Queen Ignores Rumors Of Rift

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UP) — Queen Elizabeth II ignored today published rumors of a "rift" with the Duke of Edinburgh and let it be known she will join him Saturday aboard the royal yacht Britannia.

They will spend a two-day, strictly private "second honeymoon" in Portuguese waters.

Buckingham Palace announced the Queen's plans as the British press broke its self-imposed censorship on reports of a royal rift and as the Daily Mirror appealed to Prince Philip to fly home from Gibraltar for a family reunion.

The queen will be flying to Portugal for a state visit, but the state visit will wait while she goes aboard the Britannia for a week-end with the duke in the romantic bay of Setubal, 20 miles south of Lisbon.

They'll Be Alone

The duke, who waved goodbye to the Queen last Oct. 15 when he set out on a world voyage, will meet her Saturday at Montijo airport near Lisbon.

"The Queen and the duke will spend the next two days in privacy aboard the Britannia," the palace spokesman said. "Whether they go ashore or not isn't known because what they do during Saturday and Sunday will be completely private."

"But it is certain they will live aboard Britannia."

The spokesman said the report from Lisbon that the royal couple would spend the first two days of the Portugal visit at the country home of the Duke of Palmella was incorrect. The duke of Palmella was reported to have returned his estate in anticipation of their visit.

The reports hit 10 million breakfast tables today when three London newspapers splashed the story — and the Buckingham Palace denials — across their front pages.

A fourth, the Manchester Guardian, suggested the American press must have "taken leave of its senses."

The tabloid Daily Mirror which devoted its entire front page to the story urged in screaming headlines: "Fly Home, Philip!" And it added this is "the way to kill a silly rumor." Sunday papers made a similar appeal without reporting the rumored rift.

Plan "Second Honeymoon"

Palace sources disclosed the Queen had been in telephone conversation with the Duke who is watching home fleet activities at Gibraltar while waiting for the Queen to join him Saturday in Portugal for a "second honeymoon" and a state visit.

It was assumed in royal circles the Queen and Duke had discussed the world wide rumors during their telephone talks. The Queen has never looked happier in recent days and it was assumed they had decided to ignore the rumors and try to kill them by the warmth of their reunion after four months of separation.

Some London papers suggested the Queen fly aside royal protocol and fly to Gibraltar. Others suggested the Duke fly to Lisbon.

Denials Printed

The news also was given two-thirds of a column on page one of Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express. It quoted the palace denial of the original Baltimore Sun story — "It's a lie" — and said Express readers should know about "baseless speculation."

The Laborite Daily Herald also front paged the report. Its bannerline said: "Queen's Spokesman Gives Denial To U.S. Palace Rumors Are Untrue."

They were the only three of London's 11 morning newspapers to carry the news in their first edition.

Directors Of Chamber Meet Today

There was a regular monthly meeting of directors of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development at 12 noon today in the Palm Room of City Hall.

At this time the group met with the agriculture committee for the purpose of completing plans for the securing of buyers of livestock for the Junior Livestock Show scheduled next week.

Other items discussed included Education, Business and Industry Day to be held in Pampa during Texas Education week in March.

A report was made on the agricultural clinic being sponsored here by the Chamber of Commerce, the Burlington Lines and the Agriculture Extension Agency Wednesday. At this time, it was announced, the Chamber will be host to farmers and ranchers of the Top O' Texas area.

A report was also made on the progress of the recently formed Pampa Community Hotel Company, by members of the hotel board.

Final business consisted of an announcement of the Urban Renewal Meeting to be held here Friday.

Paul Crouch, president of the Chamber, presided over the meeting.

George Cree Jr., president of the Hotel Company, has said that in all probability the group of hotel directors will leave by the end of this week on their planned trip.

Ike To Meet With Mollet, Macmillan

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent
THOMASVILLE, Ga. (UP) — The White House today announced plans for President Eisenhower to hold separate meetings in February and March with the premier of France and the prime minister of Great Britain.

The President will meet French Premier Guy Mollet in Washington Feb. 26-27.

His conference with the new British prime minister, Harold Macmillan, will be held in Bermuda March 21-24.

Eager for Visit

The Eisenhower-Macmillan meeting has long been forecast but not confirmed officially until today.

Macmillan early last month was selected to succeed Sir Anthony Eden who resigned for reasons of health at a time when his leadership was under sharp critical fire for his handling of the Middle East crisis.

Mollet has wanted to visit the United States for some time, particularly to discuss the Suez Canal and French policy in North Africa.

British Suggest Site

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said original plans for the two meetings were "mutual in both cases." This was in reply to a question on whether Macmillan had asked to see the President.

Hagerty said the Bermuda site for the Macmillan conference was picked at the suggestion of the chief executive who conferred there in December, 1953, with Sir Winston Churchill, then the British prime minister, and Joseph Laniel, then the French premier.

It was immediately after the 1953 meeting in Bermuda that the president went before the United Nations with his atoms for peace plan.

Discuss Israeli Issue

Mr. Eisenhower, who is spending a golf and hunting vacation on the South Georgia estate of Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, was up early this morning in telephone conference with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

They discussed, as they did yesterday and Saturday, pending efforts in the United Nations to have Israel withdraw all armed forces from the Gaza strip.

It was raining here early today, but the showery were supposed to (See IKE, Page 8)

Pool Bill Public Hearing Tonight

By O. B. LLOYD, Jr.
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN (UP) — The controversial Pool bill, which would provide a runoff in the special U. S. Senate election April 2, will be aired before a Senate committee tonight as the 55th legislature moves into its second month.

The House-approved measure, which according to its opponents would "change the rules in the middle of the game," will be heard publicly by the Senate Privileges and Elections committee at 7:30 p. m.

The bill passed the House last week 103-46, three more votes than necessary to give it immediate effect. It at least 21 senators give it the nod when it comes up for approval in the upper chamber.

GOP's Threaten Suit

Authorised by Rep. Joe Pool of Dallas, the measure would provide a runoff if no candidate receives more than 50 per cent of the votes in the race for Gov. Price Daniel's vacated Senate seat. Daniel has given it an "emergency" tag and urged immediate action.

Republicans have threatened to file suit against the bill on constitutional grounds if it passes the legislature.

A proposal by Sen. Charles Herring of Austin which opposes the Pool bill, will also be heard by the committee tonight.

His measure would eliminate the special election and keep Sen. William Blakley of Dallas, former Gov. Allan Shivers' interim appointee, in the seat until the term expires in January, 1959.

More Night Meetings

Action was indicated tonight by the Senate Constitutional Amendments committee on a proposal by Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas to issue $100 million in state bonds to be loaned to local water conservation projects.

The House Game and Fisheries committee will hear at 7:30 p. m. tonight a bill by Rep. O. H. Schram of Taylor boosting fishing license fees from $1.65 to $2.15.

That Excuse Won't Work

MANCHESTER, Eng. (UP) — Mrs. Pamela Lawton had an excuse for speeding when a police officer stopped her last week and let her go.

When he stopped her for speeding again Sunday on the same road, however, he presented her with a list of seven rest rooms along the route and told her he wouldn't let her use the excuse a third time.

Ike Program Assault Seen

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — The conservative wing of the Republican Party seems to be winding up for an assault along a broad front against some of President Eisenhower's foreign and domestic programs.

The President's position on a number of issues has come under fire from several individuals in his own party in the past few days, including his administration's leader in the Senate, Sen. William F. Knowland.

