Still With Us

Nice little shower Sunday, wasn't it?

Which one?

Well, take any of them for instance, say the one about 3 p. m.

Oh, you didn't notice that one?

It rained all the time Sunday. It seemed like, did it? Personally, I liked the 3 o'clock one because it was very opportune.

That was about the time we were going down to the Big Spring baseball ballpark to see if the park was still there. Of course we didn't have a ball game in mind. We just wanted to see how far Bobby Decker would have to swim to steal second base or how much dirt would have to be added to the pitching mound to allow Clarence Trantham to pitch.

Nice duck weather, too, they say. Yeah, because the ducks fly low when the clouds are low but our source says all the ducks were browned and, anyway, our gun is being used as a water gauge on the south side of the house.

Apparently Chollie Barnabe's work back in April went for naught. The Barons are going to have to go back to training school to brush up on the fundamentals again. It's been so long.

Emmett Fullenwider, the Wink upstart who was drafted by the Lake Charles club of the Evangeline league two weeks ago, started off with a bang. He broke up two ball games in as many days.

Criscola, the San Antonio outfielder, is from Al Bernadi's section of the country, Yakima, Washington. He played for the Yakima Western International league when the Baron catcher was performing in a mummy league.

Al is also well acquainted with Jeff Heath, Cleveland's prize rookie. Heath plastered the permision at a 400 clip with a Yakima independent club before the Tribe signed him.

Get Tickets Early

Ducats for the all-star football classic of the sixth annual coaching school at Lubbock August 6 have been set at 75c with no extra charge for reserve seats if purchases are made in advance.

The North stars have captured the decision in the last three battles and the South will have plenty of material on hand to back up their claim of equality.

Such potent gridders as Harold Fleming, Wichita Falls; Dick Miller, Longview; Jim Wardy and Pat Lowrey, El Paso; Duell Weveto, Fort Arthur; Yurk Weason and Noble Doss, Temple; Walter Swanson, Austin; Nick Pappas, San Angelo; Lillius Virden, Abilene, will be seen in action.

"Fight Talk" And Transfusions Aid Galento's Fight

ORANGE, N. J., July 25 (AP)—A "fight talk" and two blood transfusions gave Tony Galento, No. 1 challenger for the heavyweight boxing crown, new vigor today in his bout with broncho-pneumonia.

"I'll kill that bum," Tony vowed.

TWO OUT OF THREE GEORGIA CANDIDATES DISLIKE NEW DEAL

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—The democratic senatorial primary in Georgia is producing unusual problems for administration politicians because two of the three candidates do not like Roosevelt policies.

This fact, many of these politicians believe, may push the president toward a direct endorsement of the new deal candidate, U. S. District Attorney Lawrence Camp, when he visits Georgia next month.

Camp is a virtual newcomer in state politics, but has been allied with the forces of Senator E. B. Russell, Jr., the other two candidates, Senator Walter F. George and former Governor Eugene Talmadge, have built up their own organizations in previous races.

First Guns Of Grid Season To Be Fired At Lubbock Coaching School

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

Associated Press Staff Writer

One month from today 600-odd teams will be taking the molecules from among the moth balls for the start of a football campaign that will eclipse in quantity any season in the 10-year history of the Texas intercollegiate league. One hundred eight class A teams will play.

First guns of the 1938 drive will be fired at Lubbock next week. One of the best 1937 race will stage an all-star game as a climax to the annual Texas high school coaching association coaching school.

The game is scheduled for the Texas Tech stadium the night of August 8.

W. C. Gidd, athletic director of the league, and Waldorf will direct the South team, composed of stars from the lower eight districts.

Last year the North won the game, 7-6, playing in 100-degree temperatures at Waco.

Ten members of last season's all-star team will participate, headed by such stars as Dick Miller of Longview and Harold Fleming of Wichita Falls, two of the finest of the state.

MIDLAND CARDS COME TO TOWN FOR THREE GAMES

Fight Appears To Be Between Bucs, Bruins

Pitt Wins Two Tough Ones From Bees, NY Loses To Chi

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer

Applying to baseball the old boxing theory that a hungry fighter is the one to back when everything else looks even, it appears that the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs are the teams that will do the real scrapping in the remainder of the National League pennant race.

The Pirates are sitting at the banquet table for the first time in more than a decade. Chicago hasn't tasted championship fare since 1905 while the New York Giants may be a trifle surfeited after two straight years of feasting. They may not realize it, but the old urge isn't quite as strong. They're no longer pennant hungry.

The difference has been showing up lately in the tough games, such as those two 15-inning affairs yesterday at Chicago and Pittsburgh.

The Cubs had just caught extra-base hits from the Giants, 5-4. After trying the count in the ninth, the Pirates did the safe thing against the Boston Bees by the same score in the first half of a doubleheader, then went on to win the six-inning nightcap, 4-2.

As a result, Pittsburgh increased its lead over New York to four games—six in the losing column—while the Cubs trailed the Giants by only a game and a half.

Stan Hack and Bill Lee were the big factors in Chicago's triumph, the 11th in 13 home games against eastern teams. Lee bested Carl Hubbell in a relief pitching duel, giving four hits over the last seven innings. Hack scored the tying run in the ninth and doubled home Billy Jurges with the winning cutout.

Tobin Stars in Relief

For Pittsburgh it was Jim Tobin, Gus Suhr and Johnny Rizzo. After Bob Klingner had been knocked out, Tobin blanked the Bees with five hits for eleven frames until successive doubles by Suhr and Rizzo broke up the game in the 16th. Three runs in the first and Ed Brandt's elbowing settled the second game.

