes 5-6 servings.

Prune Pie Gives A Light Dessert

A light dessert, such as this prune pie, is a nice choice for warm weather eating. The crust is tender and flaky, typical of pastries made with lard, the most economical shortening. The prune whip filling has a delicious tinge of lemon.

PRUNE PIE

PASTRY
1 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1-3 cup lard
2 to 3 tablespoons water
Sift flour with salt. With a pastry blender or two knives, cut in half the lard until the mixture resembles coarse corn meal; cut in remaining lard until mixture is the size of small peas. Sprinkle water over mixture, a teaspoon at a time, and blend with a fork until all ingredients are moistened. On a lightly floured board, roll the dough into 1/4 inch thickness. Place in an 8-inch pie pan and flute edges. Prick bottom and sides. Bake at 450 degrees F. 12 to 15 minutes.

FILLING

1 pound dried prunes
1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teabspoon lemon juice
Sugar
4 egg whites
1-8 teaspoon salt
Cook prunes as package directs, pit, and force through food grinder or colander. Makes 1 1/2 cups. Combine prune pulp, lemon rind and juice, and 1/2 cup sugar. Beat egg whites with salt until stiff; gradually beat in 1/2 cup sugar. Fold egg white mixture into fruit mixture. Fill the baked pie shell. Bake at 350 degrees F. 20 minutes. Cool and refrigerate two hours before serving. 6 servings.

Coffee in the Cup, Coffee in the Pie

WE can't offer you four and twenty blackbirds, but if it's a surprise you want, here's a cup or two of coffee baked into a pie. And it's complete with cream and sugar, too! Serve it with hot coffee, and you have a pie-and-coffee harmony that sings.

This particular recipe has many virtues. For one thing, it's no small feat to find a pie that's light and not too sweet, yet full of flavor. For another, as long as you have on hand a package of gelatin and the makings of a cup of coffee, you always have the makings of a Two-Tone Coffee Pie. No special trips to the store to see what fruit is in season; no pondering what filling will meet with approval. This filling, this favor, is tops with almost everyone.

The "black bottom" effect, by the way, is achieved quite simply by using black coffee gelatin spiced with cinnamon for the bottom layer, a whipped coffee and cream mixture for the top. Pretty, isn't it? And it's good, too!

Two-Tone Coffee Pie

2 envelopes (2 tablespoons) unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
1/2 cup strong hot coffee
Softened gelatin in cold water, dissolve in hot coffee. Mix sugar and cinnamon. Add to coffee mixture and stir until dissolved. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Spoon into pie shell, filling about half full. Set in refrigerator. Whip remaining coffee gelatin until light and fluffy. Whip half cup cream and fold in. Spoon mixture on top of clear gelatin, mounding in center. Chill until firm. Whip remaining cream to use as garnish on top of pie.

Warmer Days Call For Chicken Salad

Warm days are salad days, when greenery is at its greenest. Since everybody loves chicken at all times of year, the situation clearly calls for a chicken salad. Every chicken, whether destined for salad or some other dish, calls for Ac'cent, to be at its best.

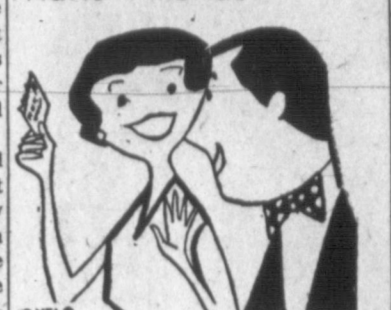

Use a spring chicken, another name for a broiler. Even though you are steaming it rather than broiling it, you will appreciate the tenderness and sweet flavor it yields. It does so because it is young — technically, a broiler should be 10 to 16 weeks old and weigh 2 1/2 to 3 pounds.

son to taste with Ac'cent, salt, pepper and lemon juice. Chill. Serve on crisp lettuce or other greens. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

VARIATIONS:

Almond: Add 1/4 to 1/2 cup sliced almonds just before serving.
Cranberry: Garnish or serve salad with cranberry sauce or jelly.
Pineapple: Add 1 cup diced fresh or canned pineapple, tidbits or chunks, well-drained.

Manners Make Friends

Pinning a woman's club or organization invites a man to speak to them, it is courteous to invite his wife as a special guest. She can accept the invitation or not as she chooses, but she should be asked. And she should have a personal invitation, not just a mention to the speaker to bring his wife.

Queen Victoria ruled England for 64 years, longest reign of any English sovereign.

Q. What is the name of these cuts of meat?

- A. Beef Short Ribs.
Q. Where do they come from and how are they identified?
A. They are cut from the ends of ribs and contain a section of flat rib bone and alternating layers of fat and lean.
Q. How are they prepared?
A. They are cooked slowly by braising or in liquid and require 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 hours for cooking. To braise, brown the short ribs on all sides in their own fat. Season with salt and pepper and add a small amount of liquid. Cover tightly and cook at a low temperature (simmer) until tender.

Onion Casserole With Rice, Cheese

Onions have been grown and used as a food since the beginning of time. Rice is an ancient food as old as civilization itself. It has been so important as a food that the word "rice" was the same as "food" in some languages. Here's a delicious way to combine these low cost, easily cooked foods to make onion casserole and Rice Parmesan. If you like peanuts, add a few peanut halves before the dish is baked.

2-3 cups sliced onions (half large slices)
2-3 cup uncooked white rice
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
4 cups water
1, 10 1/2 oz. can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1/4 teaspoon Tabasco sauce
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 cup cracker crumbs
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
1/4 teaspoon garlic salt (if desired)

Put the onions, rice, salt, pepper and water in a 2-quart saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover with a lid and leave over this low heat 14 minutes.

Stir in the mushroom soup, Tabasco sauce and Worcestershire sauce. Pour this mixture into a greased 2-quart oven dish. Sprinkle the cracker crumbs over the top. Pour the melted butter or margarine over the Parmesan cheese. Sprinkle with the garlic salt over the top. Bake in a 350 degree F oven for 40 minutes. If a darker crust is desired, sprinkle with paprika 10 minutes before the cooking time is over. This recipe makes 8 servings.

Expert Suggests "Thirty Minute"

Different dishes that can be prepared in a short time — that's what the business girl-homemaker seeks. Here are 10 "Thirty Minute" dinner suggestions for her given by the well-known home economist Reba Staggs.

First, take the cuts of beef and beef combinations. In place of meat loaf, bake regular ground meat mixture in muffin pans. Beef patties are an old stand-by. But give them a new look as a part of a grill combination.

Barbecued ground beef is a quick choice. Brown the ground beef, then add barbecue sauce and simmer for 30 mins. Spaghetti Hamburg is still another quick range-top serving. Brown 1 pound of ground beef and season with salt, pepper and 3 tablespoons of grated onion. Add 1 small can of mushroom pieces. Then fold in 1 No. 303 can of prepared spaghetti and heat thoroughly.

Sausage patties, links or country-style sausage are quick dinner time meals. Place them in a frying-pan with 2 or 3 tablespoons of water. Cover and simmer 8 to 10 minutes, then uncover and lightly brown. Serve with fried or glazed apple rings. Here's a tempting Canadian-style bacon dish — one you'll proudly serve when guests are coming to dinner. For each serving, you need a 1/4-inch thick slice of bacon and 1 large tomato. Cut the tops from the tomatoes and remove pulp. Place tomato on bacon in a baking dish. Fill tomatoes with canned baked beans. Cross half strips of bacon on tomato and bake at 400 degrees F. for 20 to 30 minutes.

Meat Loaf Suited To Busy Schedule Meat Dish Ideas

When housework cuts your kit chen time to a minimum, you can still serve appetizing meals, and on time, too. Home economist Reba Staggs suggests meat loaves, favorites with everyone, for these busy days. A meat loaf can be prepared in the afternoon and you can work while it bakes. Or you can prepare a meat loaf in the morning and serve it cold for dinner.

Here's a meat loaf which is easy to prepare and good to eat, too.

Savory Meat Loaf
2 pounds ground beef
1/2 pound bologna, ground
1 1/2 cups cracker crumbs
1 tablespoon grated onion
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup chili sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
3 thin slices American cheese

Combine ground beef, bologna, cracker crumbs, onion, beaten eggs, chili sauce, salt and pepper. Mix thoroughly. Pack in 5 x 9-inch loaf pan. Place slices of cheese on meat loaf. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for 1 1/2 hours. 8 servings.

Storing Ground Beef

Buy several pounds of ground beef at once, wrap some of it for freezing, and some for refrigerator storage. To store fresh ground beef, wrap the meat loosely in wax paper and keep in refrigerator; use within 2 days. Storing it in a freezer requires more careful packaging. Wrap the meat tightly in a moisture-vapor-proof wrap, such as aluminum foil, laminated paper, or any of the special freezer papers. Frozen ground beef can be kept for three or four months in the home-freezer.

Quebec city, Canada, on account of its strategic position, sometimes is referred to as the "Gibraltar of America."

Reach for Dr Pepper

THE FRIENDLY "PEPPER-UPPER" THAT NEVER LETS YOU DOWN!

Finnish Karjalan Piirakat Is Delicious Served As Main Dish With Egg Sauce

Here's a new idea for a hot bread which can double as a main dish! It's a foreign style dumpling with a tender rice filling. A pastry covering is pleated around the rice and after baking the bread is served with a hardcooked egg and margarine or butter sauce.

