Suez Committee Studies Reports

Nasser To Give Answer

By PETER WEBB
United Press Staff Correspondent
CAIRO (UP)—Government sources said today President Gamal Abdel Nasser would announce Tuesday whether he will negotiate on the Suez Canal with a five-nation committee from London.

Sources said the text of Nasser's reply to an invitation to meet the committee would be released in Cairo as soon as it has been delivered in London to Australian Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies, head of the Suez committee. The reply was expected to be affirmative.

Egyptian officials stressed that Nasser still was determined to reject any form of international control of Suez navigation, whatever the consequences, and that his decision to meet the five-nation committee did not commit Egypt to accept the committee's recommendations.

Suez committee met today to study semi-official Egyptian reports they would be invited to Egypt.

Australian Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies, head of the five-nation group, called the meeting.

Officials in Cairo announced that Egypt's reply to the five-nation committee would be delivered Tuesday through the Egyptian embassy in London.

Menzies, U.S. Undersecretary of State Loy Henderson and the members from Ethiopia, Iran and Sweden hoped to leave for Cairo by Wednesday despite expected Egyptian rejection of the key part of the American Suez plan: International control of the canal.

The Suez situation remained grave, Soviet broadcasts accused the West of planning to deliver an ultimatum to Egypt and Egyptian officials accused Britain and France of persuading key canal workers to quit in hope traffic would be paralyzed.

Moscow radio, quoting an editorial in the official Communist newspaper Pravda, said if Egypt rejected the Western ultimatum, the West would use this as an excuse for "subsequent aggressive action against Egypt."

The old Suez Canal company, which was taken over by Nasser on July 26, issued a statement in Paris saying it was no longer in a position to accept responsibility for the safety of its non-Egyptian employees in the canal zone.

Observers said the announcement, the company's first major counter-attack since Egypt seized the canal, amounted to a direct challenge to Britain and France to take direct action.

Egypt replied immediately. The semi-official Middle East News Agency called the statement "open instigation of canal personnel to quit work."

Presidential Campaign Gets Underway

Democrats Start Campaign Today

By TOM NELSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver set out on a barnstorming tour today to gather campaign ammunition from Democrats in 34 states.

The Democratic presidential nominee and his running mate were scheduled to take off from Midway Airport this morning on a four-day, whirlwind trip to set the stage for their campaign.

Their chartered plane headed first for Santa Fe, N.M., where Democrats from seven southwestern states gathered for a huddle with the candidates late today.

From Santa Fe, the candidates will fly to Vancouver, Wash., Tuesday and then to Sioux City, Iowa, Wednesday, and Knoxville, Tenn., Thursday, for similar meetings. They will return to Chicago for a session Friday.

Stevenson said the idea of the tour was to "make sure we strike together in hammering home the great issues of 1956." His campaign manager, James A. Finnegan, said the trip would lay the foundation for "the greatest grassroots campaign of all times."

Congressmen, governors and others high in party circles were invited to the parleys. They will be closed to the public and press, presumably so that anyone with complaints will feel free to voice them.

Aldas said that Stevenson might brief the press after each meeting on what transpired.

John Simms, governor of New Mexico, was named chairman of today's Santa Fe conference. New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Wyoming, Arkansas and Arizona sent representatives.

A score of staff members and many newsmen accompanied Stevenson. The Stevenson staff included Finnegan, who fathered the tour idea, and F. Joseph (Jiggs) Donahue, Kefauver's campaign manager.

Ike To Start Fight Next Month

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UP)

President Eisenhower, contrary to most opinion, will start slugging at the Democrats about the middle of next month.

Mr. Eisenhower had been expected to withhold his heavy political firepower until sometime in October, but according to his press secretary, James C. Hagerty, the Chief Executive will make his move about Sept. 15.

Mr. Eisenhower was expected to remain here at least until Wednesday morning and fly back to Washington for a quick series of conferences with top GOP political chiefs, then leave for a weekend at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm sometime Friday.

Mr. Eisenhower Sunday: 1. Announced that Russia had resumed testing of nuclear weapons. He said in conjunction with Lewis Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, that the Russians on Aug. 24 tested a nuclear weapon of "less than a megaton" power in southwest Siberia.

2. The President and Mrs. Eisenhower visited the historic Catholic mission in nearby Carmel, then worshipped at the Carmel Presbyterian Church.

3. The Chief Executive played golf during the afternoon on the Cyprus Point course and finished with a "paper" score of about 90, playing the best golf since his June 9 illness operation.

Hagerty's estimation of the campaign, however, was somewhat different and pending definite word back in Washington, it looks like Mr. Eisenhower would campaign more extensively than originally planned.

His first major campaign speech probably will be sometime about Labor Day, Sept. 2. Whether the speech is made from Washington remains to be announced.

Disclosure of the latest Russian nuclear explosion was made by Hagerty for the President after Mr. Eisenhower attended church.

The press secretary said the Aug. 24 weapon was "a higher type than atomic" but he was unable for the moment to say whether it was a hydrogen bomb.

Hagerty and Strauss both emphasized that the Russians continue to conduct their tests in utmost secrecy, while this country, when testing a new nuclear device, invites the press of the world to attend.

Strauss informed Hagerty of the new Russian test late Friday night and suggested the announcement should come from the President. He sent out to the temporary White House a detailed statement to accompany the White House announcement.

American People To Demand Campaign Be On High-Level

DALLAS (UP)—Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee, the fiery keynote speaker at the Democratic National Convention, said today "the American people are going to demand a high-level campaign by both parties this year."

In a speech prepared for delivery before the 79th annual convention of the American Bar Association, Clement added that he believes the people will get a clean campaign.

He also said the coming political campaign places America in "a giant spotlight."

Major Consequences
"It is essential that we view this coming political campaign as one that will have both far-reaching international as well as national consequences," Clement said.

The Tennessee governor said he will campaign for the Democratic ticket "if the national party leaders want me." Clement said he had received requests to speak from 36 states since his keynote address in Chicago.

He said he had accepted only one invitation — from House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas. However, the governor said the time and place for his speech for Rayburn had not been announced.

Thousands of Wires
Clement said he had received "thousands" of telegrams concerning his keynote address before the Democratic national convention, "running about 12 to 1 in support of what I said."

Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr., outlined a Justice Department program attacking the problem of court congestion and delays in a preliminary session of the convention Sunday.

Scheduled to speak this afternoon was William F. Tompkins, Assistant Attorney General. Tompkins was to talk on "An Appraisal of Federal Loyalty - Security Procedures" before the criminal law section.

New Yorker on Program
Also due to speak on this program were Dudley B. Bonsal of the New York Bar and Charles P. Curtis of the Boston Bar.

Some 5,000 jurists from throughout the United States have registered for the convention. Their wives and guests swelled the number to about 10,000.

About the political battle, Clement said:
"Fight hard, but fight clean" is the challenge that has been flung down by 167-million Americans. You and I join in the hope that this challenge will be met; that it will be a hard-fought, but clean campaign.

