By O. B. LLOYD JR.
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN (UP) — Legislative leaders, spurred by the emergency recommendations of Gov. Price Daniel, have proposed a $200 million water conservation program.

Although the proposal doubled original plans, the governor has expressed belief the financing may fall far short of ultimate needs — possibly by as much as another $100 million.

Daniel had suggested doubling the first $100 million proposal, which involved only one segment of the overall drought action.

The new blueprint of conservation planning added another $100 million, but for a different phase of the program.

Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas revealed the switch Tuesday when he said his group would abandon a measure levying a water fee in favor of a $100 million bond issue to buy conservation storage in federally-built reservoirs in the state.

This would be a companion issue to a measure introduced earlier by Parkhouse in which he asked $100 million in bonds to finance state aid for local water projects such as dams and reservoirs.

GEORGE METESKY ... who gets reward?

'Mad Bomber' Hassle Is Developing

By JOHN CAVANAUGH
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP) — A hassle developed today over who should get the credit for supplying the final clue that trapped "the mad bomber" of Manhattan.

Was it the police? The Consolidated Edison Company? Or both?

Each claimed the credit at separate press conferences, shortly after George Metesky, a 54-year-old Waterbury, Conn., toolmaker was taken into custody and admitted he was the long-sought "bomb-er" whose home-made pipe bombs had injured 15 persons here since 1940.

Officials of the giant utility, against which Metesky, a former employee had waged an unrelenting war of revenge, stoutly maintained that a 25-year-old woman clerical worker came across Metesky's file, noted similarities with the mad bomber and that police were then notified.

Tax Collections And Building Report Made

Tax collection figures for 1956 and the summary of buildings constructed in Pampa last year were released this morning by city officials.

A total of $298,379.36 was collected by the city tax office by Dec. 31, 1956, on the taxes levied for 1956.

This compares with $296,081.19 collected from a levy of $398,057.96 for a percentage of 74.38 per cent at the same period in 1955.

The tax office also reported that at the present time a total of 136 persons are using the split payment plan for city taxes compared to only 83 last year.

The report compiled by Aubrey Jones, city tax assessor and collector, also indicated that the tax levy had increased $61,018 over 1955 and that even though the percentage of collections was down last December the amount collected had increased over previous years.

BLAND AVOCADOS lend their gentle magic to make turkey leftovers the most delicious part of the bird.

Turkey Leftovers National Problem But Avocados Can Make Glamor Dish

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor
Leftover turkey threatens to become a national problem. But Mrs. Philip C. Morse, Jr., of Lakeland, Fla., offers two good solutions.

She uses the avocados grown in her state now in larger numbers with leftover turkey. These are her recipes:

AVOCADOS WITH TURKEY a la KING (Yield: 6 servings)
Three avocados, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1/4 cup finely diced green pepper, 1/2 cup finely diced celery, 4 tablespoons flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 1/2 cups milk, 1/4 teaspoon Tabasco, 2 cups leftover diced turkey, 1 tablespoon sherry (optional), 1/4 cup finely diced pimiento, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, buttered.

Put avocados in half lengthwise; remove pits. Brush cut surface with lime juice to prevent discoloration. Melt butter; add green pepper and celery and cook until tender. Add flour, salt and mustard; blend. Combine milk and Tabasco; gradually add to flour mixture and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in turkey, sherry and pimiento. Spoon hot mixture into avocado cavities; top with bread crumbs. Place in broiler under moderate heat. Broil 2 to 4 minutes, or until crumbs are lightly browned.

FLORIDA CHEF'S SALAD
Salad greens (romaine, lettuce, chicory, etc.), 1 avocado, Julienne turkey strips, French dressing.

Wash and dry greens. Tear leaves into bite-size pieces into large salad bowl. The avocado when ripe, yields readily to gentle pressure firm palms of hands. If it is firm, you can ripen by keeping the avocado in a warm room, then keep in refrigerator until used. To serve, cut in half lengthwise; remove pit. Peel skin from halves and slice lengthwise on top of greens. Top with Julienne strips of turkey. Add French dressing just before serving and toss lightly.

TOMORROW'S DINNER: Clear tomato soup with thin noodles, avocados with turkey a la king, fluffy rice, garlic French bread, grapefruit, orange sections and sliced bananas, chocolate cake, coffee, tea, milk.

India About To Play Store Hit By Fire Unaccustomed Role

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
India is about to play the unaccustomed role of a country that does not want to talk about the right of self-determination.
The United Nations Security Council meets Wednesday to discuss the future of the state of Kashmir, which has been in dispute between India and Pakistan since 1947.
Pakistan wants the U.N. to conduct a plebiscite so that Kashmir's people can decide for themselves whether to unite with India or Pakistan.
Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India is one of the world's foremost supporters of the right of peoples to self-determination.
In this instance, however, Nehru is on the other side. He does not want a plebiscite.
Reason Nehru is Opposed
The trouble is Nehru knows that if a plebiscite were held, the Kashmiris would vote to join Pakistan. He said at a meeting of his governing congress party in New Delhi last Tuesday that the U.N.

