President Eisenhower, Nixon Take Oath Of Office

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today pledged the second term of his administration to energetic pursuit of world peace. He promised to seek the creation of an international climate in which "the nations cease to live in trembling before the menace of force."

strated to the world "the readiness of men who love freedom to pledge their lives to that love." Takes Second Oath Mr. Eisenhower spoke before massed thousands in front of the Capitol building shortly after he and Vice President Richard M. Nixon publicly took their oaths of office. The oath-taking was a repetition of the private ceremony held Sunday in the White House before 80 relatives and close friends of the 66-year-old President and the 44-year-old vice president.

divided world," the President said. "Thus may the nations cease to live in trembling before the menace of force. Thus may the weight of fear and the weight of arms be taken from the burdened shoulders of mankind." The Russian People The President made a particular point of extending an expression of potential American friendship to the people of Russia. He did not, however, include the leaders of the Soviet Union in this friendly phase of his message.

responsibility extending far beyond the borders of a single country. He said that the economic needs of all countries made isolation "an impossibility." "Not even America's prosperity could long survive if other nations did not also prosper," he said. "No nation can longer be a fortress, lone and strong and safe. And any people seeking such shelter for themselves, can now build only their prison."

"We look upon this shaken earth," he said, "and we declare our firm and fixed purpose—the building of a peace with justice in a world where moral law prevails." "The building of such a peace is a bold and solemn purpose. To proclaim it is easy. To serve it will be hard. And to attain it, we must be aware of its full meaning and ready to pay its full price." He said the possession of powerful modern weapons could not in itself assure peace—peace must be rooted in the lives of nations through justice and law "steadily invoked and respected by all nations."

"We seek neither their military aid nor any artificial imitation of our society," he said. "But they can know the warmth of the welcome that awaits them when, as must be, they join again the ranks of freedom." Washington wore a Mardi Gras air for democracy's biggest show. Old Glory and flags of the 48 states decorated the streets. Vendors hawked tie buttons and souvenir programs. Refreshment stands sprouted like canvas mushrooms in the city's manicured parks.

Administration sources said Mr. Eisenhower wanted the speech to reflect his deep concern over the threat of inflation at home and his belief that business, labor and all Americans must exercise self-discipline to head off a wage-price spiral. It also bespoke his fervent desire for his first term in building a firm foundation for peace on strong defenses against Communist aggression.

Today's Ceremony A Re-Take Except for the President's address, today's inaugural ceremony was essentially a re-take, for public consumption of the actual swearing-in which took place in the presence of 80 relatives and close friends in the East Room of the White House shortly after 10 a.m. Sunday. That was more than a dress rehearsal for today's public, televised ceremony; it was a legal necessity. Legal experts decreed the White House oath-taking because the President and vice president's first terms officially expired at noon Sunday. But because it was Sunday, Mr. Eisenhower decided to postpone the public ceremony and attendant festivities until today.

Their Families Share Spotlight With Ike, Dick

WASHINGTON (UP)—Two proud wives and five wide-eyed youngsters shared today's inaugural spotlight with President Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon. A happy Mamie Eisenhower, facing a day which won't end until the wee hours after four inaugural balls, had three of her grandchildren close by to watch her husband take the presidential oath for the second time. With them were Mrs. Richard M. Nixon and her two daughters, Patricia, 10, and eight-year-old Julie, who was still shy over the remains of a black eye caused by a sledding mishap.

Reporters and news photographers were barred from the ceremonies in the East Room of the Executive Mansion, but were given an official description afterward by White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerly. Attend Church Services Before the swearing in, the President and his wife, accompanied by their son and daughter-in-law, Maj. and Mrs. John S. Eisenhower, had attended services at the National Presbyterian Church with other high government officials. The pastor, the Rev. Edward L. R. Elson, said special prayers for the President and vice president, plus a special prayer for world peace.

The Eisenhower family arrived back at the White House a few minutes after 10 a.m. A few minutes later they walked arm-in-arm to the East Room. The families and friends of the two principals were lined up around the room. Waiting in the center were the Nixons, Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.), Chief Justice Earl Warren and Frank W. Sanderson, White House administrative officer. Then Warren, dressed in a dark

Austria Drafts Protest In Border-Crossing Incident

By CHARLES W. RIDLEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
VIENNA (UP)—The Austrian government was reported drafting today a strong protest against the "invasion" by armed Communist Hungarian border guards in pursuit of refugees from their Soviet dominated homeland.

At least 30 Hungarian guards crossed about 200 feet into Austria Sunday and opened fire on 20 men, women and children who had slipped through the Iron Curtain. All but one were herded back into Hungary.

The one Hungarian to escape reached freedom with a Communist bullet in his back. He identified himself as a former Hungarian soldier who fought against Soviet tanks and troops in the battle of Budapest. It was the first violation since Nov. 23 when three Russian soldiers chased a Hungarian girl refugee into Austria. Austrian border guards shot and killed one of the Russians and captured another. The new incident had dangerous political implications for Austria which has opened its frontiers to nearly 170,000 refugees since the October freedom revolt erupted in Hungary.

Mothers' March On Polio Set Tonight

Members of the PTA, all carrying properly labelled containers and identification, will patrol the city's streets tonight starting at 7 o'clock in the annual Mothers' March on polio. At that time, all persons wanting to contribute to the March of Dimes campaign may do so by leaving their porch light on, which will show the mothers that a donation is intended. They will call for donations at each house where the porch light is on. This team of workers will be captained by the PTA president of each school, according to Mrs. L. L. Milliren, council president of the PTA.

Team captains are Mmes. Russell Holloway, Sam Houston; T. C. Owen, Woodrow Wilson; Floyd Barrett, Lamar; Ott Shewmaker, Horace Mann; J. H. Trotter, Baker; Jimmy Cox, Hopkins; and Alma Coleman, Carver.

In return for donations, the mothers will leave information and record cards on the Salk vaccine so that accurate data may be obtained and a record kept on all polio shots.

Three-Way MOD Drive Successful

The three-way drive to raise funds for the local March of Dimes yesterday should net "around $4,000," according to Rev. Ed Hall, chairman of the campaign. A telephone, radio, radio-TV, and TV-thon, all three were used yesterday. The telephone-thon, in which high school girls' clubs telephoned local persons asking for contributions, netted around 35 percent of the total, Rev. Hall said. He added that the radio-thon, conducted over both stations KPFD and KPAT, was highly successful. The TV-thon was held in conjunction with other towns in the Panhandle over KPDA-TV in Amarillo.

Rev. Hall reported that $2,122.22 in cash was taken in and that pledges amounted to $1,228.25. The pledges were either to be brought in or mailed in to the March of Dimes, in the Pampa Chamber of Commerce offices. In addition, Rev. Hall said, the collectors ran out of time last night and several people called in promising to give $273.75 that there was no time to collect. Also, he reported, an undetermined

Ordinance And Bids Are Due In Commission

The hearing on the zoning of East Fraser addition No. 2, Fraser Annex and one lot in Sawyer Addition will be continued tomorrow morning by the city commission. The hearing was opened last week but the commissioners felt that additional property owners in that area affected should be allowed to state their opinions on the zoning of the areas as semi-commercial and the hearing was continued until tomorrow.