"From that type of battle, the issues will emerge clearly defined and the final selections will be made on the basis of those issues," he said.

Brownell blamed judges and lawyers alike for the log-jam in U.S. courts. He termed the overabundance of cases "the most serious problem currently confronting our profession."

Error In Count Could Put Yarborough In

By F. DICKSON HARDWICK
United Press Staff Correspondent
DALLAS (UP)—Only an error in the vote count can keep U. S. Sen. Price Daniel from winning the Democratic nomination as Texas' next governor.

Nearly complete but unofficial returns gave Daniel a 2,523 vote lead today over his runoff primary opponent, Austin attorney Ralph Yarborough. The Texas Election Bureau estimated that only 1,600 votes remained to be counted.

It turned into the closest governor's race in the history of Texas politics. Political observers said the election may be a guidepost as to how the state will vote in the presidential election in November.

Four years ago, Gov. Allan Shivers went for Dwight D. Eisenhower and the state went Republican. Daniel joined Shivers in supporting Mr. Eisenhower. Yarborough went for Adlai Stevenson.

With all of the state's 254 counties reporting, 236 complete, Daniel had 697,732 votes and Yarborough 695,209. The total vote was 1,392,941.

Daniel said he can support Stevenson this fall with no major issue like the oil-rich tidelands to drive him away. Yarborough has said he can support Stevenson without reservations. In 1952, Stevenson opposed Daniel's fight to win Texas' tidelands back from the federal government.

Charges by Daniel
This was an especially bitter campaign. Daniel charged that organized labor, headed by UAW president Walter Reuther, supported Yarborough in an effort to get a foot into Texas' government.

Yarborough spent large sums of money to elect Daniel. He also said Daniel and Shivers "made a deal" in which the Senator would replace Shivers, who declined to seek reelection.

Daniel signed the southern manifesto protesting the Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation in the public schools. He charged that the NAACP, in retaliation, backed Yarborough in an effort to defeat him.

In the only other state runoff race, former State Supreme Court Justice Will Wilson of Dallas won the nomination for attorney general over Waco District Attorney Tom Moore, Jr. The latest tabulations gave Wilson 805,457 votes to Moore's 510,574.

The close governor's runoff was a surprise because Daniel led Yarborough by 165,498 votes in the July 28 primary. Daniel failed to get a majority over his five opponents.

Observers said the left-handed endorsement given Yarborough by former Gov. and U.S. Sen. W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel, who ran third, was a major factor in the race.

O'Daniel's Strategy
O'Daniel told the some 350,000 Texans who voted for him to cast their ballots for Yarborough. He said he would run against the winner in November as an independent candidate. O'Daniel said he would take care of Yarborough then.

Daniel ran for governor without giving up his seat in the U.S. Senate. He said he will wait for the official vote count announcement before giving up the Senate post. Then, he said, the voters can choose his successor in a special election.

Daniel attributed the close vote to three factors: O'Daniel's switch; the fact that "labor was active in getting out the vote for my opponent"; and "overconfidence on the party of my supporters."

Houston For Yarborough
The 53-year-old Yarborough ran strong in most of the rural areas and carried many counties he lost to Daniel in the first primary. Yarborough held an edge over Daniel in Harris county (Houston) with its strong labor vote whereas the junior senator beat him decisively in Houston in the July 28 election.

But Yarborough's downfall came in conservative Dallas county and in Bexar county (San Antonio) where Daniel rolled up heavy majorities. The vote was close, but Daniel held the edge in (See UNOFFICIAL, Page 8)

Yarborough Confident He Will Win

AUSTIN (UP)—Austin attorney Ralph Yarborough expressed confidence today the official canvass Tuesday of Saturday's runoff primary election will show him as the winner of the governor's race over Sen. Price Daniel.

Yarborough said an "independent check" by his headquarters had found "many sizeable errors" in reporting of unofficial returns. He expressed belief "many more" errors will be found when the vote is canvassed by county Democratic committees Tuesday.

In a statement issued through his Austin headquarters, Yarborough said:
"I am confident that the official canvass of Saturday's runoff Democratic primary balloting will show that I am the winner of the gubernatorial race."
"Our independent check of the unofficial returns reported by the Texas Election Bureau found many sizeable errors. And we believe many more will be found when the vote is canvassed by the various county Democratic executive committees on Tuesday morning."

Two breakins were being investigated this morning by the police department that were presumed to have occurred Sunday night. A .22 caliber pistol was the only item taken in the breakins as the burglars found nothing else available or left out where it could be taken at the two firms.

Entrance was gained into the Dr. Pepper bottling plant, 832 S. Hobart, by breaking a window on the north side. Assistant Police Chief J. O. Dumas reported that nothing was taken from the plant, however, drawers were rifled through and a typewriter and adding machine were moved to the rear of the building as if the thief or thieves started to take them but changed their mind.

The Novi Air Conditioning firm, located at 828 S. Hobart, reported their firm was also broken into but nothing was taken except an Ira Johnson .22 caliber target pistol with brown plastic handles and a six inch barrel.

The thieves entered the firm by breaking out a rear window and here, too, apparently started to take a typewriter but decided against it. Here, too, drawers and shelves were disarranged.

Demo Caucus Scheduled

Gray County Democratic Chairman Jimmy Thompson reported this morning that a caucus of all delegates to the State Democratic Convention from the 31st Senatorial District will be held in Berger at 7:30 p.m. today.

Thompson said the caucus was for the purpose of selecting a state committeeman or woman from the district. Gray County is committed to support Mrs. A. C. Wilkinson, southeast of Pampa, for the position, he remarked.

Defense Department Drafts New Personnel Questionnaire

By JOHN W. FINNEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The Defense Department has drafted a new, simply-worded personnel security questionnaire to stem the oft-criticized practices of "guilt by association" and "guilt by kinship."

The radically revised questionnaire, which will go into effect Nov. 1 for military recruits and draftees entering the service, represents another step in the gradual revision of Defense Department security procedures over the past year.

Both Congress and the public have criticized the program, particularly the "guilt by kinship" practice.

Recalls Landy Case
One of the most publicized of the "guilt by kinship" cases was that of Eugene W. Landy, a Merchant Marine Academy honor graduate who was temporarily denied a naval commission because his mother had been a Communist, although she had quit the party at her son's insistence.

The administration is expected to unveil an overall new loyalty security program for government workers sometime before the November election. The program will exclude workers in "non-sensitive" jobs in keeping with a Supreme Court ruling.

Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams revealed recently that the competency of a scientist rather than unproved disloyalty charges against him would be the prime basis for determining future eligibility for government aid in non-secret scientific research.

Uses Non-Legal Language
The new questionnaire—in contrast to the form it replaces—explains in straightforward, non-legal language the reason for the security check, the applicant's legal rights and factors to be taken into consideration in determining his security status. It was made public by the Defense Department Sunday.

It retains the attorney general's list of subversive organizations and asks whether the person has been a member of, or associated with, any of the organizations.

However, it adds that "your statement concerning membership or other associations with one or more of the organizations named may not, of itself, cause you to be ineligible for acceptance or retention in the armed forces."