This baked "dumpling" may be used as a bread or main dish and can be served at breakfast, brunch or supper. Instead of the egg sauce you can serve it with a chicken gravy with bits of chicken and you'll have a delicious main dish. It's easy to make, and so unusual! Your family will love the delicious flavor, intriguing appearance and tender pastry around the piping hot rice. If you wish, you may use your favorite recipe for pastry, following the directions below for making the egg sauce and for cooking the rice for the filling.

3 to 5 tablespoons cold water
1 tablespoon beet or cane sugar
Milk
3 hard-cooked eggs, diced
1/2 cup melted margarine or butter

Put the salt, rice and 2 1/2 cups milk in a 2-quart saucepan. Stir well. Place over a high heat. When bubbles appear around the edge of the saucepan, turn the heat as low as possible. Cover with a lid. Leave over this low heat 40 minutes or until most of the milk has been absorbed by the rice. Stir frequently during the cooking.

While the rice is cooking, make the pastry. Sift together the flour and salt. Cut in the shortening with two knives or with a pastry blender. The mixture or flour and shortening should resemble coarse corn meal. Add a tablespoon of water at a time quickly mixing and pressing the mixture together.

Baked Liver Rolls For Company Meal

These crusted meat whirls are made like a jelly roll — carefully seasoned liver filling is rolled with tenured biscuit dough. Pork beef, or calves' liver may be used.

JUDY'S LIVER ROLLS

Liver Filling:
1 1/2 cups diced braised liver (1/2 pound)
1 small onion
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup milk

Biscuit Dough:
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons lard
2-3 cup milk

Grind liver and onion in food chopper. Add remaining filling ingredients, blending well. (If mixture seems dry, add more milk.) For dough, sift flour, baking powder, and salt. With a pastry blender or two knives, cut in lard until mixture is size of small peas. Stir in milk. Roll dough into a rectangle 1/2 inch thick and spread with liver mixture and roll, like a jelly roll. Cut into 1 1/2 inch slices, place in a greased pan. Bake at 400 degrees F. 15 to 20 minutes. Serve with liver gravy, if you wish. 10 rolls.

Cook Chicken in Sunday-Best Style

REWARDING sight any Sunday afternoon is the white linen-covered table loaded with a heaping platter of golden chicken.

When the chicken is baked in a perfect "smother" of a sauce, it comes to the table in real Sunday-best style. And condensed cream soups stand way out in front as sauces to enhance the flavor of chicken. Could be cream of chicken soup dotted with crunchy chopped almonds. Or mushroom soup-sauce, made extra mellow with cheese. Good to gaze upon and to eat on a lovely, lazy Sunday.

Chicken in Almond Sauce
8 packages (1-pound size) frozen chicken thighs, breasts, drumsticks or wings
1 can (1 1/2 cups) condensed cream of chicken soup
1/4 cup finely chopped blanched almonds

Thaw chicken as directed on package. Arrange pieces in a shallow baking pan. Pour soup over chicken; sprinkle almonds on top. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) about 1 hour, or until chicken is tender. 6 to 8 servings.

Mushroom-Cheese Baked Chicken

2 packages (1-pound size) frozen chicken thighs, breasts, drumsticks or wings
1/2 pound small white onion
1 can (1 1/2 cups) condensed cream of mushroom soup
1/2 cup shredded process cheese

Thaw chicken as directed on package. Arrange pieces in a shallow baking pan. Peel onions; place around chicken. Combine soup and cheese; pour over chicken and onions. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) about 1 hour, or until chicken is tender. 6 to 8 servings.

FOOD NEWS' FILLERS

Fruit Pies are Party-Minded: Individual frozen cherry pies take on party airs when topped with crunchy almonds. Sprinkle the chopped blanched almonds, coated with melted butter, on top of frozen pies. Bake as directed on the package. Each pie is a generous 5-ounce serving.

Frozen peach pies favor a topping of cinnamon, sugar and grated lemon rind, blended together in equal portions. Bake as usual. Both cherry and peach go for a dollop of sour cream served on the side.

Ike Contacted By Airline

WASHINGTON (UP)—House investigators have disclosed that GOP campaign strategist Murray M. Chotiner sought to interest President Eisenhower in behalf of an airline client in 1954.

Chairman Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) of the House Judiciary Anti-Trust subcommittee inserted in subcommittee records Wednesday a copy of a letter dated Jan. 28, 1954, signed by Chotiner and addressed to Mr. Eisenhower. Chotiner was Vice President Richard M. Nixon's 1952 campaign manager.

Chotiner's letter said North American Airlines was one of his clients. He charged that the Civil Aeronautics Board was "carrying out a program designed to put independent airlines out of business, and particularly the largest, North American."

He said he was "convinced that only intervention by you will remedy the present high-handed and arbitrary action of the CAB."

There was no indication in the correspondence inserted in the record by Celler that the White House interceded. Committee staff members also said they knew of no action taken by the White House.

Chotiner previously testified before the Senate investigating subcommittee that he talked with White House aides about the case. But this is the first time it was disclosed that he had written directly to Mr. Eisenhower.

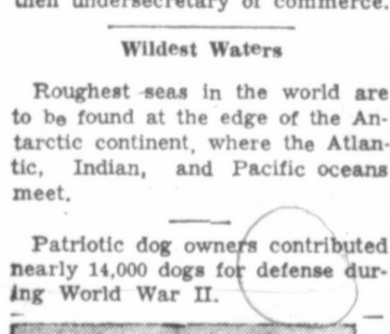

Mr. Eisenhower has said his aides were not guilty of any wrong-doing.

Celler's material included a copy of a memorandum from Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams, dated Feb. 15, 1954, referring to the Chotiner letter to Robert Murray, then undersecretary of commerce.

Capitol Hill Adlai's Win In California Cited Roundup

WASHINGTON (UP)—House Republican and Democratic leaders rallied their forces today to fight for restoration of at least $800 million to the administration's battered foreign aid bill.

They called the House into early session. They hoped to complete voting by midnight.

Chairman James R. Richards of the House Foreign Affairs Committee stood firm on the cuts. He vowed to fight down the line for the $1.1 billion his committee slashed from President Eisenhower's $4.9 billion bill.

He faced the combined forces of the administration and the Democratic majority leadership. But the odds appeared to favor him.

He said he would insist on a roll call vote on any move to restore money to the bill. That in an election year could mean victory for his side.

Other congressional news:

Power: An inter-party squabble shaped up over public versus private power. The Democratic majority of the House Government Operations Committee planned to release a controversial report criticizing the Eisenhower administration for allegedly favoring private utilities. Republican members of the committee planned to release a dissenting report.

Farm: Rep. W. R. Poage (D-Tex.) insisted the new farm law provides for soil bank payments to farmers who lost all or part of their 1956 crops to drought, floods or other disasters. Agriculture Department officials have said no soil bank payments would be made for crop reduction suffered from drought, flood or insects.

Social Security: The Senate postponed until Monday a fight over the Social Security bill. The dispute is over lowering the benefit age for women and disabled workers and boosting Social Security payroll taxes.

Money: The Senate passed two appropriations bills to run the President's office, the White House and 17 independent agencies during fiscal 1957. The bills total more than $5.9 billion. The measures now go to a House-Senate conference committee.

Postal: The House Rules Committee approved the administration's postal rate increase bill for House consideration but there is strong doubt that it will get to the House floor for a vote.

Lowen: The Senate confirmed the nomination of Charles J. Lowen Jr. as head of the Civil Aeronautics Administration. Sen. Thomas A. Wofford (D-SC) shouted a loud "No" in the voice vote. He opposes Lowen's racial integration policies.

Nosy Name

The star-nosed mole of northwestern North America gets its name from a fringed disk on its nose tip, which helps the animal to locate worms and insects.

Hibernating Bird

Only bird known to hibernate is the poorwill, a southwestern cousin of the whippoorwill. One was found sleeping in a cave two consecutive winters.

Outstanding Migrator

The golden plover is one of the most outstanding of all migrating birds. It nests on the Alaskan tundra in summertime, makes a non-stop flight of 2,400 miles to Hawaii at the approach of cold weather, and returns to Alaska in the late spring.

Mexico City was the first Latin American city to operate a television station.

big job now is to erase Democratic doubts about his chances of defeating President Eisenhower next November.

Stevenson's supporters cited his California triumph today as a conclusive answer to the he-can't-win argument raised against him by Democratic opponents.

As a result of Tuesday's California primary, Stevenson took a commanding lead over other contenders for the Democratic presidential primary. Democrats generally appeared to agree that his

NEW TWIST IN ART—A very real Parisian femme puzzles over a very abstract statue of a nude in Paris, France. The statue, which could pass as "Miss Pretzel of 1956," is one of the exhibits at the 40th annual Decorative Artists' show.

Kefauver said he was still in the race, most Democrats wrote him off as a major contender for the nomination.

Stevenson polled about 62 per cent of the vote in California's Democratic primary, compared with Kefauver's 38 per cent.

Gov. Averell Harriman and Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri were emerging as the actual or potential rallying points for anti-Stevenson Democrats. Supporters of both can be expected to question Stevenson's vote - pulling power for a return match against Mr. Eisenhower.

"California and Stevenson's previous string of primary victories should break through this he-can't-win type of argument," Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.), an early Stevenson backer, said.

He said Stevenson had fought against "voter apathy" and still amassed a series of victories over Kefauver, "the man recognized as the outstanding personal campaigner of our time."

Much Strength Seen

Monroney said he knew of no candidate, except an incumbent president, who would go to a national convention with as much strength as is now indicated for Stevenson. The Democratic convention opens at Chicago Aug. 13.