The commission is expected to take action on the bids received last week for the construction of a water booster station south of Pampa and for the addition of pumps and other equipment to the booster station located on S. Hobart street. Three bids were received last week but no action was taken on awarding the contract pending further study by city officials and engineers. Firms entering bids were: Foran Construction Company of Amarillo, $178,491.03; S. G. Stockton Construction Company of Amarillo, $188,530; and Brodie Construction Company of Amarillo, $195,711.80.

The commission has ten days after opening of the bids to either accept or reject any of them and award the contract. In other action the commission is before they could report to the police headquarters for duty. This ruined the last inaugural record when not a single pickpocket report was made. The better class of pickpockets these days has gone into con games and the fraudulent check writing, police said.

Millionaires and near-millionaires arrived for the inauguration in their private planes. Among them were John Hay (Jack) Whitely, newly appointed ambassador to Great Britain, movie star Gene Autry, oilman Sid Richardson and Henry Ford II.

A man who could have covered the 2.5-mile inaugural parade route in a matter of seconds was slowed to the pace of ordinary marching units. Maj. Clyde A. Curtin, Victoria, Tex., was selected to ride in the Air Force's new supersonic F-104 jet fighter, but all he had to do was sit because the plane was towed, not flown, along the parade route. Maj. Curtin, 36, one of the youngest command pilots in the Air Force, flew 137 missions in Korea and shot down five Russian-built MIG 15s.

The Secret Service didn't exactly disarm movie cowboy Monty Montana for this year's parade, but it made him promise not to use his lasso. Four years ago, Montana gave Mr. Eisenhower's bodyguards a bad time by throwing his lasso around the President as he rode by the reviewing stand on his fancy horse.

Gomulka Banishes Last Of Stalinists

By ANTHONY J. CAVENTISH
United Press Staff Correspondent
WARSAW (UP)—Communist Party Leader Wladyslaw Gomulka, fortified by his victory in Sunday's national elections, is expected today to waste little time in sweeping out the last of the die-hard Stalinists from party ranks. Official results of the parliamentary elections will not be known until Tuesday. But all indications

Capitol Hill Roundup

WASHINGTON (UP)—Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. says President Eisenhower wants Congress to authorize a permanent anti-Communist refugee program. Brownell said the program would: 1. Cover admission of refugees from Communist terror in all Iron Curtain nations. 2. Permit admission of a "certain" number each year—the number to be set annually by Congress. The program also is expected to include a request for authorization to admit many more thousands of Hungarian refugees.

Brownell outlined it Sunday during a televised interview. It is scheduled to be submitted to Congress in the near future. Inaugural: The House and Senate called late morning sessions prior to the presidential inauguration. However, they were expected to transact little business before recessing to attend the ceremonies.

Southerners: Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) said the Southern Democratic leadership in Congress fails to represent the Democratic Party or the people. He said he would "be very happy" if some unnamed Southern conservatives left the party.

Racketeering: Sen. Karl E. Mundt hoped the AFL-CIO Executive Board would instruct officials of the Teamsters Union to cooperate with a Senate labor racketeering investigation. A group of Teamsters officials has refused to answer subcommittee questions. If it comes from a Hardware Store, we have H. Lewis Hdw. (Adv.)

Three Receive Injuries In Accident On Saturday Night

Three collisions within the city limits were reported Saturday night with three persons receiving serious injuries in one of the collisions. James Gotcher of Pampa, Malcolm A. Dalrymple of Lefors and Laura Richmond of Lefors received injuries when the cars in which they were riding collided on Hobart, 620 feet south of Kentucky at 8:40 p. m.

Investigating officers reported that a '51 Chevrolet, driven by Dalrymple, pulled from the driveway on the southside of Highland General Hospital into the path of a '52 Oldsmobile driven by Gotcher. Laura Richmond was a passenger in the Dalrymple car. All three were taken to Highland General Hospital for treatment of injuries and no report was available this morning on their condition. Both automobiles were listed as being demolished. At 7:15 p. m. Saturday the first of the three collisions occurred on Atchison, 33 feet west of Russell.

HOTEL DIRECTORS SET MEET HERE TOMORROW

The board of directors of the newly formed Pampa Community Hotel Company will meet tomorrow at which time it is likely that they will be in a position to select an architect to work with the board on plans for the hotel, according to George Cree Jr., president of the company. Cree said that at this time also, reports will be heard from the several committees on the work ahead of them, and he added his comment that good progress is being made by them.

Money Lenders Getting Extra Premium Payments

WASHINGTON (UP) — Money lenders more and more are demanding — and getting — extra premium payments for loans they make on home mortgages.

The practice is most prevalent on VA and FHA loans — which carry fixed interest rates but are guaranteed by the government. But it also is being applied to some extent in conventional loans, especially construction loans, although the "money market" supply and demand supposedly determines the interest rate.

Here is how the premium system works: — Lenders charge the home builder or seller an extra fee for the mortgage loan which the lender makes to the buyer. They refer to this charge as "points" to avoid the distasteful words "per cent" or "fee."

A nationwide United Press survey shows that the fee runs as high as 10 per cent (or points) of the loan itself. This fee is over and above the interest rate which the lender collects from the buyer on the mortgage itself.

But it doesn't stop there. The home buyer himself often pays a one per cent fee for obtaining a VA or FHA mortgage loan.

Furthermore, in instances where the "point" fees are added to the cost of the house, the buyer has to pay more in the long run because he is paying interest — over many years — on an inflated price.

Lenders justify the "point" system or extra fees, arguing that they have to do this to get what they consider a "fair" return on the money they invest in home mortgages.

The system, though legal, has been denounced in and out of Congress as "gouging — or worse."

Busy Newark
NEWARK, N. J. (UP) — Newark Airport handled more than two million air passengers in 1956 for the first time in its history. It was estimated that approximately 2,198,000 persons passed through the terminal during the 12 months. This figure is exclusive of helicopter passengers who numbered some 25,000.

Self-help
KENT, O. (UP) — Mayor Raymond Manchester, 73, not only brought about the establishment of municipal court sessions here, eliminating a mayor's court, but also built the court bench with a do-it-yourself kit.

Some have said it is tantamount to usury.

The "point" system was started about five years ago when mortgage money began tightening up. It has become more and more prevalent since.

The United Press survey showed that the system is used practically everywhere in the country except in the Chicago and Boston areas.

'Baby Doll' Similar To Students Classic Literature

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer
HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Although "Baby Doll" has been blasted by censors and some critics as a shocking movie, the story actually is a familiar one that high school students read in their studies of classic literature.

"Baby Doll" is the tale of an aging, somewhat lecherous husband whose young wife meets a handsome young stranger. Whether he seduces her is never made clear in the film. In the final scene, the young couple hides from the furious husband in a pear tree in the backyard.

The Legion of Decency condemned the film; some critics thought the story "decadent" and "a waste of time."

Yet ancient literature accepted in our society as classic is full of "Baby Doll" tales. The theme of the old husband who is deceived — even including the lovers hiding in the pear tree — is to be found frequently in the folk literature of France, England, Germany and Italy.

Boccaccio's version of the tale is commonly known. Later Chaucer also used the plot frequently. Two of Chaucer's most famous stories which many a student reads, "The Miller's Tale" and "The Merchant's Tale," are the granddaddies of the 20th Century version by Tennessee Williams.

One essay on Chaucer describes the characters in "The Merchant's Tale" as follows:

"To the husband, the sly deceit . . . by his wife is the cause of his most deep-set heartaches. To the woman, the lecherous misuse of her and the domination of her will by her husband are her greatest sorrows. These are the weapons of the marriage conflict, and with each deep wounds are set."