Cyprus Flung Into Despair

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UP)—Official British charges that exiled Archbishop Makarios personally directed the terrorist activities of the Eoka underground plunged Cyprus into despair today.

An Eoka truce proclaimed on Aug. 16 ends today and Cypriots feared renewed bloodshed. British troops, heavily reinforced since start of the Suez crisis, took up battle stations throughout the island.

The Royal Air Force sent up an observation balloon over the capital to keep a lookout for any anti-British activity. The balloon was equipped with a powerful searchlight to sweep Nicosia's streets at night.

The charges against the bearded, Boston-educated orthodox archbishop were made by Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd, and were based on the captured diaries of Greek Cypriot George Grivas, the rebel leader known as Digenis.

Lennox-Boyd said "these documents prove beyond any doubt whatever that the archbishop was the leader of the terrorist campaign in which 145 people have been murdered, 93 of them his fellow Cypriots."

Archbishop Makarios, 43, archbishop of Cyprus, leader of the Greek Orthodox church on the island — was exiled to the Seychelles Islands in the Indian Ocean last March. Britain has refused to negotiate on Cyprus' future till Makarios renounces the use of violence.

Greece reacted swiftly. A source close to the government called the British charge an effort to justify the "oppressive" measures enforced by British troops against the Enosis, or union-with-Greece, movement.

"It is obvious from the hasty announcement that Lennox-Boyd is seeking to diminish poor impression created on world public opinion by British intransigence in refusing to accept Eoka's truce

Kidnaper Questioned

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UP)—Police questioned the confessed kidnaper of month-old Peter Weinberger today in an attempt to discover if Angelo John Lamarco had deliberately placed the baby in dense underbrush to silence the infant's cries.

Nassar County Chief Inspector Stuyvesant Pinnell said Lamarco insists he placed the living baby gently on the ground near a heavily-traveled highway after a number of people near the spot he was to pick up his $2,000 ransom demand frightened him away.

Pinnell repudiated the statement saying if the swarthy mechanic had wanted Peter to be found he would not have left the child so far from the road, a point five miles from the Westbury home of Mr. & Mrs. Morris Weinberger.

Lamarco, scheduled for a Friday hearing in Mineola District Court, refused to divulge the Brooklyn location — or the names of the people — where he said Peter was sheltered overnight after the kidnaping.

He appeared unremorseful, eating and sleeping as if nothing had happened. A detective was posted inside his cell to prevent any suicide attempts.

Lamarco was examined by a state psychiatrist last week to determine his sanity. He was scheduled for another examination today.

Commission To Discuss Trip

The city commission, in their weekly meeting at 9 a.m. tomorrow in City Hall, are scheduled to discuss Mayor Lynn Boyd's trip to New York, New York to get the city's newly-voted bonds rated.

Boyd will be accompanied on the trip by City Secretary Ed Vicars.

Other action on the agenda indicates that the plat for the Neel Addition, on the south side of town, will be submitted for approval and bills from Lovett Memorial Library will probably be paid.

WEEKLY GRAIN

FORT WORTH (UP)—USDA — Weekly grain:
Southwest cash grain markets registered some sharp price changes this week, according to the Agricultural Marketing Service.

No. 2 yellow corn dropped 9 3/4-c to the low end of the range and 8 3/4-c on the high to close at $1.82 1/4 to $1.85 1/4 a bushel.

No. 2 white corn declined 4 3/4-c a bushel to bring $1.91 1/4 to $1.94 1/4. No. 2 white oats slipped 2 3/4-c a bushel to sell at 91 1/4 to 94 1/4-c.

The drop in corn prices reflects the nearness of new crop movement in the commercial producing areas. Oats went down in sympathy with corn.

On the other hand, barley went up 4-c a bushel to spread from $1.33-1.37. Milo gained a penny per 100 lbs. Harvesting of new crop milo in West Texas is still light, so free market supplies are still rather tight, giving some strength to the market.

Wheat gained 3-c a bushel as No. 1 hard offerings sold Friday changes are based on wholesale carlots, Texas common freight rate points.

In Oklahoma, cash wheat was up 3-c at some spots and down 3-c a bushel at others. Prices ranged from $1.92 at Guymon and Hooker to $2 at Frederick. Wheat brought $1.96 at Enid, El Reno, Alva, Bison and Clinton.

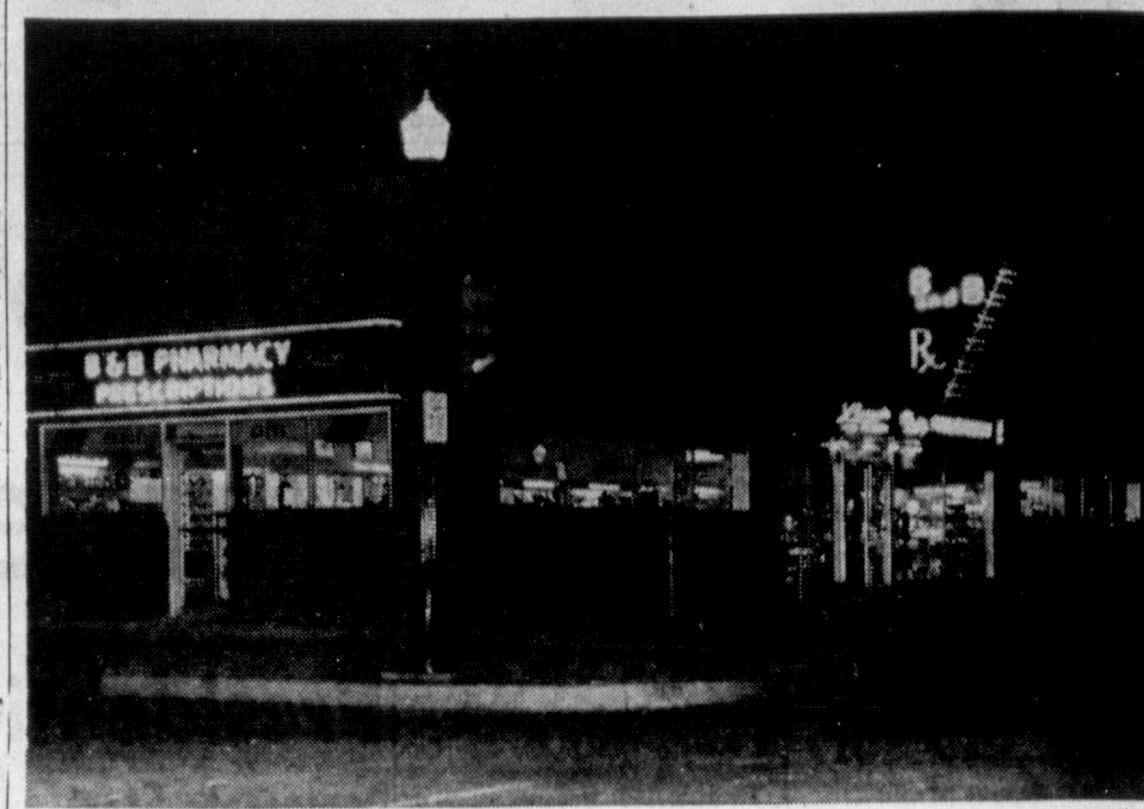

Oklahoma milo prices slipped a nickel per 100 lbs. this week, ranging from $1.95 at Frederick to $2.45 at Alva. Enid paid $2.35 and Clinton and Hobart $2.