Mr. Eisenhower and "new Republicanism" were the targets for some conservative-wing fire during the weekend in Chicago.

Discusses Ideas Tonight

Knowland, who often becomes restive over administration foreign policy, objected to talk about invoking United Nations sanctions against Israel. Some usually staunch administration backers joined him in opposing any U.S. support for such sanctions.

Knowland will discuss his ideas for new U.S. approaches in the United Nations in a speech tonight at Georgetown University here.

The California senator also indicated dissatisfaction this weekend with Mr. Eisenhower's record peace-time spending budget of $71.8 billion. Knowland told newsmen that he expects Congress to cut the administration's appropriation (See IKE PROGRAM, Page 8)

White Enters Senate Race

AUSTIN (UP) — Agriculture Commissioner John White announced today he will be a candidate for the U. S. Senate in the special April 2 election.

The 32-year-old commissioner, now serving his fourth term, said he will conduct a hard-driving campaign.

"That's the only kind I know," he told newsmen in a five-minute conference at which he announced his candidacy.

White, in a prepared statement, said he made his decision "without obligation to political extremists or pressure groups. My only obligation is to all Texans who have four times elected me to high public office. To them I feel a strong sense of duty, and I ask their confidence and support in the coming campaign."

The announcement followed personal surveys of his support made by White during recent trips over Texas.

"Everywhere I checked, they are looking for a new face in the Senate race. Apparently it is wide open," he said.

Four Fined On DWI Charges

Four persons were given $100 fines and sentenced to three days in jail in County Court this morning on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Those sentenced were Charles Lowell Gilbert, 25, of Pampa who was arrested by city police Sunday morning in the 600 block of N. Hobart; Rex Donald Donohou, 34, of Pampa who was arrested by city police Sunday morning in the 1000 block of W. Brown; Travis Dale Loper, 38, of Great Bend, Kans., who was arrested by the Sheriff's office Saturday morning; and Melvin Newell, 25, of Borger who was arrested by the Highway Patrol.

All four pleaded guilty prior to receiving sentence.

See New Middle East Threat With Israelis' Belligerence

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) — The United States is reported today to be drafting a stern warning to Israel against the consequences of its refusal to quit the Gaza and Aqaba strips.

A Washington dispatch said administration officials felt that failure of the Israelis to withdraw from the former Egyptian-held areas soon would increase dangerously the risk of a new Middle East War.

There also were indications at the United Nations that the United States is seeking from Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser the pledge of non-belligerence which Israel demands from Egypt as the price for withdrawing from the strategic areas bordering Israel.

Dulles in Conference

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles summoned Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban to Washington today in hopes of persuading Israel to withdraw from the disputed areas, but there were no indications Israel would budge without guarantees against future Egyptian attacks.

President Eisenhower, in Thomasville, Ga., is conferring daily with Dulles over the Middle East Problems. Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave no indication the President was making progress in efforts to persuade Israel to withdraw.

A clue to next developments in the Middle East may come today from UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold. He is expected to release a report on the Mideast and his negotiations toward a settlement.

The General Assembly meanwhile was expected to meet Tuesday to consider the Hammarskjold report. It also is to take up the question of the 900,000 Arab refugees of the 1949 Palestine War, many of whom still live in the Gaza Strip.

Canal Question Pending

Jordanian Ambassador Abdel Monem Rifai called a meeting today of the 27-nation Afro-Asian bloc to consider proposals for U.N. sanctions. He has sought economic, military and diplomatic measures against Israel.

There was growing opposition in Washington to sanctions. House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Mass.) said on a TV program Sunday sanctions against Israel were not justified under present circumstances and that they also should be invoked against Egypt.

Earlier, New York Republicans Sens. Irving M. Ives and Jacob K. Javits told Dulles the same (See U. S. DRAFTS, Page 8)

64 Animals Entered In Saturday Show

A total of 66 pigs and 18 calves have been entered in the Lions Club Gray County Junior Livestock Show which will be held Saturday at the show barn at Recreation Park.

The show is sponsored by the Pampa Noon Lions Club and is under the direction of the Agricultural Committee of the club.

Members of the Pampa FFA, McLean FFA and Gray County 4-H Clubs have placed entries in the show.

All of the animals must be weighed in at the show barn by noon Saturday and the weights will be used to determine the class the animal will be entered in. After weighing the heavy 50 per cent of the calves will be entered in the Senior Class and the light 50 per cent will be entered in the Junior Class.

Prizes will be awarded to the first five in each class and to a Grand Champion and a Reserve Champion in the calf judging.

Prizes will also be awarded to the first five in the Junior and Senior classes of pigs and awards will be made to the Grand Champion and Junior Champion.

Second Offense DWI Charged

A charge of second offense driving while intoxicated was filed in District Court this morning against Orville Lee Wedge, 724 N. Sumner.

A bond of $1,500 was set by D. R. Henry, justice of peace, and Wedge was to make the bond later today.

Wedge was arrested by city officers at 4:05 a.m. Sunday in the 800 block of Gwendolyn after being observed by the officers while driving on N. Hobart.

Steelworkers' Union Having Struggle For Top Leadership

By SELWYN FEINSTEIN
United Press Staff Correspondent
PITTSBURGH (UP) — Millhans across the nation and in Canada troop to the polls Tuesday to decide the first struggle for top leadership in the 20-year history of the United Steelworkers' Union.

David J. McDonald, heir to the USW throne following the death of union founder Philip Murray in 1952, met opposition for the international presidency from Donald C. Rarick of McKeesport, Pa., a rank-and-file member.

The union's 1,200,000 members will also ballot for international vice president, secretary-treasurer and directors of 30 USW districts.

Leads Protest Movement

The voting matches McDonald, a suave career unionist, against a $6,500 a year U.S. Steel Corp. mul-worker who jumped into the national spotlight last fall to protest an increase in union dues from $3 to $5 a month.

Rarick, who has spent 19 of his 37 years in the union, regards McDonald's handling of the USW as "autocratic." He charged the union president "railroaded" the dues increase through an international convention in Los Angeles last September.

McDonald became secretary to Murray in 1953 before the USW's founding. He has accused Rarick of attempting to organize a rump faction within the union and forming "dual unionism," the cardinal sin of the labor movement.

Leads On Record

The union chief, 54, believes his record is the best advertisement for re-election to the $50,000 a year job. Since 1952, the union has won benefits equivalent to 67.5 cents a hour and has hiked saboteur-hourly pay scale to an average $2.75 an hour.

Rarick's dues protest campaign and his presidential bid has crystallized much of the anti-McDonald sentiment existing within the steelworkers.

William Klug of Milwaukee, joined Rarick's slate as candidate for secretary-treasurer, opposing incumbent I. W. Abel. But Vice President Howard R. Hague is running unopposed for re-election, following the sudden withdrawal of protest candidate Edward Revak last December.

Nation's Capital Sets Example Of Traffic Safety

EDITOR'S Note — A six-point safety program cut Washington's traffic death toll to a record low last year. The following dispatch tells how it was done.

By LOUIS CASSELLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — The nation's capital is setting a traffic safety example for U. S. cities.

While the national toll of traffic deaths was climbing to an all-time high of 40,200 last year, the District of Columbia toll dropped to 57, the lowest figure since records were established in 1923.

Washington's 1956 traffic death rate of 6.2 per 100,000 population was the lowest of any major city in the nation.