The essay could have been describing Karl Malden and Carroll Baker in "Baby Doll."

The plot of "The Merchant's Tale" has the young wife hiding in a pear tree with her lover. As in "Baby Doll," the husband in the ancient "Merchant's Tale" is badly in debt and worried about supporting his petulant bride.

Many Hollywood observers think "Baby Doll" would never have attracted attention as a "spicy" picture without the censorship publicity. Many a lightweight comedy has more suggestive scenes, such as Jayne Mansfield carrying two milk bottles in "The Girl Can't Help It." As a prominent clergyman pointed out, "The Ten Commandments" has more cheek-ecake.

Despite its shortcomings — a confused ending, a lack of warmth in the characters — "Baby Doll" is a unique work of film art based on a story older than Chaucer.

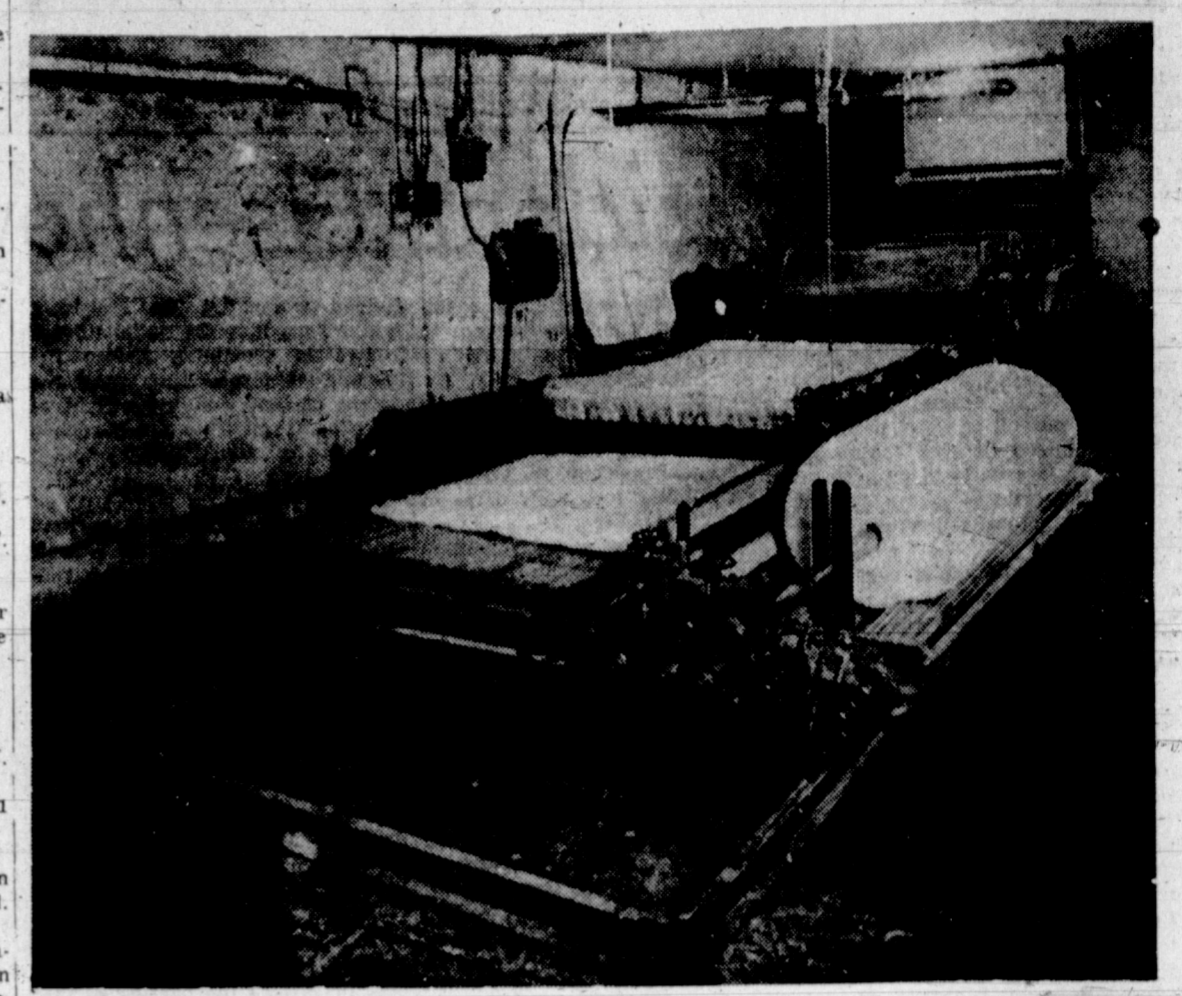

Mailman Among Inaugural Guests
WASHINGTON (UP) — A Pennsylvania mailman and part-time raiser of wild ducks will be among President Eisenhower's personal inaugural guests Monday.

The President first met the 31-year-old mailman, David Keefe, two years ago when he received several wild ducks and quail from him. Later, Keefe landscaped the President's duck pond at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm. Keefe received his inaugural invitation two days after Christmas at his home at Mechanicsburg, Pa., only 25 miles down the road from Gettysburg. The invitation asked him to be the "personal guest of Mamie and myself."

A Gallant Gesture
WASHINGTON (UP) — Two ladies arriving late at the theater one snowy night this week said they might not have made it at all "except for the kindness of our neighbor. He noticed our difficulty and came in the cold to help push the cab," one of them explained. The neighbor involved in this bit of gallantry — 68-year-old Secretary of State John Foster — Dulles.

Common Sense Dieting Rules Will Aid Losing An Ounce Before It's A Pound

If you are one of today's 40 million overweight Americans, once again your number one resolution is probably to pare those pounds. This year, why not back up your determination with sound and sensible practice. By now you should have learned there are no shortcuts to effective weight control. No foolish fad diets, miracle foods or spot reducing gadgets are really going to do the job.

The only way to lose effectively and safely is to eat less.

This does not mean turning down all your favorite dishes, but rather limiting your intake of calories. It's that unit of energy furnished to the system by a given amount of food — called a calorie — that controls poundage.

Your body utilizes the caloric energy needed to maintain a well-run machine, and ingeniously stores the surplus in the form of fat. Paring down this needless reserve and making sure it doesn't pile up again is the only way to whittle your waistline. Most healthy adults can slenderize on a 1200-calorie, three-meal-a-day diet—and those three meals a day are essen-

Would-be reducers should also realize that appetite is not hunger. Irregular meals and social party eating create a false desire for food. You can retrain appetite by sticking to three satisfying meals a day and learning to feel well-fed without in-between snacks. Once your tummy learns the new schedule, the rumbles will stop. You'll be happier, too, with less food if you eat slowly and chew well.

One of the best ways to catch ounces before they become pounds is by working closely with your bathroom scale. Respond to the needle and adjust your calories accordingly.

Those in the know say to plan a weight session once a week. L. H. Erickson of the Borg-Brickson Corp., manufacturers of canpot-tellie Borg scales, says to check at the same time of day and preferably on the same day of the week. If you take a reading before breakfast and without clothes, you'll find you are lightest.

Contrary to popular belief, weight doesn't just appear overnight; it is gained slowly and steadily. A regular check on a personal scale helps made it possible to stop gradual gain and serves as a warning to cut down calories.