Another Stevenson supporter, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), said the California primary "demonstrated conclusively that Stevenson has voter appeal." He described California as a cosmopolitan state and a good cross-section of the country as a whole.

"The cement to hold any anti-Stevenson coalition together has been pretty well watered down by the outpouring of votes in California," Humphrey said.

Vivian Blaine To Give Up Glamour For Drab Stage

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Vivian Blaine, just as all 'sexy' beauties sooner or later, is giving up her glamour to go drab and dramatic on the New York stage.
 Vivian is temporarily bidding farewell to Hollywood and will replace Shelley Winters as a dope addict's wife in Broadway's popular "A Hatful of Rain."
 Such a move has become standard in a glamour doll's career. Betty Grable is one of few song-and-dance stars who's stayed in her own yard. The others, from Marilyn Monroe to Terry Moore, seem to act like Marlon Brando. Now Vivian, the wonderful Adelaide of "Guys and Dolls," is turning her back on such brassy poses. She's even enrolling in that school for the torn T-shirt-type of acting, the Actors' Studio in New York.

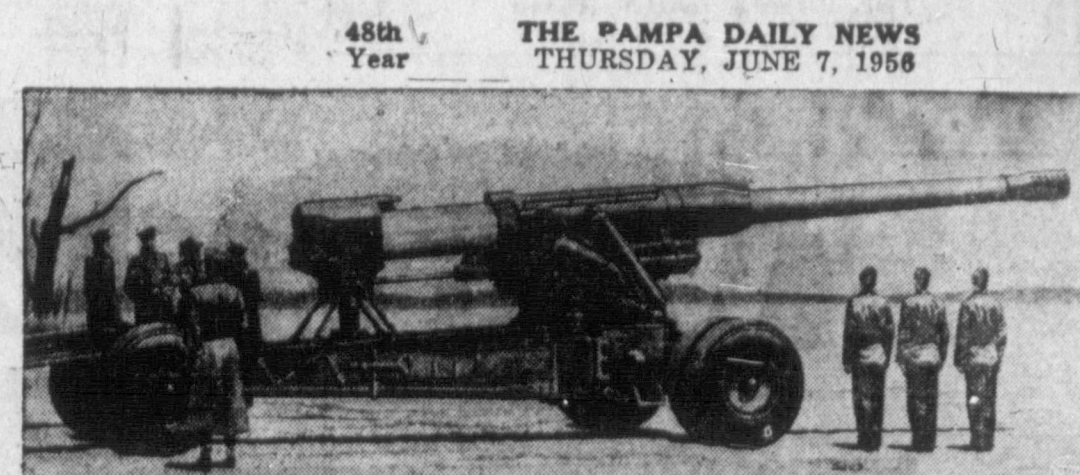

"Everybody sees me only as Adelaide," sighed Vivian.
 "Now it's terribly important for me to get away from the Adelaide type and do a complete departure. Normally I wouldn't be interested in replacing someone in a Broadway show but it was a chance to get away from that type."
 "I know I can do something else. I have to show other people I can."
 With that in mind, Vivian insisted she be allowed to take the play on tour to Los Angeles for the benefit of movie producers in the audience. They might not recognize Vivian as the weary, pregnant wife.

 "I'll wear a minimum of make-up, just enough so audiences will see I have a face," she said. "My hair will be pulled to the back of my head with wisps hanging down."

Some local observers raised an eyebrow upon hearing she had landed the plum role in the play. But she explained the producers wanted her for the role because "they saw certain things in my portrayal of Adelaide that fitted this part, and they also had seen me do dramatic things on television."
 Before leaving Hollywood Vivian completed a co-starring movie with Red Skelton at RKO, "Public Pigeon No. 1." As Vivian was wearing a couple of spangles for her scenes and crooning a ditty called "Pardon me, I gotta Go Mambo," I inquired if this was another Adelaide-type role.

 "Yes, to the average person it will look like another Adelaide," admitted the blonde. "She is a singer in a little New York night-club."
 "But," she added brightly, "this character is different. She really has, uh, more—depth. She is a little bit softer."
 Vivian hopes "Public Pigeon" will be her farewell to jazzy blondes. But she has no desire to "live down" her Adelaide role.
 "I want people to remember Adelaide, but I want them to know I can do something else," she said. "It got so people would come up to me on the street and demand that I 'say something in Brooklynese'."

Murphy Has Double Role
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—War hero Audie Murphy found he was not only star of a film being shot in Arizona but also an instructor in military science for 42 actresses. Murphy taught his charges proper gun handling techniques for scenes in which they help fight off an Indian attack. His only bad moments came when the girls accidentally pointed their guns at him while practicing handling the weapons.
Wildlife Danger Stressed
LOS ANGELES (UP)—Residents of Los Angeles County were reminded today that despite the modern age's dangerous forms of wildlife still inhabit the area. Agriculture Commissioner Harold J. Ryan said extra hunters and trappers are needed to track down bobcats and coyotes which prey on county livestock.

MOBILE ATOMIC CANNON—MADE IN RUSSIA—New weapons said by U.S. Army sources to have been developed by the Soviet Union include this 203-mm. gun, made for the express purpose of firing nuclear shells at far-distant targets. The reports, carried in True magazine, describe the cannon as being light for its size and easily shifted from one point to another—in sharp contrast to the bulky U.S. 280-mm. gun.

IT'S THE LAW IN TEXAS

You don't have to be a lawyer in order to form an opinion on a legal subject. However, it is bad business for a man to pass such an opinion on to others to guide their actions. He may cause them to suffer substantial losses.

Because of the vast intricacies of the law, a simple set of facts often gives rise to difficult legal problems. In spite of this, there are many persons who persist in passing out legal advice on all problems, pounding the table, quoting rules, and loudly expounding opinions. Beware of those persons, because their free opinions are usually worth what they cost, and often can be the unintended cause of harm to those who rely on them.

For example, George Jones owned a small drug store. He agreed to sell the store to Harry White at a time when he still owed $1,000 to various creditors for merchandise he had bought for the store. George and Harry were in the back room one night discussing who would pay these debts. George suggested that they talk to a lawyer.

Just then Wilbur Knowall came into the room, and heard the discussion. He assured them that there was no necessity to see a lawyer. He told George to keep his debts, "to avoid complications." As to telling George's creditors of the sale, Wilbur said that was unnecessary because George was still liable to pay them. George and Harry decided to follow Wilbur's advice.

Several weeks later, after Harry had taken over the store, a representative of one of George's creditors came in and demanded that Harry pay the debt that George had incurred. Harry refused, but went to see a lawyer to make certain. Harry was surprised to learn that he had failed to comply with a Texas Statute in buying the store without giving notice of the sale to George's creditors. He further learned that the sale was void as to them, and that he was liable for George's debts.

This is a common place example of the trouble you can get into when toying with the law. Experienced lawyers often must spend many hours researching a problem before advising their clients as to the best course of action to follow. It is therefore hazardous to rely on the legal advice of well-meaning friends. As in the case of Harry White, that is often the beginning of many headaches.

(This column, based on Texas law, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts, because the facts may change the application of the law.)

TROUBLE - CHUTING—Chaplain William G. DeVanny (arrow) and 1st Lt. Robert Pate of the 325th Airborne Infantry Fgt. of Fort Bragg, N.C., became entangled after jumping simultaneously from opposite sides of a C-119 Flying Boxcar at Fort Gordon, Ga. Neither man was injured. Chances for such a mishap were quoted as one in 2,000 jumps.

"FOOD SENSE—NOT NONSENSE" is the name of an American Institute of Baking. It contains information we all article put out by the consumer service department of the need to know, especially we housewives. It's on riboflavin, why it is needed and where to find it.

RIBOFLAVIN, the vitamin, is the young in heart at every age. From birth, it is essential for a child's growth and as an adult, adequate riboflavin helps make for a longer prime of life.

Much evidence exists to show that the amount of riboflavin in one's food has a large influence upon the level of health and efficiency of an individual living under average conditions. It is difficult to point out danger signs when the deficiency is not a complete lack of the riboflavin, but only a moderate one. As an example, children may grow and develop slowly which could be attributed to heredity. However, science has shown that in some cases there is a direct relationship between growth and riboflavin in the diet.

Although this B vitamin is fairly well distributed in foods and extreme deficiencies may not be too frequent, scientists regard it as an important factor in health and in building already-normal health to higher levels.

The picture offered when the diet of experimental animals supplies an amount of riboflavin above a bare minimum, may have a lesson for those who are young in heart. Here, results tend towards better development, higher adult vitality, greater freedom from disease at all ages, somewhat longer life and what is more significant—a longer prime of life.

With growing knowledge of the importance of riboflavin in maintaining healthy tissues and general health, it is recognized that many people need a better choice of food to assure an adequate amount of this B vitamin.

Where then are they to find it? Riboflavin is formed in growing plants, so therefore, leafy vegetables and grains are sources. So are meats, milk products and eggs good sources. One of the best, is enriched bread, riboflavin being one of the enriching nutrients. Six slices of enriched bread provide about 15 per cent of one's daily allowance of this vitamin, an amount slightly higher than that provided by an equal amount of whole wheat bread. Bread has another advantage—its crust is a barrier to light which can destroy this vitamin.