Since the Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox were rained out, the rest of yesterday's program decided little. The New York Yankees maintained their one-game American league lead over Cleveland when two hits off Thornton Lee and a couple of Chicago errors brought a 2-0 victory over the White Sox before Chicago cut loose against Johnny Murphy in the eighth inning of the nightcap to win 8-3.

Detroit's Tigers won a doubleheader from Philadelphia, taking the first game, 7-6, on a six-run fifth inning marked by Hank Greenberg's homer with the bases full, and capturing the second 7-3.

Three other doubleheaders resulted in even splits. The St. Louis Browns beat out Washington, 4-2, then took an 11-1 drubbing. Cincinnati's four runs in the eighth bested the Phillies, 7-5, but Johnny Vander Meer's wildness gave Philadelphia the second game, 5-1. The St. Louis Cardinals edged out Brooklyn, 5-4, then were in turn edged out themselves, 3-2.

TEXARKANA WINS, MARSHALL FALLS

By The Associated Press

The Texarkana Liners, after a double victory over the Jacksonville Jack Sunday, journey to Henderson today to do battle with the Oilers.

Britain Horton, Texarkana hurler, held the Jax to four safes in the opening game yesterday for a 4-1 victory. Vernon Walker, Jax hurler, did the same for his club.

The Liners won the second game easily, 5-1.

Longview and Henderson split a doubleheader. The Oilers winning the first one, 12-4 and the Cannibals the second, 5-0.

Rain held Edgiers and Tyler to a one-game program, the Tylerites winning 2-1.

The Marshall Tigers dropped a doubleheader to the Palestine Pals, 4-0 and 4-3.

Problem Of Relief Is Acute In Baseball, And The Emergency Squad Is Always Ready

DICK COFFMAN MACE BROWN JOHNNY MURPHY

By the AP Feature Service

NEW YORK—One of baseball's axioms says a pennant-winning team must have a crack relief hurler.

That's about as true as the requisite of strength on the catcher-second base-center field axis.

And the front-running teams of both major leagues are up there partly because they have competent trouble-shooters—stout-hearted, strong-armed guys who march in from the bullpen to stem upslings against starting hurlers.

The Yankees bank on Johnny Murphy. When the cannonading begins the Pirates yelp for Mace Brown. Bill Terry of the Giants thumbs Dick Coffman to the mound when opposing batters get fresh with the offerings of Hubbell or Melton or Schumaker. And the Indians rely larger on Rookie Johnny Humphries.

That quartet, along with the veteran Charley Root of the Chicago Cubs and Pete Appleton of Washington, has enjoyed most success among the relief pitchers this season.

Let's take a look at these axes of the success squad:

Mace Stanley Brown of the Pirates—As the pennant races approached the August stretch he'd won 12 games, saved several others and lost three. His record was so good Terry used him in the All-Star game. He's 6 feet 1, weighs 190 pounds, 28 years old. He has been coming to the aid of Pittsburgh pitchers for three seasons.

John Joseph Murphy of the Yankees—With the season more than half finished, Irish Johnny has been beaten only once, boasts a 6-1 record. In addition to his half dozen triumphs, Murphy has saved 10 games for such axes as Lefty Gomez and Charley Ruffing. Johnny is 5 feet 2, 194 pounds, 30 years old. This is his fifth campaign as a reliever. His major-league record shows 52 victories as against 23 setbacks. Joe McCarthy figures he is too good a trouble-shooter to be given starting assignments.

John William Humphries of the Indians—He's a rookie who has won six and lost two. He is 6 feet 2, 185 pounds, 23 years old. He was the only Southern association pitcher to win 20 games last year. He pitched a no-hit game for New Orleans and in his next time out hurled a one-hitter.

Samuel Richard Coffman of the Giants—Dick came to the Giants after bouncing around the American league for many seasons. He is 6 feet 1, 170 pounds, 33 years old. He won eight and lost three for the Giants last year. His record for the first half of this season is four victories and one defeat. He's saved eight games.

And there's not a southpaw among these leading relief artists. They're all right handers.

McGuire Loses Out In Junior Tourney

Johnson Bags Honors With 2-1 Win

Local Youth Held Big Advantage In Morning Round

A belated rally failed to stand up and Wimpy McGuire, Big Spring, went down in defeat before steady firing of Jack Johnson, San Angelo, 2 and 1, Sunday in the scheduled 36-hole final of the West Texas Junior Golf tournament over the Municipal course Sunday afternoon.

The lead see-sawed throughout the duel. McGuire played his "hot-test" golf during the morning round and was four up at the finish of ten holes but Johnson knifed through the disadvantage, had cut three of those holes away at noon, and capturing the second 7-3.

Three other doubleheaders resulted in even splits. The St. Louis Browns beat out Washington, 4-2, then took an 11-1 drubbing. Cincinnati's four runs in the eighth bested the Phillies, 7-5, but Johnny Vander Meer's wildness gave Philadelphia the second game, 5-1. The St. Louis Cardinals edged out Brooklyn, 5-4, then were in turn edged out themselves, 3-2.

Ships Defeat Oilers Twice

Sports Drop Reidmen Into Cellar; Dallas Trims Houston

By The Associated Press

The San Antonio Missions and the Beaumont Exporters, each of whom gained double victories yesterday, were crowding the league-leading Tulsa Oilers today.

Beaumont downed Tulsa 12-2 and 2-1. The first game was loosely played because all-star players, returning from Saturday's game at Oklahoma City, were not in their posts.

The Missions beat Oklahoma City 2-1 twice, with classy pitching by Bill Strickland and Bob Moncrief.

Shreveport again emerged from the league cellar, dropping Fort Worth into the dungeon, 3-0.

Dallas defeated Houston 8-6 in a game featured by the relief pitching of Jelly Sorelle and the stick work of Blundy Trent, who homered with the bases loaded.