As a member of the massive mass you are endangering your health and well-being. Heavyweights are easy prey to a lengthy list of more serious illnesses. Turn over a clean page on the calendar and start eating not only for looks but for life.

French-Style Culinary Art Means Special Excellence With Economy

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor
All Frenchmen do not eat in world-famous and fabulously expensive restaurants. Most of them, just like average Americans, eat at home. But they eat well, extraordinarily well, even though they too, must watch the food budget.

If you want to know why the French family of average means eats so much better than most, study the new and revised and well translated "old reliable" of foreign cookbooks, called "French Home Cooking."

It's by Claire De Eratz, contains 550 recipes for everything from appetizers, soups and omelettes right on down the line to salads and desserts — all with that special excellence that makes French-cooking the greatest.

Easy-to-follow directions using American ingredients give "French Home Cooking" a particular usefulness in the American home where good food is important. Contains also a section on wine.

Now let's sample this guide to French enjoyment of the table. CHICKEN CASSEROLE (Poulet en Casserole)

Take Time When Applying Cosmetics To Achieve Natural, Delicate Effect

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

The application of make-up is an art that requires practice and discernment if a desirable effect is to be achieved. During the evening party hours, make-up, like a pretty jewel, can be decorative and obnoxious. Yet during the daytime it should always be subtle and delicate.

About daytime make-up, Eddie Senz, whose New York beauty studio works magic for TV and stage personalities, has this to say: "Accent the natural... or improve it. But stay away from exotic, extreme and exaggerated effects if you want a nod of approval instead of disquieting stares."

Most important to remember is the need for good light when applying cosmetics. Dreadful mistakes can be made if the lighting is poor. It's essential, too, to give yourself ample time for the job. A rush job is frequently a botch job.

If you are willing to make the effort, your eyebrows and lips can be your most striking features. Don't tweeze your eyebrows into a fine line. Do most of the tweezing on the under side and leave some of the tiny, fine hairs along the top to give the outline softness. The thickest area should be on the end toward the nose.

Never use a pencil in one heavy line. Apply it in short, feathery strokes and then use a small stiff brush to blend the pencil with the natural hair of the brows.

Be careful not to have your pencil strokes too dark if your brows are light. Accent them, but avoid too strong a contrast. There are tricks for the lips, too. There seems to be a "natural" inclination to make the lips just when using lipstick. This can result in an entirely different mouth shape than you intended. Keep the lips in repose so that the color is applied as you want it to appear.

For a clear line use a lip brush, painting the outline first and then filling in. Don't try to reduce the size of a full lip by only coloring part of the surface. It can't be done without being obvious. However, a thin lip can be disguised with a lip brush so that it's difficult to tell where color has been added.

With practice you can become so skillful with brow pencil and lip rouge that no one will know where nature left off and you, yourself, added.

Exerting Influence

"You just never influence people the right way."
We looked up and saw our old friend and severest critic, Johnny Imaginif, slouched against the door frame, leaning at us through his bifocals.
"Sit down, Johnny," we invited. "What do you mean, we don't influence people the right way?"
Johnny plunked, crossed his legs and stared at the ceiling.
"You're always going off as if you weren't even members of the human race, that's what I mean. Your editorials sound like you were outsiders scolding us insiders. It's as though you had humidity skewed on a pin like a butterfly in an exhibit. And people don't like that. What you ought to do is get in the parade. Don't be so confounded objective."
"You think it is wrong to be objective?" we asked.
"It's not that, exactly," Johnny leaned forward intently. "Objectivity is all right, but what you're trying to do is influence people, isn't it?" To our nod he replied, "That's what I'm getting at, the fact that the tactics you use don't influence anyone."
"You mean," we asked, "that we're a failure?"
"I wouldn't want to say that, either. Of course you do influence SOME people. The point is that a lot of the things you advocate are good. People ought to pay more attention to them."
This unusual praise coming from Johnny was a surprise. "Johnny, it must be the Christmas season. That's the first nice thing you've said about us that we can remember."
For a moment he was confused. "Well, no one, not even you, can be all wrong. Shucks, once in a while you're bound to hit the target." Then he dropped back into his accustomed vernacular. "But you miss the target more often than anyone I ever heard of."
"Tell us how to hit the target, Johnny."
"All right, I will. You talk a lot about the government school. But you're not IN the schools. You're an outsider criticizing the insiders. Why don't you get yourself on the school board? Why don't you get to know the people personally who are responsible for the schools? If you did that you'd stop criticizing them so much. And you could exert your influence from inside."
Johnny was wound up now. "The same goes for your political view point. Why don't you get IN one of the big political parties? Get yourself elected to some office. Or if you don't want to do that, at least take an active part in political organization. You're always smarting off about our city council. But you're always way out here... gesturing broadly, 'and the men in the council are inside and really know what's going on. You could do a lot of good if you'd stop being so aloof. Move inside. Work with the people. Why, no one in the history of the world ever accomplished anything by too much of this blamed objectivity. If you want to get something done, if you want to really exert your influence, get in there."
We thought this one over very quietly. Johnny was just as sincere as he could be. Further, he had a point. And his comments would probably be sustained by a great many people.
"Look, Johnny," we said, "did you ever hear of anyone accomplishing much in the way of influence, without joining the gang?"
He shook his head.
"Well," we went on, "it so happens that the most profound influence ever exerted on the human race came from a man who refused to get in step."
"It's not possible!" Johnny insisted.
"Yes, it is, Johnny. That man was Jesus. He insisted that the churches of His time were bad. But He leveled His criticism from outside the church. He refused to be ordained in the accustomed fashion. And when He was urged to get into politics, He refused again, although He had plenty to say about the political situation. Surely, you wouldn't say that He went about the task of influencing people the wrong-way. Look at the influence He wielded."
"That's just it!" Johnny practically shouted. "Who do you think you are? You've got a lot of nerve trying to compare yourself to Christ!"
"Now, just wait a minute, Johnny. We certainly aren't trying to imply that there's the slightest resemblance between us and Jesus. But, He taught us to do the things He did. And if we believe in His teachings, then surely it is not wrong to try, even if we cannot hope to emulate Him."
"Besides, we don't have to use Him as an example, although He is undoubtedly the best example we could find. Take any man who really accomplished something in the way of influencing others. Virtually without exception they maintained an objective viewpoint and refused to join up with the accepted government groups of their day. Look at Confucius, Mohammed, Zoroaster; in the field of science, what about Da Vinci, Galileo, Marconi, Harvey, Newton, James and a host of others; in exploration take Columbus, Magellan, Drake and Cabot; in politics take Adams, Jefferson, Burke, Paine or Monroe. Get into any field you like. The men who really exerted influence were never carbon copies. They were original thinkers. They did what they did simply because they refused to follow the rules laid down by those who employ force."
Johnny was staring at us now almost as though he were getting the idea.
"You're right, Johnny, about our wanting to be a success. But you're dead wrong about the method to be employed. Sure, we could probably exert some paltry and temporary influence if we teamed up with the powers that be. People might even like us better. But our objective is to tell the truth without compromise. You see, while we enjoy making friends as much as anyone, we refuse to place our own popularity in the scales with truth."
"We hold that in times such as ours it is more important to express the truth than for us to be popular. We'd like the truth to be popular. So, while there will be some who insist that we could influence simply through friendship, we would, were we to employ that method, be using our friends for our own ends. And we would hold that we could not be so objective in that case that we could totally avoid promoting our own selfish aims. By taking the position that we take we prove that we do not trust power in anyone's hands, including our own."
Without a word, Johnny got up and left the office. But somehow, we thought that this time he was influenced just a little.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. MOILES
Morality Of Capitalism
IV.