COOKING quickies: Here's the perfect brunch time treat. For each serving, place 2 pork sausage links side-by-side and wrap with a slice of "baked" ham. Fasten rolls with wooden picks. Place each roll on a pineapple ring on a rack in an open roasting pan. Cook in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., 30 to 40 minutes or until ham is lightly browned and sausage is cooked. Make each meat pie distinctive. This is an ideal dish in which to use herbs. Marjoram, savory, thyme and rosemary are all good. Any herb should be used sparingly, however. An easy way to season is to add the herbs to the meat pie gravy.

When the teen-age crowd stops by your home for a bit to eat, here are open-face broiler sandwiches you'll have ready in less than 25 minutes—bacon bits with peanut butter; bacon slices with tomato slices; bacon with pimiento cheese and bacon with cream cheese.

Here's a tip on easy measuring of lard: A 1-pound brick equals 2 cups. Halve it for 1 cup. One-fourth pound equals 1/2 cup.

Cubes of meat, such as those used for stews, are delicious when braised. Any kind of meat may be used—beef, pork, lamb or veal. The important difference in cooking meat for stews and for braised dishes, of course, is in the amount of liquid used. Only a small amount is needed when braising meat, enough liquid to cover the meat is needed for stews.

Order Of The Eastern Star Installs New Officers In Formal Ceremony

The Pampa chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star held an open formal installation in the Masonic Hall.

Installed were Mrs. Ina Reading, worthy matron; George Clark, worthy patron; Mrs. Mary Musgrave, associate matron; R. C. Grider, associate patron; Mrs. Crystal Hankhouse, secretary; Mrs. Ruth Sewell, treasurer; Mrs. Edith McCabe, associate conductor; Mrs. Marie Bolander, chaplain; Mrs. Josephine Williams, organist; Mrs. Esther Mills, Adah; Mrs. Leona Marsh, Ruth; Mrs. Penotha Timms, Esther; Mrs. Mildred Grider, Martha; Mrs. Janice Johnson, Electa; Mrs. Estelle Huntington, warder; and Darrell Bolander, sentinel.

Conducting the ceremony were Mrs. Nell Rankin, installing officer; Mrs. Juanita Suttle, installing marshal; Mrs. Maude Andia, installing chaplain; Mrs. Blanche Morrison, installing secretary; and Mrs. Jessie Hoffman, installing organist.

Assisting with the service was Miss Nancy Thomas, niece of the matron.

Remember that, while the pretty girl finds that popularity comes easy, the plain girl who has to make something of herself often makes more lasting, worth-while friendships.

Also, the prettiest girls don't always get the best husbands. Look around you at the plain women who have fine husbands and happy marriages and remember that they were once plain girls who didn't let a lack of beauty discourage them from making the most of their other assets.

worthy matron, who carried a silver bar, centered with a star and flanked by blue tapers, to the altar. The Bible was placed on the altar by Mrs. Nell Clark, and candlelighters were Miss Deanna Thomas and Tommy Thomas, niece and nephew of the worthy matron.

Special music was provided by Coy Palmer and Miss Deanna Thomas. The worthy matron's chosen colors of blue and silver were carried out in the decorations.

Following the ceremony, refreshments were served. The serving table was covered with a white organdy cloth over blue, centered with an arrangement of blue daisies flanked by blue tapers. Presiding at the table were Mrs. Mary Musgrave and Mrs. Mary Hatcher.

Among the special guests were G. K. Reading, husband of the worthy matron; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Herrell, mother of the worthy matron; Mr. Herrell; Mrs. Dean Thomas, sister of the worthy matron; Misses Deanna and Nancy Thomas; Tommy Thomas; Mrs. Nell Clark, wife of the worthy patron; and Mrs. Annie Clark, mother of the worthy patron.

Perryton Forms Newcomers Club

PERRYTON—(Special)—An organizational meeting of the newly formed Perryton Newcomers Club was held in the home of Mrs. Clifford Beck, president of the Sorosis Club, which has been instrumental in the formation for the newcomers' group.

Officers elected were Mrs. Bob Larabee, president; Mrs. Jerry Ogden, vice-president; Mrs. Fred Adcock, secretary; and Mrs. T. D. Nichols, publicity chairman.

It was decided to meet the first and third Thursday of each month in the Harvest Room of the hotel. Membership is open to all newcomers, it was explained. Mrs. Clay Webb and Mrs. T. D. Nichols were chosen hostesses for the next meeting.

Attending were Meses Jewell McDowell, Clay Webb, Troy Jones, Troy Rogers, Thomas Ridd Low, Cleo Manning, Dan Sartain, Vincent Hanna, Earle Fulton, T. E. Osborne, J. R. Davison, Jerry Ogden, Bob Larabee and Thomas D. Nichols.

Miss Dunlap Gives Talk On Kitchens

The Worthwhile Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Roy Tinsley, southeast of city, with Mrs. Tinsley in charge. During the business session, Miss Helen Dunlap, county HD agent, reported on the Council meeting.

The program on planning a kitchen was given by Miss Dunlap. She stressed a kitchen should have good lighting, be attractive, be clean and meet the needs of the family.

Next meeting will be at 2:30 p.m. June 15, in the home of Mrs. O. G. Smith, 1004 W. Oklahoma. During the social period, refreshments of salad, cookies and coffee were served. Attending were Meses N. B. Cude, J. C. Payne, W. D. Benton, N. L. Welton, O. A. Wagner, P. G. Turner, Rex McKay, Roy Tinsley, J. R. Clark, J. L. Carlton, and Miss Helen Dunlap.

Manners Make Friends

If some of a bride's friends want to give showers for her, she should set a limit to the number to be given. A gracious way to do it would be to say to some of the friends, "I don't want my friends having to buy so many shower presents, so would you mind having some other kind of party?" Even friends begin to get tired of gift giving after they have bought shower presents for a bride.

SOCIAL CALENDAR THURSDAY

- 7:30—Halliburton Ladies Club in Pine Room of Pampa Hotel.
- 8:00—Rebekah Lodge in IOOF Hall, 210 W. Brown.
- FRIDAY
- 1:30—Sunshine HD Club with Mrs. J. C. Blasingame, 413 N. Nelson.
- 2:30—Worthwhile HD Club with Mrs. J. L. Carlton, southeast of city.
- 8:00—Order of the Eastern Star in Masonic Hall.

Mrs. H. J. Dulaney Feted With Shower

A pink-and-blue shower honoring Mrs. Harry J. Dulaney was given in the home of Mrs. Rod Smithers, 1232 E. Frederic, with Meses Kirby Walters, A. P. Coombes and Billy Neal as co-hostesses.

The honoree was presented a corsage of pink carnations. The serving table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink carnations in a white bowl flanked by three miniature cherubs.

Refreshments of cake and coffee were served. The white cake, trimmed in pink, was in the shape of a baby bottle.

Attending were Meses Norman Dulaney, K. Coombes, Roy Guthrie, A. E. Boydston, Paul Sandford, Red Horton, W. H. Walters, Bill Tidwell, Thelma Hopkins, Jack Osborne, Ralph Day, Dub Adkins, Jack Sloan, Aubrey Walters, Bill Stockstill, Gerald Walters, and Meses Diane Tidwell and Mary Alice Coombes.

Sending gifts were Meses L. O. Tucker, Billy Neal, Rip Barrett, George King, and Miss Helen Dunlap.

Be sure that the words you teach Baby and the ones he hears frequently are ones you won't mind hearing on the bus. It's a cruel joke to teach him a French swear word and the joke is on the teacher when Baby uses it in public.

Babies and small children share the inability to anticipate their toiling needs. By the time Baby gets around to indicating to you that he needs a bathroom, you'd better be able to get to one quickly.

It's hard to see how Baby could be comfortable, crowded into his crib with Doggie, Kitten, Horrie, Monkey and a set of blocks. But he is quite relaxed and cozy in the middle of the menagerie. In fact, he won't sleep without them.

If you have an unnecessary door or window which robs you of otherwise useful wall space, try hanging a drapery over the whole wall. It will add softness, and if it's the same color as your walls, it will make the room look larger.

DELICIOUS FLAVOR of ripe strawberries is frozen into this delightful dessert. And recipe uses powdered milk.

COOK'S NOOK

Fresh Strawberry Freeze Is Gay, Delightful Dessert

By GAYNOR MADDOX

NEA Food and Markets Editor

Here's a dessert we tried the other day, using premeasured packaged instant nonfat milk. The easy-to-use milk provides essential milk nutrients and costs as little as seven cents a quart.

STRAWBERRY FREEZE (Makes 4-6 servings)

One - half cup water, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup sliced, fresh strawberries, 1/2 cup water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1/2 cup instant nonfat dry milk powder.

Set refrigerator control at coldest point. Combine 1/2 cup water and 3 tablespoons sugar. Boil until sugar is thoroughly dissolved. Cool. Combine water and lemon juice in deep 1-quart bowl. Sprinkle instant nonfat dry milk powder over surface of water. Beat with a rotary beater or electric mixer until stiff, about 8-10 minutes. Fold in strawberries. Pour into 1-quart refrigerator. Freeze until firm, about 4 hours. Note: If one package (10-ounce) frozen sliced berries, defrosted, is used, fold into berries.

whipped instant nonfat dry milk, omitting sugar.