Lady Movie Executive Has Tough Problems To Face

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD (UP) — What's one of the toughest problems of a lady executive in the movie business? Getting actresses to work for you, the town's only female producer mourns.
You usually think of Hollywood's working females as only those in grasspant before the cameras. But there are a few who have made successful careers behind the scenes.
Producer Harriet Parsons is such a rarity that when some stars walk into their producer's office and discover she's a female they are astonished.
"The men at first are amused to work for a woman, but after a while they respect you," Miss Parsons reflected today as she sat in her office at 20th Century Fox studio.
"But the women — well, some such as Irene Dunne and Barbara Stanwyck are thorough professionals. Other for some reason resent working for a woman. Perhaps they think another woman can't be fooled."
"I don't think Marilyn Monroe liked working for me (in 'Clash by Night'). She was used to twisting men around her little finger. When we went on location she was constantly late to the set so I went to her room every morning to prod her along."
Actress employes are only one crisis for this handsome woman who has succeeded for 23 years in one of the most competitive industries in the land.
"A woman in any business has to prove herself twice as much as a man," she figures. "She has to walk a tight rope. If she's a boss she has to make decisions but she can't be bossy when she's working with men."
Hollywood has "great resistance to women executives" she says. Miss Parsons made the grade by starting as a newspaper woman (like her mother, Louella Parsons), and magazine writer.
Only one woman, Ida Lupino, is listed among the film industry's 60 directors. There are 175 women out of 1500 writers and nine females among 195 film editors (cutters). But all but one of the town's 215 are directors are males and all 210 cinematographers are men.
Miss Parsons, for years an RKO producer, recently joined Fox and is making a TV series out of "how to marry a millionaire" for the studio's television unit. She must work with the writer of the series, cast the stories, get the sets and costumes made and manage the financial end. As she says, "there's a crisis every day."

BREATH OF LIFE—A new type of artificial respiration, designed for immediate treatment of gas casualties and resuscitation of drowning, electric shock or suffocation victims is demonstrated by medical aid men at the Army Chemical Center in Edgewood, Md. The device consists of a modified Army gas mask, an anesthetic mask, two hoses and a purification canister. As the rescuer inhales, air is drawn into the purification canister (on victim's chest), purified and trapped in the hose leading to the anesthetic mask placed over the victim's face. When the rescuer exhales, the purified air is forced into the victim's lungs.

Accident Report Had Situations Reversed

The first started on the east side overhead and was discovered by Shorty White. White stated that he saw what appeared to be a mist rising out of the store and he notified the Shamrock fire department.
The Bradleys lived in quarters over the store. Neighbors helped carry furniture out of the living quarters to save most of the furnishings.
Fire jumped across the four-lane highway and ignited a building but the flames were extinguished before any major damage occurred.
The U.N. called for a plebiscite after both Indian and Pakistani armies had withdrawn.
Nehru agreed to the plebiscite at one time, but he started to specify conditions that blocked it. Chiefly, he demands that Pakistani troops get out first. He also wants troops to be stationed in Kashmir during the vote—in the proportion of seven Indian soldiers to one Pakistani soldier.
More than 3 million of Kashmir's 4,000,000 people are Moslems.

Pampa was represented last night at the Chamber of Commerce banquet in Perryton.
Those representing the Pampa Chamber of Commerce were Paul Crouch, president; Elmer Fite and Joe Tooley.
The banquet began at 7:30 p.m. in the Memorial Building, located west of Perryton.
Olin Culberson, head of the Texas Railroad Commission, was the speaker for the banquet and entertainment was furnished by the Bird Sisters, a girls' trio.
A banquet was also held by the Dumas Chamber of Commerce and Pampa was represented by E. O. Wedgeworth, manager, and Kay Fancher of the Chamber of Commerce.
Those scheduled to attend the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce banquet to be held Monday, Jan. 28, are Joe Fischer, Tom Brooks, Lynn Boyd, and Luke McClelland. N. Starkweather, which was also parked.

O'Konski's Word

Occasionally there arises in the halls of Congress a representative of moral integrity. The event is so rare that it is newsworthy when it occurs.

Our attention at the moment is directed toward Alvin E. O'Konski of Wisconsin. The honorable O'Konski says he doesn't intend being a party to the proposed visit of dictator Tito to this country. His statement contains some tendons of moral strength. He says he will resign from the Congress if Tito is invited.

Now there's a statement. O'Konski doesn't want to be a part of a government which would invite this bloody tyrant to these shores. He is surely to be commended.

But we marvel that O'Konski has gotten himself elected to a government which, in the past, has aided and abetted Tito in all his godless communism. While we rejoice in his current decision, we are somewhat astounded that the decision is a current one. Where was O'Konski when the latest batch of taxpayers' money was shipped to Tito by the government?

However, we must not carp. It is good to know that at least one of our nation's congressmen has seen the light and will no longer be a party to social and perhaps monetary exchanges with Tito.

In point of fact we have no good cause to remain in the same social register with the dictator of Yugoslavia. We have siphoned off goodly sums of money from our harassed citizens that Tito's government of unholiness might endure. Yet, Tito plays us false whenever the mood strikes him, which is frequently. He pretends to be our friend, yet makes no pretense of believing in what we believe. He professes to want our good will when all the while we know he merely has eyes for our dollars. And whenever the Kremlin crowd beckons, he is Moscow-bound in a twinkling to bend elbows with bully boys there and to extol the virtues of violence.

With all the emphasis being given lately to "brotherhood," it behooves us as a nation to examine carefully the company we keep.