Local Branch, American Association Of University Women, Plans Study Groups

The organization of five study groups for the Pampa branch of the American Association of University Women, is now underway, according to Mrs. Walter Bowen, president, and Mrs. N. G. Kadingo, study group chairman.

Although designed primarily for AAUW members, the study groups are not limited to AAUW members, Mrs. Bowen pointed out. Any woman interested may participate and is asked to contact Mrs. Bowen or Mrs. Kadingo.

COOKING
Correct cooking principles and methods of varying dishes will be a study course taught by Miss Joy Farnell of Southwestern Public Service Company, with seasons to be held once a month for five months. Miss Farnell explained the group will be divided into teams, with each preparing a specialized portion of a meal, such as bread, salad, meat, vegetable or dessert. The course will also include facts on nutrition and the principles of the electric range. The kitchen facilities of the Public Service Company will be used for each session.

PHOTOGRAPHY
Principles of good photography will be taught by Mrs. Bill Ledbetter, and will include correct lighting, correct operation of cameras and other aids for the amateur or would-be amateur photographer.

INTERIOR DECORATING
Mrs. L. A. Barber of Barber's Decorating Shoppe has agreed to lead a group in a study of home or interior decorating, including the latest trends in design and fabric.

LITERATURE AND BRIDGE
Plans are also underway for the organization of a study group in literature and one in bridge. The literature group will follow a method of book exchange, review or discussion, depending on the interest of the members, Mrs. Kadingo explained.

The bridge group will go into the various principles of bridge and the study of the various authorities. Any AAUW member or any other woman interested, who has not yet signed up for a study group, is asked to contact Mrs. Kadingo or Mrs. Bowen. It is expected the groups will have from six to 10 members each and will meet about once a month at a time and place set-up by the group. Each will have a chairman to direct any business of the group, Mrs. Kadingo pointed out.

Miss Betty Vermillion And Boyce Miller Are United In Marriage In Shamrock

SHAMROCK — (Special) — The First Methodist Church of Shamrock was the scene of the wedding for Miss Betty Louise Vermillion, daughter of Mrs. J. H. Vermillion and the late J. H. Vermillion, and Boyce Edward Miller of Midland, son of Mrs. S. H. Duncan of Antler, Okla., and former resident of Shamrock.

Vows were exchanged before an archway entwined with fern, jade leaves and white shasta daisies with big white satin bows. Tall baskets of white mums flanked the archway. The altar rail was covered with white and jade leaves and fern. White satin bows marked the pews.

Rev. Jim H. Sharp, pastor, officiated for the double-ring service. "Because" by D'Hardelot, "All-Prayers" by Berlin and "The Lord's Prayer" by Mrs. Cabot Brannon, who also played the traditional wedding marches.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Harry B. Vermillion, was attired in a gown of white taffeta and imported nylon lace. The fitted bodice was topped with a short lace jacket, styled with a Sabrina neckline edged with seed pearls and long lace sleeves that came to points over her hands. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls. Her bouffant skirt was ballerina length.

Her waist-length veil of illusion fell from a pearl tiara, and she carried a bouquet of white pompons and carnations, tied with white satin ribbon and accented with maline, over a white Bible.

She carried out the tradition of "something old, new, borrowed and blue" and placed a penny in her shoe.

Maid of honor was Miss Mary Dee Henderson. She wore a blue cotton dress styled with a sweetheart neckline, long-torso bodice and a bouffant skirt of white nylon over blue. Her headpiece was a halo of white flowers, and she carried a Colonial bouquet of blue pompons and asters.

Misses La Verne and La Donn Vermillion, twin sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. They were attired in gowns similar to that of the maid of honor, with blue net skirts over blue, with their headpieces were of blue flowers and their Colonial bouquets were of white pompons and asters.

Toni Gayle Richerson, flower girl, wore a blue nylon and net dress and a halo of blue flowers.

Lingerie Shower Fetes Bride-Elect

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Miss Betty Vermillion, bride-elect of Boyce Edward Miller of Midland, was complimented with a lingerie shower in the home of Miss Mary Dee Henderson. Co-hostesses were Phyllis O'Gorman, Pat Anderson, Jimmy Cannon and Marilyn Greenhill.

The serving table was covered with a white linen cloth. The centerpiece was an arrangement of white pompons, with blue satin streamers extending to photographs of the honoree, and her fiancé. "Betty and Eddie" were inscribed on the streamers.

Attending were Mesas Mickey Linkey, Earnestine Hofmann, Cecil Fuller, Joy Hetley, LaVonne Vermillion, Claudia Lamb, LaVerne Vermillion, and Mesas Louise Vermillion, Ruby Rives and Acie Henderson.

MR. AND MRS. BOYCE EDWARD MILLER

The bride attended Shamrock High School, from which the bridegroom graduated this year.

Dinner Meet Held By Shamrock Guild

SHAMROCK — (Special) — A covered-dish dinner was held in Elmore Park by members of the Wesleyan Service Senior Guild.

Mrs. C. R. Burks presided for the meeting that followed the dinner. Mrs. Ada Risk gave the invocation, and the devotional, "Christianity, Our Severest Test," was presented by Mrs. Earl Hamill.

During the social period, refreshments of homemade ice cream and cake were served.

Attending were Mesas, Earl Hamill, C. R. Burks, Neesley Burrell, Beanie Ferguson, Dudley Holland, Ed Schaffner, Francis Depew, Dot Hindman, Ada Risk, Mary Pace, W. R. Wooten, Beasie Beasley, Clark Bumpers, S. L. Draper, and Miss Genevieve Zeigler.

For the wedding trip, the bride wore a brown suit with brown accessories. Her corsage was of white pompons from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside in Midland.

THE SURPRISE ELEMENT IN NEW FALL FASHIONS is the 1912 influence. Women's Wear Daily's fashion analysts report that it is most effective in giving new life to narrow silhouette for formal wear; that is, late afternoon, dinner and evening. Coupled with it, too, is the trend to supple fabrics, specifically crepes and chiffons, and some of the softer satins and metallics.

MOSTLY the influence changes the expression of skirts. Instead of the stark sheath as the only evidence of the narrow silhouette, draperies at front or at one side, from waistline to hem, are introduced. Sometimes the drapery is linked with hemline borders of varying depths.

Another feature of this early 20th Century silhouette that is being translated into 1956 fashions is the wide decollete, front and back, often in surprising closing. In bouffants, too, the above - the - normal - waistline crushed girde derives from 1912. It is a short - waisted look that is quite distinctive from the under - the - bustline bodices of Empire inspiration that are more prevalent.