Officials attribute this achievement to a six-point safety program. Two of the key features have been adopted within the past year. Others have been in effect for several years and are now bearing the fruit of long-range effort.

Watch Worst Areas

Here's what Washington is doing to save lives on its streets and highways:

Police are cracking down on traffic violators with a "selective enforcement program" that concentrates police manpower on a few "accident-prone" areas at a time. This strategy was adopted last April 1. Almost immediately it brought a sharp drop in accidents.

"Selective enforcement" begins in a big chart room at police headquarters where every traffic arrest or accident is carefully plotted to show time, place, and type of driving violation at fault.

From this information, Deputy Chief John J. Agnew, head of the traffic division, pinpoints streets, intersections or whole areas that are becoming dangerous. He also notes what the main trouble is—speeding, cutting in and out of traffic lanes, cars following each other too closely.

Agnew then orders his "roving squad" of motorcycle patrolmen into action. The 30 picked men in this squad have no regular beats. They are available on round-the-clock shifts, for spot-enforcement drives in any part of the city. When they descend on an area and begin passing out tickets for the particular violation that has been causing accidents there, driving safety abruptly improves.

After a few days of the full treatment, Agnew gradually reduces the concentration of police manpower in that area. But he sends the roving squad back at intervals to revive the fear of the law in any motorist who may have regular and unpredictable inter- concluded that the heat is off.

After 10 months experimentation with selective enforcement, Agnew told the United Press that "I am convinced that it is the best tool at our disposal to reduce traffic accidents."

US Red Party Meets To Discuss Proposal

NEW YORK (UP)—The U.S. Communist Party meets today to discuss a proposed new constitution by which members voted overwhelmingly to remain a political party in a Moscow-recommended decision.

Delegates to the party's 16th national convention adopted a compromise resolution Sunday framed to resolve sharp differences among the party's leadership.

Members voted to continue the name and party form and to "strengthen, rebuild and consolidate" the party as recommended by the Kremlin.

The resolution which opposed changing the party into a "political or education association" was a victory for the faction headed by William Z. Foster, the party's 75-year-old national chairman. Foster and Eugene Dennis, the party's general secretary have worked close to the hard Moscow line.

It offered a compromise to a faction headed by John Gates, editor of the Communist Daily Worker, in providing for further discussion, "as may be organized by the incoming national committee."

Liz Taylor Gets Sick

NEW YORK (UP)—Actress Elizabeth Taylor was taken off a plane from Mexico on a stretcher Sunday night and rushed to a New York hospital, an anxious Mike Todd at her side.

The actress, who had been honeymooning with Todd in Mexico, suffered a recurrence of the spinal injury that had kept her in the hospital for eight and one-half weeks prior to Jan. 21.

Todd, whom she married in Mexico last week, said at the hospital, "Mfg. Todd began to feel some pain in the spinal area" while on a plane trip from Acapulco, Mexico, to Mexico City on Saturday. He said the ride was "quite rough."

"Rather than stop at some Mexican hospital," Todd said, "we continued on here where the doctors would be familiar with her case."

He added that she is resting "quite comfortably."

They had previously announced plans to have a religious ceremony performed in addition to their Mexican civil wedding. When asked if they would have such a ceremony performed here, Todd answered that, "right now, I'm worried about her back."

Marriage Has Better Chance Today Due To Current Sociological Factors

In the years since the end of World War II, our national divorce rate has shown a small but hopeful decline.

Current sociological factors tend to strengthen today's marriage bonds, according to Dr. Robert M. Goldenson in February Family Circle Magazine. He points out many reasons why marriage has a better chance today:

Due to present prosperity, more people are able to have children without too much financial strain. It is interesting to note, too, that when young people of today are questioned about the number of children they want, they answer on the average of "three or four" as compared with the "one-or-two" response of a few years ago.

Home-centered recreation is a plus for marriage, provided it isn't dull and repetitious. The rumpus room of today is becoming the center for imaginative parties and games. Television is a source of interesting conversation and enjoyment.

Today's young couples realize the necessity and desirability of striving to create a happy, stable family unit. But they are realistic enough to know that a satisfying marriage cannot be theirs unless they work hard for it.

Critics Always Red?

A libertarian we know, engaged in conversation with a person unfamiliar with the theme of liberty, took occasion to criticize our government in some of its most recent forays against free men.

The non-libertarian looked down his nose and commented: "This is the greatest country of them all. I've never had it so good. If you don't like what we have here, why don't you go back to Russia or Hungary? Maybe you'd like what the government does there."

We know of still another instance. A friend of ours, inveighing against the confiscation of wealth embodied in our communistically inspired graduated income tax law, was told: "I think taxes are just fine. If the rich have to pay more than the poor, why shouldn't they? They can afford it. If you don't like the tax law of this country, why don't you go to Paraguay? The tax laws there are far less stringent."

Apparently, if these conversations serve as a guide and indicate the state of public understanding and feeling generally, the principles of Americanism are no more. Those who love freedom and deplore license are to be shipped out of the country by those who love license and fear freedom.

The situation is the result of a great paucity of thought. Those who love America and wish to see it preserved, are now viewed as enemies if they speak up against tyranny and confiscation. Those who betray America and its noble traditions of liberty, are, by means of majority rule, in positions of authority and force and would not hesitate to invoke both.

What has happened appears to be this. Americans generally have learned that there is a danger in this country from communism, and a communist, they have learned, is seeking to overthrow the government of the United States. Consequently, anyone who so much as dares to criticize the United States government, regardless of what it does, is a communist, or is leaning toward communism.

Who do these people want to do? Obviously, ship out those who criticize the government. Send them out of the country so that whatever our own government does, it can do it without criticism.

If this is not an invitation to disaster, what is it? If the American people have become convinced that communism is a "foreign idea" and that it can be overseas only by having all of our own government instantly and totally, then this nation has become, to all intents and purposes, a communist coun-

THE NATION'S PRESS

996 BILLION HAIR CURLER

(California Feature Service)

When Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey warned that unless this nation trims the ever-increasing cost of government we will face "a depression that will cut your hair," he voiced the fears of a great many Americans who looked with dismayed concern on the 1957-58 budget.

The dangers inherent in the budget are as much philosophical as they are fiscal. Because of anticipated increases in earnings, and therefore in taxes, the budget is in balance. But nowhere is there evidenced a prudent desire to take advantage of unprecedented prosperity in order to retire debt and relieve the tax burden. Instead, there are requests for vast sums to be spent on a bewildering melange of welfare projects and other undertakings that may be somewhat desirable but cannot by any standard be considered imperative.

Another of the budget's dangers lies in what it doesn't say. It doesn't say, for instance, that the government will be spending more than $10 billion for Social Security. In addition to the $2.5 billion asked for labor and welfare, it doesn't say that the actual total of farm expenditures will be $8 billion instead of the budget's less than $5 billion. It doesn't say that the gross expenditure by government will be $95 billion instead of the budget's $71 billion, because the "extras" are to be financed from sources other than those contemplated in the budget.

This is a legitimate book-keeping device, but it is misleading. If we want to know the true extent of our government's operations—and our misconception of government's cost can reach dangerous proportions if the advocates of spending ourselves rich prevail over those who know we can only find ourselves poor.

WE PICK UP THE TAB AGAIN

(California Feature Service)

John Foster Dulles the other day epitomized the "Eisenhower Doctrine" for the Middle East as meaning that unless the United States commits troops to fight aggression in that area, if we accept the principle that it is our destiny to police the world, that simplification makes some sense. A definite statement that we'll fight is a better deterrent to aggression than a mere implication that we might take retributive action.