WICHITA FALLS, July 25 (AP)—The Fain-McGaha No. 1 L. W. McRory, prospective pool opener in Archer county, stood with 3000 feet of oil in the hole today and had indications of making a good producer.

The plug was drilled Saturday from a formation at 427-55 feet. The hole was cleaned out and bailed dry Sunday. Let stand overnight, oil filled the hole this morning.

Success of the test would mean a new productive area in Archer county, four miles east of the Hull-Silk discovery. It is in block 44, A T N C L survey.

EUEL MOORE IS LEADER IN 6-2 BERGER WIN

DENVER, July 25 (AP)—The Berger, Tex. Hubbers yesterday defeated the Denver Durr team 6-2 in the national semi-pro baseball tournament.

The Texans, with a five-run outburst in the fifth inning, made their way to the final game of the first round of play by the pitching of Euel Moore, former pitcher for Philadelphia in the National league, and the batting of Spencer, Stricker, Clark, Huffman and Robe. Robe accounted for two safeties in three times at bat.

MANY PROBLEMS WAITING FOR O'DANIEL AT AUSTIN; MAJOR ONE IS THAT OF FINANCES

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

FORT WORTH, July 25 (AP)—W. Lee O'Daniel will face many trying problems when he becomes governor of Texas.

When he assumes office early in January, his biggest job probably will be to straighten out state finances, something all governors in recent years have been trying to do, with varying results.

The general fund of the state treasury had a deficit of about $15,000,000. Expenses of the government had been growing by leaps and bounds. If O'Daniel's proposal to pay old age pensions to everyone over 65 should be put into effect, many millions additional outlay would be necessary. The state has never appropriated to make effective constitutional amendments to provide aid to needy blind and dependent children and to set up a retirement fund for school teachers.

Many people, therefore, have asked the questions where will O'Daniel find the money? In his campaign speeches, he usually has replied with another question, where are they getting the money now to pay the $150,000,000 expenses of government?

He has said no new taxes were needed, but that he thought many economies could be effected through consolidation and elimination of unnecessary departments of government. Also he has said there were too many job holders in the state capital and he would go over the payroll with a fine tooth comb and try to cut off all filled by "influence and pull."

Where To Cut Costs?

Apparently, however, most of the money for his program he expects, judging from his campaign speeches, to obtain through state industrial development and the increased yield from the taxes now levied.

The question has been asked by his opponents and others as to where he will cut expenses. About 70 per cent of the expenses of government go for operation of the state highway department and maintenance of the school system. The state has a vast highway system and sentiment of the people, as reflected in the legislature, in the past has been strongly in favor of a large highway building and maintenance program. Few ever try to go anything unfavorable to the schools. The state appropriations for schools, including aid to rural schools are the largest in history, and the school men say they need still more money because of growing demands.

Heavy outlay also is being made for the eleemosynary system, including insane asylums, but the state board of control, which supervises the system, says its needs have not yet been met. The number of insane in the state is increasing at a faster rate than the population as a whole, and because of inadequate facilities, there are many insane kept in jails because there is no other place to send them.

Pension Problems

There are now approximately 113,000 on the pension rolls. They are paid, on a basis of need, a total of about $10,000,000 a year. Official estimates are there are about 245,000 persons in Texas over 65 years of age who would be eligible for assistance if the need basis was removed. If they were paid $15 a month by the state, about $34,000,000 a year additional would be needed.

O'Daniel, in proposing $30 a month pensions, figured on the state paying $15 and the federal government $15. But the federal social security act is based on payments to needy. Therefore it might not agree to pay $15 to everyone in Texas, regardless of need, but would match only such state aid as it considered went to the needy. The state constitution limits state old age assistance payments to $15.

O'Daniel has said he expected to get along all right with the legislature because "I know how to get along with all men." Nevertheless, the senate is very jealous of its power, and has had some first class rows with governors.

In his campaign, O'Daniel has denounced "professional politicians" and called on the people to help him drive them out of Austin. The question is being asked, whether he will learn to compromise with the legislature, reconcile divergent views, as past governors have had to do. He admits he knows nothing of politics.

"Cleaning House"

With reference to "cleaning house" among jobholders in Austin, the governor does not have a great amount of power. Some of the heads of the most important departments are elected, for example, the state superintendent of public instruction, the commissioner of the general land office, the attorney general, the comptroller and the treasurer. These men fill the jobs in their own departments. Then, there are many commissions of several members who have overlapping terms, and the governor can appoint only one member every two years.

He does appoint the secretary of state, the labor commissioner and the adjutant general and certain other officials. And, of course, he wields considerable influence with all department heads if he gets along with them.

So far as appeared to the naked eye, O'Daniel has had little support among men who have long been in politics. He has waged war on "professional politicians." Governor Alfred has, however, been friendly to him. He does not know many members of the legislature.

READING AND WRITING

"BRASS TACKS," by A. G. Keller; (Knopf; $3).

The curious experience of meeting a genuinely progressive conservative awaits anyone who will read A. G. Keller's "Brass Tacks." And this is no self-contradictory expression.

Because Dr. Keller believes with definite reason in what we have been calling the "eternal verities" out of the corner of our mouths, in gentle derision. And he believes in them because he is forward looking as well as backward looking, and feels that he can prove that a truly intelligent and progressive policy for our future can only be based on an intelligent appreciation of the fact of life, as the world has known it up to now.

Dr. Keller pulls this past experience to pieces with the deliberation of an experimentally minded youngster tearing a dead butterfly to bits. This is for the sake of simplification, and this simplification shows him that life is based on three factors: the hunger-factor, covering the things which impel toward self-maintenance; the sex-factor, covering the side of life which begins with "lust" and runs through to parental sentiments; the luxury-factor, or the impul-sion which attends to such secondary needs as the comforts, the things desirable after a bare minimum existence is assured.