A SOFTER and more feminine look identifies fall dresses. Softening, Women's Wear Daily notes, is developed with blousing panels, bustline drapes, semifitted jackets, cowl draped necklines and side wrap skirts. The narrow silhouette leads for both day and evening. The 1912 influence is coupled with the slim silhouette and the softer trend. Braid trimming, beaded chiffon, high sashes and tunic effects are pre-World War I evidences.

Panel, both attached and floating, are an important softening feature throughout the dress collections. Panels suggest Empire bustline, extend into attached harem panels, double as stoles.

The molded and beltless look continues although belts make a greater impression in this year's collection. Blousing caught in waist or hipline belts is one reason for the increase. Midriffs, high sashes and wide crushed girdles are 1912 inspirations that focus on a short-waisted look.

Costumes are important this year, changed with shorter jackets stopping at or above the waistline, and semi-fitted hipbone jackets. Paris-inspired flat back panels gathered or caught with bows and tabs are a feature of many semifitted costumes.

COATS FOR FALL and winter are heading into a new season of fashion interest. Surprise comes in the sudden switch to the ample silhouette, with fulness hanging easily from shallow shoulder yoke and dishing unpressed vent up the back. Women's Wear Daily says that this is a fresh kind of casual greatcoat that is interpreted in polished town fabrics, as well as tweeds and fleeces.

Slim coats are still much in evidence but the headlines go to the flat - fronted, double - breasted straight unfitted coat. It gives the effect of a reefer, looks very new in its narrow, non-fit silhouette. Shown in tweeds as well as polished coatings, it rates among the trend setters.

Blossoming on narrow coat silhouettes are large drapable collars, shoulder spanning revers, shoulder capelet effects, and often impressive collars that do much to ornament columnar silhouettes.

Tweeds are everywhere. Their newest aspect in coats is in the elegant town tweed, sometimes with fur trimming. Slim or with the new ample fulness, soberly in black and white mixtures, on black and brown or new moss green, and high fashion endorsement of amethyst tones as well as solid black, tweeds lend their sturdiness to coats but with new all-day city wearability.

Fur trimmings look new again. The black town coat, says Women's Wear Daily, is partial to fur as a sign of greater elegance and sable, mink, black beaver, white mink and beaver dyed in pastel colors are there to provide it. Leopard trimmings on quality fleeces are numerous.

U LSOOK... TI on ewto safr LIS SUITS LOOK new for fall d ebtal tad n.a e dh-dah eh yvht when they add a belt, and the addition about an inch above the waistline releasing a bloused back is a strong fashion of the season. Hip-top jackets, unfitted, represent another important suit type. They are cut so easily as to look lightly bloused; sometimes a panel detail and martingals shift interest to the back.

Women's Wear Daily's fashion experts report that so many double-breasted buttoned jackets are shown that they represent a typical uniform. Wide spreading lapels often complete this style.

Many suit skirts break from the slick straight lines to introduce easy goosed fulness. More daring are skirts that fall in rippled fullness and some designers consider a pleated skirt the correct complement to a belted jacket.

Members of the Trece Amigas Club met in the home of Mrs. Johnny Wilson to do various kinds of handwork. Arrangements of dahlias were used as decorations. Guests were Mesas, Woodrow Sims, Landes Horton and Joe Lester. Members present were Mesas, Glynn Bell, J. D. Clay, John Lehr, Glenn Richerson, Lewis Powell, John O'Gorman, Huey Cook, Jack Dekle and Cecil Perrin.

Doubt Useful

We have attempted to consistently maintain the position that a logical outlook on life impels a belief in fixed principles. Not infrequently we are assailed by our pragmatic friends who insist that there can be no fixed principles, saving only the principle that there are no principles.

In this connection we have been queried concerning doubt. Do we maintain, we are asked, that a person should accept fixed principles on the basis of faith? And if we do not maintain that faith is an essential to a belief in fixed principles, would we care to state that doubt is a destructive characteristic of the human mind and should be avoided and put down?

We hold that doubt is a useful adjunct to the business of understanding life. In this respect we could say that we have every respect for the pragmatist who insists on doubting principles before he understands them.

Doubt of the mystical and magical rites of ancient priests and soothsayers led men into a more balanced and scientific view of life. Had our forebears insisted that we must accept every claim of every necromancer as a valid fact, there is no doubt that our minds would still be more clouded with superstition than they are. Fortunately, healthy doubts existed and were given root in inquiring minds. We have no object to doubt, per se.

But we refuse to crown doubt as a universal goddess. The pragmatist tends to defy doubt. Rather than accepting as sound a principle which has been established by others, he prefers to disbelieve the fixity of all things. His universe is unmoored. As a result of his own mental fluidity he must intellectually tread water as he attempts to prove that others cannot swim.

We view doubt, not as an end to be achieved, but as a means to a far greater end. And we could say that the end to be achieved is a belief, a knowledge, a faith, if you will, of the fixed nature of moral principles. Surely it is better to believe, to know, that moral principles are absolute than to be filled with a nagging suspicion that nothing is really true or good, but thinking makes it so.

All moral values are based on human rights. If we reject the one, we most assuredly will reject the other. If it is not true that every human being has a right to life, then it would be true that murder could be justified under certain circumstances. For if murder can ever be justified it must mean that no one has a basic, fundamental, unchanging right to live.

If it is not true that every human being has a right to own that which he produces, then it must follow that stealing can be justified under certain circumstances. If this is the case, then theft is not immoral.

Thus, if we follow the pragmatic lead we will see that what we must learn are not principles, but circumstances. For if circumstances can justify murder or theft we must be impelled to learn what circumstances they are. And we must live our lives, not attempting to hitch them to the lodestar of morality, but only to the will-of-the-wisp of every varying condition.

Is this the way you want your children raised? Do you believe that circumstances alter conditions so continuously and so completely that the human race would improve by adjusting to circumstances and conditions rather than abiding by fixed moral principles?

If you believe that such is the case, then you will be very happy with what our government schools are doing to our children. Our politically dominated educational institutions are holding up the doubts of pragmatism as the true base for all intellectual development.

Again we say that doubt can be a means to an end. But it should become the student of life to probe and discover, so that his doubts can vanish. What our twentieth century needs so desperately is the attainment of calm and reasonable assurance. Doubt provides the opposite of the assurance we require. Yet, it is a means to an end; it can be a healthy period through which the inquiring, sincere mind will push to the untroubled sea of certainty.

Doubt and fear are constant companions. Fear accumulates when we doubt supremely. Doubt accumulates when our fears master us. But the light from certain conviction of the reality of fixed principles will guide us through the darkness of our ignorance.

The Miracle Of Exchange
I want to quote further from Alfred P. Haskel's book, "Faith and Fact." Under the subtitle "The Miracle of Exchange" Haskel writes:

"What makes the exchange or trade, possible is the fact that each party to the transaction wants something he does not have or of which he has less than he wants, and wants it more than he does something else which he already has or of which he has more than he wants. Therefore, he is willing to trade what he has for what he wants."