There is a statement currently appropriate among the legal fraternity. It is that no one can enter a court of equity except with clean hands. Our efforts at international understanding are, more than in any other area, perhaps, efforts at achieving a court of equity. Yet how can our hands be clean in our dealings with foreign potentates, when one of our own governmental blood brothers is a dedicated communist?

An dhow can we expect the international court of relationship with others to greet us fondly if we continue to walk arm in arm with the man who slew Mikhailovich, who persecuted Cardinal Stepinac and who even had his hoodlums set one elderly Catholic bishop on fire? Is this the company we keep? And is this the table guest now wanted for a quiet evening at the White House?

What a pity there aren't more O'Konskis in the Congress. If we had a wholesale resignation on the heels of Mr. Eisenhower's invitation to the head of the Yugoslav government, there would be a quickening of the American spirit of freedom and independence.

Unfortunately, we don't expect any to emulate this Wisconsin solon. And even worse, when it comes to a showdown there will be plenty of spokesmen from the White House who will meet privately with O'Konski and who will probably convince him that a visit from Tito is just what is needed. Besides, they will argue, what good can O'Konski do if he resigns? The big thing, they will say, will be for men of his persuasion to stay on in office so that the viewpoint he represents will not be lost to American people. And in the end, it will be a rare thing indeed if O'Konski does as he says he will.

We hope for the best. And at the moment, if O'Konski's statement carries any weight, it may be instrumental in preventing the invitation. Which is, perhaps, the very best that we can expect.

One thing is certain. The American people are getting tired of this constant hospitality shown to communist dictators. And there are literally millions who tonight are hoping that O'Konski is as good as his word.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR F. JORDAN, M. D.

A curious disease known as Lupus erythematosus, which as recently as 1950 was considered uncommon, seems to be increasing and is now a matter of wide interest and intense study. The increase in frequency is reflected by the fact that just within the last few days I have received three inquiries about it.

The disease is most often experienced between ages of 15 and 40 but no age is entirely exempt. Women appear to acquire Lupus erythematosus about four times as often as men. Occasionally the disease occurs in families and even in twins. However, part of the apparent increase in frequency seems to be the result of better diagnosis, particularly because of the ingenious "LE Test," a laboratory procedure.

LUPUS INVOLVES a kind of body tissue which is the binding substance. This is called collagenous tissue. It has been studied a good deal in recent years but our knowledge of its functions and diseases is still incomplete.

Weakness, fatigue and fever are common early signs of Lupus. Unlike many diseases accompanied by fever, there is a low white blood count; that is, smaller than average number of white blood cells in the blood. Pains in the joints are common. Although the skin symptoms have long been considered characteristic, they may be absent at the beginning of the disease and sometimes never appear at all. The fever and joint pains are generally alleviated by using drugs like aspirin, which contain salicylates. The sulfa preparations, or at least one of them, may have some value also.

MALE HORMONES have been tried but have not been shown to have any definite effect on the course of the disease. ACTH, cortisone and their relatives have brought good results to many. The skin of patients with Lupus erythematosus is frequently sensitive to light and usually has to be protected against sunlight.

Other kinds of treatment which have been tried include well-balanced diet, but restricted amounts of food. Adequate vitamins, particularly "B" and "C," have been recommended, but these do not appear to influence the underlying condition. Among other forms of treatment are certain antimalarial drugs and a substance known as nitrogen mustard.

Lupus erythematosus is a disease which has been known for more than 80 years, but the cause has not yet been found nor has a completely satisfactory treatment been devised, though many victims of it do well under methods now available. There is hope that new methods to combat it may be developed in the next few years.

What Tax-Run Schools Dare Not Teach

I was reading the other day a pamphlet issued by The Civic Federation reporting an address made by Roger A. Freeman, former Research Director, Educational Committee. The pamphlet was called "Dollars and Sense in Education."

One of the things that impressed me was that the speaker pointed out that some believe that government schools are intellectually starving our children. That seemed to me to be a true statement. State schools intellectually starve their pupils because the planners of these schools would be embarrassed and made uncomfortable if their pupils were taught to believe in eternal moral law.

Now, what are the things that government schools dare not teach?

They dare not teach the spirit of the Constitution as set forth in the first official document of the United States, the Declaration of Independence? They dare not teach it because it says that all men are not just the majority, are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

A man isn't free to pursue happiness when the majority in any school district, any state or any nation can coerce him to pay for a school that he believes violates the principles upon which this government was formed.

The school teachers dare not emphasize this part of the Declaration of Independence. They dare not explain the true meaning of this statement. If they were successful in explaining and teaching the true meaning of these ideologies, there would be no gun-run schools.

Again, they dare not teach that to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just power from the consent of the governed. They dare not skip this statement. They dare not explain it. They have to completely repudiate the whole ideology of the American way of life. They have to teach the old-world philosophy of the divine right of government. Now they call it the divine right of the majority rather than the divine right of kings.

Meaning of Liberty

They dare not teach in government schools the meaning of liberty. It is doubtful whether any teacher in government schools dare define the kind of liberty the Founding Fathers mutually pledged to each other in their sacred honor to support. If the gun-run schools successfully taught the true meaning of the liberty our Founding Fathers had in mind, there would be no government schools that starve the intellects of our children.

Government schools cannot teach successfully the will to learn. The best way to teach anything is by example. But the superintendents and managers of the schools themselves are not enough interested in a will to learn to be willing to answer questions as they would before a court to determine whether what they are doing is in harmony with what they profess to believe. If there is anything a man of integrity should want to learn it is as to whether what he is doing is in harmony and consistent with what he says he believes.