These factors have operated through all the history of the world, Dr. Keller shows. They have operated in certain ways which, he shows, are inevitable. To him, for example, the institution of private property is not a crime, as theoretically it is in Russia, but a necessity as, he suggests, Russia has found it to be of late.

Read this paragraph: "No one who has any conception of the exceeding complexity of a modern, or even a primitive, society—and that cannot be acquired by taking a hasty glance round about one—and of how all the standards run down to certain master-threads, can have the least confidence in those who propose radical alterations, especially if he can perceive an inkling of knowledge or experience, no any respect for either, in the mental outfit of the painters after clean sweeps, new dispensations, or complete reconstructions."

Dr. Keller arrives at this conclusion after 22 delightful pages of analysis as have been published in years.

Marjorie Whitaker and Laura Belle Underwood were in Haskell for the week end, the guests of Miss Whitaker's family.

Thank You! Voters of Howard County for the Splendid Support You Gave Me In the Primary Election Saturday. I Will Still Continue to Give You the Best Service We Can. Jess Slaughter (Paid Political Advertising)

Dear Diary — What a Summer this has been! Our family has never had so much fun. Picnics, and beach-parties, and trips, of course. But for the first time we've really enjoyed our home. Dad and Mother have done wonders. A new porch swing and gay cretonne covers for the furniture. A croquet set for the garden, shuffleboard in the garage. My room done over—I helped with that! A sand-pile and gym corner for Bobby. Mother is mildly amazed that all this cost so little. Dad takes credit for that—he's a rabid ad-reader, and when the time came know just what and where he could buy advantageously. Of course, I've always been thataway too! When one has such a small allowance one soon learns to do preliminary shopping in the newspaper advertisements. And I know it was that darling blue evening frock I bought "as advertised" that brought Midshipman Duncan to his knees! What a glorious Summer... Thanks to our favorite newspaper and its ads!

THANKS! Friends For Your Loyalty. I Regret That We Lost Our Votes. WALTON MORRISON (Paid Political Advertising)

THE PROBLEM OF STATE MEDICINE: Sharp dimension has arisen in the ranks of the medical profession as a result of the recommendation by a presidential committee that the government spend nearly a billion dollars for public health program which would involve eventually the establishment of what usually is termed "state medicine."

State medicine has been under consideration for some time because it is so apparent that a great many people of the under-privileged classes are able to secure medical care only as it is given them gratuitously by the practitioners or provided through public relief agencies.

The government collects taxes from those able to pay and with the tax money buys for the people who are hungry. It is not so simple as that, however, when one approaches the problem of providing medical care for those who can not buy it.

There is a real need for improved facilities for giving medical attention to hundreds of thousands of persons who have difficulty in securing it, but the proposal for state medicine would apply to the situation in a manner which is worse than the disease. It is true when, instead of dissension and discord within the ranks, the medical profession should be a unit in its study of the many phases of the problem with a view to doing all within its power to meet all the obligations resting upon it without the intervention of the government.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann: (Mr. Lippmann's column is published as an informational and news feature. His views are personal and are not to be construed as necessarily reflecting the editorial opinion of The Herald.)

The Franco-British Combination: PARIS, July 25 — It would be too much to say that all the French and all the British now see eye to eye on the problems of Europe. For in both countries there are influential factors seeking for one reason or another to push their governments towards separate action.

British conservatives who would like to make an agreement with Hitler by giving him a free hand in eastern Europe. But today, largely as the result of the Austrian conquest, the great majority in both countries realize that the deadliest danger to both peoples is this disunion, that their paramount interest in these times is always to find a common policy and always to act together.

In order to act together each of the two partners is being compelled to modify somewhat its normal approach to European questions. Thus in regard to the crucial problem of Czechoslovakia, the French start with the traditional idea that the Czechs must be able to resist the creation of a Pan-German empire in eastern Europe.

But neither France nor Britain can afford to follow its traditional line. The French cannot risk war with Germany unless they are sure of British support. And the British cannot run the risk of having France destroyed as a great power. For then they would have no one to defend them on the Rhine.

This is very near to being a complete program on the most vital issue confronting Europe. It is not quite complete, however. For while it is certain that the British and French are agreed that there is a point at which the Czechs need concede no more, a point at which the Czechs are entitled to fight, and to be supported, it is not yet clear where that point is.

Man About Manhattan: by GEORGE TUCKER: OLD LYME, Conn. — Today is the day we say good bye to this lovely community and wander on back to the hot sidewalks of New York.

We are passing through dangerous days, and it would be foolish optimism to think the crisis is past and that the war is definitely averted for this season. But the prospects are better because the nations that oppose war are stronger than they were, and because they are no longer frightened.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds by ROBBIN COONS

By BASIL RATHBONE: HOLLYWOOD — "I liked the picture, didn't you?" "Yes, great entertainment, wasn't it?" "Cary Grant gave such a good performance."

"Katharine Hepburn was great, too." "Excellent photography." "George Cukor always directs his pictures with such a feeling of reality."

"And charm." "Give credit where credit is due," one says complacently to one's self and the picture, "those actors did a really good job, and the direction and photography and the musical score were all excellent. Everyone deserves credit!"

Everyone? Everyone. Yet seldom is public tribute paid to those in the many departments at the studios without whose expert skill, imagination, and hard work, neither acting, directing, nor photography could receive their full value in any picture.

The actor is most dependent of all. What one wears, the atmosphere of the sets in which one acts, the props one uses, are of vital importance to help create the moods so difficult to find in a business built up so much on pure mechanics.