"It is the Miracle of Exchange that both parties to the transaction make a profit or benefit by trading with each other. Without this miracle there would be no exchange."

"It is on this same broad principle that we choose one occupation rather than another, forego one gratification and seek some other. It is rooted in the very instinct of self preservation and is as inseparable from man as are the biological processes by which he is conceived, born and developed into being. The marvel of mutually profitable exchange is the foundation on which we build individual and social progress and all that cooperation among men makes possible."

"Motivation in Exchange:
"Whatever motivates exchange is indispensable to any civilization which is based on the production and exchange of goods and services, which in turn result from increasingly effective utilization of human energy applied to natural resources. Out of such production and exchange comes the magnificent panorama of factories, churches, schools, roads, bridges, houses, banks, railroads, airplanes, wash machines, radios, and the myriad of devices and improvements that raise and maintain life above the level of subsistence."

"The desire to benefit is the motivation to exchange.
"This desire has also been called the acquisitive spirit or the profit motive. It does not matter what the benefit may be, whether of money, fame, power, peace, happiness, material goods, sacrifice for others or eternal bliss in heaven, so long as anyone is actuated by or sees some benefit in the exchange. In giving up one thing for some other which is more greatly desired by him than that which he gives up, the individual is actuated by the profit motive."

"Profit Misunderstood
"Profit is one of the most widely used and thoroughly misunderstood and abused terms in the entire language of economics. The same is true of the term and concept called the 'profit motive.' Because so many people, even good people, have been misinformed or emotionally misled, the very term 'profit motive' connotes avarice and serves as a red flag to arouse their indignation against something unjust and un-Christian, the very root of all evil and suffering."

"Out of this misinformation and misunderstanding comes one of the most widely accepted errors in economic thinking, namely, the theory that we should have production for use and not for profit. 'Correctly understood, there is and need be no conflict between the ideas of service or use and benefit or profit in the production of goods."

"The purpose of production is to satisfy wants, or use. It dare not be anything else. No one could long stay in business unless he did produce for use. But the motive or urge to which we must appeal in order to get production for use, is the profit motive, the desire to benefit or profit in an exchange transaction."

"If the producer is successful in producing for use, people will buy what he produces, and if he is efficient in producing it, he will be rewarded with a profit. If he is not successful in producing for use, makes something that people do not want, or is so inefficient that he makes it at too high cost and has to charge too much, people will not buy what he produces and he will suffer a loss."

"Thus, hope and fear, basic human emotions, are reached through rewarding with profit and punishing with loss. The hope for profit and fear of loss impel producers to make for use. Thus, the purpose of production is use, while the incentive to produce for use is the profit motive."

"Even more serious is the mistaken concept of the profit motive itself. The root of the error lies in the arbitrary definition given to the profit itself and the consequent notion that it is necessary to do away with profit and the profit motive in order to protect individuals and groups against the actions of unearned profits or undeserved benefits."

"Then Mr. Haskel quotes from a pamphlet issued by the Commission of Social Action of the Evangelical and Reformed Church to show how badly these church leaders were confused in the benefits that come from profits. He quotes from the pamphlet, showing their definition of the profit motive. It was: 'The desire for a reward beyond what is truly earned.'"

"The profit-motive is contrary to the Christian ethics. The profit-motive cannot be Christianized. That is about as rational as to say that the desire to live and benefit oneself and others by a free and voluntary exchange of goods and services is not Christian, how confused can emotional church leaders become?"

"You've got to hand it to the income tax people; otherwise they will soon after it."

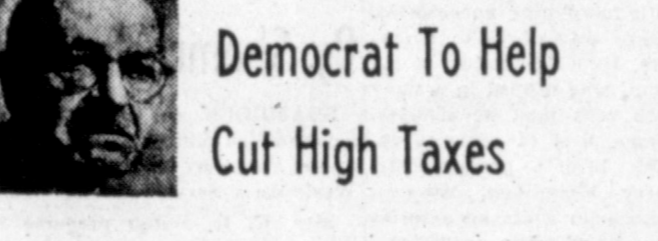

"The man was feeling very bad. He had just lost 110 pounds. She was a blonde."

Democrat To Help Cut High Taxes

WASHINGTON — It has remained for a Democrat — Representative Daniel J. Flood of Pennsylvania — to assure favorable action in the next Congress on one of the Hoover Commission's major recommendations for saving money for the taxpayer — namely, a downward revision of the Military Air Mail Transport Service's almost monthly payments and intrusion into the field of private enterprise.

Almost singlehandedly, Flood has demanded curtailment of MATS operations as a member of the powerful House Appropriations Committee. From Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson down to young shavetails at the Pentagon and a few great airline companies now handling military mail at high costs have opposed all attempts to restrict this agency's activities.

But the chairman of the two committees having joint jurisdiction over MATS — the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Military Funds and the Armed Services Committee — have promised the Pennsylvania member an investigation of MATS will be the first order of business for their groups at the start of the January session. Republicans also favor a thorough-going inquiry as a result of former President Hoover's concern.

MATS, as Hoover and Flood note, competes with private enterprise, principally airline and shipping firms, to the extent of $25,000,000 of business a year. It is so immersed in extracurricular activities that, according to Army witnesses before the House Appropriations Committee, it would have difficulty in transporting troops, weapons and supplies in event of war.

The amazing testimony was given by the frank and blunt Lieutenant General James Gavin, who heads the Defense branch of Research and Development. It was contradicted by Secretary Wilson, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Committee members, however, were impressed by General Gavin's statement.

MATS has a budget of about $1 billion a year, which could buy a lot of airplanes. It flies up about 100,000 men in nonmilitary jobs, or approximately one-tenth of Air Force personnel. It carries Congressmen and their families around the world at low cost, and they make a strong lobby on Capitol Hill, along with a few great airlines.

Perhaps the most wasteful operation, according to Hoover and Flood, is its handling of military mail — about 1,000,000 pounds to West Europe and the Far East each month. At the high rate of 53 cents a ton mile, MATS turns this material over to the Post Office and commercial airlines. The annual cost of $12,700,000 is a virtual subsidy to the airlines, or at least half of it is under present conditions.

Non-scheduled airlines have offered to fly this mail for as low as 25 cents a ton mile, and the proposed Congressional investigations will try to find out why this money cannot be saved for the taxpayers.

In urging this economy, Flood admitted on the floor that $12,700,000 or even half of that amount was "only chickenfeed" in these days of multibillion budgets. But the next Congress, since it hopes to cut taxes for low-income bracket earners, will try to plug every wasteful loophole.

A peculiar decision by the Civil Aeronautics Board, when it was controlled and dominated by the airplane lobby a few years ago, made possible this extra military mail pay tap on the taxpayers.

Against the recommendation of the Postmaster General and the Controller General, CAB ruled that military mail was not "property," and, therefore, it must pay the higher rate of 53 cents.

FOR REFLECTION

...with JAMES C. INGEBRETSEN President, Subitival Mobilization

"For the first time in history," Dr. Harry S. Broudy, visiting professor from Massachusetts at the University of Southern California, is quoted as having said in a recent interview, "automation will make the common man almost totally free."