About all an educator can do for a pupil is to stimulate in that individual a will to learn. And when the pupils know that those responsible for hiring their teachers and selecting their books, themselves do not have enough will to learn, it is very difficult to stimulate the youth to want to learn whether this course of action or that course is in harmony with such great moral laws as the Declaration of Independence and the Commandments and the Golden Rule. If their superintendents and their assistants have no desire to learn all these important subjects, it is difficult to perceive how such actions can be a good example that will encourage in those they come in contact with to have the will to learn.

The government schools dare not teach the meaning of the Golden Rule. If they were successful in getting their pupils to understand that they should not force other people to pay for something they did not want, then they could say that it was a violation of the Golden Rule to force others to pay for their schooling.

They, of course, dare not teach their pupils to believe in a definite limited government. They dare not teach their pupils to believe that if it is wicked and a violation of the Golden Rule for one man to do a thing, it is still wicked and a violation of the Golden Rule if 49 per cent or 99 per cent of the people do the same thing. They, thus, dare not teach the youth that the ideal government, the only kind of a government that can be of value to mankind, is one that is limited to the use of defensive force and never has right under any circumstances, to initiate force.

Frazier Made Big Mistake But He Didn't Tear It Up

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

CHICAGO — Larry Rue came to town from Bonn, on the Rhine, for the Chicago Tribune ceremonies and rounded up Robert Casey, another war fan as both soldier and correspondent, and I found them sitting in a murky place. Larry said Sinclair Lewis once spent about a year writing from preconceived prejudice a novel about the nobility and martyrism of a typical, composite American union boss.

"And the more he wrote the more he talked to people about the topic of unions," Mr. Rue said, "until he finally realized that the guy he was writing about was a crook and a racketeer. Instead of getting his information first, he started with his own ignorant, superstitious prejudice. And when he learned the truth he tore up several hundred pages and said 'To hell with it.'"

I said Frazier Hunt had made the same mistake in his idiotic biography of General Douglas MacArthur. Except that he didn't tear it up. MacArthur is a strutter who takes praise and awe as his due. He is not kind and probably would have made a bad president.

George Pattullo, who covered the first war for the Saturday Evening Post and was, I believe, the best war correspondent that our journalism ever has produced, said much the same thing about General Pershing. He wrote Pershing's history of the first war in Pershing's own office with a corporal standing guard with a bayonet and with a squad to deliver the documents to his table in the morning and collect them and return them to the vault at night.

Pershing was friendly, but he trusted nobody. These papers showed that after the war the French proposed to use the American Army as a labor corps to clear away ruins and rebuild their villages and towns. Pershing absolutely refused. Pershing had a terrible ambition to be president, but it never got off the ground. He was a hero, but the Republicans were soared of him.

Frazier Hunt put in five years doing his eulogy of MacArthur. I warned him gently that the man he was writing about was largely myth, but he worked on and on, neglecting more inviting and operable subjects, to what end? Just as Hunt's MacArthur went onto the market, there emanated from the Waldorf Tower, where MacArthur dwells in beautiful sanctification, a vapor of rumors disparaging Spike Hunt's book and exalting another job by one of MacArthur's Generals, which was more "official" than Spike's and more like to be MacArthur's self-serving version.

Rue said Spike had done a job on Colonel Cluster which was practically the same as Lewis' on the boag unionneer. We all grew up on the nickel-novel versions of the Indian wars.

He wrote first and studied a few paces behind his production," Mr. Rue said. "Then, all of a sudden it came to him that he was trying to make a great hero out of a stupid, careless mediocrity. So, he tore it up and wrote it off. But he wouldn't turn around and write the reverse. If Cluster wasn't a hero, that was too bad, but Spike wasn't going to make a bum of him." I had a letter from Spike Hunt in my pocket. His latest book, the story of Billy the Kid, had been slightly praised a few months ago as much better work than the subject deserved. Now here was Spike explaining almost endearingly why he resurrected Billy the Kid and breathed the warmth of youthful adventure and passion into a stone-cold legend of the wild west.

"He was," Spike said, "a strange, unappreciated kid, who for three short and wonderful years raised joyous hell and discovered that the dark little girls of New Mexico were as soft and sweet as those he had met along the Rio Grande. He was warm in his heart and his veins. He wanted to gamble and race his mare and steal a little and make a little love in the moonlight. But the rich and important people got Pat Garrett to bump him. And Pat, a decent enough man, winds up 30 years later with a slug as big as a pickle though the back of his head."

So, Gen. Fowler's compassionate treatment of Jimmy Walker, John Barrymore, Bill Fields and Sadakichi Hartman becomes a little less wasteful of a beautiful talent, good white paper and ink. The sister of Roger Touhy, denying herself to labor and pray for 25 years of his deliverance from Joseph

Mixed Together People Become As Water And Oil

By HENRY McLEMORE

BERLIN — The more I travel about the world the more I am convinced that there never will be such a thing as ONE WORLD and I don't care if the jet age makes it possible to pull on one sock in New York and the other in Singapore. My observations make it clear (to me, anyway) that the closer together the peoples of the earth get, the more apparent are their differences. Indeed, the farther apart they are, the more alike they seem. Mix 'em, and you have oil and water for sure.