SPANISH CREAM (Makes 8 servings)
One envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, separated; 3 cups liquefied instant nonfat dry milk, 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract. Combine gelatin, 1/4 cup of the sugar and salt in top of double boiler. Blend in egg yolks; slowly stir in liquefied instant nonfat dry milk. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture coats a spoon. Chill mixture over ice water, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Stir in vanilla. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; gradually add remaining sugar. Beat until stiff. Fold into nonfat dry milk mixture. Spoon into 8 sherbet glasses. Chill until set, about 4 hours. To make a two-layer Spanish Cream: Do not chill nonfat dry milk mixture. Add vanilla and fold in beaten egg whites. While nonfat dry milk mixture is still hot, Garnish with fresh strawberries, defrosted, is used, fold into berries.

Set refrigerator control at coldest point. Combine 1/2 cup water and 3 tablespoons sugar. Boil until sugar is thoroughly dissolved. Cool. Combine water and lemon juice in deep 1-quart bowl. Sprinkle instant nonfat dry milk powder over surface of water. Beat with a rotary beater or electric mixer until stiff, about 8-10 minutes. Fold in strawberries. Pour into 1-quart refrigerator. Freeze until firm, about 4 hours. Note: If one package (10-ounce) frozen sliced berries, defrosted, is used, fold into berries.

WEAVING TO AND FRO—An old soldier, 80-year-old Fred Simons, works at an embroidery frame following the opening of the "History in Embroidery" exhibition at the Royal Hospital in Chelsea, England. Simons, who served for 27 years as a gunner in the Royal Artillery, has already completed a kneeler, or hassock, in commemoration of Alexander Reid, surgeon at Chelsea Hospital from 1711 to 1743.

"CURTAIN" REMOVER—With Austria officially neutral by virtue of its peace treaty, it demanded that Communist Hungary remove the "iron curtain" between the two countries. Above, a Hungarian soldier, working in a mine-cleared area, cuts away the barbed wire fence that separated Nickelsdorf, Austria, and Hegyeshelem, Hungary.

PRACTICING FOR THE REAL THING—Two Egyptian soldiers run through live-ammunition exercises during Egyptian Premier Gamal-Abdel-Nasser's three-day tour of Egyptian army positions on the eastern front bordering Israel. As his troops engaged in the grim practice, Nasser asserted his army is the strongest fighting force in the Middle East.

REMOTE-CONTROL—Model Ruth Feldheim gets a remote-control make-up job in a demonstration of "Yes-Man," General Electric's new dexterous master-slave. "Yes-Man" consists of twin electro-hydraulic machines, each with two arms, elbows, wrists, hands and fingers.

World's longest railway is the trans-Siberian railway.

Executive Problem In Danger

DALLAS (UP)—The shortage of potential executives is the greatest problem facing the management of banks today, Theron D. Elder, vice president of the First National Bank and Trust Co. of Oklahoma City, told the 54th annual convention of the American Bankers Association. "This problem is created by the comparatively small number of young men who are entering the banking business, the apparent lack of confidence of management in the executive ability of female employees and the lack of executive training programs," Elder told the bank management and operations conference of the convention. He said that the solution to this lack of executives was for the banks to "train them ourselves." "It is imperative that every bank provide a planned comprehensive executive training program not only for its potential but also its present management team from the top down," Elder said.

youth, beauty,
Chevrolet, action!

Want to take the wheel of one of America's few great road cars?
 Want to send pleasant little tingles up and down your spine? Want to drive the new car that politely murmurs "Move over, big boy" to the high-priced jobs? Then hustle on in and try out a new Chevrolet V8!

Now showing—the happiest "double feature" of the year! One part is bold, new Motoramic styling. The other is record-breaking V8 action.

Hollywood has a heap of words that describe it: colossal, stupendous, magnificent. We'll settle for just the name—Chevrolet.

Because once you've driven this sweet-handling showboat, the adjectives will take care of themselves. Once you've sampled Chevy's hair-trigger reflexes and nailed-down stability, you'll see why it's one of the few great road cars built today!

Horsepower that ranges up to 225 makes hills flatter and saves precious seconds for safer passing. And this new Chevrolet clings to curves like part of the pavement.

Stop in sometime soon and highway-test this record-breaking new Chevrolet.

Patterson Set For Fight With Hurricane Jackson

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE (Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.) By OSCAR FRALEY United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—A tornado tangles with a hurricane Friday night and it figures as a breeze for Floyd Patterson to step front and center as the next heavy-weight champion of the world. In what amounts to a semi-final runoff for the crown abdicated by Rocky Marciano, Patterson is 12-5 Jackson into a gentle zephyr. The wonder is that the price isn't higher. Because in this corner it doesn't look to go beyond four rounds. Ordinarily this wouldn't even rate as a good semi-final bout, despite the attempt to build the fracas into another "fight of the century." The only century in which it would look good would be in the 19th, and that's with apologies to Jim Figg. Jackson is not a fighter of much more than ordinary talent. He is wonderfully conditioned perpetual motion machine who will be lucky to get out of this one white retaining his wheels. The odds are that he'll be a still life on canvas after sampling a few of the Patterson punches. The tub thumpers, naturally hoping to get the promoting IBC "off the nut," have been trying desperately to make a fight out of it. The latest bombast is that a common opponent named Jimmy Slade has picked Jackson to win. Slade, it should be mentioned, lost twice to Patterson and won two out of three from Jackson. There undoubtedly, you have a fanciful bit of thinking in reserve. Without trying to delve into Slade's mental gymnastics, let be said that he insists: "It will be all Patterson for the first six rounds and then Jackson will run all over him." Trying, no doubt, to get out of the ring all in one piece. But this is not a footrace. This is a bit of fistcuffs designed to provide a September foe who will engage ancient Archie Moore for the title. There are others who contend that Jackson has much going for him with an 11 to 15 pound weight advantage and a nine-inch advantage in reach. Taking these points of interest one by one, it means that the Hurricane should make a much larger dent in the canvas and that, given a meat cleaver in each of those long arms, it is dubious whether he could take out young Master Floyd. For Jackson has flattened only 13 of his 32 opponents, some of those, or possibly most of those, via the technical knockout route. Patterson, on the other glove, has drawn the curtains on 21 of his 29 opponents. For the benefit of the figure Philberts that's a batting average of .700 in he lullaby section.

Port Arthur, Abilene In State Baseball Semi-Finals

AUSTIN (UP)—Port Arthur meets Dallas Highland Park and Fort Worth Paschal plays Abilene in tonight's semi-finals of the eighth annual Texas schoolboy baseball tournament. The highlight of the tourney so far has been the brilliant no-hitter hurled by Highland Park's Mike Collins. Collins' no-hit victory over Amarillo Wednesday night was only the third such performance in the history of the tournament. Collins also batted in a run with a triple. A second Highland Park run scored on an error, making the final score 2-0. Later Wednesday night Port Arthur came from behind to down Austin McCallum 2-1. Port Arthur scored both its runs in the top of the sixth. Major Rising smashed a double in that frame to score Albert Urbina and John Massey. McCallum's run came in the third on a squeeze play. Earlier in the afternoon Fort Worth Paschal also was forced into overtime. Paschal scored a run in the top of the eighth to beat Lufkin 5-4. The defeat was the first of the year for Lufkin pitcher John Temple, a 200-pound rightlander who went into the tournament with an 11-0 record. Outfielder Ronnie Miller, who belted two singles, led Paschal's hitting attack. The Port Arthur-Highland Park game is scheduled for 9 p.m., while Paschal plays Abilene at 7 p.m. tonight.

Manager, Umpire Fined On Protest

ABILENE, Tex. (UP)—Beaumont Manager Ford Garrison and Big State League Umpire Frank Walsh had to pay fines today for a rhubarb at Lubbock Sunday when they spit on each other. Big State League President Hal Sayles fined Garrison $75 and Walsh $25 Wednesday. The rhubarb started after a close play at home plate in the Beaumont-Lubbock game. Garrison directed abusive language at the umpire and was ordered to leave the field. A heated argument ensued and both the manager and umpire admitted spitting on the other. The umpire's report said Garrison was the first to expectorate.

San Angelo Wallop Oilers To Even Game Series, 17-6

SAN ANGELO — Nine home runs, six by the San Angelo Oilers, scattered out of Guinn Field, Wednesday night, as the Oilers evened the three-game series against the Pampa Oilers at one game each with a 17-6 win. Jeff Williams and Gene Hauradou each had two round-trippers for the winners, while Moe Santomaro and manager Art Bowland blasted out one each. For the Oilers, manager Allen Cross and Johnny Bruza had solo circuit clouts while Bob Flores kicked in with a three-run blast. A total of 26 hits were racked up by the two teams, 14 going for extra bases.

Mantle Shift By Boudreau Is Working

By FRED DOWN

NEW YORK (UP)—Lou Boudreau, elated at the initial success of his "Mickey Mantle shift," disclosed today he's only begun to scheme up ways of harassing the New York Yankees' home run sensation.

"I'm going to learn more about him," the Kansas City Athletics manager said. "I've got to know how many times he hits the first pitch...how often he goes after the changeup...everything I can...and then maybe we can work on him with continued success."

Boudreau was "pleased but not satisfied" with the fact that Mantle had gone 4-for-0 in two games against the new version of the "Ted Williams shift" which Lou created 10 years ago to combat the great Boston Red Sox slugger. Mantle has struck out three times and gone out on a 420-foot fly in his efforts against the shift.

Hitting .625 Against A's
 "That fellow was hitting .625 against us for the season," Boudreau explained after Wednesday's 10-5 loss to the Yankees. "I'm not going to just stand around and let anybody—Ted Williams or Mickey Mantle—beat my brains out and not try to do some thing about it."

"We'll shift a different way on every pitch if it'll help to stop him," Boudreau summed up. "It's just a question of learning everything possible about him as a hitter."