In the last issue I was quoting from William Henry Chamberlin's "The Morality of Capitalism" as published in the January "The Freeman" magazine.
The last part of the last article pointed out that there was plenty of crime in all countries even where the government was more or less limited. The article contended that under a semi-free government people were not compelled to commit crimes as they were under an unlimited government.
Under the heading of "Crime and Consequences," the author writes:
"How very different is the situation in the countries that have fallen under communist totalitarian rule. No reliable figures are available. But, judging from the reports of many former inmates of concentration camps, a considerable number of people sent there, besides political suspects, are hardened and brutalized criminals, guilty of such offenses as robbery and murder. Soviet newspapers in recent years have been devoting much attention to the alarming prevalence of drunkenness and juvenile delinquency. In these fields, perhaps, the moral score with the West is about even.
"But where the score is certainly not even is in the immorality that is forced on Russians, Chinese, and other peoples living under communist rule by the State. It is a high crime and a misdemeanor in every communist state not to be an informer of 'counter-revolutionary' activity, even though this may entail the death of a close relative. Both the Soviet Union and Red China have made heroes of the wretched junior communist who has spied on his parents and denounced them to the authorities.
"Since the official curtain was parted, revealing some of Stalin's crimes, we have it on the highest Soviet authority that innumerable Soviet citizens, including highly placed communists, have been compelled under torture to make false confessions involving themselves and others.
"The Archbishop of Canterbury, highest dignity of the British Established Church, felt no hesitation in expressing doubt and dismay about the British landing in Suez.
"But the Patriarch of the Russian Orthodox Church is an amoral robot, obliged to echo in his public pronouncements every lie put out by his atheistic government, including the one about United States employment of germ warfare in Korea. When the notorious 'Red Dean' of Canterbury or the American emulators sound the eulogies of the bloodstained Soviet regime, implacably hostile to all forms of religious faith, they have to answer only to their own reason and conscience. No one has put any pressure on them to do so. And they are free to denounce their own governments with impunity, to act as conveyor of the incredible falsehoods made in Moscow, or to praise the Soviet regime as the best of all possible worlds."
"But if any Soviet religious leader of any faith should call down the retribution of a righteous Providence on a regime whose whole record has been one long atrocity—from the Red Terror of the first years of the Revolution, through the starvation of millions of peasants, down to the massacre and deportation of the freedom-loving Hungarians—he would be an immediate candidate for the crown of martyrdom."
"Socialism Also Fails!"
"It may, of course, be argued that communism is not the only alternative to capitalism. But one is not impressed by the moral achievements of socialism where this system has partially or entirely come into power. Much of its driving force comes from two of the least amiable of human traits, hatred and envy. There has been considerable expression of disapproval by the more thoughtful Laborites in Great Britain about the failure of socialism to bring about the moral regeneration which they expected. It has been found by experience that workers in nationalized industry do not work harder or more enthusiastically because the State has replaced the private employer as the boss.
"The process of pillaging the thrifty for the benefit of the thriftless by confiscatory direct taxation and high 'social security' payments—a process that has gone much further in Great Britain than in the United States—has not led to any earthly paradise, but to drag mediocrity and a considerable let-down in efficiency and to work.
"The rise of the free individualist economy coincided with the decline of old-fashioned tyranny in the form of the arbitrary power of emperors, kings, and princes. The decline of this economy has just as significantly coincided with the rise of totalitarian tyrannies far more formidable and ruthless than the old-fashioned monarchies.
"The equation, economic individualism equals freedom equals all-moral values, has never been proved wrong—least of all in our own time."

BID FOR A SMILE

A famous man was the dinner guest of an over-solicitous hostess who kept insisting to the point of annoyance that he had no appetite. He was eating scarcely anything, etc. etc. Worried at last by this persistent chatter, the man spoke up impressively. "Madam, please assure me that when the picture people arrived, his wife exclaimed in horror:
"Wife—Oh, there's only one button on your red dress."
"Hubert—Thank heavens, you have noticed it at last."

Relay

Fair Enough

Mr. Joe Louis, Chicago.
Dear Joe: You remember me as a sport writer on the Tribune when you were just coming along in the Golden Gloves under the auspices of one who has suffered, but your problem is consistent with the problem of all the rest of us although the very immensity of your trouble may shock the fools into rebellion against the whole dirty racket. But suppose I had failed to pay my taxes for the same years. Do you think there would be any outcry to forget the whole thing or let me retain a trust fund for my home-foes, such as now? If you do shock the fools into rebellion, you may go down in history as a great political and economic reformer and the individual savior of the nation from slavery as real in the legal sense to-day as the slavery from which your recent forebears were delivered by Abraham Lincoln. You might come to be known as the second great emancipator, though you would be the last to claim that you meant to do just that.
I understand you ran up an original tax bill of $1,080,000 plus interest accumulated since some vague point in time.
Now the weird fact looms out of the fog that even if you were to make a gross income of a million a year you never could catch up within your life expectancy because you would be clipped for about $900,000 in new taxes on that million each year. Even if you should toss that remaining $100,000 a year into the hamper at Internal Revenue and go and live in the breadline, you would still be falling deeper and deeper into debt. The $100,000 would be less than half of your present estimated yearly rate of cumulative interest on the massive original debt, plus cumulative interest.
By the way, I tried to warn you back there when you were running up gross earnings of about four and a half million for your fighting career that you were in bad company. But people said my statements were prompted by racial bigotry rather than verified information. I guess you know better now.
Joe, look at it this way:
A lot of honest angry people have been fighting and taking their lumps for years and years to get this dirty deal repealed or scaled down to a status this side of total slavery. But the fools laughed at us and only in the last election Coleman Andrews, of Virginia, ran for president on a tax reform platform to the music of idiotic jeers at his folly in proposing such a thing. Right now, Vivien Kellems, of Mystic, Conn., a peppery little babe with the persistence of a rubber ball stired by a gaffly, is nicknamed for "deficiencies" of $15,000 a

MOPSY

We Get Taxed To Support Tax-Less Communities

By WESTBROOK PEGLER
you raise any beef for Bracken Lee, Joe? Because he was getting hurt for your sake and the sake of the scoffing, sneering faceless fools who are now so riled up about your sad case.
When I speak of slavery, I am not exaggerating at all. This tax lets congress pass laws to grab our incomes, personal and corporate, up to one hundred per cent. Believe it or not, there are cases on record in which the victim's tax per year was more than 100 per cent, federal and state.
When any law says you have no legal right to a single cent of your earnings, you are a slave.
In fact, aren't you a slave right now, when you can't possibly earn enough money, even at a million a year, to keep even with the interest?
Joe, I am very sorry that your career has come to this sad smash, but surely you see that you are only one of us. The sentimental outcry raised because you were one of the most popular Americans of your time may result in some great reform, even the termination of this crazy idea of collecting taxes from Joe Louis and Pegler and sending your hard-earned money over the ocean to pay the taxes of foreigners we never saw who never paid a cent of tax in their lives. All the best, old timer.
Sincerely,
Pegler.