Take the French, for example. I could live in France until I was 150, going on 151 years old and never dress as does a Frenchman of my age and station. French suits and shoes horrify me. They have more points than a compass, and when Frenchmen get all dressed up they look as if they had been sharpened on a whetstone. I have a tendency to duck them on the streets of Paris, lest I brush against one and get lacerated.

But the French love these little suits that seem to fit too tightly, and they undoubtedly look upon the wardrobe of an American as a badly chosen assortment of bur-lap bags. Frenchmen love perfume, too, and douse themselves with the juices and extracts of flower petals, exotic roots, and strange herbs.

As for the Germans — every day I stay in Germany I realize more and more that I never would be able to say "Shake, brother," and really mean it. Walking is one thing that marks a tremendous difference between the German and the American. The German is the greatest walker on earth. He really isn't happy unless he is swinging one leg after another, and if the weather is foul, and his path leads straight up-hill, so much the better. An American can make no greater mistake in Germany than to believe a German when he gives directions to a place and says it is within easy walking distance. The American is very likely to have to stop and have his shoes half-soled before he is much more than half-way. To a German, a distance of fifteen or twenty blocks is only a few steps, and a man who would take a cab is crazy.

This love of walking isn't confined to the men. Women do it, too, and so do the children. I haven't seen one yet, but I wouldn't be surprised if a year-old infant passed me, rucksack on back, heavy-shod and rubber-panted, headed for a hike in the mountains.

The farther East one goes, the more pronounced is the difference in tastes. In Egypt a man wears what amounts to a clean sheet to work, and his associates will say how nice he looks. An American would feel slightly undressed even if he were wearing a counterpane or a comforter.

Mind you, I'm not knocking tight suits, walking, or sheets for clothing. I'm just saying Americans never would become used to them. The Greeks like wine that tastes like resin, the Scandinavians like raw fish, and in Fiji a hind leg of dog is a treat you save for special guests. The Scotch even like haggis and the Highland fling.

If Americans like Elvis Presley, if things appear troublesome now, just wait until that day when we are all told that we must like what everyone else likes because we are all the same.

If such a day ever comes, what happens will prove we aren't.

American Political System Shows Amazing Strength

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — While European governments shake and shift under the pressure of world events, the American political system has shown an amazing strength, solidarity and maturity on and off Capitol Hill. And that observation applies to both Democrats and Republicans.

The normally partisan and waspish Harry S. Truman, for instance, praises the Administration's far-reaching Middle East Doctrine, even though it places him in opposition to the man he called "one of our greatest Secretaries of State" — Dean Acheson. It also pits Truman against Adlai E. Stevenson and National Chairman Paul M. Butler.

A majority of Senate-House Democrats favor Ike's program for military defense of the Middle East, although dubious over proposals for economic aid. Their attitude is regarded as especially magnanimous, in view of Republican campaign boasts that the Suez Canal and allied problems were approaching a settlement because of Eisenhower — Dulles statesmanship.

Even stubborn John Foster Dulles eschews partisanship. He conceded rather ruefully that the United States might have adopted a firmer Middle East policy several years ago, thereby staving off today's difficulties. But he suggested with some humility that "it is never too late to mend."

The old Taft faction is finally surrendering to Ike, save for Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin. Senators Jenner and Caperton of Indiana have indicated that they will support the White House program, although not completely happy in their new role.

Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen, a Taft lieutenant and a Chicago Tribune idol and isolationist, aches to succeed Senator William F. Knowland as spokesman for Eisenhower in the Upper Chamber.

Even Senator Knowland plan to retire from his important post has its elements of chivalry and integrity.

Instead of remaining on Capitol Hill to undermine and conspire against Vice President Nixon, assuming that the Oakland publisher seeks the 1960 Presidential nomination, he will fight for it openly on the battleground of California politics.

The fierce factional fight forecast among Democratic Conservatives and Liberals has been a dud. Relations between the wings, despite basic differences, were never more harmonious.

Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson killed the motion to bar filibusters when it was offered by the Humphrey-Douglas-Neyberger bloc. But the Texas and Senator Knowland immediately joined in an agreement to liberalize Rule XXII along the lines proposed by the Northern faction.

As a result, a moderate Civil Rights program will probably be enacted at this session, thereby preventing a serious division among the Democrats that might be fatal — again — in 1960.

The opposing Democrats are on excellent terms, personally. At the close of each Senate day, Johnson usually meets in his office with a small party-making group. Senator Humphrey is always included along with such veteran Conservatives as Russell of Georgia, Hayden of Arizona, Stennis of Mississippi and other Southerners. And Humphrey is not afraid to beard these sages.

Humphrey helps to bridge the gap between Congressional Democrats and Party bigwigs in disagreement with the Johnson-Rayburn philosophy and leadership. Whereas the 2 Texans refused to join Butler's Advisory Committee, Humphrey serves on it with Truman, Stevenson and Eleanor Roosevelt.

In the face of a divided and hostile and shattered world, these instances of American sanity and sportsmanship set an example for friends and foes alike.