Even if we accept such a destiny, however, the economic aspects of the Doctrine make very little sense. Who needs our $400 million? Who asked for it? We are getting stuck with the check for that tragicomic Suez performance already—why dole out more?

One fairly small example illustrates our propensity for being left holding the money sack—into which other hands dip eagerly. The United Nations is attempting to raise $20 million to clean up the Suez Canal. An initial pool of $10 to $15 million is needed. Of the 90 members polled for contributions, nine have asked up. The United States, of course, with $5 million, is one. The other eight? Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Netherlands, West Germany, Canada, Australia, Italy. Where are the Suez participants, France, England, Egypt and Israel? And the Soviet Union, India? Standing around with their hands in their pockets.

For that matter, why shouldn't they? We are trying to hand out $400 million—what's a mere $7? Perhaps someday we'll learn that our friends across the seas are very quick at drawing up plans for spending money, and very slow at drawing money out of the bank.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

A Couple Of Thoughts On Education

A reader from Monahan, Tex. sent me a clipping from the Nov. 17, 1956, Saturday Evening Post. It shows how we are regimenting our children in our tax-run schools. It shows a picture of a line of eight school children going to a cafeteria. Then it shows a boy and a girl out of line refusing to go to the cafeteria. Then it has under the heading, "You be the Judge," this statement:

"Millvale Grammar School installed a cafeteria bussed by a female dietitian, and passed a rule forbidding pupils to lunch elsewhere. Bann O'Hannon, a fiddling individualist, snorted and told his two youngsters to eat where they pleased. For lunching at a hot-dog stand across the street, they were expelled. O'Hannon thereupon sued to have the school-lunch rule declared null and void.

"A rule which requires students to eat only at the school cafeteria is unreasonable and dictatorial," he argued. "My children should be allowed to continue in school whether they eat at the cafeteria or elsewhere."

"The school cafeteria, directed by an expert dietitian, assures the children of a well-balanced lunch which they may not get elsewhere," the school officials replied. "Therefore it is to their interest to insist that they use the cafeteria."

"If you were the judge, would you make the children eat in the school cafeteria?"

"The school won. The court decided that the rule was for the best interest of the pupils. If it is common knowledge that children, if allowed to depend upon their own selection, often indulge themselves in unbalanced diets, the court said. Furthermore, if uncontrolled at table, young children are apt to engage in rough or uncouth practices and conduct."

Of course, if the government has a right to tell what children shall study, what they shall put into their minds, they certainly should have the right to tell what they eat in their stomachs. It is infinitely more dangerous to give the state the exclusive right to educate the children than it is the exclusive right to tell what they can eat. And do not think that every state in the union does not have the exclusive right to tell what children shall be taught. Of course they can, for the moment, go to private schools, but because so far a state gives them that consent. When the state gets a little stronger, we will even have schools that are not controlled by the tax bureaucrats.

Creating Interest In Education I was struck by a letter Ralph Courtney sends out on "Federal Aid to Education, New Style." He gives a thought that our lack of interest in education is largely due to the fact that parents believe the tax-run schools are educating their children. He puts it this way: "Federal Aid to Education is an idea that is resisted by many Americans on the ground that whoever pays for education will make demands on the way it is to be conducted. Government, in their opinion, is no more fitted to manage education than to regulate religion. No law affecting religion is permitted under our Constitution. It can at least be argued that if this had also been the case in regard to education, the American public would have become more education-conscious and the level of culture in this country would be higher than it is."

"For education is more than just knowledge in the hands of teachers. It involves the art of making knowledge really interesting and even thrilling to children. As such an art, it is liable to die into mere routine when functioning under outside control or interference. Also, like any other cultural expression, this art of education thrives on direct consumer appreciation. Such appreciation would express itself in the choice of one concept of education over another, or one school over another.

"Americans, in theory, want the best possible education, which cannot be produced by the decisions of 'experts' alone. It must be founded on an education-conscious citizenry. This, in turn, can hardly be created without first making parents responsible for choosing their own schools. The apathy of education reflects itself in the indifference of children, whose schools too often become little more than prison-houses in which they are forced to spend a portion of their lives."

At the Boston meeting of the AFL executive council, according to the informant's communication to Congress, Dubinsky blasted Paul Dorfman, of Chicago, who owns an AFL charter for a profitable scavengers' union, because Dorfman helped Dio get the charter from the UAW of the AFL. (There is calculated confusion in these rackets. There are two called the United Auto Workers. The big one belongs to the Reuther brothers and is the backbone of the CIO. The one which gave Dio his hunting license is a little AFL racket, now practically out of business.)

A Matter Of Defense

Fair Enough

Dubinsky Hit Top Of Howl And Enter St. George Meany

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

WASHINGTON — For subtle reasons, Dave Dubinsky, the president-dictator of the Government Workers' Union, never is mentioned as a suitable subject for investigation by Congressional Committees. He and his union, with its incalculable treasury, are exempt.

However, it seems certain that when the new Senate Subcommittee for investigation by Congressional Committees, which are controlled by the tax bureaucrats, is created.

Dubinsky ran out of gas and sat down defeated, but later on he planned his underling, Alex Rose, for taking him to Dorfman's suite. Dorfman later taught up with Rose and they had a conversation about the question whether this was an "impropriety."

In this connection, you have to memorize certain names and connections. Thus, Dorfman has a wife and son who run a big insurance business with unions mostly the stuff called "welfare," and Jim Hoffa, of Detroit, now second to Dave Beck in the Teamsters' Union, has had big business with Dorfman's family through members of his family.

The Congressional informant also reported that about June, 1951, Joe Jacobs, a brilliant and spiritual Chicago labor statesman of the Dorfman mob, gave a big loading in the Waldorf Tower in New York and that the guests included the following exemplars of ethical rectitude and honor:

Ralph Edwards, then radio evangelist for the AFL, Austin Fisher, a "public relations" and "labor relations" specialist of the upper financial echelons; and Franklin D. Roosevelt for subpoena, and being consensated to the cause of purity in all public affairs, would be eager witnesses.

The same informant said that during the annual meeting of the executive council of the AFL in Boston in 1952, Dubinsky belittled because the United Auto Workers of the AFL had issued a charter to Johnny Dioguardi, alias Dio, of New York, now under indictment on a charge of causing acid to be thrown into the eyes of Victor Riesel, in New York, last April. Dio had been doing business with notorious crooks within Dubinsky's own empire, as Dubinsky should know because a professional investigator employed by him for that purpose officially told him in writing. Copies of these reports recently were in Dubinsky's own files and may still be available for subpoena. They reveal a state of affairs as bad as that existing in the Teamsters' Union, which somehow, nevertheless, gets all the notoriety while Dubinsky flaps his wings and burbles about ethics. Dave Beck, Jim Hoffa, and others of the Teamsters' racket are sick and tired of Dubinsky's sanctimony and are practicing trails on the old whistle.

At the Boston meeting of the AFL executive council, according to the informant's communication to Congress, Dubinsky blasted Paul Dorfman, of Chicago, who owns an AFL charter for a profitable scavengers' union, because Dorfman helped Dio get the charter from the UAW of the AFL. (There is calculated confusion in these rackets. There are two called the United Auto Workers. The big one belongs to the Reuther brothers and is the backbone of the CIO. The one which gave Dio his hunting license is a little AFL racket, now practically out of business.)