I want to salute those grand workers who help us actors so purely, competently, silently. The designers, tailors, the cutters who make and fit a costume of any period with ease and skill, they are remarkable people. Expert, imaginative, patient beyond belief—often they have only a day or so in which to turn out the most elaborate costumes. And they have to be right! There are no re-takes for those artists.

Other unsung experts who rate orchids are the set-dressers and their ingenious crews. In "Robin Hood" and "If I Were King," castle walls are made and set up so that it is impossible to tell, even by touching them, that these walls give the appearance of age-old stone. Actually, they are reproduced to the most minute detail, even to cobwebs—cobwebs that were blown from a spray gun—but webs of inconceivable perfection.

And the property department—another no-re-take job! A bottle thrown at me in this same picture smashes a few inches from my face on a "stone" buttress. The bottle is a "break-away" made by an unseen artist of some mixture of resin. Of course it looks exactly like a wine bottle, but when it breaks and the pieces fly all over the place, some in one's face, they do not cut.

"Hey props!" is probably the most frequently heard pair of words on any set any day. — and "props" is always there, with everything the script requires and another thousand "emergency" things, from pins to sealing wax—and back again.

Behind the scenes of every business and profession are its unsung "heroes." But no one industry demands the infinite variety of experts who are literally behind the scenes in Hollywood. We "before-the-camera" people get our applause freely—and it is great. But it's time to have this chance to share it with those without whom there would be none for us.

Feeling Of Resentment: "You tell it good." "I'm tellin' you the truth!" "What's he want the valley for?" "I never said he did. I said he was after the ranch, an' I mean entire."

"Yeah, He'll be wantin' this valley though, as much if not more than any other part." Rathford's heavy features wrinkled in his glance, "Why?"

It was Ankrum's turn to smile. "Because if Claydell's aimin' to build a town when—and if—the railroad builds through this ranch, he'll be smart enough to see that this valley here will control one hell of a big section of this range."

"How do you figure that?" "The sheriff put his hand to his forehead and sent a roving glance out over the valley from rim to distant rim. There was a strange light in his smoky eyes when he turned them back to Ankrum. "You're right," he admitted softly. "I hadn't thought of that."

Ankrum, looking toward the house, saw Trone and Lee come out upon the veranda. Trone beckoned him curly, Ankrum left the sheriff and strode out into the sunlight that filled the yard. He saw Lee wave and knew the gesture was for Rathford and saw her coming toward him. They passed in the center of the yard. Ankrum would have attempted to make some explanation of the scene she had witnessed but she was lifted head and eyes that were filled with scorn.

A feeling of resentment welled up within him; not at Lee, but at the tricks of fate. At Rathford, who had been remembering now that Rathford and Lee had once been friendly. As he strode to the veranda, a passionate hatred of Tom Rathford tightened his grip on Ankrum. He wished that it were Rathford instead of Claydell who was out to smash the Rafter T; a wicked desire was surging through him to cross guns with the burly sheriff. Nothing, he felt, would give him so much pleasure as sight of the heavy figure pitching forward in the dust.

He paused at the veranda steps, looking up at Trone, expectantly. "You wanted me?" "I did," Trone's voice was curt. "What have you done about finding them rustlers?" "Nothing I can do, now. They've got your beef and they've vanished. I told you how they were working. There's nothing more that I can do unless they strike again."

"Well you can't be hangin' around wastin' your time. When I hire a man I expect him to get results." Ankrum stared at Trone in silence. Trone's eyes finally shifted; twin spots of color appeared in his cheeks. "When a man hires me he gets results. Any time you don't like my style you know what you can do. An' if you got any notions about wastin' your time, why I'll tell you right now I'll be well pleased to get off this range."

Trone stepped back a pace before the suppressed fury that he read in Ankrum's look. "Why—why, no, I wasn't figurin' on handin' you your time," he stammered. "This rustlin' has got me rattled. I reckon maybe I spoke a bit hasty-like. Streetin' Forget it, will you?"

Before Ankrum could answer the sudden pound of galloping hoofs rang out. He turned and his eyes flashed upward quickly, toward the valley rim. They caught a horseman driving a staggering horse. Like a madman the roving rider drove his pony down the valley floor, across upon the cattle coming on sprinting legs and kept on hitting. He reached the veranda panting. Hot wrath blazed from his eyes.

Trone grabbed the puncher by the shoulders; shook him. "What in blazes," he hissed, "has happened now?" "The man gulped panting, striving to catch his breath. He looked appealingly at Ankrum. "Take your time," Ankrum told him. Trone glared, but held his temper. Ankrum studied the rider. The man was known upon the pay roll as Ring-Legs. He was a bald-headed fellow with big buck teeth and squinty eyes. Just now those eyes were wide and filled with anger. Ankrum had assigned him to the southwest line camp with orders to keep his glance upon the cattle ranging there. Plainly, something had gone amiss or the man would not be here; equally plain was the fact that this was no ordinary trouble, or the man would not have come in the manner in which he had.

"I wasn't sure I'd make it!" said the man, still breathing fast. "What's happened?" Trone demanded. "Plenty! There was surveyors all up 'n' down our tank this mornin'. They was peerin' through them little telescopes they carries an' wakin' their hands an' all. I asked 'em what was the big idea, but all they'd say was that they was county surveyors follerin' orders."

LOVE ON THE RANGE

By Nelson C. Pitt

The Net Tightens CHAPTER 21: Ankrum's glance bent against Rathford speculatively. A blur of motion off to one side caught his attention. It was Betty walking hurriedly toward the house. He turned his glance back on the sheriff and caught the tag end of a scowl being ironed from the beefy cheeks. "What are you figurin' to do about it?"