The movies are important to the United States as entertainment, culture and industry. They are particularly important to elderly and retired people who have the money and the leisure, now that their children are married and away from home, to seek this form of enjoyment frequently. But unfortunately, according to letters I have received lately, this pleasure is being seriously interfered with by the thoughtless policy of some theater managers. People complain that they hurry through dinner, get to the theater early, buy their tickets and then ARE KEPT STANDING IN THE LOBBY FOR TWENTY OR THIRTY MINUTES before being permitted to enter the auditorium. When they do enter, they are indignant when they find plenty of vacant seats. The managers, they say, inflict the hardship of standing on these people because they believe the sight of a crowded lobby gives the impression of a hit and increases business. But if it antagonizes the people who already are there, it works the other way and it is hard to believe that the theater owners approve of it.

Let the sister of Gerald Chapman weeping and entreating Connecticut Governors to give back the body of her brother for the family plot, would understand.

Larry praised Bob Casey's book on picture-guess reporters called quaint who merely had the energy and character to be themselves.

"I forgot one," Bob said. "He was a young fellow on a London paper who travelled all over the United States collecting ashtrays from hotels and night clubs. Back in London they seemed out of place. So he retraced his steps and put them all back where he got them."

Floyd Patterson Hurls Challenge At Rocky To Come Back And Fight

Floyd Patterson today issued a challenge to retired Rocky Marciano to "come back and fight"...

With the quiet but intense Patterson it is a matter of both pride and pocketbook. He knows that a bout with Marciano might produce the greatest gate of all time...

Before I fought Archie Moore, he was picked by many to defeat me, Patterson explained. "After I defeated him to win the championship, almost everybody concurred that I had beaten an 'old man'."

Beating Marciano, he knows, would clinch his spot in the hall of heavyweight champions.

Patterson Breaks Hand In that fight, Patterson broke a bone in his hand early in the bout but still managed to win the decision.

He still was strong at the end of those 12 rounds and knew that he could have gone 15 rounds," D'Amato explained.

The Patterson camp admits that a Marciano fight would be a real risk because, as D'Amato nodded, "Rocky's punch could take anybody out at any time."

But D'Amato has an iron-clad faith in his 22-year-old champion and then, too, there is the money.

Barring Marciano's return, on tap for Patterson is an exhibition tour and a probable June fight. After that there is no body in immediate sight except some showworn veterans and inexperienced Eddie Machen of California.

By UNITED PRESS The Fort Wayne Pistons overcame another fine performance by scoring champion Bob Pettit of St. Louis Tuesday night to increase their narrow lead to one full game in the Western Division of the National Basketball Association.

The Pistons led most of the way on the home court to beat St. Louis, 97-87, despite 30 points by Pettit.

St. Louis scored 11 straight points to rally from a 17-6 early deficit to a 17-17 tie, but Fort Wayne went back in front again and stayed ahead by a comfortable margin. George Yardley paced the Pistons with 21 points.

Pampa Sneaks Past Plainview

PLAINVIEW — The accuracy of Sam Condo at the free-throw line gave the Pampa Harvesters a narrow 47-44 District 3-AAAA basketball victory over the Plainview Bulldogs here Tuesday night.

The Harvesters, battling to keep alive their chances for the district championship, ran up against Plainview's zone defense and could make only 10 field goals. Plainview rolled up 15 field goals but fell short on the free-throw line.

The game was close all of the way although Pampa did manage to take an eight-point lead early in the second quarter. The lead changed hands after almost every shot in the last half.

Condo, a 6-2 senior forward and the Harvesters' third high scorer, canned 18 of 20 free throws and added two field goals for 22 points.

Jerry Pope, the Pampa, leading scorer and fourth top marksman in the district, was held to one field goal and a free throw for three points. Pope, who failed to score in the second half, appeared to be fuddled by the zone defense.

Shifty Bill Taegle, the district's top scorer, aided his cause last night by dumping in 24 points to take game honors. Bill Grace and Donnie Boatright each had eight for the losers. Bill Brown and Dickie Mauldin made nine points each for Pampa.

The victory was the 18th in 19 contests for Pampa this season and left them in second place in the 3-AAAA standings. Berger continued to lead the race by romping over Palo Duro, 63-49. The Berger squad has a 6-0 district mark while Pampa is second with 5-1. Pampa's only loss has been to Berger.

Brown's two points, the first shot of the second quarter, gave Pampa its biggest lead of the game at 18-11. Pampa had rolled to a 16-11 first-quarter margin. Pampa had a 27-23 lead at the half but chilled in the third period to make only seven points and trailed 36-34 at that point. The Harvesters made only one field goal in each of the last two quarters.

Mauldin tied the game at 36-36 with 10 seconds gone in the fourth quarter and Condo's two free throws gave Pampa a 38-36 bulge. Taegle immediately tied it up and Brown's free throw gave the Harvesters a 40-36 lead. Taegle hit two free throws for another Plainview lead but Condo's gratis shots put Pampa back in front with 2:15 gone.

Pampa Boxers Enter Berger Tournament

The Berger District Golden Gloves Tournament begins tonight at the Sports Arena with Pampa boxers expected to compete at least one-third of the field of entries.

The Pampa Optimist Club will have between 25 and 30 fighters at the tournament, the last of four district events leading up to the 21st Annual Regional Golden Gloves Tournament in Amarillo next week.

The Berger event is scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday nights. The tourney is open to pee-wee, novice, high school and open fighters. Winners and runners-up will receive trophies.

Borger's Jaycee team is expected to be the power of the meet. The Borger team won nine championships at the Pampa district tournament last week while Pampa won six and Guyton captured two.