FOR REFLECTION

with JAMES C. INGEBRETT, President, National Mobilization

Efforts to jam or distort radio programs beamed by the free world have reportedly cost the Soviet Union and five satellite countries an estimated total of $38-400,000 annually. The Polish government recently took official notice of this fiscal burden and ordered the jamming efforts suspended.

Is there not an analogous tendency on the part of most of us as individuals to "jam" the reception of whatever goes counter to our biases or prejudices. Are we not guilty even of disregarding what ever in the Word of God seems disagreeable to us? We eagerly appropriate the Biblical promises but we are not nearly so eager to obey the commandments.

But all of us have it within our own hearts an dminis to let the truth of God in without distortion if we so choose. No one else can "jam" our reception of God's voice. And, as we commemorate this Christmas the birth of Christ, let us not forget the overwhelming challenge of His life and His death.

Table forks were unknown to the ancients. "Fingers were made before knives," wrote Jonathan Swift in "Polite Conversation" (1733). Both so close, and spoons in one form or other, date from prehistoric times, but even they were little used as table utensils until the Middle Ages. The Greeks and Romans had their food cut into small pieces before it was served and ate it with their fingers. Sometimes during the late Middle Ages, the upper classes in Italy began to use forks for eating purposes. In the sixteenth century a Venetian lady, wife of Duke Cosimo Ruffilo and daughter of the Byzantine Emperor Constantine Duca, was described as "luxurious beyond belief" because she ate with a small gold fork. Before the seventeenth century silver forks were known in England. Outside Italy, these Shakespeare Queen Elizabeth, like her predecessors, ate with her fingers and used neither knife nor fork, although knives and spoons for conveying food from the plate to the mouth were then coming into use.

The invitation came from the Army's Tenth Special Forces (Airborne) and asked me to join them in a field exercise. Fortunately, I had been in Bad Toiz long enough to learn a little about the Tenth and what happens on one of its practice maneuvers. Otherwise, I might have said yes, and that would have been the end of me.

The Tenth's mission, in the event of war, is to get behind the enemy lines — usually by parachute drop — and once there, to contact, organize, direct and supply the guerrillas. When the whistle blows, they say goodbye for the duration. They live where they can, eat what they can, and there are no rotation plans. No USO shows, no special services to bring the mping-pong tables, no mention of their heroes in hometown papers, and no letters from home.

On a field exercise the Tenth operates under wartime conditions as nearly as possible, and tests its men to the limit, both physically and mentally. It is no place for a man with a weakness, in either his legs or his head. The men operate in seven-man teams, headed by an officer and a senior NCO. Under them are specialists in weapons, demolition, communications, and medical care.

The teams stay in the field for as long as months, depending on the problem, and one look at the terrain around here is sufficient to scare off all but the super-hardy. The Bavarian Alps, with their snow, jagged peaks, rushing streams, and sub-zero weather, are superb for the tourist to gaze upon from the verandah of his lodge, but no place in which to set up light housekeeping.

It is very light housekeeping, too, for the prime essential of guerrilla warfare is mobility, so the Tenth hits the road (meaning the silk) with the barest of necessities. To accept the Tenth's invitation would mean, first off, that I would have to jump to get started. Jumping on a feather bed is no fun, so you can imagine what jumping on an Alp is like. Then, most likely, I would have to start living in a cave, or some similar habitation, with a boulder for a pillow, and rocks for a counterpane.

The chances are that to get this delightful abode, I would have to sit, climb a series of precipices, or swim a swift-running river, all the while dodging enemy troops out to finish me off.

The enemy wouldn't have to worry too much about me, though. The first cliff would solve that problem for them. And if it didn't, the skills would.

Troubles for the men of the Tenth aren't over when they make contact with the guerrillas. They must sell themselves to the leader, or leaders, for one thing. And they must harmonize with the resistance fighters. They must instruct them in the uses of all the supplies to be furnished, and most important, direct their activities to fit in with the plans of the U.S. commander of the theatre in which they are working. For the teams of the Tenth take their orders from him. Special Forces troops do not act as lone wolves, free to operate as they see fit. In an emergency they would, but it is part of their job to see that this emergency does not arise.

The Tenth's soldiers are not spies and saboteurs. They drop in uniform, and keep it on.

To realize that there is a fertile field for the Tenth to work in this case of war, one only has to recall recent events in Hungary and Poland.

Final Desperation Due On U.S. Place de la Concorde

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Final desecration of the most historic acre of land in the United States is assured as a result of the Administration's decision to build a $30,000,000 office structure housing almost 4,000 workers along Lafayette Square in the District of Columbia.

Lafayette Square, a leafy and forested park fronting the White House, ranks in beauty and legend with the Place de la Concorde in Paris, St. James Park and Trafalgar Square in London, ancient Forum in Rome and the Agora in Athens. American figures as famous as Napoleon, Nelson, Caesar and Socrates once walked this rich acre of earth.

For years there have been suggestions that Lafayette Square be restored to its original state in the manner that the Rockefeller have remade Williamsburg, Va., to its colonial likeness. But commerce and government have invaded this sacred place. Restoration proposals have come to nothing, and now an unromantic Uncle Sam will wipe out its last links with the nation's birth and growth.

On one corner of this famous acre of land, Daniel Webster wrote his brilliant replies to Hayne and Calhoun, which did so much to glorify and to preserve the Union. Across the street stood the residence of Banker W. W. Corcoran, who helped to finance the hard-pressed Union in the Civil War and gave Washington its first great art gallery before "Andy" Mellon outdid him.

Down the same street — H — lived Lincoln's private secretary, John Hay, in a house which was subsequently inhabited by Judah Benjamin, one of the Confederacy's ablest and kindest leaders and Cabinet member. Next door lived Henry Adams, author of the classic "Education of Henry Adams" and a member of the great Bay State Adams tribe, which gave us two Presidents.

Is there not an analogous tendency on the part of most of us as individuals to "jam" the reception of whatever goes counter to our biases or prejudices. Are we not guilty even of disregarding what ever in the Word of God seems disagreeable to us? We eagerly appropriate the Biblical promises but we are not nearly so eager to obey the commandments.

But all of us have it within our own hearts an dminis to let the truth of God in without distortion if we so choose. No one else can "jam" our reception of God's voice. And, as we commemorate this Christmas the birth of Christ, let us not forget the overwhelming challenge of His life and His death.

Table forks were unknown to the ancients. "Fingers were made before knives," wrote Jonathan Swift in "Polite Conversation" (1733). Both so close, and spoons in one form or other, date from prehistoric times, but even they were little used as table utensils until the Middle Ages. The Greeks and Romans had their food cut into small pieces before it was served and ate it with their fingers. Sometimes during the late Middle Ages, the upper classes in Italy began to use forks for eating purposes. In the sixteenth century a Venetian lady, wife of Duke Cosimo Ruffilo and daughter of the Byzantine Emperor Constantine Duca, was described as "luxurious beyond belief" because she ate with a small gold fork. Before the seventeenth century silver forks were known in England. Outside Italy, these Shakespeare Queen Elizabeth, like her predecessors, ate with her fingers and used neither knife nor fork, although knives and spoons for conveying food from the plate to the mouth were then coming into use.