"Do? There ain't nothin' that I can do—yet. I've got to wait till Claydell comes out into the open. He's a slick one; he'll be right careful not to tip his hand."

"Must have tipped it already. You got onto him." "I got onto him, yeah, but from another angle Claydell ain't tipped nothin' an' likely won't. Trone's due to have his hair lifted."

Ankrum's brows raised slightly. "If you think that, why don't you do something? Ain't that what you're packin' that star for?" "Listen," Rathford said. "A sheriff can't act until a crime's committed. When Claydell grabs this ranch, I'll have him, an' believe me, I'll see that he gets the limit! I'm bettin' he's the damn back-biter that's spreadin' these yarns about me bein' out to even up with Trone!"

"What have you done about that Dream killing? Pounded the fellow that fired the shot yet?" "The sheriff's heavy lips curled grimly. "I won't have to go very far to put my hand on him."

"That's interesting." Ankrum said. "I never did cotton to the sort of hombra that start their smokin' when a fellow isn't lookin'. When you're ready to go after him, let me know. I'd like to lend a hand."

Rathford's eyes stared back unblinking. "I'll see that you're around." "By the way, have you heard any more about that gun man, Bander, who was tellin' me about?" Ankrum asked.

Rathford nodded with what seemed to Ankrum an odd reluctance. "Yeah, He's not only arrived, Streeter, but he's bedded down snug as an old houn' dog with Claydell."

Ankrum's muscles stiffened. If this were true it would account in part for Rathford's thinking Claydell the power behind the things that were happening here. In fact, if this were true it might well be that the sheriff was right in thinking Claydell the man who was out to smash the Rafter T. And if Claydell was the man, it was high time something was done to put a halt to his activity.

They were taken to bring him into the open. Plainly here was something to think about! "What did you say gave you the idea Claydell is figurin' on a railroad coming through here?" Rathford grinned. "I didn't say. But I don't mind tellin' you I got a couple of his men—higher-ups. He's only figurin' on a road comin' through here, but aims to build a town n' half an' out-side this valley. His idea is that a railroad will make a boom. He plans to have a bank, two or three good-sized saloons, ten or twelve stores, corral and shipping pens, chutes and squeeze. With a town like that taking his orders he'll be a king in this section. He's got vision an' a hell of a lot of nerve. He'll smash Trone flatterin' a pancake—he's got to have his ranch."

Behind the scenes of every business and profession are its unsung "heroes." But no one industry demands the infinite variety of experts who are literally behind the scenes in Hollywood. We "before-the-camera" people get our applause freely—and it is great. But it's time to have this chance to share it with those without whom there would be none for us.

verse effect upon the full measure of national recovery so ardently desired by all.

Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman, former federal co-ordinator of transportation, said: "It is probably unnecessary to say that an increase in railroad rates cannot furnish an adequate answer to our transportation problem. At best it is only a palliative, and whether it is even that remains to be seen."

Commissioner William E. Lee said in his comments on the freight rate case that "a permanent remedy for the ills of the railroads does not lie solely in increasing their rates."

Commissioner Carroll Miller, at the same time, declared that "rate increases can by no means solve the railroad problem."

In an opinion written when the commission authorized the coach fare rate increase, Commissioner Claude R. Porter declared:

"No other industry in the throes of a depression and in the face of vigorous competition seeks to raise the price of what it sells to the public. It may be that railroads are immune from ordinary economic laws. I doubt it. It might be said that if the railroads are bent on committing suicide, why should we try to prevent them? I still believe we owe a duty to the public and for that reason must register my dissent."

In another case, Commissioner Balthasar H. Meyer said it was his opinion that "there is no other way out of the present railroad situation than to co-ordinate its operation within itself and with other agencies."

On the other hand, Commissioner Charles D. Mahaffie consistently has supported rate increases. "It has been strongly urged that in asking these increases the carriers are foolish because the result of increased rates will be less traffic and less revenue," he said in the freight rate case. "In the past the carriers have gone far to meet competition, and by rate reductions, where necessary, to try to hold traffic to the rails. I see no reason to doubt that the same self-interest that has led to that course of action heretofore will compel its continuance."

"In this proceeding the carriers are seeking an opportunity to earn their living. Whether they generally can do so at any level of rates may be open to question. But so long as the country requires and utilizes their services they should have that chance."

the selection of a site of the veterans' hospital.

The directors unanimously voted to incorporate the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce under the laws of the State of Texas. A treasurer for the new corporation, to be without capital stock, was chosen. Ira L. Thurman was unanimously elected. Formal application for a charter will be filed immediately.

Directors in attendance were J. H. Greene, manager; Colvin Boykin, Cliff Wiley, Albert Darby, Joe B. Harrison, Merle J. Stewart, Carl S. Blomshield, E. O. Ellington, Ted Groob, W. T. Strang, Jr., Joe Galbraith, Miss Lora Farnsworth, Howard county home demonstrator, Miss Mary Wilma Riddle and Miss Wynelle Jones, of Knott, were guests of the body.

Scouts Delay Camp A week

Postponement Called On Account Of Weather

Departure of approximately 65 scouts for the annual summer camp of the Buffalo Trail council has been delayed one week under an announcement by C. S. Blomshield, council camping chairman. Blomshield made the announcement Sunday after conferring with Al J. Stiles, area executive who has been on the grounds checking the camping area following heavy rains.

While the camp is unhurt by high water, the highway south of Rock Springs has been temporarily closed, thus making it impossible for cars to get to Barkdale where the camp is held.