Hankerings

Sergeant Who Dispenses Kindness And Good Cheer
By HENRY McLEMORE

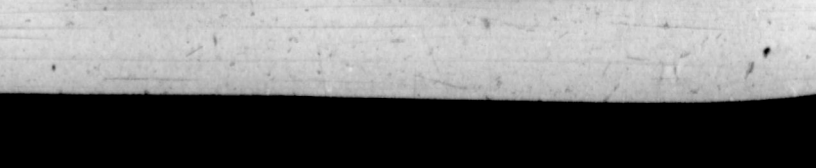

PASSAU, Germany — This is undoubtedly the only city in Europe that has a Sergeant for a "sight."
The Sergeant isn't listed in the guidebooks as a "must," but the people of Passau point him out along with the 15th century cathedral, the view from the bluff at the confluence of the Danube, Inn and Ilz rivers, and the 14th century Veste Oberhaus.
All the more remarkable, the Sergeant is an American. His name is Arthur O. P. Brasgalla, and he is known to almost everyone in town. He has been given the unofficial title of "The American Burgomaster." I heard more than one German say that if it were possible to elect an American as the real Burgomaster, the Cheboygan, Michigan, soldier would easily win the election.
Brasgalla's hold on the affections of the people of Passau is due to a trait not normally associated with army sergeants—kindness and good cheer. He has been dispensing both in this area, almost without interruption, since 1948.
When the Sergeant's first tour of duty in Germany was completed, and it was time for him to return to the United States, the City felt it must take official action in an effort to bring about a return of the man who had meant so much to the community.
Passau's Mayor, Dr. Stefan Billinger, proceeded to write a letter to the late Major General K. F. Cramer, then Commanding Officer of the Southern Area Command.
Mayor Billinger advised the General that if the City's favorite American desired to stay in the military service of his country, the people of Passau, without intending to interfere with military activities or procedure, would like to request that their good and special friend be allowed to return to Passau for duty.
The unprecedented letter was sent to General Cramer in April, 1953, and a few months later Brasgalla was back in Passau as the top NCO of the U. S. Army military community.
Brasgalla's motto, the Germans here say, is "If I can scatter a little sunshine around, it means a lot." I asked what Brasgalla did to back up his motto, and found out that he does practically everything.
When the City was threatened by flood waters, the Sergeant quietly took charge of relief operations and helped ninety families to save their effects from destruction. He has organized big Thanksgiving and Christmas parties for the City's needy every year since 1948. He teaches games at playgrounds, organizes German-American get-togethers to bring the soldiers and citizens closer together—and makes more after-dinner speeches than George Jessel, if such a thing is possible.
The Sergeant also belongs to a student group—a sort of German University club. He was voted a life-membership although he holds no degree of any sort.
Brasgalla, an ex-Marine and ex-Coast Guardsman, saw World War II service in the Pacific and Atlantic theaters, and entered the Army in 1948.
With twenty-five years of military service behind him, the Sergeant is shooting for five more years' service in Passau, and then retirement. Passau wants him to retire in Passau. The City is going to write him a letter asking him to do just that.

THE NATION'S PRESS

Views That Deserve (Industrial News Review)
Cuts in the highly progressive income tax rate would probably produce more rather than less revenue, by stimulating investments and speeding the nation's economic growth. That is one fact of a statement sent to a House subcommittee on taxation by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.
A similar belief has been expressed by Ernest G. Swiger, president of the National Association of Manufacturers. In his view, normal economic growth, by providing increasing revenues to the government, would make possible reductions in both individual and corporate income tax rates without adding to anyone's tax burden.
The Chamber's statement said that across-the-board reductions could be made even in a period of high defense outlays through a sound program of controlled spending and borrowing by the federal government, plus the increased revenue from a fair and reasonable tax structure which would not be a deterrent to individual initiative and investment.
Views such as these certainly deserve the careful attention of the Congressmen who will deal with possible changes in the tax laws this year. If more money is left in the hands of the people, then more money will go into investment and into the channels of trade—and that in itself will be a strong stimulant to the government's tax take.
Finally, the more important parts of the Hoover Commission recommendations remain to be acted on. And here is a place where we can save billions a year, without in any way imperiling essential government functions.

FAREWELL TO KNOWLAND!

(New York Daily News)
Saying he's a newspaperman at heart and wants to get back to his aging father's Oakland, Calif., Tribune and the bosom of his family, Sen. William F. Knowland announces that he will not run for re-election in 1958.
That Sen. Knowland, aged only 48, is thinking of quitting public life for good seems hard to believe. There is an election for governor of California coming up in 1958, and a contest for the Republican presidential nomination in 1960.
It appears more than possible that Knowland would find a governorship slightly more attractive in 1958 than the newspaper business, and the presidency ditto in 1960.
As to that, time will tell. Meanwhile, we wish the Senate minority leader well. We've always admired his forthright Americanism and could name a couple dozen Senators who could be better spared.

SWC Cage Race In Wild Scramble

Mustangs Hold Small Lead Despite Upset

By ED FITE
United Press Sports Writer

Southwest Conference basketball teams turn from the court to the classrooms for mid-term examinations this week with the championship hanging on the contender's ability to win on the road when they turn into the last half of the schedule next month.

Defending titlist Southern Methodist, its ego deflated by a loss to Texas last week that changed the complexion of the race from a runaway into a possible wild scramble, still has to face Baylor, Rice and Arkansas away from home.

The Rice Owls, the only outfit to have completed half its schedule, have only Baylor and Arkansas to meet on the road and will have the edge over SMU in that respect.

At this stage, SMU is out in front by half a game with a 4-1 record in league play to 4-2 for Rice, 3-2 for Baylor, 2-2 for Arkansas, 1-2 for Texas Christian, 2-3 for Texas and 0-4 for Texas A&M. Only the Aggies can definitely be figured out of contention, although Texas is almost in as bad a shape.

SMU's Coach Doc Hayes figures his short-handed team will have to sweep its four remaining games at home against Arkansas, Texas, Texas A&M and TCU and win two of the three road games in order to win its third straight title. The Mustangs have beaten TCU and Texas A&M and lost to Texas, 77-68 last week, on the road.

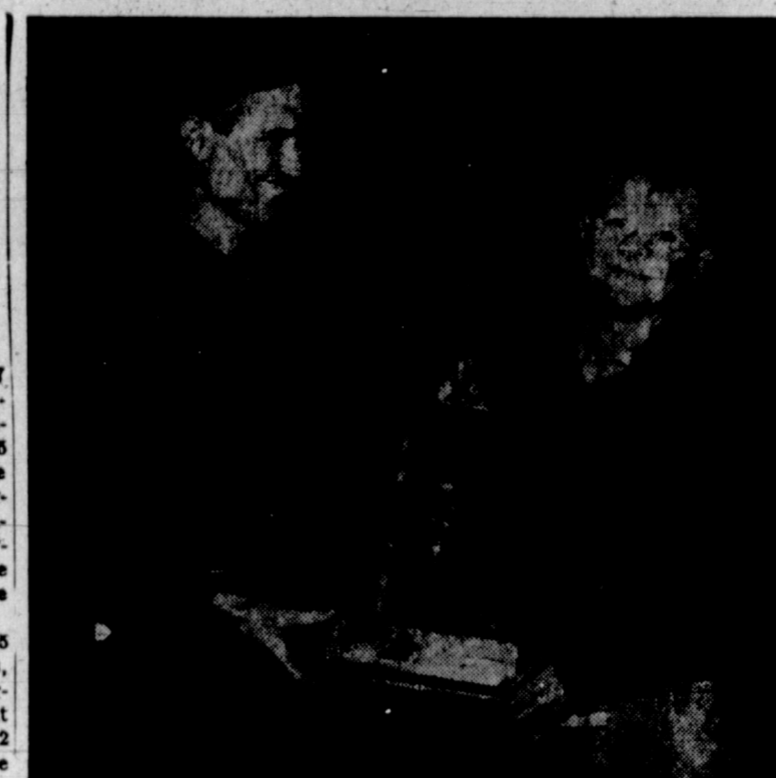

Rice has lost to TCU 68-50 and beaten the Aggies on the road while TCU lost its only road appearance to Texas as well as falling to SMU at Fort Worth; Baylor has lost to SMU and Rice but beaten Arkansas on the road, and Arkansas has beaten Texas A&M but lost to Rice on the road.