The invitation came from the Army's Tenth Special Forces (Airborne) and asked me to join them in a field exercise. Fortunately, I had been in Bad Toiz long enough to learn a little about the Tenth and what happens on one of its practice maneuvers. Otherwise, I might have said yes, and that would have been the end of me.

The Tenth's mission, in the event of war, is to get behind the enemy lines — usually by parachute drop — and once there, to contact, organize, direct and supply the guerrillas. When the whistle blows, they say goodbye for the duration. They live where they can, eat what they can, and there are no rotation plans. No USO shows, no special services to bring the mping-pong tables, no mention of their heroes in hometown papers, and no letters from home.

On a field exercise the Tenth operates under wartime conditions as nearly as possible, and tests its men to the limit, both physically and mentally. It is no place for a man with a weakness, in either his legs or his head. The men operate in seven-man teams, headed by an officer and a senior NCO. Under them are specialists in weapons, demolition, communications, and medical care.

The teams stay in the field for as long as months, depending on the problem, and one look at the terrain around here is sufficient to scare off all but the super-hardy. The Bavarian Alps, with their snow, jagged peaks, rushing streams, and sub-zero weather, are superb for the tourist to gaze upon from the verandah of his lodge, but no place in which to set up light housekeeping.

It is very light housekeeping, too, for the prime essential of guerrilla warfare is mobility, so the Tenth hits the road (meaning the silk) with the barest of necessities. To accept the Tenth's invitation would mean, first off, that I would have to jump to get started. Jumping on a feather bed is no fun, so you can imagine what jumping on an Alp is like. Then, most likely, I would have to start living in a cave, or some similar habitation, with a boulder for a pillow, and rocks for a counterpane.

The chances are that to get this delightful abode, I would have to sit, climb a series of precipices, or swim a swift-running river, all the while dodging enemy troops out to finish me off.

The enemy wouldn't have to worry too much about me, though. The first cliff would solve that problem for them. And if it didn't, the skills would.

Troubles for the men of the Tenth aren't over when they make contact with the guerrillas. They must sell themselves to the leader, or leaders, for one thing. And they must harmonize with the resistance fighters. They must instruct them in the uses of all the supplies to be furnished, and most important, direct their activities to fit in with the plans of the U.S. commander of the theatre in which they are working. For the teams of the Tenth take their orders from him. Special Forces troops do not act as lone wolves, free to operate as they see fit. In an emergency they would, but it is part of their job to see that this emergency does not arise.

The Tenth's soldiers are not spies and saboteurs. They drop in uniform, and keep it on.

To realize that there is a fertile field for the Tenth to work in this case of war, one only has to recall recent events in Hungary and Poland.

Wilhelm Leaves For State Meet

Gary Wilhelm will be carrying Pampa's colors into the state Golden Gloves tournament in Fort Worth this week when he represents Amarillo in the annual winter amateur event.

Wilhelm recently won the open division lightweight crown in Amarillo's regional tournament and earned the right to enter the state competition in huge Will Rogers Memorial Coliseum.

The tournament starts Tuesday night and concludes Saturday. Eighteen regions from over the Lone Star State will compete for championship honors in eight weight divisions. Winners there will later compete in Chicago's Tournament of Champions.

Wilhelm, the only Pampa open fighter to win at Amarillo, will leave with the other members of the team and the coaches tonight from Amarillo. Weigh-ins will be held Tuesday morning and pairings will be made shortly before the fights.

Ollie Wilhelm, Gary's father and coach, will accompany the team as a coach. Marion Guana, coach of the team champion Amarillo Boxing Club squad, will also make the trip.

Representing the Amarillo region will be Jerry Perez, Plainview, flyweight; Joe Lira, ABC, bantamweight; T. B. Bacs, ABC featherweight; Wilhelm, Pampa, 118-pounder; Bill McFarland, ABC, welter; Merrill Johnson, ABC, middleweight; James Martin, Plainview, light-heavy; and Bill Lunsford, Plainview, heavyweight.

Martin is the only alternate on the team. Raymond (Doc) Williams of D&D Boxing Club of Amarillo decided not to make the trip and he was replaced by Martin, the Plainview district champion.

Three of the fighters, Lira, McFarland and Johnson, will make a return visit to the state tournament. Lira fought there three years ago from the Brownwood district and the other two boxers lost out in the semifinals last year.

Wilhelm will be making his first trip to compete in the meet but the Wilhelm name has appeared in the state event previously. Gary's older brother, Bobby, went to the state meet two years ago and made a good showing. Both Bobby and Gary have won the Hamilton Memorial Awards as outstanding fighters of the Amarillo regional meet. The two are considered among the best fighters to compete from this region.

Gary has been working out with Guana and other members of the team in Amarillo since Friday. He was to work out there today and then board the train late tonight. Duke Nally, the regional director, and Guana have been impressed with Gary's showing during his workouts.

Wilhelm's toughest competition will probably come from Jake Martinez, the 1953 and 1955 lightweight titlist who is back for another shot. The El Paso fighter later went to the Tournament of Champions semifinals last year and represented Chicago in the intra-city matches. Wilhelm is being given a good chance to lead the Amarillo delegation which last year tied for the team championship.

Another Pampaan who made a name for himself in the state tournament last year will not be back again this year. Max Bob Prigmore, former Pampa High School athlete now playing football at Baylor University in Waco, Prigmore won the heavyweight title in Fort Worth last year but did not compete in preliminary competition this year because of an injury.

Pampa Faces Tough Week

The Pampa Harvesters lost their one-half game lead in the District 2-AAAA basketball race after an idle weekend and as a result the Borger Bulldogs crept back into the spotlight.

The Bulldogs, who held a lead for a short time and then lost it after being toppled by the Harvesters, won their ninth game in 10 tries last Friday by beating Plainview 70-64. Pampa had extended its record to 8-1 last Tuesday by beating Monterey 47-34.

Pampa and Borger are likely to wind up with 11-1 district records and meet in a playoff to decide the 3-AAAA champion. Pampa has two home games this week to close out its regular season and the Bulldogs face a pair of foes out of town.

The Harvesters, who have now won 22 of 23 games this season, will face the Lubbock Westerners in Harvesters Fieldhouse tomorrow night at 8 and they take on the Plainview Bulldogs here Thursday night.

Borger battles Amarillo's Sandies in Amarillo Tuesday night and closes out with the Palo Duro Dons there on Thursday night. A loss by either Pampa or Borger would just about eliminate them from championship competition.

The district title must be decided by Feb. 23. The state tournament in Austin is slated for March 5-9.

The district winner must face two other conference champions before representing this region in the state meet. Either a four-team tournament involving winners of Districts 1-AAAA, 2-AAAA, 3-AAAA and 4-AAAA must be held or the conference winners must meet in a double-death district play. The method of play, the site and dates may be chosen by representatives of the four winning schools.

At the present time, Thomas Jefferson of El Paso paces the 1-AAAA race, Abilene has a narrow hold in 2-AAAA, Pampa and Borger are neck and neck in District 3-AAAA and Poly of Fort Worth is the 4-AAAA leader.

Pampa's Shockers won their 20th and 26th games of the season over the weekend. Their record now stands at 26-1. The Shockers beat Shamrock's Irish Friday night, 54-53, and won over the Childress B team 57-32 Saturday night.

Coyle Winborn paced the Pampa B squad in both games, scoring 29 against Shamrock and 15 against Childress. Bobby Gindorf

Cowboys Back Into Border Circuit Lead

The Hardin-Simpsons Cowboys, who awoke to find themselves riding the Border Conference basketball crest without playing a league game, make their supreme bid for the championship tonight and Tuesday night.