Camp now will be opened on Aug. 2 for a two weeks stand. Blomshield said. Stiles advised that "everything is in readiness for the opening" and expressed the hope that the delay would make it possible for additional boys to register for the camp.

Plans previously had been made to leave here Tuesday morning with a contingent of scouts from Big Spring troops.

Hospital Notes

Big Spring Hospital

James L. Oliver of Westbrook and Cleo Haston of Wichita Falls, both truck drivers, were treated for minor injuries at the hospital Sunday. They were injured Saturday afternoon in a truck collision. Harold A. Slinger of Goldsmith was in the hospital Sunday for examination.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Branham of Forsan, at the hospital Sunday morning, a daughter. Mother and child are doing nicely.

Miss Anne Neely of Kermit underwent an eye operation at the hospital Monday morning.

Mrs. Myrtle Moore of Stanton underwent major surgery at the hospital Sunday morning.

Mrs. W. R. Hull, 508 Northwest Tenth street, returned to her home Monday, after being in the hospital for major surgery performed ten days ago.

Engineer Due To View Sites For Hospital

Accompanied by a local delegation that went to Sweetwater to contact him, C. H. Stratton, engineer for the Veterans' administration, was due to arrive here Monday afternoon to inspect sites offered in the city's bid for a new veterans' hospital.

Dr. P. W. Malone, president of the chamber of commerce, E. Reagan, R. R. McEwen, commander of the Howard county American Legion post, and George Mahon, representative of the 18th district, were in Sweetwater to meet Stratton.

Stratton was at Sweetwater to view sites offered by that city and under special order by the Veterans' administration was ordered to Big Spring to make an inspection here. The local chamber of commerce committee assigned to show him sites also will take him to San Angelo where he will work Tuesday.

Big Spring was not included in the first list of towns to be inspected. An allotment of $1,435,000 is available for construction of the hospital, $60,000 of which is available for the purchase of a site which must be at least 200 acres large.

STREET REPAIR IS DELAYED BY RAINS

Extensive repair of city streets, damaged by the heaviest July rains in nearly four decades, was further delayed Monday by more showers.

City Manager E. V. Spence said that while some of the worst spots were being patched, heavy work was being forestalled by more rain.

"Because the ground was soaked, the damage has been particularly heavy," he said. "But as rapidly as we are able, we will work on the streets. We only ask that the public be patient, for covering 80 miles of dirt road is no easy task."

In Conference On Water Line Survey

Marvin Nichols, hydraulic engineer retained to survey a route from Big Spring to a proposed dam site on the north Concho river, conferred with city officials here Monday.

Difficulties encountered in getting through hills near the Concho were apparently solved by a route around the worst of the broken country. The survey, it was estimated, is approximately half finished.

A meeting of the commission early this week is expected in order that provision may be made for starting of work on an elevated pressure tank to hold a $225,000 PWA allotment to the city for water works improvements.

O'DANIEL NO COLFER OR FISHERMAN

FORT WORTH, July 25 (AP)—If love of fishing is a necessary qualification, W. Lee O'Daniel, democratic nominee for governor of Texas, will never be president.

He doesn't like to fish. He has played golf, but quit it.

"The greatest pleasures in my life have come from association with my family and my work," he said.

He Prayed For Flier's Oil Feed

OCEAN PARK, Calif., July 25 (AP)—The Rev. S. Fraser Langford, whose prayers are the hind fear to an aviator's heart, packed today to fly to New York to welcome his ocean-hopping nephew, Douglas Corrigan.

Oh, God, take care of Douglas, and may nothing go wrong with his oil feed," was the way the Rev. Langford phrased his devotions during Corrigan's epic flight, he told a capacity congregation at the First Baptist church here yesterday.

VANDENBERG CLAIMS FD AFTER 3RD TERM

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) expressed the opinion today that President Roosevelt would seek a third term.

"I expect him to try," Vandenberg said, "but I do not expect him to succeed."

The statement was contained in a letter which the senator wrote to a Michigan constituent and which was made public by a friend here. It came in the midst of speculation over third term possibilities.

Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan declared in a speech at Traverse City, Mich., yesterday that "we may have to draft the president for four more years of leadership."

Calls For Minimum Wages For Steel

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Philip Murray, chairman of the steel workers organizing committee, complained today that Republic and Bethlehem steel corporations "tatten themselves on lucrative government contracts" by cutting wages.

Since they do not pay wages as high as competitors, the C. I. O. leader said, they can offer lower bids—and thus obtain the government business.

Murray made the charge while asking that the labor department set minimum wages in the steel and iron industry at from 45 to 62 1-2 cents an hour. He suggested geographical differentials.

WOULD CONTINUE MONETARY ACCORD

PARIS, July 25 (AP)—Treasury heads of the United States and France, following a conference today, issued a declaration of their "mutual desire to assure the maintenance" of the tripartite monetary accord.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., secretary of the treasury of the United States, and Paul Magendieu, French finance minister, announced their talk dealt with the accord of September 25, 1936, in which Britain joined their two countries in an undertaking to maintain currency stability.

SCHOOL TRANSFERS MUST BE IN AUG. 1

County Superintendent Anne Martin reminded patrons again Monday that Aug. 1 is the deadline for making transfers on school-ists.

With the deadline only a week away, she urged that all persons contemplating a transfer for their children notify her office at once.

BACK FROM VACATION

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Boyd and children have returned from a two weeks' vacation spent in Chicago and also Florida. Mr. Boyd is assistant manager of Montgomery Ward store in Big Spring.

Rioting In Wake Of Attempt On Life Of Gov. Winfield

PONCE, Puerto Rico, July 25 (AP)—At least 20 persons were injured, some seriously, today in an exchange of shots which followed an unsuccessful attempt on the life of Major-General Blanton Winship, governor of Puerto Rico.