SMU doesn't return to action until Feb. 2 against Arkansas at Dallas while Rice waits another week until Feb. 9 before meeting TCU at Houston.

Only One Game

Baylor and TCU see the only league action this week, meeting at Waco Saturday night, with the loser moving further out of contention. Arkansas plays Kansas State at Manhattan, Kan. in the only other game on this week's slate.

The only other action prior to Feb. 2 will be a clash between TCU and Arkansas at Fayetteville and a Baylor meeting with Texas Tech Jan. 30 at Lubbock.

Harvesters At Plainview

A two-way battle still rages in District 3-AAAA basketball play this week with Berger's Bulldogs and the Pampa Harvesters fighting neck and neck for the lead.

The Bulldogs won two games last week to post a 5-4 district mark while Pampa won its only game of the week. The Harvesters, whose only loss in 15 games has been to powerful Berger, have a 4-1 district record.

The other five members of the district are stretched out down the line although Palo Duro's Dons are still given a chance to remain in the race. The Dons have won three of five 3-AAAA games. Monterey is in fourth with a 2-2 record followed by Amarillo with 2-3, Plainview with 1-4 and Lubbock with 1-4.

The Harvesters will be after their fifth conference victory Tuesday night when they play the Plainview Bulldogs at Plainview. Berger seeks to hold onto its district lead against the Palo Duro Dons at Berger Tuesday night. A Pampa victory coupled with a Berger loss would throw the lead into a tie between the two teams.

Last week the Harvesters took a 77-66 victory over Lubbock's Westerners at Lubbock. It was their first game in a week after having an open date last Tuesday. The Harvesters play host to Amarillo's Sandies here Friday night in a game that may turn out to be one of the toughest of the season. Pampa edged the Sandies, 60-57, at Amarillo to open district play.

Lubbock's Max Hood continues to lead the district scorers although his per-game average is far below that of Plainview's Bill Teague. Hood has scored 122 points in six games for an average of 20.3 per game. Teague has 116 points in five games for a 23.2 average. Berger's Warren Tipton is fourth with 99 points in five games while Pampa's Jerry Pope has 86 in five games. Other Harvesters, Dickie Mauldin, Sam Condo and Bill Brown rank among the top ten in district scoring.

Cowboys And Miners Pace Border Race

The battle for the Border Conference basketball championship will hold the status quo this week as all teams forsake league play to concentrate on their studies.

And, the status quo finds Texas Western out in front with a perfect 4-0 league mark and Harding-Simmons right behind at 3-1. All other clubs have lost at least two games and the season isn't fully one-third over.

There'll be three non-conference games at week's end with Sania Barbara visiting Arizona State at Tempe Friday night and Arizona at Tucson Saturday night, and with Texas Tech at Canyon against West Texas on Saturday.

Texas Western, which is idle until Jan. 28 when it hosts Arizona State, tightened its hold on first place last week with a 74-61 verdict over New Mexico A&M in its first road game of the season, while Hardin-Simmons kept pace by cutting down West Texas 84-67 at Abilene.

West Texas broke into the win column by squeaking past Arizona State 83-82 in the only other conference action of the week. In non league play, Texas Tech defeated Hardin-Simmons 59-53.

Exams Hit College Cage Teams

The 1966-67 college basketball season reached the mid-year examination milestone today with only four major conference champions of last year in line to repeat.

Southern Methodist, West Virginia, Connecticut, and Idaho State.

These are the only court kings of 1956 who once again are leading their leagues.

Only five of the nation's top 10 teams played this weekend and all won—led by third-ranked Kentucky.

SMU, the nation's No. 4 team, clings to a half-game lead in the Southwest Conference race despite a surprise loss to Texas on Friday night.

West Virginia, ranked 18th nationally, has a perfect 5-0 record in the Southern Conference.

Connecticut, with a 3-0 record in the Yankee Conference, is a solid choice to win the crown for the fourth straight year.

Idaho State has a 4-0 mark in the Rocky Mountain Conference and is expected to win its fifth league crown.

Here's the situation in the other major conferences:

Big Ten: Ohio State kept its lead at 4-0 with a 70-51 rout of Michigan State Saturday. The Buckeyes are favored over Wisconsin tonight and Northwestern Saturday.

Pacific Coast Conference: California is 5-0 but defending champion UCLA is right behind at 4-0. Cal is scheduled for one game this week, vs Stanford on Friday, but UCLA is idle.

Ivy League: Leader Princeton (5-0) is idle this week.

Atlantic Coast: North Carolina, the nation's No. 2 team and the only major unbeaten team in the country, is 6-0 in the league race.

Southeastern: Tulane is 4-1 with 4-1, but Kentucky, nation's No. 3 team is right behind at 3-1 along with Auburn. Kentucky can tie idle Tulane for lead by beating 10th ranked Vanderbilt Saturday, and Auburn can take the lead by beating Georgia Tech Tuesday and Georgia Saturday.

Big Seven: Kansas still leads with 3-1, but upsetter Iowa beats Nebraska and Nebraska are each 2-1. Iowa State can tie for first by beating Missouri Thursday.

Skyline: Brigham Young leads with 3-1, followed by Montana and Utah State at 2-2. Brigham Young-Utah State clash Friday tops the league's program this week.

Missouri Valley: Bradley, ranked 14th nationally, way out front with 5-1 against 3-1 for St. Louis and Wichita. Bradley risks perfect mark tonight vs Tulsa.

Other conference leaders include: Middle Eastern—St. Peter's; Mid-American—Miami of Ohio; Border—Texas Western.

EXTRA PUSH—Hugo Koblet sent his partner, Armin Von Buren, out in front by giving him an extra push to help the Swiss team win a six-day bicycle race in Brussels. Promoters hope they are moving in the right direction in reviving the sport in Cleveland, Jan. 22-28. International stars are riding.

Betsy Rawls Takes Tampa Golf Crown

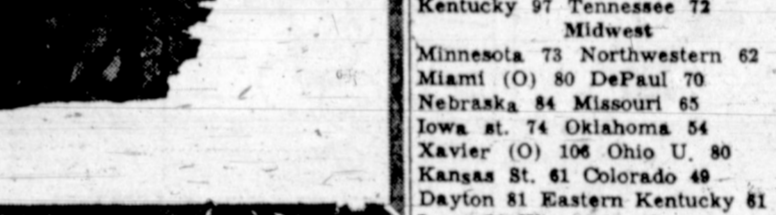

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—Betsy Rawls is the latest winner on the women's golf tournament trail, but look out for Fay Crocker in next weekend's journey at Lake Worth if the weather turns warm.