Fighters from Guyton, Perryton, Dumas and other area cities are expected to join Pampa and Borger boxers. Most of the entries will compete in the pee-wee and high school brackets.

Jesse Taylor is director of the Borger meet. An estimated 60-75 boxers are expected to enter. Among the Pampa fighters who will probably enter are recent Pampa district champions Bobby Williams, James Tucker, Kenny Powell, Gary Willis, and Charles Snider.

By UNITED PRESS No Pittsburgh player is being asked to take a salary cut this year and a choice few, like little Elroy Face, the workhorse of the Pirates' bullpen, are receiving whopping big raises.

The 5-foot, 8-inch right-hander signed his 1957 contract today after earning a nice boost for his work last season. The 155-pound righthander, who picked up that pitch from ex-Yankee Joe Page when he had a brief fling with Pittsburgh, won 12 games and lost 13 last year in addition to saving eight other victories.

General Manager Joe L. Brown of the Pirates has said there will be no pay cuts this year and that several players will receive raises. Face worked pretty hard for his. He set a new record for the Pittsburgh club by appearing in 68 games and set a major league record for consecutive appearances when he pitched in nine straight games.

Purkey Signs Contract Right-hander Bob Purkey, who had a 6-8 record with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League, also signed with the Pirates, giving them a total of 23 players already under contract.

The St. Louis Cardinals reported 23 players under contract and only nine more to go with the signing of pitcher Jim Davis. Garz Blaylock and Tom Cheney.

Davis, a left-handed knuckleballer acquired from the Cubs last month and since sought by the Dodgers, had a 5-7 record with Chicago and a .368 earned run average. Blaylock had an 8-5 record with Rochester of the International League while Cheney, a welter thought of 22-year-old right-hander compiled 10 victories and five losses with Omaha of the American Association.

NEW YORK (UP) — European champion Cherif Hamia of France laid claim today to Sandy Saddler's vacant featherweight championship but faced the prospect of at least one bout before gaining official recognition.

The U.S. National Boxing Association announced it would accept the winner of a bout between Hamia and Carmelo Costa of Brooklyn as the new 126-pound ruler.

The New York state Boxing Commission, which is not an NBA member, promised to issue its opinion on the title by Friday and indications were strong that it, too, would demand Hamia meet at least one major foe to gain the crown.

Saddler's seven-year reign as king of the featherweights ended Tuesday when his manager, Charley Johnston, announced the New Yorker is quitting boxing in order to save his sight. Saddler claims injuries suffered in an automobile accident here last July 27 have resulted in partial blindness.

Dr. Thomas W. Mathew, a neurosurgeon who has been treating the 30-year-old Saddler, said, "I have advised Sandy that if he boxes again, he will run a grave risk of going completely blind. Sandy is in agreement, although it means giving up his livelihood. He still retains partial vision and, if he does not go back into the ring, there is a fair chance he will retain what sight he has left."

In Paris, Saddler's announcement was followed by Hamia's title claim, made for him by his manager, Philippe Filippi.

(Continued from Page 1) sumption of their search today. The entire region was cordoned off and a nightlong guard posted. The frustrating lack of clues was one of the points of similarity between the slayings of the sisters and the unsolved murder of three schoolboys in October, 1955.

The slaying of John Schuessler, 13, his brother, Anton, 11, and Robert Peterson, 13, touched off a continuing manhunt second only to the present investigation.

Only Monday, a group of wealthy Chicago men organized a crime detection institute and pledged a reward of $10,000 for the solution to the Schuessler and Peterson slayings.

Leonard Prescott, 39, Hinsdale, Ill., who spotted the girls' bodies, said at first he thought they were clothing store dummies.

Barbara's body was found lying face up on top of her sister's. There were three puncture wounds in Barbara's chest, which appeared to have been made by an ice pick. Patricia's face was battered and bruised.

Fear Mass Killer
Police threw some 9,000 men into the search, fearing that a mass killer of children may be loose in Chicago.

Sheriff Joseph Lohman said there were "marked similarities" between the murders of the sisters and the boys.

Undersheriff Tom Brennan said the two cases "could be the same thing or else it could be somebody following a pattern."

The girls' father, Joseph, identified their bodies as they lay in a ditch and then broke into hysterical sobs.

Their mother, Loretta, a divorcee, who also had insisted during the weeks of tense waiting that her girls had not run away, was near collapse.

Firemen Get New Badges

New badges to be worn by local firemen were received by the city this morning. Ernest Winborne, fire chief, reported that the new badges would not be issued until the new uniforms arrive. No date has been received from the company making the uniforms as to when they will be available.

The badges for the chief and captains are gold colored while the badges for the remaining firemen are silver colored. All badges are alike except for the color.

The badges and the new uniforms will be worn only when the firemen are on official business and will not be worn when fighting fires, Winborne reported.

(Continued from Page 1) file, containing a series of letters in which Metesky sought to satisfy his claim for a disability incurred when he was gassed in 1921 while employed as a generator wiper at one of the utility's New York plants.

Not So, Says Arm
"We haven't got the full details yet, but we say it's not so," Arm said.

"The physical act of picking it out was done at the request of the police department."

Police Commissioner Stephen Kennedy, who has been authorized to designate any reward recipient, said he would conduct a thorough investigation of the situation.

There was a strong possibility, however, that the dispute would turn out to be academic, since, if Metesky is adjudged insane and committed to a mental hospital no reward money could be offered.