"If he can hunt a high inside fast ball we're conceding him a bunt single," Boudreau said. "But who says he can hunt that pitch?"

Patterson, Jackson Bout To Determine Moore Foe

NEW YORK (UP)—Young Floyd Patterson, a declining favorite at 2-1, broke camp today and came to New York for his 12-round heavyweight elimination fight with freakish Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

With $22,000 already in the till, box office men at the Garden predicted a crowd of 12,000 and a gate of $55,000 for the nationally televised and broadcast bout, which will not be blacked out anywhere. The TV-radio privileges bring an additional $75,000.

Bookies reported unusually heavy betting and increasing support for underdog Jackson, who will remain in camp at Summit, N.J., until he motors into New York Friday for the noon weigh-in at the Garden.

During the past week, 21-year-old Patterson of St. Albans, N.Y., has been favored at odds ranging as high as 2-1 because of his youth, speed, skill and punch. But increased support for the 24-year-old Hurricane from Far Rockaway, N.Y., indicates betting may be close at ring time 10 p.m. EDT Friday. The wagering apparently reflects greater appreciation of Patterson. Bookies are offering 7-5 that Patterson does not knock out Tommy, and 11-8 that Jackson doesn't stop Floyd.

Meanwhile, Chairman Julius Helfand of the N.Y. Boxing Commission said he would welcome a September fight between Friday night's winner and Archie Moore, who is the number one heavyweight contender as well as the world light heavyweight champion.

HAMMERING IT HOME—Bill McWilliams whirled and unleashed the hammer. The Bowdoin Strong Boy tied Cornell's Albert Hall with 198 feet, 2 1/2 inches for a new ICA meet record at Downing Stadium, Randall's Island, New York. Boston U.'s Cliff Blair also broke old mark.

Boyd May Get Chance For Middleweight Title Bout

CHICAGO (UP)—Visions of a title chance danced through the head of middleweight Bobby Boyd today like Christmas plums, but both Gene Fullmer and Tiger Jones rated as potential thorns in the pie before the Chicago battler gets a chance at Sugar Ray Robinson.

Boyd, 32, punched out his ninth straight victory Wednesday night,

Braves And Giants Losing Out In National Flag Race

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Staff Writer

It's beginning to look more and more like "the Giants is dead," and if the Braves don't get a move on they may wake up to find themselves in a baseball grave: right alongside.

The Giants, now 3 1/2 games off the pace, dropped their ninth game in 12 starts by bowing to the Cardinals, 5-2, in 11 innings Wednesday night while the Braves, who have tumbled from first place to fourth, suffered their sixth loss in seven starts by losing to the Dodgers, 5-2.

Nothing the Giants do these days seems to work out right. Wednesday night, for example, they had a 2-1 lead until the ninth when the Cards tied the score with two out when Stan Musial doubled and Ken Boyer singled him home.

Then in the 11th, Jackie Brandt doubled to score pinch-runner Chuck Harmon and earn reliever Ellis Kinder his second triumph.

Things are going almost as badly for the collapsing Braves. Hank Aaron put them ahead with a two-run homer in the first inning but Don Newcombe shut the door in Milwaukee's face the remainder of the way to wind up with a five-hitter and his eighth victory of the year.

Conley Suffers Loss
Gene Conley, the Braves' big pitching hop, was nipped for all of Brooklyn's nine hits, including a homer by Duke Snider, in the 7-13 innings he worked to absorb his second defeat as the Dodgers climbed into a virtual fourth-place tie with Milwaukee.

While the Giants and Braves are heading downward, the Pirates 2 1/2 game lead in the American

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UP)—Slammin' Sam Snead, a runaway winner the last two years, was favored today to score his fifth victory in the annual Palm Beach Round Robin Golf Tournament as he opened defense of his crown against a blue ribbon field of 15 rivals.

Pitted against the Slammin' in the 90-hole test were some of the nation's top money winners. But the man who worried him most was 49-year old Henry Cotton of England, three-time British Open king now on a spectacular comeback.

Cotton is taking dead aim on the U.S. Open title for the first time in 25 years. He shot one of the nation's best qualifying scores in the U.S. open trials on Monday and followed it up Wednesday League race by snapping a four-game losing streak at the expense of the Athletics, 10-5. The Yanks hammered loser Tommy Lasorda for three runs in the first inning and then put the game on ice with a five-run rally in the third. The Yankees collected 12 hits, including homers by Yogi Berra and Bill Skowron.

A two-run single by Sammy White in the eighth inning broke a 2-3-1 tie and led the Red Sox to a 5-4 triumph over the Tigers. Detroit starter Paul Foytack had a three-hitter until he blew up in the eighth. Tom Brewer registered his eighth victory.

Art Houtteman and Ray Napiek combined in a six-hit pitching effort that paid off in a 5-1 victory for Cleveland over Baltimore. Houtteman, who was credited with a sore shoulder in the sixth.

A six-run rally in the fifth inning helped the Senators to a 12-7 victory over the White Sox as Carlos Paula and rookie Whitely Herzog each homered for Washington.

One of Texas' Five Most Consistent Newspapers

We believe that one truth is always consistent with another truth. We endeavor to be consistent with truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Should we, at any time, be inconsistent with these truths, we would appreciate anyone pointing out to us how we are inconsistent with these moral guides.

Control By The Government Is Futile

Free enterprise and government controls are always at loggerheads.

Politicians are always fearful that some untoward event will rob them of their popularity. Consequently, they seek to guarantee that which cannot be guaranteed—plenty and happiness for all.

In their efforts to back up the guarantees, they pass laws which are supposed to provide for ample receipts in the way of money and goods to all. But, in the process of passing these laws, they instigate the very evils they fear.

While ample receipts might continue as a result of the free enterprise system, laws which command certain results from enterprise, irrespective of the variables of the free market tend to limit and curtail enterprise.

The result forces the economy to move in a vicious circle. Instead of the fruitful characteristics obtained under freedom, it tends to move back upon itself and must contend with overcoming the artificial obstacles government has placed in its way.

Instead of a straightaway, it becomes a revolving obstacle course. And even when the course is run successfully, the end of the race finds the entrepreneur at the point of beginning.

This endless merry-go-round of money has had a full play in Chile. The longest (2,600 miles) country in the world has had one of the longest and most unbroken records of expanding inflation in history.

It has lasted for 40 years, and has tended with the passing of time to gather express-train speed.

Since January of this year, however, the breakneck speed around the controls circuit has been halted. Businessmen are beginning to look ahead on a straight track, despite the fears of the politicians.

The change came when President Ibanez, a ripe and mellowing 78, decided that his dictatorial practices have not brought the expected bonanzas.

The controls that have hampered Chileans were in three main segments: high taxes (up to 85 per cent of income); subsidies which supported farm prices, establishing a sinecure for some producers through the shackling of others; and the Chileans' own version of the guaranteed annual wage which caused an automatic pay increase for most workers every year. These three policies of the government geared the economy to a rising spiral that could only be accomplished by an increasing spiral of prices.

Chile has not gone overboard on freedom. The fears of its politicians could not be overcome to that extent. But moves have been made since the first of the year which have slammed the brakes on the roaring inflation, and are beginning to bring a real prosperity in place of a dislocated and jaded false sense of security.

Instead of holding taxes at their present levels, Ibanez asked for and got a law that lowered the taxes, especially on the U.S.-owned productive copper fields. The new law acts like a progressive income tax in reverse. As copper production rises, taxes are lowered. The more production accomplished, the lower the taxes will go to a declared limit of 50 per cent if production is doubled.

Consequently, copper producers especially are upping their output in a mad race to achieve this reduction. The harder they work, the more they will have. This is incentive with a sick reverse on the communist scheme and is having wonderful results.

Next, the government freed the Chilean peso so that it could seek its own true value in the open market. While for a long time it appeared that this would get out of hand, the peso sank to a place where its true value was obtained, and here it stays today as real money. As its decline stopped confidence was reborn.

The third move by Ibanez was to eliminate the escalator clause which permitted the automatic wage increase. He had to jail a number of labor bosses and communists to do it, but the law revision stuck.

These reforms are a long way from total freedom, but they are moves which herald a new prosperity and a new security for Chile. Ibanez is to be congratulated that he has had the courage in his old age to attempt to right the wrongs he committed in the hot and flaming passions of his youth.

THE NATION'S PRESS

PRINCIPLE AND PRACTICE

(The Wall Street Journal)

Not quite a year ago the auto union leaders were highly pleased at winning the principle of the guaranteed annual wage in the first of a series of contracts with the car companies. Now the principle is about to be translated into practice, and it doesn't look so good.

The guaranteed annual wage, of course, is nothing of the sort; it is simply supplementary unemployment compensation. In a typical contract the company undertakes to pay a laid-off worker the difference between state benefits and sixty to sixty-five percent of his normal take-home pay for a maximum period of twenty-six weeks. To enable the companies to accumulate funds, no worker laid off before the first of this month is eligible and actual payments do not begin until next week.

Even so, thanks to reduced output as a result of this year's slow auto sales, there will be no lack of applicants. They are due for disappointment. The funds so far built up are insufficient to pay anything approaching the amounts advertised, or to provide supplementary compensation for anything like twenty-six weeks. Indeed, if auto pay offs mount appreciably in coming months, all company payments may have to cease.

Also, it seems that administrative expenses, which come out of G.A.W. funds, will take a sizable bite. An impressive bureaucracy, complete with a plethora of forms, appears to be required to operate the plan. According to one official, "We're staring at the doggonest mess you ever saw and a mountain of paper work."