Miss Rawls, slender Spartanburg, S. C., professional won the $5,000 Tampa Women's Open with a 298 Sunday, but she had to score 299 on the final hole to beat Miss Crocker's record finish over the tightly-trapped Palma Ceia course.

Miss Crocker, former U. S. Open champion from Montevideo, Uruguay, broke the women's course record by combining eight birdies and eight pars for a 67, six strokes under women's par.

To beat her 299 total, Miss Rawls needed a par on the 475-yard 18th hole after scoring shaky bogeys on the 16th and 17th. She played that last hole with painstaking care down the middle and safely two-putted from 11 feet away to wrap up the 23rd tournament victory of her career with a closing 74. Miss Rawls was awarded $480 top prize and Miss Crocker collected $315 for second place.

Ed Furgol Captures Caliente Golf Title

By HAL WOOD
United Press Sports Writer

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex. (UP)—Old Ed Furgol, a 12-1 shot in the betting, came tearing down the home stretch to win the $15,000 Calliente Open golf derby by a nose from the fast-closing Al Besselink Sunday.

In a dramatic wind-up to one of the "ramblingest" PGA tournaments on record, the former National Open champion, now playing out of St. Andrews, Ill., nipped Besselink on the second hole of a play-off to decide the champion.

The two men had ended the tournament in a deadlock for first place, each with an eight-under-par score of 280. Then they opened their private duel in the darkness, cold and rain, with Furgol capturing the $2000 first prize when he got a par on the 450-yard hole as Besselink bogied.

For Furgol, it was his third victory in the last nine months in a major tournament and again added proof to the fact that this man with the withered arm is one of the finest golfers of the era.

He had entered the tournament as a lukewarm choice compared with 8-1 for defending champion Mike Souchak, who ended up in a tie for third place with Gene Nemes Memorial Award to veteran sports-caster Ted Husing. In addition, three other plaques of merit and the first annual Ted Husing award will be given to sports figures to be announced later.

Ed Furgol Captures Caliente Golf Title

Trailing Paul Hanrey of Bolton, Mass., by one stroke going into the final round, Besselink went out in 36, came back like a champion.

But Furgol was a champion all the way through and there wasn't any way to deny his steady playing. He shot rounds of 72-67-70-71 and then finished off the two extra holes in even par.

The best long shot of the tourney, Zell Eaton of Pomona, Calif., at 60-1, came home in fifth place with a 283 and collected $900.

Meanwhile, young Paul Hanrey of Bolton, Mass., the third-round leader, had trouble on the final round, took a husky 75 and ended up with 284—which tied him with Jay Hebert; Dow Finsterwald, who had sold for top price of $4,250 in the Calcutta pool; and Jackie Burke. They each collected $725.

Pampa To Fight Clovis Tonight

The Pampa Optimist Club boxing team will take 14 to 16 boys to fight against the Sertoma Club squad at Clovis, N.M., tonight.

Most of the matches will be against open fighters from Clovis. The Sertoma Club, coached by Bill Stephens, has three state champions. The two teams fought here recently and each won seven bouts.

Among those expected to compete are Gary Wills, Charles Snyder, Gary Wilhelm and Gary Watt of Pampa. Coach Lee Palmer of Berger will accompany the team. Pampa coaches going will be Ollie Wilhelm, Oren James and Bill Martin.

Mantle, Maglie Get More Honors

NEW YORK (UP)—The Sports Broadcasters Assn. voted plaques of merit today to baseball stars Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees and Sal Maglie of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Mantle and Maglie will be honored at the 10th annual awards dinner of the sports-casters Jan. 31. The dinner also will feature a presentation of the Graham McNamee Memorial Award to veteran sports-caster Ted Husing. In addition, three other plaques of merit and the first annual Ted Husing award will be given to sports figures to be announced later.

Fred Dwyer Sets Boston Pace

BOSTON. (UP)—The better two-milers will be glad when Fred Dwyer gets in shape. He's murdering them in the meantime.

Dwyer, a 28-year-old salesman from East Orange, N.J., is a miler. But he switched to the two-mile in the Knights of Columbus track meet here Saturday night to build up his stamina. He figured that when he's ready, he'll switch back to his specialty in an attempt to become the first American to run the mile under four minutes.

So what happens. Dwyer turns in an 8:32.4 two-mile Saturday night, routing Hungarian expatriate László Tabori's American debut.

Dwyer's time set a new garden record and was only one and nine-tenths of a second off the world's indoor mark.

There was only one other meet record broken in the meet, the

Hawks' MacAuley Hits Over 10,000

By UNITED PRESS

Easy Ed MacAuley of St. Louis ranked today as the second player in pro basketball history to score 10,000 points, but he had to share top billing for his team's latest triumph with teammates Cliff Hagan and Charley Share.

The stringbean MacAuley, former St. Louis U. star now shining for the professional Hawks, hooped 22 points Sunday against the Philadelphia Warriors to boost his pro career total to 10,017. The now-retired George Miken of Minneapolis is the only other man to go over 10,000.

But Hagan saved the Hawks in regulation time with a basket with five seconds left, and Share tipped in a goal with the same amount left in the overtime to give the Hawks their 104-102 victory. Bob Pettit had 23 points for the Hawks and Neil Johnston 33 for the Warriors.

In other Sunday games, Minneapolis sank 50 free throws, a league high for the season, to beat Rochester, 114-107; Syracuse snipped Fort Wayne, 101-98; and Boston trounced New York, 114-78.

Battle Royal Tonight's Mat Feature

The main event of the Pampa Shrine Club's weekly wrestling matches will be a five-man battle royal at the Top of Texas Sportsman Club tonight.

The first wrestler to be pinned will be eliminated for the night. The next two to be pinned will meet in the semifinial contest slated for 45 minutes with the best two of three falls.

The last two wrestlers left in the ring will then battle it out in the last attraction of the night. The final match is set for the best two of three falls with a one-hour time limit.

Tickets are on sale at Modern Pharmacy and will be sold at the Sportsman Club box office. Admission is $1.50 for ringside seats, $1.25 for reserved seats, 90 cents for adult general admission and 80 cents for children.

Dickens Named Indiana Coach

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UP)—Phil Dickens, Indiana's new football coach, today got his first look at what lies ahead.

Dickens arrived on the Indiana campus from his Wyoming home late Sunday night, stopping off to change planes in Chicago.

Dickens, whose lifetime .702 winning mark ranks him 10th among the nation's active grid coaches, still had two years to run on his Wyoming contract. His Cowboys chalked up a 10-9 record and won the Skyline Conference crown last season. Dickens' overall record in ten years as Wyoming head coach was 69-27-3.

Officials said Indiana awarded Dickens a four-year contract Saturday calling for an annual wage of $15,000.

Defendis Vs. Luedee

NEW YORK (UP)—Angelo Defendis, the Brooklyn boxer who knocked out Ernie (The Rock) Nichols in the first round at St. Nicholas Arena Dec. 24, is an 8-5 choice to make Jerry Luedee of New Haven, Conn. his sixth straight victim tonight in the same ring.

Luedee, who hasn't been stopped in 28 starts, has lost four fights and fought one draw.