"Our problems will be to invent distractions fast enough to keep pace with the increased leisure."

"The ultimate alternative can only be the cultivation of resources that will use up not just a person's leisure time, but a whole lifetime. . . . Are we willing to put as much effort in building ourselves as in distracting ourselves?"

That, I think, is a very important question. We should remember that, generally speaking, distraction results in subtraction. If we use our time in merely distracting ourselves, we are subtracting from what we might otherwise be.

Boredom is a symptom of a fatal maladjustment to life. If we can't bear life, life won't bear us.

All sub-human nature keeps its appointed course, fulfills its appointed purpose — and it is majestic. Only man, the crown of creation, refuses to live up to his responsibilities and privileges — insists on subtracting from instead of adding to himself — and he becomes pitiful in his self-imposed smallness.

If we were to put as much effort into building ourselves as we do into distracting ourselves, we might be almost as majestic as the rest of God's handiwork and at least approximate the purpose for which He created us.

"Property" which includes everything except mail, such as passengers and servicemen's household furniture, is carried at the 25-cent figure under CAB regulations that Hoover and Flood want to change, as does a majority on Capitol Hill.

Hitler bluffed and the free world let him get away with it. Tens of thousands of lives were sacrificed because of that. Now the Soviet Union is bluffing and, because of that bluff, the United States is refusing to send arms to Israel so the FREE PEOPLE THERE can defend themselves. When has yielding to a bluff ever paid off in anything but tears and sorrow? When will we ever learn?

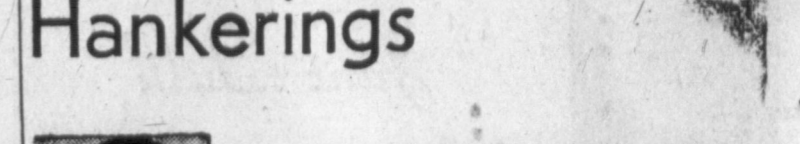

When Catholic churches throughout the world began praying, every Sunday, for an end to the Stalin tyranny, it seemed pretty hopeless. But now, with reports of a revival of the human spirit, even in Red China, it begins to seem that humanity's plight is much less hopeless. Sometimes we think God has forgotten us, when we have forgotten Him.

Mac's Driving Dreams Finally Come True

By HENRY McLEMORE

BAUMHOLDER, GERMANY — Walter Mitty would have envied me today.

For one whole hour every dream I have ever had of being on a highway where I was king — were trucks, trailers, and even taxicabs paid me homage — came true.

I asked Colonel Blair about its accuracy. "There isn't a more accurate gun in the world," he said. "We can drop a shell in a barrel, and we don't care whether it's raining or sunny, night or day. And like everything else in our army in Europe, our cannons are ready to roll at all times."

The only word for the cannon is awesome. When its giant tube begins to move forward and upward, with silent, oily, mechanical perfection, the effect is almost eerie. The firepower of the cannon, and its sinister sisters, is incalculable. In a short while they could project more explosive power than was laid down by all the bombers and all the artillery during the entire run of World War II.

The men of the 42nd FA Group wear an emblem emblazoned with the words "We Have The Power." They're not joking, either.

On one occasion we arrived at an intersection at the same time a fifty-two ton M-48 tank did. The tank came to a respectful and quick stop, and if it had had a hat I am sure it would have tipped it. As well it might, for if we had come to blows, so to speak, our 85 tons of steel would have been a cinch to have won by a knockout. And if the tank had gotten saucy, and elected to slug it out with firepower, well, it would have changed its mind when we swung our 42-foot barrel in its direction, and slipped a six-hundred pound projectile, with an atomic warhead, in the breach.

Hard as it is to believe, my ride with the massive atomic cannon was almost as comfortable as a sedan. Easier than most, in fact, what with their power steering and brakes.

"I wish it weren't against regulations to let you drive," I was told by the 42nd's commanding officer, Colonel John S. Blair, of Fitzwilliam, New Hampshire.

"Then you'd know that the stories of the cannon's unwieldiness are completely false."

The monster cannon, which can deliver a punch more devastating than the bomb which flattened Hiroshima, rolled along the Autobahn at 30 miles per hour at times, and, with no speed cops around, it can reach 45 m.p.h. It doesn't need an Autobahn to get about, though. It can tool along secondary roads, and negotiate the narrow streets and sharp turns of villages, thanks to the amazing flexibility of the transporters. And it doesn't have to stay on roads.

The cannons are on all maneuvers of our European Army, and go across country with the rest.

During my ride we went through streets that the jeeps and passenger cars use, and at the finish made a right angle turn through a gate as easily as if we had been riding in a sports car.

Our cannon belonged to Company "C" of the 26th battalion, and I was privileged to see it put through its paces by Lieutenant Richard Swinerton, Jr., of Princeton, N.J., and Sgt. Chester Johnson of Lexington, Ky. In time the result may be highly satisfactory.

SOMETIMES "desensitizing" is highly effective. Even when that cannot be done, treatment which is not aimed at the allergic cause may be remarkably successful.

Treatment of a sinus infection, for example, may help. Other treatments which have been included are the direct application of an iodized oil, the use of X-rays, and breathing gaseous mixtures containing oxygen and helium.

A. T., in a letter, says that when other methods failed, his doctor prescribed cortisone which brought complete relief. But as soon as it was stopped the asthma returned.

He asks particularly whether there is any danger in the continued use of cortisone and what qualities cortisone has which makes it effective against asthma.

One must answer that there is some danger in the continued use of cortisone and there are recognized complications which may come from it. It must therefore be used with care, though it certainly has value for some victims of asthma.

THE QUESTION on the quality in cortisone which makes it effective in asthma is indeed hard to answer. About all we know is that it appears to alter the reaction of the body in certain ways which may bring at least temporary relief in a number of diseases. However, further study will be necessary before it is known exactly how this preparation — or ACTH — acts.

Change of location or climate is sometimes desirable. Some asthma sufferers are helped by this and others are not.

Oilers Take Both Ends Of Doubleheader From Roswell

Rockets Fall By 5-1, 11-7 Scores

ROSWELL.—UP—The Pampa Oilers took both ends of a double header from the Roswell Rockets Sunday night by 5-1 and 11-7 scores. Only one home run was hit in the entire fourteen innings of baseball.

In the first game, Hoyt Benedict went the route for Pampa, while Gene Armstrong was tagged with the loss, going all the way. Pampa pitching in the second game was handled by Buddy Woods, with Bob Shipman coming on in the fourth to rack up credit for the win.

Hobbs Has Tight Lead In S'Western

Hobbs pitcher Ray Romero held Ballinger hitless for eight innings and then gave up only three hits as the Sports defeated the Westerners 8 to 2 last night to tighten Hobbs' almost unassailable lead in the Southwestern League.

In the first game, Jim Robbette had three singles for four appearances at the plate. In the second, Felix Guzman fanned his average with a triple, a double and two singles for five trips to the plate, and was credited with four runs batted in.