The G.A.W. defenders would refer to all this, perhaps with some justice, that it is a little early to finding fault with a plan not yet in actual operation. These difficulties, it could be argued, are inevitable birth-pangs, greatly aggravated by a production decline whose proportions neither company nor union officials anticipated a year ago.

But that is just the point. Nobody can accurately anticipate the gyrations of the auto industry. It is dependent on the whim of the consumer, not on any fixed and predictable need. So a boom like last year's can taper off suddenly and unexpectedly—and just as unaccountably rebound. In that situation, attempts to "stabilize" income are bound to be extremely tricky.

Maybe the auto union's G.A.W. will eventually work more or less to everyone's satisfaction. But its unpromising start was to a large degree implicit in the scheme itself. In their zealous haste to wrap a dubious dogma from the manufacturers, the union leaders glossed over some rather prominent economic and administrative facts.

BETTER JOBS

Newspapers And Postal Rates

The Hearst Los Angeles Examiner has an editorial and a cartoon objecting to the Administration's desire to raise the income for the Post Office so they will not continue to lose around $½ billion a year.

Of course, the government should not be in the postal business. It is a nice example of how inefficient any government's attempt to render a service is, due to political interference. However, the government stays in the postal business, it should not make those who do not use the service pay the deficit.

The inefficiency of government operations was shown years ago when private enterprise was delivering letters for less than the government rate. To stop this efficient low cost competition, Congress passed a law making certain roads post roads. This law made it a crime for any person to carry First Class mail over these roads. Thus, Post Office had a complete monopoly in carrying First Class mail. It could not compete with private initiative. Yet even with a monopoly, it now is not able to pay its way by about $500,000,000 a year.

The Hearst editorial contends that it was not the purpose of the Post Office Department to make a profit, or even by self-supporting. Then it ends this plea for special privilege for a subsidy in this manner:

"But that it should make the return of a profit the main objective of the service is contrary to the underlying purpose of the whole enterprise, which was to increase and enhance the informational and instructive resources of the nation—a purpose that has been abundantly realized over the years, and with great enrichment of the people."

Remember, that is a newspaper patting itself on the back. A newspaper that professes to be against corruption, yet runs a union label on its newspaper and wants the government to distribute its newspapers and its magazines and make those who do not buy their product help pay for it.

It's hard to conceive how a newspaper or magazine that does not stand for a definite limited government can render a real service in helping promote goodwill as peace and prosperity when it is a party to seeking special privileges by way of the tax pistol.

If newspapers and magazines had rendered the service in helping enlighten the people as to the difference between right and wrong and that the government had no right to do things that each and every individual had no right to do, then we would not be in the mess we are today.

We would not be drafting soldiers who are not being trained. We would not have $10,000,000 government debt hanging over every worker in the United States when government guarantees are included. We would not have farm subsidies. We would not have protective tariffs. We would not have zoning, nor government schools, nor government libraries, nor government Post Offices, nor favoritism. Nor would we have $8 billion worth of farm products on which we are paying $1 million a day to store while it decays. We would not have a graduated income tax and inheritance tax. We would not have long periods of unemployment, and almost continuous war.

The newspapers and magazines, with few exceptions, have made no intelligent effort to get the people to understand that the above mentioned unethical and unjust and wicked conditions would not exist if the newspapers had performed the service that they claim entitles them to distribution of their product at less than cost.

Those newspapers that are yelling to keep the Post Office operating at a loss do not seem to realize that in the long run it is not even to their advantage to be so subsidized. They do not seem to know that the thief steals from himself. Their competitors are subsidized and they are all, in the long run, on the same footing.

The desire of the Administration to save this stupendous loss is one of the few facts that Eisenhower has advocated that is in harmony with the ideologies as set forth in the Declaration of Independence and the Ten Commandments.

Newspapers lose their influence in promoting good citizenship and good government when they fail to speak out against the Post Office carrying Second Class and Third Class and Fourth Class mail at a lower rate than letters. Charges should be in proportion to cost, not in proportion to political pressure due to the politicians' fear of the pressure put on by cowardly newspapers.

Dulles Principal Target Of The Democrats Now

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — With possible elimination of the "giveaway" issue from the Presidential campaign through appointment of a "liberal Republican" as Secretary of the Interior, John Foster Dulles has now become the principal target of the Democratic opposition on and off Capitol Hill. Foreign rather than domestic policies may dominate the 1956 election.

Intra-Cabinet differences involving the Secretary of State encourage the Democrats in singling him out for attack. He has become embroiled with numerous Eisenhower associates on such contrasting questions as disarmament, our attitude toward a "reforming Russia," the Arab-Israeli dispute, farm exports under a subsidized program, and proposed reduction of overseas airplane fares.

He irritates Republicans as well as Democrats. Harold E. Stassen and Ezra Taft Benson along with Adlai E. Stevenson and Senator Estes Kefauver. He steps on the toes of numerous special and powerful political interests, from the Zionist supporters in the cities to the cotton growers of the South.

Although Eisenhower generally supports his principal Cabinet officer in these disputes, the President himself manages to remain neutral and judicial attitude, apparently in the belief that time and tolerance and patience will solve these problems. But his stand leads to the Stevenson-Kefauver charge that he lacks firm and courageous leadership.

As the Cabinet's leading skeptic with regard to a Russian reformation, Dulles scoffs at Stassen's belief that Moscow's recent moves mean a sincere and affirmative change of heart. He still believes in building a strong military defense here and abroad, disapproving advisers who insist on devoting greater American aid to the economic front.

Fair Enough

Jones Gave RFC Honest Administration

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York — I first met Jesse Jones when I walked into his private business office in the Statler Hotel in Washington to ask about the deadbeat loans which Elliott Roosevelt had received from John Hartford, of A and P stores, David G. Baird, an insurance man, Charles Harwood, and others. They amounted to about $400,000 and Elliott "settled" most of them for two cents on the dollar through the intervention of Uncle Jesse. Jesse put up the money for these "settlements" and it took Elliott years to pay even this bargain price.

The only creditor who refused to "settle" was Harwood, a Democratic club-house politician from Brooklyn who understood that his $25,000 "loan" was actually the purchase price of a job as Federal Judge which he never got. When Uncle Jesse urged Harwood to surrender his stock in Elliott's radio chain in Texas because it was practically worthless, Harwood answered, "Well, if it isn't worth anything, it is no good to Elliott either. So I will just put it away and forget about it."

Actually, President Roosevelt was recapturing Elliott's pledged collateral to turn it over to Elliott's wife, in lieu of alimony when she got her divorce which was then in the works. This finally was done, all except Harwood's $25,000 worth which he later sold at a profit. With this stake, the lady later married a young Lieut.-Colonel who had been Elliott's pilot in a reconnaissance outfit in Africa.

In these matters Jesse took the position that he was dealing with shrewd, mature men who knew the score. He did not try to deceive them. The implication of blackmail by the president for his son's profit was so plain that Hartford, himself, gratuitously acknowledged it to deny it. Notwithstanding his loss for Elliott's profit, he and his company took a bad course of harassment in the Federal court which finally convicted A and P of providing abundance of the best food in the world at economical prices, in violation of the anti-trust law.

Jesse had a wry, grinning respect for Harwood. Mr. Jones was a handsome, big man with good features and a wise but not mirthless eye. He was born with the gift of making money and seemed to shun stocks, preferring land and buildings. Much of the development of Houston is a monument to his ability and judgement and much of the physical property of the city is owned by his many foundations.

During one of my visits at the Statler, Uncle Jesse said, "Haven't you got a foundation? Ought to start one. All the rich men have them."

He went to Tucson one winter and holed up at the beautiful Arizona Inn, founded by Mrs. Isabella Greenway King, who had been a congresswoman for Arizona. She promised absolute privacy to prominent guests. Mr. and Mrs. John D.

Rockefeller, Jr., spent a number of winters there and Isabella, who had known Jesse in Washington, assured him that he could rest unmolested. Jesse was so weary that he had all his meals in his quarters and his family could not budge him out. I brought him a great bunch of sweet peas from my garden and a week later he sent a note. He thanked me for the flowers. Now that they had gone to seed, he would make pea soup of the pods.

Jesse secretly revealed Roosevelt's deviousness in lifting off the market at public expense a great estate adjoining his own at Hyde Park when he learned that "undesirable" persons were looking it over. Jesse steered me through the mazes of five corporations, all put together to tangle the trail of the property from the estate which was unloading it to the Department of Agriculture. Ostensibly, the D of A, under sleepy Henry Wallace, wanted the place for experimental planting. Actually, the department never used it for anything. And during the war the stables and other outbuildings were used as barracks for Roosevelt's special regiment of M.P.'s, all at least six feet tall with a special uniform. The troops never knew when Eleanor Roosevelt might come whooping into their dormitory to show them off to royalty or other tourists.

A few years ago, the late Jim Moffett, an oil man and an early New Deal Bureaukrat, now down on his luck, subpoenaed Jesse in a suit over oil properties. Jesse said he had heart trouble and could not stand the strain. Moffett got wind of a big pot which Jones had won in a poker game at the 29-club, a small New York group of rich men also known as The Dead End Kids.

The pot amounted to thousands and Moffett insisted that a man who could stand that tension was not too sick to testify. I called on Jesse and asked him to replay the round from memory. He did, recounting his own hole cards and his draw until, at the sixth card, I raised a hand.