Rioting broke out while the streets were choked with crowds watching a parade.

Governor Winship was fired on as he stood in the reviewing stand with other executives of the island government. He remained in the stand and the parade continued.

Several suspects were held. Others escaped but detectives said they knew who the rioters were.

GET BUSY, BEES

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—The agriculture department received sweet news today: there is no surplus of honey.

Officials said a check-up on supplies showed that virtually all the 1937 crop had been consumed. This put honey in the class of a very few farm commodities.

Large quantities of honey are now used in making golf balls, shaving cream, in curing hams and tobacco pipes, and in making cosmetics, candles, polishes and insulation.

SAFE IN FLOOD AREA

Mrs. Tracy T. Smith and children, vacationing in the flooded Brady area, were reported safe Monday. Tracy Smith, alarmed by the reports of mounting destruction in the vicinity of where his family was camped, left here Saturday. Several Big Spring people have relatives at Brady, San Saba, and Menard, but as far as could be learned, all are safe.

CRASH INJURES THREE

HAIRD, July 25 (AP)—Three persons were injured, one critically, in an automobile collision five miles west of here last night. George M. Sifton was in a critical condition. Carl Billingsley and Luther Pittman suffered face cuts. All are from Dublin. They were returning home from Abilene at the time of the accident. Billingsley is an aviator.

TWO IMPROVED

Mrs. D. W. Smith and daughter Billy Jean, 7, were reported improved Sunday noon at the Bivings hospital, where they have been for treatment since the automobile accident last Monday on the east highway. Billy Jean, who has been unconscious since the accident, is conscious part of the time.

O'Daniel didn't own a poll tax. He had been "disgusted" with "professional politicians" and didn't know of anyone he cared to vote for.

Other Contests

Former Southern Methodist football star and secretary of state Gerald Mann, still another young man making his bow in elective office scramble, gave Lieut. Gov. Walter Wood a close run in the attorney's race and slipped easily into the runoff.

Incumbent Judge Ben Criss lagged behind W. H. Davidson of Beaumont by a close margin but edged into a runoff for associate justice, supreme court. Other runoffs included:

Lieutenant - Governor: Pierce Brooks, Dallas, and Coke Stevenson, Junction.

Railroad Commissioner: C. V. Terrell, the incumbent, and G. A. Sadler, Longview.

Judge of court of criminal appeals, unexpired term: Harry N. Graves, appointee of Gov. Allred, and James A. Stephens, Benjamin.

Land Commissioner: Wm. H. McDonald, incumbent, and Bascom Giles.

S. American Plane Crashes In Crowd; Crashes In Crowd; Crashes In Crowd

BOGOTA, Colombia, July 25 (AP)—Doctors today fixed at 50 the probable toll of lives taken by a stunt military plane which plowed into the center of a crowd of 50,000 and burned during a military review Sunday.

At least 24 persons were killed outright, including the pilot. Eight women and 13 men were among the identified victims.

Identifications were difficult because the bodies were mangled badly, however, and saddened crowds waited through the night before hospital doors where 150 injured were taken.

Fatally injured among them, physicians said, would account for an increasing death toll.

The heads of some of the victims were severed by the propellers of the plane, which speeded at 90 feet above the new military field, Camp De Marte, side-slipped suddenly and dropped into the crowd.

not hold up west. There are two good men left; and while not trying to tell my friends how to vote, I think it proper to say that I shall vote for Collings in the runoff primary."

Saturday's vote was the largest on record for Howard county. The 5,209 votes received by O. C. Funderburk in his unopposed race for associate justice of the court of civil appeals was more than 1,000 above the 4,300 polled in the first democratic primary of 1936. The county's vote was even larger, since approximately 5,500 people marched to the polls. Mutilation of ballots and disqualification to vote on all candidates accounted for the disparity between the total cast and the highest vote on the ticket.

Returns were generally slower in being reported than in past years, partly due to the long ballot and bad weather conditions which delayed reporting from rural sections. Box No. 4, reporting at 2 p. m. Sunday, was the last to come in. Box No. 3, containing less than half the county's total vote, was reported complete before 5 a. m. Sunday.

Convention Saturday

So far as could be learned, there were no precinct conventions held Saturday. However, the county democratic executive committee will convene Saturday to make a complete and official check on returns. The county democratic convention is scheduled to be held the same day.

Candidates, successful and defeated, were filing their last expense accounts Monday and have until Aug. 3 to place them with County Clerk R. L. Warren. On the same date first expense accounts for the second primary may be filed. Absentee voting will begin on Aug. 7.

Abilene Dam Threatened

Abilene, in West Texas, also reported flood conditions. People residing below the partially completed Fort Phantom Hill dam, 13 miles northeast of Abilene, were warned to evacuate as waters from Elm creek threatened the project.

The body of M. E. Hensley, who drowned near Menard, was recovered today. The body of his wife had not been recovered. They were the only victims of the flood so far.

H. O. Timmins of the San Saba chapter of the Red Cross learned by telephone that 20 to 40 families were marooned 5 miles southeast of San Saba on the Colorado, but that they were in no immediate danger.

San Saba was completely isolated this morning when the approaches to Wright's bridge over a creek four miles north of Llano were washed out. Since Saturday this had been the only route open.

Today a single telephone circuit was San Saba's outside communication connection.

State officers said they believed all marooned persons had been rescued. Twenty-three were taken from roof-tops and trees yesterday.

An early estimate of damage placed it at $2,000,000.

The San Saba water works continued out of commission, but highway department employees hauled in fresh supplies from wells and cisterns.

The Red Cross set up a soup kitchen, and the 300 homeless were housed in churches, the courthouse and a large warehouse.