Former Boxing Champ Is Radio Disc Jockey Now

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE (Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.) By OSCAR FRALEY United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Rocky Graziano, the "Somebody Up There Likes Me" man, is hoping today that "somebody out there likes me."

The reason for the switch in the philosophy of the former middleweight champion is that today he took over a radio disc jockey show for a week. It's a sort of elimination bout with the winner among a half-dozen substitutes winding up as the permanent "artist."

"I wasn't this nervous the night I beat Tony Zale for the title," the Rock admitted, slipping momentarily from his new diction back to the old.

Actually, after a long series of television appearances, the Rock regards himself as a bonafide disc jockey. He is grateful for the chance which came his way and his voice roughens with emotion when he considers his rise from a tie-less ex-boxer to a well-dressed man about town.

"Appearing in front of people wasn't too tough because a fighter has to get used to people staring," he explains. "But what gets me is the fine way I've been accepted."

"In the old days," he recalls, "they cheered for me mostly when I was beating somebody's brains out. It was like being a freak, or sompin'. But when somebody pats me on the back now, I know they are looking on me as a human being."

It's a long way that the one-time thief, hoodlum and gutter fighter from the lower East Side has come. Certainly the Rock can be an example for other underprivileged and wrong-road youngsters.

"I learned to steal before I learned to read," admits the Rock, who at 34 finally has found the high road—his—these days. I guess my biggest dream was to be a big shot racket guy. Looking back, I know I've been real lucky."

Wives Hope Missing Airmen Still Alive

IWAKUNI, Japan (UP)—Courageous wives of the U.S. Navy airmen shot down last week off the coast of Communist China today expressed a deep pride in their missing husbands and a quiet, fervent hope they may still be alive.

Four wives whose husbands are still lost and one wife who already knows that hers is dead met the press at this naval air station for the first time since Communist planes shot down a U.S. Navy patrol plane with 16 men aboard early Thursday.

Seated in the quiet atmosphere of the base executive officer's home were Mrs. Beverly Deane, wife of Lt. (jg) James B. Deane, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. Dorothy Flood, wife of Lt. (jg) Francis A. Flood Jr., Chevy Chase Md.; Mrs. Frances Messinger, wife of AT2 Carl E. Messinger, Laredo, Mo.; Mrs. Ruth Hutchinson, wife of Lt. Cdr. Milton Hutchinson, Cumberland, R.I.; and Mrs. Elizabeth Jean Mattin, wife of AET-1 Albert P. Mattin, Delta, Ohio, the only man whose body has been found.

The wife of Lt. Cdr. James W. Ponsford of Long Beach, Calif., was the only one unable to attend the conference. She was still under a doctor's care.

The women, composed but showing the ordeal of the past four days, all wanted the "folks at home" to know they were all right. They also wanted everyone to know that they had "no regrets."

Mrs. Mattin, the only woman who knew for certain that her husband was dead, almost broke down as she spoke, but she caught herself in time.

"I am not despondent, and I have no regrets," she said almost inaudibly. "I'm very proud of my husband. I am sure he was willing to give his life for his country."

Workers Dig For Trapped Bodies

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UP)—Workmen tore at thousands of tons of earth at the base of the towering Pacific Palisades today for possible victims of a landslide that carried four women down a 150-foot cliff overlooking the Pacific Ocean.

Two of the women suffered fractured backs and two escaped serious injury in the sliding descent down the perpendicular bluff.

Witnesses of the mammoth slide told police that a car and its occupants may have been buried in 40 feet of earth.

The four women were picnicking in a park on top of the cliff Sunday when a 150-foot section of the bluff edge crumbled with a roar and carried them tumbling to within 15 feet of the six-lane coast highway at the bottom.

Mrs. Eugenie Baughman, 72, was nearly buried in the mass of sliding dirt, trees and picnic tables but managed to free herself with the help of bystanders.

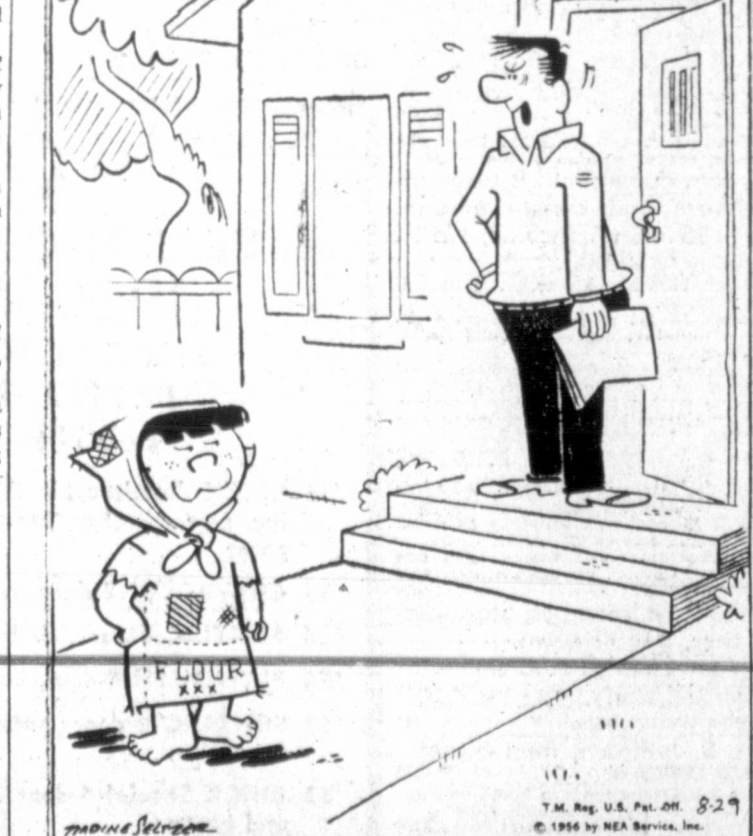

The other three picnickers were identified as Nora Haywood, 63, Maude Hankerson, 64, and Lucille Glenn, 48, all of Los Angeles. Mrs. Glenn and Mrs. Hankerson suffered spinal fractures. Their companions were given emergency treatment for shock, cuts and bruises and sent home.

Heavy earth-moving equipment was swung into action and man and machine worked through the night. Highway engineers hoped to have the busy highway cleared by late this afternoon.

At his home in Liberty, the 45-year-old Daniel said he was "very grateful and very humble" for his victory that kept his political record perfect. He has never lost an election. "Despite this close race, and the many things which were said and done against me, I shall try to be the governor for all the people of Texas and restore confidence, unity and harmony among a much larger majority of our people," Daniel said. Yarborough refused to concede defeat in his campaign headquarters in Austin, and it appeared likely that the election might be contested. "The people of Texas have risen to the very verge of victory against the concentrated opposition of nearly all the wealth of Texas, against the combined opposition of every big daily newspaper in every big city in Texas and against the opposition of a political machine which uses power and intimidation without restraint. "This is the finest hour that the people of Texas have experienced governmentally in half a century," Yarborough said.