"Wait a minute! You already have five cards. What is this thing you are playing?" "Why Seven-Toad Pete," Uncle Jesse said. "With red fives and one-eyed jacks wild and galgallos and roodies!"

"Uncle Jesse," I said, "the old west sure has gone to hell."

"It's a good game," he insisted. "Get more action without dealing so often!" Roosevelt fired him from the Commerce Department to turn the RFC over to Wallace but Jesse raised such a row that Congress lifted the RFC out of Spalacy's jurisdiction. That was all Jesse wanted anyway. He had given the RFC and honest administration himself and did his best to keep it honest. It went corrupt after that but through no fault of Jesse Jones.

FOR REFLECTION
with JAMES C. HOBBS
President, Scientist & Mathematician

Ben Nicholas, writing in the Illinois Medical Journal, says, "Most of life is routine—dull and grubby—but routine is the momentum that keeps a man going."

While this may be, in most cases, true, I do not believe it is necessarily true I do not believe life is meant to be dull and grubby nor that a man is meant to be kept going by the momentum of routine.

Jeremiah, who probably had a far rougher time of it than most of us do, was able to say, "... the Lord's... compassions fail not. They are new every morning..." David exulted, "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge..."

And Christ said, "These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full."

If our lives are routine—dull and grubby—it is our own fault. Our God, whose compassions are new every morning and whose glory is set in the heavens, wishes to fill our hearts with His joy. If, under these circumstances, there is anything dull and grubby about our lives, it must be because we are largely insensible to both God and His creation and need to be awakened to the infinite possibilities of joy and adventure that await us on every hand.

Athletes Hit Sports Writers In Articles

By HENRY McLEMORE

When I pick up a magazine, the first thing I do is run through it right quick to see if there is an article written by an athlete in it.

If there is, I always buy the magazine or borrow a copy as soon as I can, because I know that somewhere in the article the athlete is going to belt sports writers from here to breakfast. They always do.

I used to write sports myself, so I like to keep up with this one-sided feud. I say "one-sided" because sports writers like athletes. If you don't think so, you ought to know how many heroes they have made out of some of the sorriest bolts of goods you ever laid eyes on.

One of the latest athletes to lambast sports writers is Duke Snider, who rams center field for the Brooklyn Dodgers. Duke says baseball writers don't know any more about baseball than a four-year-old, and implies that they should hang up their typewriters and get jobs in delicatessens, corset factories, or some other place.

As an old baseball writer who has collected many a splinter in many a press box back of home plate, I don't aim to take this stretched out on the greensward, so to speak. I know it's dangerous to get in a battle of wits with a baseball player, because most of them are sharp as rapiers and can make a fellow look pretty bad, but I am going to take the chance with Duke. He's on a road trip, and a long way from me, anyway.

I know a lot about baseball, Duke Snider. You can drop me in any hotel lobby in the United States, and if there is a baseball player there I'll point him out to you in two shakes. He'll be the fellow with a red neck, smoking a cigar, and reading a comic book. It's even easier in a dining room. Just look for the biggest pile of food, and the baseball player will be behind it.

Baseball players read comic books and eat like horses for a purpose. It relieves their minds—enables them to escape from the tremendous mental strain required to catch a fly ball, run bases, and play catch. I doubt if any group of men work their minds as much as baseball players. You try getting up in time to get to a ball park by one o'clock or so every afternoon, and you'll understand.

Baseball players have to steal signals, too. And they have to slide, yell witty things at the opposing players, and play cards for hours on end. It's a wonder they don't crack up sooner than they do.

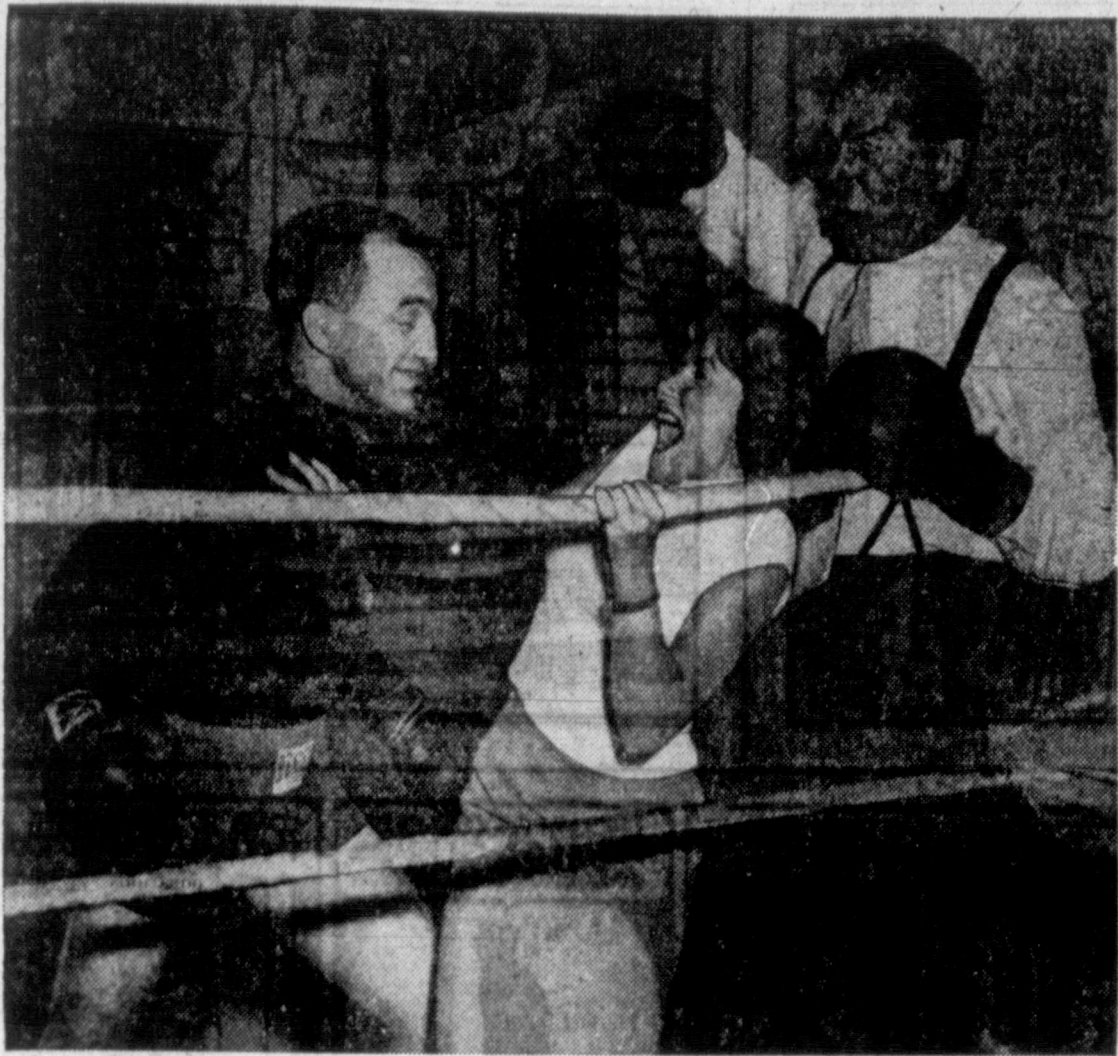

And another thing—when they want to put the blast on baseball writers, baseball players have to get ghostwriters. They usually get baseball writers to handle their prose, and it must be a real hard thing to have to ask a writer to help in whipping an article into shape that criticizes the writer's ability. Takes a lot of gall to do that, and a fellow can only use up so much gall, else he'll get weak and never beat out a punt.

Another thing I know about baseball is that if you don't talk baseball to most baseball players, then you might just as well get a hitching post to talk to. They might know what is happening in the rest of the world, but they don't care to discuss it. In some circles this is known as concentration. In others—well, there's no use going in to that.

I'm an old-fashioned romantic man and it never occurred to me that a motel could be a scene of politics. But a fellow named E. C. Schmidt has been looking into the matter, and he says that 72 per cent of those who register in such places are for Eisenhower. And when it comes to income taxes, I bet a lot of them would be willing to make outcourt settlements.

EVANSTON, Ill. (UP)—Harold C. Havighurst will resign Sept. 1 as dean of the Northwestern University Law School. Havighurst, 58, has held the post since 1948. He said he wanted to devote more time to teaching, research and writing.

Counting Is Changed

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government is changing its system of counting employment and unemployment for the second time in three years. But the government expects this time to avert the explosion of criticism caused by the last change. The earlier switch — made as the country neared the bottom of the 1953-54 business slump — resulted in reporting considerably more unemployment than under the old counting method. Democrats charged the administration with juggling figures. Findings for the month of May, using both the current survey method and the new revised method, are scheduled for publication side by side within the next few days. The government expects no startling changes. Employment in April was almost 64 million and unemployment was slightly below 2.6 million according to the old system. The new system will be based on a sampling of 35,000 households in 330 areas of the country. The current method covers 21,000 households in 230 areas, all of which will still be included in the new count. The pre-1954 figures were also based on 21,000 households, but in only 68 areas. Census experts blame the 1954 jolt on two things: The tremendous change in the sample areas covered and failure to train poll-takers sufficiently for the new job.

Lion Gets Gate
LOS ANGELES (UP)—The battle between the city and John Shinnars over his pet lion ended Monday. Shinnars and the lion were escorted out of town with orders to never come back after Shinnars was found intoxicated and his pet sitting in a car "licking his chops."