The Cowboys (4-1) made the dangerous trek westward, a visit that proved disastrous to Texas Western (2-2) a week earlier, and will face Arizona State at Tempe tonight and move on to Tucson against Arizona Tuesday night.

If the Cowboys could sweep both games, they would be in an enviable position in the title battle since all three of their remaining league games are at home.

Arizona (3-2), the only other club beside Texas Western with a title chance, could enhance its prospects considerably by beating the Cowboys and then whipping Arizona State at Tempe on Saturday night.

Texas Western plays West Texas at Canyon Friday night in the only other league tilt. In outside games, New Mexico A&M plays a touring Mexican team Tuesday night and Western goes to Texas Tech Saturday.

Last week, Arizona beat Texas Western 73-52 and West Texas 77-67. Arizona State downed the Aggies 79-71 and West Texas 84-82 and Hardin-Simpsons whipped Texas Tech 73-52.

SMU's Hayes Picking Rice Owls To Dethrone Mustangs For Crown

United Press Sports Writer Coach Doc Hayes of defending champion Southern Methodist figures the Rice Owls should dethrone his front-running club for the Southwest Conference basketball title and this may be the week that tells how good a forecaster the balding SMU mentor really is.

"The schedule is all in the Owls' favor," Hayes says. "Too, they have some pretty capable reserves to spell the regulars while we're having to face key-up clubs every game with only six men. Then, we've got two tough games on the road against Rice at Houston and Arkansas at Fayetteville."

Hayes was cognizant of the fact that his club stands at 6-1 to Rice's 6-2 as the two contenders head into the second week of the final half of the schedule, but he figured SMU would drop at least two more games.

Owls Hit Road His Mustangs face Texas at Dallas Tuesday night of this week and then rest until next week when they meet the Texas Aggies and Rice before winding up against Texas Christian and Arkansas. The Aggie and TCU games are at home.

Rice faces its two toughest foes, outside of SMU itself, this week when the Owls hit the road against Baylor at Waco Tuesday night and return home against Texas on Saturday night. Then, they make the trek to Fayetteville against Arkansas next week prior to closing out at home against SMU and Texas A&M.

SMU needs a victory over Texas, one of the most accurate shooting teams in the nation, the worst way if it hopes to keep any daylight between it and the pesky Owls, while Rice could ill afford to lose either of its tests this week.

Aggies Face TCU There are other games on this week's schedule, but they are secondary as compared to the three big ones involving the title contenders.

Tuesday night, the Aggies and TCU get together at College Station and Arkansas, still entertaining a glimmer of title hope with its 4-3 record, entertains Tulsa at Fayetteville in a non-league contest.

Saturday night, Baylor visits the Aggies and Arkansas drops in on TCU at Fort Worth.

SMU and Rice both opened the second half races on victory notes. SMU, which in turn were humiliated by Arkansas 63-46.

There was little change in the individual scoring race as SMU's Jim Krebs stayed in front of Ray Downs of Texas and Dick O'Neal of TCU in both season and league scoring.

Krebs has scored 453 points and Downs' 41 over the season and 158 to Downs' 137 in league action.

Southwestern League Seeks 8th Member

Directors of the Class B Southwestern League in a meeting in Midland yesterday voted to compete as an eight-team baseball circuit this year.

The Roswell, N.M., member of the league was asked to turn back its franchise and El Paso was told to relocate in another league in 15 days or sell its players. San Angelo, the 10th club, had trouble earlier in the week and dropped out of the league, giving the Class B loop only seven teams.

The directors will choose from six cities seeking admission the other member of the league. Those cities have not been named.

Only the seven surviving members had representative at the Sunday meeting which was held largely to iron out the 140-game schedule. Attending were G. F. (Pinky) Branson and Ben Niblock of Pampa, Art Bowland of Plainview, Fat Stacey and J. C. Cunningham of Midland, Tony York of Ballinger, Thurman Tucker of Hobbs, C. F. Montgomery and Jody Phipps of Garfield, Eddie Jones of Clovis and W. J. Green and Tommy Yates of San Angelo. Green and Yates are president and secretary, respectively, of the league.

League play starts on April 23 with 140 games slated for the season. It was decided that double-headers would be seven innings each. The club with the largest opening-day attendance will receive $200 and the city with the largest attendance for the year will receive $300.

TO STATE MEET — Gary Wilhelm will be Pampa's only representative to the state Golden Gloves tournament which opens tomorrow in Fort Worth. Gary won the lightweight title at Amarillo. (News Photo)

Tarheels Flirting With Mister Upset

By JOHN GRIFFIN United Press Sports Writer

How long can North Carolina get away with these hair-raising escapes?

For the second straight game, the nation's No. 1 team barely avoided disaster Saturday when it defeated Duke, 75-73, on Tommy Kearns' two free throws with 18 seconds left—and tonight the Tarheels will be trying to make their perfect record 19-0 when they visit Virginia.

North Carolina will be only one of six major conference leaders who will see court action tonight as the cage season goes into the "showdown" stage with the big post-season tournaments less than a month away.

Indiana of the Big Ten, Kentucky of the Southeastern Conference, Bradley of the Missouri Valley, Western Kentucky of the Ohio Valley, and Hardin-Simpsons of the Border Conference all will be jacking their records. But two straight squeakers put the spotlight for the moment on North Carolina, with experts wondering whether recent eligibility losses have seriously undermined the Tarheels.

On Tuesday night, Carolina was forced into a double-overtime to beat Maryland, 85-81, being saved by Kearns' basket in the fading seconds of regulation time. On Saturday, Kearns, who had lost the ball several times in the final two minutes as Duke scored eight straight points to tie, 73-73, stood by sinking his winning pair of free throws with just 18 seconds remaining. Len Rosenbly had scored 20 points for the Tarheels to keep them in front until then.

Virginia tonight represents the first of six hurdles still standing between North Carolina, the nation's only major unbeaten team, and a perfect season. Two of them are with mighty dangerous Wake Forest, the first this Wednesday night.

The upset lightning that grazed North Carolina struck down four of the nation's highest-ranking teams Saturday.

Southern Methodist (No. 4) was upset by Texas Tech, 66-67, when it was outscored 12-0 over the last five minutes; UCLA (No. 5) had its string of 23 straight Pacific Coast Conference victories snapped by Washington, 90-74, as Doug Smart led the way with 31 points; Ohio State (No. 9) fell short in a closing rally and surrendered the Big Ten lead to Indiana, 69-58, and Illinois (No. 12), now playing without ineligible star George Bon Sals, bowed to Michigan State, 70-64.

BOSTON (UP)—Boston College handed a touring Israeli Olympic basketball team its first defeat in this country, 64-59, Sunday in a preliminary to a National Basketball Association game between the Boston Celtics and Philadelphia Warriors.

Folley Battles Turner Tonight

NEW YORK (UP)—Heavyweight contender Zora Folley of Chandler, Ariz., seeks his eighth straight victory tonight in a 10-round bout with Howard Turner of Brooklyn at St. Nicholas Arena.

It will be televised by DuMont at 10:30 p.m. EST.

Folley, 25, is favored at 12-5 partly because of his comparative showings against Wayne Belthea of New York, whom each fought twice.