Metesky, the smiling, affable man who "nobody ever knew," today began undergoing psychiatric tests at Bellevue Hospital which ultimately will decide whether he will have to stand trial for his exploits or be committed to a mental hospital.

Such a commitment, legal authorities pointed out, would not technically constitute a conviction, and thus would preclude any rewards.

Jaycees Hear Program On Polio At Meet

This week's program at the Jaycee luncheon, held yesterday afternoon in the Palm Room of City Hall, was captained by the Rev. Edwin Hall, Jaycee himself, and chairman of the current March of Dimes Drive in Pampa.

The Rev. Hall introduced Mrs. Bruce Pratt who addressed the group with a personal but sincere account of her experiences with polio patients, and even more closely with her own daughter.

She spoke of how her daughter had been a perfectly normal and healthy child, and how she had grown up much the same way and married. Up until that time, Mrs. Pratt said, the March of Dimes had always been a good cause, but something which did not pertain to much to her or her family because, she felt, "it would not happen here."

However, it did happen and Mrs. Pratt spent quite some time for the next few months of her life visiting on a polio ward with her daughter.

She spoke to the group about the various cases she had seen, stopping to elaborate on a few.

Toward the end of her talk, Mrs. Pratt asked the Jaycees present to take the Salk vaccine, and to contribute as freely as their means would permit to the current drive on polio.

Other business taken up at the meeting was an announcement on the Bosses Night to be observed on Saturday, Jan. 26, at 7 p.m. in the Palm Room of City Hall.

At this time the Jaycees will invite their bosses to attend, and an "outstanding boss" will be chosen.

The meeting was presided over by George Neal, in the absence of Ray Duncan, president of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Fear Tanker Plane, Crew Of 7 Downed
ROME, N. Y. (UP)—A KC-97 Air Force tanker plane, with a crew of seven men aboard, was missing and feared to have crashed in upstate New York.

Bad weather delayed an air search, but the Civil Air Patrol unit at nearby Utica organized a ground search party to fan out into the foothills of the Adirondacks.

The public information office at Griffiss Air Force Base said the last radio contact with the $1.1 million four-engine tanker, was made in the Rome-Utica area, showing it had almost completed its scheduled flight when it disappeared.

The plane had about a 12-hour supply of fuel when it left Westover, Mass., Air Force Base for Griffiss Tuesday, but that fuel would have been used by now, a spokesman said. The distance between the two bases is about 175 miles.

Cerebral Palsy Meeting In CoC Offices Today

The group, which was expected to be comprised of parents of afflicted children and professional people of the community, will also attempt to decide whether there is a need for the establishment of a chapter of the Cerebral Palsy Association here in Pampa or whether or not the function of securing treatment for stricken patients could be handled just as well by existing local agencies.

Bout With Bottle In Court Set

By STAN TAIT
United Press Staff Correspondent
MIAMI (UP)—Hefty William C. Rose will belt down enough whiskey to get properly "drunk" in the eyes of the law today, then get behind a steering wheel to try to prove drunkometers are all wet when it comes to a man who can handle his liquor.

The 6-foot, 238-pound real estate man, said he would line his stomach with "just a couple of cups of coffee" before staging his bout with the bottle in the court of Municipal Judge Francis A. Sobieski today. The judge agreed to let Rose try to prove he was in complete command of his faculties recently when charged with drunk driving on the basis of a .246 drunkometer reading.

A drunkometer reading of .150 which means there is 150 per cent alcohol in the bloodstream, is legally considered a sure sign of intoxication.

Drunkometer tests are allowed as evidence on a voluntary basis in 46 states. The National Safety Council, basing its opinion on research at Michigan State University, says the tests are reliable.

Rose contends, however, that while this may be true for "little men" and one-handed drinkers, it does not hold good for a two-fisted elbow-bender like himself. He claims that in spite of the drunkometer reading, the "seven or eight drinks in the five hours" before he was arrested were not enough to do him in.

His contention is that the drunkometer can be wrong, in fact is wrong in all but about 30 or 40 per cent of the cases," he said.

"I'm a big man and I've been drinking a considerable amount regularly for a number of years," said Rose. "A little man who isn't used to drinking might be in bad shape with a .246 reading, but I'm not."

Bitter Cold Adding To Storm Miseries
By UNITED PRESS
Bitter cold today as workers cleaned up debris from tornadoes that struck in Oklahoma and Louisiana, leaving 11 dead and 16 injured.

Twelve homes were destroyed and 16 heavily damaged at Gans, Okla., where a vicious tornado killed eight and left a ninth person dead from a heart attack after it passed.

Another tornado struck some six hours later between Princeton and Bellevue, La., killing three Negroes and injuring eight other persons.

Five homes were demolished by the Louisiana tornado and nearly a dozen more were heavily damaged. Some of the injured were still in critical condition today in hospitals at Shreveport, La.

National Guardsmen patrolled the cold streets at Gans through the night to prevent looting and to keep curiosity seekers out of the city. Temperatures dipped to the low 20s in Gans today and to 30 degrees at Princeton.

The stricken Louisiana agricultural section was a picture of wasteland today. Wreckage of homes, buildings, automobiles and uprooted trees littered the area.

The tornado tore a big "S" shaped path some 150 yards wide through timberland, uprooting trees and smashing homes as it swept along a path about three miles long.