Fay Crocker Wins In Serbin Tourney

MIAMI BEACH (UP)—The 33-year-old Serbin Women's Open golf tournament is getting to be a habit for Fay Crocker and Patty Berg.

Miss Crocker, the golfing phenom from Montevideo, Uruguay, won the tournament for the third straight year Sunday, scoring a 143 low 36 holes. And for the fourth straight year, Miss Berg, the veteran professional from St. Andrews, Ill., came in second only one stroke behind.

Tied for third at 145 were Betty Dodd, Louisville, Ky., and Marilyn Smith, Wichita, Kan.

Anne Richardson, Columbus, Ohio, won amateur honors by beating Wanda Sanchez, Baton Rouge, La., on the first extra hole of a playoff. They tied at 181 after the regulation 72 holes.

Finstlerwald And Whitt Tied In Tucson Open Tournament

TUCSON, Ariz. (UP)—Unspectacular, but oh, so steady, Dow Finstlerwald, Tequesta, Fla., and Don Whitt, Alameda, Calif., an "old pro" at 26, battled it out today in an 18-hole playoff for the Tucson Open golf title and $2,000.

These youngsters fought a brilliant battle to tie for the lead after four rounds Sunday when spectator Bill Casper Jr., Bonita, Calif., went ordinary and blew a four-stroke lead in the playoff.

But for the miss of a four-foot putt on the 18th hole, Finstlerwald would have been $2,000 richer, and he and Whitt would have been headed for San Antonio today and the Texas Open with the rest of the tournament players.

Finstlerwald and Whitt posted 72-hole totals of 289, 11 under par. Casper shot a five-over-par 75, following three great rounds earlier, to tie for fourth with Johnny Cleary,

All proceeds from the auction and half of the gate from the attendance will benefit the March of Dimes. Also included on the program will be local talent. Persons bidding the highest will be able to toss pie, sing or dance or request someone else to perform.

The Pampa Shrine Club sponsors the wrestling program and it will be in charge of the auction. Shrine members will take each bid as it is made. Pies may be tossed at any willing spectator or wrestler.

'Pole Vault Mark Next,' Says Gutowski

NEW YORK (UP)—The 18-foot pole vault will be the next major track and field "barrier" to be broken, says Bob Gutowski of Occidental College, a young man who believes he can do it.

Gutowski, a wiry, 21-year-old 146-pounder, made the best vault of his life and narrowly missed setting a world record when he skyrocketed 18 feet, six inches to Rev. Bob Richards of Loy Angeles for the Millrose title Saturday night.

"The way we're vaulting now we'll reach 18 feet definitely within the next two years," Gutowski said. "I hope to be the one to do it and I think maybe I can."

Three world indoor records were smashed in the Millrose Games but Ron Delany of Villanova, who ran the mile in less than four minutes, turned in an ordinary 4:08.7 time in beating another four-minute miler, Lasse Tabori, in the Wanamaker Mile.

Olympic decathlon champion Mitt Campbell of Plainfield, N.J., broke the world indoor mark for the 60-yard hurdles by twice running the event in seven seconds flat. That was a tenth of a second better than Harrison Dillard's previous record.

Arnie Sowell of Pittsburgh broke both the 800 meter and 880 yard marks with times of 1:49.7 and 1:50.8 while winning the latter event. Those times erased Mel Whitfield's old records of 1:50.1 and 1:50.9.

Horace Aghanester of New York won the two-mile run in 9:02.3. Reggie Fearman of New York won the Mel Sheppard 600-yard run in 1:11, and Irs Murchison of Chicago tied the indoor record for the 60-yard dash with a 6.1 clocking in the semi-final, after which he won the final in 6.2.

Tuesday night, the Aggies and TCU get together at College Station and Arkansas, still entertaining a glimmer of title hope with its 4-3 record, entertains Tulsa at Fayetteville in a non-league contest.

Saturday night, Baylor visits the Aggies and Arkansas drops in on TCU at Fort Worth.

Ike's 'Blank Check' Authority Draws Ire

WASHINGTON (UP) — Two Democratic senators charged today that President Eisenhower is seeking "blank check" authority in his Middle East resolution to wage defensive war without consulting Congress.

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) said in a Senate speech that the President's request is "unprecedented" and that if it is approved, "naked executive power will rule the highest and most fateful interests of the nation."

Fulbright proposed that the resolution be ditched in favor of a simple statement by the Senate without force of law—that it will "support the President's policy of opposing the expansion of Communist influence in the Middle East."

The President has asked for authority to use U.S. forces, if necessary, to combat any Communist aggression in the Middle East. He also seeks authority to spend $200 million in available funds as he sees fit on economic and military aid projects for the area.

Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) said that the resolution, as written, would "break down the system of checks and balances" on presidential authority set up in the Constitution.

In testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees, he proposed a series of amendments to require the President to confer with Congress before committing U.S. forces in the Middle East and to report on the reasons he wanted to resort to military action.

O'Mahoney also proposed striking out the "blank check" economic and military aid features. Other congressional news:

Trade: President Eisenhower sent Congress a report recommending U.S. participation in the International Organization for Trade Cooperation. The report was the first required by law on the operation of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). Mr. Eisenhower said present U.S. trade policy "further both our prosperity and our national security."

Israel: House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (D-Mass) opposed any United Nations sanctions against Israel for refusal to pull her troops out of Egypt. McCormack was the latest of a growing list of congressmen to urge the United States to vote against any such sanctions. If the United Nations does approve them, he said, they should be voted against Egypt as well.

Oil: Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) has served notice that Congress may have to step in if big oil companies don't voluntarily cut back gasoline prices. O'Mahoney, chairman of a joint Senate subcommittee investigating the administration's emergency oil program for Europe, said he saw no "real reason" for the recent increases.

Farm: Democrats planned a drive in Congress to increase the soil bank program by as much as $500 million. The increase would be specifically to provide cash payments to farmers for keeping land out of use. Soil bank payments now are limited to $450 million annually for this purpose.

Refugees: Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa) has charged that 6,200 Hungarian refugees to enter the United States were Communists. He said they were the first batch of refugees passed by U.S. refugee-relief administrators.

Walter Biery Promoted

A former Pampa, Walter E. Biery of Tulsa, was elected vice president of the Mid-Continent Pipeline Company, a subsidiary of the Sunray Mid-Continent Company.

Biery was employed by the Sinclair Oil and Gas Company in the Pampa area for a number of years and was a chairman of the local API chapter for one year. While a resident of Pampa he was active in civic work.

He married Dorothy Doucette, daughter of a prominent Pampa family.

Agent Tells Of Legislation

Harry Gordon, local agent for the State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Company, said today he had been advised that legislation had been introduced in Austin that would permit insurance companies to offer safe drivers a lower automobile insurance rate.

The bills that would permit this are Senate Bill 26, and House Bill 1011, he said.

Gordon said that all insurance companies under the present system must charge the same rate whether the driver is careful or careless. This is known as the single (or uniform) rating system.

This system, which in effect makes the safe driver subsidize the careless driver, would be discarded and in its place substituted a flexible rating system that would allow companies to charge rates to fit their operations and remove the present penalty against careful drivers.

"Many economically operated companies in Texas are in a position to charge lower rates, not only for automobile but other types of casualty insurance and surety bonds, but the present law stipulates that fixed rates, with prices set by the State, must be charged," Gordon said.

He urged that anyone in this area who is interested in having this legislation passed should contact his Senator and Representative.
